The yeare hath. xii. monethes. liij. weekes, and one daye:
And it hath in all, thre hundred and. lxvi. dayes, and lxx. houre.

Scripture gathered out of the Bible.

Christ vnto the people. John. v.
Search the Scriptures: For they are they that testifie of me.
Paul to Timothy ii. Timo. iii.
All Scripture gauen by inspiration of God is profitable to teach, to improve, to amende and to instructe in ryghteounes, that the man of God maye be perfecte and prepared to all good workes.

The same to the Roma. xv
What thinges soener are wrytten, are wrytten for our lernynge: that we thozowe paci-ence and conforste of the Scripture, myght haue hope.

Salomon Prover. xxi
All the word of God is pure and cleane, it is a shylde vnto them that put theyr truste in
hym. But nothynge vnto his wordes, lest he reproue the and thou be founde a lyer.

Moses to the people Deute. xii Ye shall not do euery man what seemeth him good in his awne eyes. But whatsoener I commaunde you, that take hede ye do: and put nought thereto, ner take ought ther from.

The Lorde vnto Josua Josue. i Let not the booke of thys lawe departe out of thy mouth. But recorde therin daye and nyght, that thou mayest be circumspecte to do accordynge to all that is wrytten therein.
For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, and then shalt thou haue understandinge standynge in all that thou takest in hande.

The same to the people Exod. xxiij And thou shalt shewe thy sone at that tyme, sayeng: This is done because of that which the Lord dyd vnto me when I came out of Egypte. Therfore it shal be a sygne vnto the vpon thyne hande, and a remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouth. For with a stronge hande the Lorde brought the out of Egypte.

Moses Deute. xxxi.
Se that thou reade thys lawe before all Israel in theyr eares. Gather y people together:
both men, women, and chyldren, and straungers that are in thy cyties, that they maye heare, lerne, and feare the Lorde your God, to kepe all the wordes of thys lawe.

Fyrst the holy writings of the Byble teach vs, that there is one God almyghty, that hath nether begynnyng nor endynge: whiche of his owne goodnesse dyd create all thynges: of whom all thynges procede, and without who there is nothyng: whiche is ryghteous and mercifull: and whiche worketh all thynges in all after his wyll: of whom it maye not be demaunded wherfore he doth this or that.

Then that this verye God dyd create Adam the fyrst man after his owne ymage and spymilitude, and dyd ordeyne and appoynte hym lord of all the creatures in the earth, whiche Adam by the enuye of the deuyl disobeyinge the commaundement of his maker dyd fyrrst synne, and broughte synne into this worlde, such and so greate, that we whiche be spronge of hym after the flesh are subdued vnto syn, death and dampnation, brought vnder the yoke and tyranny of the deuyl.

And further that Chryst Iesus his son was promysed of God the father, to be a sauour to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Dauid, and the other fathers: whiche shoulde deliuer them from theyr synnes and tyranny of the deuyl, that with a quicke and luyng sayth wolde bylene this promysse: and trust to this Iesus Chryst, hoppyng to haue this deliuerance of hym and by hym. And truly this promysse is very oft rehearsed in the booke of the olde Testament, yea, and the olde Testament is this promysse: as it is called the newe, which teacheth that this promysse is fulfilled.

And that in the meane season / whyle the fathers looked for saluacion and deliuerance promysed, by cause mannes nature is such that he not onely can not, but also wyll not confesse hym selfe to be a synner, and specially such a synner that hath neede of the sauynge health promysed, the lawe was gauen wherethrough men myght knowe synne, and that they are synners: when they se that they doo none of the thynges that the lawe commaundeth with so glad and wyllynge a mynde as God requyeth: but rather agaynst theyr wyll, without affection, and as though they were constrained with the feare of that hell whiche the lawe threateneth, saying: Cursed be he that maynteyneth not all the wordes of this lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was gauen, to thintent that synne and the malice of mennes hertes being thereby the better knownen, me shoulde the more feruently thyrst the commynge of Chryst, whiche shoulde redeme them from theire synnes. As it was figured vnto the Jewes by many ceremonies, bootes, and sacrifices, which were ordeyned of God, not to thintent to take awaye synnes, but to shewe & declare that they shoulde be put awaye by sayth, in the saluacion promysed thowowe Chryst: and whiche nowe are put awaye by the comynge of that Chryst, whiche is the very boote of the father that taketh awaye all synne.

Last of all by the booke of the newe testamēt we are taught, that Chryst whiche was promysed and shadowed in the olde Testament, is sent of the father, at suche tyme as he had determyned with hym self, at suche tyme (I saye) as all wyckednesse is extyngished. And that he was sent, not for any mannes good workes (for they all were synners) but to thintent that he wolde trunpe the we the aboundaunt rychesse of grace, whiche he had promysed.

In the new Testament therfore is moost evidently declared, that Iesus Chryst the true lambe and boote, is come to thintent to recouyle vs to the father, payynge on the crosse the punishment due vnto our synnes: and to deliuer vs from the bondage of the deuyl (vnto whome we serued through synne) and to make vs the sonnes of God, sayth he hath gauen vs the true peace and tranquillite of conscience, that we no longer do feare the paynes of hell: whiche feare is put awaye by the sayth, confidence and assurance that the father giveth vs drawynge vs vnto his sonne. For that sayth is the gyfte of God, wherby we bylene Chryst is come into this worlde to saue synners, whiche is of so greate pyth & they whiche haue it desyre to perfourme all the duties of loue

A descreypon and successe of the kynges of Iuda and Ierusalem, declarynge whan & vnder what kynges euery prophet lyued. And what notable thynges happened in theyr tymes, translated oute of the hebreue.

David rayned ouer Israell the. iiii. C. xxi. yere of theyr enterynge into the lande, whych was the. iiii. C. yere of their passynge out from Egypt, and the. ii. M. viii. hundred. lxxviii. yere after the creacion of the worlde: and he rayg-
ned. xl. yere and begat Salomon. Salomon buylte the temple. And in hys dayes, Jonathan Iddo & Ahia Sylonites were prophetes. And hys sonne Rehabeam rayned after him. xlii. yere. Semaiahu and Iddo propheting. And after hym Abiahu hys sonne rayned. iii. yere, and Iddo was the prophete. Asa hys sonne rayned after hym. xli. yere. Asariahu the sonne of Obad, Hanani the Seer, ad Ichu the sonne of Hanani, Obadia, Micha, Jehiel the sonne of zachary, and Eleazar the sonne of hys vncle prophete. Ioram hys sonne succeded him in hys kyngdome ad rayned. viii. yere, and the prophete was Elia. After hym rayned Ahaziah hys sonne one yere, & Elia was prophete. After this, Athalia the mother of Azahia dyd ryle and destroyed the kynges stocke, and there was none left, but the lytle chyld Joas: and Athalia rayned. vi. yere, and they kyllled her. And Joas rayned. xl. yere. After hym rayned hys sonne Amaziah. xxi. yere. The prophetes were Amos and Amazia brethern, and Amos the father of Elay. After hym rayned Elziah hys sonne. lii. yere. The prophetes were Hosea, Elay, Amos and Elziah and Micha Morasthites. Then hys sonne Ahas rayned after hym. xvi. yere. And Hosea, Elay, Amos, Micha ad Obad dyd prophete. hys sonne Ezechias rayned after hym. xxi. yere: Hosea, Elay, Amos, Micha were prophetes. Whome succeded Manasse raynynge. lv. yere, Johell, Nahum and Habakuck were the prophetes. After hym rayned Amon hys sonne. ii. yere, and Hozai was proplete, whose sonne Josiah rayned after hym. xxi. yere. The prophetes were zephania Jeremie and holda, Jehozah hys sonne rayned after him thre monethes & Jeremie was prophete. Whose brother Jehoiakim rayned after him. xi. yere, Jeremie and Elia were prophetes. The. iii. yere of his raygne Nabuchadnezer kyng of Babylon toke hym captiue, and he dyed in his pryson, that it myght be fulfilled whiche was sayde: the Burpall of an alle shalbe buryed. And he transpoted Ierusalem and al the gouernours, and toke captiue. vii. M. of Beniamyns, and the other trybes, whiche were all valyaunt men of warre. After hym rayned his sonne Jehoachin thre monethes and. x. dayes, Jeremie prophete, and Nabuchadnezer kyng of Babel carped hym awaye prysoner, and. xviii. M. with hym: and made Ezechia the brother of hys father, the sonne of Josiah kyng, whych rayned. xi. yere, Jeremie and Ezechiel prophete. The. v. yere of his raygne the host of Babylon came agaynst Ierusalem, and in the xi. yere of his raygne the cytie was taken captiue and Turpe was altered from hys lande: this was the. viii. C. and. iii. yere of theyr enterynge into the lande: and the. iii. M. iii. c. & viii. yere of p creation of the worlde. And there was now lefte of Dauides stocke but only Jerhoniah, which begat Salathieil, Malkirā, Pedaiā and Semariam. Nabuchadnezer rayned vntill the. xxxvii. yere of the transmygracion of kyng Jehochim and Euplmedozach hys sonne rayned. xxiii. yere, and the fyrst yere of hys raygne he brought Jehoacin out of pryson, and after this dyed in Babel after the death of Ezechia. Morouer, Belchazer rayned iii. yere, and Salathieil dyed: and after hym hys sonne zerobabell rayned, that was the. lii. yere of the destruccion of the temple, and the. lxx. yere of the domynion of Babylon. Whyle Darius Medo rayned, the Chaldees kyngdome was destroyed, and zerobabel ascended into Ierusalem the fyrst yere of Chores kyng of the persyans, & the transmygracion with him. Then was Ieholua the sonne of Jezoradac the great prest, and haggai zacharia and Esora were prophetes. But Ahafuerus raynynge, dyd let the worke of the house of the tabernacle and indeuored to subuerbe Israel. But the holy which is blessed, deliuered the worlde both of hym and also of haman. The. xlviii. yere of the Medians whych was the. lxx. yere of the destruccion of the tēple Ezra the scribe ascended into Ierusalem and the other transmygraciō with hym, and he buylte the wall of Ierusalem and restored the house of the tabernacle: ad zerobabell retorned into Babel and dyed there. After hym rayned hys sonne Melullam, and in his dayes the kyngdome of Grece had the domynion. The. lli. yere of the Medians & Persians dyed Haggai, zachari, and Malachi, and at that tyme ceased prophecynge in Israell. Thys is the yere from the creacyon of the worlde. lli. M. liii. C. and. liii. From hence forth geue thyn eare and herken the wordes of wyse men. A prologue or preeface made by the most reuerende father in God, Thomas Archbyschop of Canturbury Metropolitane and Prymate of Englande.

In two sondre sortes of people/it semeth moche necessary that somthyng be sayde in the entyre of thys booke, by the waye of a preeface or prologue: wherby hereafter it maye be both better accepted of them, which hitherto coulde not well beare it: & also the better vsed of them, which hertofore haue mysused it. For truly, some there are that be to slowe, and nede not the spurre: some other seme to quicke, and nede more of the byrdell. Some looke the game by thoste shotynge, some by ouer shotynge. Some walke to moche on the lefte hande, some to moche on the ryght. In the former sorte be all they that refuse to reade, or to heare redde the scripture in theyr vulgar tonges, moche worse they that also let, or discourage the other from the readyng or hearynge therof. In the latter sorte be they, which by theyr inordinate readyng, vndiscrete speakynge, contentious disputynge, or other wyse, by theyr licencious lyuynge, flatter and hynder the worde of God, mooste of all other, wherof they wolde seme to be greatest furtherers. These two sortes albe it they be moost farre vnlike the one to the other, yet they both deserue in effecte lyke reproche. Neyther can I well all whyther of them I maye iudge the more offender, hym that doth obstinately refuse to godlye and goodly knowledge: or hym that so vngodly and so vngoodly doth abuse the same: And as touchynge the former I wolde maruaile moche that any man shulde be so madde, as to refuse in darcknes, lyght: in honger, foode: in colde, fyer: for the worde of God is lyght: Lucerna pedibus meis, verbum tuum. Foode: Non in solo pane viuit homo, sed in omni verbo dei. Fyer: Ignem dei mittere in terram, et quid volo, nisi vt ardeat: I wolde maruaile (I saye at thys) saue that I consyder, howe moche custome and vslage maye do. So that yf there were a people as some wypte, de Cymerys, which neuer sawe the sunne, by reason that they be situated farre toward the north pole, and be enclosed and overshadowed with hygh mountaynes: it is credyble and like ynough, that yf, by the power and will of God, the mountaynes shulde synke downe, and geue place, that the lyght of the sunne might haue rateruance to them: at the fyrst, some of them wolde be offended therewith. And the olde proverbe affermeth, that after tpyllage of cozne was fyrst founde: many delpted more to feade of masse and acornes, wherwith they had ben accustomed, then to eate breed made of good cozne. Soche is the nature of custome that it causeth vs to beare all thynges well and easelye, wherwith we haue bene accustomed, and to be offended with all thynges therunto contrary. And therfore, I can well thynke them worthy pardon, which at the comynge abroade of scripture houbted and drew backe. But such as wpll persyfte styll in theyr wylfulnes, I muste nedes iudge, not onely foolyshe frowarde and obstinate: but also penyfulle, peruerse and indurate. And yet, yf the matter shulde be tryed by custome, we myght also allege custome for the readyng of the scripture in the vulgare tonge, and preeface the more auncient custome. For it is not moche aboue one hundred yere agoe, sens scripture hath not bene accustomed to be redde in the vulgare tonge within this realme, and many hundred yeres before that, it was translated & redde in the Saxones tonge, which at that tyme was oure mothers tonge. Wherof there remayneth yet diuers coppes founde lately in olde abbeyes, of soch antique manners of wrytynge and speaking, that fewe men now ben able to reade and vnderstande the. And when this language waxed olde and out of comen vslage, because folke shulde not lacke the frute of readyng, it was agayne translated in the newer language. Wherof yet also many copies remayne and be dayly founde. But nowe to lett passe custome, and to wepe as wyse men euer shulde, the thyng in hys awne nature. Let vs here distusse. What it anayleth scripture to be had and redde of the lay and vulgare people. And to this question I entende here to saye nothyng: but that was spoken and wrytten by the noble doctoure and moost morall diuine saynt John Chrysostome, in hys thyrde sermon de Lazaro: albe it; I wylbe somthyng shorter, and gether the matter into fewer wordes and lesse rowme the he doth there: because I wolde not be teduous. He exorteth there hys audience, that euery man shulde reade by him selfe at home in the meane dayes and tyme, betwene sermon and sermon: to the entente they myght both more profoundly fyxe in their myndes and memories that he had sayde before vpon soch textes, wherupon he had allreadye preeched: and also that they myght haue theyr myndes the more ready and better prepared to receyue and perceaue that which he shulde saye frome thenforth in hys sermones, vpo soche textes, as he had not yet declared and preeched vpon: therfore sayth he there: Np comen vslage is to geue poe warnynge before, what matter I intende after to entreate vpon, & you poure selues in the meane dayes make the booke in hande, reade, wepe, and perceyue the summe and effect of the matter: and marke what hath bene declared, and what remaineth yet to be declared: so & therby youre mynde maye be the more furnyshed, to here the reste, that shalbe sayde. And that I exhorte you (sayth he) and euer haue & wyll exhorte you, & ye (not only here in the churche) geue care to that, that is sayde by the preacher: but that also, when ye be at home in your houses, ye applye your selues from tyme to tyme to the reacyng of the holy scriptures: which thyng also I neuer lyme to beate into the eares of them that bene my samplers, and with whom I haue ppyuate aquayntaunce and conuersacion. Lett no man make excuse and saye: (sayeth he) I am busied aboute matters of the comon welth, I beare this office or & I am a craftes man, I must applye myne occupacyon, I haue a wyfe, my chyldren must be fedde, my house-holde must I prouyde for. Well, I am a man of the world, it is not for me to reade the scriptures, that belongeth to the that hath bedden the world saye well, which lyue in solitarcnes and contemplatyon, that hath bene brought vp, and contynually nospilled in learnynge and religyon. To this answerynge: what sayest thou man (sayeth he) is it not for the to studie and to reade the scripture, because thou art encorced and distracte with cares and busynesse?

 So much the more it is behouefull for the to haue defence of scriptures, howe moche thou art the more distressed in worldly daungers. They that bene free and farre from trouble and entremedylng of worldly thynges, lyueth in sauegarde and tranquylte, and in the calme or within a sure haue. Thou art in the myddest of the see of worldly wickidnesse, and therfore thou nedest the more of ghostly succoure and comfort: they lytte farre from the strokes of battayll, and farre out of gonnetoute, and therfore they be but seldome wounded: thou & standest in the forefront of the host, and nyst to thyne enemyes, must nedes take nowe and then many strokes, and be greuously wounded. And therfore thou hast more nede to haue thy remedies and medecynes at hande. Thy wyfe prouoketh the to anger, thy chyldre gyueth the occasyon to take sorowe and penituenes, thyne enemyes lyeth in wayte for the, thy frende (as thou takest him) somtyme enuyeth the, thy neyghboure mysreporteth the, or ppe-keth quarrels agaynst the, thy mate or partynner vndermyne the, thy lord iudge, or iustice thretteth the, pouertye is paynefull to the, the losse of thy deare and welbeloued causeth the to moorne. Prosperite exalteth the, aduersyte byngeth the lowe. Well, so diuerse and so manyfolde occasyons of cares, tribulacions and temptacions besetteth the and besegeth the rounde aboute. Where canst thou haue armour or fortresse agaynst thyne assautes? Where canst thou haue salve for thy sores, but of holy scripture? Thy fleshe must nedes be prone and subiecte to fleshy lustes, which daply walkest and art conuersaunte amongst women, seyest they be wyues, set forth to the eye, hearest they nysle and waton wordes, smellest their balme, cyuet and muske, with many other lyke prouocations and sterings, except thou hast in a redynes wherwith to suppress and auoyde them, which cannot elles where be had, but onely out of the holy scriptures. Lett vs reade and seke all the remedies that we can, and all shalbe lytell ynough. Howe shall we then do, yf we suffer and take daply woundes, and whā we haue done, wyll sytte styll and serche for no medecynes? Doest thou not marke and consider, howe the smyth, mason, or carpenter, or any other handy craftesman, what neade so euer he be in, what other thyfte soeuer he make, he wyll not sell or laye to pledge the toles of his occupacyon, for then howe shulde he worke his feate or get his lyuynge therby? Of lyke mynde and affeccyon ought we to be towarde holpe scripture, for as mallettes, hammers, sawes, chesyles, axes, and hatchettes be the tooles of the occupacyon. So bene the bookes of the prophetes, and apostelles, and all holpe wypte inspired by the holy ghost, & instrumen-tes of oure saluacyon. Therfore, let vs not speke to hye and prouyde vs the Wyble, that is to saye, the bookes of holy scripture. And lett vs thinke that to be a better Jewell in our house then eyther golde or syluer. For lyke as theues bene lothe to assaute an house, where they knowe to be good armour and artillery, so wheresoeuer these holy and ghostly bookes bene occupied, there nether the deuell, nor none of his angelles dare come neare. And they that occuppe them bene in moche sauegarde, and haue greute consolacyon, and bene the reader vnto all goodnes, the flower to all euyl, and yf they haue done any thyng amysse, anone euen by the syght of the bookes they confidences bene admonished, and they waken soze & ahamed of the faulte. Paradiuenture, they will saye vnto me: howe and yf we vnderstande nott that we reade, that is conteyned in the bookes. What then? Suppose, thou vnderstande nott the depe and profoūde misteryes of scriptures, yet canst not be, but that moche frute and holynes must come and growe vnto the by the reacyng: for it cannot be that thou shuldest be ignoraunte in all thynges alke. For the holpe ghost hath so ordered and attempere the scriptures, that in them as well publicanes, fylchers, and shepherdes maye fynde they edificacion, as greute doctoures they eruditon: for those bookes were not made to bayne gloze, lyke as were the wyptynges of the gentyle philosphers and rethoricyans, to the entent the makers

makers shulde be hadd in admiration for they hye styles and obscure maner of wywherof nothyng can be vnderstande without a master or an expositoure. But the apostand prophetes wrote they bookes so, that they speciall entent and purpose might be vndestande and perceaued of euery reader, which was nothing but the edificacyon and amende-mente of the lyfe of them that reade or heareth it. Who is that reading or hearing reade in the gospell, Blessed are they that bene meke, Blessed are they that bene mercifull, Blessed are they that bene of cleane herte: and soch other lyke places, can perceyue nothing excepte he haue a master to teache hym what it meaneth. Likewyse, the signes and myracles with all other hystoryes of the doynges of Christ or his apostells, who is ther of so simple witte and capacite, but he maye be able to perceau and vnderstande them. These be but excuses and cloyes for the rayne, and keueynges of they awne ydell slouthfulness, I can not vnderstande
 it. What maruaylle? Howe shuldest thou vnderstande, yf thou wyll not reade, nor loke vpo it: take the bookes into thyne handes, reade the hole storye, and that thou vnderstandest kepe it well in memozye: that thou vnderstandest not, reade it agayne and agayne: yf thou can nether so come by it, counsaile with some other that is better learned. So to thy curate and preacher, shewe thy selfe to be desirous to knowe and learne. And I doubt not, but God sepyng thy diligence and redynesse (yf no man elles teache the) wyll hym selfe wouchlasse w his holy sprete to illuminate the, and to open vnto the that which was locked from the.

Remember the Eunnuchus of Candace queene of Ethioppe, which albeit he was a man of a wyld and barbarous countrey, and one occupied with worldly cares and busynesses, yet ryding in his charet, he was reacyng the scripture. Howe consider, yf this man passyng in his iorney, was so diligent as to reade the scripture, what thinkest thou of like was he wote to do sittynge at home? Agayne, he that letted not to reade, albeit he dyd not vnderstande, What dyd he then, trowest thou, after that when he had learned and had gotten vnderstanding? For that thou maye well knowe that he vnderstode not what he reade: herken what Philippe there sayth vnto hym. Vnderstandest thou what thou reade? And he nothyng ashamed to confesse his ignoraunce, answereth: Howe shulde I vnderstande haupng no body to shewe me the wey? Lo when he lacked one to shewe hym the wey and to expounde to hym the scriptures, yet dyd he reade: and therfore God the rather prouyded for hym a gyde of the wey, that taught hym to vnderstande it. God perceyued his wyllunge and towarde mynde: and therfore he sent hym a teacher by and by. Therfore, let no man be negligēt about his awne health and saluation: though thou haue not Philippe allwayes when thou wol-dest, the holy ghost, which then moued and stered by Philippe, wilbe ready and not faile the yf thou do thy diligence accordyngly. All these thynges bene written for vs to oure edyficatio and amendement, which be bozne towarde the latter ende of the worlde. The reacyng of scriptures is a greute and strong bulwarke or fortresse agaynst synne, the ignoraunce of the same is the greute ruyne and destruccyon of them that will not knowe it. What is the thing that bringeth in heresyces, that is it, that causeth all corrupte and peruerse lyuynge, that it is, byngeth all thynges out of good order. Hether to, all that I haue sayde, I haue take and gathered out of the forsayde sermon of this holy doctour saynt John Chrysostome. Howe yf I shulde in lyke maner byng forth, what the selfe same doctour speaketh in other places, and what other doctoures and wypters saye, concerning the same purpose, I myght seme to you to wypte another Wyble, rather then to make a preface to the Wyble. Wherfore in few wodes to comprehend the largenes and vilitye of the scripture, howe it conteyneth frutefull instruction and eruditon for euery man, yf any thynges be necessarye to be learned: of the holy scripture we maye learne it. Yf falsed shall be reposed, therof we maye gather wherwith all. Yf any thyng be to be corrected and amended, yf there nede any exhortation or co-solatyon, of the scripture we maye well learne. In the scripatures be the fatte pastures of the soule, therin is no venymouse meate, no vnholysome thyng, they be the very dayntie and pure fedynge. He that is ignoraunte, shall fynde there what he sholde learne. He that is a peruerle synner, shall there fynde his damnatyon to make hym to tremble for feare. He that la-boureth to serue God shall fynde ther his gloze, & the promissios of eternall lyfe, exhortyng him more diligently to labour. Herin maye prynces learne howe to gouerne their subiectes: Subiectes obediēce, loue and drede to they prynces, husbādes, howe they shulde be haue the vnto their wyfes: howe to educate they chyldren and seruautes. And contrary the wyfes, chyldren, and seruautes maye knowe there dute to they husbādes, parētes and masters.
 Here maye all maner of persons, men, women, yonge, olde, learned, vnlerned, ryche, poore, prestes, lapmen, Lordes, Ladyes, offycers, ternautes, and meane men, virgyns, wyfes webowes, lawers, marchautes, artifycers, husbāde men, and almaner of persons of what estate or condityon soeuer they be, maye in this booke learne all thynges what they ought to beleue, what they ought to do, & what they shulde not do, as well concerning almyghty God concernynge them selues and all other. Briefly to the readynge of the scripture none enemye, but that either be so sycke, that they loue not to here of any medecyne: or is that be so ignorant, that they knowe not scripture to be the most helthfull medecyne. Therefore as touchynge this former parte, I wyll here conclude and take it as a conclusion sufficientely determined and approued, that it is conuenient and good, the scripture to be read of all sortes & kyndes of people, and in the vulgare tonge without farther allegatiōs or probatiōs for the same, which shall not nede, syngs & this one place of John Chrysostome is ynough & sufficiente to perswade all the p̄be not frowardly and peruerse sett in their awne wyllfull opinion, specially now that the kynges hyghnes beyng supreme hede nexte vnder Christe of this church of Englande hath, approued with his royall assente the setting furthe herof, which onely to all true and obedient subiectes ought to be a sufficiente reason, for the allowaunce of the same, without farther delaye, reclamatiō, or respytaunce although there were no preface nor other reason here in expressed. Therefore now to come to the secōde and latter parte of my purpose there is nothyng so good in this worlde but it maye be abused, and turned from frutefull and holysome, to hurtfull and noysome. What is there aboue, better then the sunne, the moone, the starres? Yet was ther p̄toke occasion by the great bewte and vertue of them to dishonoure God, and to despyle them selues with ydolatre, geuynge the honour of the lyving God and creatour of all thinges, to suche thynges as he had created.

What is there here beneth, better then fyre, water, meates, drynckes, metalles of golde, syluer, yron and stele? Yet, we se daylie great harme and moch mischefe, done by euery one of these, as well for lacke of wysdome and prouidence of them that suffer euill, as by the malice of them that worketh the euill. Thus to them that be euill of them selues, euery thyng setteth forwarde and encreaseth their euill, be it of his awne nature a thing neuer so good, lyke as contrariwise, to them that studyeth and endeuoreth them selues to goodnes, euery thyng preuaileth them, and profitech vnto good: be it of his awne nature a thyng neuer so badde. As saynt Paul sayth, his qui diligunt deum omnia cooperantur in bonum: euen as out of moost venomous wormes is made triacle, the moost soueraygne medecine for the preseruation of mans helth in tyme of danger. Wherefore I wolde aduise you all, that cometh to the readynge or hearynge of this boke, which is the worde of God, the moost precious Jewell, and moost holy relique, that remaineth vpon earth, that ye bring with you the feare of God, and that ye do it with all due reuerence, and vse youre knowledge therof, not to vayne glorie and frivollous disputatiō: but to the honour of God, encrease of vertu, and edification both of yd selues and other. And to the intent that my wordes maye be the more regarded, I wyll vse in this parte the auctorite of saynt Gregoꝛy Nazianzene, lyke as in the other I dyd of S. John Chrysostome. It appereth that in this tyme there were some (as I feare me, there bene also now at these dayes a great number) which were ydell bablers, and talkers of the scripture out of reason, and all good order, and without any encrease of vertu, or exāple of good lyving, to them he wyrteth all his fyrst boke, de theologia. Wherof I shall briefly gather p̄ the hole effecte, and recite it here vnto you. There ben some (sayeth he) whose not onely eares and tonges, but also their eyes bene whitted and ready bent all to contencion and vnprofitable disputatiō, whom I wolde wishe as they bene vehemente and earnest to reason the matter with tonge: so they were also ready and practue to do good dedes. But for asmoche as they, subuertynge the order of all godlynes, haue respecte onely to this thyng. Howe they maye bynde and loose subtile questions, so that now euery market place, euery alehouse and tauerne, euery feasthouse: briefly euery company of men, euery assembly of women is fylled with such talke. Sens the matter is so (sayth he) and that our sayth & holy religion of Christ begynneth to waxe nothing els: but as it were a sophistye or a talkynge craft. I can no lesse do but saye somthing therunto. It is not fitte (sayth he) for euery mā to dispute p̄ hygh questions of diuinite, nether is it to be done at all tymes: nether in euery audyēce must we discusse euery doubte: but we must knowe whā, to whōm, and how farre we ought to enter into such matters. Fyrst, it is not for euery man: but it is for suche as be of exacte and exquisite indgementes, and suche as haue spente the yz tyme before in studye and contemplatiō: and suche as before haue clenched them selues as well in soule, as bodye: or at the least, endeuored them selues to be made cleane. For it is dangerous (sayth he) for the vncleane to touch that thyng, that is mooste cleane: lyke as the soze eye taketh harme by lokynge vpon the sunne. Secundarily, not at all tymes but when we be repored: and at reste some all outwarde bregges and trouble, and when that oure headdes be not encombrd with other worldelye and wanderynge ymaginatiōs: as yf a man shulde myngle balme and dytze together. For he that shall iudge and determyne suche matters and doubtes of scriptures, muste take his tyme, when he maye applye his wittes therunto, that he maye thereby the better see, and discerne what is truethe.

Thyrdelye

Thyrdelye where, and in what audyēce. There and amonge those that bene studious, acie, and not amonge suche as haue pleasure to trespasse with suche matters as with other thynges of pastyme, which repute for there chiefe delicacies the disputatiō of hygh questions, to shewe there wittes, learnynge and eloquence in reasonynge of hygh matters. Fourthly, it is to be considered howe farre to wade in suche matters of difficultie. No further (sayeth he) but as euery mannes owne capacite wyll serue him, and agayne no further then the weakenes or intelligence of the other audyēce maye bere. For lyke as to great noyse hurteth the eare, to moche meate hurteth a mannes bodye, to heuie burdens hurteth the bettes of them, to moche rayne doth moze hurte then good to the grounde, briefly in all thynges to moch is noysome, eue so weke wittes & weke consciences maye sone be oppressed wouer hard questions. I say not this to dissuade me from p̄ knowledge of God, & readynge or studyng of scripture. For I saye, p̄ is as necessarye for the lyfe of mānes soule, as for y bodye to breathe. And yf it were possible so to lyue, I woulde thinke it good for a man to spende all his lyfe in that, and to do no other thyng. I comende p̄ laue whyche byddeth to meditate & studye the scriptures all wayes both nyght and daye, and Sermons and preachynge to be made warde, frome bedde, in oure iorneyes, and all oure other workes. I forbydde not to reade, but I forbydde to reason. Nether forbydde I to reason so farre as is good and godlye. But I allowe not that is done oute of season, and out of measure and good order. A man maye cate to moche of honeye be it neuer so swete, and ther is tyme for euery thyng, and that thyng, that is good is not good, yf it be vngoodly done. Euen as a flower in wynter is oute of season, and as womans apparell becometh not a man, nether contrariwise, the mannes, the woman: nether is weppynge conuenient at a byrdeale, nether laughynge at bery all. Nowe yf we can obserue and kepe that is comely and tymely in all other thynges, shall not we then the rather do the same in the holpe scriptures? Let vs not runne furth as it were wylde horse that can suffer nether byrdeall in there mouthes, nor sytter on there backs. Let vs kepe vs in oure boundes, and nether let vs go to farre on thone syde, lest we retorne into Egypte, nether to farre ouer p̄ other, lest we be caried awaye to Babylon. Let vs not spynge the longe auentures, as well where it is not to be reasoned, as where it is, and as well in the eares of them p̄ be not fytted therfore, as of the that be. If we can no wyle forbere, but that we must nedes dispute, let vs forbere thus moche at the leaste, to do it oute of tyme, and place conuenient. And let vs entreate of those thynges which be holpe, holyspe, and vpon those thynges p̄ bene mysticall, mysticall, & not to vtter the dyuine mysteries in the eares vnworthy to heare them, but let vs knowe what is comely as well in oure spience: and talkynge, as in oure garmentes wepyng, in oure fedynge, in oure gesture, in oure goynge, and all oure other be haupynge. This contentyon and debate aboute scriptures, and doubtes therof, specially whan suche as pretende to be the fauorers and studentes therof cannot agre within the selfes, doth moche hurte to oure selfes, and to the furtherynge of the cause & quarrells that we woulde haue forthere aboue all other thynges. And we in this (sayeth he) be not vnylike to them that beynge madde, sett there a wne houses on fyre, and that sle there a wne chyldre, or beate there a wne parentes. I maruaile moch (sayth he) to reuente wherof cometh all this despyre of vayne glorie, wherof cometh all this tongue itche, that we haue so moch delight to talke and clatter. And wherin is our comunicatiō? Not in the commendations of vertuous and good dedes of hospitalite, of loue betwene christiane brother & brother, of loue betwene man & wyfe, of virginite and chastite, and of almosse towardes the poore. Not in Psalmes and godly songes, not in lamentynge for oure synnes, not in repressynge the affections of the bodye, not in prayers to God. We talke of scripture, but in y meane tyme we subde we not our fleshe, by fastynge, wakyng, and wepyng, we make not this lyfe a meditatiō of death, we do not stryue to be Lordes of oure appetites & affections. We goo not aboute to pull downe oure proude & hygh myndes to abate oure fynythe & rancorous stomakes, to restrayne oure lustes & bodely delectations, oure vndiscrete sorowes, oure lasciuious merthe, oure inordinat lokynge, oure vnstable herynge of vanities, oure speakynge without measure, oure inconuenient thoughtes, and briefly, to reforme oure lyfe and maners: but all oure holynes consisteth in talkynge. And we pardon eche other frome all good lyuynge, so that we maye styck fast together in argumentatiō, as though there were no moore wayes to heauen, but this alone the waye of speculatiō and knowlege (as they take it) but in very deade, it is rather the waye of supercilious contention and sophisticatiō. Hether to haue I receyted the mynde of Gregoꝛy Nazianzene in that booke which I spake of before. The same authour sayeth also in an other place that the learnynge of a Chyristen man ought to begynne of the feare of God, to ende in matyres of hygh speculatiō, and not contrarily to begynne with speculation

...de in rears. froz ipeculatio (saith he) other hye connyng and knowledge, p' it be not, sayed with the byrdell of feare to offende Godde is dangerous and enough to tumble a man jebclinge downe the byll. Therfore, sayeth he, the feare of God must be the fyrst begynnynge and as it were an abce or an introductis to all them that shall enter to the very tress and most frutefull knowledge of holpe scriptures. Where as is the feare of God, there is, sayeth he, the keepinge of the commaundementes, and where as is the keepynge of the commaundementes, there is the clensynge of the flesche, which flesche is a cloude before the soules eye, and suffereth it not puerlye to see the beame of p' heuenly light. Where as is the clensynge of the flesche, there is the illumination of the holy ghoost, thende of all oure desyres, and the very lyght wherby the veritie of scriptures is seen and perceyued. This is the mynde and almost the wordes of Gregorie Nazianzene doctoure of the greke churche of whom saynt Jerome sayth, that vnto hys tyme, the latten churche had no wyterable to be compared, and to make an euen matche with him. Therfore to conclude this latter parte, euerie man that cometh to the readynge of this holpe booke ought to bynne with hym fyrst and forreste thys feare of almyghty godde, and then nexte a fyne and stable purpose to reforme hys awne selfe accordynge ther vnto, and so to contynue procede, and prospere frome tyme to tyme, thewynge hym selfe to be a sober and frutefull herer and lerner, which p' he doo, he shall proue at the length well able to teache, though not with hys mouth, yet with hys lyfynge and good example, which is suer the most lyuely, and moste effecteouse forme and maner of teachynge. He that otherwyle intermedelth with this booke, let hym be assured, that on he shall make accompte therfore, when he shall haue sayde to hym as it is wyrtten in the Prophete Dauid, Peccatori dicit deus ace. Vnto the vngodly sayde God, why doest thou preache my lawes, and takest my testament in thy mouth? Where as thou hatest to be reformed, and hast caste my wordes behynde the. When thou sawest a thefe, thou consentyddest vnto hym and hast bene partetaker with aduoucerers. Thou hast lett thy mouth speake wyckednes, and with thy tonge thou hast sett forth discepte. Thou satest and spakest agaynst thy brother and hast sclaundered the awne mothers sonne. These thynges hast thou done, & I helde my tonge and I thoughtest (wyckedly) that I am euen luche a one as thy selfe. But I wyll reprove the, and sett before the, the thynges that thou hast done. Consyder this, ye that forget God lest I plucke you a waye, and ther be none to deliuer you. Who so offereth me thakes and prayse he honoureth me, and to hym that ordereth hys conuersation ryght: wyll I shewe the saluation of godde.

The fyrst Chapter.

Howe heauen and earth, the lyght, the firmament,
the sunne, the moone, the starres, and all beastes, foules, and fishes in the see were made by the worde of God. And howe man also was created.

In the begynnyng * God created heauen and earthe.
The earth was voyde and emptye: and darknes was vpon the face of the depe:
and the spere of God moued vpon the face of the waters. And God sayde: let there be made lyght, and there was light made. And God sawe the light that it was good. And God made a diuision betwene the light and darknesse. And God called the light, daye: and the darknesse called he, nyght. And the euenyng and the mornynge was made one daye.
And God sayde: let there be a firmamēt betwene the waters: and let it make a diui-sion betwene waters and waters. And God made the firmament, and set a diuision be-twene the waters which were vnder the fir-mament, and the waters that were aboue the firmament. And it was so. And God called the firmament, heauen. The euenynge also and the mornynge was made the secōd daye.

And God sayde: * let the waters vnder heauen be gathered together into one place, that the drye lande maye be sene. And so it came to passe. And God called the drye lāde Earth: and the gathering together of waters called he the seas. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let the earth bring forth grene herbe, which maye engendre seed: and frutefull tre, yeldyng frute after hys kynde, whose seed maye be in it self vpon the earth.
And it came to passe. And the earth brought forth grene herbe, makynge seede after hys kynde: and tree yeldyng frute, whose seed was in it selfe after hys kynde. And God sawe that it was good. The euenynge also and the mornynge was made the thyrde daye. And God sayde: * let there be made lyghtes in the firmament of heauen: and let them make a difference betwene the daye and the nyght, and let them be vnto signes, and vnto appoynted seasons, and vnto dayes, and vnto yeaers. And let them be vnto lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, that they maye geue lyght vpon the earthe.
And so it came to passe.

And God made * two greate lyghtes: a greater lyght to rule the daye, & a lesse lyght to rule the nyght (And he made) starres also:
And God set them in the firmament of heauen, that they myght geue lyght vpon the earth, and that they might rule the daye and the nyght: and to make a difference betwene the lyght and the darknes. And God sawe that it was good. The euenynge also and the mornynge was made the fourth daye.

And God sayde: * let the waters brynge forth mounge creature that hath lyfe, and foule that maye flye vpon the earth in the face of the firmament of heauen. And God created great whalles and euery lyuing, and mounge creature, which y waters brought forth after their kynde: and euery fethered foule after their kynde. And God sawe that it was good. And God blessed them, sayinge: Growe & increace and fyll the waters of the see: and let fethered foules be multiplied in the earth. The euenynge also and the mornynge was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayde: let the earth bring forth
lyuing creature after his kynde: catell, wo-me and beast of the erth after his kynde: and so it came to passe. And God made the beast of the earth after his kynde, and catell after their kynde: and euery thyng that crepeth vpon the earth after his kynde. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayde: let vs make man * in oure ymage after oure lykenes, and let them haue rule of the fyth of the see: and foule of the ayre and catell, and all the earth, and of euery crepyng thyng that crepeth vpon the erth. And so God created man in his owne ymage: in the ymage of God created he hym, * male and female created he them.
And God blessed them, and God sayd vnto them: Growe and increace and replenysh the erth, and subdue it: and haue * dominion of the fish of the see, and foule of the aire: and of euery lyuing thyng that moweth vpon the earth. And God sayde: Beholde, I haue geuen you euery herbe sownyng seed, which is in the vpper face of all the earth: and euery tre in the which is the frute of tree, and that soweth seed, that they maye be meate vnto you. To euery beast of the earth also, and to euery byrde of the ayre, and to euery such thyng as crepeth vpon the earth (wherein is a lyuing soule) I haue geue all greyness of herbe to be meate. And it came so to passe.
And God sawe euery thyng y he had made,
* and beholde, it was exceeding good. The euenynge also and the mornynge was made the sixth daye.

The second Chapter.

The halotyng of the Sabbath daye. The four floues of Paradyse. The setting in of man in Paradise. The tre of knowledge is forbidden him: how Adam named all creatures. The creation of Eua.
The institution of marriage.

He heauens also and the erth were finished, and all the host of them. And in the seventh daye God ended his worke which he had made. * In the seventh daye also, he rested from all hys worke which he had made. * And God blessed the seventh daye, and sanctified it, because in it he had rested from all his worke, which God ordeyned to make.

These are the generacions of the heauens and of the earth when they were created, in the daye, when the Lorde God made the earth and the heauens and euery plant of the felde, before it was in the earth: and euery herbe of the felde, before it grew. For the Lorde God had not caused it to raygne vpon the earth, neither was there a man to tyll the grounde. And there went vpon a myste fro of the earth, and watered the whole face of the grounde.

The Lorde God also * shope man, euen dust from of the grounde, and * bryethed into his nassre is the bryeth of lyfe: and Ada was made a lyuing soule. And the Lorde God planted a garden eastwarde from Eden, and there he put man who he had made. Moreover, out of the grounde made the Lorde God to growe, euery tre that was pleasant to the sight, and comodious for meate. The tre of lyfe also and the tre of knowledge of good and of euill was in the myddes of the garden. And out of Eden, there went forth a riuer to water the garden. And from thence it was deuyded, and became into foure beades. The name of one is * Euphrates. The name of the second riuier is, Tigris: the same is it that compasseth the whole lande of Babilon. The name of the third riuier is, Hiddekel, & it goth toward the east syde of Assyria. And the fourth riuier is Euphrates.

The Lorde God also toke Adam, and put him into the garden of Eden, that he myght dreffe and kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Ada, saying: Eating, thou shalt eate of euery tre of the garden. But as touching the tre of knowledge of good and euell, thou shalt not eate of it. For in what daye soeuer thou eatest thereof, thou shalt dye the death.

And agayne, the Lorde God sayd: It is not good that Adam shulde be alone. I will make him an helpe, which maye be present vnto him. And so out of the grounde shope the Lorde God euery beast of the felde, and euery foule of the ayre, and brought it vnto man, that he myght se howe he wolde call it. For likewise as man hym selfe named euery liuyng thyng, euen so was the name thereof.

Man hym selfe therfore named the names

vnto all catell, and foule of the ayre, and to euery beast of the felde. And for man founde he not an helpe that myght be present vnto him. The Lorde God also caused a slumber to fall vpon Adam, and he slept. And he toke one of hys ribbes, & closed vp the flesh in stead thereof. And the ribbe which the Lorde God had taken from man, * made he a woman, and brought her vnto man. And man sayde: This is nowe bone of my bones, and fleshe of my fleshe. She shalbe called woman, because she was take out of man. For this cause shall a man leaue hys father and hys mother, & shalbe ioyned with hys wyfe, and they shall become one flesh: and they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

The.iiij. Chapter.

The serpent deceaucth the woman. The serpent, the woman, and the man are cursed, and driven out of paradys. Christ our sauour is promysed.

But the serpent was subtiler then euery beast of the felde, which the Lorde God made. And he sayde vnto the woman: yee, hath the Lorde God sayde: ye shall not eate of euery tre of the garden? And the woman sayde vnto the serpent: we eate of the frute of the tre of the garden: but as for the frute of the tre which is in the myddes of the garden, God hath sayde: ye shall not eate of it, neither shall ye touche it, lest happily ye dye. And the serpent sayde vnto the woman: ye shall not dye the death: but God doth knowe, that the same daye that ye eat thereof, your eyes shalbe opened, & ye shalbe euē as goddes, knowing good and euill. And so the woman (seeing that the same tre was good to eate, and lusty to the eyes, & that the same tre was pleasant to get wildome) toke of the frute thereof, and dyd eate: and gaue vnto her husband beyng with her, which dyd eate also. And the eyes of them both were opened: and they knewe that they were naked, & they sowed fygge leaues together, and made the selues apertys. And they heard the voyce of the Lorde God walkyng in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam & his wyfe hid the selues fro the presence of the Lorde God among the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam, and sayd vnto hym: where art thou?

thou which sayde: I heard thy voyce in the garden, & was afrayed, because I was naked, & hyd my selfe. And he sayde: Who tolde the, that thou wast naked? thou not eaten of the sametre, concernyng the which I commaunded the, that thou shuldest not eate of it? And Adam sayd: The woman, whom thou gauest to be with me, she gaue me of the tree, and I dyd eate.

And the Lorde God sayde vnto the woman: Why hast thou done this? And the woman sayde: yonder serpent begyled me, and I dyd eate. And the Lorde God sayde vnto the serpent: because thou hast done this, thou art cursed aboue all catell, and aboue euery beast of the felde. Upon thy belly shalt thou go, & dust shalt thou eate all the dayes, of thy lyfe. I will also put enmitye betwene the & the woman, betwene thy seede and hys seede: the same shall treade downe thy head, and thou shalt treade vpon hys heele.

But vnto the woman he sayde: In multiplieng wyl I multiplye thy sorowe & thy conceyng: In sorowe shalt thou bryng forth chyldren, & thy lust shall pertayne to thy husbnde, & he shall haue the rule of the.

Vnto Adam he sayde: Because thou hast herkened vnto the voyce of thy wyfe, & hast eaten of the tree (concernyng the which I commaunded the, saying: Thou shalt not eate of it) cursed is the ground for thy sake. In sorowe shalt thou eate of it all the dayes of thy lyfe. Thorne also & thysle shall it cause to growe vnto the, & thou shalt eate the herbe of the felde. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eate bread, tyll thou be turned agayne into the grounde, for out of it was thou taken, in as much as thou art dust, & into dust shalt thou be turned agayne.

And Ada called his wyues name: Heua, because she was the mother of all lyuynge. Vnto the same Adam also & to hys wyfe dyd the Lorde God make letheren garmentes, & clothed them. And the Lorde God sayde: Beholde, yonder man hath bene euen as one of vs, that he myght knowe good and euell. And nowe lest happily he put forth hys hande, and take also of the tree of lyfe, and eate, & lyue forever. And the Lorde God sent them forth from the garden of Eden, to bryll the grounde that he was taken out of. And so he drove out man, & at the east syde of the garden of Eden, he set Cherubims, & the glisterynge flame of a shakynge swerde, to kepe the waye of the tre of lyfe.

The.iiij. Chapter.

Cain doth not onely kill his righte brother Abel, but also betrayeth: and is cursed. The generacion of Enoch: Methuselah: Tubal: Lamech: Seth and Enos.

Adā knewe Heua his wife: who conceyng, bare Cain, saying: I haue gotten a man of the Lorde. And the procedyng furth, brought forth hys brother habel, and habel was a keeper of shepe. But Cain was a tyller of the grounde. And in pcelle of dayes it came to passe, that Cain brought of the frute of the grounde an oblation vnto the Lorde. Habel also brought of the fyrstlynge of hys shepe, and of the fat thereof. And the Lorde had respect vnto habel, & to hys oblation. But vnto Cain and to hys offryng he had no respect. For the whych cause Cain was exceeding wrothe, and hys countenance abated. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cain: Why art thou wrothe, & why is thy countenance abated? If thou do well, shalt there not be a promotion. And if thou dost not well, lyeth not thy syn neim the doores? Vnto the also pertayneth the lust thereof, and thou shalt haue dominion ouer it. And Cain spake vnto habel hys brother: (let vs go furth.)

And it soztuned * when they were in the felde, Cain rose vp agaynst habel hys brother, and slue him. And the Lorde sayde vnto Cain: Where is habel thy brother? Whych sayd: I wote not: Am I my brothers keeper? And he sayde: What hast thou done? The voyce of thy brothers bloude crieth vnto me out of the grounde. And nowe art thou cursed from of the erth, whych hath opened hys mouth, to receaue thy brothers bloude from thy hande. If thou tyll the grounde, he shall not procede to yelde vnto the hys strength. Fugitvye, and vagabounde shalt thou be in the erth. And Cain sayde vnto the Lorde: Myne iniquite is more, then yit maye be forgiven. Beholde, thou hast cast me out this daye from the vpper face of the erth, and fro thy face shall I be hyd: Fugitvye also and a vagabounde shall I be in the erth. And it shall come to passe: euery one that fyndeth me, shall slay me. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: (it shall not be so) yee, but whosoever slayeth Cain, it shalbe auenged seven folde.

And the Lorde set a marke vpon Cain, lest any man fyndynge him, shulde kill hym. And Cain wente out fro the presence of the Lorde, & dwelt in the lode of Moab eastward fro Eden. Cain also knewe hys wife, whych conceyng & bare Enoch: & brydng a cyte, he called the name of the same cyte after the name of hys sonne Enoch. Vnto the same Enoch was borne Irad, Irad beget Mea j buldel,

hufael, & Methufael begat Methufael. Methufael begat Lamech. And Lamech took unto him two wyues: The name of the one was Ada, & the name of the other was Zilla. And Ada begat Jabal, whych was the father of such as dwell in tentes, & of such as have catell. His brothers name was Tubal, whych was the father of such as handle harpe & organe. And Zilla also begat Tubal Cain, whych wrought cunningly every craft of brasse & of yron. The sister of Tubal Cain, was Naama.

And Lamech sayde vnto his wyues Ada and Zilla: Heare my voyce ye wyues of Lamech, hearken vnto my speche: I have not slayne a man to the woundynge of my selfe, & a yonge man to myne owne punishment. If Cain shalbe auenged seuffolde, truly Lamech seuffe tymes and seuen tymes.

Adam knewe his wife agayne, & she bare a sonne, and called his name Seth: for God (sayde she) hath appoynted me another seide in steade of Abel, whch Cain slew. And vnto the same Seth also there was borne a sonne, & he called his name Enos. Then began they to make innocacyon in the name of the Lorde.

The v. Chapter.

The genealogie of Adam and of the other fathers vnto Noe.

In this is the booke of the generacions of Ada. In the daye that God created mā, in the lyknesse of God made he him. Male and female created he them, & blessed them, and called their name Adam in the daye of their creacyon.

And Adam lyued an hundred & thrytye yeres, & begat (a sonne) in hys owne lyknesse after his ymage, & called his name Seth. All the dayes of Adam (after he had begotten Seth) were egght hundred yeres, & he begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes that Adam lyued, were nyne hundred and thrytye yeres, and he dyed.

Seth lyued an hundred & fyue yeres, and begat Enos. And Seth lyued (after he begat Enos) egght hundred yeres & seue yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Seth were, nyne hundred & twelue yeres. And he dyed.

Enos lyued nyntye yeres & begat Kenā. And Enos lyued (after he begat Kenā) eight hundred, and fiftene yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Enos were nyne hundred & fyue yeres. And he dyed.

Kenan lyued seuentye yeres, & begat Methael. And Kenan lyued (after he begat Methael) egght hundred yeres and fortye yeres, and begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Kenan were nyne hundred yeres and ten yeres, and he dyed.

Methael lyued fyttye yeres & fyue yeres, res, & begat Jared. And agayne, Methael lyued (after he begat Jared) egght hundred & thrytye yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Methael were egght hundred nyntye & fyue yeres. And he dyed.

Jared lyued an hundred & fyttye and two yeres, & begat Henoch. And Jared lyued (after he begat Henoch) egght hundred yeres, & begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Jared were nyne hundred and fyttye and two yeres. And he dyed.

Henoch lyued fyttye & fyue yeres, & begat Methuselah. And Henoch walked with God after he begat Methuselah, thre hundred yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Henoch were thre hundred fyttye & fyue yeres. And Henoch walked with God, & he (was) no moze sene, for God toke hym awaye.

Methuselah also lyued an hundred yeres, & egghtye & seue yeres, & begat Lamech. And agayne Methuselah lyued (after he begat Lamech,) seuen hundred yeres, and egghtye, & two yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Methuselah were nyne hundred yeres and fyttye & nyne yeres. And he dyed.

Lamech lyued an hundred yeres & egghtye & two yeres, & begat a sonne, & called his name Noah, sayenge: This same shall comfort vs as concernynge oure woike & sorowe of oure hādys, fro of the erth, whiche God cursed. And Lamech lyued (after he begat Noah) fyue hundred yeres & nyntye & fyue yeres, & begat sonnes & daughters. And all the dayes of Lamech were seue hundred yeres, and seuentye and seuen yeres, and he dyed.

Noah was fyue hundred yere olde. And Noah begat Sem, Ham, and Japheth.

The vi. Chapter.

The cause of the floude. God warneth Noe of the comynge of the floude. The preparacyon of the Arke.

And it came to passe, that man began to be multiplied in the vpper face of the erth, and there were daughters home vnto the. The sonnes of God also sawe the daughters of mā that they were fayre, and they toke them wyues from amonge all y they had chosen. And the Lorde sayde: My sprete shall not allwaye, stpye in mā, because he is flesch, and hys dayes shalbe an hundred & twentye yeres. But there were gyauntes in the erth in those dayes: yee and after that the sonnes of God came vnto the daughters of men, and they had gedred vnto them, the same became myghtye mē of the worlde, and men of renoune.

But God sawe that the malice of man was greute in the erth, and all the ymaginacyō of the thoughtes of hys hert was only euell euery daye. And it repented the Lorde, that he had made mā in the erth, & he was was touched with sorow in his harte. And the Lorde sayde: I wyll (from the vpper face of the erth) destroye man, whom I haue created: both man, catell, woime, & foule of the ayre, for it repenteth me y I haue made them.

But Noah founde grace in the eyes of the Lorde. These are the generacions of Noah. Noah was iust & perfect in his generacions, and walked with God. Noah begat thre sonnes: Sem, Ham, & Japheth. The earth also was corrupte before God, & the same earth was fylled with crueltie. And God looked vpon the erth, and beholde it was corrupt: for all fleshe had corrupt hys waye vpon earth.

And God sayde vnto Noah: The ende of all fleshe is come before me, for the earth is fylled with crueltie from the face of them. And beholde, I wyll destroye them with the erth, & make the an Arke of pyne trees. Habitacions shalt thou make in the Arke, and shalt ppych it within & without with ppych.

And of this fashion shalt thou make it. The lengthe of the Arke shalbe thre hundred cubytes: The bredth of it, fyttye cubytes, & the depgth of it thrytye cubytes. A wyndowe shalt thou make in the Arke, and in a cubite shalt thou spynne it aboue, but the doze of the Arke shalt thou set in the syde therof. With thre lottes one aboue an other shalt thou make it.

And behode, I, cūen I, do bring a floude of waters vpon the earth, that I maye destroye all fleshe wherein is the bryth of lyfe vnder heauen: And euery thyng that is in the earth, shall dye. With the also wyll I make my couenaunt, & thou shalt come into the Arke: thou & thy sonnes, thy wife & thy sonnes wyues with the. And euery lyving thinge, and of all fleshe, a payre of euery one shalt thou bringe into the Arke, to kepe them alyue with the. They shalbe male & female. Of feathered foules also after they kynde, & of catell after they kynde, of euery woime of the earth after hys kynde: two of euery one shalt thou come vnto y, that thou mayst kepe them alyue.

And take thou with the of all meate that is eaten, and thou shalt laye it vpon y, that it maye be meate for the & them. Noah therfore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym: cūen so dyd he.

The vii. Chapter.

The entrance of Noe, and of them that were with hym, into the Arke. The rising of the floude: wherewither all thynges dyd perishe.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Noah: Come thou and all thy house into y Arke, for the haue I sene y ryghteous before me in this generacyon. Of euery cleane beaste thou shalt take with the seuen and seuen: The male and hys female: But of vncleane catell, two, the male and hys female. Of foules also of the ayre, seuen and seuen, y male & the female, to kepe seide alyue vpon the face of all the whole earth: for yet after seuen dayes I wyll rayne vnto the erth fortye dayes & fortye nyghtes. All substance that I haue made, wyll I destroye from of the vpper face of the earth.

Noah therfore dyd accordyng vnto all that God commaunded hym. And Noah was fyue hundred yeres, & the floude of waters was vpon the earth. And Noah came (and his sonnes, & his wyfe, & his sonnes wyues with hym) vnto the Arke, because of the waters of the floude. Of cleane catell, & of vncleane catell, & of spenge foules, and of euery such as crepeth vpon the erth, there came two and two vnto Noah into the Arke, the male and the female, as God had commaunded Noah. It fortuneth also after seuen dayes, and the waters of the floude were vpon the earth.

In the fyue hundred yere of Noes lyfe in the seconde Moneth, the seuenth daye of the moneth. In the same daye were all the fountaynes of the great dype broken vp, and the wyndowes of heauen were opened. And the rayne was vpon the earth fortye dayes and fortye nyghtes. In the selfe same daye entred Noah, Sem, Ham, & Japheth, the sonnes of Noah, & Noahs wyfe, and the thre wyues of his sonnes with them into the Arke: They, & euery beast after hys kynde, and all catell after they kynde, yee & euery woime that crepeth vpon the earth after hys kynde, and euery byrde after hys kynde, and euery flying & feathered foule.

And they came vnto Noah into the Arke two and two, of all fleshe wherein is the bryth of lyfe. And they entrynge in, came male and female of all fleshe, as God had commaunded hym. And God shut hym in rounde aboute. And the floude came fortye dayes vpon the earth, & the waters were increased, and bare vpon the Arke, whiche was lyfte vpon the erth. The waters also pzeuapled, & were increased excedyngly vpon the earth, and the Arke went on the vpper face of the waters. And the waters pzeuapled excedyngly vpon the earth, & all the hys hylles that are vnder the whole heauen, were couered. Fiftene cubytes vpwarde dyd the waters pzeuaple, so that the mountaynes were couered.

And all fleshe dyed that moued vpon the earth, in foule, in catell, in beast, and in euery woime that crepeth vpon the earth: yee and euery man also. What soeuer was (in whose nostrils the bryth of lyfe dyd brythe, all these in the dype lande dyed.) And euery thyng that was destroyed, that remayned, & that was in the vpper parte of the grounde (both man and catell, and woime, and foule of the ayre) they were euen destroyed from of the earth. And Noah onely remayned alyue, and they that were with hym in the Arke.

And the

waters preclapied vpon the earth an bus-bande bytye dayes.

The viij. Chapter.

After the sendinge oute of the rauen and the doue.
Not goeth forth of the Arke and offereth sacrifice.
The naturall corrupcion of mans herte.

AND God remembred Noah, and euery beaste, and all y^e catell that was with him in y^e Arke. And god made a wind to passe vpon the earth, and the waters ceased. The fountaynes also of the depe and the windowes of heauen were stopped, and the rayne from heauen was restrayned. And the waters from the erth were returned, gong and commynge agayne. And after the ende of the hundredth and fyftieth daye, y^e waters were abated. And in the seuenthy moneth in the scuententh daye of the moneth, the Arke rested vpon y^e mountaynes of Armenia. And the waters truly were gong and decreasyng vntill the tenth moneth: for in y^e tenth moneth, & in the fyrst daie of y^e same moneth were the toppes of the mountaynes sene.

B And after the ende of the fortyeth daye, it happened that Noah opened the wyndowe of the Arke which he had made. And he sent forth a rauen, whiche went out gong forth and returnyng agayne, vntill y^e waters were dreyed vpon the earth. And agayne he sent forth a doue from hym, y^e he myghte se yf the waters were abated from y^e vpper face of the grounde. And the doue founde no rest for y^e sole of her foote, & she returned vnto hym agayne into the Arke: for the waters were in y^e vpper face of the whole erth. And he, when he had put forth his hande, toke her,
and pulled her into hym into the Arke.

And he abode yet other seuen dayes, and proceedyng further, he sent forth the doue out of the Arke. And the doue came to hym in y^e euen tyme, and lo, in her mouthe was an olive leaf y^e she had pluckt, wherby Noah did knowe, that the waters were abated vpon the earth. And he abode yet other seuen dayes and sent forth the doue, whiche proceeded not to returne vnto hym any moze.

C And it came to passe in the fyfte hundredth & one yere, in the fyrst moneth, & in the fyrst daye of the moneth, the waters were dreyed vpon the earth. And Noah remoued the couerynge of the Arke, & looked, & beholde, the vpper face of y^e grounde was dreyed vpon. And in the secōde moneth, in the seuen & twentye daye of the moneth, was the earth dreyed.

And God spake vnto Noah sayeng: Go forth of the Arke, thou & thy wyfe, thy son-nes, & thy sonnes wyues wth the. And byng forth with the, euery beaste that is with the:
of all fleshe (both foule & catell, & euery wo-me that crepeth vpon the earthe) that they make gendze in y^e earth, & byng forth frute, and increase vpon erth. And so Noah came forth and his sonnes, his wyfe, & his son-nes wyues with hym. Euery beaste also and euery woyme, euery foule, and whatsoeuer crepeth vpon the earth (after they^e kyndes) went out of the Arke.

And Noah buylded an altare vnto y^e lord,
and toke of euery cleane beast, and of euery cleane foule, & offered sacrifices in y^e altare.
And the lord smelled a swete (or quete) saoure. And the lord sayde in his herte:
I will not procede to curse y^e grounde any moze for mannes sake, for the ymagynacyon of mans herte is euell: euen fro y^e yowth.
Neyther wyl I adde to smite any moze eu-ery thyng liuyng, as I haue done, yet therfore shall not so wyng tyme, & harvest, colde and heate, somer & wynter, daye & nyght, ceasse, all the dayes of the earth.

The ix. Chapter.

God blessed Noe & his sonnes. He toke y^e blood of beastes: & to shed mannes bloude. The lawe of the swerde. He maketh a couenaunt that he wyl de-stroye the woilde no moze by water: & geueth the raigne bois for a token and confirmacion of the same. Noe is dynken. Ham vncouerech hym, and getteth his curse.

AND God blessed Noah & his sonnes, and sayde vnto them: byng ye forth frute and multiplie, and replenysh y^e earth. The feare of you and the drede of you shal be vpon euery beast of y^e erth, and vpon euery foule of the ayre, in all such as y^e earth byngeth forth, and in all the fyshes of y^e see.
Into your hande are they deliuered. Eue-ry thyng that moueth it selfe, and that lyueth, shal be meate for you: euen as y^e grene herbe haue I geuen you all thynges. But fleshe in the lyfe therof, and in the bloude therof shall ye not eate. Els your bloude of your lyues wyl I requyre. From the hande of euery beaste wyl I requyre it, and from the hande of man: from the hande of mans brother wyl I requyre y^e lyfe of man. Who so sheddeth mannes bloude, by man shall his bloude be shedde: for in the ymage of God, byd God make man. But byng ye forth frute, and multiplie: Gendze ye in the earth, and increase therein.

God spake also vnto Noah & to his son-nes with hym sayeng: Beholde I set vpon y^e couenaunt with you, & with your sede after you, and with euery liuyng creature that is with you, both in foule and in catell, and in euery beaste of the earth which is with you of all y^e go oute of the Arke, accordyng vnto euery liuyng thyng of the earth. But my couenaunt wyl I make wth you that from henceforth euery fleshe be not roted out with the waters of a floude, neyther shall there be a floude to destroye y^e earth any moze.

And God sayde: This is the token of the couenaunt which I geue betwene me & you,
and

and euery liuyng creature that is with you in to perpetuall generacions. I haue set my bowe in the cloude, and it shal be for a token betwene me & the erth. And it shall come to passe, that when I bynge a cloude vpon the erth, the bowe also shall be sene in the same cloude. And I wyl thynke vpon my couena-unt whych is betwene me & you, & euery lyuyng creature in all fleshe: & it shall no moze come to passe, that waters make a floude to destroye all fleshe. But the bowe shal be in the same cloude, & I wyl loke vpon it, that I maye thynke vpon the euerylastyng coue-naunt betwene God and euery liuyng creature, in all fleshe that is vpon erth. And God sayde vnto Noah. This is the token of the couenaunt which I haue made betwene me and all fleshe that is vpon erth.

The sonnes of Noah gong furth of the Arke, were: Sem, Ham, and Japheth. And Ham truly is the father of Chanaan. These are y^e thre sonnes of Noah, & of the was the whole erth ouerspred. Noah also beganne to be an husbande man, and planted a vynegarde. And he dynkynge of the wyne, was dynken, and vncouered wythin his tent.

And Ham the father of Chanaan seyng the nakednesse of his father, tolde his two brethren wythout. And Sem and Japheth, they two, takynge a garment, layed it vpon their shulders: & comynge bakwarde, couered the naked pryncyptes of their father:
namely, they^e faces byng turned awaye,
lest they shulde se they^e fathers pryncyptes.

And Noah awoke from his wyne, and knewe what his yonger sonne had done vnto hym. And he sayde: Cursed be Chanaan, a seruant of seruantes shall he be vnto his brethren. He sayde mozeouer: Blessed be the lord God of Sem, & Chanaan shal be his seruant. God shall enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwell in the lictes of Sem, & Chanaan shal be their seruant. Noah lyued after the floude thre hundredth and fyftye yeres. And all the dayes of Noah were nyne hundredth & fyftye yeres. And he dyed.

The x. Chapter.

The genealogie of Japheth Sem: and Ham.

These are the generacions of the son-nes of Noah, Sem, Ham and Japheth: And vnto them were chy-ldzen bozne after the floude.

The chyldzen of Japheth: Gomer and Magog, and Madai, and Iauan, and Tubal, Mesech and Theras. The chyldzen of Gomer: Akenas and Riphath and Thogarma. The chyldzen of Iauan: Elisa and Tharsis, Kittim, and Dodanum. Of these were the fles of the Gethles deuyded in their landes, euery man after his tonge, & after his kyndes in their nacyns.

The chyldze of Ham: Cush & Mizraim, and Phut and Chanaan. And the chyldzen of Cush: Seba and Hauilah and Sabtha, and Rahma, and Sabthecha. The chyldzen of Rahma: Scheba and Dedan. Cush also begat Nimrod. The same beganne to be my-ghtye in the erth. For he was a myghtye hunter before the lord. Wherfore it is sayde: Euen as Nimrod the myghtie hunter before the lord. The begynning of his kyngdome was Babel and Erech and Accad, and Calne, in the londe of Sinhar. Out of that londe came Assur, and buylded Nin-ue, and the stretes of the cite & Calah. Assur also betwene Ninue and Calah, and it is a greate cite. Mizraim begat Ludym, & Cunim, & Lehabim, and Sephtuhim. Phthu-sim also and Casuhim, out of whom came Philistim and Caphtozim.

Chanaan begat zidon his fyrst bozne sonne, and Heth, & Jebusi, and Emori, & Girgosi. Habiui also and Haarki and Hasiini, and Haaruadi, and Hazmari, and Hahemathi:
And afterwarde were the kyndes of y^e Ca-nanites spred abroad. The border of the Ca-nanites was from zidon, as thou comest to Gat vntill Gazan, and as thou goest vnto Sedonia, and Somoza, and Adama, and zeboim, euen vnto Lesh. These are the chy-ldzen of Ham in their kyndes, in they^e ton-ges, countrees and in they^e nacyns.

Vnto Sem also the father of all the chyldzen of Eber (and elder brother of Japheth) there were chyldzen bozne. The chyldzen of Sem: Elam and Assur, Arphachad, and Lud and Aram. The chyldzen of Aram: Uz and Hul, Gether & Mas. Arphachad begat Selah, & Selah begat Eber. Vnto Eber also were bozne two sonnes: The name of the one was Deleg, for in his dayes was the erth deuyded. And his yolders name was Jaktan.
Jaktan begat Almodad and Saleph ha-zarmath and Ierah, and Hodoran & Uzal and Dickla, Obal also & Abimael and Scheba, and Ophir, and Hauila, and Jobab. All these were the chyldze of Jaktan. And their dwelling was from Mesa, as thou goest vnto Sephar a mount of the east. These are the chyldzen of Sem after their kyndes and tonges in their landes and nacyns. And so these are the kyndes of the chyldzen of Noah, after their generacions in their peoples, and of these were the nacyns deuyded in the erth after the floude.

The xi. Chapter.

The buyldynge of the towre of Babel. The son-nes of Noe: vntill Abram: wher a goeth with Lot vnto Haran.

AND the whole erth was of one language & lyke speche. And it happened when they wete furth fro the east, they founde a playne in the londe of Sinhar, & there they abode. And they sayde

sayd eury one to his neyghbour: Come, let vs prepare byrche, & burne them in the fyre. And they had byrche for stowe, & syme had they in steade of moztar. And they sayde: So to, let vs buylde vs a citie & a tower, whose topppe maye reach vnto heauen: & let vs make vs a name, lest haply we be scatred abrode into the vpper face of the whole erth. But the Lorde came downe, to se the cytie and tower whych the chyldren of men buylded.

And the Lorde sayde: Beholde, the people is one, and they haue all one language, & thys they begynne to do, neyther wyll it be restrayned fro them, whatsoeuer they haue ymagined to do. Come on, let vs go downe, and confounde theyr language, that eury one perceaue not hys neyghbours speche.

And so the Lorde scatred them fro that place into the vpper face of all the erth. And they left of to buylde the cytie. And therfore is the name of it called * Babel, because the Lorde dyd there confounde the language of all the erth. And from thence dyd the Lorde scatter them abrode vpon the face of all the erth.

These are the generacions of Sem: Sem was an hundredth yere olde, and begat Arphachsad two yere after the floude. And Sem lyued (after he begat Arphachsad) fyue hundredth yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Arphachsad lyued fyue and thyrty yeres, & begat Selah. And Arphachsad lyued (after he begat Selah) foure hundredth & thre yeres, and begat sonnes & daughters.

Selah lyued thyrty yeres, & begat Eber. And Selah lyued (after he begat Eber) foure hundredth and thre yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Eber lyued foure and thyrty yeres, and begat Peleg. And Eber lyued (after he begat Peleg) foure hundredth and thyrty yeres, & begat sonnes and daughters.

Peleg lyued thyrty yeres, & begat Reu. And Peleg lyued (after he begat Reu) two hundredth and nyne yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Reu lyued two and thyrty yeres, and begat Serug. And Reu lyued (after he begat Serug) two hundredth and seue yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Serug lyued thyrty yeres, & begat Nahor. And Serug lyued (after he begat Nahor) two hundredth yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

And Nahor lyued nyne & twenty yeres, and begat Terah. And Nahor lyued (after he begat Terah) an hundredth and nyne yeres, and begat sonnes and daughters.

Terah lyued seuentye yeres, and begat Abraham, Nahor, and Haran.

These are the generacions of * Terah: Terah begat Abraham, Nahor & Haran. Haran begat Lot. And Haran dyed in the presence of Terah hys father, in the lode of hys natpuitye, cut in the Caldees.

Abraham and Nahor toke them wyues: The name of Abrahams wyfe was Sarai, & the name of Nahors wyfe was Milca, the daughter of Haran the father of Milca & the father of Isca. But * Sarai was barren, & had no chyld.

And Terah toke Abraham * his sonne, and Lot the sonne of Haran, hys sonnes sonne, & Sara hys daughter in lawe, hys sonne Abrahams wyfe. And they departed together fro the lode of the Caldees, that they myght go into the lode of Chanaan, & they came vnto Charan, & dwelt there. And the dayes of Terah were two hundredth and fyue yeres, and Terah dyed in Haran.

The xij. Chapter.

Abraham is blessed of God: & goeth with Lot vnto the lode of Chanaan, whych God promised to geue vnto hym and hys seed. Abraham goeth into Egypt: & causeth Sarai hys wyfe to call hys selfe hys syster: for whom Pharaos is plagued.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Abraham: * Get the out of thy countrey, & out of thy nacyon, and from thy fathers house, vnto a lode that I wyll shewe the. And I wyll make of the a greate people, and wyll * blesse the, & make thy name greate, that I mayest be euen a blessing. I wyll also blesse them that blesse the, & curse suche as curseth the, & in the wall all the kynreds of the erth be blessed.

And so Abraham departed euen as the Lorde spake vnto him, & Lot wote with hym. And Abraham was seuentye & fyue yeres olde, whan he departed out of Haran. And Abraham toke Sarai his wyfe & Lot his brothers sonne, & all theyr * substance that they had in possession, & the * soules that they had begotten in Haran. And they departed, & they myght come in to the lode of Chanaan, and in to the lode of Chanaan they came. Abraham passed thowre the lode vnto the place of Sichem, & vnto the playne of Moze: And the Canaanite was then in the lode.

And the Lorde aparynge vnto Abraham: sayd vnto thy * sedyll I geue this lode. And there buylded he an altare vnto the Lorde, euen where he had appeared vnto hym.

And remouynge thence vnto a mountayne that was eastwarde from Bethel, he pitched his tent, hauynge Bethel on the west syde, & Hai on the east. And he buyldynge an altare vnto the Lorde, dyd call on the name of the Lorde. And Abraham wente furth goynge and departynge towarde the south.

But there was a berth in that londe, and therfore wente Abraham downe in to Egypt, & he myght sojourne there, for there was a lorde berth in the londe. And it happened whan he was come nere to entre in to Egypt, he sayde vnto Sarai hys wyfe: Beholde, I knowe, that thou art a fayre woman to loken vpon. Therfore shall it come to passe & whan the Egyptians se the, they shall saye: She is hys wyfe. And they shall kylle me, but they shall saue the a lyue. Saye (I praye the) that thou art my syster, that I maye fare well for thy sake, and that my soule maye lyue thowre thy occasyon.

And so it happened, whan Abraham was come in to Egypt, the Egyptians behelde & wouid, for she was very fayre. The princes also of Pharaos sawe her, and commended her before Pharaos, and the woman was taken into Pharaos house. And he truly intreated Abraham well for her sake, and he had shepe & oxen and he asses, men seruantes and mayde seruantes, & asses & camels.

And the Lorde smote Pharaos and hys house with greate plagues because of Sarai Abrahams wyfe. And Pharaos callinge Abraham, sayde (Why hast thou done thys vnto me? Why dydest thou not tell me, that she was thy wyfe? Nowe therfore beholde, there is thy wyfe, take her, and go thy waye: And Pharaos gaue the men commaundement concernynge him and they conuayed him furth, and his wyfe, and all that he had.

The xij. Chapter. Abraham and Lot departe out of Egypt. And Abraham depuyed hys lande & catell with Lot hys brother: & here agayne is promysed to Abraham the lande of Chanaan.

And so Abraham gat him vp out of Egypt, he & his wyfe, & * all that he had, & Lot with hym, towarde the south. And Abraham was very ryche, in catell in syluer & golde. And he wente furth on hys journeye from the south towarde Bethel, vnto a place where hys tent had bene at the begynnyng, betwene Bethel & Hai: Euen vnto a place of the * altare which he had made there at the fyrst, and there Abraham called on the name of the Lorde.

Lot also whych went with Abraham had shepe, catell & tentes: & the lande was not able to receaue them that they myght dwell together, for the * substance of their ryches was greate, & they coulde not dwell together. And there fell a stryfe betwene & herdmens of Abrahams catell, & the herdmens of Lots and the Sufymys in Ham, & the Emymys in the playne of Kariatim, and the Hozymys in mounte Seir vnto the playne of Hbaran, whiche bozdyeth vpon the wildernesse. And they retuerynge, came to En Hyspal which is Cades, & smote all the countre of the Amalechytes, and also the Amozites that dwelt in Hazeron Chamar.

And there went out the kynge of Sodome, & the kynge of Gomozra, and the kynge of Adama and the kynge of zebojim, and the kynge of Bela which is zoar. And they kroke battell with the in the vale of Syddym, that is to saye, withkedozlaomoz the kynge of Elaim and wyth Chydcal kynge of the Nacyons, and wyth Amraphael kynge of Synhar. And wyth Arloch kynge of Ellasar: foure kynges agaynstefyne. And the vale of Syddym was full of fyre pyttes.

And the kynge of Sodome and Gomozra fled, and fell there. And they that remayned, fled to the mountayne. And they takynge all the goodes of Sodome and Gomozre and all their vytalles, wet their waye. And they carped awaye Lot also Abzams brother sonne and hys good (for he dwelled at Sodome) & departed. And there came one that had escaped, and tolde Abzams the hebrewe whiche dwelled in the okergroue of Hamre the Amozyte, brother of Eschol, and brother of Aner, which were confederate w Abzams. When Abzams hearde that hys brother was taken, he harnessed hys frethe younge men bozne in hys owne house thre hundred and eyghtene, and folowed on them vntyll Dan: And he was sett in Aray vpon the by nyght, he and his seruantes, and smote them and pursued them vnto Hoba: which lyeth on the lefte hande of Damaschos, and recouered all the goodes, and also brought agayne hys brother Lot, and his goodes, the women also and the people.

After that he returned agayne from the slaughter of kedozlaomoz & of the kynges p were with him, came the kynge of Sodome forth to mete him in the playne valeye, which is the kynges dale.

And Melchisedech kynge of Salf brought forth bread & wyne. For he was the prest of the most hyghest God: & blessed hym sayinge: Blessed be Abzams vnto the hyghe God possessor of heauen and erth. And blessed be the hye God which hath deliuered thyne enemyes in to thy hande. And Abzams gaue him tythes of all.

And the kynge of Sodome sayde vnto Abzams: Gyue me the soules, and take the goodes to thy selfe. And Abzams answered the kynge of Sodome: I haue lyfte vp my hande vnto the Lorde the hye God possessor of heauen and erth, that I will not take of all that is thyne so moche as a thred oz thoulacet, lest thou shouldest saye, I haue made Abzams ryche. Saue only that whych the yonge men haue eaten and the partes of the men which wet with me, Aner, Eschol, and Hamre which shall take their partes.

The xv. Chapter.

The lande of Canaan is yet agayne promysed to Abzams. God promysed hym seed. He beleueth & is susteyned. The prophete of the bondage toher in the chyliden of Israhel shulde be vnder Isharao: and of their deliuerance from the same.

After these thynges were done, the worde of the Lorde came vnto Abzams in a vpsyon sayinge, Feare not Abzams, I am thy defence, and thy rewarde shall be exceedingly great. And Abzams sayde: Lorde God what wilt thou geue me when I go chylidlesse, and the chylde of the stewardship of my house is this Eleazar of Damaschor? And Abzams sayde: Se, to me hast thou geuen no seed: lo, a lad bozne in my house is myne heyre.

And beholde, the worde of the Lorde came vnto hym sayinge: He shall not be thyne heyre, but one that shall come out of thyne awne body shalbe thyne heyre. And he brought him out & sayde: loke vp vnto heauen, and tell the starres, yf thou be able to nombre them. And he sayde vnto him: Cursed so shall thy seed be.

And Abzams beleued the Lorde, and that counted he to hym for ryghtewesnes. And agayne he sayde vnto hym: I am the Lorde that brought the out of the Caldees to geue the this lande, and that thou myghtest possesse it.

And he sayde: Lorde God, wherby shall I knowe that I shall possesse it? He answered vnto hym: Take an heyre of the yere olde, and a she goate of the yere olde, and a thre yere olde ram, a turtell done also and a yonge pigeone. He toke therfore all these vnto him, & druped them in the myddes, and layde euery pece, one agaynst another. But the foules drupded he not. And when the byrdes fell on the carcasses, Abzams drone them awaye: And when the sunne was downe, ther fell a slomber vpon Abzams. And loo, a darke and great feare fell vpon hym.

And he sayde vnto Abzams: knowe this of a shertye, that thy seed shalbe a straunger in a lade that pertyneth not vnto them. And shall serue the, & they shall entreate the cuell &. iiii. hundred yeres. But the nacyon whom they shall serue, wyll I iudge. And afterwarde shall they come out with great substance. And thou shalt goo vnto thy fathers in pece, and shalt be buryed in a good olde age: But in the fourth generacyn they shall come hyther agayne, for the wickednesse of the Amozites ys not yet full.

And it came to passe that when the sonne went downe, there was a dark cloude: beholde, ther was a smoking furnelle, & a fyre brande golnges betwene the sayde peces.

In that same daye the Lorde made a covenante w Abzams sayinge: vnto thy seed haue I geuen this lande, from the ryuer of Egypt, euen vnto the great ryuer the ryuer of Euphrates, the kenytes, the kenyzites, and the Cadmonites, the Hethtites, and the Pherezites, and the gyauntes, the Amozytes also, & the Canaanites, the Gergeryses and the Jebusytes.

The xvi. Chapter.

Sarai geueth Abzams to take Agar by mappe to wyfe. Agar despyled by maptes: for whych she was euill entreated of Sarai: and therfore she was with awaye. The angell metynge by: commaundeth by to curne agayne and doth promysse by seed. And nameth by chylde Ismael.

Sarai Abzams wyfe bare hym no chyliden. But she had an hande mayde an Egyptya, Hagar by name. And Sarai sayde vnto Abzams Beholde the Lorde hath restrayned me, that I can not bere. I praye the go in vnto my mayde, perauenture I maye be edifyed by her. And Abzams obeyed the voyce of Sarai. And Sarai Abzams wyfe toke Hagar by mappe the Egyptian (after Abzams had dwelled .x. yere in the lande of Canaan) and gaue her to byr husbunde Abzams to be hys wyfe.

Which when he wente in vnto Agar, she conceived. And when she sawe that she had conceyued, hys mastresse was despyled in hys eyes. And Sarai sayde vnto Abzams: Thou dost me wronge: I haue geuen my mayde in to thy bosome. Whych saynge that she hath conceived, I am despyled in hys eyes, & Lorde iudge betwene the and me. But Abzams sayde to Sarai: beholde, thy mayde is in thy hande, do with byr as it pleaseth the.

And when Sarai fared foule wyth her, she fled from the face of her. And the Angell of the Lorde founde her besyde a fountayne of water in the wyldernes: euen by the well that is in the waye to Sur. And he sayde: Hagar Sarais mayde, whence comest thou and whether wilt thou goo? She sayde: I flee fro the face of my mastresse Sarai. And the angell of the Lorde sayde vnto her: retorne to thy mastresse agayne, & submitte thy selfe vnder her handes.

And agayne, the angell of the Lorde sayde vnto her: In encreasynge I wyll encrease thy seed and it shall not be nombred for multitude. And the Lordes angell sayde vnto her, se, thou art with chylde and shalt bere a sonne, and shalt call hys name Ismael: because the Lorde hath herde thy tribulacyn. He also will be a wyldeman, and hys hande will be agaynst euery man, and euery mans hande agaynst him. And he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethre. And she called the name of the Lorde that spake vnto her: thou God lokkest on me, for she sayde: haue I not sene here the backe partes of hym that seeth me? Wherfore the well was called, the well of him that lyueth & seeth me. And it is betwene Cades and Bared. And Hagar bare Abzams a sonne, and Abzams called hys sonnes name which Hagar bare vnto him. Ismael. And Abzams was. lxxxvi. yere olde, when Hagar bare him Ismael.

The xvii. Chapter.

Abzams is called Abraham: and Sarai is named Sara. The lande of Canaan is here & fourth tyme promysed Circumcysion is here institute. Israhel is promysed. Abraham prayeth for Ismael.

Abzams was nyntye yere olde & ix. & the Lorde appeared to Abzams & sayde vnto hym: I am the almyghty God: walke before me and be thou perfecte. And I will make my bonde betwene me and the, and will multiplye exceedingly. And Abzams fell on hys face. And God talked with him sayinge: Beholde, I am, and my testament is with the, & thou shalt be a father of many nacyns. Neether shall thy name any more be called Abzams, but thy name shalbe Abraham: & for a father of many nacyns haue I made the, I will make p to growe exceedingly, and will make nacyns of the: & kynges shall sprynge out of the. Moreouer I will make my bonde betwene me and the, and thy seed after the, in the generacions, by an euerlastynge testament, that I maye be God vnto the and to thy seed after the. & the lande where in thou art a straunger: Euen all the lande of Canaan, for an euerlastynge possession, and wyll be theire God.

And God sayde agayne vnto Abraham: Se thou also kepe my testamente therfore both thou and thy seed after the in their generacions. This is my testamente which ye shall kepe betwene me & you & thy seed after the. Euery man chylde amonge you shalbe circumcysed. ye shall circumcysse the fleshe of your foreskyne, and it shall be a token of the bonde betwyte me and you. And euery man chylde of. viij. dayes & olde shall be circumcysed amonge you, & suche as be in youre generacions, and bozne at home and he that is boughte wyth money of any straunger whych is not of thy seed. He that is bozne in thy house, & he also that is bought wyth money, must nedes be circumcysed. And my testamet shall be in youre fleshe, for an euerlastynge bonde. And the vncircumcysed man chylde, in whose fleshe the foreskyne is not circumcysed, that soule shall perishe, from his people: because he hath broken my testamente Testament. And God sayde vnto Abraham: Sara thy wyfe shalt thou not call Sara: but Sara shall her name be. And I will blesse her & haue genen the a sonne of her, & wyll blesse her: people also, ye and kynges of people shall sprynge of her. But Abraham fell vpon his face and laughed, and sayde in hys harte: Shall a chyld be borne vnto him that is an blydded yere olde, and shall Sara that is nyette yere olde, bere? And Abraham sayde vnto God: That Imael myghte lyue in thy syghte.

¶ Into whom God sayde: Sara thy wyfe shall * bere the a sonne in dede, & thou shalt call his name Ishaac. And I wyll make my bonde with him, for an * euerlastynge bonde and with his seed after him. And as concerning Imael also, I haue herde the: for I haue blessed him, & wyll make hys to encrease. ¶ I will multiplie him exceedingly. ¶ Twelue yeres shall he begette, & I will make a great nacyon of him. But my bonde will I make with Ishaac, which Sara shall bere vnto y: euen this tyme twelue moneth.

¶ And he left of talkynge with hym, & departed vp from Abraham. Abraham toke Imael his sonne and all such as were borne in his house, and all that was bought w money as many as were men chyldre which were amonge the men of Abrahams house, & circumcysed the fleshe of their foreskynne, euen in that selfe same dape, as God had sayde vnto him. Abraham also him selfe was nyette yere olde & nyne, when the fleshe of his foreskynne was circumcysed. Imael his sonne was. xij. yere olde when he was circumcysed in the fleshe of his foreskynne. The selfe same dape was Abraham circumcysed, and Imael hys sonne. And all the men of hys house, borne in his house or bought with money (of straungers) were circumcysed with him.

¶ The. xviij. Chapter.

¶ There appeared thre men vnto Abraham. Ishaac is prompted to hym agayne: at which Sara laughed. The destruction of the Sodomites is declared vnto Abraham. Abraham prayeth for them.

¶ And the Lorde appeared vnto hym in the playne of Mamre and he sat in his tent doze in the heate of the dape. And he lifte vp his eyes and looked: & lo, thre men stode by him. And when he sawe them, he ran to mete them from the tent doze, and fell to the grounde and sayde: Lorde (I beseeche the) yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght: goo not (I praye the) fro thy seruaunte. Let a lytle water be sett, and washe your fete, and restrewe your selues vnder the tree. And I wyll sett a * moztell of beede, to comferte your hartes withall. And than shall ye goo your wayes, for euen therfore are ye come to your seruaunte. And they sayde: Wo euen so as y haue sayde. And Abraham went a pase in to his tent vnto Sara, & sayde: make redy attore thre pecches of fyne meale, kneade it, & make cakes. And Abraham rennyng vnto his beastes, fett a calfe tendre and good, & gaue it vnto a ponge man, & he basted to make it redy at tounce. And he toke butter & mylke & the calf which he had prepared, & set it before the, and stode hym selfe by them vnder the tree * whan they dyd eate.

¶ And they sayde vnto him: Where is Sara thy wyfe? he answered: beholde, she is in the tent. And he sayde: in returnynge, I will come agayne vnto the, accordynge to y tyme of lyfe. And loo: Sara thy wyfe shall haue a sonne. That hearde Sara, in the tent doze which was behinde him (Abraham and Sara were both olde & well streken in age, & it seemed to be with Sara after the maner as it is wth women) Therfore Sara laughed with in hys selfe sayynge: Howe I am waxed olde, shall I geue my selfe to * lust, & my Lorde olde also? And God sayde vnto Abraham: wherfore dyd Sara laughe sayynge: Shall I of a surety bere a chyld which am olde? is any thyng wonderfull to God? Accordynge to the tyme * appoynted will I retorne vnto the, eue accordynge to the tyme of lyfe, & Sara shall haue a sonne. That Sara denyed it sayynge: I laughed not, for she was a trappe. And he sayde: It is not so, but thou laughedst. And y men stondynge by fro thence, looked towarde Sodome. And Abraham went with them to bypunge them on the waye. And y Lorde sayde: Shall I hyde fro Abraham that thyng which I do? I seynge that Abraham shall be a * great and a myghtie people, and all the nacyns of y erth shall be blessed in him: I knowe this also, that he will commaunde his chyldren and hys household after him, that they kepe the waye of y Lorde, and do after ryghte and conscience, that the Lorde maye bynge vpon Abraham all that he hath spoken vnto him.

¶ And the Lorde sayde * The crye of Sodome and Gomorra is great, and theyr synne is exceeding greuous. I wyll go downe nowe and see whether they haue done all together accordynge to that crye which is come vnto me or not, that I maye knowe knowe. And the men departed thence and wnt to Sodome warde. But Abraham stode yet before the Lorde, and Abraham drewe here & sayde: Wylt y also destroye the ryghtwes with the wicked? parauenture there be l. ryghtwes with in the cytie, wyle thou destroye and not spare the place for the sake of l. ryghtwes that are therein? That he sarre from the, that thou shuldest do after thys sayynge, & slep the ryghtwes with the wicked, & that the ryghtwes shulde be as y wicked, that he sarre fro the. Shall not the iudge of all the worlde do accordynge to ryghte? And the Lorde sayde: If I fynde in Sodome l. ryghtwes wth in y cytie, I will spare all the place for their sakes.

¶ And Abraham answered sayde, Beholde, I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the Lorde, * which am but dust and ashes. parauenture there shall lacke fyue of fyfthe ryghteous: Wylt y destroye all the cytie for lacke of fyue? And he sayde: yf I fynde there fourtye & fyue, I will not destroye the. And he proceeded to speake vnto hym agayne, & sayde, parauenture there shall be fourtye founde there. he answered: I will not do it for forties sake. he sayde vnto him agayne: ¶ let not my Lorde be angry that I speake: parauenture there shall thirtie be founde there. And he sayde: I will do nothyng yf I fynde thirtie there. he sayde agayne: ¶ le, I haue taken vpon me to speake nowe also vnto my Lorde: parauenture ther shall be twentye founde there. he answered: I wyll not destroye them for twenties sake. And he sayde: ¶ let not my Lorde be angry, & I wyll speake yet but this once. Parauenture there shall ten be founde there. he answered: I wyll not destroye them for tens sake. And y Lorde went his waye as soone as he had lefte comynge with Abraham. And Abraham also returned vnto his place.

¶ The. xix. Chapter.

¶ Lot receaued two Angelles in to his house. The synners of the Sodomites. Lot is deliuered and despyeth to dwell in y cytie zoar. Lottes wyfe is turned into a pillar of salt. Sodome is destroyed. Lot is broken & lefth with his daughters which conceaured chyldren by hym.

¶ And there came. ij. angells to Sodome at euen. And Lot sat at the gate of Sodome. And Lot seinge them, rose vp to mete the, and he bowed hym selfe to the grounde w hym face. And he sayde: my Lordes, tyme in I praye you in to your seruautes house & tary all nyghte & washe your fete & ye shall rest vpearly to go on your wayes. Whych sayde: nay, but we wyll byde in the streetes all nyghte. And he in maner dyd euen * compelle the violently. And they turnynge in vnto him entred in to his house, & he made the a feast & did bake sweete bred, & they did * eate. And before they wnt to rest, y men of y cyrie (euen the men of Sodome) compassed the house rounde aboute both olde & yonge, all y people from all quarters. And they callynge vnto Lot, sayde vnto him: where are y men which came in to the thys nyght? bynge the out vnto vs & we will knowe them.

¶ And they pleased sore vnto the man, euen Lot: & came to breake vp the dooze, but the men put forth their hande & pulled Lot in to the house to them and shut to the dooze. And the men that were at the dooze of the house, they smote with blyndnesse * both small & greute: so that they saynted and coulde not fynde the dooze. And y men sayde vnto Lot: If thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe or sonnes or daughters or what so euer y haue in the cytie, bynge it out of this place: for we must destroye this place, because the crye of them is great * before the face of God: for the Lorde hath sent vs to destroye it.

¶ And Lot went out and spake vnto hys sonnes in lawe which married his daughters sayynge: stode vp: get you out of this place, for y Lorde will ouerthrowe this cytie. But he seemed as though he had mocked, vnto his sonnes in lawe. And whan the morninge arose, y angells caused Lot to speke hym sayynge: stonde vp, take thy wyfe and thy two daughters at hande, lest thou perishe in the synne of the cytie. And as he prologed the tyme, the men caught both him, his wyfe & his two daughters by the handes, the Lorde bynge mercifull vnto him, and they brought hym forth and sette hym without the cytie. It fortuneth whan they had brought them out, * he sayde: haue thy lyfe, and loke not behynde the, neyther tary thou in all thys playne countre. haue thy selfe in the mountayne, lest thou perishe. And Lot sayde vnto them. Oh nay Lorde: beholde, thy seruaunt hath founde grace in thy syghte, and thou hast magnified thy mercye which thou hast shewed vnto me in sayynge my lyfe. Beholde, I can not be saued in the mountayne, lest some misfortune fall vpon me and I dye. Beholde, here is a cytie by, to flee vnto, euen yonder lytle one: Oh let me be saued there: is it not a lytle one, and my soule shall lyue? And he sayde to hym: se I haue receaued thy request as concernynge this thyng, that that I will not overthrow this city for the which thou hast spoken. Haste thee, & be saved there, for I can do nothing till thou become thyself. And therefore the name of this city is called Zoar. And the sonne was now risen upon the earth, when Lot was entered into Zoar.

¶ Then the Lord rained upon Sodom & Gomorrah, & rained fire & brimstone from the Lord out of heaven, & overthrew those cities & all the region, and all that dwelled in the cities, and that that grew upon the earth. But Lot's wife looked behind her, & was turned into a pillar of salt. Abraham rising up early, got him to the place where he stood before the presence of God, & looking toward Sodom & Gomorrah & toward all the land of that countrey he looked: and behold, the smoke of the countrey arose as the smoke of a furnace. And it happened that when God destroyed the cities of that region, he thought upon Abraham, & sent Lot out from the midst of the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities where Lot dwelled.

¶ And Lot departed out of Zoar & dwelled in the mountayns with his ii. daughters, for he feared to tarry in Zoar, but dwelled in a cave, he & his ii. daughters. And the elder sayde unto the younger: our father is old, and there is not a man in the earth to come in unto us after the manner of all the world. Come, we will make our father drunken with wine, & lye with him, that we maye save seed of our father. And so they made their father drunken with wine that nyght. And the elder daughter went & laye with her father. And he perceived it not, neither when she laye downe, neither when she rose up.

¶ And on the morrow it happened that the elder sayde unto the younger: beholde, yesternyght laye I with my father. Let us make him drinke with wine this nyght also, & go thou & lye with him, that we maye save seed of our father. And they made their father drinke with wine that nyght also. And the younger arose & laye with him. And he perceived it not: neither when she laye downe, neither when she rose up. Thus were both the daughters of Lot with childe by their father. And the elder bare a sonne, and called his name Moab. The same is the father of the Moabites unto this daye. And the younger bare a sonne also and called his name Ben Ammi. The same is the father of the children of Ammon unto this daye.

¶ The xx. Chapter.

¶ Abraham went as a stranger into the land of Gerar. The king of Gerar taketh away his wife.

¶ And Abraham departed thence toward the south countrey, and dwelled betweene Cadis & Sur, and sojourned in Gerar. And Abraham sayde of Sara his wyfe: she is my sister. And Abimelech king of Gerar sent & fetched Sara awaye.

¶ But God came to Abimelech in a dreame in the nyght and sayde to hym: Se, thou shalt dye for the womans sake which thou hast taken awaye, for she is a maids wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her, & he sayde: Lord, wilt thou slep righte wises people? sayde not he unto me, she is my sister? yet, & sayde not he herselfe: he is my brother with a pure heart and innocent hands have I done this. And God sayde unto him by a dreame: I wote it well that thou dydest it in the purtenesse of thy heart. I kepte also that thou shouldest not sinne agaynst me, & therefore suffered I the not to touch her. Nowe therefore delivere the man his wyfe agayne, for he is a prophete. And he shall praye for thee that thou mayest lye. But and yet thou delivere her not agayne, be sure that thou shalt dye the death, both thou, and all that thou hast.

¶ Therefore Abimelech rising up by betymes in the morninge called all his servants, & tolde all these sayings in their eares, and the men were sore afraid. And Abimelech called Abraham & sayde unto hym: What hast thou done unto us & what have I offended thee that thou hast brought on me and on my livingdomes so great a synne? thou hast done dedes unto me I ought not to be done. And Abimelech sayde unto Abraham: What savest thou that thou hast done this thinge?

¶ Abraham answered. For I sayde: surely the feare of God is not in this place, & they shall slep me for my wifes sake: yet in verity dede she is my sister, for she is the daughter of my father: though she be not the daughter of my mother: and she became my wyfe. And after, God caused me to wandre, out of my fathers house, I sayde unto her: Thy kindnesse shall thou shewe unto me in all places where we come, that thou save of me, he is my brother.

¶ Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen, men servants & womenservantes & gaue them unto Abraham, and delivere hym Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayde: beholde, my lande lyeth before thee, dwell where it pleaseth thee best. But unto Sara he sayde: Se, I have geuen thy brother a thousand peces of silver, beholde, it shall be a couerunge of thine eyes unto all that are with thee: & thus with all was he reprovved.

¶ And so Abraham prayed unto God, and God healed Abimelech and his wyfe and his maydens, & they bare children. For the Lord had closed so, all the matreces of the house of Abimelech: because of Abrahams wyfe.

¶ The xxi. Chapter.

¶ Isaac is borne. Agar is cast oute with her poyne sonne Ismael. The Angell comforteth Isaac. The covenant betwene Abimelech and Abraham.

¶ The Lord

¶ The Lord visited Sara as he had sayde and dyd unto her: & accordingly as he had promysed. For Sara was with childe and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, even the same season which the Lord had appointed hym. And Abraham called his sonnes name that was borne unto hym which Sara bare hym, Isaac: & Abraham circumcised Isaac his sonne when he was. viii. dayes olde: as God commaunded hym. And Abraham was an hundred yere olde: when his sonne Isaac was borne unto hym. But Sara sayde: God hath made me a laughingstocke: so that all that heare: will laugh at me. She sayde also: who wolde have sayd unto Abraham: that Sara shoulde have geuen childe such: for I have borne him a sonne in my olde age. The childe grew: and was wened: and Abraham made a great feast: the same daye that Isaac was wened. Sara sawe also the sonne of Hagar the Egyptian (whiche she had borne unto Abraham) to be a mocker. Wherefore she sayde unto Abraham: & put awaye this bondmayde & hyr sonne: for the sonne of this bondwoman shall not be thy with my sonne Isaac: & thy sayinge was very greivous in Abrahams syght because of his sonne. And God sayde unto Abraham: let it not be greivous in thy syght, because of the ladd and of thy bondmayde. All that Sara hath sayde unto thee, heare hyr voyce, for in Isaac shall thy seed be called. Whosoever of the sonne of the bondwoman will I make a nation: because he is thy seed.

¶ And so Abraham rose up early in the morninge, and toke bread and a bottell of water, and gaue it unto Hagar, puttynge it on hyr shoulders with the ladd also, & sent her awaye. who departynge, wandred up and downe in the wilderness of Beer Seba. And the water was spent in the bottell, and she cast her ladd under a bush and went and sat on the other syde a greete waye, as it were a bowshot of: for she sayde: I will not see the death of the childe. And she littyng downe on the other syde, lyste by hyr voyce and wepte.

¶ And God herde the voyce of the childe. And the angell of God called Hagar oute of heaven and sayde unto her: what ayleth the Hagar? feare not, for God hath herde the voyce of the childe where he lyeth. Arise, and lyste up the ladd, and take hym in thy hande, for I will make of hym a greete people. And God opened hyr eyes: and she sawe a well of water. And she went and fylled the bottell with water, and gaue the boye drinke. And God was with the ladd, and he grew and dwelt in the wilderness, and became an archer. And he dwelt in the wilderness of Paran. And his mother gatt hym a wyfe out of the lande of Egypte.

¶ And it chauced the same season, that Abimelech and Phicol his chefe captayne spake unto Abraham sayinge: God is with thee in all that thou doest. And nowe therfore sweare unto me even here by God, that thou wilt not hurt me nor my children, nor my childrens children. But that thou shalt deale with me and the countrey where thou hast bene a stranger, accordynge unto the kindnesse that I have shewed thee. And Abraham sayd: I will sweare.

¶ And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, which Abimelechs servants had violently take awaye. And Abimelech sayde: I wote not who hath done this thinge. Also thou toldest me not: neither herde I of it, but this daye. And Abraham toke shepe and oxen, and gaue the unto Abimelech. And they made both of them a bonde together. And Abraham set. vii. ewe lambes by the selues. And Abimelech sayd unto Abraham: what meane these. vii. ewe lambes which thou hast set by them selues? he answered: For these. vii. lambes shalt thou take of my hande, that they maye be a wytnesse unto me, that I have dygged this well. Wherefore the place is called Beer Seba, because that there they swore both of them. Thus made they a bonde to gether at Beer Seba. And Abimelech & Phicol his chefe Captayne rose up, and turned agayne unto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a wood in Beer Seba, and called there on the name of the Lord, the everlastynge God: and sojourned in the Philistines lande a longe season.

¶ The xxii. Chapter.

¶ The lapp of Abimelech is proued in offeringe by his sonne Isaac. The lapp of our saupour is promysed. The generation of Jacob: Abrahams brother.

¶ After these sayings it happened that God dyd: & proued Abraham and sayde unto hym: Abraham. Whych answered: here am I. And he sayde: take thy only sonne Isaac whom thou louest, & get the unto the lande Mozia, and sacrifice hym there for a sacrifice upon one of the mountayns, whych I will shewe thee. Then Abraham rose up early in the morninge, & saddled his asse, and toke two of his yonge men with hym, and Isaac his sonne: and cloued wood for the sacrifice, and rose up and gott hym to the place whiche God had appointed hym.

¶ The thyrde daye Abraham lyste by his eyes, and sawe the place a farre off and sayde unto his yonge men: lyde here with the asse, I and the ladd will goo yonder and worshyppe, & come agayne unto you. And Abraham toke the wood of the sacrifice and layde it upon Isaac his sonne, but he him selfe toke fyre in his hande and a knyfe. And they went both of them together.

¶ Then

Then spake Isahac vnto Abraham his father and sayde: My father? And he answered: here am I my sonne. He sayde: Se here is fyre and wodde, but where is the shepe for sacrifice? Abraham answered: my sonne, God wyl prouyde him a shepe for sacrifice. And so they wente both together.

And when they came vnto a place which God had shewed hym, Abraham made an altar there, & dressed the wodd, and bownde Isahac his sonne, & layde him on the altar, aboue vpon the wodd. And Abraham stretched vnto his hande, to take the knyfe to haue kylled his sonne. And the angell of the Lorde called vnto him from heauen, saying: Abraham Abraham? And he sayde: here am I. And he sayde: laye not thy hande vpon the chyld, neyther do any thinge at all vnto him, for now I knowe that thou fearest God, and hast for my sake not spared thyne onely sonne. And Abraham layde vnto his eyes, looked aboute: and beholde, there was a ram caught by the hornes in a thickette. And he went & toke the ram and offred hym vnto a sacrifice in the steade of his sonne. And Abraham called the name of the place, the Lorde wyl see. As it is sayde thys daye: in y^e mounte wyl the Lorde be sene.

And the Angell of the Lorde cryed vnto Abraham from heauen the secōde tyme, and sayde: by my selfe haue I sworn (sayth the Lorde) because thou hast done thys thyng, and hast not spared thy onely sonne: that in blessinge I wyl blesse the, and in multipli- ge I wyl multiplie thy seed as the starres of heauē & as the sande which is vpon the see syde. And thy seed shall possesse the gate of hys enemies. And in thy seed shall all the naciōs of the erth be blessed, because thou hast herde my voyce. So turned Abraham agayne vnto hys ponge mē, and they rose vp and went together to Beer Seba. And Abraham dwelt at Beer Seba. And it chaunced after these thinges, that one tolde Abraham sayinge: Beholde, Milcha, she hath also borne chyldren vnto thy brother Nachor. Thus hys eldest sonne, and Bus hys brother, and Remuell the father of the Syrians, and celed, & Haso, and Yldas, & Jedlaph, & Bethuel. And Bethuel begat Rebecca. These eyght dyd Milcha bere to Nachor Abrahams brother.

And hys concubyne called Rhuma she bare also Tebah, & Saham, & Haasg, & Maacha.

The. xlii. Chapter.

Sara dyed and is buried in the felde that Abrahā bought of Ephron the Hethite.

Sara was an hundred and xxvii. yere olde (so longe lyued she) & Sara dyed in kyriat Arba. The same is hebron in the lande of Canaan.

And Abraham came to moorne Sara, and to wepe for her. And Abraham stode vp fro the syght of hys coozle, and talked wth the sonnes of heth sayinge: I am a straunger & a forpner amonge you, geue me a possession to burye in wyth you, that I maye bury my coorse out of my syght. And the chyldren of heth answered Abraham, saying vnto him: heare vs Lorde, thou art a pryncce of God amonge vs. In the cheffest of oure sepulchres bury thy dead: none of vs also shall forbyd the hys sepulchre, but thou mayest bury thy dead therein: Abraham stode vp and bowed him selfe before the people of the lande & chyldren of heth. And he comoned wth the sayinge: If it be your mynde that I shall bury my dead out of my syght, heare me, and speke for me to Ephron the sonne of zoar: that he maye geue me the dubbyll caue which he hath, and that is in the ende of hys felde: but for as moche money, as it is worth shall he geue it me in the ptesence of you, for a possession to burye in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the chyldren of heth.

And Ephron the Hethite answered Abraham in the audience of the chyldren of heth and of all that went in at the gates of hys cyte, sayinge: Not so my Lorde, heare me. The felde geue I the, and the caue y^e therein is geue I the also: and euen in the ptesence of the sonnes of my people geue I it y^e, bury thy dead. And Abraham bowed hym selfe before the people of the lande, & spake vnto Ephron in the audite of the people of the cōtre saying: I praye the heare me yf it please the: I wyl geue siluer for the felde, take it & I will bury my deed there. Ephron answered Abraham sayinge vnto hym: My Lorde, hearken vnto me. The lande is worth iiii. hundred speles of syluer: what is y^e betwyxte the and me? bury therfore thy deed. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron & weped hym the syluer whych he had sayde, in the audience of the sonnes of heth. Euen iiii. hundred syluer speles of current money amonge marchantes. And the felde of Ephron with the dubbyll caue whiche was before Mamre: eue the felde and the caue y^e was therein and all the trees y^e were in the felde, & that were in all the borders rounde aboute, was made sure vnto Abraham for a possession, in the syght of the chyldren of heth, before all that went in at the gates of the cyte. After thys dyd Abraham burye Sara hys wyfe wyfe in the double caue of the felde y^e lyeth before Mamre. The same is hebron in the lande of Canaan. And so both the felde and the caue y^e is therein, was made vnto Abraham a sure possession to bury in, of the sonnes of heth.

The. xliii. Chapter.

Abraham maketh hys seruante swere: and sendeth hym to seke a wyfe for Isahac hys sonne. The seruante was saythfull & brought Rebecca whych Isahac toke to hys wyfe.

Abraham was olde and stryken in dayes, and the Lorde had blessed hym in all thynges. And Abraham sayde vnto his eldest seruante of his house whych had rule ouer all y^e he had: Put thy hande vnder my thigh, & I wyl make the swere by the Lorde God of heauen and God of the erth, that thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of the daughters of Canaan, amonge whych I dwell. But thou shalt goo vnto my contrey and to my natyue lande, and take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isahac.

But the seruante sayde vnto hym: peradventure the woman wyl not agree to come wyth me vnto thys lande, shall I bringe thy sonne agayne vnto the lade whych thou cammest out of? To whom Abraham answered: be ware, that thou bringe not my sonne thither agayne. The Lorde God of heauen whych toke me fro my fathers house and from the lande where I was borne, and whych spake vnto me and that swore vnto me, sayinge: vnto thy seed wyl I geue thys lande, he shall sende hys angell before the, and thou shalt take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuerthelesse yf the woman wyl not agree to folow the, thā shalt thou be wyth out daunger of thys my oath. Onely bringe not my sonne thither agayne. And the seruante put hys hande vnder the thigh of Abraham his master, and swore to hym as concernynge that matter. And the seruante toke x. camels of the camels of hys master and departed, and had of all manner goodes of hys master wth hym, and stode vp and went to Mesopotamya, vnto the cytie of Nahor. And made hys camels to lye downe wythout the cytie by a well syde of water, at euen: aboute the tyme that women come out to drawe water, and he sayde.

Lorde God of my master Abraham, sende me good spede this daye, and shewe mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo I stonde here by the well of water, and the daughters of the men of thys cytye come out to drawe water: Nowe the damsell to whome I saye, stowpe downe thy ptycher I praye the that I maye dryncke. If she saye also:

dryncke, and I wyl geue thy camels dryncke: the same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruante Isahac: yee, and thereby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe y^e he had left speakinge, beholde, Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuel, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and hys ptycher vpon hys shoulder: The damsell was very fayre to loke vpon, and yet a mayde and vnknewen of man. And she went downe to the well, and fylled hys ptycher and came vp. And the seruante renynge vnto her, sayde: let me suppe a lytle water of thy ptycher. And she sayde: dryncke my Lorde.

And she hastened and lett downe her ptycher vpon hys arme, and gaue hym dryncke. And when she had gyuen hym dryncke, she sayde: I wyl drawe water for thy camels also, vntyll they haue dryncke ynough. And she powred out hys ptycher into the trough hastily, and ranne agayne vnto the well to sett water: and drew for all hys camels. And the man wondred at her: but helde his peace, to wete whether the Lorde had made hys iourney prosperous or not. And it fortunēd as the camels had left drynkyng, the man toke a golden earynge of halfe a sicke waight, and two bracelettes for hys handes, of x. speles weyghte of golde, and sayde: Whose daughter art thou? tell me I praye the, is there rowme in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? She answered him: I am the daughter of Bethuel the sonne of Milca which she bare vnto Nahor: and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue litter and prouender ynough, and also rowme to lodge in.

And the man bowed him selfe, & worshipped the Lorde, and sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of my master Abraham, whych ceaseth not to deale mercifully and truly wth my master, and hath brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ranne and tolde them of her mothers house these thynges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And he ranne out vnto the man, euen to the well: for as sone as he had sene the earynges and the bracelettes in hys sisters handes (and hearde the wordes of Rebecca hys sister sayinge: thus sayde the man vnto me) he went out vnto the man. And loo, he stode wth the camels by the well syde. And he sayde: come in thou blessed of the Lorde. Wherefore stdest thou wythout? I haue dressed the house, and made rowme for the camels. And than the man came in to the house: and he vnbrylled the camels and (Laban) brought lyster and prouender for the camels, and water to wfete and the mennes fete that were w hym, & set meate before hym to eate. But he sayde: I wyl not eate, vntyll I haue sayde myne arande. And he sayde: saye on. And he sayd: I am Abrahams seruaunt. & God hath bles- sed my master out of measure, that he is be- come greete, and hath geuen hym shepe, and oxen, syluer and golde, men seruautes, and mayde seruautes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare hym a sonne, when she was olde: and vnto hym hath he geuen all that he hath. And my ma- ster made me swere sayinge: thou shalt not take a wyfe to my sonne amonge the daugh- ters of Cananites in whose lade I dwell: But thou shalt go vnto my fathers house & to my kynred, and take a wife vnto my son- ne. And I sayde vnto my master: peraduen- ture the wyfe wyl not folowe me: And he answered me: The Lorde, before whome I walke, wyl sende hys angell wth the, and prospere thy iourney and thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. Then shalt thou be gyflesse of my curse, when thou comest to my kyn- red. And yf they geue the not one, thou shalt be gyflesse of my curse.

And so I came thys daye vnto the well and sayde: O Lorde, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be sonowe that thou makest my iourney whych I go, prosperous: behol- de I stonde by thys well of water, and whe a byrgyn cometh forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: geue me (I praye the) a lytle water of thy ptycher to dryncke, and she sape to me: dryncke thou, and I wyl also drawe for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whom the Lorde hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And before I had made an ende of spea- kyng in myne harte: beholde Rebecca ca- me forth, and hys ptycher on hys shulder, and she went downe vnto the well & drew wa- ter. And I sayde vnto her: geue me dryncke I praye the. And she made hast, & toke dow- ne hys ptycher from of hys, and sayde dryn- ke, and I wyl geue thy camels dryncke also. And I dracke, & she gaue the camels dryn- ke also. And I asked her, sayinge: whose daughter art thou? She answered: the daugh- ter of Bathuel Rahors sonne * whom Milca bare vnto hym. And I put the earring vpon hys face, and the braceletes vpon hys handes. And I bowed my selfe, and worshyp- ped the Lorde, & blessed the Lorde God of my master Abraham whych had brought me the ryght waye, to take my masters bro- thers daughter vnto hys sonne. Howe also yf ye wyl deale mercifully and truly wth y master, tell me: and yf not, tell me also: I maye turne me to the ryght hande & lefte.

Then answered Laban and Bathuel, sayinge. This sayenge is proceded euen out of the Lorde, we can not therfore saye vnto the, ether good or bad: beholde, Rebecca is before the, take her and goo, that she maye be thy masters sonnes wyfe, euen as God hath sayde. And when Abrahams seruaunt hear- de theyr wordes, he worshyped the Lorde, flatt vpon the erth. And the seruaunt toke forth syluer and golde and felles of gol- de and rayment, and gaue them to Rebecca. And vnto hys brother and to hys mother, he gaue gyftes. And they dyd eate & dryn- ke, both he and the men that were wth him, and tarped all nyght. And when they rose vp in the mornynge, he sayde: let me departe vnto my master. Hys brother & hys mother answered: let the damsell abyde wth vs a whyle, and it be but euen. x. dayes, and than shalt she go. He sayde vnto them: hynder me not, beholde, the Lorde hath prospered my iourney. Sende me awaye therfore, that I maye goo vnto my master. And they sayde: we wyl call the damsell, and enquire at hys mouth. And they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wyle thou goo wth this man? And he answered, I wyl goo.

So they let Rebecca theyr syster go and her noyse & Abrahams seruaunt, & hys men. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vn- to her: Thou art oure syster, growe in to thousande thousandes * and thy seed pos- sesse the gate of theyr enemyes. And Rebec- ca arose and hys damels, and satt them vp vpon the camels, and wet theyr waye after the man. And the seruaunt toke Rebecca, and went hys waye.

And Isahac was a comynge from the waye of the well of the luyng and sepynge me, for he dwelt in the south cōtrepe, & Isahac was gone out to praye in the felde at the eue tyde. And he lyft vpon hys eyes and sa- we the camels comynge. And Rebecca lyft vpon hys eyes, and when she sawe Isahac, she lyghted of the camell, and sayd vnto the ser- uaunt: what ma is thys that cometh wal- kyng agaynst vs in the felde? And the serua- unt sayde: it is my master. Therfore she to- ke hys cloke, and put it about her. And the seruaunt tolde Isahac all thynges that he had done. And Isahac broughte her in to his mother Saras tete, and toke Rebecca, and she became hys wyfe, and he loued her: and so Isahac receaued conforste after hys mo- ther.

Abrah-

Abraham proceeded further and to- ke him a wyfe called Rebecca, why- che bare hym Simram, and Jek- san, and Medan, and Midia, and Jethack and Suah. Jeklan begat Seba & Medan. And the sonnes of Medan were: Al- surim, Letusim and Leumim. And the son- nes of Midian: Ephra, and Cypher, Hanoch, and Abida & Elda. All these were the chy- liden of Rebecca. And Abraham gaue all hys goodes vnto Isahac. But vnto the sonnes of the concubynes whych Abraham had, he gaue gyftes, and sent them awaye from Isahac hys sonne (whyle he yet lyued) east- warde, vnto the lande of Kedes.

And these are the dayes of the yeares of Abrahamys lyfe whych he lyued: an hundred and lxxv. yeare, and than fell sycke and dyed in a lustye age (whē he had lyued ynough) and was put vnto hys people. And hys sonnes Isahac and Ismael buryed hym in the double caue in the felde of Ephron sonne of zoar y hethyte besyde the playne of Ma- re. Whych felde Abraham bought of the son- nes of heth. There was Abraham buryed & Sara hys wyfe. It fortuned after the deeth of Abraham that God blessed Isahac his son- ne, and Isahac dwelled by the well of the ly- yng and sepynge me.

These are the generacions of Ismael Abra- hams sonne, whych Hagar the Egypcyen Saras handmayde bare vnto Abraham. And these are the names of the sonnes of Ismael, in their names accordyng to theyr kynred- des. The eldest sonne of Ismael: Nebaioth, and Cedar: and Adbeel, and Mibsam, and Misma, Duma, and Masha, & Hadar, The- ma, Jetur, Naphis & Kedma: These are the sonnes of Ismael, & these are, theyr names, by theyr townes and castels. xij. princes of their householdes. And these are the yeares of the lyfe of Ismael, an hundred and lxxv. yeare, and he fell sycke, & dyed, & was layde vnto hys people. And they dwelled fro He- ulah vnto Sur by the border of Egy- pte, as thou goest towardes Affrians. And he dyed in the presence of all hys byrthren.

And these are the generacions of Isahac Abrahamys sonne: Abraham begat Isahac. And Isahac was xl. yeare olde whe he toke Rebecca to wyfe, the daughter of Bathuel the Sirian of Mesopotamia and syster to Laban the Sirian. And Isahac made inter- cession vnto the Lorde for hys wyfe: becau- se she was barren: and the Lorde was intrea- ted of hym, and Rebecca hys wyfe conceiued: and the chyldre stroue to gether wthyn her. Therfore she sayd: yf it shulde goo so to pas- se, what helpeth it that I am wth chylder? wherfore, she went to aske the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto her: there are two ma- nner of people in thy wombe, & two nacyns shal be deuyded out of thy bowels, and the one nacyn shalbe myghtyer than the other, and the elder shalbe seruaunte vnto the yonger.

Therfore when hys tyme was come to be deliuered: beholde, there were two twynnes in hys wombe. And he that came out fyrst was redd, and he was all ouer as it were a rough garnēt, & they called his name Esau. And after hym, came hys brother out, & hys hande holdynge Esau by the heile. And hys name was called Jacob. And Isahac was. lx. yeare olde when they were borne: and the boyes grewe, and Esau became a conynge hunter & a tyller of the erth. But Jacob was a perfecte man, & dwelled in the scithes. Isahac loued Esau, because he dyd eate of hys venyson, but Rebecca loued Jacob.

Jacob sod potage, and Esau came from the felde and was sayntie, and Esau sayd to Jacob: sedeme I praye the wth that redde potage, for I am sayntie. And therfore was hys name called Esau. And Jacob sayde: sell me thys daye thy byrthryght. Esau sayde: Loo I am at the popite to dye, and what profyte shall thys byr- thryghte do me? Jacob answered: swere to me then thys daye. And he swore to hym, & solde hys byrthryghte vnto Jacob. Then Jacob gaue Esau brede and potage of rylle. And he dyd eate and dryncke and rose vp, & wet hys waye. And Esau regarded not hys byrthryghte.

The xxvi. Chapter.

The sonne of Isahac towarde Abimelech. The byrth of Esau and Jacob. Esau sellyth his byrthryght to Jacob. The byrth of Esau and Jacob. The byrth of Esau and Jacob. The byrth of Esau and Jacob.

And there came a deeth in the la- de, passynge the fyrst deeth that was in the dayes of Abraham. And Isahac went vnto Abime- lech kyng of the Philistynes vnto Gerar. And the Lorde appeared vnto him, and sayde: So not downe into Egypte, but hyde in the lande whych I shall the we vnto the: so iourne in thys lande, and I wyl be wth the, and wyl blesse the: for vnto the and vnto thy sede I wyl geue all these con- treys. And I wyl performe the oofte which I swore vnto Abraham thy father, and wyl multiplye thy seed as the starres of heaue, and wyl geue vnto thy seed all these con- treys. And in thy seed shall all the nacyns of the erth be blessed, because that Abraham bar- kened vnto my voyce and kepte myne ordi- nances, my commandementes, my statu- tes, and my lawes.

And Isahac dwelled in Gerar. And the men of the place aske d hym of hys wyfe, and he sayde: she is my syster: for he feared to saye: she is my wyfe, lest the men of the place shulde haue kylled him because of Rebecca whych was bewtyfull to the eye. And it happened after he had bene there longe tyme, that Abimelech kynge of the Philistynes looked out at a wyndowe, and sawe Isaac sportynge with Rebecca hys wyfe. And Abimelech called Isaac, and sayde: he is of a suertye thy wyfe, & why saydest thou: she is my syster? To whom Isaac answered: I thought that I myght peradventure haue dyed for hys sake. Abimelech sayd: why hast thou done thys vnto vs / one of the people myght lpghtely haue lync by thy wyfe, and so shuldest thou haue brought synne vpon vs. And so Abimelech charged all hys people, sayinge: he that toucheth this ma of hys wyfe, shall dye the death.

Isaac sowed in that lande, and founde in that same yere an. C. bushels: & the Lorde blessed hym, & the man waxed myghtye, and wēt forth and grewe tyll he was exceedinge great, for he had possession of shepe, of oxen and a myghtye housholde, and therfore the Philistynes had enny at hym: for the Philistynes stopped & fylled vp wyth erth all the welles which his fathers seruantes dygged in hys fathers Abrahams tyme. And Abimelech sayde vnto Isaac: get the from vs, for thou art myghtyer then we a great deale.

Therefore Isaac departed thence, and abode in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there. And Isaac returnynge, digged agayne the welles of water whych they dygged in the dayes of Abraham hys father, which the Philistynes had stopped after the deth of Abraham, and gaue them the same names whych hys father gaue the. Isaac's seruantes dygged in the vale, and founde a well of lyuing water. And the herdmen of Gerar dyd streue wyth Isaac's herdmen, sayinge: the water is oures. Whā called be the well? Eleck, because they strove wyth hym.

And they dygged another well, and strove for that also. And he called the name of it Sitena. And than he departed thence, and dygged another well for the which they strove not: therfore called he it Rehoboth, sayinge: the Lorde hath nowe made vs rowme, that we maye encrease vpon the erth. And he went vp thence, to Beer Seba. And the Lorde appeared vnto hym the same nyght, and sayde: I am the God of Abraham thy father, feare not, for I am wyth the, & wyll blesse the, and multiplie thy seed for my seruauent Abrahams sake. And he buylded an autler there, and called vpon the name of the Lorde, and pytched hys tete. And there Isaac's seruantes dygged a well.

Then came Abimelech to hym from Gerar, and Abusath hys frende, and whicoll his cheke captayne. And Isaac sayde vnto the:

wherefore come ye to me, seinge ye hate me & haue put me awaye from you? Whych answered: In seinge, we sawe that the Lorde was with the, & we sayde: let there be nowe an othe betwyxe vs enen betwyxe vs and the, and let vs make a bonde wyth the, that thou shuldest do vs no hurte, as we haue not touched the, and as we haue done vnto the nothyng but good, and sent the awaye in peace: for thou art nowe the blessed of the Lorde. And he made them a feast, & they dyd eate & dryncke. And they rose vp by tymes in the moynynge, and swore one to a nother. And Isaac sent them awaye. And they departed from hym in peace. And that same daye it happened, that Isaac's seruantes came & tolde hym of a well whych they had dygged: and sayde vnto hym, we haue founde water. And he called it Seba. And the name of the cyle is called Beer Seba vnto this daye. Esau was. xi. yere olde and he toke a wyfe called Judith, the daughter of Beryan hethyte, & Basmath the daughter of Elon hethyte also, which were disobedient vnto Isaac and Rebecca.

The xxvij. Chapter.

Isaac stealeth the blessing from Esau by hys mothers counsel. Isaac is sad. Esau is comforted. The hatred of Esau toward Isaac.

And it came to passe that whan Isaac waxed olde and hys eyes were dymme (so he coulde not see) he called Esau his eldest sonne and sayd vnto hym: my sonne.

And he sayde vnto hym: here am I. And he sayde: beholde, I am nowe olde, and knowe not the daye of my deth: and nowe therfore take thy weapons, thy quyre and thy bowe, & get the to the felde, that thou mayest take me some venyson, and make me meate soche as I loue, and bynge it me, that I maye eate, and that my soule maye blesse y before y dye. But Rebecca hearde when Isaac spake to Esau hys sonne. And Esau wente into the felde, to cathe venyson, and to bynge it. And Rebecca sayd vnto Jacob hys sonne sayinge: Beholde I haue herde thy father talkynge wyth Esau thy brother and sayinge: bynge me venyson and make me meate, that I maye eate and blesse the before the Lorde, afore my death. Nowe therfore therfore my sonne heare my voyce in that whych I commaunde the: gett the to the flocke, and bynge me thre two good kyddes, that I maye make meate of them for thy father, soche as he loueth. And thou shalt bynge it to thy father, that he maye eate & that he maye blesse the before hys deth.

Then sayde Jacob to Rebecca hys mother: beholde, Esau my brother is a rough man, and I am smooth. My father shall peradventure fele me, and I shall seme vnto him as though I went aboute to begyle hym, & so shall he bynge a curse vpon me, and not a blessing: and hys mother sayde vnto hym: wyl me be thys? curse my sonne, only heare my voyce, and go and fetch me them. And Jacob wēt and fet them, and brought them to hys mother. And hys mother made meate such as she knewe his father loued. And Rebecca fett goodly rayment of hys eldest sonnes Esau, whych was in the house wyth hys, & put yt vpo Jacob hys yongest sonne, & she put the skynnes of gores vpo hys handes and vpon the smooth of hys necke. And she put the meate & brede whych she had prepared in the hande of hys sonne Jacob.

Whan he came to hys father, he sayde: my father / And he answered: here am I, who art thou my sonne? And Jacob sayde vnto hys father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done accordynge as thou baddest me: vp and spt and eate of my venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. And Isaac sayde vnto hys sonne: howe commeth it that thou hast founde it so quykly my sonne? he answered: The Lorde thy God brought it to my hande. Then sayde Isaac vnto Jacob, come nere and let me fele the my sonne, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not. Then went Jacob to Isaac hys father, and he felt hym and sayd: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knewe hym not, because hys handes were rough as hys brother Esaus handes: and so he blessed hym.

And he axed hym: art thou my sonne Esau? And he sayde, that I am. Then sayde he: bynge me & let me eate of my sonnes venyson, that my soule maye blesse the. And he brought hym and he eate. And he broughte hym wyne also, and he dryncke. And hys father Isaac sayde vnto hym, come nere, and kysse me my sonne. And he went vnto hym and kysled hym. And he smelled the sauoure of hys rayment, and blessed hym, and sayde, See, the smelle of my sonne is as y smell of a felde whych the Lorde hath blessed. God geue the of the dewe of heauen, and of the fatnesse of the erth, and plentye of corne and wyne. People be thy seruantes, and nacyons bowe vnto the. Be Lorde ouer thy brethren, and thy mothers chyldren rowpe vnto the. Cursed be he that curseth the, and blessed be he that blesseth the.

It happened that assoone as Isaac had made an ende of blessinge and Jacob was shace gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, then came Esau his brother from his huntynge, and had made alsomeate, and brought it vnto hys father, and sayde vnto his father: let my father arple and eate of his sonnes venyson, & thy soule maye blesse me. Then hys father Isaac sayde vnto hym: who art thou? he answered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Isaac was greatly astonied out of hys selfe, and sayde: whych is he & where is he then that hath hunted venyson and brought it me / and I haue eaten of all before thou camest, and I haue blessed hym, & he shall be blessed. When Esau herde y wordes of hys father, he cryed out greatly and bytterly, aboue mesure, and sayde vnto hys father: blesse me also my father. Who answered: thy brother came wyth subtilte, & hath take a waye thy blessing. And he sayd agayne: he maye well be called Jacob, for he hath vndermyne me now two tymes, first he toke a waye my byrthynght: and se, nowe he hath he taken a waye my blessinge also. And he sayde: hast y kept neuer a blessinge for me?

Isaac answered and sayde vnto Esau: beholde I haue made hym thy Lord, and all hys mothers chyldren haue I made hys seruantes. Moreover wyth thy wyne & wyne haue I stablyshed hym, what can I do vnto the nowe my sonne? And Esau sayde vnto hys father: hast thou but y one blessinge my father: blesse me also. Father: solysted vp Esau his voyce and wepte. Then Isaac hys father answered & sayde vnto hym: beholde, thy dwellinge place shall be the fatnesse of the erth, and of the dewe of heauen from aboue. I And wyth thy swerde shalt thou lyue, and shalt be thy brothers seruaut. And it wyll come to passe, that when thou shalt gett the masterye, thou shalt lowse hys pocke from of thy necke.

And Esau hated Jacob, because of the blessinge that hys father blessed hym wyth. all. And Esau sayde in his harte: The dayes of my fathers sorowe are at hande, and I wyll slep my brother Jacob: And these wordes of Esau hys eldest sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she sent and called Jacob hys yongest sonne, and sayde vnto hym: beholde thy brother Esau threatheth to kyll y: nowe therfore my sonne heare my voyce, make the rdy, & flecto Laban my brother at Haran: & tarpe wyth him a wyple: vntyll thy brothers fearnes be swaged, & vntyll thy brothers wrath turne awaye from the, & he forgett the thynges whych thou hast done to hi. Then wyll I sende and fet the a waye from thence.

thence. Why shulde I be desolate of you bo-
the in one daye? & Rebecca spake to Israhac, I am wery of my lyfe, for feare of the daughters of Beth. If Jacob take a wyfe of y^e daughters of Beth, loche one as these are, or of the daughters of the lande, what good shall my lyfe do me?

The xxviii. Chapter.

¶ Jacob is sent into Mesopotamia to Laban for a wyfe. Esau marrieth an Hymaite. Jacob dreameth a dreame. Chyph is promysed. Jacob maketh a vowe.

And so Israhac called Jacob and
* blessed hym, & charged hym, & sayde vnto him: se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Chanaan, but arys & gett the to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuel thy mothers father: and there take the a wyfe of the daughters of Laban thy mothers brother.
And God almyghty blesse the, & make the
to increase, and multiplye the that I mayst be a nombze of people, and geue the the bles-syng of Abraham: to the and to thy seed wth the, that thou mayst possesse the lande (wherin thou art a stranger) whyche God gaue vnto Abraham. Thus Israhac sent forth Jacob. And he went to Mesopotamia vnto Laban, sonne of Bethuel the Syrien, and brother to Rebecca Jacob and Esaus mother.

When Esau sawe that Israhac had blessed Jacob, and sent him to Mesopotamia, to set him a wyfe thence, and that as he blessed hym he gaue him a charge, sayinge: thou shalt not take a wyfe of the daughters of Chanaan: and that Jacob had obeyed hys father and mother, & was gone vnto Mesopotamia: & Esau sernge also that the daughters of Chanaan pleased not Israhac hys father: then went he vnto Ismael, and toke vnto the wyues whych he had, Mahala the daughter of Ismael Abrahams sonne, the syster of Nabath to be his wyfe. Jacob departed from Beer Seba, to come vnto Ha-ran, and came vnto a place by chaunce, and taryed there all nyghte, because the sonne was downe. And toke a stone of the place, and put it vnder hys heade, and layde hym downe in the same place a slepe. And he dreamed: and beholde, there stode a ladder vpon the erth, and the topp of it reached vp to heauen. And se, the angels of God went vp and downe vpon it, yee and God stode vpon it, and sayde.

I am the Lorde God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Israhac: The lade why-che thou slepest vpon wyl I geue the and thy seed. And thy seed shall be as the dust of the erth: and thou shalt sprede abode to the west, to the east, to the north and to the south. And thozowe the and in thy seed shall all the kynredes of the erth be blessed. And se

I am wth the, and wyl be thy keper in all places whether I goest, and wyl byng the agayne in to thys lande: nether wyl I leaue the vntyll I haue made good all that I haue promysed the.

When Jacob was awaked out of hys sle-pe, he sayde: surely the Lorde is in this place, and I was not aware. And he was affrayed & sayde: howe fearfull is this place! it is none other, but euen the house of God and the gate of heauen. And Jacob stode vp early in the mornynge, & toke the stone that he had layde vnder hys head, and pitched it vp an ende, & poured oyle on the topp of it.
And he called the name of y^e place Bethel, but the name of the cytie was called Lus before tyme. And Jacob bowed a vowe, saying: If God wyl be wth me, and wyl ke-pe me in thys iourney which I goo, and wyl geue me bread to eate, and clothes to put on,
so that I come agayne vnto my fathers house in safte: then shall the Lorde be my God, and thys stone which I haue set vpon an ende, shall be goddes house: and of all that thou shalt geue me, wyl I geue the tith vnto the.

The xxix. Chapter.

¶ Jacob cometh to Laban and scructh seven yere for Rachel. Lea was brought to hys bed in Rebekah. He marrieth them bothe: and scructh yet. viij. yere more for Rachel. Lea conceaueth.

When Jacob lyfte vp hys fete, & came into the east coun-tre. And as he looked aboute, beholde there was a well in the felde, and. iij. flockes of shepe laye therby (for at that well were the flockes watered) and there was a great stone vpon the well mouth. And thither were all the flockes brought, and they rolled the stone from the well mouth, and watered the shepe, & put the stone agayne vpon the well mouth vnto hys place. And Jacob sayd vnto them: brethren whence be ye? And they sayde: of Haran are we. And he sayd vnto them: know-e ye Laba the sonne of Nahor? They sayd:
we knowe hym. And he sayde vnto them, is he in good health? And they sayde, he is in good health, and beholde, hys daughter Rachel commeth wth the shepe. And he sayde, lo, it is yet but hys daye, nether is it tyme that the cattell shulde be gathered together, water ye the shepe and go and fede the. And they sayde, we maye not, vntyll all the flockes be brought to gether, and tyll they roll the stone from the well mouth, and so we water oure shepe.

Whyle he yet talked wth them, Rachel came wth hys fathers shepe, for she kepte them. As soone as Jacob sawe Rachel, the daughter of Laba his mothers brother, and the shepe of Laban hys mothers brother, he went

he wyl and rowled the stone from the wells mouth, and watered the flocke of Laban his mothers brother. And Jacob kyssed Rachel, and lyfte vp hys voyce and wepte: and Jacob tolde Rachel, she was hys fathers brother & Rebeccas sonne. Therefore canne she and tolde hys father.

And it happened when Laban hearde tell of Jacob his sisters sonne, he ranne to mete him, & embraced him & kyssed him, & brought him to hys house. And he tolde Laban all the matter. To whom Laban sayde: well, thou art my bone & my fleche. And he abode wth him the space of a moneth. And Laba sayde vnto Jacob: though thou be my brother, shuldest thou therfore serue me for naught? tell me, what shall thy wages be? Laba had. ij. daughters, the eldest called Lea & the yongest Rachel. Lea was fader eyed, but Rachel was bewtyfull & well fauored. And Jacob loued Rachel, and sayde: I wyl serue the
vij. yere for Rachel thy yongest daughter.
Laban answered: it is better that I geue her the, than to another man: byde wth me.

And Jacob serued. vij. yeres for Rachel and they semed vnto him but a fewe dayes, for the loue he had to her. And Jacob sayde vnto Laba: geue me my wyfe, that I maye lye wth hir. For my dayes are fulfilled:

Than Laban gathered together all the men of that place, & made a feast. And when euen was come, he toke Lea hys daughter & brought her to hym: and he went in vnto hys wyfe. And Laban gaue vnto hys daughter Lea, zilpha hys mayde, to be hys seruaunte.

And when the mornynge was come, beholde it was Lea. Tha sayde he to Laba wherfore hast thou played thus w me? byd not I serue the for Rachel: wherfore thā hast thou begyled me? Laban answered: it is not the maner of thys place, to marpe the pōgest before the eldest. Passe out thys weke, and thā shall thys also be geuen the for the scrupce whych thou shalt serue me yet. vij. yeres more. And Jacob bydeuen so, and passed out y^e weke, and thā he gaue him Rachel hys daughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rachel hys daughter, Bilha hys handmayde to be hys seruaunte. So laye he by Rachel also,
and loued Rachel more thā Lea: and scrued hym yet. vij. yeres more.

When the Lorde sawe that Lea was despised, he made her frutefull. And Rachel remayned baren. And Lea conceaued and bare a sonne, and called hys name Ruben, for she sayde: the Lorde hath looked vpon my tribulacyō. Howe therfore my husband wyl loue me. And she conceaued agayne and bare a sonne, and sayde: the Lorde hath herde that I am despised, and hath therfore geue me thys sonne also, and she called hys name

* Simeon. And she conceaued yet, & bare a sonne, and sayde: nowe thys once wyl my husband kepe me company, because I haue borne hym. iii. sonnes: and therfore was hys name called Levi. And she conceaued yet agayne, and bare a sonne, sayinge: nowe wyl I praise the Lorde: therfore she called hys name Juda, and left bearynge.

The xxx. Chapter.

¶ Rachel and Lea beynge bothe baren geue theys maydens vnto theys husbands: and they beare hym chyliden. Jacob deceaueth Laban in the conceiupage of the shepe & hydes. Jacobs rewardes for hys scrupce.

Rachel when she sawe that she bare Jacob no chyliden, she enuyed hys syster, and sayde vnto Jacob: Geue me chylde, or els I am but dred. And Jacob was wrooth w Rachel sayig: Am I in Goddes stead, which kepech fro the frute of thy wobe? Then she sayd: here is my mayde Bilha, go in vnto her, & she shall beare vpon my lappe, that I maye be increased by her. And she gaue hym Bilha hys handmayde to wyfe. And Jacob went in vnto her, and Bilha concea-ued & bare Jacob a sonne. Than sayde Rachel: God hath geuen sentece on my spde, and hath also heard my voyce, and hath geuen me a sonne. Therefore called she hym Dan.
And Bilha Rachels mayde conceaued agayne, and bare Jacob another sonne. And Rachel sayde: wth Godly wrestlynges haue I wrestled wth my syster, and haue gottē
the vpper hande: And she called hys name: Naphtali.

When Lea sawe that she had left bea-rynge, she toke zilpha hys mayde, and gaue her Jacob to wyfe. And zilpha Leas may-de bare Jacob a sonne. Than sayde Lea: Good lucke: and called hys name Gad. And zilpha Leas mayde bare Jacob another sonne. Tha sayde Lea: happy am I, for the daughters wyl call me blessed. And called hys name Aser.

And Ruben went out in the dayes of the whet haruest and founde mandragoras in the felde, and brought them vnto hys mother Lea. Than sayd Rachel to Lea: geue me of thy sonnes mandragoras. To whō Lea answered: Is it not ynough that thou hast taken awaye my husband, but woldest take awaye my sonnes mandragoras also? Tha sayde Rachel: well, let hym slepe wth the nyghte, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And Jacob came from the felde at euē, and Lea went out to mete hym, and sayde: come into me, for I haue bought the wth my sonnes mandragoras.

And he slepte wth her that nyghte. And God herde Lea, that she conceaued & bare vnto Jacob the v. sonne. Tha sayde Lea. God hath geuen me a rewarde, because I gaue
b. iiii. my

my mayde to my housbade & she called hym Isachar. And Lea conceaued yet agayne, & bare Jacob the. vi. sone. And Lea sayd: God hath enderwed me wth a good dowrye. Nowe wyl my husbade dwell wyth me, because I haue borne hym. vi. sonnes: & called his name Zabulon. After that she bare a daughter, and called hyr name *Dina.

And God remembred Rachel, hearde her,
and made her frutefull: so that she conceaued & bare a sone, & sayd: God hath taken awaye my rebuke. And she called hyr name Joseph, sayinge: The Lorde geue me yet a nother sonne. As soone as Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob sayde to Laba: Shewe me awaye that I maye go vnto my awne place and cotrey, geue me my wyues and my chyldre for whom I haue serued the, and let me go: for thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the.
To whom Laba answered: yf I haue fonde fauoure in thy syght (for I suppose that the Lorde hath blessed me for thy sake) appoyne te what thy rewarde shall be, and I wyl ge-ue it the. But he sayde vnto hym: thou kno-west what seruyce I haue done the, and in what takynge thy cattell haue bene vnder me: for it was but lytle that thou haddest before I came, and nowe it is increased into a multitude, and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake. But nowe when shall I make prouysion for myne awne house also? And he sayde: what shall I then geue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt geue me nothyng at all, yf thou wylt do thyselfe one thyng for me: and then wyl I turne agayne, and fede thy shepe and kepe them.

I wyl go aboute all thy shepe thys daye, and separate from them all the shepe that are spotted and of dyuers coloures, and all blacke shepe amonge the lammes, & the partye, and the spotted amonge the kyddes: and the same shall be my rewarde. So shall my ryghte welnesse answer for me: to mo-rowe, and shall come for my rewarde before thy face, and euery one that is not speckled and partye amonge the goates and blacke amonge the shepe, yf same shall be thete wyth me. And Laban sayde: So to, wolde God it myght be accordynge to thy sayeng. Therfore he toke out that same daie the he goates that were partye and of dyuerse coloures, and all the she gootes that were spotted and partye coloured, and all that had whyte in the, and all the blacke amonge the shepe, and put them in the keepynge of hyr sonnes, & let the dayes journey betwixte hym selfe and Jacob. And so Jacob kepte the rest of La-ban's shepe.

Jacob toke rodde of grene poplar, basell & of chestnut trees, & pyllid whyte strakes in them, & made the whyte apere in the rodde. (But they that were whole: remembred grene) and thus was it made a variable colour.) And put the rodde wyche he had pyllid, eue before the shepe, in the gutters & waterynge trouges when the shepe came to dryncke: that they shulde conceaue when they came to dryncke.

And the shepe conceaued before the rodde, & brought forth lammes straked, spotted and partye. And Jacob parted the lammes & turned the faces of the shepe toward the spotted thynges, and toward all maner of blacke, that was amonge the shepe of Laba: namely, puttynge hyr awne flockes by the selfe, & not puttynge them wyth Laba's shepe. And it fortuned yf in euery rāmyng tyme of the stronger shepe, Jacob layed the rodde before the eyes of the shepe in y gutters: namely, that he myght make them conceaue before the rodde. But whē the shepe were fe-ble, he put the not in. And so the febler were Laban's, and the stronger Jacobs. And the man increased exceedingly, and had a great flocke, mayde seruauntes and man seruauntes, camels and asses.

The xxxi. Chapter.

At the commaundement of God: Jacob departed from Laban: & toke hyr goddes wyth hym. Rachel stealeth hyr fathers ymages. Laban foloweth Jacob. The couenaunt betwene Laban and Jacob.

But he hearde the wordes of Laba's sonnes sayenge: Jacob hath taken awaye all that was oure fathers, and of oure fathers goodes hath he gotten all thys honoure. And Jacob be-helde the countenance of Laban, & beholde, it was not as yesterdaze and per yester-daze. And the Lorde sayde vnto Jacob: turne agayne in to the lande of thy fathers and to thy kynred, & I wyl be wyth the. Therfore Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to the filde vnto hyr flocke, & sayde vnto them:
I se poure fathers countenance that it is not toward me as yesterdaze & per yesterdaze.
But the God of my father hath bene wyth me. And ye knowe howe that I haue serued poure father with all my myght. But poure father hath disceaued me, and chaunged my wages. x. tymes: but God suffred hym not to hurte me. When he sayde, the spotted shall be thy wages, than all the shepe bare spotted. And when he sayde, the straked shall be thy rewarde, than bare all the shepe straked: thus hath God taken awaye poure fathers shepe, and geuen them me. But in rāmyng tyme it happened, yf I lyfted vp my-ne eyes & sawe in a dreame, & beholde the rāmes leaped vpon the shepe yf were straked, spotted & partye. And the angell of God spake vnto me in a dreame, sayng: Jacob. And I answered: here am I. And he sayde: lyfte vp nowe thine eyes & se all yf rāmes leaping vpon the shepe that are straked, spotted & partye: for I haue sene all that Laban doth vnto the, I am the God of *Bethel, where thou

thou anointedst the stone, and where thou vowedst a vowe vnto me. Now therefore aryse & get the *out of this countre, and retur-ne vnto the lande wher thou wast borne.

Then answered Rachel, and Lea, & sayde vnto hym haue we a porcion & inheritance in our fathers house? Woth not he count vs euen as strangers? for he hath solde vs, and hath euen eaten vp oure monye. But all the riches whych God hath taken from oure father, that is ours & oure chyldres. And now what soener God hath sayde vnto the, that do. Tha Jacob rose vp, & set hyr sonnes and wyues vp vpon camels, & caried awaye all hyr flockes & all hyr substance which he had procured, hyr riches and possessions which he had gotten in Mesopotamia, for to go to Isahac hyr father vnto the land of Canaan. But Laban was gone to *where hyr shepe, & Rachel had stolen hyr fathers ymages. And Jacob stole awaye the herte of Laban the Syrian, in that he tolde hym not that he fled. So fled he & all that he had, and made hym selfe redy, & passed ouer the ryuer, & set hyr face streyght toward the mount Gilcad.

Thyde the thyrde day after, was it told La-ba that Jacob fled. Tha he toke his brethren with hym and folowed after him. vii. dayes journey, & ouer toke hym at the mouite Gilead. And God came to Laban the Syrian in a dreame by night, & sayd vnto hym: take hede, that thou speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And Laba ouertoke Jacob: and Jacob had pitched hyr tente in the mouite.
And Laban with hyr brethren pitched their tente also vpon the mouite Gilcad: And La-ba sayde, to Jacob: Why hast thou thys done to steale awaye my herte, and carpe awaye my daughters as though they had bene taken captiue wyth yf swerde? Wherefore wilst thou awaye secretly vnknewen to me, & didest not tell me, that I myght haue brought the on the waye wyth myrth, syngynge, tymrelz harpe, and hast not suffered me to kisse my chyldren and my daughters? Thou wast *a sole now to do it, for I am able to do you euyll. But the God of poure father spake vnto me yesterdaze, sayng take hede that yf speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And now thou wastest thy waye, because thou longest after thy fathers house, yet wherfore hast thou stolen my goddes?

Jacob answered and sayde to Laban because I was afrayed, & thought that thou wouldest haue taken awaye thy daughters fro me. But *where as thou laiest thete to my charge whyth whome soeuer thou fyndest thy god-des, let hym dye, here before oure brethren.
Seke that thynge is by me, & take it to the.
But Jacob wyl not that Rachel had stolen
the. Then went Laban into Jacobs tente, and into Leas tette, & into the. ii. maydes ten-tes: but founde them not: Then went he out of leas tette, and entred into Rabels tette.

And Rachel had taken the ymages & put the
in the camels strawe, & late downe vpon the.
And Laban serched all the tente: but founde them not. Then sayde the to hyr father: my lord, be not angry yf I ca not ryse vp before the for yf custome of womē is come vpon me, so serched he but founde not those ydols.

And Jacob was wrooth, and chode with Labā. Jacob also answered & sayde to hym:
what haue I trespassed or what haue I offended, yf thou folowedest so after me? Thou hast serched all my stuffe, & what hast thou founde of all thy household stuffe: put it here before thy brethren & myne yf they maye iudge betwixte vs both. Beholde: Thys. xx.
perre haue I bene wyth the, thy shepe & thy goates haue not bene barin, & the rāmes of thy flocke haue I not eaten. Whatsoeuer was tozne of bestes I brought it not vnto
the, but made it good my selfe: of my hande dydest thou requyre it, euen as it that was stollen by daye or nyght. Wy daye the l-cte cōsumed me, and the frost by nyght, and my sleepe departed from myne eyes.

Thus haue I bene. xx. perre in thy house, & serued the. *xiii. perres for thy. ii. dought-ters, & vi. perres for thy shepe, and thou hast chaunged my rewarde. x. tymes. And excepte the God of my father, yf God of Abraham, & the feare of Isahac had bene wyth me: surely thou haddest sent me awaye now allemye. But God behelde my tribulacion, and the labour of my handes, and rebuked the yesterdaze.

Laban answered and sayde vnto Jacob:
these daughters are my daughters, and these chyldren are my chyldren, and these shepe are my shepe, and all that thou seyst, is my-ne. And what can I do thys daye vnto these my daughters, or vnto thes chyldre whych they haue borne? Now therefore come on & let vs make a bonde, I & thou, whych maye be a witnesse betwene the and me. Tha toke Jacob a stone and set it vp an ende, & Jacob sayde vnto hyr brethren: gather stones.
And they toke stones, and made an heape, & they did cate there vpon the heape. And Laban called it *Jegar Sabadurha, but Jacob called it Gilcad. * (either of them accordynge to the propriety of hyr awne langage.)

Then sayde Laban: thys heape is *wyt-nesse betwene the & me thys daye: therefore is it called Gilcad. (that is: a heape of witnesse) & *Bithan: for he sayd: The Lorde loke be-twene me & the when we are departed one fro another: yf yf shall be my daughters or shall take other wyues beside my daughters. here is no man with vs: beholde, God be witnesse betwixte the and me. And Labā sayde moreouer to Jacob: beholde, this heape and this marke whych I haue set there, betwixt me and the: this heape be wytnesse and also this marke that I will not come ouer this heape to the, and thou shalt not come ouer this heape and this marke vnto me: to do any harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Nabor, & the God of thy fathers be iudge betwixt vs.

And Jacob sware by the feare of hys father Israhel. Then Jacob dyd sacrifice vpon y mounte, & called his brether to eate bread. And they dyd eate bread & taried all nyght in the byll. And early in the mornynge Laban rose vp and kyssed hys chyldren and hys daughters, and blessed them: and Laban departedynge, went vnto hys place agayne.

The xxiiij. Chapter.

The vision of y Angels. Jacob sendeth presentes vnto his brother Esau. How he wrestled with y Angel whych chaunged his name and called hym Israhel.

But Jacob went forth on his iourney. And the Angels of God came, & met hym. And whē Jacob sawe the, he said this is Goddes host: & called the name of y place  Mahanaim.  (That is in an ar)

And Jacob sente messengers before him to Esau his brother, vnto y land  of Seir & the felde of Edom. And he commaunded them sayynge. Thus shall ye speake to my Lord Esau: thy seruante Jacob sayth thus: I haue sojourned & bene a stranger wyth Laban vnto this tyme and haue oxen, asses & shepe men seruantes and women seruantes, and haue sent to shewe it my Lord, that I may fynde grace in thy syghte. And the messengers came agayne to Jacob sayynge: we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he cometh agaynst the & hath. iii. hundred me wyth hym. But Jacob was greatly affrayed, and wylt not whych waye to turne hym selfe, and deuyded the people that was wyth hym & the shepe, & oxen & camels, into ii. companies: & sayd: If Esau come to the one parte & synete it, the other shall saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde agayne: O God of my father Abraham, & God of my father Israhel: Lord whych saydest vnto me  retorne vnto thy countre and to thy kynred, & I will do all well wyth the. I am not worthy of the leaste of all the mercyes and truthe whych thou hast shewed vnto thy seruante. For wyth my staf came I ouer this Jordan, & now haue I gotten ii. droues. Welyuer me from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare hym: lest he wyl come and synete the mother wyth the chyldren. Thou saydest: I will surely do the good, & make thy seed as the sande of the see, whych can not be nombred for multitude.

And he taried there that same nyght, & toke of that whych came to hande, a present, for Esau hys brother. ii. hundred the goates & xx. he goates. ii. hundred shepe and xx. rammes: thys tyme mych camels wyth theyr coltes. xl. kyne, & x. bulles. xx. she asses & ten foles: and deliuered them into the hande of hys seruantes, euery droue by them selues, and sayde vnto hys seruantes: go forth before me, and put a space betwixt, droue, & droue. And he commaunded y formost sayynge.

If Esau my brother mete the and aske the sayynge: whose art thou, and whyther goest thou: & whose are these that go before thee: thou shalt saye, they be thy seruante Jacobs, and it is a present sent vnto my Lord Esau, and beholde, he hym selfe cometh after vs: And so commaunded he the seconde, and the thyrde, and all that folowed the droues sayynge of thys maner: le that ye speake vnto Esau when ye mete hym, and saye moreouer: thy seruante Jacob also cometh after vs, for he sayde: I wyl please his wrath with y present that goeth before me, and afterward I wyl see hym my selfe, yf peradventure he wyl receaue me to grace: So went the present before hym and he taried all that nyght in the company, and rose vp the same nyght, and toke hys two wyues and hys two maydens, and hys eleuen sonnes, and went ouer the foorde Iabok. And he toke the and sent them ouer theryner, and sent ouer that he had, and taried behinde hym selfe alone.

And there  wrestled a man wyth hym vnto the breakynge of the daye. And when he sawe that he coude not preuaile agaynst hym, he smote hym vnder the thye, and the fenowe of Jacobs thye strake, as he wrestled wyth hym. And he sayde: let me goo, for the daye breaketh. Which answered: I wyl not let the goo, excepte thou blesse me. And he sayde vnto hym: what is thy name? he answered: Jacob. he sayde: thou shalt be called Jacob nomore, but  Israhel. For  as a prince hast thou wrestled wyth God: and wyth man, and hast preuailed.

And Jacob asked hym sayynge: tell me thy name. And he sayde, wherfore dost thou so aske after my  name: and he blessed hym there. And Jacob called the name of y place  Peniel, for I haue sene God face to face, & my lyfe is preserued. And as he went ouer Peniel, the sonne rose vpon hym, and he halted vpon hys thye. And therfore is it that the chyldren of Israhel eate not of the fenow that stranke in that place of the thye, vnto this daye: because that he touched the place of Jacobs thye in the fenow that stranke.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

Esau and Jacob are agreed: and Jacob came vnto Sichem.

Jacob

And Jacob lystynge vpon his eyes, looked, and beholde, Esau came, haupynge wyth him. iii. hundred men. And he deuyded the chyldren vnto Lea and vnto Rachel and vnto the ii. maydens. And he put the maydens and their chyldren formost, and Lea and hys chyldren after, and Rachel and Joseph hyndermost. And he went before them and  fell on the grounde. vij. tymes vntill he came vnto his brother.

Esau  came to mete hym and embraced hym and fell on hys necke and kyssed hym, and they wepte. And he lyfte vpon hys eyes & sawe the women, and y chyldren, and sayde: whence hast thou these?  (And so they belode vnto the.) And he answered: they are the chyldren whych God hath geuen thy seruante. Then came the maydens forth, & their chyldren, and dyd theyr obeysaunce. Lea also with hys chyldren came & dyd theyr obeysaunce. And last of all came Joseph & Rachel, & dyd theyr obeysaunce.

And he sayde: what is all y droue whych I mett? he answered: that I maye fynde grace in the syghte of my Lord. And Esau sayde: I haue ynough my brother, kepe that thou hast vnto thy selfe. To whom Jacob answered, oh nay, but yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, receaue my present of my hande: for I haue sene thy face  as though I had sene the face of God:  And thou hast had a good wyl toward me. Obtake my blessinge that is brought the, for God hath had mercy on me.  (Seuynge me all thynges.) And I haue ynough. And so he compelled hym, and he toke it. And he sayde: let vs take oure iourney and goo, I wyl goo before the. Jacob answered him: my Lord, Thou knowest, that the chyldren are tendre, & the ewes & kyne wyth yonge vnder myne hande, which yf men shalde ouerdryue but euen one daye all the shepe wyl dye. Wh let my Lord goo before hys seruante, and I wyl dryue saye and softly, accordynge as the catell that goeth before me and the chyldren be able to endure: vntill I come to my Lord vnto Seir.

And Esau sayde: let me yet leane some of my folke with the. And he answered, what needeth it?  (Thys one thringe oner haue I neede of.) let me fynde grace in the syghte of my Lord. So Esau went hys waye agayne that same daye vnto Seir. And Jacob toke hys iourney toward Suceoth, ad buyt hym an house, ad made bootheres for his catell. And therfore is it, that the name of the place is called  Suceoth.

And Jacob came to Sale a cite of Sichem whych is in the lande of Canaan, after that he was come from Mesopotamia, and pytched before the cite, and bought a par-cell of grounde (were he pytched hys tent) of the chyldren of hemor Sichems father: for an hundred peces of money. And he made there an autler, & called vpon y myghtie God of Israhel.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

The rauelshynge of Dina Jacobs daughter by the me of Sichem. And of the great bloude shedynge done by the sonnes of Jacob.

Dina y daughter of Lea  which she bare vnto Jacob, went out to se the daughters of the lade, whom whan Sichem the sonne of hemor the heuete Lorde of the countrey sawe, he toke her, and laye with her, and forced  her: and hys harte laye vnto Dina the daughter of Jacob. And he loued that damsell and spake kynndly vnto her, and Sichem spake vnto hys father hemor sayynge, gett me thys mayden vnto my wyfe. And Jacob hearde that he had defyled Dina hys daughter, hys sonnes beynge with theyr catell in the felde, and he helde hys peace, vntill they were come. And hemor the father of Sichem went vnto Jacob, to comen with hym. And whan the sonnes of Jacob commynge out of the felde herde it, it grieved the, & they were not a lytle wrooth, because he had wrought folye in Israhel, in that he had lyeu wyth Jacobs daughter, which thinge ought not to be done. And hemor commened with them sayynge: the soule of my sone Sichem longeth for youre daughter: geue her hym to wyfe, and make marriages with vs: and geue youre daughters vnto vs, and take oure daughters vnto you, & ye shall dwell wyth vs, and the lande shall be before you, dwell and do youre busyness, and haue youre possessyons there in. And Sichem sayde vnto hys father and hys brethren, let me fynde grace in youre eyes, and what soeuer ye apoynte me, that wyl I geue.  (He frely of me both the dowry and gyltes), and I wyl geue accordynge as ye saye vnto me, so that ye geue me the damsell to wyfe.

But the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem & hemor hys father talkynge amonge them selues deceptefully, because he had defyled Dina theyr syster. And they sayde vnto them, we can not do thys thyng that we shulde geue oure syster to one that is vncircumcised, for that were a shame vnto vs. But in thys wyl we consent vnto you: If ye wyl be as we be and all the men chyldren amonge you be circumcised, then wyl we geue oure daughters to you and take youre daughters to vs, and wyl dwell wyth you and be one people. But and yf ye wyl not barken vnto vs to be circumcised, than wyl we take oure daughter & goo oure wayes. Their wordes pleased hemor: and Sichem his sonne.

hys sonne. And the ponge man deserde not for to do the thyng, because he had a lust to Jacobs daughter: he was also most sett by of all that were in hys fathers house. Then Hemor & Sychem hys sonne went vnto the gate of their ctye, and comened with the me of their ctye, sayinge: these men are unfayned towarde vs, and dwell in the lande and do their occupacyon therein. And in the lande is rowme ynough for them, we wyll take their daughters to wyues, and geue theioure daughters: only here in wyll they consent vnto vs for to dwell wyth vs & to be one people: yf all the men chyldren that are amonge vs be circuncysed as they are. Shall not their goodes and their substance and all theyr cattell be oures, only yf we consente vnto them? For they wyll dwell wyth vs.

And vnto Hemor and Sychem his sonne harkened all that went out at the gate of hys ctye. And all the men chyldren were circuncysed whatsoeuer went out at the gates of his ctye. And it happened the thyrde daye (when it was paynefull to them) .ij. of the sonnes of Jacob Symeon and Leui dynas brythre, toke ether of them his swerde and wet in to the ctye boldly, and slewe all that was male, and slewe also Hemor and Sychem hys sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke Dina out of Sychems house, and went their waye.

And the sonnes of Jacob chynge vpon the deed, spoyled the ctye, because they had despyled their syster: & toke their shepe, oxen, and their asses and whatsoeuer was in the ctye and also in yf felde. And all their goodes & all their chyldren, and theyr wyues toke theyr captiue and made hauouck of all that was in the house.

But Jacob sayde to Symeon and Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me stycke before the inhabitours of the lade, before the Canaanite and the Pherezite. And I beyng fewe in nombre, they shall gather them selues together agaynst me & slepe me, and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered: shulde they deale with oure syster as with an whoore.

The xxxv. Chapter.

Jacob goeth vnto Bethel, and buryeth hys pynages vnder an oke. Deboza dyeth. Jacob is called Israel. The laude of Canaan is promysed him. Rachel dyeth in labour: Ruben laye wyth hys fathers concubynne. The death of Isaac.

AND God sayde vnto Jacob, arse and get yf vnto Bethel, and dwell there. And make there an aulter vnto God that appeared vnto the, when thou fleddest from the face of Esau thy brother. Then sayde Jacob vnto hys household and to all that were wyth hym: put awaye the straunge goddes that are amonge you and be cleane, and chaunge poure garmentes, for we wyll arse and goo vnto Bethel and I wyll make an aulter there, vnto God, which berde me in the daye of my tribulacyon, and was wyth me in the waye which I went.

And they gaue vnto Jacob all the straggel goddes which they had in their haddes, and all their earinges which were in their eares, & Jacob byd the vnder an oke wyth was by Sychem. And whan they departed, the feare of God fell vpon the ctyes that were rounde aboute them. And they dyd not folowe after the sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob to Lus which is in the lande of Canaan. The same is Bethel, he & all the people that was wyth him. And he buylded there an aulter, and called y place: The God of Bethel, because that God appered vnto hym there, when he fled from the face of his brother.

But * Deboza Rebeccas norse, dyed, & was buryed vnto Bethel vnder an oke. And the name of it was called: the oke of lamentacyon. And God appeared vnto Jacob agayne after he came out of Mesopotamia and blessed hym, and God sayde vnto him: thy name is Jacob. Not wythstondinge thou shalt be no more called * Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name. And he called hys name Israel.

And God sayde vnto him: I am God almighty, growe and multiplie, people and a multitude of people shall sprynge of the, yee and kynges shall come out of thy loynes. And the lande wyth I gaue Abraham and Isaac, will I geue vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the will I geue that lade also. And so God departed vnto hym in the place where he had talked wyth hym. And Jacob set vnto a marke in the place where he talked wyth hym: euen a marke of stone and powred oyle vnto the, & powred also oyle thereon, and Jacob called the name of y place where God spake wyth hym * Bethel.

And they departed from Bethel, and wher he was but a felde bryth fro Ephrath, Rachel began to traual, and in traueylng she was in purrell. And it happened as she was in paynes of hys labour, the mydwyfe sayde vnto her, feare not, for thys sonne is thyne also. Then as hys soule was a departinge, she * must dye, she called his name: Ben Dni. (the sonne of my sorowe.) But hys father called hym Ben Jamin. (The sonne of the right hande.) And thus dyed Rachel and was buryed in the waye to Ephrath, which is Bethlehem. And Jacob sett vnto a stone vnto hir graue, which is called Rachels graue stone vnto thys daye. And Israel went thence, & pyched vnto hys tent beyonde the soure of Eder. And it chaunced as Israel dwelt in the lande, that Ruben went and laye wyth laye * wyth Bilha hys fathers concubynne, and it came to Israels care. The sonnes of Jacob were .xij. in nombre. The sonnes of Lea. Ruben Jacobs eldest sonne, and Simeon, Leui, Juda, Issachar, and Zabulon. The sonnes of Rachel: Joseph and Ben Jamin. The sonnes of Bilha Rachels mayde: Dan and Neptali. The sonnes of Zilpha Leas mayde, Gad and Isser. These are the sonnes of Jacob wyth were bozne hym in Mesopotamia.

And so Jacob came vnto Issachars father to Hamre vnto kyriath Arba which is Hebron: where Abraham & Isaac solourned as straungers. And the dayes of Isaac were an hundred and .lxxx. yeres: & Isaac fell speke and dyed, and was put vnto hys people, beyng olde and full of dayes. And hys sonnes Esau and Jacob buryed him.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

The wyue of Esau. Jacob and Esau are richte. The genealogie of Esau. Esau dwelleth in the hill Seir.

THese are the generacions of Esau. The same is Edom. Esau toke his wyues of the daughters of Canaan. Ada the daughter of Elon an Heithite, & Ahalibama y daughter of Ana, the daughter of zibeon an Heuyte, and Basmath Jinaels daughter & sister of Rebaioth. And Ada bare vnto Esau, Eliphaz: and Basmath bare Reguel: And Ahalibama bare Jeus and Jaellan and Kozah. These are the sonnes of Esau wyth were bozne him in the lande of Canaan.

And Esau toke his wyues and hys sonnes and daughters and all the sonnes of hys house: hys goodes and all hys cattell and all hys substance wyth he had gott in the lande of Canaan, and went into a countre awaye from the face of hys brother Jacob: for their ryches was moche, and they coude not dwell together, and the lande where in they were straungers, coude not receaue the: because of their possession. Thus dwelt Esau in mounte Seir. The same Esau is Edom. These are the generacions of Esau father of the Edomites in mounte Seir, and these are the names of Esaus sonnes: * Eliphaz the sonne of Ada y wyfe of Esau, and Reguel the sonne of Basmath the wyfe of Esau. And the sonnes of Eliphaz were: Theman, Omar, Zepho, Gaethon and Kenas. And Thimna was concubynne to Eliphaz Esaus sonne, and bare vnto Eliphaz Amalech. And these be the sonnes of Ada Esaus wyfe. And these are the sonnes of Reguel: Rahath, Serah, Samma and Misa, these were the sonnes of Basmath Esaus wyfe. And these were the sonnes of Ahalibama the daughter of Ana daughter of zebion Esaus wyfe, and she bare vnto Esau: Jeus, Jaellan and Kozah.

These were dukes of the sonnes of Esau. The chyldren of * Eliphaz the fyrst sonne of Esau, were these: duke theman, duke Omar, duke zepho, duke kenas, and duke Kozah, duke Gaethon and duke Amalech. These are the dukes that came of Eliphaz in the lande of Edom, and these were the sonnes of Ada. These also are the chyldren of Reguel Esaus sonne: duke Rahath, duke Serah, duke Samma, duke Misa. These are the dukes that came of Reguel in the lande of Edom, & these are the sonnes of Basmath Esaus wyfe. These were the chyldren of Ahalibama Esaus wyfe: duke Jeus, duke Jaellan, duke Kozah, these dukes came of Ahalibama y daughter of Ana Esaus wyfe. These are the chyldren of Esau, and these are the dukes of the: which Esau is Edom. These are the chyldren of Seir the Horite, the inhabitours of the lande: Lotchan, Sobal, zibeon, and Ana, and Dison, Eser and Dusan. These also are the dukes of the Horites the chyldren of Seir in the lande of Edom. And the chyldren of Lotchan were: Hori and Heman. And Lotchans syster was called Thymna.

The chyldren of Sobal were these: Arian, Manahath and Ebal, Zepho & Dni. These are the chyldren of zibeon. Arian and Ana, thys was that Ana that founde milkes in the wyldernes, as he fed hys father zibeons asses. The chyldren of Ana were these: Dison and Ahalibama the daughter of Ana. These are the chyldren of Dison, Heman and Eshan, Jethran and Cheran. The chyldren of Eser are these: Bilhan, Serauan and Ilan. The chyldren of Dusan also are these: Ez and Aran. These are the dukes that came of Hori: duke Lotchan, duke Sobal, duke zibeon, duke Ana, duke Dison, duke Eser, duke Dusan. These be the dukes y came of Hori after their dukedomes in the lande of Seir. These are the kynges that reygned in the lande of Edom before there reygned any kyng vpon the chyldren of Israel. Bela the sonne of Beor reygned in Edomea, & the name of hys ctye was Dinhaba. And when Bela dyed, Jobab the sonne of Serah out of Bozra, reygned in hys steade. When Jobab also was dead, Husam of the lade of Theman reygned in his steade. And after the deth of Husam, Hadad the sonne of Bedad which slewe the Hadianites in the felde of the Moabites, reygned in hys steade, and the name of hys ctye was Auith. When Hadad was dead, Samia of Massaka reygned in his steade. Wher Samia was dead, Saul of the ryuer Reboboth reygned in hys steade. When Saul was dead, Baal Hanan y sonne of Achboz reygned in his

in his steade. And after the deth of Baal Hanaan the sonne of Achboz, Hadad reigned in his steade, and þ name of his cytye was Ba-hu. And hys wyfes name Rebecabel the daughter of Hattob, þ daughter of Heseaib.

These are the names of the dukes that came of Esau, in þ. xij. hundredes, places and names: duke Thymna, duke Alua, duke Jetheth, duke Abalibama, duke Ela, duke Dinon, duke Kenas, duke Theman, duke Mebaz, duke Magdiel, duke Iram. These be the dukes of Edomea accordyng to theyr habitacions, in the lande of theyr possessions. Thys Esau is the father of the Edomites.

The xxxvij. Chapter.

Joseph accuseth hys brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of hys brethren and is sold to the Amarietes. Jacob bewepeth Joseph.

In Jacob dwelt in the lande where in his father was a stranger, even in the lade of Chanaan. These are the generacions of Jacob. When Joseph was. xviij. yere olde, he kepte shepe wyth hys brethren, and the lad was with the sonnes of Bilha and with the sonnes of Zilpha his fathers wyues. And he brought unto their father an euill sayinge of them. But Israel loued Joseph more than all hys chyldren, because he begat him in hys olde age, and he made hym a coote of many coloures.

And when hys brethren sawe that theyr father loued him more than all his brethren, they hated hym & coude not speke peaceably vnto hym. Moreouer whan Joseph had dreamed a dreame, he tolde it his brethren whych hated hym yet the more. And he sayde vnto them: heare I praye yowme thys dreame which I haue dreamed: Beholde we were byndinge sheues in the felde: & lo, my sheffe arose, and stode by ryght, and poures stode rounde aboute and made obeysaunce to my sheffe. To whom hys brethren sayde: Hailt thou be oure kyng in dede? or shalt þ in dede haue dominion ouer vs? And they hated hym yet the more, because of hys dreames, and of his wordes.

And he dreamed yet another dreame and tolde it his brethren sayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: me thought the sonne

and the moone & xj. starres made obeysaunce to me. And when he had tolde it vnto his father and hys brethren, hys father rebuked him & sayde vnto him: what is thys dreame which thou hast dreamed: Shall I & thy mother and thy brethren come to fall on the ground before the? And hys brethren hated him, but hys father noted the sayinge.

Hys brethren also went to kepe their fathes shepe in Sichem, and Israel sayde vnto Joseph: do not thy brethren kepe in Sichem? come, and I wyll sende the to the. He answered & here am I. And he sayde vnto him: goo and see whether it be well with thy brethren and the shepe, and byngge me worde agayne. And so he sent him out of the vale of Hebron and he went to Sichem. And a certayne man founde hym, and beholde he was wanderyng out of hys waye in the felde, and the ma asked him: what sekest thou? He answered: I seke my brethren, tell me I praye the where they kepe shepe. And the ma sayde, they are departed hence, for I herde them saye: let vs goo vnto Dothan. Thus went Joseph after his brethren, and founde them in Dothan.

And when they sawe him a farre of before he came at them, they toke counsell agaynst him, for to slei hym. For one sayde to another: Beholde this & dreamer cometh: come nowe therfore and let vs slei hym and cast hym in to some pyt, and we wyll saie a wycked beast hath deuoured hym, and we shall se what wyll come of hys dreames.

Whē Ruben hearde that, he & yd him out of their handes and sayde, we wyll not kyll hym. And Ruben sayde more ouer vnto them, thede not his & blonde, but cast him in to thys pyt þ is in the wyldernes, and laye no hande vpon him: & (thys he sayde.) Namely, that he myght clym out of their handes & deliuer him to hys father agayne.

And it happened that whan Joseph was come vnto hys brethren, they strypte him out of his coot, hys party coloured coote þ was vpon hym, and they toke hym and cast hym into an emptye pyt: wherein was no water. And they satt the downe to eate brede. And as they lyft vp their eyes and looked aboute, there came a compaignie of Amarietes from Gilead, and their camels lade with spicer, baulme, and myrr, and were goyng downe to carie it into Egypte.

And Juda sayde vnto his brethren: what auayleth it yf we slei oure brother, and kepe hys blonde secret? come on and let vs sell hym to the Amarietes, and let not oure hande be vpon hym: for he is oure brother and oure fleche. And hys brethren were content. Then as the Amarietes marchaunt men passed by, they drewe and lyft Joseph out of the pyt and solde him vnto the Amarietes for tes for. xx. peces of syluer. And they brought him into Egypte.

And when Ruben came agayne vnto þ pyt & fonde not Joseph there, he & rent his cloothes and went agayne vnto his brethren sayinge: the lad is not yonder, and wherher shall I goo? And they toke Josephs coote and kyled a goote, & dypped the coote in the bloude. And they sent that party coloured coote, and brought it vnto their father and sayde: Thys haue we founde: se whether it be thy sonnes coote or no. And he knewe it sayinge, it is my sonnes coote, a wycked beast hath & deuoured hym, Joseph is rent in peces. And Jacob rent hys cloothes, and put sacke clothe aboute his loynes, and sorowed for his sonne a longe season. But all his sonnes and all hys daughters rose vp to comforte him. Nevertheless he wolde not be comforted, but sayde: I wyll go downe into the graue vnto my sonne, mourninge. And thus hys father wepte for hym. And the Amarietes & solde hym in Egypte vnto Putiphar a Lord of Pharaos, and his chefe steward.

The xxxviij. Chapter.

The marriage of Iuda. The trespass of Er and Onan, and the benygnaunce of God that came ther vpon. Iuda leue with his daughter Thamar. The birth of Pharez and Zarah.

In fortunat at that tyme, that Judas went downe from his brethren, and gatt hym to a man called Hira of Odollam, and there he sawe the daughter of a man called & Sina a Canaanite. And he toke her and wet in to her. And she conceaued & bare a sonne and called hys name Er. And she conceaued agayne, and bare a sonne and called him Onan. And she conceaued agayne, & bare yet a sonne, whom she called Sela: & and he was at Chelyb when she bare him.

And Judas gaue Er hys eldest sonne a wyfe, whose name was Thamar. And Er Judas eldest sonne was & wycked in the syghte of the Lorde, & the Lorde slewe hym. And Judas sayde vnto Onan: goo into thy brothers wyfe and marie her, þ thou mayest styre vp seed vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceaued that the seed shulde not be his, therfore when he went into his brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the grounde, and gaue not seed vnto hys brother. And the chyng whych he dyd, displeased the Lorde, wherfore he slewe him also. Then sayde Judas to Thamar hys daughter in lawe: remaine a wydowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sonne be growne: for he sayde: Lest peradventure he dye also, as hys brethren dyd. And Thamar wente and dwelt in her fathers house.

And in processe of tyme, the daughter of Sina Judas wyfe dyed. Then Judas when he had left mourninge, went vnto his shepe & herders to Thymnath he and his frede Hira of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar sayinge: beholde, thy father in lawe goeth vp to Thymnath, to & there hys shepe. And she put hys wydows garmentes of from her & couered her wyth a clooke, and dysgysed her selfe: And satt her downe in a comon place which is by þ hye wayes syde to Thymnath, for because she sawe þ Sela was growne, and she was not geuen vnto him to wyfe.

When Juda sawe her, he thought it had bene an whoore, because she had couered hys face. And he turned to her vnto the waye, & sayde, come I praye the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was hys daughter in lawe. And she answered: what wilt thou gyue me, for to lye with me? Then sayde he, I wyll sende the a kydd from the flocke. She sayde, Than geue me a pledge tyll thou sende it. He sayde, what pledge shall I geue the? She answered: thy sygnett, thy bracelet, and thy staffe that is in thy hande. And he gaue it her and lay by her, and she was with chyld by hym. And she gatt here by and went and put her mantell from her, and put on hys wydows rayment. And Judas sent the kydd by hys frende of Odollam, for to receaue hys pledge agayne from the wyfes hande. But he founde her not, Than asked he the men of the same place sayinge, where is the whoore that satt openly by the waye syde? They answered, There was no whoore here. He came therfore to Juda agayne & sayde vnto him: I can not finde her, and also the men of the place sayde, that there was no whoore there. And Juda sayde, let her take it to her, lest we be chaimed. Beholde I sente the kydd and thou hast not founde her.

And it came to passe that after. iij. monethes, one tolde Juda sayinge: Thamar thy daughter in lawe hath played the whoore, and wyth playinge the whoore is become great with chyld. And Juda sayde, byngge der forth, that she maye be brente. And when they brought her forth, she sent to her father in lawe sayinge: by the man vnto whome thesethynges pertaine, am I with chyld. And sayde also, loke whose are thys scale, bracelet, and thys staffe. And Juda knewe the and sayde, she hath bene more ryght woth than I, because I gaue her not to Sela my sonne. And he laye with her nomore.

It fortunat when tyme was come that she shulde be deliuered, beholde there was ij. twynnes in hys wombe. And it fortunat, that whan she traueled, the one put out hys hande and the mydwife toke and hownde a reed threde aboute it sayinge, thys is come out fyrst. And it chaunced, that he plucked hys hande backe agayne, and beholde hys hys brother came out. And she sayde, wherefore hast thou rent a rent upon thyself called his name, Pharez. Afterwarde came out his brother that had y^e redd chere about hys hande, and his name was called Zarah.

The xxxix. Chapter.

God prospereth Joseph. Pharaos wyfe expecteth him. He is accused & cast in pylon. God hath mercy vpon hym.

Ioseph was brought vnto Egypte, and Putiphar * a Lorde of Pharaos (a his chiefe steward an Egyptian) bought him of the Chanaanites which had brought him thither. And God was with Joseph, & he became a lucke man, continuing in the house of his master the Egyptian. And his master sawe that God was with him, & that God made all that he dyd to prosper in his hande. And Joseph founde grace in hys masters syghte, and serued him. And made hym ruler of hys house, and put all that he had in his hande. And it fortuned from the tyme that he had made him ruler ouer hys house and ouer all that he had, the Lorde * blessed the Egyptians house for Josephs sake, and the blessinge of the Lorde was vpon all that he had in the house, and in the felde. And therefore he left all that he had in Josephs hande, and looked vpon nothyng that was wth hym, save only on the bread whych he dyd eate. And Joseph was a * goodly persone & a well fauored. And it fortuned after this, that his masters wyfe cast hys eyes vpo Joseph and sayde: come lye with me. But he refused, and sayde to hys masters wyfe: Beholde, my master woteth not what he hath in the house with me, and hath commytted all that he hath to my hande. * There is no man greater in the house than I, neyther hath he kepte any thynge from me, but only the, because thou art hys wyfe. Howe than can I do this great wickednes, and synne agaynst God? And after this maner spake he to Joseph daye by daye: but he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her company.

And it fortuned on a certayne conuenient daye, that Joseph entred into the house, to do hys busynes: and there was none of the household by, in the house. And she caught him by the garment sayinge: come slepe with me. And he left hys garment in hys hande and fled, and gotte hym out. And it chaunced. When she sawe that he had left his garment in hys hande, and was fled out. * (And she not regarded.) She called vnto the men of his house, and tolde them, sayinge: Se, he hath brought in an Hebrew vnto vs to do vs shame. for he came in to me, for to haue slept wth me. And I begane to crye wth a lowde voyce. And when he hearde y^e crye he left hys garment to me, and fled awaye, and got him out.

And she layed vpon hys garment by her, vntill hys Lorde came home. And she tolde him with these wordes sayinge: Chys Hebrewes seruaunte whych thou hast brought vnto vs, came into me to do me shame. But as soone as I lyft vpon my voyce and cryed, he left hys garment wth me and fled out. When his master. * (Sprunge to light of conscience.)

hearde the wordes of hys wyfe whych she tolde hym sayinge: after this maner dyd thy seruaunte to me, he waxed wrooth.

And the master toke Joseph & put hym in * pylon euen in to the place where the kyngeges pyloners laye bounde. And there continued he in pylon, but the Lorde was wth Joseph, and she wed hym merce, and gotte hym fauoure in the syghte of the Lorde of pylon. And the keeper of the pylon commytted to Josephs hande all the pyloners that were in the pylon house. And whatsoever was done there, that dyd he. And the keeper of the pylon looked vnto nothyng that was vnder his hande, saynge that the Lorde was wth him. If of what sorcer he dyd, the Lorde made it to prosper.

The xl. Chapter.

Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two pyloners.

And it chaunced after this, that the buttelar of the kynge of Egypte and hys baker had offended their Lorde the kynge of Egypte. And Pharaos was angrie agaynst his two officers: agaynst y^e chiefe buttelar & the chiefe baker: and put them in warde in hys chiefe Stewards house: euen in the pylon and place where Joseph was bounde. And the chiefe Stewarde gaue Joseph a charge with them, & he serued the. And they continued a season in warde.

And they dreamed ether of them in one nyght: both the buttelar and the baker of the kynge of Egypte which were bounde in the pylon house, ether of them his dreame, and eache mannes dreame of a sondre interpretation. When Joseph came in vnto them in the moynynge, and looked vpon them: beholde, they were sabb. And he asked Pharaos officers that were wth hym in hys masters warde sayinge: Wherefore loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered hym: we haue dreamed a dreame, and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayde vnto them: do not interpretynge belonge to God: yet tell me. And the chiefe buttelar tolde his dreame to Joseph, and sayde vnto him: In my dreame me thought there stode a vyne before me, and in the vyne were. iij. bryanches, and it was as thought it budded, and her blossoms wth forth: and the grapes there of waxed rype. And

And I had Pharaos cuppe in my hande, and tolde of the grapes and wthonge them in to Pharaos cuppe: and he puered Pharaos cuppe in to my hande. And Joseph sayde vnto hym: this is the interpretation of it. The thre bryanches at thre dayes: wthin thre dayes shall Pharaos lyft vpon one heade, and restoze the vnto thynne offyce agayne, and thou shalt deliuer Pharaos cuppe in to hys hande, after the old maner wherein thou wast wont to geue hym drynke. But yf thou thynke on me wth the, when thou art in good case, shewe merce. I praye the) vnto me. And make mencion of me to Pharaos, and bryng me out of this house: for I was stollen out of the lande of the Hebrewes, and here also haue I done nothyngs at all, wherfore they shulde haue put me in to this dungeon. When the chiefe baker sawe that the interpretation was good, he sayde vnto Joseph: me thought also in my dreame, that I had. iij. wyker baskettes on my heade. And in the uppermost basket there was of all maner bakmeates for Pharaos. And the vydes dyd eate the out of the basket that was vpon my head.

And Joseph answered and sayde: this is the interpretation therof. The thre baskettes are thre dayes, for this daye thre dayes shall Pharaos take thy heade from the, and shall hage the on a tree, and the vydes shall eate thy fleshe from of the.

And it came to passe y^e thyrde daye whych was Pharaos * byrth daye, that he made a feast vnto all hys seruauntes. And he lyfted vpon the head of the chiefe buttelar and of the chiefe baker amonge hys seruauntes. And restored the chiefe buttelar vnto hys buttelarshyppe agayne: whych also recched the cuppe in to Pharaos hande, but he hanged the chiefe baker: euen as Joseph had interpreted vnto them. Nether dyd the chiefe buttelar remember Joseph, but forgot hym.

The xli. Chapter.

Pharaos dreames are expounded by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two sonnes: Manasses & Ephraim. The death becometh in Egypt.

And it fortuned after two yeres, that Pharaos dreamed, and beholde, he stode by a ryuers syde, & there came out of the ryuer seven goodly kyne and fatt felled, and fedd in a medowe. * viij. other kyne came vpon after them out of the ryuer, euell fauored and leane felled, and stode by the other kyne vpon the bynke of the ryuer. And the euell fauored and leane felled kyne dyd eate vpon the seuen well fauored and fatt kyne: and Pharaos awoke. And he slepte agayne, and dreamed the secunde tyme. And beholde, seven eares of corne grewe vpon one stalk, ranche and goodly. And agayne, seuen thynne eares blasted wth the east wynde, sprange vpon after them: and the seuen thynne eares deuorred the seuen ranche and full eares. And Pharaos awoke: and se, it was a dreame. And wth the moynynge came, his sprete was troubled. And he sent and called for all the sothesayers of Egypte, and all the wyse men therof, and Pharaos tolde the hys dreame: but there was none of the that coulde interpretate it vnto Pharaos. Then spake the chiefe buttelar vnto Pharaos sayinge: I do remember my fautes this daye. Pharaos beyng angrie wth hys seruauntes, put in warde the chiefe Stewards house both me & the chiefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, and eche mannes dreame of a sondre interpretation.

And there was wth vs a ponge man, an Hebrew borne, seruaunte vnto the chiefe Stewarde. To whom wha we tolde them, he declared oure dreames to vs accordynge to ether of oure dreames. And as he declared vnto vs, euen so it came to passe. For he restored me to myne offyce agayne, & hanged hym.

Pharaos sent therfore and called Joseph. And they brought hym hastily out of * pylon. And he shaued hym selfe and chaunged hys rayment, and came in to Pharaos. And Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: I haue seene a dreame, and no man can interpretate it, and I haue hearde saye of the, that as soone as thou hearest a dreame, thou canst interpretate it. Joseph answered Pharaos, sayinge: Not I, but God shall geue Pharaos an answer of peace. And Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: In my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuers syde, and there came out of the ryuer seven fatt felled, and well fauored kyne, & fedd in the medowe. And then seven other kyne came vpon after them: poore and very euell fauored and leane felled: such as I neuer sawe in all the lande of Egypte, they were so euell fauored. And the seuen leane & euell fauored kyne dyd eate vpon the fyft. viij. fatt kyne. And when they had eaten the vy, a man coulde not perceiue that they had eaten them: but they were still as euell fauored as they were at the begynnynge. And I awoke. And I sawe agayne in my dreame & beholde, viij. eares sprange out of one stalk, full full and fayre, and. viij. other cares agayne, wythered, thynne and blasted with the east wynde, sprange vp after the. And the thynne cares deuorwed the. viij. good cares. And I haue tolde it vnto soth sayers, but there was no man that coulde tell, what it meane. And Joseph answered Pharaos: both Pharaos dreames are one. And God hath shewed Pharaos what he is aboute to do. The. viij. good kyne are. viij. yeares: and the. viij. good cares are seven yeares also, and it is but one dreame. Lpke wyse, p. vii. thynne and euell fauored kyne that came out after the. are. viij. yeares: and the. viij. emptye and blasted cares shalbe. viij. yeares of hunger. D Thys whych I haue sayde vnto Pharaos, is it that God is aboute to do, and sheweth it vnto Pharaos.

Beholde there come. viij. yeare of great plenteousnes throughe out all the lande of Egypte. And agayne there shal arys after them. viij. yeares of hunger. And all the plenteousnes shalbe forgotte in the lande of Egypte: And the hunger shal consume the lande: neither shal the plenteousnes be knowen in the lande, by reason of that hunger that shal come after, for it shalbe exceedinge great. And as concernynge that the dreame was doubled vnto Pharaos the secōde tyme, beholde, the thyng is certainly prepared of God, & God wyl shortly brynge it to passe.

Nowe therfore, let Pharaos prouyde for a man of vnderstandynge and wylsome, and sett hym ouer the lande of Egypte. And let Pharaos do thys also, that he make officers ouer the lande, and take vp the fyfte parte of the lande of Egypte in the. viij. plenteous yeares, and let them gather all the foode of these good yerres that come, and lay vp corne vnder the hande of Pharaos, that there maye be foode in the cyties, and there let them kepe it: that there maye be foode in stoor in the lande, agaynst the seven yeares of hunger whych shal come in the lande of Egypte, that the lande perishe not thowgh hunger.

E And the sayinge pleased Pharaos and all his seruantes. Then sayde Pharaos vnto his seruantes: where shal we fynde soch a man as thys is, in whom is the sperte of God? And Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: for as moche as God hath shewed the all thys, there is no man of vnderstandynge or of wylsome lyke vnto y. Thou therfore walt be * ouer my house, and accordynge to thy wordes shal all my people be ruled, only in y kynges seate wyl I be aboue the. And Pharaos sayde agayne vnto Joseph: beholde, I haue sett the ouer all the lande of Egypte. And he toke of his rynge from his hande, and put it vpon Josephs hande, and arayed hym in cloth of raryes, and put a golden cheyne aboute his necke, and sett hym vpon the best charette that he had, saue one. And they cryed before hym: Bowe the knee, and Pharaos made hym ruler ouer all the lande of Egypte.

And Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: I am Pharaos, wythout the shall no man lyfte vp his hande or fote in all the lande of Egypte. And he called Josephs name * zaphnath Paana. And he gaue hym to wyte Asnath the daughter of Putiphar prest of On. Then went Joseph abrode in the lande of Egypte. And he was thyrtye yeare olde * when he stode before Pharaos kyng of Egypte. And Joseph departynge from the presence of Pharaos, went thowgh out all the lande of Egypte.

And in the seven plenteous yeares they made sheues and gathered vp all y foode of the seuen plenteous yeares which were in the lande of Egypte, and layed vp the same in the cyties. The foode of the felde that grew rownde aboute euery cyte, layed he vp in the same. And Joseph layde vpon corne in stoor, lyke vnto the sande of the see, in multitude out of mesure, vntill he left nō bynyng: for it was wythout nombre. And vnto Joseph were bozne two sonnes: before the yeares of hunger came) whych Asnath the daughter of Putiphar prest of On, bare vnto hym. And Joseph called the name of y fyrst sonne * Manasse, for God (sayde he) hath made me forgett all my laboure ad all my fathers householde. The name of the seconde called he Ephraim, for God (sayde he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the seven yeares of plenteousnes that was in the lande of Egypte were ended, then came the seven yeares of * deth accordynge as Joseph had sayde. And y deth was in all lades: but in all the lande of Egypte was there yet foode. And when the lande of Egypt also began to hunger, the people cryed to Pharaos for bread. And Pharaos sayde vnto all the Egyptians, goo vnto Joseph, and what he sayth to you, that doo. And the deth was thowgh out all the land. And Joseph opened all that was in the cyties, and solde vnto the Egyptians. for the hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte: And all countrees came to Egypte to Joseph for to bye corne: because that the hūger was so sore in all landes.

The. xlii. Chapter.

E Josephs brethren come into Egypte to bye corne. And he knoweth them and testeth them. Symeon is put in prison: the other setoone to their father to letche Ben Jamin. Hys father is lothe to let hym go: but at the last he graunteth it.

And Jacob

And Jacob seynge y there was corne in Egypt, sayde vnto his sonnes: why gaze ye one vpon another? And he sayd: beholde, I haue heard that there is corne in Egypte. * Gete you downe thither & bye vs corne from thence, that we maye lyue & not dye. So went Josephs ten brethren downe to bye corne of the Egyptians. But Ben Jamin Josephs brother wolde not Jacob sende with his other brethren, for he sayd: lest some mysfortune happen hym.

And the sonnes of Israel came to bye corne amonge other that came, for there was deth in the lande of Canaan. And Joseph was gouerner in the lande, and solde to all the people of the lande. And his brethren came, and fel flat on the grounde before hym. B When Joseph sawe his brethren, he knewe them: and made hym selfe straunge vnto them, and spake roughly vnto them, sayinge: Whence come ye? They answered: out of the lande of Canaan, to bye vytayle. And Joseph knewe his brethren, but they knewe not hym.

And Joseph remembred his * dreames which he dreamed of them, and sayd vnto them: ye are spyes, and to se where the lande is weake is youre compynge. And they sayd vnto him: nay my Lord: but to bye vytayle thy seruantes are come. We are all one māns sonnes, and meane truly, and thy seruantes are no spyes. And he sayd vnto them agayne, nay, but euen to se where the lande is weake, is youre compynge. And they sayde: we thy seruantes are. xii. brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan. And beholde, the yongest is thys dape wyth oure father, and one, no man woteh where he is. And Joseph sayde vnto them, y is it that I spake vnto you, sayinge: ye are spyes. here by ye shal be proued. By the lyfe of Pharaos, ye shal not goo hence, excepte youre yongest brother come hither. Sende out one of you whych maye sett youre brother, & ye shalbe kepte in prison, that youre wordes maye be pried, whether there be any trueth in you: or els by the lyfe of Pharaos, ye are but spyes. And he put them in warde thre dayes.

And Joseph sayde vnto them the thyrde dape: Thys doo and lyue, for I feare God. If ye meane no hurte, let one of youre brethren be bounde in the house of youre prison, and goo ye brynge the necessarye foode vnto youre householde, but brynge youre yongest brother vnto me: that your wordes maye be tryed, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so.

And one sayde to another: we haue verely synned agaynst oure brother, in that we sawe the angnysh of his soull when he besought vs, & we wolde nat heare him: and

therfore is thys troubyll come vpon vs. And Ruben answered them sayinge: sayde I not vnto you that ye shulde not * synne agaynst the lad: and ye wolde not heare. And see, his bloude is requyred. They were not aware that Joseph vnderstode them, for he spake vnto them by an interpreter. And he turned from them & wepte * and turned to them agayne, and contened with them, & toke out Symeon from amonge the, and bounde hym before they eyes, and Joseph comaunded to fyll theyr sackes wyth corne, and to put euery mans money in his sacke, and to geue them vytayle to spende by the waye. And thus dyd he vnto the. And they laded theyr asses wyth the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened his sacke, for to geue his ass prauender in the Inne, he spyed his money: for it was in his sackes mouth. And he sayde vnto his brethren: my money is restored me agayne: for lo, it is euen in my sacke. And they hartely sayled them, and they were astonysed, and sayde one to another: why hath God dealt thus wyth vs? And they came vnto Jacob theyr father vnto the lande of Canaan, and tolde hym all that had happened them, sayinge: The man, euen the Lord of the lande spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spyes of the countre. And we layd vnto him: we meane truly & are no spyes. We be. xii. brethren, sonnes of oure father, one is awaye, and the yongest is thys dape wyth oure father in the lande of Canaan. And the Lord of the countre sayde agayne vnto vs: here by shal I knowe yf ye meane truly: leaue one of youre brethren here with me, and take foode necessary for youre householde and get you awaye, & brynge youre yongest brother vnto me, that I maye knowe that ye are no spyes, but meane truly: So wyl I deliuer you youre brother, & ye shal occupye in the lande.

And it fortuneth as they emptyed theyr sackes, beholde: euery mans bundell of money was in his sacke. And whē both they & their father sawe the bundells of money, they were afraide.

And Jacob theyr father sayde vnto them: We haue ye robbed of my chyldren: Joseph is awaye, and Symeon is awaye, and ye take Ben Jamin awaye. All these thynges are agaynst me. Ruben sayde vnto his father: Slee my two sonnes, yf I brynge hym not to the agayne. Deliyer hym to my hande, and I wyl brynge hym to the agayne. And he sayde: my sonne shal not go downe wyth you. for his brother is dead, & he is left alone. If some mysfortune happen vnto him by the waye whych ye go, ye shal brynge my gray head with sorowe vnto the graue.

When Ben Jamin was brought: they retort-ned with grates: Syme is delivered out of p^ris-
on Joseph goeth asyde and wepeth. They leat together.

And the death was greute in the lande. And it fortuneth whē they had eatē by p^r cozne whych they brought out of p^r lade of Egypt theyr father sayde vnto them:
goo agayne, & by vs a lytle food. Juda answered hym, and sayde: the man byd testifye vnto vs, sayinge: * loke that ye see not my face, excepte your brother be wyth you. If thou wylt sende oure brother wth vs, we wyl go downe, and bye the foode. But p^r thou wylt not sende hym, we wyl not goo dow-ne: for the mā sayde vnto vs: loke that ye see not my face, excepte your brother be wyth
you. And Israel sayde: wherfore delt ye so cruelly wyth me, as to tell the man that ye had pet a brother? They answered: The mā asked vs strayly of oure kynred sayinge, is your father yet alyue? haue ye not another brother? And we tolde hym accordyng to these wordes. Cowld we knowe p^r he wolde saye: byynge your brother downe with you?
Then sayde Juda vnto Israel hys father:
Sende thel de with me, that we maye crye & goo, & that we maye lyue & not dye: both we, thou & also oure children. I wyl be sure-tye for hym, of my hādes thalt thou requyre hym. If I byynge hym not to the agayne, & let him before thyne eyes, * than let me bere p^r blame for euer. Truly excepte we had made thys tarynge: by thys, we had bene there twyle and come agayne.

And the father Israel sayde vnto the: If it must nedis be so now: than do thus. Take of the best frutes of the lāde in yourre vesselles, and byynge the man a present, a curtesye bawme, and a curtesye of hony, spys-ces and myrr, notts & almondes. And take double money in yourre hande. And the money that was brought agayne in yourre sackes, take it agayne wyth you, lest peraduen-ture it was some ouersyghte.

Take also yourre brother wyth you and,
apple and goo agayne to the man. And God almyghty geue you merce in the syghte of the man, p^r he maye deliuer you yourre other brother, & this Ben Jamin, and J^r thalbe robbed of my chylde, as I haue bene.

Thus toke they the present and twyle so moch more money in theyr hande with Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypt te, and stode before Joseph. When Joseph sa-we Ben Jamin wyth them, he sayde to the ruler of hys house: byynge these men home, and slep and make redye: for these men thall dyne wth me at noone. And the mā dyd as Joseph bad, & brought the into Josephs house.

When the men were brought into Josephs house, they were asrayde, and sayde:
because of the money p^r came in ourre sakes mouthes at the fyrst tyme, are we brought in, p^r he maye p^rcke a quarell wth vs, & to laye somethynge to oure charge, and to byynge vs in bondage and oure asses also. Therfore came they to the man that was the ruler our Josephs house, & comened with hym at the doore of the house, and sayde:

Oh Syr, we came downe byther at the fyrst tyme to bye foode: & as we came to an inne, it happened p^r we opened oure sakes:
and beholde, euery mannes money was in hys sake wyth full weyghte. And we haue brought it agayne in oure hande, and other mony haue we brought also in oure handes, to bye foode, but we cannot tell who put oure money in oure sakes. And he sayde:
Peace be vnto you, feare not: yourre God and the God of yourre father hath geue you that treasure in yourre sakes, I had yourre money. And he brought Syme out to the,
and the man led them into Josephs house, and gaue them water to washe theyr fete, & gaue theyr asses prauender: And they made redye theyr present agaynst Joseph came at none, for they herde saye that they shulde eate byed there. Whē Joseph came home, they brought the present into the house to hi, whych was in their handes, & fell flat on the groude before hym. And he welcomed them courteously sayinge: is yourre father that old man whych ye tolde me of, in good health?
and is he yet alyue? they answered: thy serua-unte oure father is in good health, & is yet alyue. And they bowed downe theyr hea-des, and made obaplaunce.

And he lyfinge vth his eyes, behelde his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne, and sayde: * is this yourre p^rger brother of who-me ye sayde vnto me? And he sayde: God be mercifull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast for hys hert byd melt vpon his brother, & sought where to wepe, & entred into his chābre, & wepte there. And he was-shed his face & came out and refrayned hym selfe, and sayde: set bread on the table.

And they prepared for hym by him selfe,
and for them by the selues, & for the Egyptians whych dyd eate with him by them sel-ues, because the Egyptians maye not eate bread with the hebrines, for that is an abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians. And they satt before hym: the eldest accordyng vnto hys age, & the pongest accordyng vnto hys pouth. And the men metueled amonge them selues. And they broughte rewardes vnto the fro before hym: but Ben Jamins parte was spue tymes so moch as any of theyr.
And they byynked were byonke with
hym.

Joseph accuseth hys brother of theft. Juda becommeth surety for Ben Jamin.

And he commaunded the ruler of his house sayinge: fyll the mēs sackes wth so ode, as moch as they can carpe, and put euery mans money in his sake mouth, and put my syluer cup-in the sakes mouth of the pongest, and hys come money also. And he dyd accordyng to the worde that Joseph had sayde. And in the moynge as loone as it was lyghte, the men were let goo, they and their asses. And when they were out of the cytie and not yet farr awaye, Joseph sayde vnto the ruler of hys house: vp and folowe after the men, and whan thou dost ouertake them, thou shalt saye vnto them: wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? is that not the cuppe in the which my Lord drynketh, & for the which he prophceyth: ye haue euell done that ye haue done.

And whan he ouertoke them, he sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayeth my Lord soch wor-des? God forbydd that thy seruantes shul-de doo so: Beholde, the money which we founde in oure sakes mouthes, we brought agayne vnto the, out of the lande of Canaā:
howe then shulde we steale out of thy Lor-des house, ether syluer or golde wyth whōsoener of thy seruantes it be founde, let him dye, and we also will be my Lordes bond-men. And he sayde: Howe also let it be accor-dyng vnto yourre woordes: he with whom it is founde, thalbe my seruante: and ye shal-be harmelesse.

And attonce euery man toke downe hys sacke to the grounde, and euery man opened hys sacke. And he serched, and began at the eldest and left at the pongest. And the cuppe was founde in Ben Jamins sacke.
Then they * rent their clothes, and laded euery man his asse, and went agayne vnto the cytie. And Juda and hys brethren came to Josephs house for he was yet there, and they fell before him on the grounde. And Joseph sayd vnto the: what dede is this which ye haue done? wote ye not that soche a man as I can prophcey?

Then sayde Juda: what shall we saye vnto my Lord? what shall we speake, or what excuse can we make? God hath founde out the wykednesse of thy seruantes. Beholde, both we & he with whom the cuppe is foun-de, are my Lordes seruantes. And he answered. God forbydd that I shulde do so, but the man with whō the cuppe is founde, he shal-be my seruante. And go ye in peace vnto yourre father.

Then Juda went vnto hym and sayde:
oh my Lord, let thy seruante speake a wor-

de in my Lordes eares, and be not wrooth wyth thy seruante: for thou art euen as Pharao. My Lord asked his seruante sayinge: haue ye a father or a brother? And we answered my Lord: we haue a father that is olde, and a yonge lad which he begat in hys age: and the brother of the saydelad is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother.
And hys father loutch hym. And thou saydest vnto thy seruantes: byynge him vnto me, p^r I maye sett myne eye vpon him. And we answered my Lord, that the lad coulde not goo from his father, for p^r he shulde leaue his father, he were but deed. Than saydest thou vnto thy seruantes: excepte your youngest brother come with you, loke that ye se my face no moare.

And when we came vnto thy seruante oure father, we shewed hym what my lord had sayd: And oure father sayd vnto vs: goo agayne, & bye vs a lytle fode. And we answered: we cannot goo downe. Accurthele: p^r oure yongeste brother go wth vs, then wyl we go downe, for we maye not see the mannes face, excepte oure yongeste brother be wth vs. And thy seruante oure father sayde vnto vs: ye knowe that my wyfe bare me ij. sonnes. And the one went out from me, and I sayde: of suretye he is * tozne in peaces, and I sawe hym not sence. And ye take this also awaye fro me. If some mysfortune happen vpon him, * ye shal byynge my gray heed in sorowe vnto the graue.

Howe therfore, when I come to thy ser-uaunt my father, and the lad be not with vs (seynge that his lyfe hangeth by the laddes lyfe) then shall it come to passe, that as soone as he seeth that the lad is not come, he wyl dye. So shall we thy seruantes * byynge the gray hedde of thy seruante oure father with sorowe vnto the graue. For I thy ser-uaunt became suretye for the lad before my father and sayde: * p^r I byynge him not vnto the agayne, I wyl bere the blame vnto my father all my lyfe longe. Howe therfore let me thy seruante byde here for the lad, and be my Lordes bondman: and let the lad goo vth his brethren. For howe can I goo vnto my father, p^r the lad be not with me? on-lesse I wolde see the wretchednes that shall come on my father.

Joseph maketh hym selfe knowne vnto hys brethren: and sendeth for hys father.

Joseph coulde no longer refrayne before all them that stode by hym.
Wherfore he cryed: byynge furth all the men from me. And there remayned no man wyth him, whyle Joseph bittred hym selfe vnto hys brethren. And he
* wepte alowde, so that the Egyptians, and c in the

the house of Pharaoh herde it. And Joseph sayde vnto hys brethren: I am Joseph, doth my father yet lyue? And hys brethren coulde not answer hym, they were so abashed at hys presence. And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren: come nere to me, and they came nere. And he sayde: * I am Joseph your brother whom ye solde in to Egypte. Nowe therefore be not greued therewith, neither let it seme a cruel thynge in your eyes, that ye solde me hyther. For God dyd send me before you to saue lyfe. * For this is the seconde yeare of derth in the lande, and fyue moore are to come, in whych there shall neither be earne nor heruest.

Wherfore God sent me before you to make promysyon, that ye myghte continue in the erth, and to saue your lyues by a greates deliuerance. So nowe it was not ye that sent me hyther, but God: whych hath made me a father vnto Pharaoh & Lorde of all hys house, & ruler thowout all the lade of Egypte. hast you, and goo vnto my father and tell him. This sayeth thy sonne Joseph: God hath made me Lorde of all Egypte. Come downe therfore vnto me, tarpe not. And I shall dwell in the lande of Goshen and be by me: thou and thy chyldren, and thy chyldrens chyldren: thy shepe, and thy beestes, & all that thou hast. And there wyll I make promysyon for the, for there remaine yet. v. yeares of derth, lest thou & thy household and all that thou hast come to pouertie.

And beholde, your eyes do se, & the eyes also of my brother Ben Jamin, that myne awne mouth speaketh to you. Therefore tell my father of all my honoure in Egypte and of all that ye haue sene, and make hast and brynge my father hyther. And he fell on hys brother Ben Jamins necke and wepte, and Ben Jamin wepte on hys necke. Moreover he kyssed all hys brethren and wepte vpon them. And after that, hys brethren talked with hym. And the tydings came vnto Pharaohs house, so that they sayde: Josephs brethren are come, & it pleased Pharaoh well and all hys seruantes.

And Pharaoh spake vnto Joseph: saye vnto thy brethren, this do ye: lade your beestes and get you hence, vnto the lande of Canaan, Take your father, and your households and come vnto me, and I wyll geue you the good of the lande of Egypte, and ye shall eate the fatt of the lade. And thou also shalt commaunde them. Chys do ye: take charettes with you out of the lande of Egypte, for your chyldren and for your wyues: and brynge your father, and come. Also, regarde not your stuffe, for the good of all the lande of Egypte is yours.

And the chyldren of Israel dyd euen so, And Joseph gaue them charettes according to the commaundement of Pharaoh, and gaue them vnto charets also to spende by the waye. And he gaue vnto eche of them change of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin he gaue. iiij. hundred peces of syluer and. v. change of rayment. And vnto hys father he sent after the same manner. x. asses laden with corne, byrd and meate: for hys father by the waye. So sent he hys brethren awaye to departe: And he sayde vnto them: se that ye fall not out by the waye.

They departed therfore from Egypte and came in to the lande of Canaan vnto Jacob their father, and tolde hym sayinge: Joseph is yet alyle, & is gouerner ouer all the lande of Egypte. And Jacobs heart wauered, for he beleued them not. And they tolde hym all the wordes of Joseph, whych he had sayde vnto them. And when he sawe the charettes whych Joseph had sent to carpe hym, the spere of Jacob their father reuyned. And Israel sayde: I haue ynough that Joseph my sonne is yet alyle: I wyll goo, and se hym, yet that I dye.

The xlvj. Chapter.

¶ Jacob with all hys household goeth to Joseph in to Egypte. The genealogie of Jacob. Joseph meeteth hys father.

Isracel toke hys iourney with all that he had, and came vnto Beer Seba & offered offrings vnto the God of his father. And God spake vnto Israel in a visyō by nyght sayenge: Jacob, Jacob. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: I am God, the God of thy father, fere not to goo downe into Egypte. For I wyll there make of the a great people. I will goo downe with the into Egypte, & I will also brynge the agayne, and Joseph shall put hys hande vpon thyne eyes. And Jacob rose vp from Beer Seba. And y sonnes of Israel carped Jacob their father, and their chyldren & their wyues in the charettes whych Pharaoh had sent to carpe him. And they toke their catell and the goodes which they had gotten in the lande of Canaan, & came in to Egypte: both Jacob & all hys seed with hym, hys sonnes & hys sonnes sonnes with hym, his daughters and hys sonnes daughters and all hys seed brought he with hym in to Egypte.

These are the names of the chyldren of Israel whych came in to Egypte, both Jacob & his sonnes: * Rubē, Jacobs first sonne. The chyldren of Rubē: Hanoch, and Pallu, Hezon & Charmi. The chyldren of Symeon: Jemuel, Jamin, Obad, Jachin, & Zohar & Saul the sonne of a Canaanish womā. The chyldren of * Levi: Gerson, Kahath and Merari.

The

The chyldren of * Juda: Er, & Onan, He-la, and Pharez and Zerah, But Er & Onan dyed in the lande of Canaan. The chyldren of Pharez also were Hezron & Hamul. The chyldren of Issachar: Tola, Phua, Job and Simron. The chyldren of Zabulon: Sered, Elon & Jabeleel. These be the chyldren of Lea whych she bare vnto Jacob in Mesopotamia with his daughter Dina. All the soules of hys sonnes and daughters make. xxx. and. iij.

The chyldren of Gad: Ziphion, & Haggi, Suni, and Esbon, Eri, & Arodi, and Arel. The chyldren of * Asser: Jemna, and Jesua, Jesui, and Biza and Serah theyr syster. And the chyldren of Biza: Heber and Malchiel. These are the chyldren of Silpha, whom Laban gaue to Lea hys daughter. And these she bare vnto Jacob euen. xvi. soules.

The chyldren of Rachel Jacobs wyfe: Joseph and Ben Jamin. And vnto Joseph in the lande of Egypte were borne: Manasses and Ephraim whych * Asnath the daughter of Putiphar preast of On bare vnto hym. The chyldren of * Ben Jamin: Bela, Becher, Albel, Sera, Naeman, Ehl & Ros, Myim, Huvim and Ard. These are the chyldren of Rachel, whych she bare vnto Jacob, xiiii. soules altogether. The chyldren of Dā: Husim. The chyldren of Nephtali: Jabezel, Guni, Jezer and Sillem. These are the sonnes of Bilha, whych Laban gaue vnto Rachel hys daughter, and she bare these vnto Jacob, altogether. vii. soules. And so the * soules that came with Jacob in to Egypte, whych came out of hys loynes (besyde Jacobs wyfes) were all together. lx. and. vi. soules. And the sonnes of Joseph, which were borne him in Egypte, were. ij. soules: So that all y soules of the house of Jacob whych came in to Egypte, are. lxx.

And he sent Juda before hym vnto Joseph, to directe hys face vnto Goshen, & they came in to the lande of Goshen. And Joseph made redye hys charrett, and wēt vp to mete Israel hys father vnto Goshen, and presented hym selfe vnto hym, and fell on hys necke, and wepte vpon hys necke a good while. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: Nowe am I content to dye, in somoch as I haue sene the and because thou art yet alyle.

And Joseph sayde vnto hys brethren, and vnto hys fathers house: I wyll goo vp and shewe Pharaoh & tell hym: My brethren and my fathers house which were in the lande of Canaan, are come vnto me, and they are shepherdes (for they were mē of catell) & they haue brought theyr shepe and theyr oxen and all that they haue. And yf it chaunce that Pharaoh call you, and aske you, what your occupacyon is, ye shall answer: thy seruau-tes haue bene men occupped aboute catell, from our chyldhode vnto this tyme, we and our fathers, that ye maye dwell in the lade of Goshen. For euery shepe keeper is abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians.

The xlvj. Chapter.

¶ Jacob cometh before Pharaoh: and vnto hym is shewen the lande of Goshen. He maketh hys sonnes to shewe to hys burpall.

Joseph came therfore and tolde Pharaoh and sayde: my father and my brethren, theyr shepe and their oxen and all that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan, and beholde, they are in the lande of Goshen. And Joseph tolde of the hymnost of hys brethren: euen fyue men, and presented them vnto Pharaoh. And Pharaoh sayde vnto hys brethren: what is your occupacyon? And they answered Pharaoh: shepherdes are thy seruantes, both we & also our fathers. They sayde moreover vnto Pharaoh: for to * soge-ome in the lande are we come, for thy seruantes haue no pasture for theyr shepe, so sore is the famelment in the lade of Canaan. Nowe therefore let thy seruantes dwell in the lande of Goshen.

And Pharaoh sayde vnto Joseph: thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the. The lade of Egypte is before the: In the best place of the lande make both thy father and thy brethren dwell: euen in the lande of Goshen let them dwell. Moreover yf thou knowe any men of actiuite amonge them, make them rulers ouer my catell. And Joseph brought in Jacob hys father, and sett hym before Pharaoh. And Jacob & blessed Pharaoh. And Pharaoh sayde vnto Jacob: howe olde art thou? Jacob sayde vnto Pharaoh: the dayes of my pilgrimage are an hundred and. xxx. yeares. Fewe & euell haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not attayned vnto the yeares of the lyfe of my fathers in the dayes of theyr pilgrimage. And Jacob & blessed Pharaoh, and went out from hym. And Joseph prepared dwellingnges for hys father and hys brethren, and gaue them posseltyons in the land of Egypte, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameses, as Pharaoh had commaunded. And Joseph made promysyon for hys father, hys brethren & all his fathers household with byead, euen as yonge chyldren are fedd.

There was no byead in all the lande, for the derth was excedynge sore: so that the lande of Egypte and the lande of Canaan, were famelshed by the reason of the derth. And Joseph brought together all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypte and of Canaan, for the corne whych they boughte: and he layde vp the money in Pharaohs house. When money fayled in the lande

the end of

of Egypte & of Canaan, all the Egyptians came vnto Joseph and sayde: geue vs bread: wherfore suffrest thou vs to dye before the whan oure money is spent? Then sayde Joseph: bypunge poure catell, & I wyll geue you for your catell, yf ye be without money. And they brought theyr catell vnto Joseph. And Joseph gaue them bread for horses & shepe, and oxen, and asses, and fed the wyth bread for all theyr catell that yere.

But when that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the nexte yere, & sayde vnto hym: we will not hyde it from my Lord how y oure money is spent, my Lord also had oure catell & bestes, neyther is there ought left in the syght of my Lord, but euen oure bodies and oure lades. Wherfore letttest thou vs dye before thyne eyes, & the lande to goo to nought: by vs & our lades for bread: & both we and oure landes will be vnde to Pharaon. Onely geue vs seed, that we maye lyue and not dye, & that the lande goo nat to wast.

And so Joseph boughte all the lād of Egypte for Pharaon. For y Egyptians solde euery man hys lande because the derty was soze vpon the: & so the lād became Pharaos. And he appoynted the people vnto pecties, fro one syde of Egypte vnto the other: only the lande of the prestes bought he not. For the prestes had an ordinaunce of Pharaon, y they shulde eate that which was appoynted vnto the: which Pharaon had geue the wherfore they solde not theyr landes.

The Joseph sayde vnto the folke: beholde I haue boughte you this daye & poure lade for Pharaon. Take there bread & sede & sowe the lād. And of the encrease, ye shall geue the fyfte parte vnto Pharaon, & .iiij. partes shall be poure a wne, for seed of the feld: & for you, and them of poure householdes, and for poure chyldren, to eate. And they answered: Thou haste saued oure lyues. Let vs fynde grace in the syghte of my Lord, & we wyll be Pharaos seruautes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this daye: that Pharaon shulde haue the fyfte parte, excepte the lande of the prestes only, whych was not Pharaos.

And Israel dwelt in Egypte: euen in the countree of Gosan. And they had theyr possession therin, & grewe and multiplied exceedingly. Moreover, Jacob lyed in the lande of Egypte .xviij. yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob was an hundred and .xviij. yere.

When the tyme drewe nye, y Israel must dye: he sent for his sonne Joseph, & sayde vnto hym: If I haue founde grace in thy syghte, oh, put thy hande vnder my thye, and deale mercifully and truly w me, that thou burye me not in Egypte: but I will lye with my fathers, and thou shalt carpe me out of Egypte, & burye me in theyr buryall. And he answered: I wyll do as thou hast sayd. And he sayde: swere vnto me. And he swore vnto hym. And Israel, & worshipped toward the beddes head.

The .xlvij. Chapter.

¶ Jacob lyeth sick. He bespyeth Ephraim and Manasses for hys sonnes: and blessed them.

After these deades it happened, y a messenger sayde vnto Joseph: thy father is sycke. And he toke w him his .ii. sonnes, Manasses & Ephraim. Then was it sayd vnto Jacob: beholde, thy sonne Joseph cometh vnto the. And Israel toke his strenght vnto hym, & satt vp on the bedd, & Jacob sayde vnto Joseph: God almyghtie appeared vnto me at Lus in the lande of Canaan, & blessed me, & sayde vnto me: beholde, I wyll make the growe, & wyll multiplie the, & wyll make a great nombre of people of the, and wyll geue thys land vnto thy seed after the vnto an euerylastyng possession. And now thy .ii. sonnes Manasses & Ephraim which were bozne vnto the in y lande of Egypte, before I came to the in to Egypte, are myne: euen as Ruben & Symeon are myne. And the chyldren which thou hast gotten after the, shall be thine a wne: & shall be called after the names of theyr brethren in theyr inheritaunce. And whan I came from Mesopotamia, Rachel dyed vpon my hād in the lande of Canaan, by the waye: when ther was but a felde bredde to come vnto Ephrat. And I buried her there in y waye to Ephrat. The same is Bethlehem.

And Israel behelde Josephs sonnes and sayde: what are these? Joseph sayd vnto his father: they are my sonnes which God hath geue me here. And he sayde: oh, bypunge them to me, & let me blesse the. And the eyes of Israel were dymme for age, so y he coulde not well see. And he broughte them to hym, and he kyssed them and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I had not thought to haue sene thy face, ad yet loo, God hath shewed it me and also thy seed. And Joseph toke them a waye from his lappe, & worshipped on the grounde before hym.

Israelis ryghte hande, & brought them vnto hym. And Israel stretched out hys ryghte hande & layde it vpon Ephraims heade which was the yonger, & hys lyfte hād vpon Manasses heed, gydinge hys handes wylely, for Manasses was the elder. And he blessed Joseph & sayde: God, before whome my fathers Abraham & Isahac dyd walke, God whych hath fedd me all my lyfe longe vnto this daye, And the angell whych hath deliuered me from all cypill, blesse these laddes: & let my name be named in them, & the name of my fathers Abraham & Isahac, & that they maye growe into a multitude in the myddes of the erth.

When Joseph sawe that hys father layde hys ryghte hād vpon y heade of Ephraim, it displeased him. And he lyfte vp his fathers hande, to haue remoued it from Ephraims heade vnto Manasses heade, & Joseph sayde vnto hys father: Not so my father, for this is the eldest. But thy ryghte hande vpon hys heade. And hys father wolde not, but sayde: I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well. He shall be also a people & shall be great. But hys yonger brother shall be greater than he, and hys seed shall be full of people. And he blessed them that daye and sayde: In the let Israel blesse & saye: God make y as Ephraim and as Manasses. And sett Ephraim before Manasses.

And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: beholde, I dye. And God shall be wyth you and bypunge you agayne vnto y lād of poure fathers. Moreover I haue geuen vnto the, a porcyō of y lande aboute thy brethren, which I gatt out of the hād of the Amorite in my swerde and in my bowe.

The .xlix. Chapter.

¶ Jacob blesseth all his alyue sonnes and sheweth the what to do com. He apoynteth where he wyll be buried: and dyeth.

And Jacob called for hys sonnes and sayde: come together, that I maye tell you what shall happen you in the last dayes. Gather you together, and heare ye sonnes of Jacob, heken vnto Israel poure father.

Ruben y myne eldest sonne, thou art my myghte and the begynnyng of my strength, & the noblenesse of dignyte, and the noblenesse of power. Unstable as water. Thou shalt not be the cheifest, because thou wentest vp to thy fathers bed. Euen then dydest thou desyle it, & it was nomore my couche.

The brethren Simeon and Levi, cruell instrumentes in their habitaciōs. Into their secretes come not my soule, vnto their congregacyon be my honoure not coupled: for in their y wrath they slewe a man, & in their selfe wyll they, & digged downe a wall. We sed be their wrath, for it was shamelesse, and their fearlesnes, for it was ernell. I wyll deuide them in Jacob, & scatter them in Israel.

Juda thou art he, whō thy brethren shall prayse. Thy hande shall be in the y necke of thyne enymies, thy fathers chyldren shall stoupe before the. Juda is a y lyons whelpe, from thy spoule my sonne thou art come an hye. He layde hym downe and couched hym selfe as a lyon, and as a y lionesse. Who wyll stre hym vp? The y sceptre shall not departe fro Juda, and a lawgeuer fro betwene hys fete, vntyll. y Splo come. And vnto hym shall the gatherynge of the people be. He shall bynde his sole vnto y wyne, and hys asses cole vnto the braunche. He washed hys garment in wyne, and hys mantell in the blonde of grapes. Hys eyes are redder than wyne, & his teeth whytter then mylke.

y zambulon shall dwell besyde the heauen of the see and nye the beauche of Euphrates. His border shall be vnto Sydon.

Isachar a stronge alle conchyng hym downe betwene y borders, and sawe that rest was good, & the lande that it was pleasant, and bowed hys shulder to beare, and became a seruaunte vnto tribute. Dan shall yudge hys people & the trybes of Israel. Dan shall be a serpēt in the waye, an adder in the path, bytyng the heeles and hys ryder fell backward: after thy saluacyon haue I looked. y Zebulon.

Gad, an hoost of men shall ouercome him, And he shall ouercome at the last. Issachar: his bread shall be y fat, and he shall geue pleasures for a kynge.

Rephaim is a swyfte hynde, geuyng goodly wordes. That flozshyng chyld Joseph, that plenteous chyld by the well syde, the daughters ran vpo the wall. They haue prouoked hym, and shot hym thurgh with dartes. The archers haue enuyed him: But hys bowe abode fast, and the arrowes of hys handes were made stronge, by the handes of the myghty God of Jacob. Out of hym shall come an herde man, a stone in Israel: from thy fathers God which hath helped the, and with the almyghty which hath blessed the wyth blesynges from heauen aboue, wyth blesynges of the depe that lyeth vnder, and wyth blesynges of the brestes and of the wombe. The blesynges of thy father were stronger then the blesynges of my elders, vnto the vtmost of the hylls of y worlde, and they shall be on the heade of Joseph, and on the toppe of the heade of hym y was separat from his brethren.

Ben Jamin shall rauche as a y wolfe: In y morninge he shall deuoure the praye, and at nyghte he shall deuoure the spoule.

All these are the .xij. trybes of Israel, and thys their father spake vnto them and blessed them, euey one of them blessed he wyth y a seuerall a feuerall blessinge. And he charged them, and sayde vnto them: When I walke gathered vnto my * people, burye me with my fathers, in the caue that is in the felde of Ephron the hethyte, in the double caue that is in the felde by the countre of Hamre in the lande of Canaan. Whych felde Abraham boughte of Ephron the hethyte for a possession to burye in, where as were buried Abraham and Sara his wyfe. And where as were buried Isahac & Rebecca his wyfe. And there I buried Lea. The felde and the caue that is therein, was boughte of the chyldren of Heth.

And when Jacob had commaunded all that he wolde vnto his sonnes, he plucked vp his fete vnto the bedd and dyed, and was * put vnto his people. And Joseph fell vpon his fathers face, and wepte vpon hym, and kysed hym.

The 1. Chapter.

Jacob is buried Joseph forguech his brethren the iurure that they dyd to hym. And he dyeth.

And Joseph commaunded his seruantes the Phisiccons, to embawme his father, and the Phisiccons embawmed Israel xl. dayes longe, for so longe doth the embawmyng last, and the Egyptians bewailed hym lxx. dayes.

And when the dayes of wepyng were ended, Joseph spake vnto the house of Pharaoh sayinge: If I haue founde fauoure in your eyes, speake in the eares of Pharaoh sayinge: my father made me swere & sayde: loo, I dye, * burye me in my grane whych I haue made me in the lande of Chanaan. Nowe therefore let me goe and burye my father, and thā will I come agayne. And Pharaoh sayde, goo and burye thy father, accordinge as he made the swere.

And Joseph went vp to burye his father, and with hym went all the seruantes of Pharaoh that were the elders of his house, and all the elders of the lande of Egypte, & all the house of Joseph, and his brethren and his fathers house, only theyr chyldren and their wyues and their catell left they behynde in the lande of Gosan. And there went with him also Charettes and horssmen: & it was an exceedyng great companye.

And they came to the cozne flooze of Atad whych is beyonde Jordane, and there they made a great and exceedyng soze lamentacyon. And he * mourned for his father. viij. dayes. And when the inhabitants of the lande (euen the Cananytes) sawe the mournynge in the cozne flooze of Atad, they sayde: this is a greate mournynge vnto the Egyptians. Wherfore the name of the place is called, The mournynge of the Egyptians, and it is beyonde Jordane: And his sonnes dyd vnto him accordyng as he had commaunded the. For his sonnes carped hym * in to the lande of Canaan, and buried him in the double caue of the felde: whiche caue * Abraham boughte, and the felde also, to be a place to burye in, of Ephron the hethyte before Hamre. And Joseph returned in to Egypte agayne, he and his brethren (and all that went vp with him to burye his father,) as sone as he had buried hym.

And when Josephs brethren sawe that their father was dead, they sayde: Joseph myghte fortune to hate vs & * rewarde vs agayne all the euell which we dyd vnto him. And they dyd a commaundement vnto Joseph sayinge, thy father charged vs before his deeth sayinge: Thy wyfe shall ye saue vnto Joseph, for geue (I praye the) the trespasse of thy brethren, and theyr spynne: for they rewarded I euell. And nowe (we praye the) for geue the trespasse of the seruantes of thy fathers God. And Joseph wepte, when they spake vnto hym.

For his brethren came vnto hym, & fell flat before his face sayinge: beholde, we be thy seruantes. To who Joseph sayde * feare not. Am I God? ye thought euell agaynst me: but God turned it vnto good, to brynge to passe, as it is this daye, and to saue moche people alpye. Feare not therefore, nowe, I will nuryse you, and your chyldren, and he comforted them, & spake kindly vnto them.

Joseph dwelt in Egypte he and his fathers house, and Joseph lyued an hundred and x. yere. And Joseph sawe * Ephraims chyldren, euen vnto the thyrde generacyon. And vnto Machir the sonne of Manasses were chyldren borne, on Joseph knees.

And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren: I dye. And God wyll surely * vspett you & brynge you out of this lande, vnto the lande whych he sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And Joseph toke an ooth of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: God wyll not faile but vspett you: and ye shall carpe my * boones hence. And so

Joseph dyed, when he was an hundred & x. yere olde.

And they embawmed hym with spices, put = tynge him in a chest in Egypte.

The end of the fyrst booke of Moses: called in the he-bryue, Bereschyth, and in the Latyn, Genesis.

The second booke of Moses called in the hebrue: Meelles Schemoth: And in the Latin, Exodus.

The fyrst Chapter.

The chyldren of Jacob are nombred. The nyue wharao oppresseth them. The acte of the godly mydwines.

These are the names of the chyldren of Israel, which came to Egypte with Jacob, euery man came wth his household: Rubi, Simeon, Levi, and Iuda, Issachar zabulon, and Benjamin, Dan, Re-phtali, Gad and Aser. All the soules came out of the loynes of Jacob were lxx. But Joseph was in Egypte alledie. And Joseph dyed and all his brethren and all that generacyon, and the * chyldren of Israel grewe, encreased, multiplied, and waxed exceedingly myghtye: and the lande was full of them.

But there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypte whych knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto his folke: beholde, the people of the chyldren of Israel are greater and myghtyer than we. Come on, let vs playe wisely with the, lest they multiplye, & lest it happen, that (yf there chaunce any warre) they toyne the selues vnto oure enemyes and fyghe agaynst vs, and so gete them out of the lande.

Therefore dyd they sette taskmasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder w burthens. And they bylte vnto Pharaos treasure cities: Pithon and Rameses. But the more they vaxed the, the moare they multiplied and grewe, so that they abhorred the chyldren of Israel. And the Egyptians helde the chyldren of Israel in bondage without merce. Therefore was their lyfe bytter vnto the in that cruell bondage, in claye & byrche, and all maner of worke of felde. For all their bondage which they serued them, was full of tyrannye.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwines of the hebrues women, of which the ones name was Sephora and the other Phua: when ye do the offyce of a mydwife to the women of the hebrues and se in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, ye shall kyll it. But yf it be a daughter, it shall lyue. Not withstandinge the mydwines feared God and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them: but saued the men chyldren.

And the kynge of Egypte called for the mydwines and sayde vnto them: why haue ye delt on this maner, and haue saued the menchyldren? And the mydwines answered Pharaos, that the hebrues women are not as the women of Egypte: for they are sturdie women, and are deliuered per the mydwines come at the. And God therfore delt well with the mydwines. And the people multiplied and waxed very myghtye. And it fortuned because the mydwines feared God, he made them houses.

And Pharaos charged all his people, sayinge: All the menchyldren that are borne, cast into the ryuer, and saue the maydenchyldren alpye.

The seconde Chapter.

Moses is borne and cast into the flaggess. He is take vp of Pharaos daughter. He killeth the Egyptian. He fureth and marreth a wyfe. The Israelites come vnto the Lorde.

And ther went a ma of * the house of Lem. And toke a daughter of Lem. And the wyfe conceaued and bare a sonne. And when she sawe that it was a proper chyldre

* she hyd hym thre monethes. And when she coude no longer hyde him, she toke a basket of bulrushes and daubed it with syme and pytche, and layde the chyldre therein, and put it in the flaggess by the ryuers byrke. And his sister stode a farre of, to wete what wold come of it. * And the daughter of Pharaos came doun * to walke herselfe in the ryuer, and her maydens walked alonge by the ryuers syde. And when she sawe the basket amonge flaggess, she sent her mayde to fetch it. And when she had opened it, she sawe it was a chyldre: and beholde, the babe wepte. And she had compassyon on it, and sayde: it is one of the hebrues chyldren. Then sayde his syster vnto Pharaos daughter: shall I go and call vnto the a nurse of the hebrues women, to nurse the, the chyldre? Pharaos daughter answered her: Soo. And the mayde ranne and called the chyldres mother. To whom Pharaos daughter sayde: Take this chyldre a waye, and nurse it for me, I wyll rewarde the. And the woman toke the chyldre, and nursed it vp.

The chyldre grewe, & she brought it vnto Pharaos daughter, & it was made her sonne, & she called the name of it * Moses, because (sayde she) I toke him out of the water. And it happened in those dayes, when Moses was waxed waxed great, that he went out vnto his brethren and looked on their burdens, & spied an Egyptian smytynge an hebreue whych was one of hys brethren. And he looked rounde aboute, and when he sawe no mā by, he slew the Egyptian, and hyd him in the soude. And whā he was gone out another daye: beholde two hebreues strone to gether. And he sayde vnto hym that byd the wronge: wherfore smyttest thou thy fellowe? he answered: * who made thea man of auctoryte to iudge vs? Speakest thou to kyll me, as thou kyledst the Egyptian? And Moses feared & sayde: of a suertie thys thyng is knowne: And Pharaο herbe of it, and went aboute to see Moses: And Moses fleyge fro the face of Pharaο, dwelt in the lande of Midian, and he sat doune by a welles syde.

The preast of Midian had. vij. daughters which came and drew water, and fylled the troughes, for to water their fathers shepe. And the shepardes came & droue them a waye: but Moses stode by and helped the, and watered their shepe. And when they came to Raguel their father, he sayde: howe happeneth it y pe are come so soone to dayer? And they answered: a man of Egypte deliuered vs fro the hande of the shepardes, and so drew vs water, & watered the shepe. he sayde vnto hys daughters. And wher is he whyp haue ye so leste the man? Call hym that he maye cate bread. And Moses was content to dwell with the man. And he gaue Moses zephora hys daughter, which whan she bare a sonne. * called him Gerson: for he sayde: I haue bene a stranger in a strange lande.

And it chaunced in proccesse of tyme, that the kynge of Egypte dyed, and the chyldren of Israel syghed by the reason of bondage, and cryed. And their cōplaynt came vp vnto God from the bondage: and God hearde their mone. And God remembred hys promyse with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. And God looked vpon the chyldren of Israel, and God had respecte vnto them.

¶ The. iij. Chapter.

¶ Moses kepeth shepe. God appereth vnto hym in a bush, & sendeth hym to the chyldren of Israel, and to Pharaο that tprauue.

Moses kepte the shepe of * Jethro * hys father in lawe, preest of Midian, and he droue the flocke to the backeside of the desert, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb.

* And the angell of the Lorde appeared vnto him in a flame of fyre out of the myddes of a bush. And he looked, & beholde, p bush burned w fyre, and the bush was not consumed. Therfore Moses sayde: I wyll goo nowe, and see thys greute syght, howe it cometh p the bush burneth not. And when the Lorde sawe that he came for to see, God called vnto him out of the myddes of the bush, and sayde: Moses, Moses. he answered: here am I. And he sayde: * come not hither, put thy shoes of thy fete: for p place where on thou stondest is holy grounde. And he sayde: * I am the God of thy father, p God of Abraham, the God of Isaac & the God of Jacob. And Moses hyd his face, for he was afrayed to loke vpon God.

And the Lorde sayde: I haue surely sene the trouble of my people whych are in Egypte, and * haue herde theyr crye p from the face of their taskmasters. For I knowe their sorowes, and am come downe to deliuer them out of the hande of the Egyptians, and to bynge them out of that lande vnto a good lande and a large: and vnto a lande that floweth wyth mylke and hony: euen vnto the place of the Canaanites and hehtites, and Amozites, and Wherezites, and heuites, and of the Jebusites. Nowe therfore, the complaynt of the chyldren of Israel is come vnto me, and I haue also sene the oppresyon wherwith the Egyptians oppresse them. Come thou therfore, and I wyll sende the vnto Pharaο, that thou mayest bynge my people the chyldre of Israel out of Egypte. And Moses sayde vnto God: what am I to goo vnto Pharaο, and to bynge the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte? And he answered: I wyll be wyth the. And thys shalbe a token vnto the that I haue sent the: after that thou hast brought the people out of Egypte, ye shall serue God vpon thys mountayne.

And Moses sayde vnto God: beholde, when I come vnto the chyldren of Israel, I shall saye vnto them: the God of youre fathers hath sent me vnto you, and yf they saye vnto me, what is hys name, what answer shall I geue them? And God answered Moses: I am that I am: and he sayde: thys shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel. I am hath sent me vnto you. And God spake further vnto Moses: thus shalt thou saye vnto the chyldren of Israel * the Lorde God of youre fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob hath sent me vnto you: thys is my name for euer.

¶ For euer, and thys is my memorypall into generation and generation. Goo and gather the elders of Israel to gether, and thou shalt saye vnto them: the Lorde God of youre fathers, p God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob appeared vnto me, and sayde: In visitynge haue I visited you, and knowe that which is done to you in Egypte. And I haue sayde, I wyll bynge you out of the tribulacyon of Egypte vnto the lande of the Canaanites, and hehtites, and Amozites, and Wherezites, and heuites, and Jebusites: euen vnto a lande p floweth wyth mylke and hony.

And whan they heare thy voyce then goo, both thou and the elders of Israel shall go vnto the kynge of Egypte, and saye vnto him: The Lorde God of the hebreues hath met wyth vs: and nowe wyll we go therfore. iij. dayes iourney into the wylde rnell, and do sacrifice vnto the Lorde oure God. And I am sure, that the kynge of Egypte wyll not let you goo, no not in a myghte hande: and I wyll strecthe out myne hande and smyte Egypte wyth all my wonders which I will do in p myddes therof. And after p he wyll let you goo. And * I wyll gett thys people fauoure in p syghte of the Egyptians: so that when ye goo, ye shall not goo emptye: but a wyfe shall borrow of hie neyghboure, & of her that soeozneth in hie house, Jewels of syluer and of Gold and rayment. And ye shall put them on youre sonnes and daughters, & shall robbe the Egyptians.

¶ The. iij. Chapter.

¶ Moses receaued signes of his callinge and was sent into Egypte. Hys wyfe zephora circumcised hys sonne. Aaron meteth wyth Moses. Moses saith hys leuue of hys father in lawe.

Moses answered and sayde: Se, they wyll not beleue me nor herken vnto my voyce: but will saye the Lorde hath not apared vnto the. And p Lorde sayde vnto him: what is p whych is in thynne hande? he answered a rodd. And he sayde: cast it on p grounde. And he cast it on the grounde, and it became a serpent. And Moses fled from the syght of it. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: put forth thynne hande and take it by the tayle. And therfore he put forth hys hande & caught it, and it became a rodd in his hande. For thys thynge (sayeth he) shall they beleue the, that the Lorde God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac & the God of Jacob hath apared vnto the.

And the Lorde sayde forthermoze vnto hym: thrust thynne hande in to thy bosome. And he thrust hys hande in to hys bosome. And whā he toke it out agayne, beholde, his hande was leperous euen as snowe. And he sayde: put thynne hande in to thy bosome agayne. And he put hys hāde into his bosome agayne, and plucked it out of hys bosome, & beholde, it was turned agayne as hys other fleshe. Therfore yf they wyll not beleue the nether heare the voyce of the fyrst token, yet wyll they beleue for the voyce of the seconde token. But and yf they wyll not beleue the two signes, nether herken vnto thy voyce, thou shalt take of the water of the ryuer, & powze it vpon the drye lande. And p water which thou takest out of p ryuer, shall turne to bloude vpon the drye lande.

Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: oh my Lorde, I am not eloquent from pester daye & pester daye, & namely sence thou hast spokē vnto thy seruaute: but I am slowe mouthe and slowe tonged. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: who hath made mans mouth, or who hath made the domme or the deaff, the seynge or the blynde haue not I the Lorde? Therfore * I will be with thy mouth, & teache the what thou shalt saye. he sayde: oh my Lorde, sende I praye the p the hāde of him whom thou wilt sende. And p Lorde was angere with Moses, & sayde: do not I knowe Aaron thy brother the leuyste, that he can speake? For lo, he cometh furth to mete the, & when he seyth the, he wyll be glad in his herte. Therfore thou shalt speake vnto hym, and put these wordes in hys mouth, and I wyll be with thy mouth and wyth hys mouth, and wyll teache you what ye ought to do. And he shalbe thy spokesman vnto the people: & he also shall be thy mouth & thou shalt be hys God: and thou shalt take this rodd in thy hande, wherwith thou shalt do myracles.

Therfore Moses went and returned to Jethro hys father in lawe agayne, & sayde vnto him: I wyll go nowe, and turne agayne vnto my brethren whych are in Egypte, and se whether they be yet alyue. And Jethro sayde to Moses, goo in peace. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses in Midian: goo, and retorne agayne in to Egypte * for they are dead which wēt aboute to kyll the. And Moses toke hys wyfe, and his sonnes, & put the on an alle, and went agayne to Egypte, & Moses toke the rodd of God in his hande.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: when thou art entred & come into Egypte agayne, se that thou doo all the wonders before Pharaο which I haue put in thy hande: but I wyll holde * hys herte, and he shall not let the people goo. And thou shalt saye vnto Pharaο, thus sayeth the Lorde: Israel is myne eldest sonne, and I haue sayde vnto the that thou shuldest let my sonne goo, that he maye serue me. And thou woldest not let hym goo: beholde, I wyll * see thynne eldest sonne.

And it chaunced by the waye in the pynne that the Lorde mett hym, and wolde haue kyllled kyllid him. And zephora toke a stone, & cut a wape the forekynne of hyr sone, & fell at his fete, & sayde: a blondyhusbande art thou vnto me. Then he lett him goo. And the sayde: a blondyhusbande, because of the circumcyllion. Then sayde the Lorde vnto Aaron: go wete Moyses in the wilderness. And he went and met hym in the mount of God, and kyllid him. And Moyses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the Lorde which had sent him, and all the tokens which he had charged him withall. So went Moyses & Aaron and gathered all the elders of the chyldre of Israel. And Aaron tolde all the wordes whych the Lorde had spoken vnto Moyses, and byd the myracles in the syght of the people, and the people belecud. And whē they herde that the Lorde had visited the chyldren of Israel and had looked vpon their tribulacyn, they bowed their head, and woxypped.

C The. v. Chapter.

Moyses & Aaron goeth vnto Pharaon. The people of Israel are oppressed more and more, & they crye oute vpon Moyses & Aaron therfore.

Moyses & Aaron went in after warde, and tolde Pharaon, thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: Let my people goo, that they maye kepe holyc dave vnto me in the wilderness. And Pharaon sayde: who * is þe Lorde, that I shulde heare hys voyce, & let Israel go? I knowe not the Lorde, nether will I let Israel goo. And they sayde: the God of the hebreus hath mett with vs: and therfore wyl we go. lii. dayes iourney into the deserte, and sacrifice vnto the Lorde oure God: lest there happen vnto vs ether pestylence or swerde. Then sayde the kynge of Egypte vnto them: wherfore do ye, Moyses and Aaron let the people from their worke, get you vnto your labour. And Pharaon sayde furthermore: beholde, there is moche people now in the lande, and ye make them leaue their worke.

And Pharaon commaunded the same dave vnto the taskemasters which were amonge the people, and vnto the offycers, sayinge: ye shall gene the people no more strawe, to make bycke wyth all, (as ye byd in tyme past.) let them goo and gather them strawe them selues and the nombre of bycke whych they were wont to make in tyme past, laye vnto their charges also, and mynysh nothyng therof. For they be ydell and therfore sayinge: we wyl goo & do sacrifice vnto oure God. They must haue more worke layd vpon them, that they maye labour therein, & not regarde vayne wordes.

Then went the taskemasters of the people and the offycers out: and tolde the people Thus sayeth Pharaon: I wyl gene you no moare strawe, goo poure selues and gather you strawe where ye can fynde it, yet shall none of poure labour be mynyshed. And so were þe people scattered abrode thowowe out all the lande of Egypte for to gather stubbyll in stead of strawe.

And the taskemasters hastid them forwarde sayinge: fulfyll poure worke dave by dave, euen as yf ye had strawe. And the offycers of the chyldren of Israel whych Pharaos taskemasters had sett ouer them, were beat. And they sayde vnto them: wherfore haue ye not fulfyllid poure taske in makinge bycke, both yesterdave and to dave, as well as in tymes past?

The offycers also of the chyldre of Israel came & complayned vnto Pharaon, sayinge: wherfore dealest thou thus wyth thy seruantes? there is no strawe gene vnto thy seruantes, and they saye vnto vs: make bycke. And thy seruantes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. He sayde: ydell ar ye, ydell, and therfore ye saye: We wyl goo and do sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Sootherfore now and worke, and ther shall no strawe be gene you, and yet shall ye deliuer the hole tale of bycke.

And the offycers of the chyldren of Israel byd wyth heynnes loke on them that sayde: ye shall mynysh the nothyng of poure daylye makinge of bycke. And they mett Moyses and Aarō, which stode in there wape as they came out frō Pharaon, & sayde vnto the: The Lorde loke vnto you and iudge you, whych hath made the sauoure of vs sincke in þe eyes of Pharaon & in the eyes of his seruantes, and haue put a swerde in their hande to sle vs.

Moyses returned vnto the Lorde & sayde: Lorde wherfore hast thou dealede cruelly w this people: and wherfore hast thou sent me? For sence I came to Pharaon to speake in thy name, he hath fared foule wyth thys folke, and yet thou hast not deliuered thy people at all. Then the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Howe shalt thou see, what I wyl doo vnto Pharaon, for in a myghtye hande shall he let them goo, and * in a myghtye hande shall he bypue them out of hys lande.

C The. vi. Chapter.

God promyseth deliuerance of the Israelites, and the lande of Canaan. The genealogie of Iacob, Simeon and Levi.

And God spake vnto Moyses, and sayde vnto him: I am the Lorde, I appeared vnto Abraham Isahac and Jacob as an allmyghtye God: and in my name Iehouah was I not knowne vnto them. Moyses ouer * I made an appoyntment with them to gene the lande of Canaan: þe lande of their pilgremage where in thy were straungers. And I haue also herde the groynge of the chyldren of Israel, whiche Egyptians kepe in bondage.

Wherfore saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: I am the Lorde, I wyl bypunge you out from þe burdens of the Egyptians, and wyl rydd you out of their bondage, & wyl deliuer you in a stretched out arme and in great iudgementes. And I wyl take you for my people, & wyl be to you a God. And ye shall knowe, þe I am the Lorde poure God which bypunge you out frō the burdens of the Egyptians. And I wyl bypunge you vnto the lande concernyng the whych I byd lyft vp my hāde to geue it vnto Abraham, Isahac and Jacob, and wyl gene it vnto you for a posselcion: euen I the Lorde. And Moyses tolde the chyldren of Israel eue so: But they harkened not vnto Moyses, for anguythe of sprete and for cruel bondage.

The Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: Goo in, & speake vnto Pharaon kynge of Egypte, that he let the chyldren of Israel goo out of hys lande. And Moyses spake before the Lorde sayinge: beholde, the chyldren of Israel herken not vnto me, howe than shall Pharaon heare me? which am of vncircumcised lippes? And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and vnto Aaron, and gaue them a charge vnto the chyldren of Israel and vnto Pharaon kynge of Egypte: to bypunge the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte. These be the heedes of theyr fathers houses. The chyldren of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel are these: Hanoh, and Pallu, Hebron, and Charimi, these be the householde of Ruben. The chyldren of Simeon: Semuel, and Jamin, Obad, and Jachim, zohar, Ad Saul the sonne of a Cananytch wyfe: these are the kynredde of Simeon. These also * are the names of the chyldren of Levi in their generations: Gerson, and kahath and Merari. Levi lyued an hundred & xxxviij. yere. The sonnes of Gerson: Libni and Semci by their kynredde. The chyldre of kahath: Amram, and Jesear, Hebron and Eliel. And kahath lyued an hundred and xxxiiij. yere. The chyldren of Merari: Gabel and Musi: these are the kynredde of Levi by their generations.

* Amram toke * Jochebed hys nece to wyfe and she bare hym Aaron and Moyses. (And Miriam.) And Amram lyued an hundred and xxxviij. yere. The chyldren of Jezeab, kozab, Nepheg and Sichzi: The chyldre of Eliel: Misael, Elzaphan and Sichzi. And Aaron toke Elizaba daughter of Aminadab and syster of Nabalon, to wyfe: whych bare hym Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ichamar. The chyldren of kozab: Alie, and Elkana and Abiasaph: these are the kynredde of the kozabites. Eleazar Aarons sonne toke him one of the daughters of Putuel to wife, which bare him Pinchas:

and these be the pyncipall fathers of the Levites thowowe out their kynredde. This is that Aaron and Moyses to whō the Lorde sayde: carpe the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte, accordyng to theyr armys. These are þe Moyses and Aaron whych spake to Pharaon kynge of Egypte, that they myghte bypunge the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte. And in the dave when the Lorde spake vnto Moyses in the lande of Egypte, he spake vnto hym, sayinge: I am the Lorde. speake thou vnto Pharaon þe kynge of Egypte all that I saye vnto þe. And Moyses sayde before the Lorde: Beholde, I am of * vncircumcised lippes, and howe shall Pharaon geue me audience?

C The. vii. Chapter.

The tokens to knowe God. The robbe of Moyses is toyned to a serpe. The soycers do euen the same. The waters are touried into bloude.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: beholde, I haue made the Pharaos God, and Aaron thy brother shall be thy pphete. Thou shalt speake all that I commaunded the, and Aaron thy brother shall speake vnto Pharaon, that he sende the chyldren of Israel out of hys lande. And * I wyl harden Pharaos bert, and multiple my myracles and my wondres in the lande of Egypte. But Pharaon shall not herken vnto you, that I maye sett myne hand vpon Egypte, and bypunge out myne armys, and my people the chyldren of Israel out of the lāde of Egypte, in great iudgementes, and the Egyptians shall knowe, that I am the Lorde: when I stretch forth my hande vpon Egypte, and bypunge out the chyldren of Israel from amonge them.

Moyses and Aaron byd as the Lorde commaunded the, euen so byd they. Moyses was 137. yere olde, and Aaron. 123. whē they spake vnto Pharaon. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayinge: yf Pharaon speake vnto you sayinge: We we a wondre, thou shalt saye vnto Aaron: take thy rodd and cast it before Pharaon, that it maye be a serpent. Then went Moyses and Aaron in vnto Pharaon, and byd euen as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron cast forth his rodd before Pharaon and before his seruantes * and it turned to a serpente. Then Pharaon called for the wyse men and * enchaunters, & those wyse men of Egypte byd in like maner w there soycery. For they cast downe euery man hys rodd, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodd byd rate vp theyr rodde: and he hardened Pharaos herte: that he herkened not vnto them, euen as the Lorde had sayde.

The Lorde also sayde vnto Moyses. Pharaos herte is hardened, he refuseth to let the people people go. Get thee unto Pharaoh: for I say unto him, he will come unto the water, and thou shalt stand upon the rivers: by the way, he will come, and the river will be turned to a serpent, that thou take in thine hand. And thou shalt say unto him, the Lord God of the Hebrews hath sent me unto thee, saying: let my people go, that they may serve me in the wilderness. And behold, by the river thou wilt not hear. Thus saith the Lord: In this thou shalt know that I am the Lord. Behold, I will smite (with the staffe) the water that is in the river, and it shall turne to bloud. And the fishes that are in the river shall dye, and the river shall stinke: and it shall greve the Egyptians to drinke of the water of the river.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saye unto Aaron: take thy staffe, and stretch out thine hande over the waters of Egypt, over their streames, over their rivers and pouders, and all pooles of water; which they haue, & they shall be bloud, and that there shall be bloud thowout all the lande of Egypt: both in vessels of wood and also of stone.

And Moses and Aaron dyd euen as the Lord commaunded. And he lyfte by the staffe and smote the waters that were in the river in the syghte of Pharaoh and in the syghte of his seruantes, and all the water that was in the river, turned into bloud. And the fishes that was in the river dyed: and the river stank: and the Egyptians coulde not drinke of the waters of the river. And there was bloud thowout all the lande of Egypt.

And the enchaunters of Egypt dyd lyke wyse with their sozceries, and he hardened Pharaohs hert: neyther dyd he harken unto them: as the Lord had sayde. And Pharaoh turned hym selfe, and went agayne into his house, and let not his people there. And the Egyptians dygged rounde aboute the river for water to drinke, for they coulde not drinke of the water of the river. And it continued a weke after that the Lord had smitten the river.

The viij. Chapter.

The plague of frogs. Moses prayeth for Pharaoh. The plague of flies.

The Lord spake unto Moses: Go unto Pharaoh and tell him, thus sayeth the Lord: Let my people go, that they may serve me. If thou wilt not let them go, behold, I will smyte all thy border with frogs. And the river shall be full with frogs, which shall go by and come into thine house and into thy prey chamber where thou sleepest, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy seruantes; & upon thy people, and into thine ouens, and upon thy meates. And the frogs shall come vpon the and on thy people and vpon all thy seruantes.

And the Lord spake unto Moses: saye unto Aaron: stretch forth thine hande with thy rodde over the streames, ouer the rivers, and ouer the poudes; that thou mayest bring vpon frogs vpon the lande of Egypt. And Aaron stretched his hande over the waters of Egypt, and the frogs came vpon, & couered the lande of Egypt. And the sozcerers dyd lyke wyse with their sozcery, and brought frogs vpon the lande of Egypt.

Then Pharaoh called for Moses & Aaron and sayde: praye ye vnto the Lord, that he maye take away the frogs from me & from my people, and I will let the people go, that they maye do sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses sayde vnto Pharaoh: tel thyselfe thou ouer me, and appoynte when I shall praye for the and for thy seruantes, and for thy people, to drye away the frogs fro the, and thy houses, and that they maye remayne but in the river only. He sayde: tomorowe. And he sayde: euen as thou hast sayde, that thou mayest knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lord oure God. And so the frogs shall departe from the and from thy houses, from thy seruantes and from thy people, and shall remayne in the river only.

Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh, and Moses cryed vnto the Lord vpon the apoyntment of frogs, which he had made vnto Pharaoh. And the Lord dyd accordinge to the sayinge of Moses. And the frogs dyed out of the houses, out of the courtes and felde. And they gathered them together vpon heapes, & the lande stank of them.

But when Pharaoh sawe that he had rest geuen him, he hardened his hert and hearkened not vnto them, as the Lord had sayde. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron: stretch out thy rodde and smyte the dust of the lande, that it maye turne to lyle thowout all the lande of Egypt. And they dyd so. For Aaron stretched out his hande & with his rodde he smote the dust of the earth, which turned to lyle in man and best, so that all the dust of the lande turned to lyle, thowout all the lande of Egypt.

And the enchaunters all sayde lyke wyse with their enchauntmentes, to bryng forth lyle, but they coulde not. And the lyle were both vpon men and bestes. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharaoh: it is the synge of God. And Pharaohs hart remayned obstinate, and he harkened not vnto them, euen as the Lord had sayde.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: ryle vpon early vpon early in the morning, and stande before Pharaoh. For he will come forth vnto the water: and thou shalt saye vnto him: thus sayeth the Lord: Let my people go, that they maye serue me. Else, yf thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will sende all manner of flies both vpon the and thy seruantes, and thy people, and into the houses. And the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of flies, and the grounde wheron they are. And the lande of Goshen where my people are, will I cause to be wonderfull in that daye: so that there shall no flies be there. Whereby thou shalt knowe, that I am the Lord in the myddes of the earth. And I will put a diuision betwene my people and thine. And euen tomorowe shall this myracle be done.

The Lord dyd euen so: and there came noysome flies into the house of Pharaoh, and into his seruantes houses, and into all the lande of Egypt: and the lande was corrupte with these flies. And Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Go, and do sacrifice vnto poure God in the lande. And Moses answered: it is not mete that we so do. For then we must offer vnto the Lord oure God, that which is an abomination vnto the Egyptians. But and yf we sacrifice that, which is an abomination vnto the Egyptians before their eyes, shulde they not stone vs? we will go thre dayes iourney into the deserte, and sacrifice vnto the Lord oure God as he hath commaunded vs.

And Pharaoh sayd: I will let you go, that ye maye sacrifice vnto the Lord poure God in the wilderness: but go not farre away, praye for me. And Moses sayde: beholde, I will go out fro the, & praye vnto the Lord, that the flies maye departe from Pharaoh, & from his seruantes and from his people to morow. But let Pharaoh from henceforth decreane nomore, that he will not let the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lord.

And Moses went out from Pharaoh, and prayed vnto the Lord. And the Lord dyd accordinge to the sayinge of Moses: and the flies departed from Pharaoh, and from his seruantes, and from his people, and there remayned not one. And Pharaoh hardened his hert euen then also, and dyd not let the people go.

The ix. Chapter.

The moyn of beastes. The plague of botches and sores. The horrible haile, thowder and lightning.

The Lord sayd vnto Moses: go in vnto Pharaoh and thou shalt tell him: thus sayeth the Lord God of the Hebrews: Let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, and wilt holde them still, behold, the hande of the Lord is vpon thy flocke which is in the felde: for vpon horses, asses, camels, oxen and shepe, there shall be a mighty great moyn. And the Lord shall do wonderfully betwene the beastes of Israel and the beastes of Egypt: so that there shall nothyng dye of all that pertaineth to the children of Israel. And the Lord appointed a tyme, saying: to morow the Lord shall shew this worde in the lande.

And the Lord dyd it on the morow, and all the catell of Egypt dyed: but of the catell of the children of Israel dyed not one. And Pharaoh sent, and beholde, there was not one of the catell of Israelites dead. And Pharaohs hert was hardened that he wolde not let the people go.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: take poure handes full of ashes out of the fornace, and Moses shall spynke it vnto the ayre, in the syght of Pharaoh, and it shall turne to dust in all the lande of Egypt: that there maye be swelling sores with blaynes both on man and beaste thowout all the lande of Egypt. And they toke ashes out of the fornace, and stood before Pharaoh, and Moses spynked it vnto the ayre. And there were sores with blaynes both in men and in beastes: and the sozcerers coulde not stande before Moses because of the blaynes: for ther were botches vpon the enchaunters & vpon all the Egyptians. And Pharaoh hardened the hert of Pharaoh, & he hearkened not vnto the, as the Lord had sayd vnto Moses.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: ryle vpon early in the morning, and stande before Pharaoh, & thou shalt tell hym: thus sayeth the Lord God of the Hebrews: Let my people go, that they maye serue me: or else I will at this tyme sende all my plagues vpon thine herte, and vpon thy seruantes and on thy people, that thou mayest knowe, that there is none lyke me in all the earth. For nowe I will stretch out my hande, that I maye smyte the and thy people with pestilence: and thou shalt perishe from the earth. And in very dede: for this cause haue I kepte the, for to shewe the my power: and that they might declare my name thowout all the world.

Yet thou exaltest thy selfe agaynst my people, that thou wilt not let them go: behold, to morowe this tyme I will sende downe a myghty greete haile: euen soche a one as was not in Egypt, sens it was grounded vnto this tyme. Sende therfore nowe, and gather thy beastes, and all that thou hast in the felde: for vpon all the men and the beastes which are founde in the felde, and not brought home, shall the haile fall, and they shall dye. And as many as feared the worde of the Lord among the seruantes of Pharaoh, made their seruantes and their beastes flee into the houses: but he that regarded not the worde of the Lord, left his seruants.

E And the Lorde said vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hande vnto heauen, that there maye be hayle in all the lande of Egypt: vpon man and vpon beastes and vpon all the herbes of the felde, thozowout plade of Egypt. And Moses stretched out his rod vnto heauen: and the Lorde thondred and hayled, and the fyre ran a longe vpon the groude. * And the Lorde so hayled in the lande of Egypt, y there was hayle and fyre mengled with the hayle, so greuous, and such as there was none thozowout all the lande of Egypt, sence people inhabited it. And y hayle smote thozowout all the lande of Egypt, all that was in the felde both mā and beast. And the hayle smote all the herbes of the felde, and broke all the trees of the felde: onely in the lade of Gozan, where the chyldren of Israel were, was there no hayle. And Pharao sent & called for Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto the: I haue nowe synned: the Lorde is ryghteous: and I and my people are vngodly. * Praye ye vnto the Lorde: for it is moch that there shulde be thonders of God & hayle. I will let you go, and ye shall tary no longer. Moses sayde vnto him: as sone as I am out of the cite, I will spede abroad my handes vnto the Lorde, & the thoder shall cease. nether shall there be eny more hayle, y thou mayst knowe howe y the erth is the Lordes. But I knowe that thou and thy seruautes yet feare not the face of the Lorde God.

E And so the flaxe and the barley were smyten: for the barley was shot vp, and the flaxe was bouled: but the whete and the rye were not smyten: for they were late sowne.

And Moses went out of the cite from Pharao and spede abroad his handes vnto the Lorde: and the thonder and hayle ceased nether rayned it vpon the earth. And when Pharao sawe that the rayne and the hayle and thonder were ceased, he synned agayne: and hardened his herte, he and his seruautes. And the herte of Pharao was hardened: nether wolde he let the chyldren of Israel go, as the Lorde had sayde by y the hande of Moses.

The .x. Chapter.

The herte of Pharao is hardened of God. The grethoppers. The thicke darckenes.

E And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go in vnto Pharao: for I haue hardened his herte and the herte of his seruautes, that I might put these my sygnes amongest them: and that thou tell in the audience of thy sonne, and of thy sonnes sonne, what thynges I haue done in Egypt, and the myracles which I haue done amonge them: y ye maye knowe howe that I am the Lorde. And so Moses and Aaron came vnto Pharao, & sayd vnto him: Thus sayth the Lorde God of the Ebyues: howe longe shall it be o? y wilt submitte thy selfe vnto me? * Let my people go, y they maye serue me. Or els, * (y thou do resist:) and wilt not let my people go, behold, to morow will I bring grethoppers into thy coastes, & they shall couer the face of the earth, that it cannot be sene: and they shall eate the residue which remaineth vnto you, and is escaped fro the hayle: & they shall eate euery grene tree that beareth you frute in the felde, and they shall fyl thy houses, and all thy seruautes houses, and the houses of all the Egyptians after soche a manner as nether thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers haue sene, sence the time they were vpon the earth vnto this daye. And he turned him selfe aboute, and went out from Pharao.

And Pharao's seruautes sayd vnto him: howe longe shall he be a slaunders vnto vs? Let the me go, that they maye serue y Lorde their God: knowest thou not yet y Egypt is destroyed? And Moses & Aaron were brought agayne vnto Pharao, and he sayde vnto them: Go, and serue the Lorde poure God. Who are they that shall go? And Moses answered: we will go with oure ponge and with oure olde: yee, and with oure sonnes and with oure daughters, and with oure shepe, and with oure oxen we must go. For we must holde a feaste vnto the Lorde.

And he sayde vnto them: let it be so. The Lorde be with you. When I let you go, and your chyldren also take hede, for ye haue some mischefe in hande. Rape, not so: but go they that are men, and serue the Lorde: for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out of Pharao's presence.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Stretch out thyne hande ouer the lande of Egypt for grethoppers, that they maye come vpon the lande of Egypt, and eate all the herbes of y lande, & all that the hayle left behynde. And Moses stretched forth his rod ouer the lade of Egypt: & the Lorde brought an east winde vpon the lande, all that daye, and all that nyght. And in the morning, the east wynde brought the grethoppers, and the grethoppers went vp ouer all the lande of Egypt: and remayned in all quarters of Egypt very greuously. Before them were ther no such grethoppers, nether after them shalbe: for they couered all the face of the earth: so that the land was darke. And they dyd eate all the herbes of the lande, and all the frutes of the trees, and whatseuer the hayle had lefte: there was no grene thinge lefte in the trees and herbes of the felde thozowe all the lande of Egypt.

Therefore Pharao called for Moses & Aaron in haste, & sayde: I haue synned agaynst y Lorde

Lozde poure God & against you. And nowe forgene me my sinne only this once: & pray vnto the Lorde poure God, that he maye take awaye from me y this deeth only. And Moses went out from Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lorde: & the Lorde turned a myghty strong west winde, and it toke awaye y grethoppers and cast them into the redd see: so that there was not one grethopper in all the coaste of Egypt. And the Lorde * hardened Pharao's herte, so that he wolde not lett the chyldren of Israel go.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: stretch out thy hande vnto heauen, that there maye be vpon the lande of Egypt darcknes, which maye be felt. And Moses stretched forth his hande vnto heauen, and there was a thicke darcknes vpon all the lande of Egypt thre dayes longe, no man sawe another, nether rose vp from the place where he was by the space of thre dayes: but all the chyldren of Israel had lyght where they dwelled.

And Pharao called for Moses, & sayde: go, and serue the Lorde, only let poure shepe and poure oxen abyde, and let your chyldren go with you. And Moses sayde: thou must geue vs also offeringes and burnt offeringes for to sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God: our cattell also shall go with vs, & there shall not one hofte be left behinde: for therof must we take to serue the Lorde oure God. Nether do we knowe what we shall offre vnto the Lorde, vntyll we come thither.

But the Lorde hardened Pharao's herte: and he wolde not let them go. And Pharao sayde vnto him: get the fro me, and take hede to thy selfe, and se my face nomore. For wher sencer thou comest in my syght, thou shalt dye. And Moses latde: Let it be as thou hast sayde, I wyll se thy face nomore.

The .xi. Chapter.

The Lorde commaundeth to rote the Egyptians. The deeth of all the fyrst begotten in Egypt.

E And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: yet wyll I bynge one plage more vpon Pharao and vpon Egypt: and after that, he wyll let you go hence. And when he letteth you go, he shall vtterly dzyne you hence. Speake thou therfore in the eares of the people, that euery mā borowe of his neyghbour, and euery womā of her neyghbours * iewels of syluer and iewels of golde. And the Lorde shall gyue the people fauour in the syght of the Egyptians. Mozeouer, * Moses was very great in the lande of Egypt, in the syght of Pharao's seruautes and in the syght of the people.

And Moses sayde: thus sayth the Lorde: * At mynyngh wyll I go out into the middes of Egypt, and all the fyrste bozne in the lande of Egypt shall dye, enen from the fyrst bozne of Pharao y sytteth on his seate, vnto the fyrst bozne of the mayde seruaunte that is behynde the mylle, and all the fyrste gedred of the cattell. And there shalbe a great crye thozowout all the lande of Egypt, such as there was neuer none lyke, nor shalbe.

But amonge the chyldren of Israel, shall not a dogge moue his tonge, nor yet man or beast: y ye maye knowe howe y the Lorde, (by a great miracle) putteth a differēce betwene the Egyptians and Israel. And these thy seruautes shall all come downe vnto me. And fall befoze me, and saye: gett the out and all the people that are vnder the, and then wyll I departe. And he went oute from Pharao with an angry countenance.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Pharao shall not heare you, y my wonders may be multiplyed in the lande of Egypt. And Moses and Aaron dyd all these wonders. (And tokens which are written) befoze Pharao. And the Lorde hardened Pharao's herte, so that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israel go out of his lande.

The .xii. Chapter.

The pascouer is eaten. The swete byrde. They must teache their chyldren tobat the pascouer signyfeth. The destruction of the fyrst begotten in Egypt. The robbery of the Egyptians. The goynge oute of the Israelites.

And y Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron in the lande of Egypt, sayinge: Thys monethe shalbe vnto you the beginning of monethes: and the fyrst moneth of the yere shall it be vnto you.

Speake ye vnto all the congregacyō of Israel, sayinge: In the .x. daye of thys moneth, euery man take vnto him a lambe, according to the house of the fathers, a labe thozowout euery house. If the houtholde be to lytle for the lambe, let hym take hym neyghboure which is nexte vnto his house, according to the nombre of the soules: euery one of you, according to his eating, shal make your counte for a lambe. And let y lambe of yours be wout blemyshe, a male of a yere olde, which ye shall take out from amonge the shepe, or from amonge the goates.

And ye shall kepe him in vntyll the .xiiij. daye of the same moneth. And euery man of the multitude of Israel shall kyl him about enē. And they shall take of the blood, & strike it on the .ij. syde postes & on y upper doze post enē in the houses, where they shall eate hym. And they shall eate the flece the same nyght: rost w fyre & w vncledded bread, & w sowe herbes they shall eate it. Se that ye eate not therof rawe ne soden in water, but rost w fier: the head, fete, & purtenaice therof. And ye shall let nothyng of it remayne vnto the morning. That which remayneth of it vntyll the morowe, shall ye burne with fyre.

Of this maner shall ye eate it: with your loynes

loynes gyrded, and your shoes on your fete, and your staves in your handes. And ye shall eate it in haste: for it is the Lordes pascouer: for I wyll passe thowre the lande of Egypt this same nyght, and wyll smyte all the first borne in the land of Egypt, both of man and beast, and vpon all the goddes of Egypt will I the Lord do execution. And the bloude shall be vnto you a toke in y^e houses wherein ye are. And when I se the bloud, I will passe ouer you, and the plage shal not be vpon you to destroye you, when I smyte the lande of Egypt.

And this daye shalbe vnto you a remembrance: and ye shall kepe it holy vnto the Lord, euen thowout youre generations shall ye kepe it holy dare, that it be a custome for euer. * Seuen dayes shall ye eat unleuened bread: and the fyrste daye ye shall put awaye leuen out of youre houses. For whosoener eateth leuened bread from the fyrst daye vntill the seuenth daye, that soule shalbe plucked out fro Israel. * The fyrste daye shalbe an holy conuocation, and the seuenth daye shalbe an holy conuocation vnto you. There shalbe no maner of worke done in them, save about that onely which every man must eate, that onely maye ye do. And ye shall obserue unleuened bread. For this same daye haue I brought your armyes out of the lande of Egypt, therfore ye shall obserue this daye, & all your chyldre after you, by a custome for euer. * The fyrst moneth and the .xiiij. daye of the moneth at euen, ye shall eate swete bread vnto the .xxj. daye of the moneth at euen agayne. Seuen dayes shall there be no leuened breade founde in youre houses. And whosoener eateth leuened bread, that soule shalbe rote out from y^e multitude of Israel: whpther he be a stranger or borne in the lande. Ye shall eate no thyng leuened: but in all your habitations shall ye eate swete bread.

Moses called for the elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: chole out and take you to every household of you a shepe, and kyll it for pascouer. And take a bunche of yflope, & dyp it in the bloude that is in the basen, and stryke the vpperposte and the two syde postes with the bloud that is in the basen, and none of you go out at the doore of y^e house, vntill the moorning. For the Lord will go about to smyte the Egyptians. And whē he seeth the bloude vpon the vpper doore poste & on the two syde postes: he will passe ouer the doore, and will not suffer y^e destroyer to come into your house to plage you. Therfore shall ye obserue this thing, that it be an ordinaunce both to the and thy sonnes for euer.

And whē ye become into the land which the Lord wyll geue you, accordynge as he hath promysed, ye shall kepe thys seruyce.

* And when your chyldren aske you what maner of seruyce is this ye do, ye shall saye. It is the sacrifice of the Lordes pascouer, which passed ouer the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt, as he smote the Egyptians, and saved oure houses. And the people bowed them selues, and worshipped: And the chyldren of Israel wēt, and dyd as the Lord had commaunded Moses and Aaron. Euen so dyd they.

And at mydnight, the Lord smote all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypt, from the fyrst borne of Pharaos that satte on y^e seate, vnto the fyrst borne of the captiue y^e was in y^e prison: and all the fyrste gender of catell. And Pharaos arose in the nyght, he and all his seruantes and all the Egyptians: * and there was a greete cryng in Egypt: for there was no house where there was not one deere.

And he called vnto Moses and Aaron by nyght, saying: ryle vp, and get you oute from amonge my people: both ye and also the chyldre of Israel, and go and serue the Lord as ye haue sayde. And take youre shepe and your droues with you as ye haue sayde, and departe and * blesse me. And the Egyptians were fierce vpon the people, that they myght sende them out of the lande in haste: for they sayde: we dye all.

And the people toke their dowgh before it was sowred, and they vitayles bounde in clothes vpon theyr shoulers. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge to the saying of Moses: and they borrowed of the Egyptians * iewelles of siluer, and iewelles of golde, and rayment. And the Lord gaue the people fauoure in the syght of the Egyptians: so that they graunted such thinges as they required. And they robbed the Egyptians. And the chyldren of Israel toke their iorneye from Rameses to Suchoth * syre hundred thousande men of fote, helpe chyldren. And moche comon people went also with them, and shepe, and oxen, an exceedynge great flocke. And they baked swete cakes of y^e dowgh which they brought out of Egypt, for it was not sowred. For when they were thrust oute by the Egyptians, they coulde not tarye to prepare them selues any prouision of meate.

The dwellinge of the chyldren of Israel, which they dwelled in Egypt, was * .iiij. hundred and .xxx. yeres: and when the .iiij. hundred and .xxx. yeres were expired, euen the selfe same daye departed all the hostes of the Lord out of the lande of Egypt. It is a nyght to be obserued to the Lord, in the which he brought them oute of the lande of Egypt. Thys is that nyght of the Lord which all the chyldren of Israel muste kepe thowout theyr generations.

And

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses and Aaron: This is the lawe of pascouer: there shall no strainger eate therof. But every seruant that is bought for money (after that thou hast circumcised him) shall eate therof. A strainger and a hyerd seruant shall not eate therof. In one house shall it be eaten. Thou shalt carpe none of the fleshe oute at the house. * Neether shall ye breake a bone therof. All the multitude shall obserue it.

If a strainger also dwell amonge you, & will holde pascouer vnto the Lord, let him circuncise all that be males: and then lett him come and obserue it, and he shall be as one that is borne in the lande. For no vncircumcised persone shall eate therof. One manner of lawe shalbe vnto him that is borne in the lande, and vnto the strainger that dwelleth amonge you. And all the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lord commaunded Moses and Aaron. Euen so dyd they. And y^e selfe same daye dyd the Lord bring the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypt with their armyes.

The .xiiij. Chapter.

The fyrst begotten must be sanctified vnto the Lord. The memoriall of theyr deliuerance. Why they were carped thowre the wilderness. The bones of Joseph. The pylle of the cloude.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: * Sanctify vnto me all the first borne, that open all maner matrices amonge the chyldren of Israel as well of man as of beast: for it is myne. And Moses sayd vnto y^e people: thynke on this daye in which ye came out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage: for thowre a myghtye hande the Lord brought you out from thence. There shall no leuened bread be eaten. This daye come ye out in the moneth when cozne be ginneth to ryse.

When the Lord hath brought the into the lande of the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Hittites & Jebusites: * which he swaie vnto thy fathers that he wold geue the a lande wherein mylke & hony floweth, thou shalt kepe this scrutice in thys same moneth: Seuen dayes thou shalt eate swete bread: and in the .seuenth daye, it is the feaste of the Lord. Swete bread shalbe eaten seue daies: and ther shall no leuened bread be sene, nor yet leuen with the in all thy quarters.

And thou shalt shewe thy sonne in y^e date sayinge: this is done, because of that which the Lord dyd vnto me, when I came out of Egypt. And it shalbe a signe vnto the vpon thyne hande, and for a remembrance betwene thyne eyes, & the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouth. For * in a stronge hande the Lord brought the out of Egypt. Kepe therfore this ordynance in his season fro yere to yere. And it will come to passe, that the Lord shall bring the into the lande of the Ca-nanites, which he * swaie vnto the and to thy fathers: and shall geue it the. And then thou shalt appointe vnto the Lord all that openeth the matrice. * And every cast thing, & fyrst doth opē the matrice of a beast which thou hast: yf they be males, they shall be the Lordes. And every fyrst gender of an asse, thou shalt redeme with a labe: yf thou redeme him not, thou shalt breake his neck. All the fyrst borne amonge thy chyldren also, shalt thou bye out.

And when thy sonne asketh y^e to morrowe, sayinge what is this, thou shalt saye vnto him: With a myghtye hande the Lord brought vs out of Egypt, out of the house of bondage. And when Pharaos was looth to let vs go, the Lord slewe all the first borne in the lande of Egypt: as well the fyrste borne of man as of beast. Therfore I sacrifice vnto the Lord all the males that opē the matrice, and all the fyrst borne of my chyldre I redeme. This shalbe a toke vpon thyne hande, and a remembrance betwene thyne eyes, & the Lord brought vs out of Egypt thowre a myghtye hande.

It came to passe, that whan Pharaos had led the people go, God carped them not thowre the waye and lande of the Philistines, which was the more nyce waye. But God sayde: lest the people haply repēt whā they se warre: & so turne agayne to Egypt. But God led the people about thowre the waye of the wilderness of the redd see. And the chyldren of Israel went by harnessed out of the lande of Egypt. And Moses toke the bones of Joseph with him: for he made the chyldren of Israel swere, saying * God will surely viset you, and ye shall take my bones awaye hens with you. * And they toke their iorneye from Suchoth: and abode in Etham in the edge of the wilderness. * And y^e Lord wente before them by daye in a pylle of a cloude to leade them the waye: and by nyght in a pylle of fyre to geue them lyght, & they might go both by daye and nyght. * The pylle of the cloude departed not by daye, nor the pylle of fyre by night out of y^e sight of the people.

The .xiiij. Chapter.

Pharaos heart is hardened and followeth the Israelites with all his host and captaynes, and is drowned. The Israelites grudge. They go thowre the redd see.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: * Speake to the chyldren of Israel, that they turne and remayne before Pi Hicroth betwene Migdol and the see, oueragaynst * Baalzephon: and before that shall they pitch by the see. For Pharaos wyll saye of the chyldren of Israel: they are tangled in the lande, the wilderness hath shut the in. And I will harden Pharaos heart, that he shall folowe after you: and I will get me honour upon Pharaoh and upon all his host, the Egyptians also shall knowe that I am the Lord. And they dyden so.

dij will

W And it was tolde the king of Egypt that the people fled. And the hert of Pharaoh and of his seruantes turned agaynst the people and they sayde: why haue we this done that we haue let Israel go out of our seruice? and he made ready his charrettes: and toke his people with him and toke syre hundred chosen charrettes and all the charrettes of Egypt and capaynes upon euery one of the. And the Lord hardened the hert of Pharaoh kyng of Egypt, and he folowed after the chyldren of Israel. But the chyldren of Israel wente out with * an hye hande: and the Egyptians folowed after them, and all the hoxses and charrettes of Pharaoh and his hoxslemen and his host ouertoke them abyding by the see, besyde Di hiroth befoze Baal zephon. And when Pharaoh drewe nie, the chyldren of Israel lyft vp their eyes and beholde, * Egyptians folowed after them, and they were sore atrapde: * and the chyldren of Israel cryed out vnto the Lord.

But they sayde vnto Moses: because there were no graues in Egypt, hast thou therfore brought vs awaye for to dye in the wyldernes? wherfore hast y serued vs thus, for to carpe vs out of Egypt? Wd not we tell the this in Egypt, saying: let vs be in rest, y we maye serue the Egyptians? For it had bene better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians then for to dye in the wyldernes. And Moses sayde vnto the people: * feare ye not, stande styll, & beholde, howe the Lord shall saue you this daie. For ye that haue sene the Egyptians this daie, shall se them nomore for euer. The Lord shall fyght for you, and ye shall holde your peace.

D And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: wherfore cryest thou vnto me? speake vnto y chyldren of Israel that they go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rodd, and stretche oute thy hande ouer the see, and deuide it a sondre, and let the chyldren of Israel go on drye grounde thowowe the myddest of the see. And behold, I will harden the hert of the Egyptians that they maye folowe them. And I wyll get me honour upon Pharaoh and vpon all his host, and vpon his charrettes and vpon his hoxsme. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lord when I haue gotten me honour vpon Pharaoh, vpon his charrettes and vpon his hoxsme.

E And the angell of God which went before the host of Israel remoued, and beganne to go behynde them. And the clowden pillar that was before the face of them beganne to stonde behynde them, and came betwene the host of the Egyptians and the host of Israel. It was also a darcke clowde, and gaue lyght by nyght: and all the nyght long the one came not at the other.

And Moses stretched forth his hande ouer the see: and the Lord caryed awaye the see by a verpe stronge caste wynde all that nyght, and made the see drye lande, and the waters were deuyled. And the chyldren of Israel went into the myddest of the see vpon the drye grounde. And the waters were a walle vnto them, on their ryght hande, and on their lefte hande. And the Egyptians folowed and went in after them to the myddest of the see, euen all Pharaohs hoxses, his charrettes and his hoxslemen. * And in the morning watch, the Lord * looked vnto the host of the Egyptians out of the spere and clowdy pyler: and troubled the host of the Egyptians, and toke of his charret wheles & caryed them awaye violently. So that the Egyptians sayde: Let vs fle from the face of Israel: for the Lord fighteth for them agaynst the Egyptians. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: stretch out thyne hande ouer the see, that the waters maye come agayne vpon the Egyptian, vpon his charrettes and vpon his hoxslemen.

And Moses stretched forth his hande ouer the see, and it came agayne to his course early in the morninge, and the Egyptians fled agaynst it. And the * Lord ouerthrew the Egyptians in the myddest of the see: and the water returned and couered the charrettes and the hoxsme: and all the host of Pharaoh that came into the see after them, so that there remayned not one of the. But the chyldren of Israel walked vpon drye lande * thowowe the myddest of the see, and the waters were a walle vnto them on their ryght hande of the, and on the lefte. * Thus the Lord deuyluered Israel the selfe same daie out of the hande of the Egyptians: and Israel sawe the Egyptians deed vpon the see syde. And Israel sawe y myghtye power which the Lord shewed vpon the Egyptians: * and the people feared the Lord, and beleued the Lord and his seruant Moses.

The xv. Chapter.

Moses and the people with the women synge at the prayer of Moses: the bitter waters were swete. God must be heard, they come to Elim.

Mhen Moses & the chyldren of Israel sange this songe vnto y Lord and sayde: * I wyll syng vnto the Lord: for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse and him that rode vpon him hath he ouerthrowne in y see. * The Lord is my strength and prayle, and he is become my saluacion.

He is my God, and I wyll glorify hym: my fathers God, & I wyll exalte hym. The Lord is a man of warre. The Lord is his name. Pharaohs charrettes and his host hath he caste into the see. His chosen capaynes also also are drowned in the red see, the depe waters haue couered them: they sonke to y bottom as a stone. Thy ryght hande, Lord, is become glorious in power: thy ryght hande, Lord hath all to dashed the enemy. And in thy greate glory thou hast ouerthrowne the that rose vp agaynst the: thou sentest forth thy wrath which consumed the euen as scobell. Thowowe the winde of thy nastrele the water gathered together, the floudes stode styll as an heape, and the depe water congeled together in the hert of the see.

W The enemye sayd: I wyll folowe on the: I will ouertake the, I will deuyle the spyle, I wyll satisfye my lust vpon the, I wyll drawe my sword, myne hande shall destrope them. Thou blewest w thy wynde, the see couered the, they sancke as leed in the myghtye waters. Who is lyke vnto the, o Lord, among goddes? who is lyke the so glorious in holynes, & fearfull in prayles, shewing wonders? Thou stretchedest out thy ryght hande, the erth swallowed them. Thou in thy merce hast carped thys people which thou deliueredst: & hast brought the in thy strenght vnto thy holy habitato. The natiōs heard and were afrayed, sorowe came vpon y Philistines. When the dukes of the Edomites were amased, and the mightiest of the Moabites, tremblinge came vpon them: all the inhabitants of Canaan wared saynte harted: Let feare and dreade fall vpon them in the greatnes of thyne arme, let them be as styll as a stone, tll thy people passe thowowe, o Lord, whyle thys people passe thowowe, which thou hast gotten. Thou walte byng them in, and plante them in the mountayne of thyne inheritaunce, the place, Lord, which thou hast made for to dwell in, the sanctuaty, o Lord, which thy handes haue prepared. The Lord shall raigne: euer and all waye. For Pharaohs hoxse wet in w his charrettes and hoxslemen into the see, & the Lord brought the waters of the see vpon them. But the chyldren of Israel went on drye lād in the myddest of the see. And Miriam a prophetesse the syster of Aaron toke a tymbrell in her hande, & all the women came out after her w tymbrels & daunces. And Miriam sange befoze the: * Synge ye vnto the Lord: for he hath triumphed gloriously: the horse & his ryder hath he ouerthrowne in the see. And so Moses brought Israel from the red see, & they went out into the wyldernes of Sur. And they wet thre dayes longe in y wyldernes, and founde no waters. And whā they came to Mara, they coule not drinke of the waters of Mara: for they were bitter: therfore the name of the place was called, Mara, * (that is to saye bitternes.) And the people murmured agaynst Moses, sayinge: what shall we drinke? * And he cried vnto

the Lord: and the Lord shewed hym a tree, which when he had cast into the water, the waters were made swete.

There he made them an ordinaunce and a lawe, and there he proued him, & sayde: If y wylt herken * vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, and wylt do y which is right in his sight, and wylt geue eare vnto his comaundementes, & kepe all his ordinaunces: then wyll I put none of these diseases vpon the which I brought vpon the Egyptians: for I am the Lord that healeth the.

The xv. Chapter.

The Israelites come into the desert of Sin. It capeth quailles and manna. They grudge.

Mhen the chyldren of Israel came to Elim where were. xii. welles of water and. lxx. palme trees, and they abode there by the waters. And they toke their iorney from Elim: & all the hole copany of the chyldren of Israel came to the wyldernes of Sin, which is betwene Elim and Synai: the. xv. day of the. ii. moneth after their departyng out of y lande of Egypt. And y hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel * murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron in the wyldernes: and the chyldren of Israel sayde vnto the: wolde to God we had died by the hande of the Lord in the lande of Egypt, when we sat by the fleschpottes, and when we dyd eat bread our bellies full: for ye haue brought vs out into this wyldernes, to kylle thys hole multitude with hongre.

Then sayde the Lord vnto Moses: behold, I wyll rayne * bread fro heauē to you, and the people shall go out, and gather daye by daye that I may proue the, whether they will walke in my lawe or no. The. vi. daye they shall prepare for the selues y which they will byng in, and let it be twile almost as they gather in dayly. And Moses & Aaron sayde vnto all the chyldren of Israel: at euen ye shall knowe that it is the Lord, which brought you out of the lande of Egypt: and in the morning, ye shall se the glory of y Lord: because he hath heard your grudginges agaynst the Lord. And what are we y ye haue murmured agaynst vs? And Moses sayde: At euen shall y Lord * geue you flesh to eat, and in the morning bread ynough: for the

for the Lorde hath heard your murmurings which ye murmur agaynst hi: for what are we? your murmurings are not agaynst vs, but agaynst the Lorde.

And Moses spake vnto Aaron: Saye vnto all the company of the children of Israel, come forth before the Lorde: for he hath heard your grudginges. And as Aaron spake vnto the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel, they looked toward the wilderness: and behold, the glorie of the Lorde appeared in the cloude. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: I haue heard the murmuringe of the chyldren of Israel, tell them therfore and saye: at euen ye shall eat flesh, and in the morning ye shall be fylled with bread, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God.

And at euen the quaples came and covered the grounde where they laye. And in the morninge, the dewe laye rounde about the pooste. And when the dewe was fall: beholde it laye vpon the grounde in the wilderness, small & round and thyn as the hoze frost on the grounde. And when the chyldren of Israel sawe it, they sayde euery one to hys neyghboure: It is manna. For they wist not what it was. And Moses sayde vnto the: this is the bread which the Lorde hath geue you to cate. This is the worde which the Lorde hath commaunded: gather of it euery man for him self to cate: a gomer full for a man according to the nombre of you, and take euery man for them which are in his tente.

And the chyldren of Israel dyd euen so, & gathered some more, some lesse, and when they dyd mete it with a gomer, vnto hym that had gathered moche, remayned nothing ouer, and vnto him y had gathered litle, was there no lacke: euery man gathered sufficient for his catynge. And Moses sayde vnto the: Se that no man let ought remayne of it tyll the moynynge. Notwithstondyng they hardened not vnto Moses: but some of the lefte of it vntill the moynynge, and it waxed full of wormes and sticke, and Moses was angry with them.

And they gathered it all moynynge, euery man for hys catynge. And as soone as the heate of the sunne came, it moulte. And the next day, they gathered twice so moche breed two gomers for one man: & all the rulers of the multitude came, & tolde Moses. He sayd vnto the: this is that which the Lorde hath sayde: tomorrow is the rest of the holy Sabbath vnto the Lorde: bake that which ye will bake, and leth that ye will leth, and y which remayneth, laye vntill the moynynge. And they layde it vntill the moynynge, as Moses bad: and it stanke not, nether breed there any worme therein. And Moses sayde: that cate thys daye: for it is the Sabbath vnto the Lorde: todaye ye shall not fynde it in the felde. Syre dayes ye shall gather it, and in the seuenth daye which is the Sabbath, there shall be none. Notwithstondyng, there went out some of the people in the seuenth daye for to gather, & they founde none. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: howe longe refuse ye to kepe my commaundmentes and my lawes? Se, the Lorde hath geuen you a Sabbath, therfore he geueth you the syre daye bread for two dayes. Wyde therfore euery man at home & lett no man go out of hys place the seuenth daye. And the people rested the seuenth daye. And the house of Israel called it Manna.

And it was lyke vnto coriander seede, whyte: and the taste of it was lyke vnto waters made with hony. And Moses sayd: this is that which the Lorde commaundeth, tyll a gomer of it, which maye be kept for your chyldren after you: that they maye se y bread wherwith I haue fedd you in wilderness, wher I brought you out of y lande of Egypt. And Moses spake vnto Aaron: take a cruze and put a gomer full of Manna therein, and laye it vp before the Lorde to be kepte for y chyldren after you, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. So Aaron layde it vp before y testimonye to be kept. And the chyldren of Israel dyd cate Manna fourte ycare, vntill they came vnto a lande inhabited. And so they dyd cate Manna euen vntill they came vnto the borders of the land of Canaan. A gomer is the tenth part of an epha.

The xviij. Chapter.

The Israelites come into Raphidim. They grudge. Water is geuen the out of the rocke. Moses holdeth vp his handes: & they overcome the Amalechites.

And all the company of the chyldren of Israel thozowout their armies went from the wilderness of Sin after the commaundment of the Lorde, and pyched in Raphidim: where was no water for the people to drinke. And the people chode with Moses, and sayde: geue vs water to drinke. Moses sayde vnto them: why chydye ye with me? wherfore do ye tempte the Lorde? There the people thirsted for water, and the people murmured agaynst Moses, & sayde: wherfore hast thou thus brought vs oute of Egypte: to kyll vs and oure chyldren and catell with thys ste?

And Moses cryed vnto the Lorde, saying: what shall I do vnto thys people? they be allmoost ready to stone me. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go before the people, and take w the of the elders of Israel, & thy rod wherwith y smotest the ryuer, take in thyn hande, and go. Beholde, I stonde before y besyde a rocke that is in Horeb: & thou shalt smyte the rocke, and there shall come water out therof, that the people maye drynke.

And Moses dyd eue so before the eyes of the elders of Israel. And he called y name of the

* Tentacinn.
* Serpe.

of the place * Mass: and * Meriba. because of the chydynge of the chyldren of Israel, and because they tempted the Lorde, sayinge: is y Lorde amonge vs or not?

Then came Amalech and fought with Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayde vnto Josua: chole vs oute men, and goo fyghte with Amalech. And tomorrow I will stonde on the toppe of the hyll, and the rodd of God shall be in my hande. Josua did as Moses bad: he hym, & foughte with Amalech. And Moses, and Aaron, & hur went vp to the toppe of the hyll. And it happened, that wher * Moses helde vp his hande, Israel had the better. And when he late hys hande downe, Amalech had the better.

But Moses handes were heuye, and therfore they toke a stone and put it vnder hym, and he satt downe there on. And Aaron and hur stayed vp by his handes, the one on the one syde and the other on the other syde. And hys handes remayned stedye vntill the goynge downe of the sonne. And Josua discomfeted Amalech and hys people, with the edge of the swerde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: writte thys for a remembraunce in a boke, and comite it vnto the eares of Josua, for I will utterly put out the remembraunce of Amalech from vnder heauen. And Moses made an alter and called the name of it. The Lorde is he that worketh myracles for me. For he sayde: the hnde is on the seate of God the Lorde wyll haue warre with Amalech from generacyon to generacyon.

The xviii. Chapter.

Jethros counsell is receaued of Moses.

Jethro the prest of Midiam Moses father in lawe herde of all that God had done for Moses and for Israel hys people, and that the Lorde had broughte Israel out of Egypte. Therefore he toke ziphora Moses wyfe, (After he had sente her backe) and hys two sonnes, of which the one was called Gerson, for he sayd: I haue bene an alient in a straunge lande. The name of the other was Eliezar: for the God of my father (sayde he) was myne helpe, and deliuered me fro the swerde of Pharao. And Jethro Moses father in lawe came with his two sonnes & his wyfe vnto Moses into the wilderness: where he abode by the mount of God. And he sayde vnto Moses: Thy father in lawe Jethro am come to the, and thy wyfe also and hys two sonnes with her. And Moses went oute to mete hys father in lawe and dyd obeysaunce and kyssed hym and eache asked other of hys health, and they came into the tent. And Moses tolde hys father in lawe all that the Lorde had done vnto Pharao and to the Egyptians for Israels sake, and all the trauayle that had happened them by the waye, and howe the Lorde deliuered them. And Jethro reioysed ouer all the goodnesse whiche the Lorde had done to Israel, and because he had deliuered them out of the hande of the Egyptians. And Jethro sayde: blessed be the Lorde whiche hath deliuered you oute of the hande of the Egyptians and out of the hande of Pharao, which hath also deliuered hys people from the captyuite of the Egyptians. Nowe I knowe that the Lorde is greater then all goddes, for in the thyng wherby they dealt cruelly wyth them, are they them selues perswaded. And Jethro Moses father in lawe offred burnt-offerynges and sacrificys vnto God. And Aaron and all the elders of Israel came to cate breade wyth Moses father in lawe before God.

And it chaunced on the morow, that Moses satt to iudge the people, and the people stode aboute Moses from moynynge vnto euen. And wher Moses father in lawe sawe all that he did vnto the people, he sayd: what is thys that thou doest vnto the people? why syttest thou thy selfe alone, and all the people stonde aboute the from moynynge vnto euen? And Moses sayde vnto hys father in lawe: because the people come vnto me to seeke counsell of God. When they haue a matter, they come vnto me, and I iudge betwene euery man and hys neyghboure, and shewe them the ordynances of God and hys lawes.

And Moses father in lawe sayd vnto him: it is not well that thou doest. Thou both weryest thy selfe, and thys people that is w the: for thys thyng is of more weyght, then * thou art able to perfourme thy selfe alone. Heare nowe therfore my voyce, and I wyll geue the counsell, and God shall be wyth the. We thou vnto the people to Godwarde, that thou mayest bynge the causes vnto God, and thou shalt teache them ordynances and lawes, and shewe them the waye wher in they must walke, and the worke that they must doo. Moreover thou shalt sette oute amonge all the people, men of actiuite, and such as feare God: true men, hatynge couetousnes: and make them heedes ouer the people, people, captaynes ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie and ouer ten. And let the iudge the people at all seasons. And euery greete matter that happeneth, let them bringe vnto the, but let them iudge all small causes them selues, and so shall it be easer for thy selte, and they shall bere with the. If thou shalt do thys thinge, (and God charge the with all) thou shalt be able to endure, and yet the people shall come to theyr place in peace.

And so Moses obeyed the voyce of his father in lawe, and did all that he had sayde, and chose actyue men out of all Israel and made them as herdes ouer the people: namely, captaynes ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie and ouer ten. And they iudged the people at all seasons, but broughte harde causes vnto Moses: and iudged all small matters them selues. And Moses let his father in lawe departe, and he went in to his awne lande.

The xix. Chapter.

The chyldren of Israel come to the mounte Synay. The people of God are hoysed a roiall presthode. He that toucheth the hill dyeth. God appeareth vnto Moses vpon the mounte in shonour & lychtenynge.

In the thyrde moneth, whā the chyldren of Israel were gone oute of the lande of Egypt, the same daye came they into the wyldernesse of Synay. * For they were departed from Raphidim, and were come to the deserte of Synay, and had pitched theyr tentes in the wyldernesse. And there Israel abode before the mounte. * But Moses went vnto God. And the Lorde called to hym out of the mountayne, sayinge: thus shalt thou saye vnto the house of Jacob, and tell the chyldren of Israel: ye haue sene what I dyd vnto the Egyptians, and toke you vpon my selfe: howe therfore * yf ye wyll heare my voyce in dede, and kepe myne appoyntement: ye shall be myne awne, aboue all nacyns, for all the erth is myne. Ye shall be vnto me also a kyngdome of * preastes and an holy people: and these are the wordes which thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israel.

Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and layde before theyr faces all these wordes which the Lorde commaunded hym. And the people answered all to gether, and sayde: * All that the Lorde hath sayde, we wyll doo. And Moses brought the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde: And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Lo, I come vnto the in a thynke cloud, & the people maye heare me talkynge with the, and beleue the for euer. Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Go vnto the people, and sanctifye them to daye, and to morowe, and let them wash theyr clothes: & be redy agaynst the thyrde daye. For the thyrde daye the Lorde wyll come downe in the syght of all the people vpon mounte Synay. And thou shalt set markes rounde aboute the people and saye: beware, that ye go not vp into the mounte, or touche the bordre of it. Whosoener toucheth the * mounte, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touch it: els he shall be stoned or shot thowhe: whether it be beaſt or man, it shall not lyue: when the trompe bloweth longe, than maye they come vnto the mountayne.

And Moses went downe from the mounte vnto the people, and sanctified them, and they washed theyr clothes: And he sayd vnto the people: be redy agaynst the thyrde daye, and come not at youre wyues. And the thyrde daye in the moynynge there was thunder, and lychtenynge, and a thynke clowde vpon the mounte, and the voyce of the trompe excedynge lowde, so that all the people that was in the hoste was afraied. And Moses brought the people oute of the tentes to mete with God, and they * stode vnder the byll.

And mounte Synay was all to gether on a smoke: because the Lorde descended downe vpon it in fyre. And the smoke thereof ascended vp, as the smoke of a kele, and all the mount was excedynge fearfull. And whan the voyce of the trompe blew and waxed lowder and lowder Moses spake, & God answered hi by a voyce: And the Lorde came downe vpon mounte Synay, euen in the toppe of the byll, and whan the Lord called Moses vnto the toppe of the byll. Moses went vp.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: go downe: charge the people, that they prease not vp to se the Lorde, and so many of them perishe. And let the prestes also whych come to the Lorde sanctifye them selues, lest the Lorde destroye them. And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: the people cannot come vp in to the mounte Synay, for thou chargedest vs sayng: set markes aboute the byll, and sanctifie it: And the Lorde sayde vnto him: awake, and get the downe: and thou shalt come vp, thou and Aaron with the. But let not the

not the prestes and the people presume for to come vp vnto the Lorde: lest he destroye the. And so Moses went downe vnto the people and tolde them.

And God spake all these wordes and sayde: I am the Lorde thy God, which haue * brought the out of the lande of Egypt, oute of the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my syght.

* Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage, nether any symilitude that is in heauen aboue, ether in the erth beneath, or in the waters vnder the erth. * Thou shalt not worshyppe them, nether serue them: for I the Lorde thy God, am a zelouse God, and byset synne of the fathers vpon the chyldren vnto the thyrde and fourth generacion of the that hate me: and shewe myerce vnto thousandes in them that loue me and kepe my commaundementes.

Thou shalt not * take the name of the Lorde thy God in vayne, for the Lorde wyll not holde him gylelesse that taketh his name in vayne. * Remembre the Sabbath daye that thou sanctifye it. Sixe dayes shalt thou labour and do all that thou hast to do: but the seuenth daye is the Sabbath of the Lorde thy God, in it thou shalt do no maner of worke, thou and thy sonne, and thy daughter, thy man seruaunte and thy mayde seruaunte, thy catell and the straunger that is within thy gates. For in syxe dayes the Lorde made heauen and erth, the see and all that in them is, and * rested the seuenth daye: wherfore the Lorde blessed the Sabbath daye and halowed it. * Honour thy father & thy mother, that thy dayes maye be longe in the lide which the Lorde thy God geueth the.

* Thou shalt not kyll.
* Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.
* Thou shalt not steale.
* Thou shalt not bere false witnesse agaynst thy neyghboure.

Thou shalt not couet * thy neyghbours house: nether shalt thou couet thy neyghbours wyfe, or his man seruaunte, or his mayde, or his oxe, or his asse, or what soeuer thy neyghboure hath.

And all the people sawe the thunder and the lychtenynge, and the noyse of the trompe, and the mountayne smokyng, and whā the people sawe it, they remoned and stode a farre of, and sayde vnto Moses: * talke thou with vs, and we wyll heare: but let not God talke with vs, lest we dye. And Moses sayde vnto the people: feare not, for God is come to proue you, and that his feare maye be in youre face, that ye synne not.

And the people stode a farre of, and Moses went into the thynke clowde where God was. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: thus thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israel. Ye haue sene that I haue talked with you from oute of heauen. Ye shall not make therfore with me goddes of syluer nether shall ye make you goddes of golde. * An alter of erth thou shalt make vnto me, and thereon offer thy burntofferynge and thy peace offerynge, thy shepe and thyne oxen. In all places where I shall put the remembraunce of my name I thither I wyll come vnto the and blesse the. And yf thou wilt make me an alter of stone, let thou make it not of hewen stone. Els yf thou lyfte vp thy tole wyth it, thou hast polluted it. Forther shalt thou goo vpon thy steppes vnto myne alter, that thy synne be not shewed there on.

The xxi. Chapter.

Temporal and ciuile ordinaunces.

These are the lawes whyche thou shalt set before them. If thou bye a seruaunte that is an hebreue, syxe yeres he shall serue, and in the seuenth he shall goo out fre payinge nothyng. If he came alone, he shall goo out alone. And yf he came married, his wyfe shall goo oute with hym: And yf his master haue geuen hym a wyfe and she haue borne hym sonnes or daughters: then the wyfe and hyr chyldren shall be his masters and he shall goo oute alone. And yf the seruaunte saye: I loue my master, my wyfe and my chyldren, I wyll not goo oute fre. His master shall byynge hym vnto the iudges, and sett hym to the doore or the doorepost and his master shall boze his eare thowhe with a nawle, and he shall be his seruaunte for euer.

And yf a man sell his daughter to be a seruaunte: she shall not goo oute as the men seruautes doo. If she also please not hyr master, and he geueth her to noman to wyfe, then shall he let hyr go fre: to sell her vnto a strange nacyn shall he haue no power, feynge he despyled her. If he haue promysed her vnto his sonne to wyfe, he shall deale with her as men do with theyr daughters. And yf he take hym another wyfe, yet hyr fode, hyr rayment and dutie of mariage shall be not mynished. And yf he do not these thre vnto her, then shall she goo oute fre and paye no money. * He that synneth a man that he dye, shall be slayne for it. If a man laye not a wayte but God delpue hym into his hande, then I wyll poynte the a place whether he shall fle. If a man come presumptuously vpon his neyghboure to see him with gyle, thou shalt take him from myne * alter that he dye.

There shall be no woman childlesse or unfrutefull in thy lande: the nōbre of thy dayes wyll I fulfill. I wyll sende my feare before the, and wyll trouble all the people whether thou shalt go. And I wyll make all thine enemyes turne theyr backs vnto þe, and I wyll sende hornettes before the, which shall dreyne out the Hewites, the Cananites, and the Hethites before þe. Neuertheles I wyll not cast them oute in one pere, lest the lande growe to a wyldernes: and the bestes of the felde multiplye agaynst the. By lytle and lytle I wyll dreyne them oute before the, vntyll thou be increased, & inheret the lande. And I wyll make thy costes from the redd see vnto the see of the Philistines, and from the deserte vnto the ryuer. For I wyll deliuer the inhabyters of the lande into thyne hande, and thou shalt dreyne the oute before the. * Thou shalt make none appoyntment with them, nor with theyr goddes. Nether let the dwell in thy lande, lest they make the synne against me: for yf thou serue theyr goddes, it wyll be thy decaye.

The xxiii. Chapter.

Moses ascendeth vnto the mount and receyvethe the wordes of the Lorde. The bloude of the couenauit. The elders of Israel iudge the people.

And he sayde vnto Moses: come vp vnto the Lorde: thou & Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the lxx. elders of Israel, and ye shall worshyppe a farre of. And Moses hym selfe alone shall go vnto the Lorde, but they shall not come nye, nether shall the people go vp with hym. And Moses came, & tolde the people * all the wordes of the Lorde and all the lawes. And all the people answered with one voyce, and sayde: all the wordes whiche the Lorde hath sayde, wyll wee doo. And Moses wrote all the wordes of þe Lorde, & rose vpe early, and let vpan * an alter vnder the hyll, & xii. stones according to the xii. trybes of Israell, and sent yonge men of the chyldren of Israell, which brought burnt-offerynges, and offred peace offeringes of oxen vnto the Lorde. And Moses toke halfe of the bloude, and put it in basens, & the other halfe he sprenkled on the alter.

And he toke the boke of the appoyntment, and reddy it in the audience of the people. And they sayd. All that the Lorde hath sayde, we wyll do and be obedyent. And Moses toke the * bloude, and sprenkled it on the people, and sayde, beholde: this is the bloude of the appoyntment, which the Lorde hath made with you vpon all these wordes.

Then went Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu and þe lxx. elders of Israel vppe, and sawe the God of Israel, and there was vnder his fete, as it were a worke of a Sapphir stone, and as it were the heauē whē it is cleare, and þe vppr nobles of the chyldren of Israel he sett not his hand. And they sawe God and dyd eate and dryncke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: come vp to me into the hyll, and be there, and I wyll geue the tables of stone, and a lawe and commaundmentes, which I haue writte that thou mayest teach them. And Moses rose vppe & hym minister Jeholua, & Moses went vppe into þe hyll of God, and sayde vnto the elders: tarye ye here vntyll we come agayne vnto you. Beholde, here is Aaron & hur with you. If any man haue any matters to do, let hym come to them. And Moses went vp into the mounte, and a clowde couered the hyll, and the glorie of the Lorde abode vpon mounte Synay, and the clowde couered it. vi. dayes. And the seuenth daye he called vnto Moses out of the clowde. And the facyon of the glorie of the Lorde was lyke consumynge fyre on the toppe of the hyll in the syghte of the chyldren of Israel. And Moses went into the clowde, and got hym vp into the mountayne. And Moses was in the * mounte. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes. * ex. xxxiii.

The xxv. Chapter.

The Lorde sheweth Moses the facyon of the holy place and the thynges pertainynge thereto.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses say-Ange: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel that they bypunge me an heueofferynge: of every man that geueth it wyllyn-gly with hys herte, ye shall take it. * This is the heueofferynge which ye shall take of the golde and syluer and brasse: yelow sylke, purple, scarlet, white sylke, and gootes here Rams skynnes that are reddy, and the skynnes of taxus and sethim wodd, oyle for lychte, spices for anopntynge oyle, and for swete cense. Onix stones and stones to be sett in the Ephod and in the brest lappe.

And let them make me a sanctuarie (that I may dwell amonge the.) And accordinge to all that I shewe the both after the facyon of the habitacyon, and after the facyon of all the ornamentes therof, even so shall ye make it. And they shall make an * arke of sethim wodd. ii. cubytes and an halfe longe, a cubite and an halfe broade and a cubyte & an halfe hie. And thou shalt overlape it with pure golde golde, within and without shalt thou overlape it, and shalt make an hie vppr a crowne of golde rounde aboute. And thou shalt cast foure rynges of gold for it, and put them in the foure corners therof. ii. rynges shall be in the one syde of it, and ii. in the other. And thou shalt make barres of sethim wodd, and couer them with golde, and put the barres in the ringes alonge by the sydes of the arke, to bere it with all. And the barres shall be in the rynges of the arke, and shall not be taken awaye from it. And thou shalt put in the attie, the witness which I shall geue the.

And thou shalt make a mercyseate of pure golde. ii. cubytes and an halfe longe and a cubite & a halfe brode. And thou shalt make ii. cherubins of golde: Euen of a whole worke shalt thou make them in the two endes of the mercyseate: and the one cherub shalt thou make on the one ende, and the other on the other ende. Eue of the same mercyseate shall ye make Cherubins in the two endes therof. And the Cherubins shall stretch theyr wynges abroad ouer an hie, coueringe the mercyseate with theyr wynges, and theyr faces shall loke one to another: euen to the mercyseate warde, shall the faces of the cherubins be. And thou shalt put þe * mercyseate aboue vpon the arke, and in the arke thou shalt put the witness which I wyll geue the.

And from thence I wyll testifie vnto the and wyll comon with the from vpon the mercyseate: from betwene the two Cherubins which are vpon the arke of witness, of all thyng which I wyll geue the in commaundment vnto the chyldren of Israel.

* Thou shalt also make a table of sethim wodd of two cubytes longe, and one cubyt brode, and a cubyt and an halfe hie. And thou shalt couer it with pure golde, and make there to a crowne of golde rounde aboute. And make vnto that an whope of foure syn-gers brode, rounde aboute. And make a golden crowne also to the whope rounde aboute. And make for it foure rynges of gold, and put the rynges in the corners that are on the foure sydes therof: eue ouer against the whope shall the rynges be, to put in barres, to bere the table with all. And thou shalt make the barres of sethim wodd, and overlape them with gold, that the table maye be borne with them. And thou shalt make hys dishes, and spones, flatpates, and pottes to powre oute withall: Euen of fyne golde shalt thou make them. And thou shalt sett vpon the table, * the wored before me alwaye.

And thou shalt make a candellstyeke of pure golde euen of a whole worke shall the candellstyeke be made with his shaft, braunches, bolles, knoppes and floures proceadinge there out. Syre braunches also shall procede out of the sydes of it: thre braunches of the candellstyeke out of the one syde and thre out of the other. Thre cuppes lyke vnto almondes with knoppes & floures in one braunche. And thre cuppes lyke almōdes in the other braunche, with knoppes and floures. And euen so thou shalt make the syre braunches that procede out of the candellstyeke: and in the candellstyeke selfe foure cuppes lyke vnto almondes with theyr knoppes and floures: and there shall be a knoppe vnder euery two braunches. * (in the rowmes.) Of the syre that procede out of the candellstyeke. And the knoppes and the braunches shall be of it. And it shall be one worke euen of pure golde.

And thou shalt make the seven lampes of it: and the seven lampes therof, shalt thou put an hie there on, to geue lychte vnto þe other syde that is ouer against it. The togges and snoffers therof shall be of pure golde. Of an hundred poundes weyghte of fyne golde shalt thou make it with all the apparell. * Loke therfore that thou make them after the facyon that was shewed the in the mounte.

The xxvi. Chapter.

This chapter also describeth the thynges pertaininge to the holy place.

The tabernacle shalt thou make with ten curtaynes of whyte twyned sylke: yelow sylke, purple and scarlet. And in them thou shalt make pictures of broderd worke.

The length of one curtayne shall be cyght and twety cubytes, & the bredth of one curtayne foure cubytes, and euery one of the curtaynes shall haue one measure: fyue curtaynes shall be coupled together one to another: and fyue curtaynes shall be coupled together one to another.

And thou shalt make lowpes of yelow sylke, a lōge by the edge of þe one curtayne which is in the seluege of the couplynge courtayne. And lykewyle shalt thou make in the edge of the vtmost curtayne that is to be coupled therwith on the other syde: fyfte lowpes shalt thou make in the one curtayne, and fyfte lowpes shalt thou make in the edge of the curtayne that is to be coupled therwith on the other syde: that the lowpes maye take holde one of another. And thou shalt make fyfte buttons of golde, and couple the curtaynes together with the buttōs: and it shall be one habitacyon.

* And thou shalt make. xi. curtaynes of gootes here, to be a coueringe vpon the Tabernacle. The length of a curtayne shall be xxx. cubytes and the bredth foure and they shall be all. xi. of one measure. And thou shalt couple. v. curtaynes by them selues, and the sixe by them selues, and shalt double the fyfte in the fore front of the tabernacle. And thou shalt make fyfte lowpes in the edge of the vtmost curtayne on the one syde: euen in the edge of edge of the couplynge courtayne: and fylke lowpes in the edge of the other curtayne that must be loyned vnto it. And thou shalt make fyfte buttons of brasce and put them on y lowpes, and couple the couerpyng to gether, that it maye be one.

And the remnant that resteth in the curtaynes of the couerpyng: euen the halfe curtayne that resteth, shalbe left on the backe sydes of the habitacyon: that a cubyte on the one syde and a cubyte on the other syde maye remayne in the length of the curtaynes of the couerpyng, and that it maye remayne of ether syde of the habitacyon to couer it with all.

And vpon the Tabernacle thou shalt make a couerpyng of ramyskynnes dyed reddy: & yet a couerpyng aboue all of taxus skynnes.

And thou shalt make bordes for the habitacyon of sethim wodd to stonde vpryght: ten cubytes longe shall euery borde be, and a cubyte & an halfe brode. Two fete shall there be in one borde: and they shalbe separate one from another. And thus shalt thou make for all the bordes of the Tabernacle.

*Ex. xxvi. c.

* And thou shalt make. xx. bordes for the habitacyon on the south syde, and thou shalt make. xl. sockettes of syluer vnder the. xx. bordes two sockettes vnder one borde, for hye two fete, & two sockettes vnder another borde for his two fete. In lyke maner in y north syde of the habitacyon there shalbe. xx. bordes and. xl. sockettes of syluer: two sockettes vnder one borde, and two sockettes vnder another borde.

And in the west ende of the habitacyon, shalt thou make fyve bordes, and two bordes shalt thou make in the corners of the habitacyon in the metpyng together of the two sydes. And they shalbe coupled together beneth and lykwysse aboue to a ryng. And thus shalt it be for the two bordes that are in the corners. And they shalbe cyght bordes, haupnge sockettes of syluer, euen fyftene sockettes: that there maye be two sockettes vnder one borde, and two sockettes vnder another borde.

And thou shalt make barres of sethim wodd, fyue for the bordes of the Tabernacle in one syde, and fyue barres for the bordes of the Tabernacle in the other syde, and fyue barres for the bordes of the Tabernacle in the west ende. And the mydle barre shall goo alonge thowowe the myddes of the bordes from the one ende vnto the other. And thou shalt couer the bordes with golde, and make theyr rynges of golde, to put the barres thowowe, and thou shalt couer the barres with golde also. And thou shalt cere vp the habitacyon accordyng to the facion thereof, as it was shewed the in the mount.

And thou shalt make a vayne of pelowe sylke, of purpull, scarlet, and whyte twyned syke. Of broderd worke with pictures shalt thou make it. And hange it vpo fyve pilers of sethim wodd couerd with golde. Whose heades shalbe of golde, stoupyng vpo fyve sockettes of syluer. And thou shalt hange vpo the vayne with rynges, that thou mayest bringe in (with in the vayne) y parcke of witness. And the vayne shall vnto pou deupde the holpe from the most holy. And thou shalt put the mercy seate vpon the arcke of wptnesse in the holpest place. And thou shalt put the table without the vayne: and the candelsticke ouer agaynst the table on the south syde of the habitacyon. And put the table on the north syde.

And thou shalt make an hangpyng for the doze of the Tabernacle: of pelowe sylke purple, scarlet, and white twyned sylk wrought with nedle worke. And thou shalt make for the hangpyng, fyue pilers of sethim wodd and couer them with golde, and theyr knoppes shalbe of golde, and thou shalt cast fyue sockettes of brasce for them.

The. xxvii. Chapter.

The forme of the alter of the burnt offeringe with hye bordes, rynges, staves, gredderces and other vnyamentes.

And thou shalt make an altare of sethim wodd: fyue cubytes longe and fyue cubytes brode. For it shall be foursquare, and thre cubytes hye. And thou shalt make it hornes in the foure corners of it the hornes shalbe of it selfe, and thou shalt couer it with brasce. And make hye althepanes, shouels, basens, fleshhookes, fyrepannes & all the apparell therof for the same, of brasce. And thou shalt make vnto it a gredder also (lyke a net) of brasce. And vpon that net shalt thou make foure brasen rynges in the foure corners thereof: and thou shalt put it vnder the compase of the altare beneth, that the net maye be in the myddes of the altare. And thou shalt make (two) barres for the altare of sethim wodd, and couer them with brasce, and let them be put in rynges a longe by the sydes of the altare to beare it w all. And make the auter holowe with bordes: euen as it was shewed the in the mount, so shall they make it.

And thou shalt make the courte of the habitacyon, that there maye be in the south syde hangpynges of white twyned sylke, of an hundred cubytes longe, for one syde, and. xx. pylers thereof, with theyr. xx. sockettes of brasce: but the knoppes of the pylers & theyr whopes shalbe syluer. In lykwysse on the north syde there shalbe hangpynges of an hundred cubytes longe and. xx. pylers with their twenty sockettes of brasce, and the knoppes and the whopes of syluer. And the breadth of the

of the court which is eastwarde, shall haue fyfte cubytes. Hangpynges of fyftene cubytes in y one syde: and their pylers with their thre sockettes: and lykwysse on the other syde shalbe hangpynges of fyftene cubytes with their thre pylers and thre sockettes.

And in the gate of the court shalbe a vayne of twenty cubytes of pelowe silk, purple, and skarlet & whyte twyned silk, wrought with nedle worke: & foure pilers with their foure sockettes. All the pilers round about the court shalbe whoped with syluer, & their knoppes shalbe of syluer, and their sockettes of brasce. The length of the court shalbe an hundred cubytes, and the breadth fyfte & the heigth fyue. And the hangpynges shalbe of whyte twyned sylk, and their sockettes of brasce. All the vesselles of the habitation in all maner service and the pynges thereof: yee, and all the pynges also of the courte shalbe of brasce.

* And thou shalt commaunde the chyldre of Israel, that they geue the pure oyle olyue beaten for the lyght, to powre allwape into the lammes. In the tabernacle of witness without the vayne which is before the witness, shall Aaron and his sonnes dysse it both euening and moornyng before the Lorde: and it shalbe a statute for euer vnto the generations of the chyldren of Israel.

The. xxviii. Chapter.

Aarons apparell and hye soynes.

And take thou vnto the Aaron thy brother and hye sonnes w him, from amonge the chyldren of Israel, that they maye minister vnto me. Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar, Aarons sonnes. And thou shalt make holy rayment for Aaron thy brother, that they maye be vnto gloze and bewtye. And thou shalt speake vnto all that are wise hearted, and whomsoever I haue filled with the sprete of wysdome: that they make Aarons rayment to consecrate him with, y he maye minister vnto me.

These are the garmetes which they shall make, a brestlapp, Ephod, a tuncle, a strapte cote, a miter and a gzyddell. These holy garmetes shall they make for Aaron thy brother and his sonnes, that they maie minister vnto me. And lett them take golde, pelowe silk, purple, skarlet and whyte twyned silk. They shall make the Ephod of gold, pelowe sylke, purple, skarlet and whyte twyned silk come together, and be closed vp in the two edges thereof. And the gzyddell of the Ephod shalbe of the same workmanchip, and of the same stuffe, euen of golde, pelowe sylke, purple, skarlet and whyte twyned sylke.

And thou shalt take two onix stones, and grave in them the names of the chyldren of Israel: fyve names of them in the one stone, and the other fyve in the other stone: accordyng to y (the order of) their byrth. After the work of a stonegrauer, and of him that graueth signetters shalt thou graue the two stones with the names of the chyldre of Israel, and shalt make them to be set in golde. And thou shalt put the two stones vpon the two shoulders of the Ephod, that they maye be stones of remembraunce vnto the chyldre of Israel. And Aaron shall beare their names before the Lorde vpon hye two shoulders for a remembraunce. And thou shalt make hokes of golde & two cheynes of fyne golde: linkwozke and wretthed, and fasten the wretthed cheynes to the hokes.

And thou shalt make the brestlapp of iudgement with broderd worke, euen after the worke of the Ephod shalt thou make it: namely of golde, pelow sylke, purple, skarlet, and whyte twyned silk, shalt thou make it. Foursquare it shalbe and double, an hande brede longe, and an handbrede brode. And thou shalt fill it with foure rowes of stones. In the first rowe shalbe a Sardions, a Topas, and Smaragdus: in the second rowe, a Ruby, Saphir and Diamond: in the thyrde Lygurius, an Achat, & Amatist: in y fourth a Turcas, Onix and Jaspis. And they shall be set in golde in their inclosers. And the stones shalbe grauen as signetters be grauen w the names of the chyldren of Israel, eue with twelue names, euery one with his name accordyng to the twelue tribes.

And thou shalt make vpon the brestlapp two fastenyng cheynes of pure golde & wretthed worke. And thou shalt make lykwysse vpon the brestlapp two rynges of golde: and put them on the edges of the brestlapp, and put the two wretthed cheynes of golde in the two rynges which are in the edges of y brestlapp. And the other two endes of the two cheynes, thou shalt fasten in two close hokes, and put the vpon the shoulders of the Ephod on the fozersyde of it. And thou shalt yet make two rynges of golde, which thou mayest put in the two edges of the brestlapp, euen in the bordes thereof, towarde the insyde of the Ephod oueragenst it. And yet two other ringes of golde thou shalt make: and put the on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth ouer agaynst the brestlapp, alowe where the sydes are loyned together vpon the broderd gzyddell of the Ephod. And they shall bynde the brestlapp by hye rynges vnto the ringes of the Ephod with a lace of pelow silk, that it maye lye close aboue the broderd gzyddell of the Ephod, and that the brestlapp be not losid from the Ephod.

And Aaron shall beare the names of the chyldren of Israel in the brestlapp of iudgement

ment vpon his hert, when he goeth into the holy place for a remembrance before the Lord all waye. And thou shalt put in the brestlappe of iudgement. ¶ And thou shalt make a chymin: and they shall be euen vpon Arons hert, when he goeth into the iudgement of the children of Israel vpon his herte before the Lord all waye.

And thou shalt make the tunicke vnto the Ephod altogether of yelow sylke. And there shall be an hole for the heed in the myddes of it, havyng a bonde of wouen worke rounde about the coler of it (as it were the coler of a partlet) that it rent not. And beneth vpon the hem, thou shalt make pomgranates of yelow sylke and of purple and skarlet, round about the hem, and belles of golde betwene them rounde about: and lett there be euer a golden bell and a pomgranate, a golden bell and a pomgranate, rounde about vpon the hem of the tunicke. ¶ And Aaron shall haue it vpon him, when he ministrerth, and the sounde shall be heard, when he goeth into the holy place before the Lord, & when he cometh out, and he shall not dye.

And thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and graue thereon, as sygnettes are grauen. The holynesse of the Lord, and put it on a yelow sylke lace to be vpon the mytre, euen vpon the forefront of it. And it shall be vpon Arons forehead: that Aaron maye beare the synne of the holy thynges which the chyldren of Israel halowe in all theyr holynes. And it shall be allwayes vpon his forehead, for the reconcylyng of them before the Lord.

And thou shalt make a linnen cote, and thou shalt make a mytre of lynn and a girdell of nedle worke.

And thou shalt make for Arons sonnes also cotes, gyrdelles and bonettes, glorious and bewyfull: and thou shalt put them vpon Aaron thy brother, and on his sonnes with him: and shalt anoynte them, and shalt fylle their handes, and sanctifye them, that they maye minstre vnto me. And thou shalt make them linnen breeches to couer their priuities, from the loynes vnto the thies shall they reach. And they shall be vpon Aaron and his sonnes, when they come into the tabernacle of witness, or when they come vnto the altare to minstre in holynesse, that they beare no sinne, and so dye. And it shall be a lawe for euer vnto Aaron and his seed after him.

¶ The xxix. Chapter.

¶ The consecration of Aaron and his sonnes.

¶ And thou shalt do vnto them, when thou shalt haue the calf, euen a ponge ore, and two rames that are without blemish, and unleuened breade, and cakes of swete bread tempered with oyle, & wafers of swete bread anoynted with oyle (of wheten flour shalt thou make the) & put them in a maide, and bynge the in the maunde with the calfe and the two rammes.

And bynge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and washe them with water, and take the garments, and put vpon Aaron the strapte cote the tunicke of the Ephod, & the Ephod, and the brestlappe: and gyrd them to hym with the brodered gyrdell which is in the Ephod. And put the mytre vpon his heed: and put the holy crowne vpon the mytre. Then shalt thou take the anoynting oyle, and powze it vpon his heed, and anoynte hym. And byng his sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrd them with gyrdels, aswell Aaron, as his sonnes. And put the mytres on the, and the preastes office shall be theirs for a perpetual lawe.

And thou shalt fylle the handes of Aaron and of his sonnes: and byng the calfe before the tabernacle of witness. ¶ And Aaron and his sonnes shall put their handes vpon the heed of the calfe, and thou shalt kyl hym before the Lord, by the doore of the tabernacle of witness. And take of the blood of the calfe and put it vpon the hornes of the altare with thy finger: and powze all the bloude besyde the botome of the altare, and take all the fat that couereth inwarde, and the kyll that is on the lyuer, and the two kidneys and the fat that is vpon them: and burne them vpon the altare. But the flesch of the calfe and his skynne, & his donge shalt thou burne wth fyer without the hoost. It is a synofferyng.

Thou shalt also take one ram, and Aaron and his sonnes shall put their handes vpon the heed of the ram, & when thou shalt slayne the ramme, thou shalt take his bloude, and spynke it rounde about vpon the altare, & cut the ram in peces, and washe the inwardes of him and his legges, and put the vnto the peces and vnto his heed: and then burne the hole ram vpon the altare for a burnt offering vnto the Lord, & for a swete sauour and a sacrifice vnto the Lord.

And take the other ram, and Aaron & his sonnes shall put their handes vpon his heed. Then shalt thou kyl hym, and take of his bloude, and put it vpon the tpype of the ryght eare of Aaron and of his sonnes, and vpon the thombe of their ryght handes, and vpon the great to of their ryght fete, & spynke the bloude vpon the altare rounde about. And thou shalt take of the bloude that is vpon the altare, and of the anoynting oyle, and spynke it vpon Aaron and his sonnes, and vpon his sonnes and vpon their garments wth hym. And he shall be halowed & his clothes his clothes and his sonnes and the clothes with hym.

¶ And thou shalt take the fatt of the ram and his rompe, and the fat that couereth the inwardes, and the kyll of the lyuer, and the two kidneys and the fat that is vpon them and the ryght shoulder: for that ram is a fullofferyng: and a synnell of bread, and a cake of oyle bread, and a wafer out of the baskette of swete breade that is before the Lord, and putt all vpon the handes of Aaron, and on the handes of his sonnes: and waue them for a waueofferyng before the Lord. And agayne, thou shalt take it from of their handes, and burne it vpon the altare for a burnt offering, to be a sauour of swetes before the Lord. For it is a sacrifice vnto the Lord.

¶ And thou shalt take the brest of the ram of Arons consecracyn, and waue it for a waueoffering before the Lord: and it shall be thy parte. And thou shalt sanctifye the brest of the waueoffering: and the shoulder of the heueofferyng which is waued and heued vpon of the ram of the consecracyn for Aaron and for his sonnes. And it shall be Arons and his sonnes by a statute for euer, of the chyldren of Israel: for it is an heueoffering. Euen an heueofferyng of the chyldren of Israel, and of their peaceofferings. Their heueofferings is the Lordes. And the holy garments of Aaron shall be his sonnes after him, to be anoynted therein, and to fylle their handes therein. And that sonne that is preast in his stead after him, shall put the on seven dayes: when he cometh into the tabernacle of witness to minstre in the holy place.

And Aaron and his sonnes shall eat the flesch of the ram, and the bread that is in the basket: euen by the doore of the tabernacle of witness: and they shall eat them, because the anoyntment was made therewith, to fylle their handes, & to consecrate the: but a stranger shall not eat thereof, because they are holy. And yf ought of the flesch of the consecracyn or of the bread remaine vnto the morrowe, thou shalt burne it with fyer, and it shall not be eaten, because it is holy. Therefore shalt thou do vnto Aaron and his sonnes, euen so, according to all thynges which I haue commaunded the: seven dayes shalt thou fylle their handes, and offer euery daye a calfe for a synneofferyng, for to reconcyle withall: that thou mayest cleanse the altare when thou reconcest vpon it, and thou shalt anoynte it, to sanctifye it. Seven dayes thou shalt reconcyle vpon the altare, and sanctifye it, and it shall be as an altare moost holy. Euery one that toucheth the altare, lett hym be holy.

¶ This is that which thou shalt offer vpon the altare: euen two labes of one yeare olde, daye by daye continually: the one thou shalt offer in the mornynge, and the other at euen: And with the one labbe a tenth deale of flour myngled with the fourth parte of an hyn of beaten oyle, and the fourth part of an hyn of wyne, for a bynckofferyng. And the other lambe thou shalt offer at euen, and shalt do thereto accordyng to the meatofferyng and bynckofferyng in the mornynge, to be an odoure of a swete sauour and a sacrifice vnto the Lord. And lett this be a continuall burnt offering amonge youre chyldren after you, before the doore of the tabernacle of witness before the Lord, where I will mete you, to speake there vnto the. There I will mete with the chyldren of Israel, and will be sanctified in myne honour. And I will sanctifye the tabernacle of witness and the altare. And I will sanctifye also both Aaron and his sonnes to be my preastes. And I will dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel: and will be their God. And they shall knowe that I am the Lord their God, that brought them out of the lande of Egypte: for to dwell amonge them: euen I the Lord thy God.

And thou shalt make an alter to burne incense: of sethim woodde shalt thou make it, a cubite long and a cubite broad: euen foure square shall it be and two cubites hye: the hornes thereof shall procede out of it, and thou shalt overlape it with fyne golde, both the roffe and the walles round about, and his hornes also, & shalt make vnto it a crowne of golde round about and two golden rynges on epyther syde: euen vnder the crowne, that they maye be as places for the barres to beare it withall. And thou shalt make the barres of sethim wood, and couer them with golde. And thou shalt putt it before the vayne, by the arcke of witness, before the mercy seate that is vpon the witness, where I will mete the.

And Aaron shall burne thereon swete incense euery mornynge, when he dresseth the lampes, euen then shall he burne it: and lyke wyse at euen, when he setteth vpon the lampes he shall burne incense: and this incensynge shall be perpetually before the Lord thy God out youre generacions. Ye shall putt no strange incense thereon, burnt sacrifice or meatofferyng, neyther powze any drink-offering thereon.

And Aaron shall reconcyle vpon the hornes of it once in a yeare: wth the bloude of the synneofferyng of reconcylyng: euen once in the

in the peare shall he receyve it thowow your generacions. It is most holy unto the Lord.

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: * If thou takest the summe of the chyldren of Israel after their nombre, they shall geue every man a reconcylyng of hys soule unto the Lord when thou tellest them: that there be no plague amonge them, when thou tellest them. And thus moche shall every man geue, and that goeth into the nombre: halfe a shekel, after the shekel * of the sanctuary: a shekel is twente halfpence. In halfe shekel shall be the heue offeringe of the Lord. All that are nombred from twente yere olde and above, shall geue an heue offeringe unto the Lord. Whereby shall not passe, and the poore shall not go under halfe a shekel. But ye shall geue an heue offeringe unto the Lord, that he maye haue mercy vpon your soules. And thou shalt take the reconcylyng money of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt put it vnto the vse of the tabernacle of witnessse, that it maye be a memorie vnto the chyldren of Israel before the Lord, that he maye haue mercy vpon your soules.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: * thou shalt make a lauer of brasie, and his fore also of brasie to washe withall, and shalt putt it betwene the tabernacle of witnessse, and the altar: and put water therein. For Aaron and his sonnes shall wash theyr handes and theyr fete therein: euen when they go into the tabernacle of witnessse, or when they go vnto the altar to minystrer and to burne the Lordes offeringe, they shall wash them selues with water, lest they dye. And it shall be an ordinaunce vnto them for euer, both vnto him and his seed thowow out their generacions.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: Take vnto the principall spices: of the most pure myrrour syce hūdyed sickeles, of swete cynamon halfe so moche, euen two hundred and fyftee shekels: of swete calamus, two hundred and fyftee. Of cassia, two hundred and fyftee, after the holy shekel, and of oyle olyfe an hin. * And thou shalt make of the oyle an holy opyntment, euen an opyntment compoſide after the craſte of the apotecarye. And thou shalt noynte the tabernacle of witnessse therewith, and the arch of witnessse, and the table, and all his apparell: and the candellstick, and all his apparell: and the altar of incense, and the altar of burnt sacrifice with all his vessels, & the lauer and his fote. And thou shalt sanctifye them, that they maye be most holy: so that no man touche them, but they that be halowed. And thou shalt anoynte Aaron and his sonnes, and consecrate them, & they maye minystrer vnto me.

And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: thys shall be an holy opyntyng oyle vnto me, thowowout your generacions. Vpon mannes fleshe shall it not be powred: neyther shall ye make any other after the makinge of it, for yt is holy: and shall be holy vnto you: whosoever maketh lyke that, or whosoever putteth any of it vpon a stranger, shall perishe from amonge hys people.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: take vnto swete spices: balme, Onycha, swete galbanum, these spices with pure frankincense, of eache lyke moche: and make of them swete smellyng incense, after the craſte of the apotecarye, myngled together, pure and holy. And brate it to powdre and put of it before the witness in the tabernacle of witnessse, where I wyll mete the. It shall be vnto you most holy. And se that ye make none after the makinge of that, for it shall be vnto you holy for the Lord. Whosoever shall make like vnto that, to smell thereto, shall perishe from amonge hys people.

The xxxij. Chapter.

The callinge of Bezaleel and Aholiab the workmen. The Sabbath is commaunded. The tables of stone are geuen Moses.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: beholde, * I haue called by name, Bezaleel the sonne of Ahi of the trybe of Iuda. And I haue fylled hym wth spere of God, in wysdome, & vnderstandyng, in know- ledge & in all maner worke, to fynd out sottle feates, & to worke in golde, syluer & brasie: and in the craſte to sett stones, and to carue in tymbre, and to worke in all maner workmanſhip. And beholde, I haue geuen hym to be his companion Aholiab the sonne of Ahiſamach of the trybe of Dan, and in the preserues of all that are wyse harted, I haue putt wysdome, to make all that I haue commaunded the, the tabernacle of witnessse, the arch of witnessse, and the mercy seate that is therupon: and all the ornametes of the tabernacle, and the table and his ornametes: and the pure candellstick with all his apparell, and the altar of incense: and the altar of burnt offeringes and all hys vessels, and the lauer with his fote. The vestimentes for Aaron the p^{re}aste, and the garmentes of his sonnes to minystrer in, and the anoynting oyle: and swete cense for the sanctuary, according to all that I haue commaunded the shall they do.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: In any wise se that ye kepe my Sabbath: for it is a signe betwene me and you in your generacions, for to knowe that I the Lord am he & doth sanctifye you. * Kepe my Sabbath therfore: for it is holy vnto you.

he that he that despleth it, shall be slayne. For whosoener worketh therein, the same soule shall be roted oute from amonge hys people. * Syre dayes shall men worke. And in the seventh daye is the Sabbath of the holpe rest of the Lord. Whosoener doth any worke in the Sabbath daye, shall dye: wherefore lett the chyldren of Israel kepe the Sabbath, & they obserue it thowowout theyr generacions, that it be an appoyntment for euer. For it is a signe betwene me and the chyldren of Israel for euer. * For in syre dayes the Lord made heauen and earth: and in the seventh daye he rested, and was refreshed.

And when the Lord had made an ende of comyng with Moses vpon the mounte Sinai, * he gaue him two tables of witnessse: euen tables of stone, wyrtten with the fyrger of God.

The xxxij. Chapter.

The golden calfe. Moses prayeth for the people: he beareth the cables for anger. He chydeth Aaron. The idolaters are slayne.

And when the people sawe, that yt was longe or Moses came downe out of the mountayne, they gathered them selues together vnto Aaron, and sayd vnto hym: * Up, make vs goddes to go before vs: for of this Moses (& felowe that brought vs out of the lande of Egypt) we wote not what is become.

And Aaron sayde vnto them: * plucke of the golden earpynges which are in the eares of your wyues, your sonnes, and of your daughters: and bring them vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earpynges, which they had in theyr eares, & brought them vnto Aaron. And he receaued them of their handes, and fashioned it with a grauer, and made of it a calfe of molten metall. And they sayde: * These be thy goddes, O Israel, which brought the oute of the lande of Egypt.

And when Aaron sawe that, he made an altare before it. And Aaron cryed, sayinge: to morowe is the holy daye of the Lord. And they rose vp in the mornyng, & offered burnt offeringes, and brought peace offeringes also. * And the people sat them downe to eate and dryncke, and rose vp agayne to playe.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: * go, get the downe: thy people which I broughtest out of the lande of Egypt, haue marred all, they are turned at once out of the waye, which I commaunded them: * for they haue made them a calfe of molten metall, and haue worshypped it, and haue offered thereto, sayinge: These be thy goddes, O Israel, which hath brought the oute of the lande of Egypt. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: * I haue sene this people: and beholde, it is a stiffe necked people, and nowe suffer me, that my wrath maye ware hote agaynst the, and consume them: and I wyll make of the a myghtye people.

And Moses besought the Lord his God, and sayde: O Lord, why doesthy wrath ware hote agaynst thy people, which thou hast brought oute of the lande of Egypt, wth greate power and with a myghtye hande? * wherefore shoulde the Egipcians speake and saye: For a myschefe dyd he bring them oute euen for to sleie them in the mountaynes, and to consume them from the face of the earth. Turne from thy fearce wrath, and turne from thys euell (deupled) agaynst thy people. Remembre Abraham, Isaac and Israel thy seruantes, to whom thou swarest by thyne awne selfe, and saydest vnto them: * I wyll multiplye your seeede as the starres of heuen, and all this lande that I haue spoken of, wyll I geue vnto your seed: and they shall inheret it for euer. And the Lord refrayned him selfe fro that euell: which he sayd he wolde do vnto hys people.

And Moses turned hys backe, and went downe from the hyll, and the two tables of witnessse were in hys hande: and the same tables were wyrtten on both the leaues, and were the worke of God, and the wyrtynge was the wyrtynge of God grauen in the tables. And when Josua hearde the noyse of the people, as they shouted, he sayde vnto Moses: there is a noyse of warre in the host. And he answered: it is not the crye of them that haue the mastery, nor of them that haue the worke: but I do heare the noyses of them that synge.

And it fortuned, as soone as he came nye vnto the hooſte, he sawe the calfe and the daunsyng, and Moses wrath waxed hote, and he cast the tables out of his handes, and brake them beneth the hyll. * And he toke the calfe which they had made, and burned it in the fyer, and stampede it vnto powder, and strawed it in the water, and made the chyldren of Israel dryncke of it. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: what dyd thys people vnto the, that thou hast brought so greate a synne vpon them?

And Aaron answered: let not the wrath of my Lord waxe fearce, thou knowest the people that they are euen sett on myschefe: For they sayde vnto me: make vs goddes to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moses, the felowe that brought vs out of the lande of Egypt. And I sayd vnto the: * let them that haue golde pluck it of, and bring it me: and I cast it into the fier: and therof came out thys calfe.

Moses therfore sawe that the people were naked (and that Aaron had made them naked vnto theyr shame) amonge theyr enemies) enemies) and he went and stode in the gate of the hoste, and sayde: If any man pertayne vnto the Lorde, let him come to me. And all the sonnes of Levi gathered them selues together, & came vnto him. And he sayde vnto them: Thus saith the Lorde God of Israel: put euery man his sword by his syde, & go in and out, from gate to gate thowout the hoste: and sleue euery man, his brother and euery man his companion, and euery man his neyghboure. And the chyldren of Levi dyd as Moses had sayde. And there fell of the people the same daye about. iij. m. And Moses sayde: spyl your handes vnto the Lorde this daye, euery man vpon his sonne and vpon his brother, and that ther maye be geuen you a blessing this daye.

And on the morowe it fortuneth p Moses sayde vnto the people: Ye haue synned a great synne. And now I will go vnto the Lorde: pparadventure I maye purchase an atonement for your synne. Moses therefore went agayne vnto the Lorde, & sayde: Oh, thys people haue synned a greete synne and haue made them goddes of golde. And now I praye the, cyther forgue them their synne: or (yf thou wilt not) wryte me out of thy booke, which thou hast wrytten. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: I will put hym out of my booke that hath synned agaynst me. And now go thou, bryng the people vnto the place which I sayde vnto p: beholde, * myne angell shall go before the. * I will be with the people in the daye when I vylet, I will vylet their synne vpon them. And the Lorde plagued the people, because they made the calfe which Aaron made.

The xxxiii. Chapter.

The Lorde sendeth an angell before hys people. The Lorde beneth to goo by with the people. The people lament their synne. Moses talketh w the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: departe, and go hence: thou and p people, which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypte, vnto the land which I swaie vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, sayinge: * vnto thy seed will I geue it: (and I will sende an angell before the: and wyl cast out the Canaanites, the Amorites and the Hethites, the Pherezites, the Hevites, and the Jebusites) a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. For I wyl not go amonge you my selfe: * for ye are a stiffnecked people: lest I consume the in the waye. And when the people heard this euell tidynge, they sorowed: and no man did put on hys best rayment.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses: saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye are a stiffnecked people: I must come once sodenly vpon you, & make an ende of you. Therefore now put thy goodly rayment from the, p I maye wete what to do vnto the. And the chyldren of Israel layde their goodly rayment from them, euen by the mount Horeb.

And Moses toke the tabernacle, and pitched it withoute the hoste a farte of from the hoste: and called it the tabernacle of witness. And so it came to passe, that euery one which wolde praye vnto the Lorde, went out vnto the tabernacle of witness, which was withoute the hoste. And it fortuneth, that when Moses went out vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp: and stode euery man at his tente doze: and looked after Moses, vntill he was gone into the tabernacle. And alsoone as Moses was entred into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended, and stode at the dooze of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And all the people saw the cloudy pillar stande at the tabernacles doze, and they rose vp, and worshipped euery man in his tente doze.

And p Lorde spake vnto Moses: * face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende: * and he turned agayne into p hoste. And the chyldre Josua hys seruante the sonne of Num, departed not oute of the tabernacle: And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: se, thou sayest vnto me: leade this people forth, and thou hast not shewed me whom thou wylt sende with me. And thou hast sayde mozeouer: I knowe the by name, and thou hast also founde grace in my syght. Nowe therfore yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght, then shewe me thy waye, that I maye knowe p, and that I maye fynde grace in thy syghte. And consyder also, that thys nacyon is thy people. And he sayde: my presence shall go with the: and I will geue the rest. He sayde vnto hym: Yf thy presence go not with me, carye vs not hce: for howe shall it be knowe here, that I and thy people haue founde fauoure in thy syght, but in that thou goest w vs: Yf thou go with vs, shall not I and thy people haue pccynence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth? And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will do this also that thou hast sayte, for thou hast founde grace in my syghte, and I knowe the by name.

And he sayde: I beseech the, shewe me thy gloze. And he sayde: I will make all my good go before the; and I wyl be called in this name of the Lorde before the: * and will shewe mercy to whom * I wyl shewe mercy, and wyl haue compassion on whom I wyl haue compassion. And he sayd furthermoze: y mayst not se my face: for * there shall no man se me, and lyue.

And the Lorde sayde: beholde, there is a place by me, & thou shalt stonde vpon a rock: and whyle my gloze goeth forth, I will put the in a clyst of the rock: and wyl put myne hande vnto the, whyle I passe by. And I wyl take awaye myne hande, & thou shalt se my back partes: but my face shall not be sene.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

The tables are renewed. The mercy of God. To haue felowshipp with the Gentyles is forbidden: and thers ppolatrye also. Of thers feastes.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: * hewe the two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrst, and I will wryte vpon them the wordes that were in the first tables which thou brakest. And be ready in the morynge, that thou mayest come vpearly vnto the mount of Sinai: and stand there with me in the top of the mount. There shall no man come vp w the, neyther let any man be sene thowout all the mount, neyther let shepe nor oxen fede before the hyll.

And Moses hewed two tables of stone lyke vnto the fyrst, and rose vpearly in the morynge, and went vp vnto the mount of Sinai, as the Lorde had commaunded hym: and toke in his hande the two tables of stone. And the Lorde descended in the clowde, and stode with hym there: and he called vnto the name of the Lorde. And when the Lorde walked before him, he cryed, Lorde * Lorde God, mercifull and gracious, long suffering, & abounding in goodness & trouth, & keepyng mercy in store for thousandes, forgerynge wickednes, vngodlynes & synne, & not leauynge one innocent, vlsyng the wickednes of the fathers vpon the chyldren and vpon chyldrens chyldren, euen vnto the third and fourth generacyon. And Moses bowed hym selfe to the earth quckly, and worshipped, and sayde: If I haue founde grace in thy syght (O Lorde) then lett my Lorde go w vs: for it is a stubburne people, and thou shalt haue mercy vpon oure wyckednes and oure synne, and shalt take vs for thyne heritage.

He sayde: beholde, I make an appoyntment before all thy people: and I will do * mannylls: soch as haue not bene done in all the worlde, neyther in all nacyns. And all the people amonge which thou art, shall se the worke of the Lorde: * for it is a terrible thyng that I wyl do with the: kepe those thynges that I commaunde the thys daye: Behold, I cast out before the the Amorites, Canaanites, Hethites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites. * Take hede to thy selfe, * that thou make no compacte with the inhabitants of the lande whether thou goest, lest it be cause of ruyne amonge you. But outthrowe their alters, and breake their ymagges, and cut doune their groues. Thou shalt worship no straunge God. For the Lorde is * called gelous, because he is a gelous God: lest yf thou make any agrement with the inhabitants of the lande, and they goo a whoring after they goddes, and do sacrifice vnto they goddes, they call the, and thou eate of they sacrifice: & thou take of their daughters vnto thy sonnes, and they daughters go a whoring after they goddes, and make thy sonnes go a whoring after their goddes also.

Thou shalt make the no goddes of metal. The * feaste of swete bread shalt thou kepe. Seuen dayes thou shalt eate vneleued bread, as I commaunded the in the tyme of the moneth, when corne begynneth to rypp. For in the moneth when corne begynneth to rypp, thou camest out of Egypt. * All that breaketh vp the matryce is myne: and all that breaketh the matryce amonge thy cattell, yf it be male: whether it be oxen or shepe. But the fyrst of the ass thou shalt bye out w a lambe. And yf thou redeme hym not, thou shalt breake hys neck. All the fyrst borne of thy sonnes shalt thou redeme. * And se that no man appeare before me empty.

* Syxe dayes thou shalt worke, and in p seventh daye thou shalt rest, bothe from earyng and reaping. * Thou shalt obserue the feaste of weekes with thy fyrst frutes of wheatheruest, and the feaste of ingatherynge at the yeares ende. Thyse in a yeare shall all your mens chyldren appeare before the Lorde Jehoua God of Israel. When I cast out the nations before the, and enlarge thy coastes: so that no man shall despyze thy lande, thou shalt go vp to appeare before the Lorde thy God, thryse in the yeare.

* Thou shalt not offere the bloude of my sacrifice vpon leuen, neyther shall ought of the sacrifice of the feaste of Passouer be left vnto the morynge. * The fyrst rypp frutes of thy lande thou shalt bryng vnto the house of the Lorde thy God. And y shalt not * sette a kydd in hys mothers mylke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: wryte these wordes: for after the renoure of these wordes I haue made a couenant with the and with Israel. * And he was there wyth the Lorde fourtye dayes and fourtye nyghtes, and dyd neyther eate bread ner dryncke water. * And he wrote vpon the tables the wordes of the couenant, euen ten verbes.

e lly And it

And it fortuneth, whē Moſes came downe from mount Sinai, the two tables of witnes were in Moſes haide, whē he came downe from the mount. And Moſes wyll not that the ſhynne of his face ſhone in maner of an hoine, whyle he talked with him. And Aaron and all the chyldren of Iſrael looked vpon Moſes: and beholde, the ſhynne of his face ſhone, & they were afrayed to come nye him. And whē he had called the, Aaron & all the chefe that were in the company came vnto him, and Moſes talked with them.

And after ward, all the chyldren of Iſrael came nye, & he commaunded them all that the Lord had ſayde vnto hym in mount Sinai. And whan Moſes had made an ende of comynge with the, he put a couerpyng vpon his face. And agayne, whan Moſes went in befoze the Lord to ſpeake w him, he toke the couerpyng of vntill he came out. And he came out, and ſpake vnto the chyldren of Iſrael which he was commaunded. And the chyldren of Iſrael ſawe the face of Moſes, that the ſhynne of Moſes face ſhone. And Moſes put the couerpyng vpon his face agayne, vntill he went in, to comen with him.

The xxxv. Chapter.

The Sabbath. The ſynners are requyred. The robes of the people to offer. Bezaleel and Ahiaab are charged of Moſes, and ſet to worke.

* Exo. 35. 2

And Moſes gathered all the company of the chyldren of Iſrael together, and ſayd vnto the: theſe are the wordes which the Lord hath commaunded that ye ſhulde do them: * Sixe dayes ye ſhall worke: but the ſeuenty daye ſhalbe vnto you the holpe Sabbath of the Lordes reſt: whoſoeuer doth any worke therein, ſhall die. Ye ſhall kindle no fire thowout all your habitacions vpon the Sabbath daye.

And Moſes ſpake vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Iſrael ſaying: * this is the thing which the Lord commaunded, ſaying: Take from among you an heue offering vnto the Lord. Whoſoeuer is of a willing hert, let him brynge it for the heue offering of the Lord. Namely gold, ſyluer and braſſe, and pelow ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, whyte ſylke, goates heerte, and rams ſaynes red and tawus ſkynnes with ſethim wodd: oyle for light and ſpices for the anoynting oyle, & for ſweete cenſe. And Onix ſtones and ſtones to be ſet in the Ephod and in the bzeſlappe.

23 And let all them that are wyſe herted among you, come and make all that the Lord hath commaunded: the habitacyon with the tent therof and his couerpyng, & his rynges, and his bozdes, his barres, his pylers, and his ſockettes: the ark and the ſtaues therof, with the mercy ſeate and the dayle that couereth it: the table and his barres and all his vellels: and the ſhe webzed: the candellſtick of lyght and his apparell and his lampes with the oyle for the light: the cens altar and his barres: the anoynting oyle & the ſweete cenſe: and the hangyng of the doze at the entreyng in of the tabernacle: the altar of burnt ſacrifyce with his braſen greidren, his ſtaues, and all his vellels: ſyluer and gylt ſote: and the hangynges of the court with his pylers and their ſockettes, and the hangyng in the doze of the court: the pyntes of the habitacio and the pyntes of the court w their coardes: the mynſtring garmentes to mynſtre in the holy place: and the holy veſtimetes for Aaron the preſt, and the veſtimetes of his ſonnes, that they maye mynſtre him.

And all the company of the chyldren of Iſrael departed fro the preſence of Moſes. And euery one came (as many as they heretes cōaged them, & as many as their ſpites made them wylling) & brought a preſent for the Lord, to the making of the tabernacle of witnes, and for all his vſes, and for the holy veſtimetes. And they came both men & women (euē as many as were willing herted) and brought braceletes, and earynges, rynges and chaynes, which iewels were all of golde: & all ſ men brought a waue offering of golde vnto the Lord. And euery mā, with whom was founde pelow ſylke, purple, ſcarlet, whyte ſylke, and goates heerte and redd ſkynnes of rams & tawus ſaynes, brought them. All that dyd heue by an oblacyon of golde and braſſe, and brought an heue offering vnto the Lord. And all men with who was found ſethim wodd for any maner worke of the miniſtracyon, brought it.

And all the women that were wyſe herted dyd ſpynne with theyr handes, and brought the ſpynne worke both of pelow ſylke, purple, ſcarlet and whyte ſylke. And all the women whom their awne hert moued, & goates heerte wiſely. And the Lord brought onix ſtones, & ſtones to be ſet in the Ephod, and in the bzeſlappe, and ſpices and oyle for lyght and for the anoynting oyle and for the ſweete cenſe. And the chyldren of Iſrael brought a willpyng offering vnto the Lord, both mā and women: as many as had willing hertes to brynge, for all maner workes which the Lord had commaunded to be made, by the handes of Moſes.

And Moſes ſayde vnto the chyldren of Iſrael: beholde, * the Lord hath called by name Bezaleel the ſonne of Aie the ſonne of Hur of the trybe of Iuda, & hath fylled hym with the ſpice of God, in wiſdome and vnderſtāding, in knowledge, and in all maner worke, to ſynde out curious workes which are made in golde, ſyluer and braſſe. In the craſte of ſtones to ſet them: and in caruyng of wodd to make any maner of ſotte worke.

And he

And he hath put in his harte, that he may teache: both he and Ahiaab the ſonne of Abiſamach of the trybe of Man. Them hath he fylled with wyſdome of herte, to worke all maner of grauen, and ſotle, and nedle worke in pelowe ſylke, and purple, in ſcarlet, and whyte ſylke, and in weuyng. And to do all maner of worke and ſotle feates.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

The pyntes that Bezaleel and Ahiaab made.

* Exo. 36. 1

And Bezaleel wrought, & Ahiaab and all wyſe herted mā, to whom the Lord gaue wyſdome and vnderſtādyng, to knowe howe to worke all maner worke for the ſeruyce of the Sanctuary, and all that the Lord had commaunded. And Moſes called Bezaleel, Ahiaab and all the wyſe herted men and ſoche as the Lord had geuen wyſdome vnto, and as many as they hertes cōaged to come vnto that worke to worke it. And they receaued of Moſes all the preſent, whiche the chyldren of Iſrael had brought for the worke of the ſeruyce of the Sanctuary, to make it. And beſyde that they brought giftes vnto it euery daye in the moynynge.

And all the wyſe men that wrought all the holpe worke, came euery man from his worke whiche they made, and ſpake vnto Moſes, ſayinge: the people brynge to moche and moze then pñough for the ſeruyce and worke whiche the Lord hath commaunded to be made. And then Moſes gaue a commaundement, and they cauled it to be proclaimed thowout the hoſte ſayinge: ſe pñether man nor woman prepare any mozte worke for the preſent of the Sanctuary: and ſo the people were forbydden to brynge: for the ſuffe they had, was ſufficient for all the worke, to make it, and to moche.

All the wyſe herted men therfore, and they that wroughte for the habitacyon, made ten curtaynes of whyte twyned ſylke, pelowe ſylke, purple and ſcarlet: with pictures of broderd worke made he them. The length of one curtayne was. xxviii. cubytes, and the breadth foure and the curtaynes were all of one ſylke. And he coupled ſyue curtaynes by them ſelues, and other ſyue by the ſelues. And he made lowpes of pelowe ſylke alonge by the edge of one curtayne, euē in the ſeluege of the couplynge courtayne. And lyke wyſe he made on the ſyde of ſ couplynge curtayne on the other ſyde. ſyſtpe lowpes made he in the one curtayne, & ſyſtpe in the edge of the couplynge curtayne on the other ſyde: and the lowpes helde one curtayne to another.

And he made ſyſtpe rynges of golde, and coupled the curtaynes one to another wyth the rynges: and ſo was it made one dwelling place.

* And he made. xi. curtaynes of goates herre, to be a tent ouer the tabernacle. The length of a curtayne, had. xxx. cubytes and was foure cubites bzyde, and they all eleuen of one ſylke. And he coupled ſyue curtaynes by them ſelues, & ſyue by them ſelues, and he made ſyſtpe lowpes alonge by the border of the vtmoſt couplynge curtayne, and ſyſtpe in the edge of the other couplynge curtayne. * (That they myght be ioyned together.) And he made ſyſtpe rynges of braſſe to couple the tent together, that it myght be one. And he made a conerpyng vpon the tent, of rammes ſaynes redd, and pet another of tawus ſkynnes aboute that.

* Exo. 36. 3

* And he made ſtōdyng bozdes for the tabernacle of ſethim wodd. The length of a bozde was ten cubytes, the breadth one cubyte and a halfe. One bozde had two ſete, wherby they were ioyned one to another. And thus made he for all the bozdes of the Tabernacle. And he made. xx. bozdes for the ſouth ſyde of the habitacyon, and. xi. ſockettes of ſyluer vnder the. xx. bozdes two ſockettes vnder one bozde, for his two ſete.

* Exo. 36. 4

* (where the ſockettes of the ſpines ende in the corners.) * And for the other ſyde of the dwelling which is towarde the north, he made twety bozdes, & theyr fourty ſockettes of ſyluer, two ſockettes vnder one bozde. And towarde the weſt ende of the Tabernacle. * (That is to ſaye, at that ende of the tabernacle which enclyneth towarde the ſe.) he made ſyue bozdes, and two other bozdes made he in the corners of the habitacyon for eyther ſyde, and they were ioyned cloſſe beneth and aboue with a clampe, and thus they dyd to both the corners. And there were ryght bozdes & ſyxtene ſockettes, of ſyluer, vnder euery bozde two ſockettes.

* Exo. 36. 5

And he made barres of ſethim wodd ſyue for the bozdes of the Tabernacle in the one ſyde: and ſyue for the bozdes of the Tabernacle in the other ſyde, and ſyue barres for the bozdes of the habitacyon in the weſt ende. * (Towarde the ſe.) And he made the myddelt barre to ſpote thowout the bozdes: euē from the one ende to the other, and ouerlayde the bozdes wyth golde, and made rynges of golde to thruſt the barres thowout, and couered the barres wyth golde. And he made an hangyng of pelow ſylke, purple, ſcarlet and whyte twyned ſylke, euē with pictures made he it of broderd worke. And made ther vnto foure pylers of ſethim wodd, and ouerlayde the with golde. Theyr knoppes were alſo of golde, and he caſt for them foure ſockettes of ſyluer. And he made an hangyng for the tabernacle doze: of pelowe ſylke, purple, ſcarlet and whyte twyned ſylke of nedle worke. And the ſyue pylers of it with theyr knoppes, & ouerlayde the knoppes of them & the whopes wyth golde. The ſyue fyne sockettes also were of brafle.

The. xxxvii. Chapter.

The arke of witnesse. The mercy feate. The table. The candlesticke. The lightes. The altare and the incense.

And Bezaleel made the arke of Sethim wood, two cubites and an halfe long, and a cubite and a halfe broad, and a cubite and a halfe hye: and overlaid it with fyne golde within and without, and made a crowne of golde to it rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde for the foure corners of it: two rynges for the one syde, and two for the other, and made barres of Sethim wood, and couered them with golde, and put the barres in the rynges a longe by the syde of the arke, to bere it with all.

And he made the mercy seate. ^{That is to saye, Gods answeringe place.} Of pure gold: two cubytes and a halfe was the length thereof, and one cubyte and a halfe the breadth: & he made two Cherubyns of thicke golde vpon the two endes of the mercysseate. One Cherub on the one ende, and another Cherub on the other ende. Euen of the mercysseate made he the Cherubyns: namely, in the endes thereof. And the Cherubyns spred out theyr wynges aboue an hye, and couered the mercysseate therewith. And theyr faces were one to another: euen to the mercysseate warde, were the faces of the Cherubyns.

And he made the table of Sethim wood two cubytes was the length thereof and a cubyte the breadth, and a cubyte and a halfe the height of it. And he overlaid it with fyne golde, and made thereto a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and made thereto an whorpe of an hande breade, rounde aboute and made vpon the whorpe a crowne of golde rounde aboute, and cast for it foure rynges of golde, and put the rynges in the foure corners that were in the foure fete thereof. Euen harde by the whorpe were the rynges, into the whiche the barres were put, to bere the table withall. And he made the barres of Sethim wood, & couered the with gold to bere the table with all, and made the vessels (for the table) of pure golde: the dishes, spones, fiat peres and pottes to powze withall.

And he made the candlesticke of pure golde: euen of one peece made he the candlesticke. For hys fote, hys shafte, hys cuppes, his knoppes and hys floures were of one peece. Syxe braunches proceeding out of the sydes thereof, thre out of the one side, and thre out of the other. And in one braunche thre cuppes made lyke vnto almondes with knoppes & floures: and in another braunche thre cuppes made lyke almondes with knoppes & floures. And so thre out of the syxe braunches that proceeded out of the candlesticke. And vpon the candlesticke self were iiij. cuppes after the facon of almondes with knoppes & floures: vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. And the knoppes and the braunches proceeded out of it, and it was all one peece of pure thicke golde. And he made hys seuen lampes with the tonges and snuffers thereof, of pure golde. Euen of an hundred weyght of pure golde, made he it with all the vessels thereof.

And he made the cens alter of Sethim wood. The length of it was a cubyte, & the breadth a cubyte, for it was, foure square & two cubytes hye, with hornes proceeding out of it. And he couered it with pure golde, both the toppe and the sydes thereof rounde about, and the hornes of it, & made vnto it a crowne of golde rounde about. And he made two rynges of golde for it, euen vnder the crowne thereof in the two corners of it and in the two sydes thereof to put barres in, for to bere it withall: & made the barres of Sethim wood and overlaid them with gold. And he made the holy anoyntinge oyle, and the swete pure incens after the apotecaries crafte.

The. xxxviii. Chapter.

The altare of burnt offeringes. The brasen laver. The summe of that the people offered.

And he made the burnt offering alter of Sethim wood, two cubytes was the length thereof, and a cubyte the breadth: euen. iij. square, & iij. cubytes hye. And he made vnto it hornes in the four corners of it proceeding out of it, & he overlaid it with brafle. And he made all the vessels of the alter: the candlestogs, shouels, basyns, fleshhooks and colepannes. All the vessels thereof made he of brafle.

And he made a brasen greddyren of networke vnto the alter, rounde aboute alowe beneath vnto the myddes of the altare, & cast iij. rynges of brafle for the iij. endes of the greddyren to put barres in. And he made the barres of Sethim wood and couered them with brafle, and put the barres into the rynges in the foure corners of the altare, to bere it withall, and made the alter holowe with in the bozdes. And he made a laver of brafle, & the fote of it also of brafle: in the syghte of them that dyd watch at the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse.

And he made the courte on the south syde, & the hangynges of the courte were of whyte twyned sylke, hangyng an hundred cubytes. Theyr pylers were twenty, & theyr brasen sockettes twety. But the knoppes of the pylers, & theyr whorpes were of syluer. And on the north syde the hangynges were an hundred cubytes. Theyr pylers were xx. & theyr sockettes of brafle. xx. But the knoppes & the whorpes of the pylers were of syluer. On the west syde, were hangynges of i. cubytes. x. pylers pyllers & theyr x. sockettes. ^(Of brafle.) But the knoppes & the whorpes of the pylers were of syluer. And toward the east syde, were hangynges of i. cubytes: the hangynges of yone syde of the gate were sytene cubytes longe, with thre pylers, and thre sockettes. And of the other syde of the court gate were hangynges also of x. cubytes longe, with thre pylers and thre sockettes. All the hangynges of the courte rounde aboute, were of whyte twyned sylke: but the sockettes of the pylers were of brafle: and the knoppes and the whorpes of the pylers were of syluer, and the conuerge of the heedes was of syluer, and all the pylers of the courte were whorped about with syluer. And the hangyng of the gate of the courte was needle worke, of pelowe, sylke purple, scarlet and whyte twyned sylke. xx. cubytes longe, and fyne in the bredth, ouer agaynst the hangynges of the courte. And theyr pylers were foure and theyr foure sockettes of brafle, and the knoppes of syluer, and the heedes overlaid with syluer, and whorped aboute with syluer, and all the pyennes of the tabernacle & of the courte rounde aboute were of brafle.

This is the summe of the habitacyon of witnesse, as it was cousted accordyng to the commaundement of Moyses for the office of the Leuytes by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preast. And Bezaleel the sonne of Atri sonne of hur of the trybe of Juda, made all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses, and with him was Aholiab sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, a conninge grauer and a worke of needle worke in pelowe sylk, purple scarlet and whyte twyned sylke.

All the golde that was occupied for all the worke of the holy place, was the golde of the waueofferynge, euen. xxxix. hundred weyght, and seuen hundred and. xxx. sycles, accordyng to the sycle of the Sanctuary. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude, was. v. score hundred weyght, & a thousande seuen hundred &. lxxv. sycles after the sycle of the Sanctuary. For euery man an halfe weight, euen halfe a sycle after the sycle of the Sanctuary, for all them that went to be nombred from. xx. yere olde and aboue, euen for. vi. hundred thousande and thre thousande and. v. hundred and. l. men.

And of the. v. score hundred weyght of syluer, were cast the sockettes of the Sanctuary, and the sockettes of the vayne: an hundred sockettes of the fyne score hundred weyght, an hundred weyght to euery sockette. And of the thousande seuen hundred &. lxxv. sycles, he made knoppes to the pylers, and overlaid the heedes and whorped them. ^(with syluer.)

And the brafle of the waueofferynge was lxx. hundred weyght, and two thousande, &. iiii. hundred sycles. And therewith he made the sockettes to the doze of the Tabernacle of witnesse, and the brasen altare and the brasen greddyren for it, with all the vessels of the alter, and the sockettes of the courte rounde aboute, & the sockettes for the courte gate, & all the pyennes of the habitacyon, and all the pyennes of the courte rounde aboute.

The. xxxix. Chapter.

The apparell of Aaron and his sonnes. All that the Lorde commaunded was offered.

And of the pelowe sylke, purple & scarlet, they made the vestimentes of ministracyō to do seruice in the holy place, and made the holy garmentes for Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he made the Ephod of golde, pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet & whyte twyned sylke. And they dyd beate the gold into thynne plates, & cutte it into wyres: to worke it in the pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, and in the fyne whyte, with broderd worke. And they made two sydes for it, to cloose them vp by the two edges. And the brodyng of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe, and after the same worke: of golde, pelowe sylk, purple, scarlet, and twyned whyte sylke, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And they wrought Onix stones cloosed in ouches of golde, and graued as sygnettes are graued, with the names of the chyldren of Israel, and put them on the shoulers of the Ephod, that they shuld be stones for a remembrance of the chyldren of Israel, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he made the breastlappe of conyng worke, and lyke the worke of the Ephod: euen of golde, pelowe sylke, purple, scarlet, & twyned whyte sylke. It was. iij. square, and they made the breastlappe double, an hande breader longe and an hande breader broad. And they fylled it with iij. rowes of stones. The fyrst rowe: a Sardios, a Topas and * Smaragdus: the seconderowe, a Rubye * & an emerald. a Saphir and a Diamonde: in the iij. rowe, a Ligurios, an Achat, and an Amatist: in the fourth rowe: a Turcas, and Onix, and a Jaspis. And they were cloosed in ouches of golde in theyr inclosers. And the. xii. stones were grauen as sygnettes with the names of the chyldren of Israel: euery stone w hys name, accordyng to the. xii. trybes.

And they made vpon the breastlappe, two fastenynge cheynes of wethen worke and pure golde. And they made two hokes of golde, & two golde rynges, and put the two rynges in the two corners of the breastlappe. And they put the two chaynes of golde in the two ringes, in the corners of the breastlappe: And the two endes of the two chaynes they fastened in the two hokes, and put them on the shoulers of the Ephod vpon the fore front of it.

And

Exodus.

And they made two rynges of golde, and put them on the two corners of the breast-lappe vpon the edge of it whych was on the insyde by the Ephod. And they made two golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneath on the forsyde of it and ouer agaynst hys felowe, aboue vpon the brodyngge of the Ephod, and they straped the breastlappe by hys rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, wyth a lace of yelowc sylke: that it myght be vpon the brodyngge of the Ephod, and that the breastlappe shulde not be lowed fro of the Ephod: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

E And he made the tuncle vnto the Ephod of wouen worke, all together of yelowc sylke, and there was an hole in the myddest of the tuncle, as the coler of a partlet, wyth a bonde rounde aboute the coler, that it shulde not rent. And in the tuncle they made hemmes with pōgranates, of yelowc sylke, purple, scarlet, and whyte twyned sylke. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put them amonge the pōgranates rounde aboute vpo the edge of the tuncle: a bell and a pomgrate, a bell and a pomgrate rounde about the hemmes of the tuncle to mynstre in, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And they made cotes of fyne whyte of wouen worke for Aaron and hys sonnes, & a mytre of fyne whyte, and goodly bonettes of fyne whyte, and lynen breeches of twyned whyte, and a gyrdell of twyned whyte, yelowc sylke, purple and scarlet: end of nedleworke, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And they made the plate for the holy trowne of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it wyth grauen worke, the holynes of the Lorde: and tyled vnto it a lace of yelowc sylke to fasten it, an hye vpon the mytre, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

Thus was all the worke of the habitacyon and of the Tabernacle of witnessse fynished. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordyng to all that the Lorde had commaunded Moyses: Euen so dyd they. And they brought the habitacyon vnto Moyses: the tent and all his apparell, buttones, boozes, barres, pylers & lockettes, the coueryng of rams skynnes redd, and the coueryng of taxus skynnes, and the hangyngge bayle, the arke of witnessse and the barres therof and the mercyseate: the table and all the vessels therof, & the shewbreds: the pure candellsticke, with the lampes therof: euen with the lampes to be prepared and all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lyghte: the golden altare, and the anoyntynge oyle, and the swete cens, and the hangyngge of the Tabernacle doore, and the brasen alter wyth hys gredyzen of brasle, his barres and all hys vessels, the lauer and hys fote: the hangyngges of the courte wyth hys pyllers and lockettes: the hangyngge to the courte gate, and hys pyllers and coardes, and all the vessel of the seruyce of the habitacyon for the Tabernacle of witnessse: the mynstrepyngge vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes for Aaron the prest, & his sonnes raymentes to mynstre in, accordinge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses: euen so the chyldren of Israel made all the worke. And Moyses behelde all the worke, and se, they had done it euen as the Lorde commaunded: euen so had they done, and Moyses blessed them.

The xl. Chapter.

The Tabernacle is reared up. The gloze of the Lorde appereth in a clowde coueryng the Tabernacle.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge. In the fyrst daye of the first moneth, shalt thou sett vp the habitacyon, and the Tabernacle of witnessse, and put therein the arke of witnessse, and coner the arke wyth the bayle, and byngge in the table and apparell it accordyng to the order therof. And thou shalt byngge in the candellsticke, and lyght hys lampes, and sett the cens alter of golde before the arke of witnessse, and put the hangyngge at the doze of the habitacyon. And set the burntofferpyng alter before the doze of the habitacyon and Tabernacle of witnessse, and sett the lauer betwene the Tabernacle of witnessse and the alter and put water therein, and make the courte round aboute, and hange vp the hangyngge at the courte gate.

* And thou shalt take the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynt the habitacyon, and all that is therein, and halowe it with all the vessels therof, that it maye be holye. And thou shalt anoynte the altare of burntofferpyng and all hys vessels, and sanctifye the altare, that it maye be an altare moost holy. And thou shalt anoynte also the lauer and hys fote, and sanctifye it.

And thou shalt byngge Aaron and hys sonnes vnto the doze of the Tabernacle of witnessse, and washe them with water. And thou shalt put vpon Aaron the holy vestimentes, and anoynte him, and sanctifye hym that he maye mynstre vnto me. And thou shalt byngge his sonnes, and clothe them with garmentes, and anoynte them as thou dydest anoynt theyr father, that they maye mynstre vnto me. For theyr anoyntynge shall be an euertlastynge presthode vnto them: thorow out theyr generacyons. * And Moyses dyd accordyng to all that the Lorde commaunded hym: euen so dyd he.

Thus was the Tabernacle reared vp the fyrst daye in the fyrst moneth in the secōde pere. And Moyses reared vp the Tabernacle and fastened hys lockettes, and set vp the bozdes

The thynde boke of Moyses called in the hebrue Leuiticus: and in the Latyn Leuiticus.

The fyrst Chapter.

The order of the burntofferpynges.

And the Lorde called Moyses, & spake vnto hym out of the
* tabernacle of witnessse say- * Exo. xix. 9
inge. Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and thou shalt saye vnto them. If a man of you byngge a sacrifice vnto

the Lorde, ye shall byngge your sacrifice fro amonge these catell, euen from amonge the ore and the shepe. If hys sacrifice be a burntofferpyng, let hym offre a male of the ore with out blemyshe, and byngge hym (of hys own volūtary wyl) vnto the doze of the Tabernacle of witnessse before the Lorde. And he shall put hys hande vpo the heade of the burnt sacrifice, and it shall be accepted for him, to be hys attouement. And he shall kyl the calfe of the dzoue before the Lorde. And the prestes Aarons sonnes shall byngge the bloude, and spraye it rounde aboute vpon the altare, & is by the doze of the Tabernacle of witnessse. And then shall he flaye the burntofferpyng, and hewe hym in peces. And the sonnes of Aaron the preste shall put fyre vpon the altare, and put wodd vpon the fyre. And the prestes Aarons sonnes shall laye the partes (euen the heade and the fatt) vpon the wodd that is on the fyre in the altare. But the inwardes and the legges therof shall he washe in water, and the prest shall burne all in the altare, that they maye be a burnt sacrifice for a swete odoure vnto the Lorde.

And if hys sacrifice be of the flockes (namely of the shepe or goates) let hym byngge a male without blemyshe for a burnt offering. And let hym kyl it on the northsyde of the alter, before the Lorde. And the prestes Aarons sonnes shall spraye the bloude of it rounde aboute vpon the altare. And it shall be cut in peces: euen with hys heed and hys fatt, and the prest shall put them vpon the wodd that lyeth vpon the fyre in the altare. But he shall washe the inwardes and the legges the bozdes therof, and put in the barres of it and reared vp hys pyllers, and spreade abzōde the tent ouer the habitacyon, & put the coueryngge of the tent an hye aboue it: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he toke the testimōny, and put it in the arke, & set the barres to the arke, & put the mercyseate an hye vpon the arke, & brought the arke into the habitacyon, & hanged vpon the bayle, & couered the arke of witnessse, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he put the table in the Tabernacle of witnessse in the north syde of the habitacyon, (but without the bayle) and set the bread in ordze before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde had commaunded Moyses.

And he put the candellsticke in the tabernacle of witnessse oueragaynst the table towards the south syde of the habitacyon, and set vpon the lampes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And he put the golden alter in the tabernacle of witnessse before the bayle, and bynt swete cens thereon, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And he hanged vpon the hangyngge at the doze of the habitacyon, and set the burntofferpyng alter by the entryngge in of the habitacyon of the tabernacle of witnessse, and offred burntofferpynges and meateofferpynges thereon, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

D And he set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of witnessse and the alter, and poured water therein, to wash withall. And Moyses Aaron & his sonnes washed their handes, & their fete therat: when they went into the tabernacle of witnessse, & when they went to the alter they washed them selues as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And he reared vp the courte rounde aboute the habitacyon and the alter, & set vpon an hangyngge at the courte gate: and so Moyses fynished the worke.

Exo. xxxix. c And the clowde couered the tabernacle of witnessse, and the gloze of the Lorde fylled the habitacyon. And Moyses coude not entre into the tabernacle of witnessse, because the clowde abode thereon, and the gloze of the Lorde fylled the habitacyon. * (For the clowde had couered all.)

And when the clowde was taken vp from of the habitacyon, the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iorneyes thorow out theyr armyes. And when the clowde was not taken vp, they iorneyed not tyll it was taken vp: for the clowde of the Lorde was vpon the habitacyon by daye, and fyre by nyght: in the syghte of all the house of Israel thorow out all theyr armyes.

legges with water, and the preste shall bynge all together, and burne it vpon the alter for a burnt offering of a swete sauoure vnto y Lorde. If the burnt offering for the sacrifice of the Lorde be of the foules, he shall bring hys sacrifice of the turtill doves or of the ydg pygeons. And the preste shall bynunge it vnto the alter, and wyng the necke a lundze of it, and burne it on the alter. But the bloud therof shall runne oute vpon, by the syde of the alter. And he shall plucke awaye his crop-pe with hys fethers, and cast them besyde the alter on the east parte in the place of ashes.
And he shall breke the wynges of it, but plucke them not asunder. And the preste shall burne it vpon the alter, euen vpon the woodd that is vpon the fyre, that it maye be a burnt sacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

The ii. Chapter.

The order of meate offerings.

And the soule that wyll offer a meate offering vnto the Lorde, the same offering shall be of fyne floure, and he shall poure oyle vpon it, and put franchencens thereon, and shall bynunge it vnto Aarons sonnes the preastes. And he shall take therout his handfull of the floure, and of the oyle wyth all the franchencens, and the preste shall burne it for a memoriell of hym vpon the alter: to be an offering for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And the remnaunt of the meate offering shall be Aarons and his sonnes, a thyng most holy of the sacrifices of the Lorde: If thou bringe also a meate offering y is baken in the oven, let it be a swete cake of fyne floure myngled with oyle, or an vnlencued wafer anoynted w oyle. If thy meate offering be baken in the frengge pan, it shall be of swete floure myngled with oyle.
And thou shalt mynce it small, & powze oyle theron, that it maye be a meate offering.

And yf thy meate offering be a thyng bropled vpon the greddzen, let it be of floure myngled with oyle. And thou shalt bynunge the meate offering (y is made of these thynges) vnto the Lorde, and shalt deliuer it vnto the preste, that he maye offre it vpon the alter, and the preste shall take of the meate offering a memoriell, and shall burne it vpon the alter: that it maye be a burnt offering for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that whyche is left of the meate offering shall be Aarons and hys sonnes. It is a thyng most holy of the offerings of the Lorde.

All the meate offerings which ye shall bynunge vnto the Lorde, shall be made without leuen. For ye shall nether burne leuen nor honye in any offering of the Lorde: For with-standynge ye shall bynunge the fyrst thynges of them vnto the Lorde: but they shall not come vpon the alter for a swete sauoure.

* All the meate offerings also shalt thou season with salt: nether shalt thou suffer the salt of the couenaunt of thy God to be lackyng from thy meate offering, but vpon all thyne offerings thou shalt bynunge salt.
And if thou offre a meate offering of thy fyrst rype frutes vnto the Lorde, thou shalt offre for the meate offering of thy fyrst fru-tes, eares of corne dyed by the fyre, and cor-ne beaten as meale. And thou shalt put oyle vpon it, and laye franchencens thereon, that it maye be a meate offering. And the preste shall burne parte of the beaten corne & parte of that oyle wyth all the franchencens, for a remembraunce. And it shall be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

The iii. Chapter.

The order of peace offerings.

And yf this sacrifice be a peace offering, and he take it from amonge the boues, (whether it be male or female) he shall bynunge soch as is without ble-mythe, before the Lorde: & put his hande vpon the heed of his offering, and kylle it at the doze of y tabernacle of witnesse.
And Aarons sonnes the preastes shall sprinkle the bloude vpon the alter rounde aboute.
And he shall offre somewhat of the peace offering to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: euen the * fatt that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatt that is aboute the inwardes: and the two kydneyes, & the fatt that is on them and vpon the lynes: and the abundaunce that is on the lyuer shall he take awaye wyth the kydneyes. And Aarons sonnes shall burne the on the alter vpon the burnt sacrifice whyche is vpon the woodd y is on the fyre to be a burnt sacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto y Lorde.

If he bynunge a peace offering vnto the Lorde from of the flocke, let hym offre male or female: but without blemyshe. As yf he of-fre a shepe for hys sacrifice, he shall bynunge it before the Lorde, and put hys hande vpon hys offerings heed, and kylle it before the dooze of the tabernacle of witnesse, and Aarons sonnes shall sprynkle the bloude therof rounde aboute the alter.

And of the peace offering, let hym bynunge a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: the fatt therof, & the rompe all together, whiche they shall take off, harde by the backe bone: and the fatt that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatt that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kydneyes, and the fatt that is vpon them & vpon the lynes, and the abundaunce that is vpon
the lyuer shall he take awaye with the kydneyes. And the preste shall burne them vpon the alter, to be the foode of a sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

If hys offering be a goate, he shall bynge it

ge it before the Lorde, & put his hande vpon the heade of it, and kylle it before the Tabernacle of the couenaunt, and the sonnes of Aaron shall sprynkle the bloude therof vpon the alter rounde aboute. And he shall bynunge ther-of, his offering, ena sacrifice vnto the Lorde:
the fatt that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatt that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kydneyes, & the fatt that is vpon them and vpon the lynes, & the abundaunce vpon
the lyuer shall he take awaye with the kyd-
neyes. And the preste shall burne them vpon the alter for the food of the sacrifice: that all y fat maye be a swete sauoure vnto y Lorde.
Let it be a perpetuall statute for youre generacyons thowowe oute youre dwellynges, y ye cate nether fatt nor * bloude.

The iii. Chapter.

The offering made for synnes done of ignorance.

And the Lorde shalke vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldzen of Israel, and sape: yf a soule synne thowowe ignorance, and hath done any of those thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbydden in hys commaundementes to be done. As yf the preste that is anoynted do synne, & (accordynge to the synne of the people) let hym bynunge for hys synne whiche he hath synned a ponge ore without blemyshe vnto y Lorde for a synne offering. And he shall bynunge the ponge ore vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse before the Lorde, and shall put hys hande vpon the ponge ore heade, and kill the ponge ore before the Lorde. And the preste that is anoynted * shall take of the ponge ore bloude, and bynunge it into the tabernacle of witnesse, and the preste shall dyppe hys fynger in the bloude and sprynkle therof seuen tymes before the Lorde: euen before the hangynge of the holy place. And he shall put some of the bloude before the Lorde, vpon the hornes of the alter of swete cens, whiche is in the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall powze all the bloude of the ponge ore vnto the botome of the alter of burnt offering, whyche is at the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse.

And he shall take awaye all the fat of the ore that is for synne, the fatt that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatt that is aboute the inwardes, and the two kydneyes, and the fatt that is vpon them, and vpon the lynes, and the abundaunce of the lyuer shall he take awaye with the kydneyes: as it was taken awaye in the ore of the peace offerings, and let the preste burne them vpon the altare of burnt offering. * But the synne of the pong ore, and all hys fleshe, with hys heed, and hys legges, wyth hys inwardes, and hys donge, shall he beare oute and carpe the pong ore altogether oute of the hoste vnto a cleue place: euen where the ashes are powzed out, and burne hym there on woodd in the fyre: ena

by the place where the ashes are cast oute, shall he be byent. If the hole congregacyon of Israel synne thowowe ignorance, and the thyng be byd from theyr eyes, so that they haue committed any of those thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbydden to be done in hys comaundementes, and haue offended. When the synne whiche they haue synned in, is kno-wne, the congregacyon shall bynunge a ponge ore for the synne, and bynunge hym before the tabernacle of witnesse, and the elders of the multytude shall put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ponge ore before the Lorde. And the ponge ore shall be slayne before the Lorde.
And the preste that is anoynted, shall bynge of hys bloude into the tabernacle of wit-nesse, and the preste shall dyppe hys fynger in the bloude, and sprynkle it seuen tymes before the Lorde: euen before the vapie. And shall put of the bloud vpon the hornes of the alter, whiche is before the Lorde in the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall poure all y blou-de vnto the botome of the alter of burnt offeryng whiche is before the doze of the tabernacle of witnesse, and shall take all hys fatt from hym, and burne it vpon the alter, and shall do with this ponge ore, as he dyd with the ponge ore for synne: euen so shall he do w this. And the preste shall make an attonc-ment for them, and it shall be forgiven them.
And he shall bynunge this ponge ore without the hoste, and burne hym as he burned the fyrst. For it is an oblation for the synne of the congregacyon.

When a Lorde synneth, and commytte thowow ignorance any of these thynges, whiche the Lorde hys God hath forbydden to be done in hys commaundementes, and hath offended. And yf his synne be shewed vnto him whiche he hath done, he shall bynunge hys offering: euen an he goate without blemyshe, and laye hys hande vpon the heed of the he goat, and kill it in the place where the burnt-offering is vnto be kylled before the Lorde.
For it is a synne offering. And let the preste take of the bloude of the offering with hys fynger, and put it vpon y hornes of the burnt-offering alter, and powze hys bloude vnto the botome of the burnt offering alter, & burne all his fatt vpon the alter, as the fat of the peace offerings. And the preste shall make an attonement for hym, as concernynge his synne, and it shall be forgiven hym.

If one of the comen people of the lande synne thowowe ignorance, and commytte any of the thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbydden in hys commaundementes to be done, and so hath trespassed: yf hys synne whiche he hath synned, come to his knowlege, he shall bynunge for his offering, a she goate from amonge the flockes, without blemyshe for hys synne whiche he hath synned, and laye hys

hys hande vpon the heed of the offeringe, and see it in the place of burntofferings. * And the preste shall take of the bloude therof wth hys synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burntofferinge alter, and poure all the bloud vnto the botome of the alter, and shall take awaye all hys fatt, as the fatt of the peace offeringes is taken awaye. And the preste shall burne it vpon the alter, that it maye be a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord, and the preste shall make an attouement for hym, and it shall be forgiven hym.

¶ And yf he bypunge a shepe for a synne offeringe, he shall bypunge a female without blemyshe, and laye hys hande vpon the heed of the offeringe, and see it for a synofferynge in the place where they kyll the burntofferunge. And the preste shall take of the bloude of the offeringe with hys synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burntofferinge alter, and shall poure the bloude therof vnto the botome of the alter. * And he shall take awaye all the fatt therof, as the fatt of the shepe of the peace offeringe is wont to be taken awaye. And the preste shall burne it vpon the alter, that it maye be the Lordes burnt sacrifice, and the preste shall make an attouement for hys synne, that he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven hym.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ Of othes. The cleansynge of hym that toucheth vncleane thynges. The purgacion of an othe, and of synne done by ignorance.

¶ A soule synne ad heare the voyce of swerynge, and is a witnesse: whether he hath sene or knowne of it, yf he haue not vttered it, he shall beere hys synne. ¶ Either yf a soule touche any vncleane thyng: whether it be the carion of an vncleane best, or of vncleane catell, or vncleane woyme, and is not ware of it: beholde, he is vncleane and hath offended. ¶ Either yf he touche any vncleane of man (whatsoeuer vncleane it be that a man is wont to be defiled withall) and is not ware of it, and cometh to the knowledge of it, he hath trespassed. ¶ Either yf a soule sweare and pronounceth with hys lippes to do euill or to do good (whatsoeuer it be that a man is wont to pronounce with an othe) and the thyng be hyd from hym, and cometh to the knowledge of it, and hath offended in one of these. And it shall come to passe that when he hath synned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse that he hath synned in that thyng. Therefore shall he bypunge hys trespass offeringe vnto the Lord, for hys synne whiche he hath synned. A female from the flocke, a lambe or a she goate, for a synne offeringe. And the preste shall make an attouement for hym concernynge hys synne. * And yf he be not able to bypunge soche a shepe, he shall bypunge for hys trespass which he hath synned, two turtill doves or two yonge pygeons vnto the Lord, one for a synne offeringe, and the other for a burnt offeringe. And he shall bypunge them vnto the preste, whiche shall offer the synne offeringe fyrst, and wyng the necke a sundre of it, but plucke it not cleane of. And he shall sprynkle of the bloude of the synne offeringe vpon the syde of the alter, and the reste of the bloude shall he poure by the botome of the alter: for it is a synne offeringe. And he shall offer the seconde for a burnt offeringe as the maner is: and so shall the preste make an attouement for hym (for the synne whiche he hath synned) and it shall be forgiven hym. And yf he be not able to bypunge two turtill doves or two yonge pygeons, then he that hath synned shall bypunge for hys offeringe: the tenth parte of an Epha of fyne floure for a synofferynge, but put none oyle there to, ne her put any frankincense thereon, for it is a synne offeringe. And let the preste offre it, and the preste shall take hys handfull of it, for a remembrance therof, and burne it vpon the alter, to be a sacrifice for the Lord, it is a synne offeringe. And the preste shall make an attouement for hym as touchynge his synne that he hath synned in one of these, and it shall be forgiven. And the remnaite shall be the prestes, as a meat offeringe.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: ¶ If a soule trespass and synne thowowe ignorance in thynges that are consecrated vnto the Lord, let hym bypunge for hys trespass vnto the Lord a ram without blemyshe out of the flockes, valued in money at two shecles after the * syde of the sanctuary, that it maye be for a trespass offeringe. And he shall make amends for the harme that he hath done in the holy thing, and let him put the fyfte parte more thereto, and geue it vnto the preste. And the preste shall make an attouement for him with the ram that is for the trespass, and it shall be forgiven hym.

¶ If a soule synne, and comyt any of the thynges whiche are forbidden to be done by the commaundementes of the Lord: and wyll it not, and hath offended, he shall beere hys synne, and shall bypunge a ram without blemyshe out of the flocke that is esteemed to be worthe a trespass offeringe, vnto the preste. And the preste shall make an attouement for hym concernynge hys ignorance; wherein he erred and was not ware, and it shall be forgiven hym. ¶ Thys is a trespass offeringe, whiche he offered vnto the Lord for the trespass.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moyses saying: ¶ If a soule synne and trespass agaynst the Lord, and denye vnto hys neyghboure that which was taken hym to kepe, or that was put into hys hande, or doth violent robbery or wronge vnto hys neyghboure, or yf he haue founde that whych was loste, and denyeth it, and sweareth falsely, vpon whatsoeuer thyng it be yf a man doth, & synneth therein: yf he haue so synned or trespassed, he shall restore agayne that he toke violently awaye, or the wronge whych he dyd, or that whych was deliuered hym to kepe, or the lost thinge whiche he founde, and all that, aboute whych he hath sworne falsely, he shall restore it agayne in y whole summe, and shall adde the fyfth parte more thereto, and geue it vnto hym to whome it pertayneth y same daye that he offereth for his trespass, and let hym bypunge for hys trespass vnto the Lord, a Ram without blemyshe out of the flocke (y is esteemed worth a trespass offeringe) vnto the preste. And the preste shall make an attouement for hym, before the Lord, & it shall be forgiven hym, whatsoeuer thyng it be that he hath done & trespassed therein.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, saying: ¶ Commaunde Aaron and hys sonnes sayinge: this is the lawe of the burnt offeringe. ¶ The burnt offeringe shall be vpon the hard of the alter all nyght vnto the moynyng, & the fyre shall be kyndled on the alter. And y preste shall put on hys * linnen albe, and hys linnen breeches vpon hys fleshe, and take awaye the ashes vpon the whych the fyre consumed the burnt sacrifice in the alter, and he shall put them besyde the alter, and put of his rayment, and put on oyer, and carpe the ashes out wpythout the host vnto a cleane place.

¶ The fyre vpon the alter shall burne styll, and neuer be put out. ¶ But the preste shall laye wodd on it euery daye in the moynyng, & put the burnt sacrifice vpon it, and he shall burne theron the fatt of the peace offeringes. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the alter, and neuer go out.

witnesse they shall eate it. It shall not be taken wpyth leuen. I haue geuen it vnto them for theyr porcion of my sacrifices. It is most holy, as is the synne offeringe and trespass offeringe. All the males amonge the chyldre of Aaron shall eate of it: It shall be a statute for euer in youre generacions concernynge the sacrifices of the Lord: let euery one that toucheth it, be holy.

¶ And the Lord spake vnto Moyses saying: this is the offeringe of Aaron and of hys sonnes whiche they shall offer vnto the Lord in the daye when he is anoynted: the tenth parte of an Epha of floure, for a meat offeringe perpetuall: halfe in the moynyng and halfe at nyght: In the fryng pan it shall be made wpyth oyle. And when it is fryed, thou shalt bypunge it in, and the baken offeringes of this oblation mynked small, shalt thou offer for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord. And that preste of his sonnes that is anoynted in hys steade, shall offer it: It is the Lordes butye for euer: it shall be burnt all together. ¶ For D euery meat offeringe that is made for the preste, shall be burnt all together, and shall not be eaten. And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron, and vnto hys sonnes and saye: ¶ Thys is the lawe of y synne offeringe. In the place where the burnt offeringe is kyllled, shall the synne offeringe be kyllled before the Lord, for it is most holy. ¶ The preste that offereth it, shall eate it: In the holy place shall it be eaten: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of wytnesse. No man touche the fleshe therof, saue he that is halowed. And who so spekleth of the bloude therof vpon any garment, & thou shalt waiche it in the holy place, there as it is speckled vpon. ¶ But the erthen pot that it is sodden in, shall be broken. And yf it be sodden in a brasen pot, it shall be scowred, and rynsed in the water. All the males amonge the prestes shall eate therof, for it is most holy. And no synne offeringe, whose bloude is brought into the tabernacle of wytnesse to reconyle wpythall in the holy place, shall be eaten: but shall be burnt in the fyre.

¶ Trespass offeringes. Synne offeringes, and peace offeringes. The fatt and the bloude maye not be eaten.

¶ Thys is the lawe of the trespass offeringe: it is most holy. In the place where they kyll the burnt offeringe, shall they kyll the trespass offeringe also: and hys bloude shall be sprynkle rounde aboute vpon the alter. All the fat therof shall they offer: the rumpe and the fat therof that couereth the inwardes, and the ii. kydneyes, and the fatt that is on them and vpon the loynes: and the aboundance that is on the lyuer shalt thou thou take awaye wth the kyndenes: & the p^{re}ast shall burne them vpon the altare, to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: for it is a tres-pace offeringe.

All the males amonge the p^{re}astes shall eate therof in the holy place, for it is most holy. As the synne offeringe is, so is the trespa-ce offeringe, one lawe serueth for both, and it shall be the p^{re}astes that receyue the wth.
And the p^{re}aste y^e offereth any mans burntofferinge, shall haue the skynne of y^e burntofferinge which he hath offered. And all y^e meatofferinge that is bakyn in the oven, and that is dressed vpon the greddyn, & in the frynge pan, shall be the p^{re}astes that offereth it. And euery meat offeringe that is myngled with oyle and that is drye, shall pertaine vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, and one shall haue as much as another. This is the lawe of the peace offeringe, wh^{er} it is offered vnto the Lorde.
If he offer it to geue th^{er} thanks, he shall bry-nge vnto hys chancerynge, swete cakes myngled wth oyle, & swete wafers anoynt-ed wth oyle, and cakes myngled wth oyle of fynne flour fryed. He shall brynge hys offe-rynge vpon cakes of leuened bread for hys peace offerings to geue th^{er} thanks: and of all the sacrifice he shall offer one for an heue offeringe vnto the Lorde, and it shall be the p^{re}astes that sprynckled the bloude of the peaceoffringes. And the fleshe of the thankoffrynge in hys peace offerings shall be eaten the same daye that it is offered. And let hym lape v^{nto} nothyng of it vntyll the morowe. But y^e he offre hys sacrifice by reason of a vowe, or of hys awne frewyl, it shall be eaten the same daye that he offereth hys sacrifice. And y^e ought remayne vntyll the morowe, it maye be eaten: but as much of the offered fleshe as remayneth vnto the thyrde daye, shall be burnt wth fyre. And y^e any of the fleshe of hys peace offerings be eaten in the thyrde daye, then shall he that offereth it, obtayne no fauoure: neither shall it be rekened vnto hym: but shall be an abhomy nacion. Therefore the soule that eateth of it, shall beare hys synne. And the fleshe that toucheth any vncleane thyng shall not be eat, but burnt wth fyre: and all that be cleane, shall eate the fleshe. But y^e any soule eate of the fleshe of the peace offeringe that pertaineth vnto the Lorde haupnge hys vncleanness vpon hym:
the same soule shall p^{er}rythe fro amonge hys people. Moreover, the soule that doth touche any vncleane thyng, that is of the vncle-nesse of man or of any vncleane beast or any abhomy nacion that is vncleane: and then eate of y^e fleshe of the peace offeringe wh^{er} p^{er}- taineth vnto the Lorde, that soule shall p^{er}- rythe from hys people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge:
speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye:

* Ye shall eate no maner fatt of oxen of shepe and of goates: neuerthelater the fatt of the beaste that dyeth alone, and the fatt of that wh^{er}ch is tozue wth wyld beasts, shall be occupied in any maner of vse, but y^e shall in no wise eate of it. For whosoever eate-teth the fatt of the beaste of wh^{er}ch men vse to brynge an offeringe vnto the Lorde, that soule that eateth it, shall p^{er}rythe from his people. Moreover, y^e shall eate no maner of bloude, whether it be of foule or of beaste.
Whosoever soule it be that eateth any maner of bloude, the same soule shall p^{er}rythe fro hys people.

And the Lorde talked wth Moyses, sayinge:
speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye:
he that bryngeth hys peace offeringe vnto the Lorde, let hym brynge hys gyfte vnto the Lorde of hys peace offeringe: let his awne hades brynge the offerings of the Lorde: euen the fatt wth the best shall he brynge: that the best maye be waue for a waue offeringe before the Lorde. And the p^{re}ast shall burne the fatt vpon the alter, and the best shall be Aarons & hys sonnes. And the ryght shoulder shall y^e geue vnto the p^{re}aste, for an he-ue offeringe, of poure peace offerings. The same that offereth the bloude of the peaceoffringes and the fatt, amonge the sonnes of Aaron, shall haue the ryght shoulder for his parte, for the waue best and the heue shoulder haue I taken of the chyldren of Israel, euen of their peace offerings, and haue geuen it vnto Aaron & vnto hys sonnes: by a statute for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

This is the anoyntynge of Aaron and the anoyntynge of his sonnes in the sacrifices of the Lorde, in the daye when he offered the to-be p^{re}astes vnto the Lorde. And these be the sacrifices which the Lorde commaunded to be geuen them (in the daye of the anoyntynge) of the chyldren of Israel, by a statute for euer in theyr generations. This is the lawe of the burnt offeringe and of the meatofferinge, and of the sacrifice for synne and trespace, for consecracyn & for the peaceof-frynge: which the Lorde commaunded Moses in the mount of Synai, when he comma-unded the chyldren of Israel to offer their sacrifices vnto the Lorde in the wyldernesse of Synai.

The viij. Chapter.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: take Aaron & hys sonnes with him, and the bestu-res & the anoyntynge oyle, & two ra-mes, and a basket wth swete breed: and gether thou all the congregacyon together vnto
the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse.
And Moyses dyd as the Lorde commaunded
hym, &

hym, and the people were gathered together vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse.
And Moyses sayde vnto the congregacyon:
this is the thyng which the Lorde comma-ded to be done.

And Moyses brought Aaron & hys son-nes, and washed them with water, and put vpon hym the albe, & girded him wth a girdle, & put vpon hym the tunicle, & of patow (like) and put the Ephod theron, which he girded wth the broderd gyrdell that was in the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therwth.
And he put the brestlappe theron, and put in the brestlappe Arim & thumim. And he put the myter vpon hys heed, and put vpon the myter (euen vpon the forefront of hys face) the golde plate of the holy crowne, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses toke the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynted the Tabernacle, and all that was therein, and sanctified them, and sprynkled therof vpon the alter seuen tymes, and anoynted the alter, and all hys vessels, the lauer & his fote, to sanctifye the (wth the oyle).
And he powred of the anoyntynge oyle vpon Aarons heed, and anoynted hym, to sanctifye hym. And Moyses brought Aarons son-nes, & put albes vpon them, and girded them with gyrdels, & put boucetes vpon their hee-des: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he brought the ponge ore for synne,
And Aaron and hys sonnes put theyr hades vpon the heed of the ponge ore that was for synne. And Moyses slewe hym, & toke of the bloude, which he put vpon the hornes of the alter rounde about wth hys synger, & p^{er}- rified it, and powred the bloude vnto the botome of the alter, & sanctified it, and re-ceyued it. And he toke all the fatt that was vpon the inwarde, and the abundaunce of the lyuer and the two kyndenes, and theyr fatt, & Moyses burned it vpon the alter. But the ponge ore and hys hyde, his fleshe and his dage, he burnt wth fyre without the holte,
as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he brought the ram for the burnt offrynge, and Aaron and hys sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ram, which Moses kyled, and sprynkled the bloude vpon the alter rounde about, and Moyses cut the ram in peces and burnt the heed, the peces and y^e fatte, and washed the inwarde & the legges in water, and Moyses burnt the ram eue-ry wh^{er} vpon the alter, for a burnt sacrifice, that it myght be a swete sauoure, and an offrynge vnto the Lorde, as the Lorde comma-unded Moyses.

And he brought the other ram, namely the ram of consecracyn (of the p^{re}astes) & Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ra: which Moyses slewe, and toke of the bloude of it, and put it vpon the tpype

of Aarons ryghte eare, & vpon the thombe of hys ryghte hande, & vpon the gret too of his ryghte fote. And Moyses brought Aarons son-nes, & put of the bloude (of the ra) on y^e tpype of the ryghte eare of the, & vpon the thombes of the ryghte handes, and vpon the greate toos of the ryghte fete, and Moyses sprynkled the bloude vpon the alter rounde aboute.

And he toke the fatte and the coumpe, & of the
and all the fatt that was vpon the inwarde, and the abundaunce of the lyuer, and the kyndenes wth theyr fatt, & the ryghte shoulder. And out of the basket of swete bread y^e was before the Lorde, he toke one swete cake of oyled bred, & one wafer, & put them on the fatt & vpon the ryghte shoulder: & put altogether vpon Aarons handes, & vpon hys son-nes handes, & waue it a waue offeringe before the Lorde. And Moyses toke them from of their handes, & burnt them vpon the alter, euen vpon the burnt offeringe alter: for it was the sacrifice of consecracyn, for a swete sauoure & a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And Moyses toke the beaste and waue it for a waue offeringe before the Lorde, for it was of the ram of the consecratiō, and it was Moses parte, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses toke of the anoyntynge oyle,
and of the bloude wh^{er}ch was vpon the alter, and sprynkled it vpon Aaron and vpon hys vestimentes, vpon hys sonnes & on hys son-nes vestimentes wth him, and sanctified Aarons vestures & hys sonnes, & hys son-nes vestures wth hym: And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron and hys sonnes: boyle the fleshe in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and there eate it wth the bread that is in the basket of consecracyn, as I commaunded, sayinge: Aaron and hys sonnes shall eate it:
& that wh^{er}ch remayneth of the bread, shall ye burne wth fyre.

And ye shall not departe from the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. viij. dayes, vnto the dayes of poure consecracyn be at an ende. For viij. dayes shall ye fyll poure hande as he dyd thes dayes: euen so the Lorde hath commaunded to do, to reconyle you wth all. Therefore shall ye abide in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse daye and nyght seue dayes longe: & kepe the watche of the Lorde, and ye shall not dye: for so I am commaun-
ded. And so Aarons & his sonnes dyd all thynges wh^{er}ch the Lorde commaunded by the hande of Moyses.

The ix. Chapter.

The first offeringe of Aaron, Aaron blessed the people the gloze of the Lorde is shewed.

And it fortuned that in the eight daye, Moyses called Aaron and hys sonnes, and the elders of Israel: and sayde vnto Aaron: take the a calfe, a yoge one out of the doze, & for synne, & a ra for a burnt offrynge:

fringe: both without blemish, and bypunge them before the Lorde. And unto the chyldre of Israel thou shalt speake, sayinge: take ye an he goote for synne, & a calfe and a lambe bothe two of a yere olde, without blemish for a burnt sacrifice, and an ore and a Ram for peaceoffrynges, to offer before the Lorde, and a meateoffrynge myngled with oyle, for to daye the Lorde will appere vnto you. And they brought that (which Moses commaunded) before the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the congregacyon came and stode before the Lorde. And Moses sayd: this is the thing, whych the Lorde commaunded that ye shulde do: and the glorie of the Lorde shall appere vnto you. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: go vnto the alter and offer thy sacrifice for synne, and make an attonement for the and for the people: & thou shalt offer the offrynge of the people, to reconyle them, as the Lorde commaunded.

Aaron therfore went vnto the alter, and slewe the calfe whych he had for synne. And the sonnes of Aaron brought the bloude vnto hym, and he dypte hys synger in the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the alter, and powred the bloude vnto the botome of the alter. But the fatt and the two kydneys and the abundaunce of the lyuer of the synneoffrynge, he burnt vpon the alter, as the Lorde commaunded Moses: The fleshe and the hyde, he burnt with fyre without the holte. And he slewe the burntoffrynge * and the sonnes of Aaron brought vnto hym the bloude, whych he sprynkled rounde about vpon the alter. And they brought the burnt offrynge vnto hym with the peeres therof, and the head: and he burnt it vpon the alter, and dyd walche the inwardes and the legges, and burnt them vpon the burntoffrynge in the alter.

And then he brought the peoples offryng, takinge the goote that the people had for the sacrifice of synne, and slewe it and offered it for synne, as he dyd the fyrst. And brought the burntoffrynge, and offered it as the manner was * and brought the meateoffrynge, and fylled hys hande therof, and burnt it vpon the alter, besyde the burnt sacrifice of the moynynge.

He slewe also the ore & the Ram for the peaceoffrynge, that the people had for them selues: and Aarons sonnes brought vnto hym the bloude, whych he sprynkled vpon the alter rounde about, and toke the fatt of the ore and of the Ram, the roupe, and the fatt that couereth the inwardes and the kydneys & the abundaunce of the lyuer: and they put the fatt vpon the brestes, and he burnt the fatt vpon the alter: but the brestes and the ryght shoulders Aaro wauned for a waueoffrynge before the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded

Moses. And Aaron lyfte vp hys hande ouer the people, and blessed them, and came doune from offrynge of the synneoffrynge, burnt offrynges & peaceoffrynges. And Moses & Aaro went in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, & came out, and blessed the people, and the glorie of the Lorde appered vnto all the people. * And there came a fyre out from before the Lorde, & consumed vpon the alter the burntoffryng & the fatt. Whych whan all the people sawe, they gaue thankes, and felle on theyr faces.

The .x. Chapter.

Nadab & Abihu are slayne. Israel mourneth for them. The priests are forbidden wyne.

And Moses & Aaro the sonnes of Aaron toke ether of them his cello, & put fyre therein, & put cens ther vpon, & offered strange fyre before the Lorde: whych he commaunded them not, & there went a fyre out from the Lorde, & consumed the. & they dyed before the Lorde. Then Moses sayde vnto Aaron: thus is it the Lorde spake sayinge: I will be sanctified in them that come nye me and before all the people I will be glorified. And Aaron helde hys peace. And Moses called Misael and Elapha the sonnes of Oziel the vncle of Aaron, and sayde vnto the: come on, carpe poure brethren fro the holy place out of the holte. And they went to them, and carped the in theyr albes out of the holte, as Moses had sayde.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar his sonnes: vncouer not poure heedes, neither rent poure clothes, lest ye dye, and lest wrath come vpon all the people: But let poure brethren the hole house of Israel bewepe the burnynge whych the Lorde hath kyndled. And go not ye out from the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye: for the anoyntynge oyle of God is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses sayde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron, saying: Thou shalt not drynke wyne & stronge drynke, thou and thy sonnes that are wyth the: when ye go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye. Let it be a lawe for euer thow rowe out poure generacions, and ye may put difference betwene holy & unholy, betwene vncleane & cleane, & ye may teach the chyldre of Israel all statutes whych whyche the Lorde hath spoken vnto them by the hande of Moses.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron and vnto Eleazar and Ithamar hys sonnes that were left: take the meateoffrynge that remaineth of the sacrifices of the Lorde, and eate it without leuen besyde the alter, for it is most holy: ye shall eate it in the holy place, because it is thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye of the sacrifices of the Lorde: for so I am commaunded. And the wauebrest and heu shoulder shall ye eate in a cleane place: thou and thy sonnes and thy daughters with the. For they be thy dutye and thy sonnes dutye geuen out of the peaceoffrynges of the chyldre of Israel: The heu shoulder and the wauebrest shall they bypunge in wyth the sacrifices of the fatt, to waue it before the Lorde, and it shalbe thyne and thy sonnes wyth the: by a lawe for euer, as the Lorde hath commaunded.

And Moses sought the goate that was offered for synne, and se, it was burnt. And he was angrey with Eleazar and Ithamar the sonnes of Aaron, whyche were left aloue, sayinge: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offrynge in the holy place, scynge it is moost holy: and God hath geuen it you, to bere the synne of the congregacyon, to make agreement for them before the Lorde? Beholde, the blond of it was not brought in with in the holy place. Ye shulde haue eate it in the holy place, as I commaunded. And Aaron sayde vnto Moses: beholde, thys daye haue they offered theyr synneoffrynge and theyr burntoffrynge before the Lorde, & and it is chaunced me after thys manner. And yf I had eaten the sacrifice to daye, shulde it haue bene accepted in the syght of the Lorde? And when Moses heard that, he was content.

The .xj. Chapter.

Of beastes, whyche be cleane, and whyche vncleane.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron and sayde vnto them: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, & saye: these are the beastes whyche ye shall eate, amonge all the cattell that are on the earth:

whatsoeuer parteth the hooffe, and deuydeth it into two clawes, and chaweth cud amonge the beastes, that shall ye eate. Neuertheless, these shall ye not eate, of them that chewe cud, & deuydeth the hooffe: as is the camell, whych chaweth cud, but he deuydeth not the hooffe, therfore is he vncleane vnto you, eno so the conye, whych chaweth the cud but deuydeth not the hooffe: he is vncleane to you. And the hare though he chawe cud, yet because he deuydeth not the hooffe, he is therfore uncleane to you. And agayne, the swyne, though he deuyde the hooffe into two clawes, yet he chaweth not the cud. he is vncleane to you. Of theyr fleshe shall ye not eate, & theyr carkasses shall ye not touche, but let them be vncleane to you.

These shall ye eate of all that are in the waters: whatsoeuer hath synnes and scales in the waters, sees and ryuers, that shall ye eate. And all that haue not synnes and scales in the see and ryuers, of all that moue and lyue in the waters, let them be abhominacyon vnto you: Ye shall not eate of theyr fleshe, but abhorre theyr carkasses. Let all that haue no synnes nor scales in the waters, be abhominable vnto you. These are they whych ye shall abhorre amonge the foules, and that ought not to be eaten, for they are an abhominacyon. The egles, the goshaue, & the cormoraunte, the vultur and the kyte after hys kynde, and all rauens after theyr kynde, the estrich, the nyghtcrowe, the coochowe, and the owle after hys kynde, the falcon, the storcke, the great oule, the backe, the pellycane, the ppe, the heron, the Iape after hys kynde, the lapwynge, and the swalowe. Let all foules that crepe & goo vpon all foure, be an abhominacyon vnto you.

Yet these maye ye eate, of euery creppynge thyng that hath wynges and goo vpon foure fete: euen those that haue knes aboue vpon theyr fete, to lepe wyth all vpon the erthe, euen these of them ye maye eate: the Arbe after hys kynde: the Selaam after hys kynde: the Hargol after hys kynde, and the Hagab after hys kynde. All other foules that moue and haue foure fete, shalbe abhominacyon vnto you. In soche ye be vncleane, and whosoever toucheth the carkass of them, shalbe vncleane vnto the euen: and whosoever bereth the carkass of them, shall walche hys clothes, and be vncleane vntyll euen.

And euery beast that hath hooffe and deuydeth it not into two clawes, ner chaweth cud, suche are vncleane vnto you: euery one that toucheth them, shalbe vncleane.

And what soeuer goeth vpon hys handes amonge all manner beastes that goo on all foure fete, such are vncleane vnto you: & who so doth touche theyr carkasse shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen. And he that beareth the carkass of them, shall walche hys clothes, & be vncleane vntyll the eue, for soche are vncleane vnto you.

And let these also be vncleane to you, amonge the thynges that crepe vpon the erth, the weasel, and the mouse, & the toade, after theyr kynde, the hedgehogge, the stello, the lacerte, the snayle, and the molle: these are vncleane to you amonge all that crepe: whosoever doth touche them when they be dead,

The lawe howe women shulde be purged after theyr deliuerance.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: Ipeake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: p a woman hath conceaued, & borne a manchild, she shalbe vncleane seuen dayes: euen in lyke maner as when she is put a parte in tyme of hyr naturall dyscase. And in the epght daye the fleshe of the chyldes * foreshynne shalbe cut awaye. And she shall then continue in the bloude of hyr purgynge thre and thyrtye dayes. She shall touche no baldeweb thyng, nor come into the sanctuary, vntyll the tyme of hyr purgynge be out. If she bere a maydechild, she shalbe vncleane two weekes, as when she hath hyr naturall dyscase. And she shall continue in the bloude of hyr purgynge thre scoze and fyre dayes.

* And when the dayes of hyr purgynge are out: whether it be for a sonne or for a daughter, she shall byrnge a labe of one peare olde for a burnt offeringe, and a younge pigeon or a turtill doue for synne vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse and vnto the pzeast: whych shall offer them befoze the Lorde, and make an attonement for her, and she shalbe purged of the pssue of hyr bloude. * And this is the lawe for her that hath borne a male or female. But and yf she be not able to byrnge a lambe, she shall byrnge * two turtys or two younge pygeons: the one for the burnt offeringe, and the other for synne. And the pzeast shall make an attonement for her, and she shalbe cleane.

The. xij. Chapter.

The pzeastes must iudge who are Lepers.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayinge: when there appeareth a rypynge in any mans fleshe, ether a scabbe, or a gylstryng whyte: and the plage of leprosy be in the skynne of hys fleshe, he shall be brought vnto Aar the pzeast, or vnto one of hys sonnes the pzeastes: and the pzeast shall loke on the soze in the skynne of hys fleshe. And whan the heere in the soze is turned vnto whyte, and the soze also seme to be lower then the skynne of his fleshe, it wyl be a plage of leprosy, and the pzeast shall loke on hym, and iudge hym vncleane.

If there be but a whyte plecte in the skynne of hys fleshe, and seme not to be lower the skynne, nor the heere thereof is turned vnto whyte, the pzeast shall shut hym vp seue dayes. And the pzeast shall loke vpon hym agayne the seue dayes: And yf p plage seme to him to abyde still, & p plage growe not in the the skynne the pzeast shall shut him vp yet vij. dayes moo. And the pzeast shall loke on hym agayne the vij. daye. Then yf the plage be darcher, & not growen in the skynne, the pzeast shall iudge hym cleane, for it is but a scabbe. And he shall washe his clothes, & be cleane. But yf the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is sene of the pzeast, & iudged cleane, he shalbe sene of the pzeast agayne. If the pzeast se p the scabbe be growen abrode in the skynne, the pzeast shall make hym vncleane: for it is a leprosy.

¶ When the plage of leprosy is in a man he shall be brought vnto the pzeast, and the pzeast shall se hym. And yf the rypynge be whyte in the skynne, and haue made the heere whyte, and there be rawe fleshe in the soze it wyl be an olde leprosy in the skynne of his fleshe. And the pzeast shall make hym vncleane, and shall not shut hym vp seynge he is vncleane.

If a leprosy breake out abrode in the skynne, & couer all the skynne, from hys heed to hys foote, whersouer the pzeast loketh, and the pzeast loke vpo him. And yf the leprosy haue couered all hys fleshe, he shall iudge the plage to be cleane because it is all turned into whytynesse, & he shalbe cleane. But ad yf there be rawe fleshe on hi wh he is sene, he shalbe vncleane. And p pzeast shall se p rawe fleshe, and declare him to be vncleane. For the rawe fleshe is vncleane seynge it is a leprosy. Yf the rawe fleshe departe agayne & chaunge vnto whyte, he shall come to the pzeast, and the pzeast shall se him & beholde: If the soze be chaunged vnto whyte * (and couer the whole man) the pzeast shall iudge the plage cleane & he shalbe cleane: The fleshe also in whose skynne there is a byle & is healed, & in the place of p byle there appeare a whyte rypynge, ether a gypynge whyte & som what reddish, it shall be sene of the pzeast. And yf wh the pzeast seyth hym, it appeare lower the skynne, & the heere thereof be chaunged vnto whyte, the pzeast shall iudge hym vncleane: for it is a plage of leprosy, broken out of the byle.

¶ But yf the pzeast loke on it and there be no whyte heeres therein, & yf it be not lower then the skynne, but be darcher, the pzeast shall shut hym vp. vij. dayes. And yf it syze abrode in the fleshe, the pzeast shall make hym vncleane, seynge it is the plage. But and yf the spot stode still, & growe not, it is the pynte of an hote byle, and therfore the pzeast shall declare hym to be cleane. Yf there be any fleshe, in whose skynne there is a hote burnynge, and the fleshe that burneth haue a whyte spott, som what reddish or whyte, p pzeast shall loke vpon it. And yf the heere in that byght spot be chaunged to whyte, and it appeare lower then the skynne, it is a leprosy broken out of the burnynge. And therfore the pzeast shall iudge hym vncleane, seynge it is the plage of leprosy. But yf the pzeast loke on it & there be no whyte heere in the byghte sport, and be no lower then the other skynne, but be darcher, the pzeast shall shut hym vp seue dayes. And the pzeast shall loke on hym the seuenth daye: And yf it be growe abrode in the skynne, the pzeast shall iudge hym vncleane, seynge it is the plage of leprosy. And yf the spot stode still in it, & growe not in the skynne, but is darcher, it is a rypynge of the burnynge, & the pzeast shall therfore declare hym cleane, seynge it is the pynte of the burnynge.

¶ If man or woman hath a soze vpon the heed or the beard, the pzeast shall se it. And yf it appeare lower than the skynne, & ther be in it a palowe heere: & thynne * (more then it was wont to be) the pzeast shall iudge hym vncleane, seynge that the same fretyng is a token of leprosy vpon the heed or berde. And yf the pzeast loke on the soze of the pynt, ad it seme not lower then the skynne, and that the heere is not blacke, the pzeast shall shut vp the fretyng soze seuen dayes. And in the seue daye the pzeast shall loke on the soze: and yf the soze be not growen, and there be in it no palowe hayre, and the soze seme not lower then the skynne, he shalbe clauer: but the place of the soze shall he not haue, & the pzeast shall shut vp the soze seuen dayes moo. And in the seuenth daye the pzeast shall loke on the soze: And if the soze be not growe in the skynne, ner seme lower then the other skynne, the pzeast shall clense hym, & he shall walsh his clothes, and be cleane. But yf the soze growe in the fleshe after hys clensynge, the pzeast shall loke on hym. And yf the soze be growne in p skynne, the pzeast shall not se he for pelowe heere, for he is vncleane. But if he se the pynte stonde still, and that there is blacke heere growne vtherin, the soze is healed, and he shalbe cleane, and the pzeast shall declare hym to be cleane. Yf there be whyte spottes in the skynne of the fleshe of man or woman, the pzeast shall loke vpo it. And yf the spottes in the skynne of theyr fleshe be som what darcher & whyte wythall, * (he maye be sure, that it is no leprosy) it is a freckell growynge in the fleshe: Therfore is he cleane.

¶ And the man (whose heade is destitute of heere, wherby he is made balde) is cleane. And he that hath hys heere out in his foreheade, is forehead balde and cleane. If there be in the baulde heed or baulde forehead a whyte reddish soze scabbe, there is leprosy spronge vp in hys baulde heed or baulde foreheade. And the pzeast shall loke vpon him, and yf the rypynge of the soze be whyte reddish in hys baulde heed or balde forehead after the maner of a leprosy which is in the skynne

f iij skynne

skynne of the fleshe, then he is a leperous man and uncleane. And the Preeste shall make hym uncleane, for the plague therof is in hys heed. The leper in whome the plague is, shall haue hys clothes rent, and hys heed bare and shall put a couerynge vpon hys lyppe, and shall be called vncleane and defyled. And as longe as the dyscase lasteth vpon hym, he shall be defyled and vncleane: he shall dwell alone, such * wpythout the host shall hys habytacyon be.

* Num. v. 2.
119. 119. 119.

The cloth that the plague of leprosy is in, whether it be linnen or wollen, whether it be in the warpe or woofe of linnen or of wollen: ether in a skynne or any thyng made of skynne, yf the dyscase be pale or somewhat reddish in the cloth or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or woofe or any thyng that is made of skynne, then it is a plague of leprosy, and shall be shewed vnto the preeste. The preeste therfore shall se the plague, and shew it vnto the preeste, and loke on the plague the seuenth daye. Whych yf it be increased in the cloth (whether it be in the warpe or woofe, or in a skynne) or in any thyng that is made of skynne it is the leprosy of a frettinge soze: it is vncleane: & that cloth shall be burnt, ether warpe or woofe whether it be wollen or linnen, or any thyng that is made of skynne, where in the plague is, for it is a frettinge leprosy, it shall be burnt in the fyre.

If the Preeste se that the plague is not growen in the cloth: ether in the warpe or woofe or in whatsoeuer thyng of skynne it be, the preeste shall commaunde them to wash the thyng wherin the plague is, and he shall shew it vnto the preeste agayne, after that it is washed. And yf the plague haue not chaunged hys coloure, and is sprede no further abrode, it is vncleane. Thou shalt burne it in the fyre, for it is fret inwarde: in parte or in all together. And yf the Preeste se that the plague is darker after that it is washed, he shall ret it out of the cloth, or out of the skynne, or out of the warpe or out of the woofe. And yf it appeare any moare in the cloth (ether in the warpe or in the woofe or in any thyng made of skynne) it is a waxinge plague. Thou shalt burne the plague that is in it. And yf the cloth, ether warpe or woofe or whatsoeuer thyng of skynne it be whych thou hast washed, yf the plague be departed there from, it shall be washed once agayne: and then shall it be cleane. This is the lawe of the plague of leprosy in a cloth whether it be wollen or linnen: ether in the warpe or woofe, or in any thyng of skynnes, to make it cleane or vncleane.

The. xliij. Chapter.

The cleansing of the leper, and of the house that he is in.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: * this is the lawe of the leper in the daye of hys cleansing: he shall be brought vnto the preeste, and the preeste shall go out wpythout the hoste, and loke vpon hym. And yf the plague of leprosy be healed in the leper, then shall the Preeste commaunde that he whych is to be cleansed, bringe two luynges byzdes and cleane, and cedar wodd, and purple cloth, and plope. And the Preeste shall commaunde that one of the byzdes be kylled in an erthen vessel & vpon rennyng water. And he shall take the luynges byzde with the cedar wodd, the purple and the plope, and shall dyppe them and the luynges byzde in the bloude of the sayne byzde, vpon the rennyng water, and spraye vpon hym (that must be cleansed of hys leprosy) seuen tymes, and cense hym, and shall let the luynges byzde goo fre into the felde.

And he that is cleansed, shall walche hys clothes, and haue of all hys heere, and wash hym selfe in water, that he maye be cleane. And after that shall he come into the hoste, & shall tarye wpythout hys tent seuen dayes: but in the seuenth daye he shall haue of all hys heere, namely, hys head, hys berde and hys browes: euen all hys heere shall be shauen of. And he shall walche hys clothes & hys fleshe in water and he shall be cleane.

In the eyght daye he shall take two lambes wpythout blemyshe, and an yewellabe of a yere olde without blemyshe, and thre tenthdeales of fyne floure for a meatoffryng myngled wpyth oyle and a logge of oyle. And the Preeste that maketh hym cleane, shall bringe the man that is to be made cleane and those thynges, before the Lorde, euen before the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Preeste shall take one lambe, and offer hym for trespass, & the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And he shall see the lambe in the place where the synnecoffryng and the burnt-offryng are sayne: euen in the holy place. For as the synnecoffryng is, euen so is the trespass offryng the preestes: sayng it is moost holy.

And the preeste shall take of the bloude of the trespass offryng, & put it vpon the tpype of the ryght eare of hym that is to be cleansed, & vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the great too of hys ryght foote. The preeste shall take of the logge of oyle, & powre it into the palme of hys left hande, and dyppe hys ryght fynger in the oyle that is in hys left hande, and spraye of the oyle wpyth hys fynger seuen tymes before the Lorde, Lorde. And of the rest of the oyle that is in hys hande, shall the Preeste put vpon the tpype of the ryght eare of hym that is to be cleansed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the great too of hys ryght foote: euen vpon the bloude of the trespass offryng. And the remnaunte of the oyle that is in the Preestes hande, he shall powre vpon the heed of hym that is to be cleansed: and the Preeste shall make an attonement for hym before the Lorde.

And the Preeste shall offer the synne offryng, and make an attonement for hym that is to be cleansed, for hys vncleannesse. And then shall he kylle the burnt offryng, and the Preeste shall offer the burnt offryng and the meat offryng vpon the alter: & the preeste shall make an attonement for hym, and he shall be cleane. * If he be poore, and can not gett so moche, he shall take one lambe for a trespass offryng to waue it for hys cleansing, and a tenth deale of fyne floure myngled wpyth oyle for a meat offryng, and a logge of oyle, and two turtill bones or two yonge pigeons, such as he is able to gett, wherof the one shall be for synne, and the other for a burnt offryng. And he shall bringe them the viij daye for hys cleansing vnto the Preeste before the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde.

And the Preeste shall take the lambe that is for the trespass, and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And he shall kylle the lambe for the trespass, and the Preeste shall take of the bloude of the trespass offryng, and put it vpon the tpype of hys ryght eare that is to be cleansed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the great too of hys ryght foote. And the Preeste shall powre of the oyle into hys ryght hande, and the preeste shall wpyth hys fynger spraye of the oyle that is in hys left hande, seuen tymes before the Lorde.

And the Preeste shall put of the oyle that is in hys hande vpon the tpype of the ryght eare of hym that is to be cleansed, and vpon the thombe of hys ryght hande, and vpon the great too of hys ryght foote: euen in the place where the bloude of the trespass offryng was put. And the rest of the oyle that is in the preestes hande, he shall put vpon the heed of hym that is to be cleansed: that he maye make an attonement for him before the Lorde. And he shall offer one of the turtill bones or of the yonge pigeons, soche as he can gett: the one for a synnecoffryng and the other for a burnt offryng wpyth meat offryng. And the Preeste shall make an attonement for hym that is to be cleansed before the Lorde. This is the lawe of hym in whom is the plague of leprosy, and whose hande is not able to gett that whych pertaineth to hys cleansynge.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron sayinge: when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan whych I geue you in possession. And yf I put the plague of leprosy in a house of the lande of youre possession, he that oweth the house shall come, and tell the preeste, sayinge: me thynke that there is as it were a leprosy in the house. And the preeste shall commaunde them to emptye the house, before the Preeste goo into it to se the plague: that all that is in the house be not made vncleane, and then must the Preeste go in to se the house.

If the Preeste also se that the plague is in the walles of the house, and that there be hollowe strakes pale or rede whych seme to be lower then the wall it selfe, the Preeste shall go out at the house dozes, and shut vp the house seuen dayes. And the Preeste shall come agayne the seuenth daye, and yf he se that the plague be increased in the walles of the house, the Preeste shall commaunde them to take awaye the stones in which the plague is, & let them cast them into a foule place wpythout the cytie, and he shall commaunde the house to be scraped wpythyn rounde aboute, and powre out the dust (that they scrape of) wpythout the cytie into a foule place. And they shall take other stones, and put them in the places of those stones, and other moztar, to plaster the house wpythall. And yf the plague come agayne and breake out in the house, after that he hath taken awaye the stones & scraped the walles of the house, and after that he hath playstered the house anewe: the Preeste shall come and se it. And yf he perceaue that the plague hath growne further in the house, it is a frettinge leprosy in the house. It is therfore vncleane. And he shall breake downe the house. And the stones of it, & the tymber therof, & all the moztar of the house, shall he carpe out of the cytie vnto a foule place. And yf he that goeth into the house all the while that it is shut vp, shall be vncleane vntill the euen: he that slepeth in the house, shall walche hys clothes: he lyke wyse that eateth in the house, shall walche hys clothes.

And yf the Preeste come and se, that the plague hath sprede no further in the house (after that it is newe playstered) the Preeste shall iudge that house cleane, because the plague is healed. And let hym take to cense the house wpythall: two byzdes, cedar wodd, purple clothe and plope. And he shall kylle one of the byzdes in an erthen vessel and vpon rennyng water: & take the cedar wodd, & the plope, & the purple wpyth the luynges byzde, & dyppe the in the bloude of the sayne byzde, and in the rennyng water, and spraye the house seuen tymes, & cense the house with the bloude of the of the byrde and wyth the runnyng water, with the lynnge byrde, with cedar wodd, and the yfop, and the purple clothe. But he shall lett the lynnge byrde flee oute of the towne into the byrde felde, and so make an attonement for the house, and it shall be cleane. This is the lawe for all maner plage of leprosy and breakynge out, and of the leprosy of clothe and house: for a swellynge for a scabbe, and for a whyte blyster. To teach the whan it must be made vncleane and cleane. This is the lawe of leprosy.

The xvi. Chapter.

The manner of purgynge the vncleannes bothe of men and women.

Ad the Lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron saying: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: Whosoever hath a runnyng yssue out of his fleshe, is vncleane by reason of his vncleannes in his yssue: when he is vncleane. If his fleshe runne, or if his fleshe congele by the reason of his yssue, then is it vncleannes. Every couche wheron he lyeth that hath the yssue, is vncleane: and every thyng wheron he sitteth, is vncleane: Whosoever toucheth the couche, shall washe his clothes, & bathe him selfe in water, & be vncleane vntill the euen.

And he that sitteth on any thyng wheron he sitteth that hath the yssue, shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water, & be vncleane vntill the euenynge. He that toucheth the fleshe of him that hath the yssue, shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. If he also that hath the yssue, spyt vpon hym that is cleane, he shall washe his clothes, & bathe him selfe in water, and be vncleane vntill the euen. And what horse harnesser he rydeth vpon that hath the yssue, shall be vncleane. And whosoever toucheth any thyng that was vnder hym, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any loche thynges, shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And whosoever he toucheth that hath the yssue (& haue not fyrst washed his handes in water) shall washe his clothes, & bathe him selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. The vessel of crth that he toucheth, whych hath the yssue, shall be broken: and all vessels of wodd shall be rynd in water.

*Leu. vi. d. e. xlvj.

When he also that hath an yssue, is censed of his yssue, he shall nombe. vii. dayes for his censing, and washe his clothes, & bathe his fleshe in runnyng water, and so shall he be cleane. And the. viij. daye he shall take to him two turtill doves or two pounge pygeons, and come before the Lord vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witness, & geue them vnto the prest. And the prest shall offer them: the one for a synne offering, and the other for a burnt offering: and the prest shall make an attonement for hym before the Lord, as concernynge his yssue.

If any mans seede departe from hym in his slepe, he shall washe his fleshe in water, and be vncleane vntill the euen. And all the clothes and all the furre wherin is suche seede of slepe, shall be washed with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And if he that hath suche an yssue of seede, do lyeth with a woman, they shall both washe them selues with water, and be vncleane vntill the euen.

If a womans naturall course of bloude do runne, she shall be put aparte. vii. dayes: whosoever toucheth her, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that she lyeth vpon, in the tyme of her naturall course, shall be vncleane, lyke as every thyng also that she sitteth vpon, is vncleane. Whosoever toucheth her bedde, shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And whosoever toucheth any thyng that she sat vpon, shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: so that whether he touche her couche or any vessel whereon she hath sitteth, he shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And if a man lyeth with her, and her vncleannes come vpon hym, he shall be vncleane. vii. dayes, and all the couche wheron he lyeth shall be vncleane.

*Leu. xviii.

* When a womans bloude runneth longe tyme: out of the tyme of her naturall course: or if it runne beyond her naturall course, let all the dayes of her yssue be iudged vncleane, euen as the dayes of her naturall course. And she shall be vncleane. All her couches wheron she lyeth (as longe as her yssue lasteth) shall be as her couche when she hath her naturall course. And whosoever she sitteth vpon, shall be vncleane, as is her vncleannes when she is put aparte. And whosoever toucheth any of these, shall be vncleane, and shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water and be vncleane vnto the euen.

And after that she is censed of her yssue, she shall counte her seven dayes, and after that she shall be cleane. In the. viij. daye she shall take vnto her two turtills or two pounge pygeons, and bynge them vnto the prest before the doze of the Tabernacle of witness. And the prest shall offer the one for a synne offering, and the other for a burnt offering: and make an attonement for her before the Lord, as concernynge the yssue of her vncleannes. Therefore shall he separate the chyldren of Israel from their vncleannes, that they dye not in their vncleannes: for they defyle my habitacyon that is amonge them.

This is the lawe of hym that hath a runnyng yssue, and of hym whose seed runneth from hym from hym in his slepe, and is defyled therin, and of her, that (for her naturall disease) is put aparte, and of whosoever hath a runnyng yssue, whether it be man or woman, and of hym that lyeth with her whych is vncleane.

The xvi. Chapter.

What Aaron must do. The cleansing of the sanctuary. Of the frasse of cleanness. Aaron censed the synnes of the chyldren of Israel.

Ad the Lord spake vnto Moyses * after the deeth of the two sonnes of Aaron, whē they offered before the Lord, and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moyses: speake vnto Aaron thy brother, that he come not at all tymes into the holy place wythin the vayne before the mercysate, whych is vpon the arke, that he dye not. For I will appere in the clowde vpon the mercysate.

But with this thyng shall Aaron come into the holy place: euen with a bullock for synne, and with a ram for a burnt offering. He shall put the holy linnen albe vpon him, and shall haue a linnen breeche vpon his fleshe, and shall be girded with a linnen gyrdell, & put the linnen mytre vpon his heade: These are holy garmentes: therefore shall he washe his fleshe in water, whan he doth put the on. And he shall take of the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, two he goates for synne, and a ram for a burnt offering.

And Aaron shall offer his bullock for synne, & make an attonement for hym, and for his house. And he shall take the two goates, and present them before the Lord at the doze of the tabernacle of witness. And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the two goates: one lotte shall be for the Lord, and the other for the scapegoate. And Aaron shall bynge the goate vpon whych the Lordes lotte fell, and offer hym for synne. But the goate on whych the lotte fell to scape, shall be sett alyue before the Lord, to reconyle wyth, and to let hym goo (as a scape goate) free, into the wyldernes. And Aaron shall bynge his bullock for synne, and reconyle for him selfe, and for his house, and shall kyll his bullock for synne.

And he shall take a censer full of burntynge coles out of the alter before the Lord, and shall fylle his handfull of swete cens, beaten small, and bynge them wythin the vayne, and put the cens vpon the fyre before the Lord: that the clowde of the cens maye couer the mercysate that is vpon the wytnesse, and that he dye not. And he shall take of the bloude of the bullock, and spraynkle it with his synger vpon the mercysate eastwarde: and before the mercysate shall he spraynkle of the bloude with his synger seven tymes.

*Deu. ix. d. xlvj.

Then shall he kyll the goate that is the peoples synne offering, & bynge his bloude wythin the vayne, & doo wyth that bloude, as he dyd with the bloude of the bullock, spraynkle it vpon the mercysate, and before the mercysate. And he shall reconyle the holy place from the vncleannes of the chyldren of Israel, and from their trespasses in all they synnes. And so shall he doo for the tabernacle of witness that is set amonge them, euen amonge their vncleannes.

*Leu. i. a.

* And let there be no bodye in the tabernacle of witness, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holy place, vntill he come out. And let hym make an attonement for hym selfe and for his house, and for all the multitude of Israel. And he shall go out vnto the alter that is before the Lord, & reconyle vpon it, and shall take of the bloude of the bullock, and of the bloude of the goate, and put it vpon the hornes of the altare rounde aboute, and spraynkle of the bloude vpon it with his synger seven tymes, and cense it, and halowe it from the vncleannes of the chyldren of Israel.

And when he hath made an ende of reconylinge the holy place, and the tabernacle of witness, and the alter, he shall bynge the lyue goate: and Aaron shall put both his handes vpon the heede of the lyue goate, and confesse ouer hym all the mysdoes of the chyldren of Israel, and all their trespasses, in all their synnes: puttynge them vpon the heede of the goate, and sende hym awaye (by the hande of a conuenient man) into the wyldernes. And the goate shall bere vpon hym all they mysdoes vnto the wyldernes, and he shall let the goate goo free into the wyldernes.

And Aaron shall come into the Tabernacle of witness, and put of the linnen clothes whych he put on (when he went in into the holy place) and leaue the there. And let hym washe his fleshe with water in the holy place, and put on his owne rayment, and then come out, and offer his burnt offering and the burnt offering of the people, and make an attonement for hym selfe and for the people, and the fatt of the syn offering shall he burne vpon the alter. And he that carryed forth the goate to Azazel, shall washe his clothes, and bathe his fleshe in water, and then come into the hoste.

And the bullock whych is for synne, and the goate that is for synne, (whose bloude was brought in, to cense the holy place) shall one carpe out wythout the hoste to be burnt in the fyre, with they synnes, their fleshe & their donge. And he that burneth them, shall washe his clothes, and bathe his fleshe in water, and then come into the hoste. And this shall be an ordinaunce for euer vnto you:

that

that in the tenth daye of the seventh moneth, ye shall haue youre soules, and do no worke at all: whether it be one of youre selues or a stranger that sojourneth amonge you, for that daye shall the prest make an attonement for you to cleanse you, and that ye maye be cleane from all youre synnes before the Lord. Let it be a Sabbath of rest vnto you, and ye shall humble youre soules, by an ordinance for euer.

And the Preate that is anoynted, and whose hande was consecrated (to mynstre in hys fathers steade) shall make the attonement, and shall put on the linnen clothes & holy vestmentes, and reconyle the holy sanctuary and the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall cleanse the altar, and make an attonement then for the preastes and for all the people of the congregacion. And this shall be an euerlasting ordinance vnto you, that he make an attonement for the chyldren of Israel for all their synnes once a yere: & he dyd as the Lord commaunded Moles.

The xvij. Chapter.

All sacrifice must be brought to the doze of the tabernacle. No drupis maye they not offer.

And the Lord spake vnto Moles, sayinge: speake vnto Aard & vnto hys sonnes and vnto all the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: This is the thyng which the Lord hath charged, sayinge: what man soeuer of the house of Israel killeth an ore, or lambe or goate in y holte, or that killeth it out of the holte, and byngeth it not vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, to offer an offering vnto the Lord before the dwelling place of the Lord, bloude shall be imputed vnto that man, as though he had shed bloude, and that man shall be rote out from amonge his people.

Wherefore when the chyldren of Israel bynge their offerings, that they offer in the wyde felde, they shoulde bynge them vnto y Lord: euen vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse to the preaste, to offer them for peace offerings vnto the Lord. And y preaste must spynke the bloude vnto the alter of the Lord whyche is before the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and burne the fatt for a swete sauoure vnto the Lord. And lett the no more offer their offerings vnto deupis, after whom they haue gone a whoynge. This shall be an ordynance for euer vnto them in their generacions.

And thou shalt saye vnto them: whatsoeuer man it be of the house of Israel or of the strangers whych sojourn amoge you that offereth a burnt offering or sacrifice, & byngeth it not vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse to offer it vnto the Lord, that man shall peryshe from amonge hys people. And whatsoeuer man it be of the house of Israel or of the strangers that sojourn amonge you, that eateth any maner of bloude, I will sett my face agaynst that soule that eateth bloude, and will destroye hym from amonge hys people: for the lyfe of the fleshe is in the bloude, and I haue geuen it vnto you vpon the alter, to make an attonement for youre soules, for bloude shall make an attonement for the soule. And therfore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: let no soule of you eate bloude. Neyther let any stranger that sojourneth amonge you, eate bloude.

And whatsoeuer man it be of the chyldren of Israel or of the strangers y sojourn amonge you, whych hunteth and catcheth any beest or soule that maye be eaten, let him powre out the bloude therof, & couer it wyth erthe, for the lyfe of all fleshe is in the bloude of it, therfore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye shall eate the bloude of no maner of fleshe, for the lyfe of all fleshe is the bloude therof: whosoever eateth it, shall peryshe. And euer soule that eateth it whych dyed alone, or that which was tozme wyth wyde beastes: whether it be one of youre selues or a stranger, he shall washe hys clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen, and then shall he be cleane. If he washe them not, nor bathe hys fleshe, he shall beare hys synne.

The xvij. Chapter.

What degrees of kynred maye marre together.

And the Lord spake vnto Moles, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: I am the Lord youre God. After y doynges of the lande of Egypte wherein ye dwelt, shall ye not doo: and after the doynges of the lande of Canaan, whether I will bynge you, shall ye not doo, nether walke in their ordynances, but do after my iudgements, and kepe my ceremonies, to walke therein: I am the Lord youre God: Ye shall kepe therfore myne ordynances, & my iudgements: whiche if a man doo, he shall lyue in them. I am the Lord.

Se that none go to his nyghest kynred, for to vncouer their secrettes. I am y Lord. * The secrettes of thy father, and the secrettes of thy mother, shalt thou not vncouer: for she is thy mother, therfore shalt thou not discouer her secrettes. * The secrettes of thy fathers wyfe shalt thou not discouer, for it is thy fathers secrettes. * Thou shalt not discouer the preuite of thy syster, the daughter of thy father or of thy mother: whether she be bozne at home or without. Thou shalt not vncouer y secrettes of thy sones daughter or thy daughters daughter, for that is thyne awne preuite. Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy fathers wyues daughter daughter, which was begott of thy father, and is thy syster: thou shalt not discouer her secrettes. * Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy fathers syster, for she is thy fathers nexte kynswoman. Thou shalt not discouer the secrettes of thy mothers syster, for she is thy mothers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy fathers brother: yis, thou shalt not go into hys wyfe, which is thyne awne. Thou shalt not discouer y secrettes of thy daughter in lawe: for she is thy sones wyfe: therfore shalt thou not vncouer her secrettes. * Thou shalt not vncouer y secrettes of thy brothers wyfe, for that is thy brothers preuite. Thou shalt not discouer the preuities of the wyfe and her daughter, nether shalt thou take her sones daughter or her daughters daughter, to vncouer their secrettes: for they are her nexte kyn, and it were wykidnesse. * Thou shalt not take a wyfe and her syster also, to vncouer her, that thou woldest vncouer her secrettes, as long as she lyueth. * Thou shalt also not go vnto a woman to vncouer her preuite, as long as she is put a parte for her vncleannesse. * Mozeouer thou shalt not lye with thy neyghbours wyfe, to defyle her wylde. Thou shalt also not geue of thy seed to offer it vnto y Moloch: nether shalt thou defyle the name of thy God. I am the Lord. * Thou shalt not lye wyth mankynde as w womankynde, for it is abominacyon. * Thou shalt lye wyth no maner of beeste to defyle thy selfe therwith, nether shall any woman stonde before a beast, to lye doune thereto, for it is abhominacyon.

Ye shall not defyle youre selues in any of these thynges, wherein all y nacions are defyled whiche I cast out before you: Where the lande is defyled, and I will bysette the wykednesse therof vpon it, yea & the lande it selfe hath cast out her inhabitants. * Ye shall kepe therfore myne ordynances, & my iudgements, and commyt none of these abhominacions: nether any of you nor any stranger that sojourneth amonge you (for all these abhominacions haue the men of the lande done whiche were there before you, & the lande is defyled.) Shall not the lande speake you out also (if ye defyle it) as it spewd out the people that were before you: for whosoever shall commyt any of these abhominacions, the same soules that commyt them, shall peryshe from amonge their people. Therfore shall ye kepe my watche, that ye commyt not one of these abhominable customes whych were commytted before you: and that ye defyle not youre selues therein. I am the Lord youre God.

The xix. Chapter.

A repetition of lawes pertaining to the x. c. d. maundementes. A counsellacion for the poore. wythchaunce to forbyden.

And the Lord spake vnto Moles sayinge: speake vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: Ye shall be holy, for I the Lord your God am holpe. Ye shall feare euer man hys father & hys mother, and kepe my Sabbathes, I am the Lord your God. Ye shall not turne vnto ydolles nor make you gods of metall: I am the Lord your God. If ye offer a peace offering vnto the Lord, ye shall offer it that ye maye be accepted. * It shall be eaten the same daye ye offer it: on the morowe. And yf ought remaine vntill y thyrde daye, it shall be burnt in the fyre. And yf it be eaten the thyrde daye, it is vncleane, and not accepted. he that eateth it, shall beare hys synne, because he hath defyled y halowed thyng of the Lord. & that soule shall peryshe from amonge his people.

* When ye reape doune the rype corne of youre lande, ye shall not reape doune the ymost border of youre felde, nether shalt thou gather y whiche is left he bynde in thy harvest. Thou shalt not plucke in all thy bynarde cleane, nether gather in the grapes that are ouersaped. But thou shalt leaue them for the poore and stranger. I am the Lord your God.

* Ye shall not steale, nether lye, nether deale falsly one with another. * Ye shall not sweare by my name in vayne: nether shalt ye defyle the name of thy God. I am the Lord. Thou shalt not do thy neyghboure wronge, nether robbe hym violently * nether shalt the workmans labour abyde wyth the vntill the moynge. Thou shalt not curse the deaffe * nether put a stumblinge blocke before the blynde: but shalt feare thy God. I am the Lord. Ye shall doo no vnyghteousnes in iudgement. * Thou shalt not fauoure the poore nor honoure the myghtye, but in ryghteousnes shalt thou iudge thy neyghboure.

Thou shalt not goo vp & doune as a pryuy accuser amonge thy people, nether shalt thou stonde agaynst y bloude of thy neyghboure: I am the Lord. * Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thyne hart, but shalt in any wyse * rebuke thy neyghboure: that thou be not synne for hys sake. * Thou shalt not not ane the selfe nor be myndfull of wro-ge agaynst the chyldren of my people * but thalt loue thy neyghboure enen as thy selfe.

I am the Lorde.

¶ Thou shalt kepe myne ordinaunces. Thou shalt not let catell gendre wyth a contrary kynde, nether sowe thy felde wyth myngled seed, nether shalt thou put on any garment of linnen and wollen.

¶ Whosoever lyeth and medleth with a woman that is a bondmayde, neuertheless appointed to a husbnde, but not redeemed, nee freedome geuen her, she shalbe scourged wyth a lathen whyppe, and they shall not dye, because she was not fre. And he shall bypunge for his trespass vnto the Lorde: before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, a ram for a trespass offrynge. And p prestre shall make an attonement for him w the ram whych is for the trespase before the Lorde, concernyng his synne which he hath done: & p syn-ne which he hath done shalbe forgiven hym.

¶ When ye come to the lande, & haue planted all maner of trees conuenient to be eaten of: ye shall put a waye the fourth parte of euerie one with the frute thereof: this yere shall they be vncircumcised vnto you, & shall not be eaten of. But in the fourth yere all the frute of them shalbe holy and commendable to the Lorde. In the fyfth yere shall ye eate of the frute of them, and ye maye gether in the increase of them: I am the Lorde your God.

¶ Ye shall not eate vpon bloude, neyther shall ye vse wychehafte, nor obserue tymes. Ye shall not rounde y lockes of youre heedes, nether shalt thou marre the tuftes of thy beerde. Ye shall not rent youre fleshe for any soules sake, nor pryncle any markes vpon you: I am the Lorde. Thou shalt not make thy daughter commen, that thou wouldest canse her to be an whoore: lest the lande also fall to whooredome, and be full of wickednesse. Ye shall kepe my sabbathes, and fear my sanctuary: I am the Lorde. Ye shall not regarde them that worke with spytes, neither seke after sothslayers to be defyled
by them, I am the Lorde your God.

¶ Thou shalt clype vp before the hoehed, and reuerence the face of the olde man, and dread thy God. I am the Lorde. If a straunger sojourne with the in youre lade, ye shall not vex him. But p stranger that dwelleth wyth you, shall be as one of youre sci-ues, and thou shalt loue hym as thy selfe, for ye were strangers in the lande of Egypt.
I am the Lorde your God.

¶ Ye shall do no vnrpyghtousnes in iudge-ment, in meteuerde, in weyght or in measure. True balaunces, true weyghtes, & a true Ephra & a true hin shall ye haue. I am the Lorde your God whych broughte you out of the lande of Egypt. Therefore shall ye obserue all my ordinaunces and all my iudgements, and do them. I am the Lorde.

¶ The xx. Chapter.
¶ Where that geue of their seede to Moloch shall be therfore. Other goodly lawes.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge. ¶ Thys shalt thou say to the chyldren of Israel, whosoever he be of the chyldren of Israel or of the strangers that dwell in Israel, that geueth of his seed vnto Moloch, let him be slayne: the people of the lande shall stone hym. And I wyll sett my face agaynst that man, and wyll destroye hym from amonge his people: because he hath geuen of his seed vnto Moloch, for to defyle my sanctuary, and to polute my holy name.
And though that the people of the lande by-de their eyes from the man that geueth of his seed vnto Moloch, and kyll hym not:
I wyll put my face agaynst that man,
and agaynst his kyndred, and wyll destroye hym, and all that goo a whoypnge after him to commyt whoyrdome with Moloch, from amonge their people.

¶ If a soule turne hym selfe after such as worke wyth spytes, and after sothslayers, to goo a whoypnge after them, I wyll put my face agaynst that soule, & wyll destroye hym from amonge his people. Sanctifye your selues therfore, & be holye, for I am the Lorde your God, kepe ye myne ordinaunces, and doo them. I am p Lorde whych doth sanctifye you.

¶ Whosoever he be, that curseth his father or his mother, let hym dye: for he hath curset his father and mother, his bloude be vpon him. ¶ And the man y breaketh wed-locke with another mans wyfe: enen he that breaketh wedlocke w his neyghbours wyfe let him be slayne, both the aduoutre and the aduoutresse. And the man that lyeth w his fathers wyfe, & vncouereth his fathers secrettes, let them both dye, their bloude be vpon them. ¶ If a man lye with his daughter in lawe, let them dye both of them: they haue wrought abhominacion, their bloud be vpon them. ¶ If a man also lye wyth mankynde after the maner as wyth woman kynde, they haue both commytted an abhominacion: let them dye. Their bloude be vpon them. And if a man take a wyfe and her mother also, it is wykednesse. They shall be burnt wyth fyre both he and she,
that there be no wykednesse amonge you.
¶ And if a man lye wyth a beast, let hym dye, and ye shall see the beast also. If a woman go vnto any beast, & lye downe therto:
thou shalt kyll the woman and the beast also,
let them dye, their bloude be vpon them. ¶ If a man take his syster, his fathers daughter or his mothers daughter, and se her secrettes and she his secrettes, it is a shamefull thinge.

¶ They

¶ They shall perpe in the spghte of their people, he hath vncouered his systers secrettes, he shall beare his synne. ¶ If a man lye with a woman bayng her naturall dyscase, and vncouer her secrettes, & open her fountayne, and she also open the fountayne of her bloude they shall both perpe from amonge they people. ¶ Thou shalt not vncouer the secrettes of thy mothers syster * nor of thy fathers syster, for he that doth so, hath vncouered his nexte kyn: they shall beare they myddoyng.

¶ If a man lye with his vncles wyfe, and vncouer his vncles secrettes: they shall beare their synne, and shall dye chyldlesse.

¶ If a man take his brothers wyfe, it is an vncleane thyng, he hath vncouered his brothers secrettes, they shalbe chyldlesse.

¶ Ye shall kepe therfore all myne ordinaunces and all my iudgements, and doo the:
that p lande whether I bypunge you to dwell therin, spewe you not out. Ye shall not walke in the maners of theys nacyon: whych I cast oute before you: for they: omitted all these thynges, & therfore I abhorred them.

¶ But I haue sayde vnto you: ye shall en-tore their lande, and I will geue it vnto you to possesse it, euen a lande that floweth with mylke & honye. I am the Lorde your God, whych haue separated you from other na-cyons, & therfore shall ye put difference betwene cleane bestes & vncleane, betwene vncleane foules and cleane. Ye shall not defyle youre soules in bestes and foules, and in all maner cecypnge thynges y the grounde bypunged furth, whych I haue separated from you as vncleane. Therefore shall ye be holy vnto me, for I the Lorde am holy, and haue seuered you from other nacyon: that ye shulde be myne.

¶ If there be a man or woman that worketh wyth a spyte, or that is a sothslayer, let them dye. Men shall stone the wyth stones, their bloude be vpon them.

¶ The xxj. Chapter.
¶ A lawe for the prestres.

¶ And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: speake vnto the Prestres y sonnes of Aaron, and saye vnto them. ¶ Let none be defyled vpon a soule amonge his people, but vpon his kynsman, that is nye vnto hym: vpon his father, & his mother, vpon sonne and daughter, and his brother, and on his syster a mayde y is nye vnto him, whom no man hath knowen: vpon her shall he be defyled. But he shall not be defyled vpon him that hath auctoryte amonge his people, to polute him selfe for him.

¶ Let them not make * baldnesse vpon their beed, nor shawe of the lockes of their beerde, nor make any markes in their fleshe. They shalbe holy vnto their God, and not polute the name of their God, for the sacrificys of the Lorde which are as y bread of their God they do offer: therfore they shall be holy.

¶ Let them not take a wyfe that is an aduoutresse, or polluted, nor put fro her hus-bnde: for suche a one is holy vnto his God. ¶ ¶ Thou shalt sanctifye hym therfore, for he offereth vnto the bread of thy God: he shall therfore be holy vnto the, for I the Lorde whych sanctifye you am holy.

¶ If a prestres daughter fall to playe the whoore, she poluteth her father: therfore must she be burnt with fyre.

¶ He that is the hys prestre amonge his brethren, vpon whose heed the anoyntynge oyle was powred, and * that consecrated his hande to put on the vestiments, shall not vncouer his heade, nor rent his clothes * nether goo to any breed body, nor make hym selfe vncleane on his father or his mother, nether shall go out of the sanctuary, nee polute the holy place of his God, for the crowne of the anoyntynge oyle of his God, is vpon him. I am the Lorde. ¶ He shall take a mayde vnto his wyfe: but a widowe, a deuorced woman, or an harlot, shall he not marry:
But shall take a mayde of his a wne people to wyfe. Nether shall he defyle his seed amonge his people: for I am the Lorde whych sanctifye him.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron, and saye: Whosoever of thy seed in their generacions hath any de-formyte, let hym not preace for to offer bread vnto his God: for whosoever hath any bly-nde or lame, or that hath a bryled nose, or that hath any myshapen membre, or is broken foted, or broken handed, or * haue no heere on his eye browes, or haue a webbe or other blemishe in his eye, or be mawnged, or skaul-
de, or hath his stones broken.

¶ A man that hath a blemyshe, and is of the seed of Aaron the prestre, shall come nye to offer the sacrificys of the Lorde. When he hath a deformyte, let him not preace to offer the bread of his God. Let him eate the bread of his God: euen of the most holy and of the holy: Only let him not goo in vnto y bayle, nor come nye the alter, when he is deformed, that he polute not my sanctuary, for I am the Lorde that sanctifye them. And Moyses tolde it vnto Aaron and to his sonnes, and vnto all the chyldren of Israel.

¶ The xxij. Chapter.

¶ Who ought to abstayne from eatynge the thyn-ges that were offered. Howe, what, and when they shulde be offered.

And the

Ad the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes, that they be separated from the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel, and that they polute not my holy name in those thynges whych they halowe vnto me: I am the Lorde. Saye vnto them: whosoever he be of all youre seed amonge youre generacyons after you, that goeth vnto holy thynges whych the chyldren of Israel halowe vnto the Lorde, haunge bys vncleannes vpon hym: that soule shall perishe from out of my syghe. I am the Lorde.

*Leu. xv. a.

* What man soeuer of the seed of Aaron is a leper or hath a runnyng pisse, he shall not eate of holy thynges vntill he be cleane.
And whoso toucheth any man that is vncleane ouer the soule of the deede, or a man whose seed runneth from him in his slepe, or whosoever toucheth any womme, whereby he maye be made vncleane, or a man, of whom he maye take vncleannes (whatsoeuer vn-cleannes he hath) yf same soule that hath touched any soche, shall be vncleane vntill euen, and shall not eate of the holy thynges, vntill he haue washed his fleshe with water. And when the sonne is downe, he shall be cleane, & shall afterwarde eate of the holy thynges: for asmoche as it is his fode. * Of a beast that dieth alone, or is rent woth wyld beasts (wherby he maye be defyled) he shall not eate:
I am the Lorde. Let them kepe therfore myne ordynance, lest they for the same lade synne vpon them, and dye for it, yf they defyle it. I the Lorde sanctifye them.

*Exo. xxx. c.

There shall no straunger eate of the holy thynges, neither a giest of the prestes, neyther shall an hyered seruante eate of holy thynges.
But yf the prest be any soule woth money, he shall eate of it, lyke as he that is bozne in his house, shall eate of his bread. If the prestes daughter also be maried vnto a straunger, she maye not eate of the halowed heue offerynges. Not wothstandynge yf the prestes daughter be a wedowe or denuded & haue no chyld, but is returned vnto her fathers house agayne, she shall eate of her fathers bread, as well as she dyd in her yowth.
But there shall no straunger eate thereof. If a man eate of the holy thynges unwittingly, he shall put the fyfthe parte ther vnto, and geue it vnto the prest woth the halowwed thynges. And the prestes shall not defyle the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel (whych they offer vnto the Lorde) to lade them selues w mysooynges & trespass whyle they eate their holy thynges, for I the Lorde do halowe them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and his sonnes and vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto

the: whatsoeuer he be of y house of Israel or straunger in Israel, y will offer bys sacrifice for all his vowes, and for all his frewill-offerings whych they will offer vnto y Lorde for a burnt offeryng, ye shall offre (to recon-cyle youre selues) a male without blempe of the oxen, of y shepe, or of the goates. But whatsoeuer hath a blempe, y shall ye not offre, for ye shall gett no sauoure therwyt.

And whosoever bringeth a peace offeryng vnto the Lorde (accozdyng as he is apoynt-
ed) or a vowe, or a frewill offeryng, in oxe or shepe, that is without defozmte, he shall be accepted. There shall be also no blempe therin: blinde, or broke, or wounded, or haue a wen, or be mawnged, or scabbed. Ye shall not offre soche vnto y Lorde, nor put an offeryng of any soche vnto the alter vnto y Lorde.

An oxe or a shepe that hath any membe out of proportion, mayst thou offer for a fre-will offeryng: but for a vowe it shall not be accepted. Ye shall not offer vnto the Lorde y whych is broyled, or broken, or plucked out, or cut awaye, neither shall ye make any soch in youre lande, neither of a straungers hande shall ye offer bread vnto youre God of any soche. Because their corrupcyon is in them, and they haue defozmte in them selues, and therfore shall they not be accepted for you.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge:
whē an oxe, or a shepe, or a goate is brought forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder y damme:
And fro the viij. daye forth, it shall be accepted, for a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And whether it be oxe or shepe, ye shall not kill it and her yonge both in one daye.

When ye will offer a thank offeryng vnto
the Lorde, offere it that ye maye be accepted. And the same daye it must be eaten vp, so that ye leaue none of it vntill y morowe.
I am the Lorde. Therfore shall ye kepe my commaundementes and do them, I am the Lorde. Neither shall ye polute my holy name, but I will be halowed amonge the chyldren of Israel. I am the Lorde which halowe you, and that brought you out of the lade of Egypte, to be youre God: I am the Lorde.

¶ The xxij. Chapter.

Of the holy dayes, that they shulde kepe.

Ad the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, & saye vnto them: These are my feastes, euen the feastes of the Lorde, whych ye shall call holy conuocacyons. * Syxe dayes ye shall worke, but the seuenth daye is the Sabbath of rest, an holy conuocacyon: so that ye doo no worke therin, it is the Sabbath of the Lorde, in all your dwellynge. These are the feastes of the Lorde, euen holy conuocacyons, whych ye shall proclayne in their seasons. In the xiiij. daye of the fyfth moneth at euen is the

is the Lorde * Passouer. And in the fyfteneth daye of the same moneth is the feast of swete bread vnto the Lorde: seuen dayes ye must eate vnto the Lorde. * In the fyfth daye ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke therin. But ye shall offer sacrifices vnto the Lorde thowout those seuen dayes, and in the seuenth daye is an holy conuocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke therin.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses
sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel & saye vnto them: when ye be come into the lande (whych I geue vnto you) & reue doune the harvest therof, ye shall byngge a shefe of the fyfth frutes of youre harvest vnto the prest, whych shall waue the shefe before the Lorde to be accepted for you: & euen the mo-rowe after the Sabbath the prest shall waue it. And ye shall offer that daye whē ye waue the shefe, an he labe wythout blempe of a yere olde, for a burnt offeryng vnto the Lorde: and the meat offeryng therof, shall be made of two tenth deales of fyne flour me-gled with oyle, to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde for a swete sauoure: and the drynk offeryng therof shall be of wyne, euen the fourth deale of an hyne. And ye shall eate neither bread, nor parched corne, nor furmentye, nor newe corne, vntill the selfe same daye that ye haue brought an offeryng vnto youre God. Let thys be a lawe for euer in youre generacions and in all youre dwellynge.

And ye shall counte from the morowe after the Sabbath: euen from the daye that ye brought the shefe of the waue offeryng. viij.
Sabbathes complete: euen vnto the mo-rowe after the seuenth Sabbath shall ye no-bze fyfthe dayes. And ye shall byngge a new meat offeryng vnto the Lorde. And ye shall byngge out of youre habitacions two waue lonnes made of two tēth deales of fyne flour and that are made wyth leuen for fyfth fru-tes vnto the Lorde. And ye shall byngge with the bread * seuen lambs wythout defozmte of one yere of age, and one yonge oxe & two rammes, whych shall serue for a burnt offeryng vnto the Lorde, wyth meat offerynges and theyr drynk offerynges, to be a sacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

Then ye shall offer an he goate for a syn-ne offeryng: and two lā bes of one yere olde for a peace offeryng. And the prest shall wa-ue the wyth the bread of the fyfth frutes before the Lorde, and wyth the two lambs.
And these holy thynges of the Lorde, shall be the prestes. And ye shall proclayne the same daye, that it maye be an holy conuocacyon vnto you: ye shall do no laborious worke the-rin: let it be a lawe for euer in all your dwellynge, and in all youre generacions.

* And when ye receiue your harvest, thou shalt not make cleane ryddance of thy felde, neither shalt thou make any aftergatheryng of thy harvest: but shalt leaue it vnto the poore and the straunger. I am the Lorde your God.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: In the seuenth moneth, in the fyfth daye of the moneth shall ye haue rest, * euen the remembrance of blowynge, an holy conuocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke therin, but offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, & sayinge: the * tenth daye also of the selfe seuenth moneth, is a daye of recōcilyng, therfore shall it be an holy conuocacyon vnto you, & ye shall humble your soules, and offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Ye shall do no worke the same daye, for it is a daye of reconcilyng, to make an atonement for you before the Lorde your God. For whatsoe-uer soule it be that humbleth not hym selfe that daye, he shall be destroyed from amonge hys people. And whatsoeuer soule do any manner worke that daye, the same soule will I destroye from amonge hys people. Ye shall do no manner worke therfore: Let it be a la-we for euer in youre generacions and in all your dwellynge. Let it be vnto you a Sab-both of reste, and ye shall humble your sou-les in the nyth daye of the moneth at euen:
from euen to euen shall ye rest in your Sab-both.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayin-
ge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye:
* the fyfteenth daye of the same seuenth mo-neth is the feast of tabernacles, seuen dayes vnto y Lorde. The fyfth daye is an holy con-uocacyon: ye shall do no laborious worke.
Seuen dayes ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde, and in the eyght daye shall be an holy conuocacyon vnto you, and ye shall offer sacrifices vnto the Lorde. It is the * collection, and ye shall do no laborious worke therin.

These are the feastes of the Lorde, whiche ye shall call holy conuocacyons, for to offer sacrifice vnto y Lorde, burnt offeryng, meatofferyng, peace offeryng, and drynk offeryn-
ges. & euenry daye bys due sacrifice besyde the Sabbathes of the Lorde, & besyde youre gyftes, besyde all your vowes, and all your frewill offerynges, whych ye geue vnto the Lorde.

Moreover in the fyfteenth daye of the seuenth moneth whan ye haue gathered in the frute of the lande, ye shall kepe holy daye vnto the Lorde seuen dayes. The fyfth daye shall be as a Sabbath: lyke wise in the eyght daye shall be the rest of the Sabbath. And ye shall take you in the fyfth daye, the frutes of goodly trees, bryanches of palme trees, and

It shall be a lawe for euer in youre generacions, that ye kepe it in the seuenth moneth. Ye shall dwell in boothes seuen dayes: euen all that are Israelites borne, shall dwell in boothes, that youre chyldre after you maye knowe, howe that I made the chyldren of Israel to dwell in boothes, when I brought the out of the lande of Egypt: I am the Lord your God. And Moyses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel concerninge the feastes of the Lord.

The xxiiij. Chapter.

The oyle for the lampes. Be that curesh must be stoned. Be that killeth shall be killed. &c.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: * commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they brynge vnto the pure oyle olive beaten for lychtes, to cause the lāpes to burne allwaye: without the vāple of wytnesse in the tabernacle of wytnesse shall Aaron dyske them bothe euen and moynynge before the Lord allwayes. Let it be a lawe for euer in youre generacions. Ye shall dyske the lampes vpon the pure candellsticke before the Lord perpetually.

And thou shalt take fyne flour, and bake twelue wafers therof, two tenthdeales shall be in one wastell. And thou shalt set the in two rowes, syxe on a rowe vpon the pure table before the Lord, and put pure frankincense vpon the rowes, that they maye be bread of remembraunce, and an offerynge to the Lord. Euer Sabbath he shall put the in rowes before the Lord euermore: of the chyldren of Israel shall they be offered for an euerlastyng couenaunte. * And they shall be Aarons and hys sonnes, whych shall eate them in the holy place. For they are most holy vnto hym of the offerynges of the Lord by a perpetuall statute.

And the sonne of an Israelitish wife whose father was an Egyptian, wet out amonge the chyldren of Israel. And thys sonne of the Israelitish wyfe & a man of Israel, stroue together in the holte. And the Israelitish woman sonne * blasphemed the name of the Lord, and * cursed, and they brought hym vnto Moyses. Hys mothers name was Samometh, whych was the daughter of Dibzy.

And the sonne of the trybe of Man: and they * put hym in ward, that the mynde of the Lord myght be shewed them.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses sayinge: brynge the cursed speaker without the holte, and lett all that hearde hym, put theyr handes vpon hys heed, and let all the multitude ston hym. And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel sayinge: Whosoeuer curseth hys God, shall bere his synne: And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lord, let hym be slayne, and all the multitude shall ston hym to deeth.

Whether he be borne in the lande or a stranger, whā he blasphemeth the name of the Lord, let hym be slayne. And * he that killeth any man, let hym dye the deeth. And he that killeth a beast, let hym make hym good, & soule for soule. And yf a mā maye hys neyghboure, as he hath done, so shall it be done to hym: broke for broke * eye for eye, and toth for toth: euen as he hath maymed a man, so shall he be maymed agayne. And he that killeth a beast, let him paye for it: and he that killeth a man, let hym dye. Ye shall haue one maner of lawe: euen for the stranger as well as for one of youre selues, for I am the Lord your God.

And Moyses tolde the chyldren of Israel, and they brought hym (that had cursed) out of the holte, and stoned hym with stones. And the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lord commaunded Moyses.

The xxv. Chapter.

The Sabbath of the viij. yeares, and of the yeare of iudic, ocherwyse called the fiftieth yeare.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses in mount Sinai sayinge: * speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ye be come into the lande whych I geue you, the lande shall rest, & kepe Sabbath vnto the Lord. * Syxe yeares y shall sowe thy felde, and syxe yeare thou shalt cut thy vygarde, and gether in the frute therof. But the * seuenth yeare shall be a Sabbath of rest vnto the lāde. The Lordes Sabbath it shall be: y shall nether sowe thy felde, nor cut thy vynegarde. That whych groweth of the owne accord thou shalt not reape, neither gather y grapes that thou hast left behynde, for it is a yeare of rest vnto the lāde.

And the rest of the lāde shall be meat for you: euen for the, for thy seruaunte, and for thy mayde, for thy hyred seruaunte, and for the stranger that sojourneth with the: and for thy catell, and for the bestes that are in thy lande, shall all the increase therof be meat. And thou shalt nombe seuen Sabbathes of yeares vnto the, euen seuen tymes seuen yeare: and the space of the seuen Sabbathes of yeares will be vnto the xliij. yeare. And then thou shalt make a trowpe blowe: in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, euen in the daye of attonement shall ye make the trowpe blowe, thowowe out all poure lāde. And thou shalt halowe that yeare: euen the fiftieth yeare, & proclayme libertye ye thowowe out the lande vnto all the inhabyters therof, for it shall be a yeare of iudic vnto you, and ye shall retourne: euer man vnto hys posseltyon, and euer man vnto hys kynred agayne. A yeare of iudic shall that fiftieth yeare be vnto you. Ye shall not sowe nether reape that whych groweth of it selfe, nor gether the grapes that are left. For that yeare of iudic shall be holy vnto you: but ye shall eate of the increase therof out of the felde. In the yeare of thys iudic ye shall retourne euer man vnto hys posseltyon agayne.

It thou sellest oughte vnto thy neyghboure, or byest of thy neyghbours hande, ye shall not disceane one another: but accordyng to the nombe of yeares after the iudic yeare thou shalt bye of thy neyghboure, and accordyng vnto the nombe of yeares & of frutes, he shall sell vnto the. Accordyng vnto the multitude of yeares, he shall encrease the pryse therof and accordyng to the fewnesse of yeares, he shall minyche the pryce of it: for the nombe of frutes doth he sell vnto the. * Wilceane not ye therfore euer mā his neyghboure, but thou shalt feare the Lord. For I am the Lord your God: wherfore ye shall do after myne ordinaunces and kepe my lawes, and do them, and ye shall dwell in the lande in safete. And the lande shall geue her frute, and ye shall eate poure fyl, and dwell therein in safete.

And yf ye shall saye: what shall we eate the seuenth yeare, for we shall not sowe, nor gether in oure encrease: I will sende my blessinge vpon you in the syxt yeare, and it shall brynge forth frute for thre yeares: & ye shall sowe the epyght yeare, and eate yet of olde corne vntyll the ix. yeare: euen vntyll her frutes come, ye shall eate of olde store. The lande shall not be solde to be wast: for * the lande is myne, and ye but strangers and sojourners with me. In all the lande of youre posseltyon, ye shall graunt a redemption for the lande.

* Yf thy brother be waxed poore, and hath solde a waye of hys posseltyon: and yf any of his kyn come to redeme it, let him bye out that whiche hys brother solde. And yf he haue no man to redeme it, let hys hande get as much as maye be sufficient to bye it oute agayne, and let hym counte howe lōge it hath bene solde, & deliuer the rest vnto the man to whome he solde it, that he maye retourne to hys posseltyon agayne. But and yf hys hande cannot gett sufficient to restore to the other agayne, then that whiche is solde shall remayne in the hande of hym that hath boughte it, vntyll the yeare of iudic: and in the iudic ye it shall come out, and he shall retourne vnto hys posseltyon agayne.

And yf a man sell a house or a dwellinge

withyn the walles of a cytie, he maye bye it out agayne withyn a whole yeare after it is solde: euen any daye of the yeare shall he redeme it agayne. But and yf he bye it not out agayne withyn the space of a full yeare, then the house that is in y walled citie, shall be established, and be his owne that boughte it, ad hys successours after him, and shall not go out in the iudic. But the houses of vyllages whiche haue nowalles rounde aboute the, are counted as the felde of the countre, & therfore they maye be boughte out agayne, and shall retorne in the iudic.

Notwithstandinge the cyties of the leuytes, and the houses of the cyties of their possession, maye y leuites redeme at all seasons. And yf a mā purchase ought of the Leuites, the house that was solde, and the cite of their possession shall go out in the yeare of iudic: for the houses of the cyties of the leuites, are their possession amonge the chyldre of Israel. But the felde of the suburbe that is beynde their cyties, maye not be solde: but is theyr perpetuall possession.

If thy brother be waken poore, and fallen in decaye with the, thou shalt releue hi, both the stranger and sojourner, that he maye lyue with the. * And thou shalt take none vnturye of him, or vantage. But thou shalt feare the Lord, that thy brother maye lyue with the. Thou shalt not geue hym thy money vpon vnturye, & nor lende hym thy corne for increase. I am the Lord your God, whych brought you out of the lande of Egypte to geue you the lande of Canaan, & to be poure God.

* If thy brother that dwelleth by the, be waken poore, and be solde vnto the, thou shalt not compell him to the bondage of seruautes: but as an hyred seruaunte and as a sojourner he shall be with the, and shall serue the vnto the yeare of iudic, & then shall he departe from the: both he and his chyldren with him, and shall retourne vnto his owne kynred agayne, and vnto the posseltyon of his fathers: for they are my seruautes, whych I brought out of the lande of Egypte, and shall not therfore be solde as bondme. Thou shalt not raygne ouer hym cruelly, but shalt feare the Lord. Thy bondseruaunte, and thy bondmayde whiche thou shalt haue, shall be of the heythen that are rounde aboute you: of them shall ye purchase seruautes and maydes, and of the chyldren of the strangers that are sojourners amonge you, & of theyr generacions that are with you, whiche theyr begate in poure lande. These shall be youre posseltyon, and ye shall take them as inheritance for youre chyldren after you, to possesse them, they shall be poure bondmen for euer. But ouer youre brethzen the chyldren of Israel, ye shall not raygne one ouer another: for they are my seruautes.

Ef a sojourner or straunger waxe ryche by the, and thy brother that dwelleth by him waxe poore, and sell hym selfe vnto the straunger or sojourner by the, or to any of the straungers kyn: after that he is solde, he maye be redeemed agayne: one of his bretheren, whether his vncle or his vncles sonne maye bye hym out: or any that is nye of kynne vnto hym of his kynred, maye redeme hym: either yf his hande can get so moch, he maye be loosed. And he shall recken wyth hym that boughte hym, from the yere that he was solde in, vnto the yere of iubelpe & the pryce of hys byenge shalbe valued accordyng vnto the nombze of yeres. As a hyed seruante shal be by wyth hym. If there be yet many yeres behynde, accordyng vnto the let hym geue agayne for hys deluyraunce, of y money that he was bought for. Yf there remaine but fewe yeres vnto the yere of iubelpe, let hym counte wyth hym agayne, and accordyng vnto his yeres geue hym agayne for hys redempcyon, and he shalbe wyth hym yere by yere as an hyed seruante & the other shal not raygne cruelly ouer him in thy sighte. If he be not redeemed thus, he shal goo out in the yere of iubelpe, both he and his chyldzen wyth hym: for the chyldzen of Israell are my seruantes, whych I broughte out of the lande of Egypte. I am the Lorde poure God.

¶ The. xxvi. Chapter.

¶ Ther are blessed that kepe those thynges that God brendeth.

* Deut. b. a.

I shall make you no ydolles nor grauen ymage, nether reare you by any stone, nether shall ye sett by any ymage of stone in your lād to worshippinge it: for I am the Lord poure God: ye shall kepe my Sabbothes, & feare my sanctuary: for I am the Lorde.

¶ If ye walke in myne ordinaunces and kepe my commaundementes, and do them, I wyll sende you rayne in the ryght season and the lād shall yelde her encrease, and the trees of the felde shall geue theyr frute. And the thershyng shall reach vnto wyne harvest, and the wyneharuest shall reach vnto sowynge tyme, and ye shall eate your bread in plenteousnes, and dwell in poure lād peacefully. And I wyll sende peace in the lande, & ye shall slepe without any man to make you a fraybe.

And I wyll rydd euell beastes out of the lande, and there shall no swerde goo thorow out poure lande. And ye shall chase poure enemyes, and they shall fall before you vpon the swerde. * And syue of you shall chase an hundred, & an hundred of you shall put ten thousande to flyghte, and poure enemyes shall fall before you vpon the swerde. For I will haue respect vnto you, and make you encrease, and multiplye you, and sett by my covenant wyth you. And ye shall eate olde store, and carye out olde for the newe. * And I wyll make my dwellinge place amonge you, & my soule shall not lothe you. I wyll walke amonge you, and wyll be poure God, and ye shalbe my people. ¶ I am the Lorde poure God, whyche broughte you out of the lande of Egypte, that ye shalbe not be theyr bodemen, and I haue broken the cheynes of your yoke, and made you go by ryghte.

* But and yf ye wyll not harken vnto me, nor wyll do all these my commaundementes: And yf ye shall despise myne ordinaunces, ether yf poure soule abhorre my lawes, so that ye wyll not do all my commaundementes, but breake myne appoyntment, I also will do thys vnto you. For I wyll bring vpon you fearfulnesse, swellynge of body, and the burnynge agewe, to consume poure eyes, & gendze forowe of hert. And ye shall sowe poure seed in vayne, for poure enemyes shall eate it, and I wyll set my face agens te you, and ye shall fall before poure enemyes, & they that hate you, shall raygne ouer you: and ye shall see, when no man followeth you.

And yf ye wyll not yet for all this herken vnto me, then will I punyssh you seven tymes more for poure synnes, and wyll breake the pryde of poure stubburnesse. And I wyll make poure heauen as yron, and poure erth as brasse. And poure labour shalbe spelt in vayne. For poure lande shal not geue byr encrease, nether shall the trees of the lande geue theyr frutes.

And yf ye walke contrary vnto me, and wyll not herken vnto me, I wyll byrynge seven tymes moore plagis vpon you, accordyng to poure synnes. I will also sende in wilde beastes vpon you, which shall robbe you of poure chyldzen, and destroye poure catell, and make you serue in nombze, and cause poure hye wayes to growe vnto a wylder- nesse.

And yf ye maye not be reformed by these thynges but shall walke contrary vnto me, then wyll I also walke contrary vnto you, and wyll punyssh you yet seven tymes for poure synnes. And I wyll sende a swerde vpon you, that shall auenge my testamēt. And when ye are gathered together wythin poure cyties, I wyll sende the pestilence amonge you, and ye shalbe deluyred into the hande of the enemye. And when I haue broken the staffe of poure bread: ten wyues shall bake poure bread in one oven, and they shall deluyne you poure bread agayne by wepyght: ye shall eate, and not be satysfied.

And

And yf ye wyll not yet for all this herken vnto me, but shall walke agaynst me, I will walke contrary vnto you also in indignacyon, and wyll chastice you seven tymes for poure synnes. * And ye shall eate the flesh of poure sonnes and the flesh of poure daughters: ye shall eate the flesh of poure places, and roote out poure ymagis, and cast poure carkasses vpon the bodies of poure ydolles, and my soule shall abhorre you. And I wyll make poure cyties desolate, and byrynge poure sanctuarie vnto nought, and wyll not smell the swetnesse of poure oboures.

I wyll byrynge the lande vnto a wylder- nesse, and poure enemyes which dwell therein, shall wondre at it. And I will strawe you amonge the hethen, and will drawe out a swerde after you, and poure lande shalbe wast, and poure cyties desolate. Then shall the lande enioye her Sabbothes, as longe as it lyeth voyde, and ye shalbe in poure enemyes lande: euen then shall the lande rest, and reioyse in her Sabbothes. As longe as it lyeth voyde it shall rest, because it dyd not reste in poure Sabbothes, when ye dwelt vpon it.

And vpo them that are left alyue of you, I wyll sende a fayntnesse into theyr hertes in the lande of theyr enemyes: & the soude of a shakynge leef, shall chase the, and whā they flee the swerde, they shall fall: no man folowynge vpon them. They shall fall one vpon another, as it were before a swerde, euen no man folowynge vpo them, and ye shall haue no power to stande before poure enemyes: And ye shall perishe amonge the hethen, & the lande of poure enemyes shall cate you by.

And they that are left of you, shall ppyne awaye in their vnyrghtousnes, eue in their enemyes lād, and in the mysdeades of their fathers shall they consume. And they shall confesse their mysdeades and the mysdeades of their fathers for their trespass, which they haue trespassed agaynst me, and for that also that they haue walked contrary vnto me.

¶ Therefore I also wyll walke contrary vnto them, and wyll byrynge them into the lande of their enemyes. And then at the leest waye their vncircumcised hertes shall be tamed, and they shall make an attouement for their mysdeades.

* Deut. iij. c.

And * I will remembre my covenant, with Jacob, and my bōde with Isahac, and myne appoyntment with Abrahā, and will thynke on the lande. The lande shall be lefte of them, and shall enioye her Sabbothes, whyle the lyeth wast without the. And they shall make an attouement for their mysdeades, because they despised my lawes, and because their soule refused myne ordinaunces: And yet for all that whē they be in the lād of their enemyes, * I will not cast them awaye, neyther will abhorre the, to destroye them utterly, and to breake myne appoyntment with the: for I am the Lorde their God. I wyll for their sakes remembre the covenant made vnto their fathers, whom I broughte out of the lande of Egypte in the syghte of the hethen, that I myght be their God: I am the Lorde.

These are the ordinaunces, and iudgemētes, and lawes, which the Lorde made betwene hym and the chyldzen of Israell in mount Sinai, by the hande of Moses.

¶ The. xxvij. Chapter.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses sayynge: speake vnto the chyldzen of Israell, and saye vnto them: If any mā will geue a synfuler vowe vnto y Lorde accordyng to the value of the soules, the value of the male from twentye yere olde vnto sixtye shalbe sytlye * sytlye of siluer, after the wepyght of the sanctuary. And yf it be a female, the value shalbe thytlye sicles. And from syue yeres to twentye, the male shalbe set at twentye sicles, and the female at ten sycles. And from a moneth vnto syue yere, the male shalbe set at syue sycles of siluer, and the female at thre. And he that is sytlye yere olde, and aboue, shalbe valued at fiftene sicles, and the woman at ten. But yf he be to poore so to be set, he shall present himselfe before the prest: & the prest shal value him, accordyng as the hande of him y bowed is able to gett, euen so shall the prest value him.

If it be a beaste of which men bringe an offryng vnto the Lorde: all that any mā geueth of sothe vnto the Lorde, & shalbe counted holy, he shall not alter it nor chaunge it: a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. And yf he chaunge beaste for beaste, then both the same beaste and it also wherwith it was chaunged shalbe holy. If it be any manner of vncleane beaste, of which men do not offer a sacrifice vnto the Lorde, he shall set the beaste before the prest, and the prest shal value it, whether it be good or bad. And as y prest setteth it, so shall it be. But yf he will bye it agayne, he shall geue the syft parte moare aboue that it was set at.

If any man dedicate his house, to be holy vnto the Lorde, the prest shal set it, whether it be good or bad: and as the prest hath set it, so shall the value be. And whā he that sanctified it wyll redeme hys house, lett hym geue the syft parte of the money that it was iudged at therto, and it shalbe hys.

If a mā halowe a peece of hys enheretted lande vnto the Lorde, it shalbe set accordyng to y scde therof. If it beare an house homer of barley, it shall be set at fyfte species of silver. If he halowe his felde immediatly from the yeare of iubely, it shall be worth accordeinge as it is esteemed. But and yf he halowe his felde after the iubelye, the preast shall reckon the money accordeinge to the nombre of the yeares that remaine vnto the yeare of iubely folowynge, & there after it shall be lower sett.

If he that consecrated the felde, wyl redeme it agayne, let hym put the fyft parte of the pryce that it was set at there vnto, and it shall be his. And yf he wyl not redeme the felde, but selleth the felde to another man, he shall be as the lande that is vtterly put awaye, and it shall be the preastes possession.

If a man sanctifye vnto the Lord a felde, which he hath boughte, and is not of his inheritance, the preast shall reken vnto hym what it is worth vnto the yeare of iubelye, & he shall geue the pryce that it is set at, the same daye, as a thyng consecrated vnto the Lord. And in the yeare of iubelye, the felde shall returne vnto hi of whome he boughte it, eue to him, whose inheritance of land it is.

And all settinge shall be accordeinge to the sycke of the sanctuary. One sycke cōteyneth twenty halfpens.

* But the fyft booke of the beastes that is appoynted vnto the Lord, maye no man sanctifye: whether it be ore or shepe, for it is the Lordes allredy. If it be an vncleane beast, he shall redeme it, as it is sett at, and geue the fyft parte more therto: Or, yf it be not redemed, it shall be solde, accordeinge to the value.

Notwithstandynge, no dāned thyng that a man putteth from hym and dedycateth vnto the Lord, of all his good (whether it be mā or beast or lande of his inheritance) maye be sold or redemed: for euery thyng that is put awaye, is most holy vnto the Lord. Let no dāned thyng that a mā separateth, be redemed, but dye the death.

Euery tyth of the lande which is of the seide of the lande, or of the frute of the trees, is the Lordes, and is sanctified vnto the Lord. And yf a man wyl redeme ought of his tythes, let him adde the fyth parte therto. And euery tyth of ore and of shepe and of euery beast that goeth vnder the rodde, euen euery tenth shall be holy vnto the Lord. He shall not loke yf it be good or bad, nor chaunge it. Els, yf he chaunge it, both it, and that it was chaunged withall, shall be halowed vnto the Lord, and maye not be redemed.

The fyft Chapter.

All that are apte for batell, are nombred. The trybe of Leui must minister in the tabernacle.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses in the wilderness of Synay, in the tabernacle of witness, the fyft daye of the seconde moneth in the seconde yeare after they were come out of the lande of Egypte,

Exo. xxx. b.
Num. xxi. a.
Le. xxi. a.

sayinge: * take ye the summe of all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, after theyr kynredes & householdes of theyr fathers wyth the nombre of theyr names, all that are males, hebd by hebd, from xx. yeare & aboue: eue all that go forth to the warre in Israel, thou and Aaron shall nombre them thowowe out theyr armyes, and wyth you shall be men of euery trybe, wherof euery one is heed mā of the house of his fathers.

And these are the names of the men that shall stande with you: of the trybe of Rubē, Elizur the sonne of Sebeur: of Simeō, Selumiel the sonne of Suri Sadai: of Iuda, Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab: of Issachar, Nathanael the sonne of Zuar: of Zabulon, Eliab the sonne of Helon. These were of greute fame in the congregacyō, Lordes of the trybes of their fathers, and heades ouer thousandes in Israel. And Moyses and Aaron toke these men (which are expessed by theyr names) and gathered all the congregacyō together, the fyft daye of the seconde moneth, and they were rekened thowowe out their kynredes & householdes of their fathers by name from xx. yeare and aboue, hebd by hebd. As the Lord commaunded Moses, euen so he nombred them in the wilderness of Synai.

And the chyldren of Ruben Israels eldest sonne thowowe out theyr generacyōs, & their kynredes, & householdes of their fathers in the nombre of names, hebd by hebd (all males from xx. yeare & aboue) as many as dyd go forth to the warre: the nombre of the p were of the trybe of Rubē, was. xlvi. thousande & v. hundred.

Of the chyldren of Simeon thowowe out theyr generacyōs and theyr kynredes and householdes of theyr fathers, the summe of the in the nombre of names, hebd by hebd, all the males from xx. yeares and aboue, whosoeuer myght go forth to the warre: the summe of them that were of the trybe of Simeon, lx. thousande and iij. hundred.

Of the chyldren of Gad thowowe out their generacyōs and theyr kynredes and householdes of theyr fathers, the nombre of the names from xx. yeare & aboue, all that were forth to the warre: the nombre of them that were of the trybe of Gad, was. xlvi. thousande, fyre hundred and fyfte.

Of the chyldren of Iuda thowowe out their generacyōs and their kynredes and householdes of their fathers, the nombre of names from xx. yeare and aboue, all that were able to go furth to the warre: the nombre of the that were of the trybe of Iuda, was. lxxiij. thousande and fyre hundred.

Of the chyldren of Issachar thowowe out theyr generacyōs & theyr kynredes and householdes of theyr fathers: the nombre of names from xx. yeare and aboue which went all furth to warre, the nombre of the p were of the trybe of Issachar, was. liiij. thousande & liij. hundred.

Of the chyldren of Zabulon: thowowe out theyr generacyōs and theyr kynredes, and householdes of their fathers, the nombre of names from xx. yeare & aboue, which were all able to go furth in the host: the nombre of them that were of the trybe of Zabulon, was. lviij. thousande and foure hundred.

Of the chyldren of Joseph: Namely, of the chyldren of Ephraim thowowe out theyr generacyōs and theyr kynredes and householdes of theyr fathers, the nombre of names from xx. yeares & aboue, all p went out to the warre: the nombre of them that were of the trybe of Ephraim was. xl. thousande, & fyue hundred.

Of the chyldren of Manasse thowowe out their generacyōs, & theyr kynredes, and householdes of their fathers, the nombre of names from twēty yeare olde & aboue, all p wēt out to p warre: the nombre of the p were of the trybe of Manasse, was, xxxij. thousande & two hundred.

Of the chyldren of Ben Jamin thowowe out their generacyōs, and theyr kynredes & householdes of theyr fathers, the nombre of names from twēty yeare & aboue, all p wēt furth to the warre: the nombre of the that were of the

g liij of the

of the trybe of Beniamin was. xxxv. thousande. and. iiii. hundred.

¶ Of the chyldre of Dan thozowe out their generacions and their kynredes and houses of theyr fathers: the nombze of names from twentye yere olde and aboue, all that wote furth to the warre: The nombze of the that were of the trybe of Dan was. xlii. thousande and. vii. hundred.

¶ Of the chyldre of Aser thozowe out their generacions and their kynredes and houses of theyr fathers, the nombze of the names from xx. yeres and aboue, all that wente out to warre: The nombze of the that were of the trybe of Aser was. xli. thousande and. v. hundred.

¶ Of the chyldren of Nephtali: thozowe out theyr generacions and theyr kynredes & houses of theyr fathers, the nombze of names from xx. yeres and aboue, all that myght go furth to the warre: The nombze of the that were of the trybe of Nephtali, was thre ad fiftye thousande and. iiii. hundred.

¶ These are the summes whych Moses & Aaron nombzed and the princes of Israel: those twelue me, which were euery one ouer the house of theyr fathers. And all the nombzes of the chyldren of Israel, thozowe out the houses of theyr fathers, from twentye yere & aboue, all that went furth to the warre in Israel, drewe all vnto the summe of * fyue hundred thousande and thre thousande, fyue hundred and fiftye. But the Leuites after the trybe of theyr fathers were not nombzed amonge them.

* Gen. xii. f. 32. iiii. c. f.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Thou shalt not nombze the trybe of Leui, neither take the somme of them from amonge the chyldren of Israel. But thou shalt appoynte the leuites ouer the habytacyon of witnessse, and ouer all the vessels therof, and ouer all thynges that are in it. Pea they shall beare the tabernacle and all the vessels therof, & they shall minstre in it, & shall dwell rounde aboute the tabernacle. And when the tabernacle goeth forth, the leuites shall take it downe: and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, they shall sett it vp: and yf any straunger come nye, he shall dye. And the chyldre of Israel shall pytch theyr tentes, euery man in his owne companye, and euery man vnder his owne staderd thozowe out theyr hostes. But the leuites shall pytche rounde aboute the tabernacle of witnessse, that there be no wrath vpon the congregacyon of the chyldre of Israel, and the leuites shall kepe the watch of the tabernacle of witnessse. And the chyldre of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lord commaunded Moses, euen so dyd they.

¶ The. iiij. Chapter.

¶ The order of the tentes. The heades of the kynredes of Israel.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron saying: euery man of the chyldre of Israel shall pytch vnder his owne staderd & vnder the armes of theyr fathers houses: on the other syde & rounde aboute the tabernacle of witnessse shall they pytch.

¶ On the east syde toward the rpyng of the sonne, shall they of the staderd of the hoste of Iuda pytch thozowe out theyr armyes: And Nahelson the sonne of Aminadab was captayne of the sonnes of Iuda. And his hoste and the nombze of the. lxxiii. thousande & vi. hundred. Next vnto him & shall they of the trybe of Zachar pytche: & Nathanael the sonne of Zuar was captayne of the chyldren of Zachar: hys hoste & the summe of the nombze therof. lxxii. thousande & foure hundred.

¶ And then the trybe of Zabulon: and Eliab the sonne of Helo, captayne ouer the chyldre of Zabulon, & his hoste & the nombze of them. lxxi. thousande and. iiii. hundred: so that the whole nombze of the whole hoste of Iuda are an hundred thousande. lxxvi. thousande & iiii. hundred thozowe out theyr armyes: and these shall go before.

¶ On the south syde shall the staderd of the hoste of Ruben kepe thozowe theyr companyes: & the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ruben, was Elizer the sonne of Sedeur. And hys hoste and the nombze of the. xli. thousande and. v. hundred. And fast by hym shall the trybe of Symeon pytche, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Symeon, was Salumiel the sonne of Zuri Sadai, and his hoste and the nombze of them. lxx. thousande & iij. hundred. And the trybe of Gad also: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Gad, was Elasaph the sonne of Meguel: And his hoste and the nombze of them. xlv. thousande. vi. hundred and. i. All that were nombzed wyth the trybe of Ruben: an hundred thousande. li. thousande. iiii. hundred & l. thozowe out their armyes, and they shall go in the secōde place.

¶ And the tabernacle of witnessse shall go wyth the hoste of the leuites, in the myddes of the hostes: And as they lye in their tētes, euen so shall they procede in the iourney, euery man in hys degree, and vnder theyr owne staderdes.

¶ The west syde shall the standard of the hoste of Ephraim kepe wyth theyr armyes, & the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ephraim, was Elisama the sonne of Amihud: hys hoste and the nombze of them. xl. thousande and fyue hundred.

¶ And fast by hym, shall be the trybe of Manasse, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Manasse was Gamalcel the sonne of Pedazur. hys hoste and the nombze of the. xxxii. thousande and. ii. hundred. And the trybe of Beniamin

Beniamin also: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Beniamin was, Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni. hys hoste and the nombze of the xxxv. thousande and. iiii. hundred. All that were appoynted wyth the hoste of Ephraim, were an hundred thousande. vii. thousande and an hundred, thozowe out their armyes & they shall goo in the thyrde place.

¶ The staderd of the hoste of Dan shall kepe the north syde wyth their armyes: & the captayne ouer the chyldren of Dan, was Abiezzer the sonne of Ammi Sadai. hys hoste and the nombze of them. lxxij. thousande and. vi. hundred. And fast by hym shall the trybe of Aser pytche: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Aser was Pagiel the sonne of Ocran. hys hoste and the nombze of them. xli. thousande & v. hundred. And the trybe of Nephtali also, and the captayne ouer the chyldre of Nephtali: was Ahira the sonne of Enan. hys hoste and the nombze of them. lxx. thousande and. iiii. hundred. All they that were appoynted wyth the hoste of Dan, was an hundred thousande. lxxij. thousande and. vi. hundred. And they shall go hymnmoft wyth their staderdes.

¶ These are the summes of the chyldren of Israel thozowe out the houses of their fathers: euen all the nombzes they pytched thozowe out their hostes. vi. hundred thousande. iiii. thousande. v. hundred and fiftie. But the Leuites were not nombzed amonge the chyldren of Israel, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, for so they pytched wyth their staderdes, & so they iourneyd thozowe out their kynredes, & thozowe out the householdes of their fathers.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

¶ The Leuites go not to batell, but minstre in the sanctuary. They pytche their tentes nye to the habytacyon.

¶ These are the generacions of Aaron and Moses, in the daye that the Lord spake vnto Moses in mount Synai, & these are the names of the sonnes of Aaron: Nadab the eldest sonne, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. ¶ These are the names of the sonnes of Aaron which were Pryestres anoynted, & whose hande was consecrated to minstre. ¶ And Nadab and Abihu dyed before the Lorde when they offered straunge fyre before the Lorde in the wyldernes of Synai, and had no chyldren. And Eleazar and Ithamar minstred in the syght of Aaron their father.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Bynge the trybe of Leui, and set them before Aaron the Pryest: that they maye serue him and wayte vpon hym and vpon all the multitude, before the tabernacle of witnessse, to do the scrupce of the habytacyon. They shall kepe all the apparell of the tabernacle of witnessse, and wayte vpon the chyldren of Israel, to do the scrupce of the habytacyon. And thou shalt geue the Leuites vnto Aaron, and hys sonnes, for they are geue and deliuered vnto him of the chyldren of Israel. And thou shalt appoynte Aaron & hys sonnes to wayte on their Pryestes offyce: and the straunger that commeth nye, shall be slayne.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: Beholde I haue taken the Leuites from amonge the chyldre of Israel: for all the fyrst borne of Israel, and the Leuites shall be myne: because all the fyrst borne are myne: for the same daye I smote all the fyrst borne in the lande of Egypte, I halowed vnto me all the fyrst borne in Israel, both man & beaſt, and myne they shall be: I am the Lorde.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the wyldernes of Synai saying: Nombze the chyldren of Leui after the houses of their fathers in their kynredes. All that are males, from a moneth olde and aboue shalt thou nombze. And Moses nombzed them, accordynge to the comaundement of the Lord, and as he had comaunded. ¶ And these were the chyldren of Leui in their names: Serion, & Cahath and Merari. And these are the names of the chyldren of Serion in their kynredes: Libni and Semri. The sonnes of Cahath in their kynredes: Amram, Isehar, Hebron & Oziel. And the sonnes of Merari in their kynredes: Gadi and Zusi. These are the kynredes of the Leuites, accordynge to the houses of their fathers.

¶ Of Serion came the kynred of the Libnites and the kynred of the Semrites. These are the kynredes of the Serionites. And the summe of the (after the nombze of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue) was. vii. thousande and fyue hundred. And the kynredes of the Serionites shall pytche behynde the habytacyon westwarde. The captayne & most auncler of the house of the Serionites, was Elasaph the sonne of Lael. And vnder the kepynge of the chyldren of Serion in the tabernacle of witnessse was the habytacyon and the tente, the couerynge therof, and the hangynge of the doore of the tabernacle of witnessse.

wytneſſe, and the hangynges of the courte, and the curtayne of the doze of the courte: which is rounde about the Tabernacle, and the alter, and the cordes of it for all the ſeruyce therof. And of Cabath came the kynred of the Amramites, and ſ kynred of the Jezebarites: the kynred of the hebronites, and the kynred of the Ozielites: Theſe are the kynredes of the Cabathites. And the nombre of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue, was. viij. thouſande and ſyre hundred: and theſe ſhall kepe the thynges that are to be kepte in the holy place. And the kynred of the chyldzen of Cabath ſhall pytche on the ſouthſyde of the Tabernacle. The captayne and moſt auncient of the houſe of the kynred of the Cabathites, was Eliſaphan the ſonne of Oziel, and vnder their keepynge was the arche, the table, the candleſtyck, and the alters, and all the veſſels of the ſanctuary ſ they myniſtre in, and the vayle, and whatſoever belonged to the myniſtracyon therof. And Eleazar the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſte, was captayne ouer all the captaynes of the Leuites, and had the ouerſyghte of the that wayted vpon the ſanctuary.

And of Merari came the kynred of the Mahelites, and the kynred of the Muſites: Theſe are the kynredes of Merari. And the ſumme of them accordynge to the nombre of all the males, from a moneth olde and aboue was. vij. thouſande and. ij. hundred. The captayne and the moſt auncient of their houſe that were of the kynred of Merari, was zurriel the ſonne of Biſiack: and theſe ſhall pytche on the north ſyde of the tabernacle. And vnder the cuſtody of the ſonnes of Merari ſhalbe the bordes of the dwellinge, and the barres, pylers and ſockettes therof, all the veſſell therof, and all that ſerueth therto: & the pylers of the courte rounde aboute with their ſockettes, their pyennes & their cordes. But on the forefront of the habitacyon before the Tabernacle of wytneſſe eaſtwarde, ſhall Moſes & Aaron and his ſonnes pytche, and wayte to kepe the ſanctuary, and to kepe the chyldzen of Iſrael. And ſtraunger that cometh nye, ſhall be ſlayne. And the hole ſumme of ſ Leuites whych Moſes and Aaron nombred, at the commaundement of the Lorde thoroowe out their kynredes (euen all the males from a moneth olde and aboue) was * xxxij. thouſande.

* Nu. xxiij.

And the Lorde ſayde vnto Moſes: Nombze all the fyrſt bozne that are males amonge the chyldzen of Iſrael (from a moneth olde and aboue) and take the nombze of their names. And thou ſhalt apoynte the Leuites to me (for I am the Lorde,) for all ſ fyrſt bozne of the chyldzen of Iſrael, and the catell of the Leuites, for all the fyrſt gendred of the catell of the chyldzen of Iſrael. And Moſes nomb-red as the Lorde commaunded hym, all the fyrſt bozne of the chyldzen of Iſrael. And all the fyrſt bozne males rehearſed by their names, (from a moneth olde and aboue, accordynge to their nombze) were. xxxij. thouſande. ij. hundred and. lxxij.

And the Lorde ſpoke vnto Moſes ſayinge: take the Leuites for all the fyrſt bozne of the chyldzen of Iſrael, and the catell of ſ Leuites for their catell: and the Leuites ſhalbe myne. I am the Lorde. And for ſ redempcyon of the two hundred and. lxxij. (whyche are moo then the Leuites in ſ fyrſt bozne of the chyldzen of Iſrael,) take. v. ſyckles of euerp ſheade, after the weyght of ſ Sanctuary * the ſycle conteynyng twenty halfpens. And geue the money wherewith the odde nombze of them is redeemed, vnto Aaron and his ſonnes. And Moſes toke ſ redempcyon money, of the ouerplus that were moo then the Leuites: of the fyrſt bozne of the chyldzen of Iſrael toke he thys money: euen a thouſande. ij. hundred and. lxxv. ſyckles, after the ſycle of the Sanctuary. And Moſes gaue the money of them that were redeemed, vnto Aaron and his ſonnes accordynge to ſ worde of ſ Lord, euen as the Lorde commaunded Moſes.

The. iij. Chapter.

The offyces of the Leuites.

And the Lorde ſpoke vnto Moſes and Aaron ſayinge: Take the ſumme of the chyldzen of Cabath from amonge the ſonnes of Leui, after theyr kynredes and houſes of their fathers, (from. xxx. yere and aboue vntyll ſyftie) all that are able to go furth to the warre, for to do the worke in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. The offyce of the chyldzen of kabath in the tabernacle of wytneſſe, is moſt holy. And when the hoſte remoueth, Aaron & his ſonnes ſhall come & take downe the vayle, that hāgeth betwene, & wrappe ſ Arke of wytneſſe in it: and ſhall put thereon a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, & ſhall ſprede vpon it a cloth that is altogether of yelow ſylke, and put in the barres therof. And vpon the ſheue table, they ſhall ſprede abroad a cloth of yelow ſylke, & put thereon the dyſches, ſpones, flat peces, and pottes to powze wyth, and there ſhalbe bred thereon continually: & they ſhall ſpreade vpon them a couerynge of purple, and couer the ſame with a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, and put in the barres therof.

And they ſhall take a cloth of yelow ſylke, and couer the candleſtycke of lpght, with his lampes, tōges, and ſnoffers, and all the oyle veſſels which they occupye aboute it, & they ſhall put both it, and all the veſſell therof within a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, & put it vpon a barre. And vpon the golden alter they ſhall ſprede a cloth of yelow ſylke, and couer

it with a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, & put in ſ barres therof. And they ſhall take all the thynges (whyche they occupye to myniſtre within ſ holy place) and put a cloth of yelow ſylke vpon them, and couer them with a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, and put them on a barre. And they ſhall take awaye the alibes from yalter, and ſprede a purple cloth thereon: and put vpon it all the veſſels therof, that they myniſtre wythall: euen ſ cole panes, the fleſhe holes, the ſhouels, the baſens and ſ other veſſels of yalter, and they ſhall ſprede vpon it a couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, and put in the barres of it. And when Aaron and his ſonnes haue made an ende of couerynge the holy thynges, and all the veſſels of the ſanctuary (agaynſt that the hoſte remoueth) then the ſonnes of Cabath ſhall come in for to beare, but they ſhall not touche any holy thyng, leaſt they dye. And thys is the charge of the ſonnes of Cabath in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And to the offyce of Eleazar the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſte pertayneth the oyle for the lpghte, the ſweete cens, the dayly meat offerynge, & the anoyntynge oyle, and the ouerſyghte of all the tabernacle, and of all that therein is, both in the ſanctuary and in all the veſſels therof.

And the Lorde ſpoke vnto Moſes and Aaron, ſayinge: Ye ſhall not deſtroye the trybe of the kynred of the Cabathites, from amonge ſ Leuites. But thus do vnto them, that they maye lyue and not dye, when they go vnto the moſt holy thynges: Let Aaron and his ſonnes go in, and take them downe, to euerp one after his ſeruyce, and after his charge. But let them not go in, to ſe when ſ the holy thynges are folden vp, leaſt they dye.

And the Lorde ſpoke vnto Moſes ſayinge: Take alſo the ſumme of the chyldzen of Gerson, thoroowe out the houſes of their fathers, and thoroowe out their kynredes: from. xxx. yere and aboue, vntyll. l. ſhalt thou nombze them, all that are able to go forth to the warre for to do ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And this is the ſeruyce of the kynred of the Gersonites, to ſerue and to beare. They ſhall beare the curtaynes of the dwellinge, and the rouffe of the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, his couerynge, & the couerynge of taxus ſkynnes, that is an hye aboue vpon it, and the hangynge of the doze which is in the tabernacle of wytneſſe: & the hangynge of the courte, & the hangynge that is in the entrynge in of the gate of y courte rounde about the dwellinge & the altare, with the cordes, & all the instrumentes that ſerue vnto them, and all that is made for to ſerue them. At the mouth of Aaron and his ſonnes, ſhall all the ſeruyce of the chyldzen of the Gersonytes be done, in all their charges and in all their ſeruyce, and ye ſhall nombze vnto them all their burthens to kepe. And thys is the ſeruyce of the kynred of the chyldzen of Gerson in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe, & their watche ſhalbe vnder the hande of Ithamar the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſte.

And thou ſhalt nombze the ſonnes of Merari after their kynredes, & after the houſes of their fathers: from. xxx. yeres & aboue vnto. l. ſhalt thou nombze them, euerp one that is able to go forth to the warre, to do the ſeruyce of y Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And thys is the charge that they muſt wayte vpon, accordynge to all their ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. The bordes of y dwellinge, with the barres, pylers, & ſockettes therof, and the pylers that are rounde aboute the courte, with their ſockettes, pyennes & cordes, & withall the instrumentes of it, for all their ſeruyce. And by name ye ſhall reken ſ thynges ſ they muſt wayte vpon to beare. This is the ſeruyce of the kynredes of the ſonnes of Merari accordynge to all their offyce in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe vnder the hande of Ithamar the ſonne of Aaron the Prieſte.

And Moſes & Aaron & the pynces of the multitude nombred ſ ſonnes of y Cabathites, after their kynredes and houſes of their fathers from. xxx. yere & aboue vnto ſyftie, all that were able to go forth to the warre, to do ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ſ nombzes of them thoroowe out their kynredes were two thouſande, ſeuene hundred &. l. This is the nombze of the kynredes of Cabath: namely, all that myght do ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe, whych Moſes and Aaron dyd nombze, accordynge to the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moſes.

Theſe are ſ nombzes of the ſonnes of Gerson thoroowe out their kynredes & houſes of their fathers, from. xxx. yere vnto ſyftie all ſ were able to go forth to the warre, for to do ſeruyce in the Tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ſ nombzes of the thoroowe out their kynredes, and houſes of their fathers, were two thouſande. vij. hundred &. xxx. This is the nombze of the kynredes of the ſonnes of Gerson, of all ſ dyd ſeruyce in the tabernacle of wytneſſe, which Moſes & Aaron dyd nombze accordynge to the commaundement of the Lorde.

And theſe are ſ nombzes of the kynredes of ſ ſonnes of Merari thoroowe out their kynredes & houſes of their fathers, from. xxx. yere vnto ſyftie: all ſ wente forth to y warre, & ſeruyd in the tabernacle of wytneſſe. And ſ nombzes of them after their kynredes were, thre thouſande & two hundred. This is ſ ſumme of the kynredes of the ſonnes of merari, which Moſes & Aaron nombred accordynge to the worde of ſ Lord, by ſ hande of Moſes.

And to all the nombzes of the Leuites which Moſes, Aaron, and the Lordes of Iſrael nombred, after their kynredes and houſes, holdes of their fathers, from xxx. yere vp vnto l. euery one that came to do hys offyce and scrupce and to beare hys burthen in the Tabernacle of wytnesse: were (whan they were nombred.) viij. thousande, fyue hundred and. lxxx. Accordynge to the worde of the Lorde dyd (Aron) nombze them by the hande of Moyses, euery one accordynge to their scrupce and charge, and accordynge to their offycs: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

The. v. Chapter.

The knowlege of synne. The cleansynge of synne. The lawe of the spyt scutes, and of gelousye.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they * put out of the hoste, euery leper and euery one that hath an pfluie, and whosoener is defyled vpon a soule. Both male & female shall ye put out: eue out of the hoste shall ye put them, that they defyle not the tentes amonge which I dwell. And the chyldren of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the hoste, eue as the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, so dyd the chyldren of Israel.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: whether it be * man or woman. If they haue compted any synne that a man doeth, and haue trespassed agaynst the Lorde, that soule hath done amisse: Therefore they shall knowlege their synne, whyche they haue done, and let hym restore agayne the hurte that he hath done in the hole, and put the spyt parte of it moare thereto, & geue it vnto hym whō he hath trespassed agensste. But and yf there be not a man to restore the hurte vnto, ner a kynsman of hys, let yf trespace be made good vnto the Lorde, and it shalbe the Preakste, besyde the raiment of the attonement wherby an attonement shalbe made for him. And euery heue offeringe that is made of the holy thynges of the chyldre of Israel whych they byynge vnto the Preakste, shall be hys: and euery mans halowed thynges shalbe hys: and whatsoeuer any man geueth the Preakste, it shalbe hys.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: If any mans wyfe goo a syde, and trespace agaynst hym, so that another man lye wyth her fleschely, and it be hyd from the eyes of her husbände, and is not come to lpyghte that she is defyled and ther is no wytnesse agaynst her, neyther she taken with the maner, and the spyte of gelousye cometh vpon hym, so that he is gelouse ouer hys wyfe whych is defyled: or yf the spyte of gelousye come vpon hym, so that he is gelouse ouer his wyfe whych is yet vndefyled: then let the man byynge his wyfe vnto the Preakste, and byynge wyth her an offeringe for her: yf tenche parte of an Epha of barley meale, but let him powze none oyle vpon it, nor put frankincens theron: for it is an offeringe of gelousye, an offeringe for a remembrance, causynge y synne to be thought vpo.

¶ And the Preakste shall byynge her and set her before the Lorde, and let him * take holy water in an erthen vessel, & of the dust that is in the flooze of the habitacyn, and put it into the water. And let the Preakste set the woman before the Lorde, and vncouer the womans head, and put the memoypall of the offeringe in her handes whyche is the gelousye offeringe, and y Preakste shall haue bytter and curlyd water in hys hande, & the prest shall charge her, and saye vnto the woman. If no man haue lpen wyth the, nether haste gone asyde to vncleynesse without thy husbände, then haue thou no arme of thys bytter, and curlyd waters.

¶ But and yf thou hast gone asyde behynde thine husbände, and art defyled, and some other man hath lpen wyth the besyde thine husbände. (The preaste shall charge the woman with an horrible curse, & the preste shall saye vnto the woman) the Lorde make the to be an abhominacyon and a curse amonge thy people: when the Lorde doth make thy thyfe rotte, and thy bely swell: These curlyd waters goo into the bowels of the that they maye make thy bely swell, & thy thyfe rotte, and let the woman saye, Amen Amen.

¶ And let the Preakste wypte these curses: And whan they be clesed, let him cast them in to bytter waters, & geue the woman those bytter & curled waters to drynke, that those cursed & bytter waters maye entre into her. And then the Preakste shall take the gelousy offeringe out of the womans hande, & waue it before the Lorde, & byynge it vnto the alter & the preste shall take an handefull of the offeringe for a memoypall, & burne it vpo the alter, & then make the woman drynke y water: when he hath made the woman drynke the waters (yf she be defyled & haue trespassed agaynst her husbände:) then shall the curlyd & bytter waters goo into her, & her bely shall swell, & her thyfe shall rotte, & y woman shalbe a curse amonge her people. And yf the woman be not defiled but is cleane, she shall haue no harme, but shall conceaue and beare.

¶ Thys is the lawe of gelousye, whē a wyfe goth a syde behynde hyr husbände, and is defyled, or when the spyte of gelousye cometh vpon a man, & he byynge gelouse ouer hys wyfe, doth byynge her before the Lorde. And the preaste shall do accordynge vnto all this lawe: and the man shalbe gyltlesse, & the woman shall beate her synne.

The. vi. Chapter.

The lawe of adynce. The blessinge of the people.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ether mā or woman doth separate them selues to bowe a bowe of. an absteiner, and apoynte them selues vnto the Lorde, he shall separate hym selfe from * wyne and stronge dryncke, and shall dryncke no vynagre of wyne nor of stronge dryncke, nor shall drynke whatsoeuer is pressed out of grapes: & shall eate no frethe grapes nether yet dyed. As lōge as hys abstinence endureth, shall he eate nothyng that is made of the vyne tre, or of the cornels, or of the huske of the grape.

¶ And as longe as he voweth, and is separated, there shall no rasure come apon hys heed: But vntyll hys dayes be out, in the which he separateth hym selfe vnto the Lorde, he shalbe holy, and shall let the lockes of hys heere growe. As longe as he consecrateth hym selfe vnto the Lorde, he shall come at no deed bodye: he shall not make hym selfe vncleane at the death of hys father, mother, brother or syster: because that the vowe of the abstinence of hys God is vpon hys head. All the dayes of hys abstinence he is holy vnto the Lorde.

¶ And yf it fortune that any man by chance dye sodenly before hym, the heed of hys abstinence shalbe defyled, and he shall * haue hys heed tye dave of hys clesynge: euen the seuenth dave he shall haue it. And the eyght dave he shall byynge two turtels or two yonge pigeons to the Preakste, before the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Preakste shall offer the one for synne and the other for a burnt offeringe, and make an attonement for hym, as concernynge that he synned vpon a soule, and shall halowe hys heed the same dave, and he shall consecrate hym selfe vnto the Lorde (y tyme of hys abstinence) and shall byynge a lambe of a yere olde for trespace: but the dayes that were before are lost, because hys abstinence was defyled. Thys is the lawe of the absteiner, when the tyme of hys abstinence is out, he shalbe broughte vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall byynge hys offeringe vnto the Lorde: an he lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for a burnt offeringe, and a she lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for synne, a ram wythout blemyshe also for a peace offeringe, and a basket of swete bzeed, eue cakes of fyne floure myngled with oyle, and wafers of swete bzead anoynted wyth oyle wyth their meat offeringes and drynke offeringes.

¶ And the Preakste shall byynge hym before the Lorde, and offer hys syn offeringe and his burnt offeringe, and shall offer the ram for a peace offeringe vnto the Lorde, wyth the basket of swete bzeed, and the Preakste shall offer also his meat offeringe and his drynke offeringe. And he shall haue the heed of the absteiner in the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse: euen the heed of his abstinence, and shall take the heed of his sober heed, and put it in the fyze, which is vnder the peace offeringe. And the preaste shall take the sodden shoulder of the ram, and one swete cake out of the basket, and one swete wafers also, and put them vpon the handes of the absteiner (after he hath shaued his abstinence of) and the Preakste shall * (take them of hym, and) waue the before the Lorde. And these holy thynges shall be the prestes, wyth the wauebrest and heue shoulder: and then the absteiner maye drynke wyne. Thys is the lawe of the absteiner whych hath vowed his offeringe vnto the Lorde for his consecracyn: Besydes those thynges that hys hande can gett, accordynge to the vowe whych he vowed, euen so he must do after the lawe of hys abstinence.

¶ And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto Aron and his sonnes sayinge: of thys wyse ye shall blesse the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them.

The Lorde blesse the, and kepe the.

The Lorde * make hys face wyne vpo the, and be mercifull vnto the.

The Lorde * lyfte yf countenance vpo the, and geue the peace. And they shall put my name vpon the chyldren of Israel, and I wyll blesse them.

The. vii. Chapter.

The offeringe of the Lorde & breades of Israel.

¶ And it fortuneth in y dave, when * Moyses had full sett vp the habitacyn & anoynted it & sanctified it, & all y apparell thereof, the alter also and all the vessels thereof: and had anointed them & sanctified them, then the princes of Israel beedes ouer the houses of their fathers whych were the Lordes of the trybes, stondynge in their offices, offered & brought their sacrifices before y Lorde: syre couered charettes x. iij. oxen: one charret for two Lordes, & for one, an ore, & they broughte them before the habitacyn.

¶ And y Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge take it of them, that they maye be to do the seruice of the tabernacle of wytnesse, & thou shalt geue them vnto the Leuites, to euery man accordynge vnto his offyce. And Moyses toke the charettes & the oxen, & gaue them vnto the Leuites. ij. charettes &. iij. oxen he gaue vnto the sonnes of Serlon accordynge vnto their office. And. iij. charettes & eyght oxen he gaue vnto the sonnes of Merari (accordynge vnto their offices) vnder the hāde of Ithamar the sonne of Aron the Preakste. * But vnto the sonnes of Cahath he gaue none.

none, because they had upon them the offering of holy thynges, whych they dyd beare upon shoulters.

¶ And the pynces offered for the dedycation of the altar (in the daye that it was anoynted) and brought theyr sacrifices before the altar. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: The pynces shall brynge theyr offeringes, euery daye one pynce, for the dedycation of the altar.

The. liij. Chapter.

The order of the lampes. The forme of the candlestick. The clearyng & offeringe of the Leuites.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron, and saye vnto hym: when thou putttest on the lampes, the same ient lampes shall geue lyght towarde the forefront of the candlesticke. And Aaron dyd euen so, and lyghted the lampes towarde the forefront of the candlesticke, as the Lorde commaunded Moses, and the worke of the candlesticke was of sylfe golde, both the shaft and the floures thereof: accordinge vnto the visyō whiche the Lord had shewed Moses euen so he made the candlesticke.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Israel, and cleanse them. But thou shalt thou do vnto them, when thou cleansest the: spraye water of purifyng vpon them, and let them make a rasure to runne alonge vpon all the fleshe of them, and let them washe their clothes, and so make themselves cleane. Then let them take a bullocke with his meatofferynge: eue fyne flour myngled with oyle: and another bullocke shalt thou take for synne.

And when thou dost brynge the Leuites before the tabernacle of wytnesse, thou shalt gather the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel together, and brynge the Leuites before the Lorde, and the chyldren of Israel shall put their handes vpon the Leuites. And Aaron shall waue the Leuites before the Lorde, for a waueofferynge of the chyldren of Israel, that they maye execute the mystryng of the seruyce of the Lorde.

And the Leuites shall put their handes vpon the herdes of the bullockes, and thou shalt offer the one for synne, and the other for a burntofferynge vnto the Lorde, that thou mayest make an attonement for the Leuites. And

tes. And thou shalt set y^e Levites before Aaron and his sonnes, & waue them for a waue offerynge before the Lorde. And thus thou shalt separate the Levites from amonge the chyliden of Israel, and the Levites shall be myne: after that, shall the Levites go in, to do the scrupce of the tabernacle of wytnesse.
And thou shalt cleanse them and waue the,
for they are geuen and deliuered vnto me from amonge the chyliden of Israel, for such as open euery wombe: eue for the fyrst bozne of all the chyliden of Israel haue I taken the vnto me.

* Num. 1. 11.
Leu. 1. 11.

* For all the fyrst bozne of the chyliden of Israel are myne both man and beest: send the daye that I smote euery fyrst bozne in y^e lande of Egypte, I sanctified them for my selfe: and I haue taken the Levites for all the fyrst bozne of the chyliden of Israel, and haue geuen the Levites as a gyfte vnto Aaron & his sonnes from amonge the chyliden of Israel, to do the scrupce of the chyliden of Israel in the Tabernacle of wytnesse, to make an attonement for the chyliden of Israel, that there be no plage amonge the chyliden of Israel, yf the chyliden of Israel come nye vnto the holy thynges.

And Moses and Aaron and all the congregacyon of the chyliden of Israel dyd with the Levites, accordynge vnto all that the Lorde commaunded Moses concernynge the Levites: euen so dyd the chyliden of Israel vnto them. And the Levites were purifyed, and washed their clothes. And Aaron wa-ued them before the Lorde, and made an attonement for them, and cleansed them. After that went the Levites in to do theyr scrupce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, before Aaron and his sonnes: as the Lorde had commaunded Moses to concernynge the Levites, eue so they dyd vnto them.

* Num. 1. 11.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: thus is it that belongeth vnto the Leui-tes: * from xxv. yere vnto the age of fyfte yeare, they shall craffe waytyng vpon the seruice therof, & shall serue no moare: but shall mynstre vnto theyr brethren in the tabernacle of wytnesse, to wayte, but shall do no moare scrupce. Thus therfore shalt thou do vnto the Levites in their watche.

The xiiij. Chapter.

The passouer. Of the cloude.

* Num. 1. 11.
Leu. 1. 11.
Deu. 1. 11.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in y^e wyldernesse of Synay, in the fyrste moneth of the secode yere, after they were come out of the lande of Egypte, sayinge:
let the chyliden of Israel offer Passeouer in hys season: eue the xiiij. daye of thys moneth

at euen let them kepe it in hys season, accor-dyng to all the ceremonies of it, and accor-dyng to all the maners therof. And Moses spake vnto the chyliden of Israel, that they shulde offer Passeouer, and they offered Passeouer the xiiij. daye of the fyrst moneth at euen in y^e wyldernesse of Synay: accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.
euen so dyd the chyliden of Israel.

And certayne men were despyled by the soule of a man, that they myght not offer Passeouer the same daye. And they came before Moses and Aaron the same daye. And y^e men sayde vnto hym: We are despyled vpon y^e soule of a man: wherfore are we kepte backe, that we maye not offer an offerynge vnto the Lorde in the due season, amonge y^e chyliden of Israel? And Moses sayde vnto the: Stand still, & I wyll heare what the Lorde will co-maunde concernynge you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto y^e chyliden of Israel and saye: If any man amonge you or youre chyliden after you be vncleane by the reason of a carse, or is in the waye farre from you, and will offer Passeouer vnto the Lorde: the xiiij. daye of the secode mo-neth at eue let them offer it, and eate it with swete bredd and iowre herbes: let them leane none of it vnto the moorninge: * nor breake any bone of it: But accordynge to all the ordynaunce of the Passeouer let them offer it.

* Num. 1. 11.
Leu. 1. 11.

But the man that is cleane and is not in a iourney, & yet was negligēt to offer Passeouer: the same soule shall pryncipe from hys people, because he brought not the offerynge of the Lorde in hys due season: that man shall bere hys synne. And yf a straunger dwell amonge you, and wyl offer Passeouer vnto the Lorde, accordynge to the ordinaunce of Passeouer and maner therof, he shall offer it thus: Ye shall haue one lawe both for y^e stranger, and for hym that was bozne at home in the lande.

And the same daye that the Tabernacle was reared vp, a cloude couered the habitacyon, whych was as a tabernacle of the wytnesse: and at euen there was vpon the habitacyon, as it were the similitude of fyre vnto the moorninge. So it was alwaye, the cloude couered it by daye, and the similitude of fyre by nyghte. And when the cloude was taken vp fro the tabernacle, then the chyl-den of Israel iourneyed: and where the cloude abode there the chyliden of Israel pitched theyr tentes. At the mouth of the Lorde the chyliden of Israel iourneyed, and at the mouth of the Lorde they ptyched. And as loge as the cloude abode vpon the habitacyon they laye still: and when the cloude tarped vpon the habitacyon longe tyme, the chyliden of Israel kepte the watche of the Lorde, and iourneyed not.

And

And it chaunced y^e whā the cloude abode
a few dayes vpon the habitacyon, they abode in their tentes, accordynge to the commaunde-ment of the Lorde: and they iourneyed also at the commaundment of the Lorde. And it happened that whā the cloude abode vpon the habitacyon fro euen vnto the moorninge, and was take vp in that moorninge, then they iourneyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyght that the cloude was take vp, they iourneyed.
Or yf the cloude tarped two dayes or a mo-neth, or a longe ceason vpon the habitacyon, and remayned thereon, the chyliden of Israel abode still, and iourneyed not. And as sone as the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. At the mouth of the Lorde, they rested in the tetes, and at the commaundment of the Lorde, they iourneyed, keeping y^e watche of the Lorde, at the commaundment of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

The x. Chapter.

The trompettes of siluer. The Israelites departe from Sinai. The captaynes of the host are nombred.
Hobab refuseth to go with Moses.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Make the two trompettes of siluer: of an whole peece shalt thou make the, y^e thou mayst vie them to call the congregacyon together, and when the hoost shall iourneye. Therfore shall they blowe with the, that all the multitude maye reioyce to the before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And yf they blowe but one trompet, then the princes which are heedes ouer y^e thousandes of Israel shall come vnto the. But yf ye trompe, the hostes y^e lye on the east partes shall go forwarde. And ye trompe the second tyme, the hoost y^e lyeth on the south syde shall take their iourneye: for they shall trompe when they take their iour-neyes. But when the congregacion is to be gathered together, they shall blowe only, and not trôpe. And the sonnes of Aaron y^e pzeast shal blowe wth their trôpettes, & ye shall haue the as a lawe for euer in your generacions.

And yf ye go to warre in your lāde against your enemyes that were you, ye shall blowe with the trompettes: and ye shall be remembered before the Lorde your God, to be saued from your enemyes. Also in the daye of your gladnes, and in your feaste dayes, and in the begynning of your monethes, ye shall blowe the trompettes ouer your burnt sacrificies & peaceoffringes, that they maye be a remembraunce for you before youre God. I am the Lorde your God.

And it came to passe the twētyth daye of the second moneth in the second yere, that y^e cloude was taken vp from the habitacyon of wytnesse. And the chyliden of Israel toke their iourney out of the desert of Sinai, & the cloude rested in the wyldernesse of Pharan.

And the fyrst toke their iourney at the mouth of the Lorde, by the hande of Moses. In the first place went the standart of the hooste of Iuda, accordynge to their armies, whose captayne was Nahasson the sonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoost of the tribe of y^e chil-den of Issachar, was Nathanel the sonne of zuar. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyliden of Zabulon, was Eliab the sonne of Helon. And the habitacyon was take dow-ne: and the sonnes of Serlon & Herari went forth bearyng the habitacyon.

And the hoost of Ruben went forth with y^e their standart and armyes, whose captayne was Eluzar the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyliden of Simeon was Salamiel the sonne of Suri. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of y^e chyl-den of Gad was Eliasaph the sonne of De-guel. The Gabahtites also went forwarde and bare the sanctuarye, & and the other dyd set vp the habitacyon agaynst they came.
And the standart of the hoost of the chyliden of Ephraim went forth accordynge to theyr armyes, whose captayne was Elisama the sonne of Amiad. And ouer the hoost of the tribe of the sonnes of Manasse, was Samaliel the sonne of Debazur. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the sonnes Ben Iamin was Abidan the sonne of Sedecom.

And the standart of the hoost of the chyl-den of Dan came forth (hauing all the hostes together) thowout their armyes: whose captayne was Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi-Saddai. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyliden of Aser, was Pagiel the sonne of Ochram. And ouer the hoost of the trybe of the chyliden of Rephail, was Ahira y^e sonne of Enā. These are the iourneys of the chyl-den of Israel thowout theyr armyes: and thus the hoostes remoued.

And Moses sayde vnto Hobab the sonne of Raguel the Midianite: which was Moses father in lawe: we go vnto the place of which the Lorde sayd: I wyll geue it you.
Come thou therfore with vs, & we wyll do the good: for the Lorde hath promysed good vnto Israel. And he answered hym: I wyll not go: but will departe to myne awne land and to my kynred. He sayde: Whynaye, leane vs not: for thou knowest oure mansions in the wyldernesse: and thou hast bene to vs in steade of eyes. And yf thou go with vs loke what goodnesse the Lorde sheweth vnto vs, the same wyll we shewe vnto the.

And they departed from the mount of the Lorde, the dayes iourney: and the arke of the testament of the Lorde went before them in the thre dayes iourneye, to serche oute a re-styng place for them. And the Lorde made a shadowe for the thowowe the cloude by day, when they went out of the tentes.

Jo. Ibiis,

And it fortuned, that whā the arch went forth, Moyses sayde: * Ryle vp Lorde, and let thynne enemyes be scattered: and let them that hate the, flye before the. And when the arch rested, he sayde: Returne O Lorde vnto the many thousandes of Israel.

The .xii. Chapter.

The people murmured. They desired flesh. They loathed manna. The wauncing fapth of Moyses. The Lord beareth the burden of Moyses to seueren of the sun: spentes, and they prophesie. He rapeth quayles. The fild rauens are punished.

And it fortuned, y whan * the people dyd wykedlye, it was a dyspleasure in the eares of the Lord. And whē the Lord heard it, his countenance was prouoked to wrath, & the fier of the Lord burnt among the, & consumed the y were the vttemost of y hoost. And y people cried vnto Moyses. And whā Moyses made intercessio vnto y Lord, y fier quēched. And y name of y place was called y Chaberah, because y fier of the Lord burnt among them.

And the rascall people that was amonge them, fell a lustyng, and turned them selues and wepte: euen as dyd also the chyldren of Israel: and sayde: who shall geue vs flesh to cate? we remembre the fysh which we dyd cate in Egypt for naught, & the Cucumbers, and melons, lkes, onyons & garleke. But nowe oure soule is dryed awaye, for we can se nothyng els, saue Manna.

The manna was as * coriander seed, and (to se to) lyke Bedellid. And the people wēt about and gathered it, and groude it in milles, or bet it in morters, and baked it in panes, and made cakes of it. And the tast of it was like vnto the tast of an oyle cake. And whan the dewe fell downe vpon the hooste in the nyght, the Manna fell vpon it.

And whan Moyses herde the people wepe thozowout theyr householdes, eury mā in y doze of his tent, y face of the Lord was prouoked vnto wrath exceedingly: & it greued Moyses also. And Moyses sayde vnto the Lord: wherfore hast thou dealt cruelly with thy seruaut? And wherfore haue I not found fauour in thy syght, seying that thou puttest the weyght of all this people vpon me: haue I concealed all this people? Or haue I begottē the: hat y shuldest saye vnto me: caste them in thy bolome (as a nurse beareth the sucke) vnto the lande, which thou swarest vnto their fathers: where shulde I haue fleshe, to geue vnto all this people, which wepe before me, saying: geue vs flesh that we maye cate? I am not able to beare all this people alone, seying it is to heuy for me. If thou deale thus with me, kyll me, I praye the, yf I haue founde fauour in thy syght, that I se not my wretchednes.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses, * gather vnto me. Ixx. mē of the elders of Israel, which thou knowest, that they are y elders of the people and officers ouer the: and thou shalt byng the vnto the tabernacle of witness, that they maye stande there with the: And I will come downe, and talke with the there, and take of the sprete which is vpon the, and put vpo them, and they shall beare the burthen of the people with the, lest thou be constrained to beare it alone.

And saye thou vnto the * people: be halowed agaynst tomorowe, and ye shall cate flesh: for your whynnyng is in the eares of the Lord, seing ye sayd: who shall geue vs flesh to cate? we were happye in Egypt: therfore the Lord wyll geue you flesh, and ye shall cate. Ye shall not cate one daye nor two, nor fyue dayes, neyther ten, nor twenty dayes: but euen a moneth longe, vntyll it come out at the nactrels of you: and make you to par-braike, because that ye haue cast the Lord a-lyde which is amonge you: and haue wepte before hym, saying: why came we thus oute of Egypt?

And Moyses sayde: * spre hundred thousande foemen are there of the people, among which I am. And thou hast sayd: I wyll geue them flesh, that they maye cate a moneth lōge. Shall the shepe & the ore be slayne for them, to fynde them? ether, shall all the fysh of the see be gathered together for the to serue them? And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: Shall * the Lordes hande be waxed shorter? Thou shalt se nowe whither my word shall come to passe vnto the, or not.

And Moyses went out, and tolde the people the saying of the Lord, and gathered the lxx. elders of the people, and set them rounde aboute the tabernacle. And the Lord came downe in a cloude, and spake vnto hym, and toke of the sprete that was vpon hym, and gaue it vnto the lxx. elders. And it fortuned that when the sprete rested vpon them, they apphied, & did not cease. But there remayned two of the men in the hoost: the name of the one was Eldad, and the name of y other Medad. And the sprete rested vpon them, and they were of them that were wypten, and went not out vnto the tabernacle, but prophesied in the hoost. And there ran a pōg man, and tolde Moyses and sayd: Eldad and Medad do prophesye in the hooste. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruaut of Moyses * one of hys yonge men, answered & sayde: master Moyses, * forbyd them. And Moyses sayde vnto hym: enuyest thou for my sake? * wolde God y all the Lordes people coulde prophesye, and that the Lord wold put hys sprete vpon them. And Moyses gat him into the hoost, he and the elders of Israel.

And there went forth a wynde from the Lord: and * brought quayles from the see: and let

and let the fall about the hoost, euen a daies tozney rounde about on eury syde of y hoost, and * they dyd fynde in the apye as it were two cubites hye ouer the erth. And the people stode vp, and all that day and all y nyght, and on the morowe they gathered quayles. And he that gathered a lytle, gathered ten homers ful. And they spred them abroad rounde aboute the hoost. * And whyle the flesh was yet betwene their teeth, and yet it was chewed vp: beholde, the countenance of the Lord was moued agaynst y people, & the Lord * slewe the people with an exceedynge great plague. And the name of the place was called, the graues of lust, because they buryed the people that lusted, there. And the people toke their * tozneye from the graues of lust vnto Hazeroth, and bode at Hazeroth.

The .xii. Chapter.

Aaron & Mir Jam grudge agaynst Moyses. Mir Jam is stricken with leprosy, and healed at the prayer of Moyses.

And * Mir Jam and Aaron spake agaynst Moyses, because of y woman of Jude which he had taken: for he had taken to wyfe one of Jude. And they sayde: hath the Lord in dede spoken only thozow Moyses: hath he not spokē also by vs? And the Lord hearde it. But Moyses was a very * meke mā, aboue all the men of the earth. And the Lord spake at once vnto Moyses vnto Aaron and to Mir Jam: come out ye thre vnto * the tabernacle of witness, and they came out all thre.

And the Lord came downe in the * pyl-ler of the cloude, and stode in the * doze of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Mir Jam: And they went out both of the. And he said: heare my wordes. If there be a prophete of the Lordes amonge you, I wyll knowe of him in a visyō: and wyll speake vnto him in slepe. My seruaut Moyses is not so, which is faithfull in all myne house. Vnto him wil I speake * mouth to mouth in a visyō: but in rydels and symplitudes both not he se the Lord. Wherfore then were ye not afrayed to speake agaynst my seruaut Moyses? And the Lord was moued vnto wrath agaynst them, and he went his waye: and the cloude departed from the tabernacle. And beholde, Mir Jam was become * leprous, as it were snowe. And Aaron looked vpon Mir Jam, and beholde, she was leprous, and Aaron sayde vnto Moyses: I beseech the my Lord, put not the synne vpon vs, which we haue folishly commytted and spined. Oh, let her not be as one that commeth out of hys mothers wombe, and whose halfe flesh is eaten awaye.

And Moyses cryed vnto the Lord, saying: Heale her, O God, I beseeche the. And the Lord sayde vnto Moyses: If her father had spyt in her face, shulde she not be ashamed seuen dayes? let her be shutte out of the hoost seuen dayes, and after that, let her be receaued in agayne. And Mir Jam was shut out of the hoost seuen dayes: and the people remoued not, tyll she was brought in agayne. * And after ward the people remoued from Hazeroth, and pitched in the wyldernes of Pharan.

The .xii. Chapter.

Certaine men are sent to searche the lande of Canaan. Ad the Lord spake vnto Moyses saying: * Send me out to searche the lande of Canaan, which I geue vnto the chyldren of Israel: of eury trybe of their fathers shall ye sende a man, and let them all be suche as are rulers among them. And Moyses at the commaundement of the Lord sent forth out of the wyldernes of Pharan suche men as were all heades of the chyldren of Israel: Their names are these.

Of the trybe of Ruben, Sammua the sonne of zacur. Of the trybe of Symeon, Saphat the sonne of hazi. Of the trybe of Iuda, Caleb the sonne of Iephune. Of the trybe of Iachar, Igeal the sonne of Joseph. Of the tribe of Ephraim, Osea the sonne of Nun. Of y trybe of Ben Jamin, Palathi the sonne of Raphu. Of the trybe of Zabulon, Gadiel the sonne of Sodi. Of the tribe of Ioseph, namelpe of the trybe of Manasse, Gaddi the sonne of Sufi. Of the trybe of Dan, Amiel the sonne of Gemali. Of the trybe of Aser, Sethur the sonne of Michael. Of the trybe of Nephthali, Nahbi the sonne of Naphsi. Of the trybe of Gad, Gueli the sonne of Machi. These are the names of the men, which Moyses sent to spye oute the lande. And Moyses called the name of Osea the sonne of Nun, Josua.

And Moyses sent them forth to spye oute the lande of Canaan, and sayde vnto them: get you vp thys waye southwarde, that ye maye go vp into the hye contrey, and se the lande what maner thyng it is, & the people that dwelleth therein: whyther they be stroge or weake, ether fewe or many, and what the lande is y they dwell in, whyther it be good or bad: and what maner of cyties they be, y they dwell in, whyther they dwell in tentes or walled townes: and what maner of lāde it is: whether it be fat or leane, and whether there be trees therein or not. Be of a good courage, and bynge of the frute of the lande: And it was about the tyme that grapes are fyrst ripe.

And so they went vp, & searched out the lande from the wilderness of zin vnto Rehob, as men come to hemath, & they ascended vnto the south, and came vnto Hebzon, where Abinā was & Seclai & Chalmāni, y the sonnes

the sonnes of Enack. Iherozon was buylt seven yere before Enack in Egypt. And they came vnto Iherozon of Escol, and cut downe there a braynch with one cloustre of grapes and twayne bare it vpon a staffe: and they brought also of the pomegranates and of the figges. And the place was called Iherozon: because of the cloustre of grapes which the children of Israel cut downe thence.

And they turned back agayne from Iherozon of the lande after forty dayes. And they went and came to Moyses and Aaron, and vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, in the wilderness of Pharan: which is Cadis, and brought them worde. And also vnto all the congregacion, and shewed the frute of the lande. And they tolde hym, and sayde: we came vnto the lande whether thou sendest vs, and surely it floweth with mylke and honye: and here is of the frute of it. Neuerthelesse, the people be stronge that dwell in the lande, and the cityes are walled and excedynge greate: and moreover, we sawe the chyldren of Enack there. The Amaleckites dwell in the south contrey, and the Hethites, Jebusites, & the Amozites dwell in the mountaynes, & the Cananites dwell by the see, and by the coaste of Iordan.

And Caleb spyled the people that was sent vnto the lande before Moyses, saying: we will go vnto, and conquerre it: for we be able to overcome it. But the men that went vnto with hym, sayde: We be not able to go vnto against the people: for they are stronger than we. And they brought vnto an euell repozte of the lande which they had searched, saying vnto the children of Israel: The land which we haue gone thowowe to searche it out, is a lande that eateth vnto the inhabitants thereof: and the people that we sawe in it, are men of a greate stature. And there we sawe also gyautes, the chyldren of Enack, which come of the gyautes. And we seemed in our sight as it were grechoppers, and so we did in theyr sight.

The xiiij. Chapter.

The people murmur agaynst God, and wolde haue stoned Caleb & Josue. The searchers of the lande speake Amalech killeth the Israelites.

And all the multitude of the people cryed out, and wepte thowout that nyght, and all the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moyses and Aaron.

And the whole congregacion sayde vnto them: wolde God that we had dyed in the lande of Egypt, either that we had dyed in this wilderness. Wherefore hath the Lorde brought vs vnto this lande to fall vpon the swerde: and that our wyues, and our children shulde be a praye vnto them: where it is not better, that we retourne vnto Egypte agayne? And they sayde one to another: we will make a captayne, and retourne vnto Egypt agayne.

But Moyses and Aaron fell on theyr faces before all the congregacion and multitude of the chyldren of Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, and Caleb the sonne of Iephune (which were of them that searched the lande) rent theyr clothes, and spake vnto all the companie of the chyldren of Israel, saying: The lande which we walked thowowe to searche it, is a very good lande. If the Lorde hath lust to vs, he will bringe vs into this lande and geue it vs, which is such a lande as floweth with mylke and honye. But in any wyse rebell not ye agaynst the Lorde. Neither nede ye to feare the people of the lande: for they are but bread for vs. The shadowe is departed from them, and the Lorde is with vs, feare them not therefore.

But all they which were in that multitude, bade stone them with stones. And the glorie of the Lorde appeared in the tabernacle of witness, before all the chyldren of Israel. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: How longe do this people prouoke me, and howe longe will it be vnto they beleue me: for all the signes which I haue shewed among them, I will smyte them with the pestilence and destroye them: and will make of them a greater nacion and a myghtier then they.

And Moyses sayde vnto the Lorde: then the Egyptians shall heare it, for thou broughtest this people in thy myght from amonge them. And it will be tolde to the inhabitants of this lande also: for they haue hearde thy word, that thou Lorde art amonge this people: and that thou Lorde art sene face to face, and that thy cloude standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them by daye tyme in a pyller of a cloude, and in a pyller of fyre by nyght. If thou shalt kyll all this people as they were but one man, then the nacions which haue heard the fame of thee, will saye: The Lorde is not able to bringe in this people into the lande which he swore vnto them: but hath slayne them in the wilderness.

And nowe I beseeche thee, let the power of my Lorde be greate, according as thou hast spoken, saying: the Lorde is longe yere be angrie, and full of mercy, and suffereth iniquitie, and synne, and leaueth no man innocent, and visiteth the vncyphousnesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, in the third and fourth generacion: be mercifull I beseeche thee vnto the synne of this people, according as thou hast forgiven this people from Egypt, euen vntill nowe.

And the Lorde sayde: I haue forgiven it.

it, according to thy request. But as truly as I lyue, all the earth shall be fylled with the glorie of the Lorde. But all those men which haue sene my glorie and my miracles which I dyd in Egypt and in the wilderness and haue tempted me nowe this x. tymes, and will not hearken vnto my voyce, shall not see the lande which I swore vnto their fathers: neither shall any of them that prouoked me see it. But my seruant Caleb: with whom there was another maner of spete: and because he hath folowed me vnto the vtmost, hym will I bringe into the lande which he hath walked in, and his seed shall inheret it, and also the Amalekites & Cananites which dwell in the playne contrey. Tomorrow turne you, and get you into the wilderness: euen by the waye of the redd see.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses & Aaron, saying: howe longe doth this euell multitude murmur agaynst me? I haue heard the murmurings of the chyldren of Israel with the which they murmur agaynst me. Tell them therefore: As truly as I lyue (sayth the Lorde) I will do vnto you, euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares. Your carcases shall lye in this wilderness. And all you that were tolde thowout your nombres, from xx. yere and aboue (which haue murmured agaynst me) shall not come into the land, ouer which I sware vnto myne hande, to make you dwell therein, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

But your children which ye saye shulde be a praye, them I will bring in, & they shall knowe the land which ye haue refused, and your carcases shall lye in this wilderness. And your children shall wander in this wilderness xl. yeres, & suffer for your whoredom, vntill your carcases be wasted in the wilderness, after the nombre of the dayes in which ye searched out the lande euen forty dayes, & euery daye for a yere shall ye beare your vncyphousnesse euen xl. yere, and ye shall knowe my displeasure. If the Lorde haue sayde that I will do it vnto all this euell congregacion that are gathered together agaynst me. For in this wilderness they shall be consumed, and here they shall dye.

And the men which Moyses sent to search the lande, & which (when they came agayne) made all the people to murmur before hym, and brought vnto a sleaender vpon the lande, euen those men that did bring vnto that sleaender vpon it, as though it had bene euell dyed in a greate plague before the Lorde. But Josua the sonne of Nun & Caleb the sonne of Iephune which were of the men that wente to search the lande, lyued still. And Moyses tolde these sayings vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and the people toke great sorowe.

And they rose vnto early in the morninge, and gat them vnto the toppe of the mountayne, saying: * lo, we be here, and will go vnto the place of which the Lorde sayde vnto vs, for we haue synned. And Moyses sayde: wherefore will ye go on this maner, beyond the worde of the Lorde: it will not come well to passe: go not vnto therefore: (for the Lorde is not amonge you) that ye be not slayne before your enemyes. For the Amalekites and the Cananites are there before you, and ye will fall vpon the swerde, because ye are turned awaye fro the Lorde, and the Lorde will not be with you.

But they presumed obstinately to go vnto the hyll top. Neuerthelesse, the arch of the testament of the Lorde, and Moyses departed not out of the host. When the Amalekites and the Cananites which dwell in that hyll, came downe, and smote them, and bewed them euen vnto Hozma.

The xv. Chapter.

The dyynckofferings of them that enter into the lande. The punishment of hym that synneth of arrogancye of pride.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, saying: speake vnto the children of Israel and saye vnto them: * when ye be come in to the lande of your habitacions, which I geue vnto you, & will offer an offering vnto the Lorde. Namely, a burnt offering of a speciall sacrifice, cyther of a vowe or of a willinge mynde, and in your princypall feastes, to make a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, of the oren of the flocke.

Then * lett hym that offereth his offering vnto the Lorde, bring also a meate offering of a tenth deale of flour, myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of oyle, & a fourth part of an hin of wyne for a dyynck offering, and offer with the burnt offering or any other offering: when it is a lambe. Or if it be a ram, thou shalt offer for a meate offering, two tenth deales of flour, myngled with the fourth part of an hin of oyle: and for a dyynck offering, thou shalt offer the fourth parte of an hin of wyne for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

And when thou offerest a bullocke for a burnt offering or for a speciall vowe or peace offering vnto the Lorde, let him bring with a bullocke a meate offering of .iij. tenth deales of flour myngled with halfe an hin of oyle. And thou shalt bring for a dyynck offering euen halfe an hin of wyne, for an offering of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. After this maner, shall it be done for an ox, or for a ram, or for a labe or a kyd. Like what nomber thou makest in these, such a nomber shalt thou make in the also. And according to the nomber of suche offerings, thou shalt increase the meate offerings and the dyynck offerings.

All that are of your selues shall do these thinges after this maner, to offer an offering of swete sauour vnto the Lorde. And yf a straunger soggozne with you, or whoso euer be amonge you in your generaciōs, and will offer an offering of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde: euen as ye do, so he shall do. One ordinaunce shall be both for you of the congregacion, and also for the straunger. It shall be an ordinaunce for euer in your generaciōs, both vnto you and to the straunger before the Lorde. One lawe and one maner shall serue, both for you and for the straunger that soggozeth with you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: * When ye become into the lande to the which I bring you, then whē ye will eate of the bread of the lande, ye shall take vp an heueoffering vnto the Lorde. Ye shall take vp a cake of the fyist of your dow for an heue offering, * as ye do the heueoffering of the barne, euen so ye shall heue it. Of the fyist of your dowe ye shall geue vnto the Lorde an heueoffering in your generaciōs.

And yf ye ouersee your selues, and obserue not all these commaundementes, which the Lorde hath spoken vnto Moses: euen all that the Lorde hath commaunded you by the hande of Moses, from the fyist daie that the Lorde commaunded Moses, and hence forwarde amonge your generaciōs. Yf it happen that ought is commytted ignorantely of the congregacion, all the multitude shall offer a bullocke for a burnt offering, to be a swete sauour vnto the Lorde, with the meat offering and bypuck offering thereto, according to the maner, and an hegoate for synne. And the preast shall make an atonement for all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and it shall be forgiven them: for it is ignorance. And they shall bypunge theyr offering for a sacrifice vnto the Lorde: & theyr synofferynge before the Lorde for their ignorance. And it shall be forgiven vnto all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonge you: seinge all the people were in ignorance.

* If any one soule synne thozow ignorance, he shall bypunge a she goate of a yere olde for synne. And the preaste shall make an atonement for the soule that synned ignorantly, with the synneofferynge before the Lorde to reconcile hym: and that it maye be forgiven hym. And both thou that art borne of the chyldren of Israel and the straunger that dwelleth amonge you, shall haue both one lawe, whoso doeth synne thozowe ignorance.

But the soule that doeth ought presumptuously, whether he be an Israelite or a straunger, the same blasphemeth the Lorde.

And that soule shall be rote out from among his people, because he hath despyed the word of the Lorde, and hath broken bys commaundement, that soule therfore shall perishe, and his synne shall be vpon him.

And whyle the chyldren of Israel were in the wyldernesse, they founde a man that gathered styckes vpon the * Sabbath daye. And they that founde him gatherynge styckes, brought hym vnto Moses and Aaron and vnto all the congregacion: * and they put him inwarde, seying it was not declared what shulde be done vnto him. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Let the man die: and let all the multitude stone him with stones without the hoost. And all the multitude brought him without the hoost, & stoned him with stones, and he dyed as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and byd them: that they * make them gardes in the quarters of theyr garmentes thozow out their generaciōs, and put vpon the garde of the quarters a ryband of yelow sylke. And the garde shall be vnto you to loke vpon it, that ye maye remembre all the commaundementes of the Lorde, and do them: and that ye like not after your awne hert or your awne eyes: after the which ye vse to go a whooring: but ye shall remembre rather and do all my commaundementes, and be holy vnto your God: I am the Lorde your God, which broughte you oute of the lande of Egypte, for to be your God. I am the Lorde your God.

The .xvi. Chapter.

The rebellion of Cozab, Dathan and Abiram.

And * Cozab the sonne of Iezabab the sonne of Cabath the sonne of Leui, and Dathan & Abiram the sonne of Elab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben: rose vp before Moses, with other men of the chyldren of Israel, two hundred and fiftye, which were captaynes of the multitude great and famous men in the congregacion: & they gathered them selues together agaynst Moses and Aaron, & sayde vnto vnto them: ye make moche to do, seynge all the multitude are holy euerie one of the, and the Lorde is amonge them: Why beaue ye your selues vp above the congregacion of the Lorde?

And when Moses heard it, he fell vpon his face, and spake vnto Cozab and vnto all his company, saying: to morowe the Lorde will shewe who are his, who is holy, & who ought to appoche vnto him, and whom he hath chosen to come to him. This do therfore, take you sypcrpannes, both Cozab and all his company and do sypcr therein, and put censin in them before the Lorde to morowe. And the man whom the Lorde doth chose, the same shall be holy. Ye make much to do, ye chyldren of Leui.

And Moses sayde vnto Cozab: * heare ye chyldren of Leui: Is it but a small thinge vnto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the multitude of Israel: and brought you to him selfe, to do the scrupce of the dwelling place of the Lorde, and to stāde before the multitude, and to minystre vnto him: he hath take the to him and all thy brethren the sonnes of Leui with the, and seke ye the offyce of the preaste also. For which cause both thou and all thy company are gathered together agaynst the Lorde: And what is Aaron, that ye murmur agaynst him?

And Moses sent, and called Dathā and Abiram the sonnes of Elab, which sayde: we wyl not come vp. Is it a small thyng, that thou hast brought vs oute of a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, to kyll vs in the wildernes, and to raygne ouer vs also? Hast thou brought vs vnto a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, and geuen vs inheritance of feldest and vyneyardes? Wilt thou pull out the eyes of these men: we wyl not come vp.

And Moses waxed very angry, & sayde vnto the Lorde. Turne not thou vnto theyr offering. I haue not taken so muche as an asse from them, neyther haue I hurte any of them. And Moses sayde vnto Cozab: Be thou and all thy company before the Lorde both thou, they, and Aaron to morowe. And take euery man his censel, and put censin in them, that ye maye offre before the Lorde: euery man of the two hundred and fiftye take his censeloure, thou also Aaron, that euery one maye haue his censel. And they toke euery man his censel, and put sypcr in them, and layed cens theron, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle of witnesse with Moses and Aaron. And Cozab gathered all the congregacion agaynst them vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witnesse.

And the glozy of the Lorde appeared vnto all the congregacion. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, saying: separate your selues from amonge this congregacion, that I maye consume them atonce. And they fell vpon their faces and sayde. * O most myghty God of the spertes of all fleshe, yf one man hath synned, wylt thou be wroth with all the multitude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: speake vnto the congregacion and saye: Get you awaye from about the dwelling of Cozab, Dathan and Abiram. And Moses rose vp, and went vnto Dathan and Abirā, and the elders of Israel followed him. And he spake vnto the congregacion, saying: departe from the tentes of these wicked men, and touche nothing of theirs: lest ye perishe in all their synnes. And so they gate them from the dwelling of Cozab, Dathan and Abirā on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came out and stode in the doore of their tentes with their wyues, their sonnes and their lytle chyldren.

And Moses sayd: Herby ye shall knowe the Lorde hath sent me to do all these workes, and that I haue not done them of mine awne minde. If these men dye & comen deth of all men: or yf they be dyspyted after the visitacion of all men, then the Lorde hath not sent me. But and yf the Lorde make a newe thyng, and the earth open her mouth and swallowe them vp with all that they haue: and they go downe quyk into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these men haue prouoked the Lorde.

And it fortunēd as he had made an ende of speakynge all these wordes, * the grounde cloued asunder that was vnder the: & the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them vp, and their houses, and all the men that were with Cozab and all their goodes. And they and all that they had, wēt downe alque vnto hell, and the earth closed vpon them: and they perished from amonge the congregacion. And all Israel were aboute them stedd at the crye of the. And they sayd: lest the earthe swallowe vs vp also. And there came oute a sypcr from the Lorde, and consumed the two hundred and fiftye men that offered cens.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: Speake vnto Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preaste, that he take vp the censers oute of the burnynge, and skatter the sypcr here and there, for the censers of these synners are halowed in theyr deatthes: and let them make of them thynne beaten plates for a coueryng of the aultare. For they offered them before the Lorde, and therfore they are halowed, and they shall be a sygne vnto the chyldren of Israel.

And Eleazar the preast toke the brasen censers which they that were burnt had offered, and beate them thynne for a coueryng of the aultare, to be a remembraunce vnto the

the chyldren of Israel, that no straunge which is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer cens before the Lord, that it happen not vnto hym lyke as vnto Corah and hys companye, as the Lorde sayde of hym by the bande of Moses.

But on the morowe all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron, sayinge: ye haue kylled the people of the Lord. And it fortuned that when the multitude was gathered agaynst Moses and Aaron, they looked towarde the tabernacle of witness. And beholde, when they were entered into it, the cloude covered it, and the glory of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aaron came before the tabernacle of witness. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Set you from amonge this congregation, that I maye consume them quickly. And they fell vpon their faces.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censser, and put fier therin out of the aulter, and powre on cens, and go quykly vnto the congregacion, & thou mayest obteyne forgiveness for them. For there is wrath gone oute from the Lorde, and there is a plague begonne. And Aaron toke as Moses comaunded him, and ran into the myddes of the congregacion: and beholde, the plague was begonne amonge the people, and he put on cens, and made an atonement for the people. And when he stood betwene the dead and them that were alive, the plague ceased. They that dyed in this plague, were xiiij. thousande and seuen hundred: besyde them that dyed aboute the busynes of Corah. And Aaron went againe vnto Moses before the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and the plague ceased.

The xvii. Chapter.

¶ Aarons rodd buddeth & beareth blossomes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: and take of euery pryncce of them a rodd, after the houses of their fathers, euen twelue rodde: and write euery mans name vpon his rodd. And wryte Aarons name vpon the rodd of Levi: for euery rodd is for a house of their fathers. And put them in the tabernacle of witness, eue in the place where I mete you. And the mans rod whom I chole, shall blossom. And I wyll make cease from me the grudginges of the chyldren of Israel, whereby they grudge agaynst you.

And Moses spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and all the prynces gaue hym euery pryncce ouer their fathers houses, a rod, euen twelue rodde: and the rodd of Aaron was amonge the rodde. And Moses put the rodde before the Lorde in the tabernacle of witness. And on the morowe, Moses went into the tabernacle of witness: and beholde, * the rodd of Aaron for the house of Levi was budded, and bare blossomes and almonds. And Moses brought out all the rodde from before the Lorde vnto all the chyldren of Israel: and they looked vpon them, and toke euery man his rodd.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: bring Aarons rod agayne before the witness to be kepte for a token of the chyldrens rebellion, and that their murmuring maye cease from me, and that they dye not. And Moses dyd as the Lorde comaunded him, euen so dyd he. And the chyldren of Israel spake vnto Moses, sayinge: beholde, we are wasted awaye & consumed: we all come to naught: whosoever commeth nye the dwelling of the Lorde, dyeth. Shall we vterly consume awaye?

The xviii. Chapter.

¶ The office of the Leuites. The tribes and their leuites must be geuen them. Aarons heritage.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Aaron: Thou and thy sonnes and thy fathers house with thee, shall beare the faute of that which is done amysse in the holy place.

And thou and thy sonnes with thee shall beare the faute of that which is done amysse in your presthode. * And thy brethren of the tribe of Levi and of thy fathers house: holden shalt take vnto the, that they maye be toynd vnto the and minystre vnto the: euen vnto the and thy sonnes with the before the tabernacle of witness. They shall wayte vpon the and vpon all the tabernacle: onely let them not come nye the vesselles of the sanctuary and the alter, that they and ye also dye not. And they shall be by the, and wayte on the tabernacle of witness for all scrupce of the tabernacle, and let no straunger come nye vnto you.

Therefore shall ye kepe the holy place and the aulter, that ther fall nomore wrath vpon the chyldren of Israel: beholde, I haue take your brethren the Leuites from amonge the chyldren of Israel, which as a gyft of yours are geuen vnto the Lorde, to do the scrupce of the tabernacle of witness. Therefore shalt thou and thy sonnes with the take hede vnto your prestces office for all thynges & pertyne vnto the aulter, and for all & are with in the vayle. And se that ye serue: for I haue geue your prestces office vnto you as a gyft: and therefore the straunger that cometh nye, must be slayne.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron: behold, I haue geuen the the keepinge of myne heueofferpynges of all the halowed thynges of the chyldren of Israel. Euen vnto the, I haue geuen them for the anoyntinge, and to thy sonnes, for a dutye for euer. They shall be thyne be thyne of most holy from the fyre of the altare. All theyr sacrificyes for all theyr meate offerpynges, synneofferpynges or trespass offerpynges, which they bynge vnto me, are most holy. It is thyne and thy sonnes. In the most holy place shalt thou eat it: and all that are males shall eat of it: let it be holy vnto y.

And this also is thyne * the heueofferpynges of theyr gyftes, thowowe out all the waueofferpynges of the chyldren of Israel: I haue geue them vnto the and thy sonnes, and thy daughters with y, to be a dutye for euer and all that are cleane in thy house, shall eat of it, all the fatt of the ople, and all the fatt of the wyne and of the corne, whiche they shall offre vnto the Lorde for fyrst frutes, the same haue I geuen vnto the. And whatsoeuer is fyrst rypp in theyr lande whiche they bynge vnto the Lorde, shall be thyne: and all that are cleane in thyne house, shall eat of it.

All dedicate thynges in Israel, shall be thyne. All that breaketh the matrice in all flethe that men bynge vnto the Lorde, whether it be of men or beastes, shall be thyne. After the later the fyrst borne of man shalt thou redeme, and the fyrst borne of vncleane beastes shalt thou redeme lyke wyse. Those that are to be redemed, shalt thou redeme fro the age of a moneth, for the value of the money, namely for fyue syckles after the syckle of the sanctuary. A syckle maketh twenty halfpes. But the fyrst borne of oxen, sheepe and goates shalt thou not redeme. For they are holy, therefore shalt thou sprinkle theyr bloude vpon the alter, and shalt burne theyr fatt vpon the sacrifice for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

And the flesch of the is thyne * as the wauebest and the ryght shoulder. These are thyne. All the holy heueofferpynges whiche the chyldren of Israel offre vnto the Lorde, haue I geuen the and thy sonnes and thy daughters with the, to be a dutye for euer: let it be a salted couenaunte for euer, before the Lorde, both vnto the & to thy seed with the.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron: * shalt haue none inheritaunce in their lande, neither shalt thou haue any parte amonge them. I am thy parte and thy enherytaunce amonge the chyldren of Israel. Beholde, I haue geuen the chyldren of Levi all the tenth in Israel to enheryte, for the scrupce whiche they serue in the tabernacle of witness. Neither must the chyldren of Israel henceforth come nye the tabernacle of witness, lest they beare synne and dye. But the Leuites shall do the scrupce in the tabernacle of witness & beare theyr synne. It shall be a lawe for euer i youre generacions, that amonge the chyldren of Israel they possesse none inheritaunce. But the tythes of the chyldren of Israel whiche they paye as an heueofferpyng vnto the Lorde, I haue geue the Leuites to enherite. And therefore I haue sayed vnto them. Amonge the chyldren of Israel ye shall possesse none inheritaunce.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: speake vnto the Leuites and saye vnto them when ye take of the chyldren of Israel the tythes which I haue geuen you of the for youre enheritaunce, ye shall take an heueofferpyng of that same for the Lorde: euen the tenth parte of that tythe. And this youre heueofferpyng shall be reckened vnto you, eue as though it were of the corne of the barne, or out of the fulnesse of the wyne presse.

Of this maner ye shall therefore separate an heueofferpyng vnto the Lorde, of all youre tythes which ye receaue of the chyldren of Israel, and ye shall geue therof vnto y Lorde an heueofferpyng, whiche shall belonge to Aaron the preste. Of all youre gyftes, ye shall take out all the Lordes heueofferpynges: euen the fatt of theyr halowed thynges.

Therefore thou shalt saye vnto them: when ye haue taken awaye the fatt of it from it, it shall be coued vnto the Leuites, as yfit were the encrease of the corne floore, or y increase of the wyne presse. And ye shall eat it in all places, both ye and youre householdes, for it is youre rewarde for youre scrupce in the tabernacle of witness. And ye shall beare no synne by the reason of it, when ye haue take from it the fatt of it: neither shall ye vnhalowe the holy thynges of the chyldren of Israel lest ye dye.

The xix. Chapter.

¶ Of the redd kowe. The lawe of hym that dyeth in the tabernacle, and of hym also that toucheth any vncleane thyng.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayinge: this is y ordinance of the lawe whiche the Lorde hath comaunded sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, that they bynge the a redd kowe without spot, and wherein is no blemish, and vpon which neuer came yocke. And ye shall geue her vnto Eleazar the preste, & he maye bynge * her without the hoste, & cause her to be slayne before hys face.

And let Eleazar y preste take of her bloude with hys synger, and sprinkle it before y tabernacle of witness seuen tymes. And cause the kowe to be burnt in his syghte w * hys skynne, fleshe and bloude. And the dounge of hyr shall be burne also. And let the preste take Cedar wodd, and Isape and purple cloth, and cast it vpon the kowe as she burneth. Then let the preste wash hys clothes, and he shall bathe hys flesch in water, and then come into the hoste, and the preste shall be vncleane vnto the euen.

And he y burneth her, shall wash hys clothes in water, and bathe hys flesch in water, and be and be vncleane untill euen. And a man that is cleane, shall take vp the ashes of the kowe, and put the without the hoste in a cleane place. And it shall be kepte for the multitude of the chyldren of Israel * for a sprenklyng water and for an atonement of synne. Therfore, he that gathered the ashes of the kowe, shall walke bys clothes, & remayne vncleane vntyll euen. And thys shall be vnto the chyldren of Israel and vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonge them, a statute for euer.

* he that toucheth the deed body of any man, shall be vncleane seuen dayes. And he shall purifye hym selfe with thys water the thyrde daye and the seuenth daye, and he shall be cleane. But yf he purifye not hym selfe the thyrde daye and the seuenth daye, he shall not be cleane. Whosoever toucheth the carcase of any man that is deed, and spynklyeth not hym selfe, defyleth the dwellinge of the Lorde: and that soule shall be rote out of Israel, because the spynklyng water was not sprenkled vpon hym. He shall be therfore vncleane, and bys vncleane shall remayne vpon hym.

Thys is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a fet: all that come into the tent, and all that is in the tent, shall be vncleane seuen dayes. And all the vessels that be open whych haue no lyd nor couerynge vpon them, shall be vncleane. And whosoever toucheth one that is slayne with a swerde in the felde, or a deed persone, or a bone of a deed man, or a graue: shall be vncleane seuen dayes.

Therfore, for an vncleane persone they shall take of the burnt ashes of the synofferynge, & runnyng water shall be put therto in a vessell. And let a cleane persone * take a foye and dyppe it in the water, & spynkle it vpon the tent, and vpon all the vessels, and on the soules yf were there in, and vpon hym that touched a bone, or a slayne persone, or a deed body, or a graue. And the cleane persone shall spynkle vpon the vncleane the thyrde daye and the seuenth daye. And the seuenth daye he shall purifye hym selfe, & walke bys clothes, & bathe hym selfe in water, and shall be cleane at euen.

But the man that is vncleane, and spynklyeth not hym selfe, the same soule shall be destroyed from amonge the congregacyon: because he hath defyled the holy place of y Lorde, and the spynklyng water hath not bene spynkled vpon hym, therfore shall he remayne vncleane. And thys shall be a perpetuall lawe vnto them. And he that spynklyeth the spynklyng water, shall walke bys clothes.

And he that toucheth the spynklyng water, shall be vncleane vntyll euen. And what soeuer the vncleane persone toucheth, shall be vncleane. And yf soule that toucheth it, shall be vncleane vntyll the euen.

The. xx. Chapter.
The people murmured. They haue water euen oute of the rocke. And denpeth the israelites passage thow we hys realme. The death of Aaron in whose roome Eleazar succeedeth.

And the chyldren of Israel came to the whole multitude into the desert * of Sin in y fyrst moneth, and the people abode at Cades. And there dyed Miriam, and was buryed there. But there was no water for the multitude. And they gathered them selues together agaynst Moyses & Aaron. And the people chode with Moyses, and spake, sayinge: wolde God that we had perished, when oure brethren dyed before the Lorde. Why haue ye brought the congregacyon of the Lorde vnto thys wyldernesse, that both we and oure catell shulde dye in it? * Wherefore haue ye made vs to go oute of Egypte, to bringe vs into this vngreatous place, which is no place of seed nor of fygges nor vynes, nor of pograntes, nether is there any water to drynke?

And Moyses and Aaron went from the congregacyon vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, and fell vpon theyr faces. And they cryed vnto the Lorde and sayde, O Lorde God, heare the crye of this people, and open them the treasure, euen a fonteyne of lypynge water, that they maye be satisfied, and that theyr murmure maye cease. And the glory of y Lorde appered vnto them. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayinge: take the rodd, and gather thou and thy brother Aaron the congregacyon together, and speake vnto the rocke before theyr eyes, and it shall geue forth bys water. And thou shalt bringe them water out of the rocke, to geue the company dryncke, and theyr beastes also.

* And Moyses toke the rodd from before the Lorde, as he commaunded hym. And Moyses & Aaron gathered the congregacyon together before the rocke: and Moyses sayde vnto them: heare ye rebellions, must we fetty you water oute of this rocke? And Moyses lyfte vpon bys hande, and with bys rodd he smote the rocke twotymes, and the water came oute abundantly, and the multitude dryncke and theyr beastes also.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses & Aaron: because ye beleued me not, to sanctifye me in the eyes of the chyldren of Israel, therfore ye shall not bringe thys congregacyon into the lande whyche I haue geuen them. Thys is the water of stryffe, because y chyldren of Israel stroue with the Lorde, & he was sanctified in them.

And Moyses sent messengers from Cades vnto the kynge of Edom. Thus sayeth thy brother Israel: Thou knowest all y trauell that hath happened vs, oure fathers went doune into Egypte, and we haue dwelt in Egypte a longe tyme, and the Egyptians vexed vs & oure fathers. And wha we cryed vnto vnto the Lorde, he herde oure voyce, and sent an angell, and hath sett vs by out of Egypt. And beholde, we are in Cades, eue in the uttermost cyte of thy border. We wyll go now thow we thy countre: but * we will not go thow we the felde, or by nyepardes, nether wyll we dryncke of the water of the fountaynes, we wyll go by the kynges hye waye, and nether turne vnto the ryghte hande nor to the lefte, vntyll we be past thy countre. And Edom answered hym. Thou shalt not go by me, lest I come out agaynst the with the swerde. The chyldren of Israel sayde vnto hym: we wyll go by the beate waye: and yf I and my catell drynke of thy water, I wyll paye for it. I wyll but onely (without any harme) go thow we on my fete. He answered. Thou shalt not go thow we. And Edom came oute agaynst hym with moche people, and wpyth a myghtie power. And thus Edom denied to geue Israel passage thow his countre: wherfore Israel turned awaye from hym.

And the chyldren of Israel departed from Cades, and came vnto mount Hor with all the congregacyon. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron in mount Hor, harde by the coaste of the lande of Edom sayinge: Aaron shall be gathered vnto bys people, for he shall not come into the lande whyche I haue geuen vnto the chyldren of Israel: because ye disobeyed my mouth at the water of stryffe. Take Aaron and Eleazar his sonne, and bringe them by into mount Hor, and thou shalt strypp Aaron out of bys vestmentes, and put them vpon Eleazar bys sonne, and Aaron shall be gathered vnto bys people and shall dye there.

And Moyses dyd as the Lorde commaunded: and they wet by into mount Hor in the syghte of all the multitude. And Moyses toke of Aarons clothes, and put them vpon Eleazar bys sonne * and Aaron dyed there in the toppe of the mount. And Moyses and Eleazar came doune oute of the mount. Whan all the multitude sawe that Aaron was deed, they mourned for Aaron thyrty dayes, thow we oute all the householdes of Israel.

The. xxi. Chapter.
Israel banqueted with kynge Arab. The fyre serpentes stinge them. The kynges, Schon and Og are ouercome in batell.

And when kynge * Arab the Cananite whyche dwelt toward the south, harde tell y Israel came by the waye that the spyes had founde oute, he foughte agaynst Israel, and toke some of them prisoners. And Israel vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayde: If thou wylt deliuer this people into my hande, I wyll vterly destroye theyr cyties. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Israel, and deliuered them the Cananites. And they destroyed them and theyr cyties, & called the name of the place * Horma. And they departed from mount Hor by the waye of the redd see: to compasse the land of Edom. And the soule of the people fainted by the waye. And y people spake agaynst God & agaynst Moyses * wherfore hast thou brought vs oute of Egypte, for to dye in the wyldernesse? for here is nether bread nor water, & oure soule lotheth thys lyghte breade.

Wherfore the Lorde sent fyre serpentes amonge the people, whych stonge them: and moche people of Israel dyed. Therfore the people came to Moyses and sayde: we haue synned, for we haue spoken agaynst the Lorde & agaynst the, * make intercessyon to the Lorde, that he take awaye the serpentes from vs. And Moyses made intercessyon for the people. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: * make the a fyre serpent, & set it vpon a sygne, y as many as are bytten, maye loke vpon it, & lyue. * And Moyses made a serpent of brasse, and set it vpon a sygne. And when the serpentes had bytten any man, he behelde the serpent of brasse, and was healed.

* And the chyldren of Israel departed thence, and pytched in Oboth. And they departed fro Oboth, and pitched at the heapes of Abarim: euen in the wyldernesse whyche is by the playne of Moab on the east syde. And they remoued thence, and pytched vpon the ryuer of zared. And they departed thence, and pytched on the other syde of Arnon, which is in the wyldernesse, and cometh oute of the colles of the Amozites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, betwene Moab and the Amozites. Wherfore it is spoken in the booke of the warre of the Lorde, what thyng he dyd in the redd see, & in the ryuers of Arnon. And the heade of the ryuers, that goeth doune to the dwelling of Ar, and stretcheth vnto the border of Moab: from thence it turneth vnto Beer. The same is Beer, or well wherof the Lorde spake vnto Moyses: gather the people together, and I wyll geue them water. Then Israel sange thys songe: Arple by well, singe ye vnto him. The princes dygged thys well, the captaynes of the people dygged it, with the teacher, and with theyr stanes.

And from the wyldernesse they went to Matana,

And Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kynge of the Amozites, sayinge: * I will go thowowe thy lande: we will not tourne into thy felde, or vyneyardes, nether drynke of the waters of y well: but we will go a longe by the kynges hys waye, vntill we be past thy countre. * But Sehon wolde geue Israel no licence to passe thowowe hys countre, but gethered all hys people together and went oute agaynst Israel into the wyldernesse. And he came to Iapaza and foughte agaynst Israel.

* And Israel smote him in the edge of the swerde, and conquered hys lande, fro Arnon vnto Iakob: and vnto the chyldren of Ammon. For the border of the chyldren of Ammon was, * ströge. And Israel toke all these cities and dwelt in all the cyties of the Amozites: in Ieshon and in all the townes that longe therto. For Ieshon was the cytie of Sehon the kynge of the Amozites, whiche fought before agaynst the kynge of y Moabites, and toke all his lande out of hys hnde, euen vnto Arnon. Wherefore they saie in the prouerbe: come to Ieshon, and let the cytye of Sehon be bylt & repayred: for there is a fyre gone out of Ieshon, and a flamme fro the cytie of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar in Moab, and the inheritous of the hys places in Arnon. Wo be to the Moab: o people of Chamos, ye are vndone, he hath put his sonnes to fyghte, and hys daughters to captiuite vnto Sehon kynge of the Amozites. Theyr empire is lost from Ieshon vnto Dibon, and we made a wyldernesse euen vnto Ropha, whych reacheth vnto Mediba. And thus Israel dwelt in the lande of the Amozites. And Moses sent to serche oute Iazer, and they toke townes belongynge therto, and rooted oute the Amozites that were there in.

* And they tourned and went by towarde Balan. And Og the kynge of Balan came out agaynst them, he and all his people to fyght at Adzei. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, feare him not, for I haue deliuered him in thy hande, and all his people, and hys lade. And thou shalt do to him as thou dydest vnto Sehon the kynge of the Amozites which dwelt at Ieshon. They smote hym therfore, and his sonnes, and all his people, vntill ther was nothyng lefte hym. And they conquered hys lande:

The. xxi. Chapter.

¶ Change Balac sendeth for Balaam (whose name in the Hebrew is written Bilcam) Balaams alle speaketh.

And the chyldren of Israel departed and pitched in the felde of Moab, on the other syde of Iordane, ouer against Iericho. And * Balac y sonne of ziphor lawe all that Israel had done to the Amozites: and the Moabites were sore afrayed of the people, because they were many, and so stode in feare of the chyldren of Israel. And Moab sayde vnto the elders of Moabian: now shall this companye lycke vs vp all that are rounde aboute vs, as an oxe lycketh vp the graile of the felde. And Balac the sonne of ziphor was kynge of the Moabites at that tyme.

He sent messengers therfore vnto * Balaam the sonne of Beor in Bethor (whych is by the ryuer in the lande of the chyldren of his folke) to call him, sayinge: beholde, there is a people come out of Egypte, & beholde, they couer y face of the erth, & dwell ouer agaynst me. Come nowe therfore & curse thys people for my sake. For they are to myghtie for me, yf so perauenture I myght be able to smyte them & to dryue them oute of the lande. For I wote that he whome thou blessest, is blessed, and whome thou cursest is cursed.

And the elders of Moab and the elders of Moabian departed, hauynge the rewarde of the lothlayinge in theyr hande. And they came vnto Balaam, and tolde him the wordes of Balac. He answered them: tary here thys nyght, and I will byynge you worde, euen as the Lord shall saye vnto me. And the Lordes of Moab abode with Balaam.

And God came vnto Balaam and sayde, what men are these wyth the? And Balaam sayde vnto God: Balac the sonne of ziphor kynge of Moab hath sent vnto me, sayinge: beholde, there is a people come out of Egypt and couereth the face of the erth: come nowe therfore, and curse them for my sake, yf so perauenture I maye be able to ouercome them in batell, and to dryue them oute. And God sayde vnto Balaam: So not thou with them, nether curse the people, for they are blessed.

And Balaam rose vp in the mornynge & sayde vnto the Lordes of Balac: get you vnto youre lande: for the Lorde will not suffre me to go wyth you. And y Lordes of Moab rose vp, & went vnto Balac and sayde: Balaam wolde not come wyth vs. And Balac sent agayne a greater companye of Lordes and moze honorable then they: whiche came to Balaam, and told him: Thus sayeth Balac the sonne of ziphor: oh, let not bynge let y, but come vnto me, for I will greatly promote the vnto greete honoure, and will do whatsoeuer y sayest vnto me, come I praye the, curse thys people for my sake.

And Balaam answered and sayde vnto y seruantes of Balac: * If Balac wolde geue me geue me hys housefull of syluer and golde, I canot go beyonde the worde of the Lord my God, to do lesse or moare. Nowe therfore tarye ye here thys nyght: that I maye wete, what the Lorde will saye vnto me moare. And God came vnto Balaam by nyghte, & sayde vnto him: If the men come to call the, ryse vp and go with them: but loke what I saye vnto the, that shalt thou do.

And Balaam rose vpearly, and sadeld hys asse, & went with the Lordes of Moab. And the countenance of God was angrye because he went. And the angell of the Lorde stode in the waye agaynst hym, as he rode vpon hys asse, and hys two seruantes were wyth hym. And when the asse sawe the angell of the Lorde stode in the waye, and hauynge a swerde drawen in his hande, the asse turned asyde oute of the waye, and went out into the felde. And Balaam smote the asse, to turne her into the waye.

But the angell of the Lord stode in a path betwene the vyneyardes, and there was a wall on the one syde & another on the other. And whē the asse sawe y angell of the Lorde, she wrenched vnto the wall, and thrust Balaams fote vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. And the angell of y Lorde went forther and stode in a narowe place, where was no waye to tourne, ether to the ryght hande or to the lyfte. And whē the asse sawe the angell of the Lorde, she fell downe vnder Balaam: and Balaam was wroth, and smote the asse with a staffe. And the Lorde opened the mouth of the asse, & she sayed vnto Balaam: what haue I done vnto the, that thou hast smytten me nowe thre tymes? And Balaam sayde vnto the asse: because thou hast mocked me: I wolde also there were a swerde in myne hande, for euen nowe wolde I kyl the. And the asse sayde vnto Balaam: am not I thyne asse whiche thou hast rydden vpon sence thou wast bozne vnto thys daye? Was I euer wont to do so vnto the? he sayde: nay.

And the Lorde opened the eyes of Balaam and he sawe the angell of the Lorde standinge in the waye, hauynge a swerde drawen in hys hande. he bowed hym selfe therfore, and fell flat on hys face. And the angell of the Lorde sayde vnto hym: Wherefore hast thou smytten thyne asse thre tymes? beholde, I came out as an aduersary, because thou makest thy waye contrary vnto me, and the asse sawe me, and went backe fro me thre tymes: or els yf he had not turned fro me (geynge place to me that stode in the waye.) I had surely slayne the, and saued her alyue. Balaam sayd vnto the angell of the Lord: I haue synned: for I wist not that thou stdest in the waye agaynst me. Nowe therfore yf it displeaseth the I will turne home agayne. The angell sayde vnto Balaam: go with the men: but, what I saye vnto the, that shalt thou speake. And so Balaam went with the Lordes of Balac.

And when Balac herde that Balaam was come, he went out to mete hym vnto a cytie of Moab, whiche is in the border of Arnon, euen in the vtmost coast. And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: dyd I not sende for the, to call the? And wherfore camest thou not vnto me? because I am not able to promote the vnto honoure? And Balaam made answer vnto Balac: Loo, I am come vnto the. And can I nowe saye any thinge at all. The worde that God putteth in my mouthe, that shall I speake. And Balaam went wyth Balac, and they came vnto a cytie of Iretes. And Balac offered oxen and shepe, and sent rewards for Balaam and for the Lordes y were wyth hym. And on the mornynge Balac toke Balaam, and brought hym by into the hys place of Baal, that thēce he myght se the vtmost parte of the people.

The. xxi. Chapter.
Balaam blesseth the people.

And Balaam sayd vnto Balac: I lac: bylde me here seuen alters and prepare me here seuen oxen and seuen rammes. And Balac dyd as Balaam sayde. And Balac and Balaam offered on euery alter an ore and a ram. And Balaam sayd vnto Balac: stande by the sacrifice, and I will goo yf happily the Lorde will mete me: and whatsoeuer he sheweth me, I will tell the, and he wēt forth alone. But God met Balaam, and Balaam sayde vnto hym: I haue prepared seuen alters, and haue offered vpon euery alter, an ore and a ram. And the Lorde put a sayinge in Balaams mouth, and sayde: go agayne to Balac and saye on thys wyle. And whan he went agayne vnto him, loo, he stode by hys sacrifice, he and all the Lordes of Moab. And he toke vp hys parable and sayde: * Balac y kynge of Moab hath sett me from Hesopotamia out of y mosttaynes of y east (sayge:) come, curse Iacob for my sake: come, & despye Israel. howe shall I curse hi, who God hath not cursed? or howe shall I despye him, whom God hath not despyed? from the toppe of the rockes I se hym, and from the hylls I beholde hym: loo, the people shall dwell by the selfe, and shall not be rekened among the nacionys. Who can tell y dust of Iacob, and the nobre of the fourth parte of Israel? I praye God, that my soule maye dye the death of the ryghteous, & that my last ende maye be lyke hys. And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: what hast thou done vnto me? I fet the to curse myne enemyes, and beholde, thou hast blessed them. he answered and sayde: must I not kepe that & speake it, whych the Lorde hath put in

And he brought him into a felde (where men myght se farre of) euen to the toppe of an hyll, and byt seue alteres, and offered an oxe and a ram on euery alter. And he sayd vnto Balac: stande here by thy sacrifice, whyle I go yonder. And the Lord mette

* 1 Corin. i. 6. and, f. c.

And he toke vp his parable & answered: ryse vp Balac and heare, and herke vnto me thou sonne of ziphor. * God is not a mā that he shulde lye, nether the sonne of a man that he shulde repent: shulde he saye, and not doo? or shulde he speake, and not make it good? beholde, I haue taken vpon me to blesse, for he hath blessed, and it is not in my power to alter it. * He behelde no vanyte in Jacob, nor sawe tranayll in Israel. The Lordes hys God is w him, and the presence of the kyng is amonge them. * God brought them oute of Egypte, he hath strength as an unicorn. There is no forcery in Jacob, nor soothsaying in Israel. * It is nowe tolde vnto Jacob & Israel, what God hath wrought. Beholde, the people shal ryse vp as a lyoness, and heue vp hym selfe as a lyon. And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: nether curse them nor blesse them. But Balaam answered and sayde vnto Balac: tolde not I the sayinge: all that the Lord speake, that I must doo? And Balac sayde vnto Balaam: come I praye the, and I wyll byynge the yet vnto another place: yf peradventure it shal please God, that thou mayst thence curse the for my sake. And Balac broughte Balaam vnto the toppe of Peor, that boweth toward the wyldernes of Iesymon. And Balaam sayde vnto Balac: make me here seuen alteres, and prepare me here seuen oxen, and seuen rammes. And Balac byd as Balaam had sayde, and offered an oxe and a ram on euery alter.

The. xxv. Chapter.

* The people commeth to fornicacion with the daughters of Moab. Phinehes killeth zamez and cozbi. God commaundeth to kyll the Moabianites.

Ad Israel dwelt in Sittim, and the people began to committe whoredome with the daughters of Moab, which called the people vnto y sacrifice of theyr goddes.

* And the people byd eate, and worshypped theyr goddes, & Israel coupled him selfe vnto Baal Peor. And the indignacion of the Lord was prouoked agaynst Israel, and the Lord sayde vnto Moses: take all the heades of the people, & hange the vp before the Lord agaynst the sonne, that the wrath of the Lordes countenance maye be tounch awaye from Israel. And Moses sayd vnto y iudges of Israel: * enery one slaye hys men that were soynd vnto Baal Peor.

And beholde, one of the chyldren of Israel came and broughte vnto his brethren, a Moabianish wyfe euen in the syghte of Moses, and in the sight of all y multitude of the chyldren of Israel, that wepte before the doore of the tabernacle of witness. * And when Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preaste sawe it, he rose vp out of the myddes of the companie, and toke a weapon in hys hande, and went after the man of Israel into the tent, and thrust them thorowe: both the mā of Israel and also the woman, euen thorowe the belly of her. And the plague ceased fro the chyldre of Israel. * And there dyed in the plague. xxiii. thousande.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses saying: * Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preaste, hath touned myne anger awaye from the chyldren of Israel, why he was gelous for my sake amonge them, that I had not consumed the chyldren of Israel in my gelousye. Wherefore saye: beholde, * I geue vnto him my couenaunt of peace, and he shal haue it, & his seed after him, euen the couenaunt of the preastes offyce for euer because he was gelous for his Goddes sake, and made an attonement for the chyldren of Israel. The name of y Israelite whych was slayne with the Moabianish wyfe was zamez the sonne of Salu, a Lorde of an house and kyndred of Symeon. And the name of the Moabianish wyfe that was slayne, was Cozbi y daughter of Zur, a heed ouer the people of an house and kyndred of Moabian.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, saying: * bere the Moabianites, and synge them, for they trouble you with theyr wyfes, whiche haue begyled you by disceate in the cause of Peor, and in the cause of theyr syster Cozbi the daughter of a Lorde of the Moabianites, which was slayne in the daye of the plague for Peor sake.

And on the Sabbath daye two lambes of a yere olde a pece, and without spot, and two tenth deales of flour for a meat offering myngled w oyle, and the drinck offering thereto. The burnt offering of the Sabbath must be done in the selfe Sabbath, belyde the dayly burnt offering and his drinck offering.

And in the beginninge of youre monethes, ye shall offer a burnt offering vnto the Lord: two yonge bullockes, and a ram, and vij. lambes of a yere olde without spot: and iij. tenth deales of flour for a meat offering myngled with oyle for one bullocke, and ij. tenth deales of flour for a meat offering myngled with oyle for one ram. And a tenth deale of flour myngled with oyle for a meat offering vnto one lambe, for a burnt offering and a sweete sauoure and a sacrifice vnto the Lord. And theyr drinck offerings shall be halfe an hin of wyne vnto one bullocke, and the third part of an hin of wyne vnto a ram, and the fourth part of an hin vnto a lambe.

C This is the burnt offering of the moneth in hys moneth, thowout the monethes of the yere: and one hegoate for a syn offering vnto the Lord shall be offered, after the dayly burnt offering and hys drinck offering.

E And the fourteenth daye of the fyrst moneth, is the passeouer of the Lord. And in the fyrst daye of the same moneth is the feast: and seven dayes longe shall vnleued bzed be eatte. In the fyrst daye shall be a holy conuocacyon, ye shall do no maner of seruile worke therein. But ye shall offer a sacrifice for a burnt offering vnto the Lord. ij. yonge bullockes, one ram, and seven lambes of a yere olde, which are to you wout spot, and let theyr meat offering be of flour mingled with oyle: the tenth deales also shall ye offer for a bullocke, and two tenth deales for a ram: one tenth deale shalt thou offer for euery lambe of the seven labe: and a hegoate for synne to make atonement for you.

E ye shall offer these, belyde the burnt offering in the morning, which is a continuall burnt sacrifice. After this maner ye shall offer thowout the vij. dayes: the fode of the sacrifice for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord. And it shall be done belyde the dayly burnt offering and his drinck offering. And in the seventh daye ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon, and ye shall do no seruile worke. Therfore in the daye of your first frutes, when ye byng a newe meat offering vnto the Lord (accorpyng to your wekes) ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon, & ye shall do no seruile worke in it: but offer a burnt offering for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord: two yonge bullockes, a ram, * and .vij. lambes of a yere olde a pece, with their meat offerings of flour myngled with oyle, the tenth deales vnto a bullocke, two tenth deales to a ram, and one tenth deale vnto a lambe thowout the seven lambes, and an hegoate to make an atonement for you. This ye shall do belydes the continuall burnt offering, and hys meat offering: & they shall be vnto you without spot, with their drinck offerings.

The xxix. Chapter.

What must be offered the eighth fyrst dayes of the seventh moneth.

And in the fyrst daye of the vij. moneth ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon: * ye shall do then no seruile worke. For it is a daye of blowing vnto you. But ye shall offer a burnt offering for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord: one yong bullocke, one ram, and .vij. labe of a yere olde a pece that are pure. And their meat offering shall be made of flour mingled with oyle. iij. tenth deales vnto the bullocke, and .ij. vnto the ram: and one tenth deale vnto one lambe thowout the vij. lambes. And an hegoate for synne to make an atonement for you, belyde the dayly burnt offering of the moneth & his meat offering, & belyde the dayly burnt offering & his meat offering, and the drinck offerings of the same, which must be done according vnto the maner of the for a sauoure of sweetness of the sacrifice of the Lord.

E And ye shall haue the tenth daye of that same seventh moneth an holy conuocacyon: and ye shall humble your soules, & shall do no maner worke therein. But ye shall offer a burnt offering vnto the Lord for a sweete sauoure: one bullocke, a ram, and .vij. labe of a yere olde a pece, which shall be vnto you, without faute. Theyr meat offering shall be shalbe of flour mingled with oyle. iij. tenth deales to a bullocke, and .ij. to a ram, & a tenth deale vnto a labe, thowout the .vij. lambes. An hegoate for synne, belyde the syn offering of atonement and dayly burnt offering, and the meate and drinck offerings longe to the same. * And in the fyrst daye of the vij. moneth ye shall haue an holy conuocacyon, and do then no seruile worke, and ye shall kepe a feast vnto the Lord. vij. dayes longe. And ye shall offer a burnt offering for a sacrifice of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord thirtene bullockes, two rams, and fourtene lambes of a yere olde: which shall be without blemish. And their meat offering shall be of flour myngled w oyle. iij. tenth deales vnto euery one of the rams, and one tenth deale vnto eche of the .xiiij. labe: And one hegoate for synne, belyde the dayly burnt offering with his meate and drinck offering.

E And the second daye ye shall offer twelue yonge bullockes. ij. rams. xiiij. perling lambes without spot: and let their meat offering and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams and lambes be according to the nombre of them and after the maner. And an hegoate for synne, belyde the dayly burnt offering and his meate and drinck offerings. And the thirde daye ye shall offer .xi. bullockes. ij. rams, and xiiij. perling lambes without spot: and let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams, and labe be after the nombre of them and according to the maner. And there shall be offered an hegoate for synne, belyde the dayly burnt offering and his meate and drinck offering.

E In the fourth daye, ye shall offer ten bullockes, two rams, and fourtene lambes perlynges and pure: let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams & lambes be, according to the nombre of them and after the maner. And an hegoate for synne, belyde the dayly burnt offering, and hys meate and drinck offering. In the fyrst daye ye shall offer nyne bullockes, two rams and thirtene lambes of one yere olde a pece without spot. And let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams and lambes be according to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an hegoate for synne, belyde the dayly burnt offering and his meate and drinck offering. And in the fyrst daye, ye shall offer eight bullockes, two rams and fourtene perling lambes without spot. And let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams and lambes be according to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an hegoate for synne, belyde the dayly burnt offering, and his meate and drinck offerings. In the seventh daye, ye shall offer seven bullockes, two rams and thirtene lambes that are perlynges and pure.

And let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullockes, rams and lambes be according to their nombre, and after the maner. And an hegoate for synne, belyde the dayly burnt offering, and hys meate and drinck offering.

E In the eighth daye, ye shall haue a conuocacyon of the feast vnto you, and ye shall do no seruile worke therein. But ye shall offer a burnt offering, a sacrifice for a sweete sauoure vnto the Lord: one bullocke, one ram and seven perlyng lambes without spot. Let their meate and drinck offerings vnto the bullocke, ram and lambes be according to the nombre, and according to the maner. And an hegoate for synne, belyde the dayly burnt offering and hys meate and drinck offerings.

E These thinges ye shall do vnto the Lord in your festes: belyde your vowe and frew offerings, in your burnt offerings, meat offerings, drinck offerings, and peace offerings. And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel all that the Lord commaunded him.

The xxx. Chapter.

Of vowe when they shall be kept, and when not.

And Moses spake vnto the heads of the tribes of the children of Israel, saying: this is the thing which the Lord hath commaunded. * If a man vowe a vowe vnto the Lord, or sweare an oath to bynde his soule: he shall not go back with his worde: but shall fulfill all that is proceeded out of his mouth.

E If a woman also vowe a vowe vnto the Lord, and bynde her selfe beyng in her fathers house in the tyme of her youth, and her father heare her vowe and bonde which she hath made vpon her soule, and holde his peace thereto: then all her vowe & bondes which she hath made vpon her soule shall stande in effect. But and if her father forbyd her the same daie she heareth it, none of her vowe nor bondes which she hath made vpon her soule shall be of value: and the Lord shall forgive her, because her father forbade her.

E If she had an husbande when she vowed or pronounced ought out of her lippes, wherewith she bonde her soule, and her husbande hearde it and helde his peace there at the same daye he heard it, then her vowe and her bondes wherewith she bounde her soule, shall stande in effecte. And if her husbande forbade her the same daye that he hearde it: and made her vowe which she hath vpon her of none effecte, and released the opening of her lippes, wherewith she bounde her soule, the Lord shall forgive her.

But euery vowe of a wedowe and of her

That is deuorced (þ thep haue boide their soule withall) shall stande in effect is them:

If she vowed in her husbandes house, or bounde her soule with an orb, and her husbande hearde it, and helde his peace, and forbad her not, then all her vowes and bondes wherwith the bounde her soule, shall stande. But yf her husbande disannulled them the same daye that he heard them, then nothing þ proceedeth out of her lippes in vowes and bondes (wherwith the boide her soule) shall stande in effect: for her husbande hath lowed them. And the Lorde shall forgive her:

All vowes and othes that binde to humble the soule, maye her husbande stablysh or breake. But yf her husbande holde his peace from one daye vnto another, then he stablysheth all her vowes and bodes which she had vpon her, because he helde his peace the same daye that he hearde them: But yf he breake the, after that he hath heard the, he shall beare her synne him selfe.

These are the ordynances whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses, betwene a mā and his wyfe: and betwene the father and his daughter, beyng peccat a damsell in her fathers house.

The xxxi. Chapter.

The Madiantites and Balaam are slayne. The praye is equally deuorced. A present given of Israel.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: * auenge the chyldren of Israel of the Madiantites, and afterwarde shalt thou be gathered vnto thy people.

And Moses spake vnto þ folke sayinge. Harnesse some of you vnto warre, and let them go vpon the Madiantites, and auenge the Lorde of the Madiantites. Lett there be chosen a thousande out of euery tribe of Israel, that out of all þ tribes ye may send some to the warre. And there were taken out of the thousandes of Israel, twelue thousande prepared vnto warre, of euery trybe a thousande. And Moses sent them to the warre, euen a thousande of euery trybe, and with them, Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the preaste, and the wyv beuelles:

and the * trompettes to blowe were in hys bande. And they warred agaynst the Madiantites, as the Lorde commaunded Moses, & slue all the males. And they slue the kinges of Madiant amonge other that were slayne: Namely Euf, and Rekem, zur and Hur and Reba: fyue kinges of Madiant w Balaam the sonne of Beor, who they slue is the sweard: And the chyldren of Israel toke all the women of Madiant prisoners, & their chyldren: and spoiled all their catell, and all their flockes, and all their goodes. And they burnt all their cityes wherin they dwelt, and all their castels with fier. And they toke all þ spoyle and all that they coulde catch both of me and beastes. And they brought the captiues and that which they had take and the spoile vnto Moses and Eleazar the preaste, and vnto the company of the chyldre of Israel, euen vnto the hoost þ were in the felde of Moab by Jordau, oueragaynst Jericho.

And Moses and Eleazar the preast, and all the lordes of the congregacion went out of the hoost agaynst them. And Moses was angrie with the officers of the hoost, with þ captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, which came fro the warre and battayll: and Moses sayde vnto them: haue ye saued all the women alyue? beholde, * these caused the chyldren of Israel to chozow the counsell of * Balaam, to commyt trespass agaynst the Lorde, in the busynes of Beor, & there folowed a plage among the congregacion of the Lorde. Nowe therfore, * slepe all the men chyldren, and the women þ haue lien with men fleshly. But all the women chyldre that haue not lien with men, kepe alyue for your selues. And ye shall remayne without the hoost seuen dayes, all þ haue kyled any persone: * & all that haue touched any deede body, and purify both your selues and your prisoners, the .iiij. daye & the .viij. And spraye all your raymentes and all that is made of skynnes, and al worke of goates heer, and all thinges made of wodd.

And Eleazar the preaste sayde vnto the me of warre, which came from the battayll: this is the ordynance of the lawe which the Lorde commaunded Moses: Golde, syluer, brasse, and yron. tyn and lead, and all that þ maye abyde the fier, ye shall make it go thorowe the fier, and it shall be cleane. Neuerthelesse, it shall be sprayed with sprayng water. And all that suffereth not the fier ye shall make go thorowe the water. And washe your clothes the seuenth daye, and ye shall be cleane. And afterwarde come into the hooste.

And þ Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take the summe of the praye that was take both of the women and of catell, thou & Eleazar the preaste, and the auncient fathers of the congregacion. And deuyde it into two two partes, betwene them þ toke the warre vpon them, and wēt out to battayll: and all the congregacion. And take a porcyon vnto the Lorde of the men of warre, which went out to battayll: & one soule of fyue hundred, both of the women and of the oxen, and of the asses, and of the shepe: and ye shall take it of thep halfe, and geue it vnto Eleazar the preast, as an heueoffering of þ Lorde. And of the halfe of the chyldren of Israel, þ shalt take one porcyon of fyfty, of the wemē, of the oxen, of the asses and of the shepe, and of all maner of beastes: and geue them vnto the Leuites, which wayte vpon the habitation of the Lorde.

And Moses and Eleazar the preaste byd as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the botye and the praye which the men of warre had caught, was fyue hundred thousande, and .lxxv. thousande shepe: and .lxxij. thousande oxen .lxx. thousande asses: and .xxij. thousande soules of women, that had lyeu by no man.

And the halfe which was the parte of the that went out to warre, was thre hundred thousande and seuen and thirtie thousande and .v. hundred shepe. And the Lorde part of the shepe was fyue hundred and .lxxv. And the oxen were .xxxvi. thousande, of which þ Lorde part was .lxxii. And the asses were .xxx. thousande and fyue hundred, of which the Lorde part was .lxi. And the soules of women were .xvi. thousande, of whiche þ Lorde part was .xxij. soules. And Moses gaue that summe which was the Lorde's heueofferyng, vnto Eleazar the preaste: as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the other halfe of the chyldren of Israel whiche Moses separated from the men of warre, (þ is to wete the halfe þ perternyed vnto the congregacion) was .iiij. hundred thousande, and .xxvij. thousande & fyue hundred shepe: and .xxvi. thousande oxen: and .xxx. thousande asses, and fyue hundred: and .xvi. thousande soules of women. And Moses toke of his halfe that perternyed vnto the chyldren of Israel, one porcyon of fyfty, both of þ women and of the catell, and gaue them vnto þ Leuites, which wayted vpon the habitacyon of the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the officers of thousandes of the hooste, the captaynes ouer the thousandes, and the captaynes ouer the hundredes came forth, and sayde vnto Moses: Thy seruantes haue take the summe of þ men of warre, which are vnder oure auctoryte, and there lacketh not one man of vs. We haue therfore brought a present vnto the Lorde what euery man foude of iewels of golde, cheyns, bracelletes, rnynges, earpynges and spagels, to make an atonement for our soules befoze the Lorde.

No. lxxij.

And Moses and Eleazar toke the golde of them, iewels of all maner fashions: And all the golde of the heueoffering that they heued vnto the Lorde, (of the captaynes ouer thousandes and hundredes) was .xvi. thousande .viij. hundred and fyfty syles, for the men of warre had spoyled, euery man for him selfe. And Moses and Eleazar the preast toke the golde of the captaynes ouer þ thousandes and of the captaynes ouer the hundredes, & brought it into the tabernacle of witness, for a memoziell of the chyldren of Israel befoze the Lorde.

The xxxij. Chapter.

To Ruben and Gad and to halfe the trybe of Manasse, is promysed the possession beyonde Jordan eastward.

The chyldren Ruben and the chyldren of Gad had an exceedynge greate multitude of catell. And when they sawe the lande of Jazer and the lande of Gilead that it was apte place for catell, the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad came & spake vnto Moses and Eleazar the preast and vnto the lordes of the congregacyon, sayinge: The lande of Ataroth and Dibon, Jazer and Remrah, Hesbon and Elealeh, Sabam and Nebo and Beon: which contreye the Lorde smote befoze the congregacyon of Israel: is a lande mete for a catell, and we thy seruantes haue catell: wherfore (sayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy syght, let this lande be geuen vnto thy seruantes to possesse, and byyng vs not ouer Jordau.

And Moses sayde vnto the chyldre of Gad and of Ruben: shall poure brethren goo to warre, and ye shall sit here? Wherfore discorage ye the hert of the chyldren of Israel, that they shulde not goo ouer into the lande, which the Lorde hath geuen them? * Thus byd your fathers, when I sent them fro Cades Barne to se þ lade. For when they wēt vnto the river of Escol, and sawe þ lande: they discoraged the hert of the chyldre of Israel, that they shulde not go into the lande, which the Lorde hath geuen them.

And the Lorde was wroth the same tyme and sware, sayinge: * None of the men þ came out of Egypte from twentye yere olde and aboue, shall se the lande which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because they haue not wholy folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune the Kenesite, and Josua the sonne of Nun: for they haue folowed the Lorde. And the Lorde was angrie with Israel, and made them wandze in the wilderness fourty yere, vntyll all the generacyon that had done euell in the syght of the Lorde were consumed.

And beholde, ye are rylen vp in your fathers stede, as an encrease of synfull men, to

To augmente the feare wraoth of the Lorde, to Israel warde. For yf ye turne a wepe fro after hym, he will yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernesse, and ye shall destroye all thys folke. And they went nere him, and sayde: we will buyde shepfoldes here for oure shepe and for oure catell, and we will buyde cities for our chyldren. But we our selues will goo ready armed before the chyldren of Israel, vntyll we haue brought them vnto their place. And our chyldren shall dwell in the fenced cities, because of the inhabitants of the lande. We will not returne vnto oure houses, vntyll the chyldren of Israel haue inheretted, euery man his enheritaunce. Neether will we enheret with them on ponde syde Jordan forwarde, because oure enheritaunce is fallen to vs on this syde Jordan eastwarde.

And Moses sayde vnto them: yf ye will do this thinge, and goo harnessed before the Lorde to warre, and will go all of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before the Lorde, vntyll he haue cast out his enemies before him: and vntyll the lande be subdued before the Lorde, then ye shall returne and be without synne before the Lorde and before Israel, and this lande shall be your possession before the Lorde. But and yf ye will not do so, behold, ye haue synned agaynst the Lorde: and be sure, your synne will fynde you out.

Nowe therfore, buyde cities for your chyldren, and foldes for your shepe, and do that ye haue spooken. The chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge: thy seruantes will do as my lord commaundeth. Our chyldren, our wyues, oure shepe and our catell shall remayne here in y cities of Gilead. But thy seruantes will goo all harnessed for the warre, and vnto battayll before the Lorde, as my lord sayth.

And for theyr sakes, Moses commaunded Eleazar the preast, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel: and Moses saide vnto them: If the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben will go with you ouer Jordan, all prepared to fyght before y Lorde, then when the lande is subdued before you, ye shall geue them the lade of Gilead to possesse: but and yf they will not go ouer with you in harnesse, they shall haue their possessions amonge you in the lande of Canaan. And the chyldren of Gad and the chyldren of Ruben answered, sayinge: As the Lorde hath sayde vnto thy seruantes, so will we do. We will go harnessed before the Lorde into the lande of Canaan, that the possession of oure enheritaunce maye be on thys syde Jordan.

And Moses gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad and to the chyldren of Ruben, and vnto halfe the trybe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, the kingdome of Sehon kynge of the Amozites, and the kingdome of Og kynge of Basan, the lade w the cities therof in y coastes and cities of the costrey rounde about. And the chyldren of Gad buyt Dibon & Ataroth, & Aroer, and Atroth, Sophan Jafer, & Jergaben, Bethnimra, & Betharan, fenced cities, & they buyt foldes for the shepe. And the chyldren of Ruben buyt Hesbon, Eleale, Kiriatthaim, Nebo, Baal, Meon, & other names vnto y cities which they builded. And the chyldren of Machir the sonne of Manasse went to Gilead, and toke it, & put out the Amozites that dwelt therein. And Moses gaue Gilead vnto Machir the sonne of Manasse, and he dwelt therein. And Jahir the sonne of Manasse went and toke the small townes therof, and called them Hanoth Jair. And Hobab went and toke Kenath, and the townes longynge therto, & called it Hobab after his awne name.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

The iourneys of Israel are nombred. They are commaunded to kill the Canaanites.

These are the iourneys of the chyldren of Israel, which went out of the lande of Egypt with their armyes vnder the hande of Moses and Aaron. And Moses wrote their goinge out by their iourneyes, accordyng to the commaundement of the Lorde: eue these are the iourneyes of their goynge out. They departed from Rahmes the xv. daye of the fyrst moneth, on the morowe after Passouer: and the chyldren of Israel went out with an hye bande in the syght of all the Egipcians. For the Egipcians buryed all their fyrst bozue which the Lorde had smyten amonge them. And vpon theyr goddes also the Lorde dyd execution. And y chyldren of Israel remoued from Rahmes, and pitched in Socoth.

And they departed fro Socoth, and pitched theyr tentes in Ethan, which is in the edge of y wilderness. And they remoued fro Ethan, and turned agayne vnto y wilderness which is before Baal zephon: and pitched before Migdol. And they departed fro y playne of Ihiroth: and went thowowe the myddes of the see in the wilderness, and went iij. dayes iorney in the wilderness of Etha, and pitched in Marah. And they remoued from Marah, and came vnto Elim, where were twelue fountaynes of water, and iij. paulmetrees, and they pitched there.

And they remoued from Elim, and laye fast by y red see. And they remoued from the red see, and laye in the wilderness of Sin. And they toke their iorneye out of the wilderness of Sin, and set vpon theyr tentes in Daphka.

Daphka. And they departed from Daphka, and laye in Alus. And they remoued from Alus, and laye at Raphedim, where was no water for the people to drynke. And they departed from Raphedim, and pitched in the wilderness of Sinai.

And they remoued from the desert of Sinai, and pitched at the graues of Iust. And they departed fro the sepulchres of Iust, and laye at Hazereth. And they departed fro Hazereth, and pitched in Rithma. And departed from Rithma, and pitched at Rimmon Parez. And they departed from Rimmon Parez, and pitched in Libna. And they remoued from Libna, and pitched at Risa. And they iourneied from Risa, and pitched in Rehelatha. And they went from Rehelatha, and pitched in mount Sapper. And they remoued from mount Sapper, and laye in Harada. And they remoued from Harada, and pitched in Makebeloth.

And they remoued from Makebeloth, and laye at Cabath. And they departed fro Cabath, and pitched at Charath. And they remoued from Charath, & pitched in Rithca. And they went from Rithca, and pitched in Balmona. And they departed from Balmona, and laye at Moseroth. And they departed fro Moseroth, and pitched in Bane Jakan. And they remoued from Bane Jakan, and laye at Hozgadgad. And they went fro Hozgadgad, and pitched in Jathbatha. And they remoued from Jathbatha, and laye at Abzona. And they departed fro Abzona, and laye at Ezeon gaber. And they remoued from Ezeon gaber, and pitched in the wilderness of Sin, whych is Cades.

And they remoued from Cades, and pitched in mounte Hoz, whiche is in the edge of the lande of Edom. And Aaron the preast went vnto mount Hoz at the commaundement of the Lorde, and dyed there, euen in the fourtyth yere, after the chyldren of Israel were come out of the lande of Egypte, and in the fyrst daye of y fyfth moneth. And Aaron was an hundred and xxij. yere olde when he died in mount Hoz. And king Erad the Canaanite, which dwelte in the south of the lande of Canaan, hearde of the comming of the chyldren of Israel.

And they departed from mounte Hoz, and pitched in Zalmona. And they departed from Zalmona, and pitched in Phunum. And they departed from Phunum, and pitched in Oboth. And they departed fro Oboth, and pitched in Jhabarim, and towarde the border of Moab. And they departed fro Jhabarim, and pitched in Dibon Gad. And they remoued from Dibon Gad, and laye in Almon Diblathaim. And they remoued from Almon Diblathaim, and pitched in y mountaynes of Abarim before Habo. And they departed from the mountaynes of Abarim, and pitched in the felde of Moab, fast by Jordan oueragaynst Jericho. And they pitched by Jordan, from Beth Haelmoth vnto the playne of Sittim in the felde of Moab.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the felde of Moab by Jordan oueragaynst Jericho, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say vnto them: when ye are come ouer Jordan to entre into the lande of Canaan, ye shall dryue out all the inhabitants of the lande before you, and destroye all their pictures, and breake aunder all their pynges of metall, and plucke downe all theyr altars. And possesse the lande & dwell therein, for I haue geuen you the lande to enioye it. And ye shall deuyde the enheritaunce of the land by lot amonge your kynredes, and geue to the mo the more enheritaunce, and to the fewer the lesse enheritaunce. And your enheritaunce shall be in the trybes of your fathers, euery mans enheritaunce in the place where his lot falleth.

But and yf ye will not dryue out the inhabitants of the lande before you, thā those which ye let remayne of the, shall be pricks in your eyes, and darts in your sydes, and shall bere you in the lande wherein ye dwell. Moreover, it will come to passe, that I shall do vnto you, as I thought to do vnto them.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

The coastes and borders of the lande of Canaan. Certaine men are assigned to druppe the lande.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ye come into y lade of Canaan, thys is the lande y shall fall vnto your enheritaunce, the lande of Canaan with her coastes. And y your southquarter shall be fro y wilderness alonge by the coaste of Edom, so that your southquarter reache vpon the syde of the salt see eastwarde: & set a compasse from the south vnto Acrabim: and reache to zinna. And go out from the south to Cades Barne, & go out also to hazar Adar, and go alonge to Azmon: and set a compasse agayn from Azmon vnto the ryuer of Egypte, and shall go out at the see.

And let your westquarter be the greatesee: let the same see be your westcoaste. And thys shall be your northquarter: ye shall compasse your border from the greatesee vnto mount Hoz. And from mount Hoz, ye shall describe your border, tyll it come vnto Hemoth, and the ende of the coaste shall be at zedada, and the coaste shall reache out to ziphon, and go oute at hazar Enan. Thys shall be

shalbe your northquarter.

And ye shall compass your eastquarter from Hazerthan to Sepha. And the coast shall go downe from Sepham to Ribla on the east syde of Ain. And the same border shall descende and go out at the syde of the see of Cenereth eastwarde. And then go downe alonge by Iordane, & leaue at the salt see. And thus shalbe your lade with the coastes therof rounde aboute.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel sayenge: this is the lande whiche ye shall inherite by lot, and which the Lorde commaunded to geue vnto nyne trybes and an halfe: * for the tribe of the chyldre of Ruben accordyng to the householdes of theyr fathers, and the trybe of the chyldren of Gad accordyng to theyr fathers householdes, and halfe the trybe of Manasse, haue receaued theyr enheritaunce. Two trybes and an halfe haue receaued their enheritaunce on the other syde of Iordan, oueragaynst Jericho eastwarde.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayenge: These are the names of the men, which shall deuyde the lande vnto you: Eleazar the preeste, and Josua the sonne of * Nuri. And ye shall take also a Lorde of euery trybe, when ye deuyde the lande. The names of the men are these: Of the tribe of Iuda, Caleb the sonne of Iephune. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Simcon, Semuel the sonne of Amind. Of the trybe of Ben Iamin, Elidad the sonne of Elion. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Dan, the lorde Bucki, the sonne of Jagli. From amonge the chyldren of Ioseph for the trybe of the chyldren of Manasse, the lorde haniel, the sonne of Ephod. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Ephraim, the lorde Camuel the sonne of Syphian. Of the tribe of the sonnes of Zabulon, the lorde Balzaphan the sonne of Pharnach. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Issachar, the lorde Elithiel the sonne of Asan. Of the trybe of the sonnes of Aser, the lorde Abihud the sonne of Salomi. Of the trybe of the chyldren of Rephraim, the lorde Beda El, the sonne of Ammihud. These are they whom the Lorde commaunded to deuyde the enheritaunce vnto the chyldren of Israel in the lande of Canaan.

The xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Vnto the Leuites are given cyties and suburbs. The cyties of refuge. The lawe of eu. in quelling. For one mans witness shall no man be condemned.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the felde of Moab by Iordan, oueragaynst Jericho, sayenge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel, that they geue vnto the Leuites of the enheritaunce of theyr possession, * cyties to dwell in. And ye shall geue also vnto the cyties of the Leuites, suburbs hard by theyr cyties rounde about them. The cyties shall they haue to dwell in, and the suburbs for theyr cattell, and for theyr possession and all maner of bestes of theyrs. And the suburbs of the cyties which ye shall geue vnto the Leuites, shall reache from the wall of the cytie outwarde, a thousande cubytes rounde about. And ye shall measure without the cytie of the east syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the south syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the west syde, two thousande cubytes. And of the north syde, two thousande cubytes also: and the cytie shall be in the myddes. And these shalbe the suburbs of the cyties.

And from amonge the cyties whiche ye shall geue vnto the Leuites, * there shall be syxe cyties for refuge, which ye shall appointe to that intent, that he which killeth, maye flye thither. And to them ye shall adde xlii. cyties mo: so that all the cyties whiche ye shall geue the Leuites, maye be. xlviii. with theyr suburbs. And these cyties which ye shall geue, shall be out of the possession of the chyldren of Israel. They that haue many, shall geue many. But of them that haue fewe, ye shall take fewe: Every one shall geue of hys cyties vnto the Leuites, accordyng to þ enheritaunce which he enheriteth.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: * whā ye be come ouer Iordane into the lande of Canaan, ye shall appointe you cyties to be cyties of refuge for you: that he whiche sleeth a soule vniwares, maye flye thither. And the cytie shalbe to flye from the auenger of bloude, that he whiche killeth dye not, vntyll he stande before the congregacion in iudgement. And of these syxe fre cyties whiche ye shall geue ye shall geue thre on this syde Iordan, and thre in the lande of Canaan. And these syxe fre cyties shalbe a refuge both for the chyldren of Israel, and for the straunger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you: that all they which kill any persone vniwares, maye flye thither.

* And yf any mā smyte another with an instrument of yron that he dye, then is he a murderer, and shall dye for it. If he smyte hym with a throwynge stone that a man maye dye with, and yf he dye, he that smote hym is a murderer, let the same murderer be slayne therfore. Or yf he smyte him with a handweapon of wodde that a man maye dye with, then yf he dye, he is a murderer: let the murderer be slayne therfore.

The iustice of bloude shall slaye the murderer:

therer: whan he macteth hym, he maye slaye hym. But yf the thrust at hym * of hate, or houre at him with layinge of wayte, that he dye, or smyte hym with hys hande of enuye that he dye, he that smote him shall dye, for he is a murderer. The iustice of bloude shall slaye þ murderer, as soone as he findeth hi.

But and yf he pulshed hym by chaunce and not of hate, or cast at him with any maner of thyng and not of layinge of wayte: or cast any maner of stone at him (that a man maye dye with) and sawe hym not. And he cast it vpon hym and he dye, and was not hys enemye, nether sought him any harme. The congregacion shall iudge betwene the slayer and the executer of bloude in soche cases.

And the congregacyō shall deliuer the slayer out of the hande of the auenger of bloude, and the congregacion shall restore hym agayne vnto the cytie of hys refuge, whether he was fledd. And he shall abyde there * vnto the death of the hye preeste, which was anoynted with holy oyle.

But yf the slayer come without the borders of his pzenileged cytie whether he was fledd, yf the auenger of bloude fynde him with oute the borders of hys fre towne, and slaye the murderer, he shal be gyltlesse, because he shulde haue bydden in hys fre towne vntyll the death of the hye preeste, and after þ death of the hye preeste to retourne agayne vnto the lande of his possession. These commaundementes shalbe a lawe vnto you, for youre generacions in all youre dwellinges.

Whosoener killeth a soule, þ same þ mā slayer must be slayne him selfe * thoro we witnesses. Nether shall one witnesse answer to put a man to death. Moreouer, ye shall take none amendes for the lyfe of the murderer which is worthy to dye: But he shall be put to death. Also ye shall take no money of hym that is fled to a fre cytie, that he shulde come agayne, and dwell in the lade, before the death of the hye preeste. And se that ye polute not the lande which ye shall dwell in: for bloude defyleth the lande. And the lade can none other wyle be clesed of the bloude that is shed therein, but by the bloude of hym that shed bloude. Defyle not therfore the lande which ye shall inhabyte, for I am in the myddes therof: euen I the Lorde dwell among the chyldren of Israel.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

¶ An order for the marriage of the daughters of zelaphead. One of the trybes maye not marie with another.

And the auncient fathers of the chyldren of Gilead the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the chyldre of Ioseph, came forth & spake before Moses and the prynces, and auncient fathers of the chyldren of Israel, and sayde: * The Lorde commaunded my Lord, to geue the lade to enheret by lotte to the chyldren of Israel. And my Lorde commaunded in gods behalfe, to geue the enheritaunce of * zelaphead oure brother vnto hys daughters. Whom yf any of the sonnes of the other trybes of Israel take to wyues, then shall theyr enheritaunce be take from the enheritaunce of oure fathers, and shall be put vnto the enheritaunce of the trybe which they are receaued into: and shalbe taken from the lotte of oure enheritaunce. And when the pere of iubelye of the chyldren of Israel cometh then shall theyr enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the trybe wherin to they are receaued: and so shall theyr enheritaunce be taken awaye from the enheritaunce of the trybe of oure fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel accordyng to the worde of the Lorde sayenge: the chyldren of the trybe of Ioseph haue sayd well. This therfore doeth the Lorde commaunde the daughters of zelaphead sayenge * let them be wyues to whom they the selfe thynck best, onely to the kynred and trybe of theyr father shall they marie, so that not the enheritaunce of the chyldre of Israel remoue from trybe to trybe, whan the chyldren of Israel abyde euery man in the enheritaunce of the trybe of his fathers. And euery daughter that posselleth any enheritaunce in any trybe of the chyldren of Israel, shalbe wyfe vnto one which is of the kynred of the trybe of her father, that the chyldren of Israel maye enioye euery man the enheritaunce of hys father: Nether ought the enheritaunce to go from one trybe to another: but euery one of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, must abyde in hys awne enheritaunce.

And as the Lorde commaunded Moses euen so dyd the daughters of zelaphead. And Mahela, Thirza, Hagla, Milcha and Noa were maryed vnto theyr fathers brothers sonnes, which were of the kynred of the chyldren of Manasses the sonne of Ioseph: and so theyr enheritaunce remayned in the trybe of the kynred of theyr father.

These are the commaundementes & lawes which the Lorde commaunded by the hande of Moses, vnto the chyldren of Israel in the felde of Moab by Iordane ouer agaynst Jericho.

The fyfth boke of Moses called in the hebreue: elle haddebarim, & in the Latin. Deuteronomium.

The fyfth Chapter.

Of the rebetfall of thynges done before.

These be þe wordes which Moses spake vnto all Israel, on the other syde Jordan in the wildernesse, in þe plaine oure agaynst þe redd see, betwene Pharan and Cophel, Labā, hazeroth and Dilahab, ele-uē dapes tourney fro hozch vnto Cades barne, by mount Seir. And it fortuned the fyfth daye of þe cleuenth moneth in þe fortieth yere, that Moses spake vnto the chyldre of Israel accordeinge vnto all that the Lorde had geue him in cōmāndmēt vnto the, after that he had syntrē * Schon the kyng of the Amorites which dwelt in hesbon, and Og kyng of Basā which dwelt at Astaroth in Edjai.

* Num. xxi.

On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab, begane Moses to declare thys lawe sayinge: the Lorde oure God spake vnto vs in hozch sayinge: Ye haue dwelt lōge ynough in this mount. departe therfore & take poure tourney, and go vnto the hyll of the Amoi-tes and vnto all places nye there vnto: both vnto the playne, and hylls and dales: to the south, to the leys syde, to the lande of Canaā, and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the grete ryuer Euphrates. Beholde, I haue let the land before you: goo in and * possesse the lande whych the Lorde sware vnto poure fathers Abrahā, Isaac and Jacob, to gene vnto the and theyr seede after them.

* 2ro. xlii. c.

And I spake vnto you the same ceason sayinge: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde poure God had multi-plyd you: and beholde, ye are thys daye as the starres of heauen in nombze (the Lorde God of poure fathers make you a thousande tymes so many moo as ye are, and blesse you as he hath prompyd you) howe can * I my selfe alone, beare the combrāunce, charge and stryfe that is amonge you: bynge (from amonge you) men of wysdome and of vnderstandynge, and experte, accordeynge to poure trybes, and I wyll make them ruelars ouer you: And ye answered me and sayde: that whych thou hast spoken is good for vs to do. And out of poure trybes I toke the captaynes, (men of wysdome and that were experte) and made them ruelars ouer you:

captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes ouer fyfthe and ouer ten, and offycers amonge poure trybes.

* Job. vii. a.

And I charged poure Judges that same tyme sayinge: heare the cause of poure byethre and * iudge ryghtcouly betwene euery mā and bys brother, and the straunger that is with hym. Se that ye knowe no faces in Judgemēt: * but heare the small as well as the grete, and be afrayed of no man, for the iudgement is Gods. And the cause that is to
* harde for you, bynge vnto me, and I will heare it. And I commaunded you the same ceason, all the thynges whych ye shulde do.
And when we departed fro hozch, we went thorowe all that grete and terrible wyldernesse, as ye haue sene alonge by the wape of the hyll of the Amoytes, as the Lorde oure God commaunded vs, and came to Cades Barne. And I sayde vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hyll of the Amoytes, which þe Lorde oure God wyll geue vnto vs. Beholde, the Lorde thy God hath set the lande before the:
goo vp and conquere it, as the Lorde God of thy fathers hath sayde vnto the * feare not, neither be discouraged. But ye came vnto me euery one and sayde * we wyll sende mē before vs, to iuarche vs oute the lande, and to bynge vs worde agayne, what wape we must go vpon, & vnto what cyties we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I toke twelue mē of you, of euery trybe one.
Whych departed, and went vp into the hye cōtre, and came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and serched it out, & toke of the frute of the lande
* (to declare the pleacoutnesse thereof) in theyr hādes & brought it vnto vs, and brought vs worde agayne, & sayde: it is a good lande, whych the Lorde oure God doth geue vs.

Notwithstandynge ye wolde not consente to goo vp, but were disobedient vnto the de hateth vs, therfore hath he brought vs out of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs in to the hāde of the Amoytes, and to destroye vs. howe shal we goo vpon? Dure byethre ha-this thyng ye dyd not beleue the Lorde pou-re God. He went in the wape before you, to serche you out a place to pytche poure tentes

And the Lorde hearde the voyce of poure wordes, and was wroth, & sware, sayinge:
* there shall not one of these men and of this frowarde generacyon se þe good lande which I sware to gene vnto poure fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephune, he shall se it * and to hym wyll I geue þe lāde that he hath trodden vpon, and to his chyldre, because he hath folowed the Lorde * (wonderfull was that indignacyon agayn the people, seynge that) * the Lorde was angrye wythme lyke wyse for poure sakes, sayinge: I also shall not go in thither. But Josua the sonne of Nun which standeth before the, he shall go in thither. Wolden hym therfore, for he shal cause Israel to inheret þe lan-
de. * Hozouer poure chyldre, which ye sayde shulde be a prape, and poure sonnes which in that daye had no knowlege betwene good and euill, they shal goo in thither, and vnto them wyll I geue it, and they shal enioy it.
But as for you, turne poure face, and take poure tourneye into the wildernesse: euen by the wape of the reade see. Then ye answered & sayde vnto me: * We haue synned agaynst the Lorde: we wyll go vp and fyghte, accor-dyng to all that the Lorde oure God cōmaū-ded vs. And when ye had gyde on euery mā his wepōs of warre, beholde, ye were ready to goo vp into the hyll. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: saye vnto the, that they go not vp, and that they fyghte not, for I am not among you: lest ye fall before poure enemyes I tolde you therfore, and ye wolde not heare, but disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, & went presumptuously vp into the hyll.

And the Amoytes whych dwelt in that hyll, came out agaynst you, and chased you (as bees vse to do) & smote you in Seir, euen vnto hozma. And ye came agayne, & wepte before the Lorde: but the Lorde wolde not heare poure voyce, noz geue you audience.
* And so ye abode in Cades a longe ceason, accordeinge vnto the tyme that ye remayned in other places.

ple sayinge: Ye shall go thorowe the coast of poure byethren the chyldren of Esau whych dwell in Seir, & they shal be afrayed of you:

And when we were departed from oure byethren the chyldren of Esau whych dwell in Seir, the playne wape from Elath & front Ezion Gaber, we turned & went by þe wape of the wyldernesse of Moab. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: * Thou shalt not fyghte a-gaynst the Moabites, neher prouoke the to battell, for I wyll not geue the of their lande to possesse: because I haue geue Ar vnto the chyldren of Loth to possesse. The terrible prople the * Emims dwell therein in tymes past, a people great, many & tall, as the Enakims:
whych also were taken for giannes as the Enakims: who the Moabites call Emims.
The Hozims dwell in Seir before tyme, whose possellon the chyldren of Esau occu-pyed, and destroyed the before them, & dwell in their stead: as Israel dyd vnto the lāde of his possellō, which þe Lorde gaue the. Howe ryse vp (sayd I) & get you ouer the ryuer zared: & we wet ouer the ryuer zared. The space in whych we came from Cades barne untill we were come ouer the ryuer zared, was xxxviii. yeres: vntill all the generacyon of þe men of warre were wasted out from amonge the host, as the Lorde sware vnto the. * For in dede the hande of the Lorde was agaynst them, to destroye them from amonge the host, till they were consumed.

And so it came to passe, that all the mē of warre were consumed and dede from amonge the people. And the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Thou shalt go thorow Ar the coast of Moab thys daye: and whan thou comest nye vnto the chyldren of Ammon, thou shalt not laye sege vnto them, ner moue warre a-gaynst the. For I wyll not geue the of þe lāde of the chyldren of Ammon a possellon, but I haue geuen it vnto the chyldren of Loth to possele. What also is take for a land of giātes, and giannes dwell therein in olde tyme, whom the Ammonites call zazunims. * A people that was great, many, & tall, as the Enakims.

Enakiens. But the Lord destroyed them before them, & they succeded the in the inheritance & dwelt in theyr steade: as he dyd for the children of *Eau, which dwell in Seir: when he destroyed the hozyms before them they conquered theyr posseltyon, and dwelt in theyr steade vnto this daye. And *Aluims which dwell in Hazarim euen vnto Aza, the Capthozym which came out of Capthoz destroyed them, and dwelt in theyr steade.

Repete ye vnto the Lord, and take poure iourney ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, *I haue geuen into thy hande Schon the Amozite kyng of Ihesoon, and his lande. Go to therfore and conquere, and prouoke hym to battell. This daye will I begynne to sende the feare and drede of the, vpon all nacions that are vnder all the heauen: so that they whych heare speake of the, shall tremble and quake before the.

And so I sent messengers out of the wilderness of Iedemoth vnto Schon kyng of Ihesoon, with wordes of peace, sayinge: *I will go thowowe thy lande. I will go alonge by the hye waye: I will neither turne vnto thy ryghte hande nor to the lefte. Thou shalt sell me meate for money for to eate, and geue me drinke for money for to drinke. Onely graunt me, that I maye go thowowe on my foete (as the chyldren of Eau which dwell in Seir, & the Moabites whych dwell in Ar, dyd vnto me) vntill I be come ouer Jordan, into y lande which the Lord oure God geueth vs.

But Schon the kyng of Ihesoon wolde not let vs passe by him, for the Lord thy God hardened his spere, & made his herte tough, because he wolde deliuer him into thy hande, as it is come to passe this daye.

And the Lord sayde vnto me: beholde, I haue begonne to set Schon and his lande before the: go to and conquere, and possesse his lande. *Then both Schon & all his people came out agaynst vs to fight at Iaza. And the Lord set him before vs, & we smote him and his sonnes and all his people.

And we toke all his cyties & same reason, and slue the men, women and chyldren of all the cyties, and let nothinge remayne, saue y catell onely we caught vnto oure selues, and the spoyle of the cyties which we toke, from Aror which is by the brinke of the ryuer of Arnon, & fro the cytie that is in the ryuer, vnto Gilead: there was not one cytie to ströge for vs. The Lord oure God deliuered all vnto vs: onely vnto y lande of the chyldren of Ammon thou camest not, nor vnto euery place of the ryuer Iabock, nor vnto the cyties in the mountaynes, nor vnto whatlocuer the Lord oure God forhade vs.

The. iii. Chapter.
*Thynge that chaunted from the victorie of the two kynges Schon and Og vnto the Iudith of Josue in Gilead.

When we turned & went vnto the waye to Basan. *And Og the kyng of Basan came out agaynst vs: he and all his people to battell at Edrai. And the Lord sayde vnto me: feare him not, for I will deliuer hym, & all his people and his lande into thy hande, and thou shalt do vnto him, as thou dydest vnto Schon kyng of the Amozites, which dwell at Ihesoon. And so the Lord oure God deliuered into oure handes, Og also the kyng of Basan and all his folke. And we smote him, vntill none was lefte hym alyue.

And we toke all his cyties the same reason (nether was there a cytie which we toke not from them) eue the scoze cyties thowow out all the regio of Argob, the kyngdome of Og in Basan. All these cyties also were made stronge with hye walles, gates and barres, besyde unwalled townes a greate meape. And we utterly destroyed them, as we dyd vnto Schon kyng of Ihesoon, bringyng to nought all the cyties, with men, women and chyldren. But all the catell and the spoyle of the cyties, we caught for oure selues.

And thus we toke the same reason, out of the hande of two kynges of the Amozites, the lande that was on the other syde Jordan, from the ryuer of Arnon vnto mount Hermon (whych hermon the Sidons call Syron, and the Amozites call it Seny) all the cyties that laye in the playne, and all Gilead and all Basan vnto Salecha and Edrai, cyties of the kyngdome of Og in Basan. For onely Og kyng of Basan remayned of the remanant of the gyautes, whole bed was a bed of yron. And is it not yet at Kabah amonge the chyldren of Ammon: y. cubytes doth the length therof conteyne, and foure cubytes the breadth of it, after the cubite of a man. And so we conquered this lande the same tyme, from Aror whych is by the ryuer of Arnon, vnto halfe mount Gilead, & the cities therof gaue I vnto the Rubenites and Gadites. And the rest of Gilead and all Basan of the kyngdome of Og, gaue I vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse: euen all the rygion of Argob with all Basan: which is called the lande of gyautes. Iair the sonne of Manasse toke all the region of Argob vnto the coastes of Gesuri and Maachati, and called the after his owne name: Basan haioth Iair vnto this daye. And I gaue Gilead vnto Machir. And vnto the Rubenites and Gadites I gaue halfe Gilead vnto the ryuer of Arnon, halfe the valey & beyonde, euen vnto the ryuer Iabock, which is the border of the chyldren of Ammon: the playne also (of the wilderness) and Jordan and the coast therof, fro Ceneroth euen vnto the see whych is in the playne, euen the salt see vnder the springes of the byll, eastwarde.

*And

And I commaunded you the same tyme sayinge: the Lord poure God hath geuen you this lande to enioye it: ye shall go harnessed before poure brethren the chyldren of Israel, all that are mete for the warre. Poure wyues onely, poure chyldren, and poure catell (for I wrote that ye haue moche catell) shall abyde in poure cyties which I haue geuen you, vntill the Lord haue geue rest vnto poure brethren as well as vnto you, and vntill they also haue conquered the lande, whych the Lord poure God hath geue them beyonde Jordan: and then shall ye returne agayne, euery man vnto his possession which I haue geuen you.

And I warned Josua the same tyme sayinge: thynne eyes haue sene all y the Lord poure God hath done vnto these two kynges eue so shall he do vnto all kyngdomes whycher thou goest. Ye shall not feare them, for the Lord poure God, he shall fight for you.

And I besoughte the Lord the same tyme sayinge: O Lord God, thou hast begonne to shewe thy seruante thy greatnesse and thy myghte hande, for els where is there a God in heauē or in erth, that can do after thy workes and after thy power: let me go ouer and se the good lande that is beyonde Jordan, that goodly mountayne, and Libanon.

But the Lord was angrie wyth me for poure sakes, and wolde not heare me. And y the Lord sayde vnto me: be content, speake no moare vnto me of this matter. *Set the vp into the toppes of the byll, and lyfte vp thynne eyes westwarde, northwarde, southwarde, and eastwarde, and beholde it wyth thynne eyes, for thou shalt not go ouer this Jordan. But charge Josua: and courage him, & bolde him. *For he shall go before this people, and he shall deuide vnto them the lande whych thou shalt se. And so we abode in the valey ouer agaynst the house of Deor.

The. iiii. Chapter.

An exhortacion to geue diligent hede vnto the lawe. Images maye not be made to worshippe. The thre cyties of refuge.

Now herke O Israel vnto the ordinaunces and lawes which I teache you, for to do the, that so ye maye lyue & go in and cōquere the lande, which y the Lord God of poure fathers geueth you. *Ye shall put nothinge vnto the word which I commaunde you, nether do ought therfrom, that ye maye kepe the commandementes of the Lord poure God which I commaunde you. Poure eyes haue sene what the Lord dyd vnto Baal Deor: for all the men that folowed Baal Deor, the Lord poure God hath destroyed from amonge you. But ye that cleue vnto the Lord poure God, are alpye euery one of you this daye. Behold I haue taught you ordinaunces and lawes, soch as the Lord my God commaunded me, that ye shulde do euen so in the lande, whether ye go to possesse it.

Kepe them therfore and do them, for that is poure wysdome & vnderstandynge in the syghte of the nacions: that they maye heare all these ordinaunces, and saye: Surely it is a wyse and vnderstandynge people: it is a grete nacyon. For what other nacyon is so grete, that Goddes come to nye vnto: as y the Lord oure God is nye vnto vs, in all thynge: as oft as we call vnto him: He, & what nacyon is so grete, that hath ordinaunces & lawes so righteous, as all this lawe whych I sett before you this daye?

Take hede to thy selfe therfore, and kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thynge which thynne eyes haue sene, & that they departe not out of thynne harte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but *teache them thy sonnes & thy sonnes sonnes: Specially the daye that thou stodest before the Lord thy God in Horeb, when the Lord sayde vnto me: gether me the people together, and I will make the heare my wordes, y they maye lerne to feare me all the dayes that they shall lyue vpon the erth: and that they maye teache their chyldren: ye came & and stode also vnder the byll, and the byll burnt with fyre: euen vnto the myddes of heauen, & there was darcknesse, cloudes & myst. And the Lord spake vnto you out of the myddes of the fyre, & ye herde the voyce of the wordes: but sawe no pma- ge, saue herde a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt which he commaunded you to do, euen. x. verses, which he wrote vpon two tables of stone. And the Lord commaunded me that same reason, that I shulde teach you ordinaunces and lawes, which ye ought to do in the lande whether ye go to possesse it.

Take therfore good hede vnto poure selues as pertaynyng vnto poure soules, for ye sawe no maner of ymage in the daye that the Lord spake vnto you in Horeb out of the myddes of the fyre: lest ye marre poure selues and make you a grane ymage and picture of eny maner of fygure: the lykenesse of man or woman, the lykenesse of any maner of beast that is on the erth, or the lykenesse of any maner feathered foule that flyeth in the ayre, or y lykenesse of any maner worime that creepeth on the erth, or the lykenesse of any maner fyre that is in the waters beneth y erth.

Ye and lest thou lyfte vp thynne eyes vnto heuen and when y seyst the sonne, the moone and the starrs with all the host of heauen, shuldest be deflected, and shuldest worshippe and serue the thynge, which the Lord thy God hath made to serue all nacions vnder the whole heauen.

But the Lord hath taken you, & brought you out you out of the pyron furnace: even out of Egypte, to be unto him a people and inheritance, as ye be this daye. Furthermore, the Lord was angrye with me for your sakes, and sware, that I shulde not go over Jordan, and that I shulde not go in unto that good land, which the Lord thy God geueth thee to inheritance. * But I must dye in this land, and shall not go over Jordan. But ye shall go over, and conquere that good lande.

D Take hede unto your selues, that ye forget not the appoyntment of the Lord your God whyche he made with you, and that ye make you no grauen ymage, or any picture, that the Lord thy God hath forbidden thee. * For the Lord thy God is a consuming fyre, and a gelouse God.

If thou dost beget chyldren & chyldres chyldren, & whan ye haue dwelt in the lande, ye do wickedly, & make any manner of graue ymage, and worke euell in the syghte of the Lord thy God, to prouoke him to anger, I call heauen and erth to recorde agaynst you this daye, that ye shall shortly perishe from of the lande, whether ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it: ye shall not prolonge your dayes therein. D It shall vnto you be destroyed. And the Lord shall skater you amonge the nacyns, and ye shall be lesse fewe in nombre amonge the people, whether the Lord shall bypunge you: and there ye shall serue goddes, whyche are the worke of mans hande, wood and stone, which neither se, nor heare, nor eate, nor smelle.

E And there thou shalt seke the Lord thy God: & shalt fynde hym, yf thou seke hym w all thynne herte, and with all thy soule. Whan thou art in tribulacion, and whan all these thynges (that be here spokē of) are come vnto the ende in the later dayes, thou shalt be obedient vnto his voyce. For the Lord thy God is a mercifull God: he will not forsake thee, neither destroye thee. * nor forget the appoyntment of thy fathers, which he sware vnto them.

For aske of the dayes that are past, which were before the sence the daye the Lord created man vpon the erth, and (aske) from the one syde of heauen vnto the other, yf euer there came to passe such a greate thing, or whether any soche lyke thyng hath bene herde. D yd euer a nacyn heare the voyce of God speakinge out of the myddes of a fyre, as thou hast herde, and yet lyued: ether whether God assayed to go and take hym a people from amonge nacyns thowowe temptacions, signes wondres, warre, a myghtie hande, a stretched out arme, and thowowe greate syghtes, accorpyng vnto all that the Lord your God dyd vnto you in Egypte before your eyes? D Into the it was shewed, yf thou myghtest knowe, howe that the Lord be is God, and that there is none other but he. * Out of heauen he made the heare his voyce, that he myght noutre the, and vpon erth he shewed the hys greate fyre, & thou heardest his voyce out of the myddes of the fyre. And because he loued thy fathers, he chole the pyre after them, and broughte the out in his syght, & with his myghtie power out of Egypte: to thrust out nacyns great & myghty: then thou, before the, and to bypunge the in, & to geue thee the lande to inheritance: as it is come to passe this daye.

Understande therefore this daye, & turne it to thynne herte, that the Lord, he is God in heauen above, and vpon the erth beneth: neither is there any other. Thou shalt kepe therefore his ordinaunces, and hys commaundementes which I commaunde thee this daye, that it maye go well with thee and with thy chyldren after the, & that thou mayst prolonge thy dayes vpon the erth, which the Lord thy God geueth thee thy lyfe longe.

Then Moses scuered thre cyties on the other syde Jordan towardes the sonne ryfynge, that he shulde syle thither, which had kyled hys neyghboure vnwares, & hated hym not in tyme past, & therefore shulde syle vnto one of the same cyties, and lyue: Namely, Bezer in the wyldernesse, euen in the playne contre of the trybe of Ruben: and Ramoth in Gilead of the trybe of Gad, and Golan in Basan of the trybe of Manasse.

And so this is the lawe which Moses set before the chyldren of Israel: These are the witness, statutes, and ordinaunces, which Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel after they came out of Egypte, on the other syde Jordan, in the valey ouer agaynst the house of Deoz, in the lande of Sehon kyng of the Amozites which dwelt at helbo: whom Moses and the chyldren of Israel smote, after they were come out of Egypte, & conquered hys lande, & the lande of Og kyng of Balan two kynges of the Amozites, whych were on the other syde Jordan towardes the sonne ryfynge: from Aroer whych is by the bancke of the ryuer Arnon, vnto Mount Syon whych is hermon, and all the playne on the other syde Jordaneastwarde: euen vnto the see, which is in the playne vnder the springes of the hyll.

C The. v. Chapter.
The ten commaundementes.

Ad Moses called all Israel, & layed vnto the. Heare O Israel the ordinaunces & lawes which I speake in your eares this daye, that ye maye lerne them, and fullfill them in dede. The Lord our God made an apoyntment with vs in horeb. The Lord made not this bonde with our fathers, but with vs: euen with vs, which are all here alyue this daye.

The Lord talked with you face to face in the mount, out of the myddes of the fyre. And I stode betwene the Lord and you the same tyme, and shewed you the worde of the Lord. For ye were afrayed at the syght of the fyre, and went not vp into the mount, & he sayed * I am the Lord thy God, which broughte the out of the lande of Egypte fro the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other goddes in my presence.

Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage of any manner of lykenesse yf is in heauen above and that is in erth beneth, and that is in the waters beneth the erth. Thou shalt nether bowe thy selfe vnto them, nor serue the, for I the Lord thy God, am a gelouse God, visitinge the wyckednesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen in the thyrde & fourth generation, amonge the that hate me: & the we mercye vpon thousandes, amonge them that loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vayne: for the Lord thy God will not holde him gyltlesse, yf taketh his name in vayne. Kepe the Sabboth daye, that thou sanctifye it, as the Lord thy God hath commaunded the. * Syre dayes thou shalt labour and do all that thou hast to do, but the seventh daye is the Sabboth of the Lord thy God: thou shalt not do any worke, thou and thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruante and thy mayde, thyne oxe and thyne asse, and all thy cattell, and the straunger that is within thy gates, that thy seruante & thy mayde maye rest as well as thou. Remembre, that thou wait a seruante in the lande of Egypt, and howe that the Lord thy God broughte the out thence thowowe a myghtie hande and a stretched out arme. For whyche cause the Lord thy God commaunded the, to kepe the Sabboth daye.

Honoure thy father and thy mother, as the Lord thy God hath commaunded the: yf thy dayes maye be prolonged, & that it maye go well with yf in the lande, which the Lord thy God geueth thee.

Thou shalt not slaye.
* Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.
* Thou shalt not steale.
* Thou shalt not beare false witness agaynst thy neyghboure.
* Thou shalt not luste after thy neyghbours wyfe: yf shalt not couet thy neyghbours house, hys felde, hys seruante, or hys mayde, hys oxe, hys asse, or ought that thy neyghboure hath. These wordes the Lord spake vnto all your multitude in the mount out of the myddes of the fyre, cloude and darcknesse, with a greate voyce, added nomore therto, and wrote them in two tables of stone, and deliuered them vnto me.

And it fortuneth, that whan ye herde the voyce out of the myddes of the darcknesse, & sawe that the hill dyd burne with fyre, ye came vnto me with the captaynes of your tribes and your elders: and ye sayde: behold, the Lord our God hath shewed vs his glorye and his greatnesse, & we haue herde his voyce out of the myddes of the fyre: we haue sene this daye, that God doth talke with a man, and he yet lyueth. Nowe therefore, why shulde we dye, that this greate fyre shulde consume vs? It we heare the voyce of the Lord our God any moare, we shall dye. For what shal the laster bene, that euer hearde the voyce of the luyng God speakinge out of the myddes of the fyre (as we haue done) and yet dyd lyue? So thou and here all that the Lord our God sayeth, and tell thou vnto vs all that the Lord our God sayeth vnto the: and we will heare it and do it.

And the Lord hearde the voyce of your wordes whan ye spake vnto me, & the Lord sayde vnto me: I haue herde the voyce of the wordes of this people, which they haue spoken vnto the, they haue well sayed all yf they haue spoken. * Wh yf ther were such an hert in the yf they wolde feare me, & kepe all my commaundementes alwaye, that it myghte go wel with them, and with theyr chyldren for euer. So and saye vnto them: gett you into your tentes agayne, but stande thou here by me, and I will tell the all the commaundementes, ordinaunces and lawes, which thou shalt teache them, that they maye do them in the lande which I geue them to possesse.

Take hede therefore, that ye do in dede as the Lord your God hath commaunded you, & turne not asyde: ether to the ryghte hande or to the left: but walke in all yf wayes which the Lord your God hath commaunded you, that ye maye lyue, and that it maye go well with you, and that ye maye prolonge your dayes, in the lande which ye shall possesse.

C The. vi. Chapter.
The lawe of God maye not be forgotten.

These are the commaundementes, ordinaunces and lawes which the Lord your God commaunded me to teach you that ye might do them in the lande whether ye go to possesse it: namely, yf thou myghtest * feare the Lord thy God, and kepe all hys ordinaunces and hys commaundementes whych I commaunde the: thou and thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne all dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be prolonged. Heare therefore. O Israel, and take hede, that thou do thereafter, that it maye go well with the, and that ye maye encrease myghtely, eue as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promysed the a lande, that floweth with mylke and hony.

* Hear e

M * heare O Israel, the Lorde oure God is Lorde only, and * thou shalt loue the Lorde thy God with all thyne harte, & with all thy soule, & with all thy might. * And these wordes which I commaunde the this daye, shalbe in thine herte, and thou shalt shewe the vnto thy chyldren, and shalt talke of them when thou art at home in thyne house, and as thou walkest by the waye, and when thou lvest downe, and when thou ysest vp: and thou shalt hynde the for a sygne vpon thine hande. And they shalbe warnynges betwene thyne eyes and thou shalt write them vpon the postes of thy house and vpon thy gates.

And whē the Lord thy God hath brought the into the lande, whych he swaue vnto thy fathers, Abrahā Israhac and Jacob, and geueth the greates & goodly cyties whych thou haddest not, houses full of all maner of goodes whych thou fyldest not, and welles dygged whych thou dyggedest not, vineyardes & olive trees whych thou planteyst not, and when thou hast eaten & art full: Then beware, lest thou forget the Lorde, whych brought the oute of the lande of Egypte from the house of bondage. * Thou shalt feare the Lorde thy God, & serue him, and * swere by his name: Se that ye walcke not after straunge goddes: the goddesses of the nacjons which are aboute you. For the Lorde thy God is a gelouse God amonge you, lest the countenance of the Lorde thy God be moued to wrath agaynst the, and destroye the from of the erth.

* Ye shall not tempte the Lorde your God as ye dyd in the tentacyon. But kepe the commaundmentes of the Lorde your God, and hys witnesses and his ordinauces whych he hath commaunded the, and thou shalt do that which is right and good in the syghte of the Lorde: that thou mayst prospere, and that thou mayst go in, and coquere that good lade whych the Lorde swaue vnto thy fathers, to cast oute all thyne enemyes before the as the Lorde hath sayed.

* And whē thy sonne asketh the in tyme to come, sayinge: What meaneth these witnessess, ordinauces & lawes, whych the Lorde oure God hath comaunded you? Then thou shalt saye vnto thy sonne: We were Pharaos bondmen in Egypte, and the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte with a myghtie hāde. And the Lorde shewed signes & wondres greates & euell vpon Egypte, vpon Pharaos & vpon all hys household, before oure eyes, but brought vs oute from thence: to bypunge vs in, and to geue vs the lande whych he swaue vnto oure fathers. And he hath commaunded vs, to do all these ordinauces, and to feare the Lorde oure God, for oure welch all the dayes of our lyfe, as it is come to passe this daye. Moreover this shalbe oure ryghteousnes before the Lorde oure God, yf we take hede & kepe all these commaundmentes, as he hath commaunded vs.

The vii. Chapter.

The Israelites maye make no couenaunt with the Gentyles. They must destroye theyr Idollies. Idolatres must be slayne.

When the Lord thy God hath brought the into the lande whych he hath cast out many nacjons before the: namely, the Hethites, the Gergesites, the Amozites, the Cananites, the Peresites, the Heuites & the Jebusites, fewe nacjons greater, and myghtier than thou * and whē the Lorde thy God hath sett them before the, thou shalt smyte them, & utterly destroye them, and make no couenaunt with them, nor haue compassyon on them. Thou shalt make no mariages with them, neither geue thy daughter vnto hys sonne, nor take hys daughter vnto thy sonne. For they will disceane thy sonne, that he shuld not feare me, and they shall serue straunge goddes, and then will the wrath of the Lorde waxe whote agaynst you, and destroye you shortly.

But thus ye shall deale with them: * Ye shall ouerthrowe theyr alters, & breake downe theyr pylers, cut downe theyr groues, and burne theyr graue pynges with fyre. * For thou art an holy nacjon vnto the Lorde thy God: the Lorde thy God hath cholen the, to be a seuerall people vnto hym selfe, aboute all nacjons that are vpon the erth. It was not because of the multitude of you aboute all nacjons, that the Lorde had lust vnto you and chose you, for ye were fewest of all nacjons. But because the Lorde loued you, and because he wolde kepe the * othe whych he had sworne vnto your fathers, therfore hath the Lorde brought you oute of Egypte thowrowe a myghtie hande, & deliuered you out of the house of bondage: euen from the hande of Pharaos kynge of Egypte.

Understande therfore, that the Lorde thy God he his God, & that a true God * whych kepeth poyntmet and mercy vnto them that loue hym & kepe his commaundmentes, enethowse out a thousande generacions: and rewardeth the that hate him & before hys face, so that he byngeth them to naught, and doth not deferre y tyme, but rewardeth him that hateth hym, before his face. Kepe y therfore the commaundmentes, and ordinauces and lawes, whych I comaunde the this daye that thou do them.

* If ye herken vnto these lawes, and obserue & do them, the Lorde thy God also shall kepe vnto the y poyntement, and the mercy whych he swaue vnto thy fathers. He will loue the, & blesse the, & multiplye the: he will also blesse the frute of thy wombe, and the frute of frute of thy londe, thy corne, thy wyne and thyne oyle, & the frute of thine oxē, & the flockes of thy shepe in the lande, whych he swaue vnto thy fathers to geue the. Thou shalt be blessed aboue all nacjons: there shalbe neither man nor woman vnfrutefull amonge you, nor any thing vnfrutefull amonge your catell. Moreover y Lorde will * take a waye from the all maner infirmityes, and will put none of the euell diseases * of Egypte (whiche thou knowest) vpon the, but will sende them vpon all them that hate the.

Thou shalt consume all the nacjons which the Lorde thy God shall deliuer the: thyne eye shall haue no pytie vpon them, neither shalt thou serue theyr goddes, for that shalbe thy decaye. If thou saye in thyne herte: these nacjons are moo than I, howe can I cast them out? * Thou shalt not feare them, but remēbre, what the Lorde thy God dyd vnto Pharaos and vnto all Egypte: the greates temptacions whych thyne eyes sawe, and the sygnes, and wondres, and the myghtie hande and stretched out arme, where thowose the Lorde thy God brought the out: eue so shall the Lorde thy God do vnto all the nacjons, of whom thou art afrayed.

* Moreover the Lorde thy God will sende hoznettes amonge them vntill they that are leste, and hyde them selues from the, be destroyed. Thou shalt not feare them, for the Lorde thy God is amog you, a myghtie God and a terrible. For the Lorde thy God will put out these nacjons before the by a lytle & a lytle * thou mayst not consume them at once, lest the bestes of the felde encrease vpon the. But the Lorde thy God shall geue the mouer before the, and shall destroye the with a myghtie tempest, vntill he haue brought the to naught. * And he shall deliuer theyr kynages in to thyne hāde, and thou shalt destroye their name from vnder heauen. There shall no man be able to stande before the, vntill thou haue destroyed them. The graue pynges of theyr goddesses shalt thou burne with fyre, & * conel not the golde and syluer that is on the, nor take it vnto the, lest thou be snared ther in. For it is an abhominacyō before the Lorde thy God. Bypunge not therfore abhominacyō in to thyne house, lest thou be a damned thyng, as it is: but utterly defye it and vhoore it, for it is a damned thyng.

The viii. Chapter.

Moses putteth the Israelites in remembrance what God hath done to them in the wilderness.

All the commaundmentes whych I comaunde the this daye, shall ye kepe for to do the, that ye maye lyue and multiplie and go in, and possesse the lade whych the Lorde swaue vnto your fathers. And thou shalt thynke on all the waye, which the Lorde thy God ledd the this xl. yere in the wilderness, for to humble the, & to proue the, & to wete what was in thyne herte, whether thou woldest kepe hys commaundmentes or no, he * humbled the, and suffred the to hunger, and fedd the with Māna, whych neither thou nor thy fathers knewe of, to make the knowe, that * a man doth not lyue by bread only: but by euery * word that pcedeth out of the mouth of the Lorde, both a man lyue. * Thy raymēt waxed not olde vpon the, neither dyd thy fote swell these xl. yeres.

Thys also shalt thou consyde in thyne herte, that as a man nourtereth hys soune, euen so the Lorde thy God nourtereth the. Therfore shalt thou kepe the comaundmentes of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and feare hym. For the Lorde thy God bypungeth the into a good lande, a lande in the whych are ryuers of water, and fontayns and springes that springe out of valleyes and hylls: a lande wherin is wheat & barley, vyneyardes, figgtrees and pōganaues: a lande wherin is oyle olyue and hony: a lande, wherin thou shalt eate bread wythout skarcenelle, neither shalt thou lacke anye thyng: a lade * whose stones are yron, & out of whose hylls thou shalt dygge brasle. When thou hast eaten therfore and fylled thy selfe, thou shalt blesse the Lorde thy God in y good lande, whych he hath geuen the.

Beware, that thou forgett not the Lorde thy God, that thou woldest not kepe hys commaundmentes, hys lawes & his ordinauces whych I comaunde the this daye * yee & when thou hast eaten, and fylled thy selfe, & hast bylt goodly houses & dwelt therein, and when thy bestes, and thy shepe are wated manye, and thy syluer & golde is multiplied, and all that y hast is encreased, then beware, lest thyne herte ryle & thou forgett the Lorde thy God, whych brought the out of the lade of Egypte, and from the house of bondage, & whych was thy gyde in the greates and terrible wilderness (wherin were) fyre serpentes, scorpiōs, and drouth without any water. But he brought out water for the, euen out of the rocke of synt: he fedd y in the wilderness wyth Māna, whych thy fathers knewe not, euen for to humble the, and to proue the, and that he myght so do the good at thy later ende.

Lest thou shuldest saye in thyne herte * my power & the might of myne awne hāde hath prepared me this abundance: But remēbre the Lorde thy God, howe y it is he whych geneth the power to get substaunce, for to make good the promesse whych he swaue vnto thy fathers, as this daye doth wytnesse.

And yf thou forgett the Lorde thy God, and walke after straunge * goddes, and serue them them, & worſhippe them. I teſtifie vnto you this daye, that he ſhall ſurely perſiſh. As the nations whych the Lorde deſtroyeth before you, euē ſo ye ſhall perſiſhe, becauſe ye wolde not be obedient vnto the voyce of the Lorde poure God.

The ix. Chapter.

¶ They are forbidden to truſt in theyr ſtrength.

I Care O Iſrael, I paſſeſt ouer Jordan thys daye, to go in, and conquere nacyns greates & myghtier then thy ſelfe: cyties greates and walled vnto heauen, & people greates and tall, euen the chyldren of the Enakims, whych thou knoweſt of, and of who thou haſt herde ſaye: who wyll ſtāde before the chyldren of Enack? Underſtāde therfore thys daye, that the Lorde thy God is euen he whych goeth ouer before theaſa & deſtroye them and he ſhall bypunge the downe before thy face. He ſhall caſt them out, & bypunge them to nought quickly, as the Lorde hath ſayed vnto the.

Speake not thou in thyne hert (after that the Lorde thy God hath caſt them out before the) ſayinge: for my ryghteouſnes the Lorde hath brought me in, to poſſeſſe thys lande. Nay, but for the wyckedneſſe of theſe nacyns the Lorde hath caſt them out before the. It is not for thy righteouſnes ſake or for thy ryght hert, that thou goeſt to poſſeſſe theſe lāde. ¶ But for the wyckedneſſe of theſe nations, the Lorde thy God doth caſt them out before the, euē to perſorme the worde, whych the Lorde thy God ſware vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob.

Underſtāde therfore that it is not for thy ryghteouſnes ſake, that the Lorde thy God doth geue the thys good lande to poſſeſſe it ſeynge thou art a ſtiffnecked people. Remēbre & forget not, howe thou prouokedeſt the Lorde thy God in the wylderneſſe, ſence the daye I thou dyddeſt departe out of the lāde of Egypte vntill ye came vnto thys place, ye haue rebelled agaynſt the Lorde. ¶ Alſo in Horeb ye angred the Lorde, ſo that the Lorde was wroth wth you, euē to haue deſtroyed you, whan I was gone vp into the mount, to receaue the tables of ſtone, the tables of appoyntment, whych the Lorde made with you. And I abode in the hyll .xl. dayes & .xl. nyghtes, whan I nether dyd eate bread nor drinke water. ¶ And the Lorde deliuered me two tables of ſtone, wyrtē with the ſpynger of God, & in them was accordynge to all the wordes whych the Lorde ſayed vnto you in the moūt out of the myddes of the fyze in the daye, of the gatherynge together.

And whē the .xl. dayes & .xl. nyghtes were ended, the Lorde gaue me the two tables of ſtone, the tables of the couenaunt, and the Lorde ſayde vnto me. ¶ And I get the downe quickly fro hence, for thy people whych thou haſt broughte out of Egypte, haue marred all. ¶ They are turned attōce out of the waye, whiche I commaūded them, and haue made the a molten ymage. ¶ Furthermoze, the Lorde ſpake vnto me ſayinge: I haue ſene thys people, and beholde, it is a ſtiffnecked people, let me alone, that I maye deſtroye the, and put out the name of them fro vnder heauen, and I wyll make of the a myghtie nacyn, & greater than they be.

And I turned me, and came downe from the hyll (euen from the hyll that burnt wth fyze) and the two tables of the appoyntment were in my handes. And I looked, & beholde, ye had ſynned agaynſt the Lorde your God, & had made you a molten calfe, and had turned attōce out of the waye whych the Lorde had commaūded you. ¶ And I toke the two tables and caſt them out of my two handes, and brake them before poure eyes. ¶ And I fell downe flat before the Lorde: euen as at the fyrſt tyme, and .xl. dayes & .xl. nyghtes I dyd nether eate bread nor drinke water, becauſe of all poure ſynnes, whych ye ſynned, in doyng wyckedly in the ſyght of the Lorde in that ye prouoked hym vnto wraoth. ¶ For I was afrayed that for the wraoth & fearneſſe wher wth the Lorde was moued agaynſt you, he wolde haue deſtroyed you. But the Lorde herde me at that tyme alſo.

The Lorde was very angrey wth Aaron alſo, euen to haue deſtroyed hym: & I made interceſſion for Aaron alſo the ſame tyme. And I toke poure ſynne the calfe whych ye had made and burnt hym with fyze, & ſtamped hym & grounde hym a good, euen vnto ſmal duſt. And I caſt the duſt therof into the brooke, that deſcēded out of the mounte. ¶ Alſo at the burnynge, & at the tentacyon, and at the ſepulchres of luſt ye angred the Lorde, lyke wyſe when the Lorde ſent you from Cadan Barne, ſayinge, go vp, and conquere the lande whych I haue geue you: ye diſobeyed the mouth of the Lorde poure God, and nether beleued him, nor hearkened vnto his voyce. Ye haue bene diſobedient vnto the Lorde, ſence the daye that I knewe you.

And I fell downe flat before the Lorde .xl. dayes, and .xl. nyghtes whiche I laye there, for the Lorde ſayde, that he wolde deſtroye you. I made interceſſion therfore vnto the Lorde, and ſayed: O Lorde God, deſtroye not thy people & thyne inheritaunce, whych thou haſt deliuered thowow thy greatneſſe, and whych thou haſt brought out of Egypte thowowe a myghtie hand. Remēbre thy ſeruauntes Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob, and loke not vnto the ſtoburneſſe of this people, ner to theyr wyckedneſſe & ſynne: leſt the lāde whence whence thou broughteſt the, ſaye: The Lorde is not able to bypunge them in to the lāde, whych he promyſed them: and becauſe he hated them, therfore hath he carped them out, to ſlaye them in the wylderneſſe. Beholde, they are thy people, and thyne inheritaunce, whych thou broughteſt out in thy myghtie power and in thy ſtretched out arme.

The x. Chapter.

¶ The renewinge of the tables. An exhortacion to geue hebe to the lawe.

In the ſame reaſon the Lorde ſayde vnto me: he we two tables of ſtone lyke vnto the fyrſt, and come vp vnto me in to the mount, & make the an Arcke of wood, & I will wyrtē in the tables, the wordes I were in the fyrſt tables whych thou braueſt, & thou ſhalt put them in the arcke. And I made an arcke of ſethim wood, and hewed two tables of ſtone like vnto the fyrſt, and went vp in to the mountayne, hauynge the two tables in myne hande.

And he wrote in the tables: accordynge to the fyrſt wyrtynge (the ten verſes whiche the Lorde ſpake vnto you in the mount out of the myddes of the fyze, in the daye of the gatherynge together) and the Lorde gaue the vnto me. And I departed, and came downe from the hyll, and put the tables in the arcke whych I had made: and there they be, as the Lorde commaūded me.

¶ And the chyldren of Iſrael toke theyr iourney from Bereth of the chyldren of Iſrael to Horeb, where Aaron dyed, and was buried, and Eleazar his ſonne became preaſt in hys ſtead. ¶ Fro thence they departed vnto Gadgad: & from Gadgad to Iathbath a lād whych hath riuer of water. ¶ ¶ The ſame reaſon the Lorde ſeparated the tribe of Leui to beare the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde, & to ſtāde before the Lorde, & to miniſtre vnto hym & to bleſſe in his name vnto thys daye. ¶ ¶ Wherfore the Leuites haue no parte nor inheritaunce wth theyr brethern: But the Lorde is theyr inheritaunce, as the Lorde thy God hath promyſed them.

¶ And I carped in the mount, euen as at the fyrſt tyme .xl. dayes and .xl. nyghtes, and the Lorde hearkened vnto me at that tyme alſo, & the Lorde wolde not deſtroye the. And the Lorde ſayde vnto me: vp, and go forth in the iourneys before the people, I they maye go in, and conquere the lande whych I ſware vnto theyr fathers, to geue vnto them.

And now Iſrael, what doth the Lorde thy God requier of the? but to feare the Lorde thy God, and to walke in all hys wayes, to loue hym, and to ſerue the Lorde thy God with all thyne herte & with all thy ſoule: namely, that thou kepe the commaundmentes of the Lorde, and hys ordinaunces whych I comaūde the thys daye, for thy welth. Beholde, heauen and the heauen of heuens is the Lordes thy God, and the erth wth all therein is: Not wythſtōdnyng, the Lorde had a luſt vnto thy fathers to loue the, and choſe theyr ſeed after them, euen you, aboue all nacyns, as thou ſeeſt thys daye.

¶ ¶ Circumcyſe therfore the foreskyne of D poure harte, and be no moze ſtiffnecked: ¶ For the Lorde your God, is God of Goddes, and Lorde of Lordes, a greates God, a myghtie and a terrible: whych regardeth no man perſon nor taketh gyfte: he doeth ryght vnto the fatherleſſe & wedowe, and loueth the ſtraunger, to geue hym ſode and rayment. ¶ ¶ Loue ye therfore the ſtraunger alſo: for ye were ſtraungers poure ſelues in the lande of Egypte. ¶ ¶ Thou ſhalt feare the Lorde thy God, & hym (onely) ſhalt thou ſerue, to hym ſhalt thou cleue, and ſwere by hys name: he is thy prayſe and thy God, that hath done for the theſe greates and terrible thynges, whych thyne eyes haue ſene. ¶ Thy fathers wet downe in to Egypte with .lxx. ſoules, and nowe the Lorde thy God hath made the & multiplied the, as the ſtarres of heauen.

The xi. Chapter.

¶ An exhortacion to regarde the lawe.

I herfore thou ſhalt loue the Lorde thy God & kepe his obſeruaunces, his ordinaunces, hys lawes, & his commaūdments alwaye. Call to your mynde this daye that whych poure chyldren haue nethe knowne nor ſene: euen the noureure of the Lorde poure God, hys greatneſſe, hys myghte hāde, and hys ſtretched out arme: his myracles and hys actes whych he dyd in the myddes of Egypte, euen vnto Pharao the kynge of Egypte and vnto all hys lande: & what he dyd vnto the hoſt of Egypt, vnto theyr horſes & charettes: howe he brought the water of the red ſee vpon them as they chaſed you behynde, & howe the Lorde hath brought them to nought vnto thys daye: & what he dyd vnto you in the wylderneſſe, vntill ye came vnto thys place: & what he dyd vnto *athan and Abiram the ſonnes of Eliab the ſonne of Rubē, howe the erth opened byr month, and ſwalowed them, wth theyr houſholdes and theyr ſteves, & all theyr ſubſtance that was in theyr poſſeſſion, in the myddes of Iſrael.

¶ Doubtles, poure eyes haue ſene all the greates actes of the Lorde whych he dyd. ¶ Therfore ſhall ye kepe all the comaūdmentes, whych I commaūde the thys daye, that ye maye be ſtronger & go in and conquere the lande whether ye go to poſſeſſe it, & that ye maye prōloge poure dayes in the lāde whych

h i the

the Lorde sware vnto your fathers, to geue vnto them and to theyr seed, a lande that floweth with mycke and honye. * For the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, is not as the lande of Egypte y^e came out of, where thou sowedst thy seed and wateredst it with thy fete as a garden of herbes: but the lande whither ye go ouer to possesse it, is a lande that hath hylls and valeys, and dryneth water of the rayne of heauē. Thys lande both the Lorde thy God care for, & the eyes of the Lorde thy God are alwayes vpon it, from the begynnyng of the yere, vnto the ende of the yere.

If you shall herken therfore vnto my commaundementes, whych I commaunde you thys daye, that ye loue the Lorde your God & serue him with all your herte, & with all your soule. * I also will geue rayne vnto your lande in due season: the fyrst rayne and the later, that thou mayest gather in thy corne, thy wyne & thyne oyle. And I will sende grasse in thy felde for thy cattell: that thou mayest eate, and fyll thy selfe. But beware that your herte deceaue you not & ye turne asyde, and serue straunge Goddes, and worshipp them, and then the Lorde beyng wroth agaynst you, * putt v^y the heauen, & there be no rayne, and that your lande yelde not her frute, and lest ye perishe quickly from of the good lande, whych the Lorde geueth you.

Therfore shall ye put v^y these my wordes in * your herte and in your soule, & bynde the for a sygne vpon your hande, that they maye be as a warninge betwene your eyes, and ye shall * teach them your children that they maye talke of them, when thou syttest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the waye: when thou lyste downe, & when thou ryste vp: yee and thou shalt wyte the v^y the doze postes of thine house, and vpon thy gates, that your dayes maye be multiplied, & the dayes of your chylde, in y^e land whych the Lorde sware vnto your fathers to geue them, as long as the dayes of heauen last vpon the erth. For * y^e kepe all these commaundementes, whych I commaund you so that ye do them: Namely, that ye loue the Lorde your God, & walke in all his wayes, and cleaue vnto him, Then will the Lorde cast out all these nacpons before you, and ye shall be the hepyes of great nacions and of the that are myghty then your selues. * All the places where on the soles of your fete shall treade, shall be your es, euen fro the wilderness and from Libanno, & fro the riuere Euphrates, eue vnto the vttemost see, shall your coaste be. There shall no man be able to stand before you: for the Lorde your God shall cast the feare & drede of you vpon all the lande that ye shall treade vpon, as he hath sayde vnto you. K

* Beholde, I set before you thys daye, a blessing & a curse: a blessing: y^e ye obeye the commaundementes of the Lorde your God whych I commaunde you thys daye. And a curse: y^e ye wyll not obeye the commaundementes of the Lorde your God: but turne out of the waye, whych I commaunde you thys daye, to go after straunge goddes, whych ye haue not knowne.

When the Lorde thy God therfore hath brought the in to the lande, whether y^e goest to possesse it, thou shalt put the * blessing vpon mount Garizim, & the curse vpon mount Ebal, whych (mountaynes) are on the other syde Jordan on the backe syde of the waye toward the goynge doune of the sonne, in y^e lande of the Canaanites whych dwel in the playne ouer agaynst Gilgal by syde the groue of Moreh. For ye shall passe ouer Jordan, to go in, and possesse the lande, whych the Lorde your God geueth you, and ye shall coquer it, & dwell therein. Take hede therfore that ye do all the commaundementes and lawes, whych I set before you thys daye.

Chap. xii. Chapter.

Abolatre must the Altarites destroye and flee from. They must onely do that thynge whych God commaundeth.

These are the ordinaunces and lawes whych ye shall obserue and do in the lande, whych the Lorde God of thy fathers geueth the to possesse it, as long as ye lyue vpon the erth. * Ye shall destroye all places where in the nacions whych ye shall conque- re serued their Goddes, vpon hye mountaynes, on hylls, and vnder euery thynke tree. Quertrowe theyr alters, and breake theyr pilers, and burne their groues with fyre and hewe downe the graue ymagis of the Goddes that they haue, and bringe the names of them to noughte out of y^e place. * Ye shall not do so vnto the Lorde your God, but ye shall seke the place, whych the Lorde your God shall haue chosen out of all your trybes, to put hys name there, & there to dwell. And * thither thou shalt come, and thither ye shall bypunge your burnt sacrifices, your offrynges, your tythes, and heue offrynges of your harte, your vowes, your frewill offrynges and the fyrst gendred of your oxe and of your shepe. And there ye shall eate before the Lorde your God, & ye shall reioyse in all that ye put your hande vnto both ye and your householdes, wherein the Lorde thy God hath blessed the.

Ye shall not do after all the thynges y^e we do here thys daye, euery man what semeth hym good in hys awne eyes. For ye are not yet come to rest, & to the inheritaunce, whych the Lorde your God geueth you. But whā ye go ouer Jordan, and dwell in the lande whych whych the Lorde your God hath geuen you to inheret, and whan he hath geuen you rest fro all your enemyes rounde aboute, so that ye dwell in safete, then vnto y^e place whych the Lorde your God hath chosen, to put his name there, ye shall bypunge all that I commaunde you: Namely, your burnt sacrifices, your offrynges, your tythes, the heue offrynges of your hande, & all your speciall vowes, whych ye vowe vnto the Lorde. And ye shall reioyse before the Lorde your God, ye and your sonnes, & your daughters, your seruantes and your maydes, and the Leuite that is wythin your gates * for as moch as he hath no parte nor inheritaunce wyth you.

Take hede that thou offer not thy burnt-offrynges in euery place y^e thou seest: but in the place whych the Lorde shall haue chosen in one of thy trybes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt-offrynges, and there thou shalt do all that I commaunde the. Not wythstandynge thou mayest kyl and eate fleshe in all thy cyties, whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth after, accordynge to the blessinge of the Lorde thy God, whych he hath geuen the * both the vncleane and the cleane may eat therof, eue as the roo, or the hert: only ye shall not eate the bloud, but powze it vpon the erth as water. Thou mayest not eate wythin thy gates the tithe of thy corne, of thy wyne and of thy oyle, and the fyrst gendred of thine oxen, and of thy shepe, neither any of thy vowes whych thou vowest, nor thy frewill offrynges or heue offrynges of thine hande: but thou must eate them before the Lorde thy God, in the place whych the Lorde thy God hath chosen: thou, and thy sonne, and thy daughter, thy seruante and thy mayde, & the Leuite that is wythin thy gates: and thou shalt reioyse in all that thou puttest thine harte to. * Beware, that thou forsake not the Leuite, as long as thou lyuest vpon the erth.

If (when the Lorde thy God hath enlarged thy border as he hath promised y^e) thou saye: I will eate fleshe, because thy soule longeth to eate fleshe: * mayest eate fleshe whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth. If the place whych the Lorde thy God hath chosen to put his name there, be so farre from the, the thou shalt kyl of thy oxen & of thy shepe whych y^e Lorde hath geuen the, as I haue commaunded the, & thou shalt eate in thine awne cytie, whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth. * And as the roo & the herte is eaten, eue so thou shalt eate the: both the cleane and the vncleane shall eate of them. But be strōge * that thou eate not the bloude. For the bloude, that is the lyfe, and thou mayest not eate the lyfe wyth the fleshe: thou shalt not eate it, but powze it vpon the erth as water. Se thou eate it not, that it maye go well wyth the, and wyth thy chylde after the: But thou shalt do that, whych is ryght in the syghte of the Lorde.

But * thy holye thynges whych thou hast, and thy vowes * thou shalt take, & come vnto the place whych the Lorde hath chosen, and thou shalt offer thy burnt-offrynges, both fleshe and bloude vpon the alter of the Lorde thy God, and the bloude of thine offrynges shall be powzed out vpon the alter of the Lorde thy God, & thou shalt eate the fleshe. Take hede, & heare all these wordes whych I commaunde the, that it maye go well wyth the, and wyth thy chylde after the for euer, y^e thou doest that whych is good and ryght in the syghte of the Lorde thy God.

When the Lorde thy God hath destroyed the nacpons before the, whether thou goest to conqueere them, & thou succeedest in theyr inheritaunce, and dwellest in theyr lande: Beware, that thou be not taken in a snare after them, after that they be destroyed before the, and that thou aske not after theyr Goddes, sayinge: howe dyd these nacpons serue their Goddes? I will do so lyke wise. * Nay, thou shalt not do so vnto the Lorde thy God: for all abhominacions, & y^e whych the Lorde hateth, the same haue they done vnto theyr Goddes. For they burne both theyr sonnes and theyr daughters wyth fyre before theyr Goddes. Therfore whatsoeuer I commaunde you, that take hede ye do * (onely, vnto the Lorde) and * put thou nought thereto, nor take ought therfrom.

Chap. xlii. Chapter.

The false prophete must be put to death. God p^roueth our sayth by false prophetes.

If there a ryse amonge you a * prophete or a dreamer of dreames, and geue the a sygne, or a wonder whych he hath sayde come to passe, and then saye: let vs go after straunge Goddes whych thou hast not knowne, and let vs serue the: herken not thou vnto the wordes of that prophete or dreamer of dreames. * For the Lorde thy God proueth you, to wete whether ye loue the Lorde your God wyth all your herte and with all your soule. Ye shall walke after the Lorde your God, and feare him, kepe his commaundementes, and herke vnto hys voyce, serue him, and cleaue vnto hym. * And y^e prophete or dreamer of dreames shall dye, because he hath spoken to turne you awaye from the Lorde your God, (whych brought you out of the lande of Egypte, and deliuered you out of the house of bondage) to thrust the out of the waye, whych the Lorde thy God commaunded the to walke in: and therfore thou shalt put y^e euell awaye from the.

It is If thy

If thy brother, the sonne of thy mother, or thyne awne sonne, or thy daughter, or the wyfe that lyeth in thy bosome, or thy frende which is as thyne awne soule vnto the, entice secretly, saying: let vs go & serue straunge Goddes, whych thou hast not knowen nor yet thy fathers. And they be of the Goddes of the people which are rounde aboute you, whether they be nye vnto the or farre of fro the, from the one ende of the erth vnto the other. Thou shalt not consente vnto him, nor herke vnto him: thine eye shall not pitie him neither shalt thou haue compassion on him, nor kepe him secret: but cause him to be slayne. Thyne hande shall be fyrst vpon him to kyl him: & then the handes of all the people. And thou shalt stone him with stones that he dye, because he hath gone aboute to thrust awaye from the Lorde thy God, which brought the out of the lande of Egypte, and from the house of bondage. And all Israel shall heare and feare, and shall do no moare any soche wickednesse as this is, amonge you.

If thou shalt heare saye in one of thy cyties which the Lorde thy God hath geue the to dwell in, that certen men beyng the chyl- dzen of Belial, are gone out from amonge you, and haue moued the inhabitants of their cytie, sayinge: let vs go and serue straunge Goddes, which ye haue not knowen. Then thou must seeke, and make serche and enquire diligently. And behold, if it be true, and the thyng of a suretye, that soche abhominacio is wrought among you: then thou shalt smyte the dwellers of that cytie in the edge of the swerde, and destroye it vterly, and all that is therein, and enue the very catell therof with the edge of the swerde. And gether all the spoyle of it into the wyddes of the streete therof, and burne with fyre both the cytie & all the spoyle therof euery whyle for the Lorde thy God. And it shall be an heape for euer & shall not be bylt agayne. * And there shall cleane naught of the damned thyng in thine hande, that the Lorde maye turne from the fiercenesse of hys wrath, and shewe the mercye, and haue compassion on the, and multiplye the, as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers. * Therefore shalt thou herke vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe all hys commandmentes, whych I commaunde the this daye, if thou do it, which is ryght in the eyes of the Lorde thy God:

The xxiij. Chapter.

The maners of the gentyles maye not be folowed. What beastes are cleane to be eaten, and what not.

Are the chylde of the Lorde your God. * Ye shall not cut poure selues, nor make you any baldnes betwene poure eyes for any deed man. * For thou art an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God, and the Lorde hath chosen the, to be a seuerall people vnto hym selfe, aboue all the nacys that are vpon the erth.

Thou shalt *eate no maner of abhominacio. These are the beastes which ye shall eate of oxen, shepe and goates, hert, roo and bugle: wildegoate, vnicorne, wilde oxen & camelis. And all beastes that cleane the hofte, and styte it into two clawes, and chewe & cud, them ye shall eate.

Nevertheless, these ye shall not eate of them that chewe cud and of them that deupde and cleane the hofte: the camell, the hare and the conye: whych chewe cud, but deupde not the hofte: therefore are they vncleane vnto you: and also the swine, though he deuide the hofte, yet he cheweth not cud, therefore is he vncleane vnto you: ye shall not eate of the flesch of soche, nor touche the dead carkeles of them.

* These ye shall eate of all that are in the waters: All that haue fynnes & scales shall ye eate: And whatsoeuer hath not fynnes & scales, of that ye maye not eate, but it is vncleane vnto you.

All cleane byrdes ye shall eate: but these are they of whych ye shall not eate: the Eagle, the gohawk, and the cormorant, the Fion, the vulture, the hye after her kynde, and all kynde of rauens, the Estrich, the nyghtcrowe, the kuckowe, and the sparowe hawk after her kynde, the lytle oule, & great oule, the back, the bitture, the pye, the stozke, the heron, the Jay in his kynde, the lapwinge, the swalone. And let all ceping foules be vncleane vnto you, and not be eaten of: but of all cleane foules ye maye eate. Ye shall eat of nothyng that dyeth alone: But thou shalt geue it vnto the stranger that is in thy cytie, that he eate it, or thou mayst sel it vnto an Alian. For thou art an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God. Thou shalt not *sethe a kynd in hys mothers mylke.

Thou shalt tythe all the increase of thy seed, that the felde byngeth furth yere by yere: And thou shalt eate before the Lorde thy God, (in the place * whych he hath chosen, and where he hath put his name) the tythe of thy corne, of thy wyne & of thyne oyle, and the fyrst gendred of thyne oxen & of thy shepe, & thou mayst learne to feare the Lorde thy God all waye:

* If the waye be to longe for the, so that thou art not able to carpe it, & if the place be farre fro the, which the Lorde thy God hath chosen to set his name there (and the Lorde thy God hath blessed the) then shalt thou make it in money, & take & money in thyne hande, & go vnto the place whych the Lorde thy God hath chosen, ad bestowe & money for whatsoeuer thy soule lusteth after: for ore, & shepe, wyne & stroge drynke, & for whatsoeuer thy soule desireth, desyrest, and eate there before the Lorde thy God and be mercy: bothe thou and thyne householde, and the Leuite that is wythin thy gates, shalt thou not forsake. * For he hath nether parte nor inheritaunce wyth the.

* At the ende of thre yere, thou shalt bypge forth all the tythes of thyne increase the same yere, and laye it vpon wythin thyne awne gates. And the Leuite whych hath no parte nor inheritaunce with the, shall come, & the stranger, the fatherlesse and the widow, which are within thy gates, shall eate & be fylled: that the Lorde thy God maye blesse the, in all the workes of thyne hande which thou doest.

The xv. Chapter.

The forgiuenes of dettes in the seuenth yere.

In the seuenth yere thou shalt make a fredome. * And this is the maner of the fredome: whosoever ledeyth ought wyth hys hande vnto his neyghboure, maye not aske agayne (that whych he hath lent) of hys neyghboure or of his brother: because it is called the Lordes fre yere: yet of a stranger (and of an alien) thou mayst call it home agayne. But * he that is thy brother, him shalt thou remyte, & heretofore there shall be no begger amonge you. For the Lorde shall blesse the in the lande, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the, an inheritaunce to possesse it: so that thou herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to obserue and do all these commaundmentes, which I commaunde the this daye. For the Lorde thy God hath blessed the as he hath promysed the, and * thou shalt lende vnto many nacions, but thou thy selfe shalt not borrow: And thou shalt raygne ouer many nacions, and they shall not raygne ouer the.

Yf one of thy * brethren amonge you be pooze wythin any of thy gates in thy lande which the Lorde thy God geueth the, & shalt not harden thine hert, nor shut to thine hande fro thy pooze brother: But open thine hande vnto him, & lende hym sufficient for his neede, which he hath. Beware, that there be not a wycked poynte in thine hert, that thou woldest saye: The seuenth yere, the yere of fredome is at hande, and therefore it greueth the to loken on thy pooze brother, and geue him naught & he then crye vnto the Lorde against the, and it be synne vnto the: But geue him, and let it not greue thine hert to geue vnto him. Because that for thys thyng, the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all thy workes, & in all that thou puttest thine hande to. * The lande shall neuer be wout pooze: And therefore I commaunde the sayinge: Thou shalt open thine hande vnto thy brother that is needy and pooze in thy lande.

* If thy brother an hebreue sell hym selfe to the, or an hebreue, & serue the six yere, in the seuenth yere thou shalt let hym go fre from the. And when thou sendest him out fre from the, thou shalt not let hym go awaye emptye: but shalt geue hym of thy shepe, of thy corne, and of thy wyne, and geue hym of that, wher in the Lorde thy God hath blessed the. And remembre, that thou wast a seruante in the lande of Egypte, and the Lorde thy God deliuered the thence: and therefore I commaunde the thys thyng to daye.

And yf he saye vnto the * I will not go awaye from the, because he loueth the & thyne house, and is well at ease with the: Then shalt thou take an aule, and naye his eare to the doore therewith, & let hym be thy seruante for euer: And vnto thy mayde seruante thou shalt do lyke wise. And let it not greue thine eye, whā thou lettest him go out fro the, for he hath bene worth a double hyred seruante to the in hys seruice syre yeres. And the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all that thou doest.

* All the fyrst gendred that come of thyne oxen, and of thy shepe that are males, thou shalt halowe vnto the Lorde thy God. Thou shalt do no worke with the fyrst gendred of thyne oxen, ner there the fyrst gendred of thy shepe: Thou shalt eate it before the Lorde thy God yere by yere, in the place whych the Lorde hath chosen, both thou and thyne householde. If there be any defoymte therein, as yf it be lame, or blynde, or haue any other euell fauorednesse, thou shalt not offer it vnto the Lorde thy God: But shalt eate it with- in thyne awne gates, the vncleane and the cleane indifferently, as the roo & the hert. Only eate not the bloude therof, but poure it vpon the grounde as water.

The xvi. Chapter.

Of Easter, wherofeuer, and the feast of taber- nacles. What offerres ought to be offered.

serue the * moneth of newe corne, that thou mayest offer * pascoer vnto the Lorde thy God. For in the moneth whan corne beginneth to rypp, the Lorde thy God brought the out of Egypte by nyght. Thou shalt therefore offer pascoer vnto the Lorde thy God (and shepe and ore) in the place whych the Lorde shall chose to put his name there. Thou shalt eate no leuened bread with it: but seven dayes shalt thou eate vncleuned bred therewith: eue the bread of trybulacion (for thou camest out of the lande of Egypte in haste) that thou mayst remembre the daye, whā thou camest out of the lande of Egypte, all dayes of thy lyfe. And there shall be no leuened bread sene in all thy coastes seven dayes longe, neyther shall there remayne any thyng of the fleshe which thou offrest the fyrst daye at euen, vntill the moynynge.

h iij Thou

Thou mayst not offer passeouer wythin any of thy gates, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the: but * in the place which the Lorde thy God shall chose, to set his name in, there thou shalt offer passeouer at eue, aboute the goynge downe of the sonne, euen in the season y thou comest out of Egypte. And thou shalt sette and eate it, in the place which the Lorde thy God hath chosen, and departe on the morowe, & gett the vnto thy tete. Syxe dayes thou shalt eat swete bread, and the seuenth daye is a gatherynge together before the Lorde thy God: thou shalt do no worke therein. * Seuen weekes shalt thou nōbe vnto the, and begynne to nōbe the seuen weekes, when thou begynnest to put the syckell to the corne, * & kepe the feast of weekes vnto the Lorde thy God, wyth a frewylforynge of thynne hande: which thou shalt geue vnto the Lorde thy God, accordynge as the Lorde thy God hath blessed the. And reioyse before the Lorde thy God, thou & thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruaunte & thy mayde and the Leuite that is within thy gates, and the straunger, the fatherlesse & the wedowe that are amonge you, in the place which the Lorde thy God hath chosen to put his name there. And remembre, that thou wast a seruaunte in Egypte: and thou shalt obserue & do these ordinaunces.

Thou shalt also obserue the feast of tabernacles seuen dayes, after that thou hast gathered in thy corne and thy wyne. And thou shalt reioyse in that thy feast, thou and thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruaunte, and thy mayde, the Leuite, the straunger, and the fatherlesse & the wedowe, that are wythin thy gates. * Seuen dayes shalt thou kepe holy daye vnto the Lorde thy God, in the place which the Lorde shall chose: for the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in all thy frutes, and in all the workes of thynne handes, therfore shalt thou be glad. * The tymes in the pere shall all thy males appeare before the Lorde thy God, in the place which he shall chose: In the feast of swete bread, in the feast of weekes, & in the feast of tabernacles. And they shall not * appeare before the Lorde emptye but euery man accordynge to the gyfte of his hande, & accordynge to the blessinge of the Lorde thy God which he hath geuen the.

Judges and officers shalt thou make the in all thy cyties, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the thozowe out thy trybes: and they shall iudge the people ryghteously. * Wyldest thou the lawe, nor knowe any persone, nether take any rewarde: for gyftes blynde the wyse, & peruerce the wordes of the ryghteous. That whych is iust and ryght, shalt thou folowe, that thou mayst lye, and enioye the lande, which the Lorde thy God geueth the.

Thou shalt plante no groue of whatsoeuer trees it be, nye vnto y altare of the Lorde thy God, which thou shalt make y. Thou shalt set the vy no * piler, which the Lorde thy God hateth.

The xviij. Chapter.
The punishment for idolatrye. The punishment of a rebell. The punishment of a deuge.

Thou shalt offer vnto the Lorde thy God no ore nor shepe * where in is blemish or any deformite: for that is an abhominacyon vnto the Lorde thy God.

If there be founde amonge you wyth in any of thy gates, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the, man, or woman y hath wrought wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde thy God, so that they haue gone beyode his appoyntment, and gone and serued strange goddes, and worshypped them * the sonne or moone or any of the host of heauē, which I haue not commaunded, & it is tolde the, and thou hast heard of it: then shalt thou enquire diligently. And yf it be true, & the thyng of a suretye, y soche abhominacyon wroughte in Israel, then shalt thou bynne forth y mā or that womā (whyche haue committed that wycked thinge) vnto the gates, and shalt stone them wyth stones, tyll they dye. * At the mouth of two or thre witnesses shall he that is worthy of death, dye: and at the mouth of one witness let no man dye. The handes of the witnesses shall be fyrst vpon hym, to kyll hym, and afterwarde the handes of the people, & thou shalt put the wycked awaye from the.

If there ryse a matter to harde for the iudgement betwene bloud and bloud, betwene plee and plee, betwene plage and plage, and the matters come to strepe wythin thy gates, Then shalt thou aryle, ad get the vnto the place which the Lorde thy God hath chosen, and come vnto the prestes the Leuites, and vnto the iudge that shall be in those dayes, and aske * and they shall shewe the y sentence of iudgement. And thou must do accordynge to that, whych they of that place (which the Lorde had chosen) shewe the and thou shalt obserue to do, accordynge to all that they enfourme the. Accordynge to the sentence of the lawe which they teache the, & accordynge to the iudgement which they tell the, shalt thou do, and * bowe not from that which they shewe the, nether to y right hande nor to the left.

And that mā that will do presumptuously, and wyl not herken vnto the prest (that standeth there before the Lorde thy God to mynistr) or vnto the iudge, that man shall dye: and thou shalt put awaye euell from Israel. And all the people shall heare and feare, and shall do no more presumptuously. When

When thou art come vnto y lande whyche the Lorde thy God geueth the, and enioyest it, and dwellest therein: & yf thou shalt saye. * I wyl set a kynge ouer me lyke as all the nacyns that are aboute me: The Lorde thy God shall chose: Euen one from amonge thy brethre shalt thou make kynge ouer the, and thou mayst not set a stranger ouer the, whych is not of thy brethzen. * But he shall not multiplie horses to him selfe, ner bynne the people agayne to Egypte thozowe the multitude of horses, for as moche as y Lorde hath sayde vnto you: ye shall hence forth go no moare agayne y waye. Also he * ought not to multiplie wyues to hym selfe, lest his hert turne awaye, nether shall he gether him y splur and golde to moch.

And when he is sett vpon the seate of his kyngedome, he shall wypte hym out a coppe of this lawe in a boke, before y prestes the Leuites. And it shall be wyth him, & he ought to reade therein * all dayes of his lyfe. that he maye lerne to feare the Lorde his God, & to kepe all y wordes of this lawe and the ordinaunces, for to do them: and that his hert aryle not aboute his brethzen, & that he turne not from the commaundement: to the ryght hande or to the left, but that he maye prolonge his dayes in his kyngdome: he, and his chyldren in Israel.

The xviij. Chapter.
The Leuites had no possidys. Idolatrye must be fled. The prophet chist is y m. The false prophet must be slayne, & how he may be known.

The prestes the, Leuites, and all the trybe of Leuy * must haue no parte nor inheritaunce wyth Israel: but shall eate the offerings of the Lorde, and his inheritaunce: Therfore shall they haue no inheritaunce amonge their brethzen: But the Lorde, he is their inheritaunce, as he hath sayde vnto the. And this is the prestes dutie of the people, and of them that offer, whether it be ore or shepe: They must geue vnto the Preste, the shoulde, and the two chekes, and the mawe the fyrst frutes also of thy corne, wyne and oyle, and the fyrst of y woll of thy shepe shalt thou geue hym: * For the Lorde thy God hath chosen hym out of all thy trybes, to stande and to ministr in the name of the Lorde: he and his sonnes for euer. If a Leuite come out of any of thy cyties of all Israel, wher he is a sojourner, and come wythall the lust of his herte vnto the place which the Lorde hath chosen: he shall mynistr in the name of the Lorde his God, as his other brethre the Leuites do, whych remaine there before the Lorde. And they shall haue lyke porcyons to eate, besyde that which cometh to hym of the patrimonye of his elders.

The prestes the, Leuites, and all the trybe of Leuy * must haue no parte nor inheritaunce wyth Israel: but shall eate the offerings of the Lorde, and his inheritaunce: Therfore shall they haue no inheritaunce amonge their brethzen: But the Lorde, he is their inheritaunce, as he hath sayde vnto the. And this is the prestes dutie of the people, and of them that offer, whether it be ore or shepe: They must geue vnto the Preste, the shoulde, and the two chekes, and the mawe the fyrst frutes also of thy corne, wyne and oyle, and the fyrst of y woll of thy shepe shalt thou geue hym: * For the Lorde thy God hath chosen hym out of all thy trybes, to stande and to ministr in the name of the Lorde: he and his sonnes for euer. And they shall haue lyke porcyons to eate, besyde that which cometh to hym of the patrimonye of his elders.

When thou art come into y lande whyche the Lorde thy God geueth the, it that thou lerne not to do after y abhominacyon of thole nacyns. Let ther not be founde amonge you any one, that maketh his sonne or daughter to go thozowe the fyre, or that vseth wythcraft, or a choler out of dayes * or that regardest the flyenge of foules, or a sozcerar, or a charmar, or that counceyth wyth spyztes, or a sothfayer, or that asketh * (the truth) at the that be deed. For all that do soch thynges, are abhominacyon vnto the Lorde: and because of these abhominacyons the Lorde thy God doeth cast the out before the. Thou shalt be perfecte therfore * (the truth) in the syght of the Lorde thy God. For these nacyns whych thou shalt conquere, herken vnto chosers oute of dayes, and vnto sozcerers: But the Lorde thy God hath not suffered the so to do.

The Lorde thy God wyl * syz vnto the a Prophete amonge you: euen of thy brethzen, lyke vnto me & vnto hym ye shall herke, accordynge to all that thou desyredest of the Lorde thy God in Horeb, in the daye of the gatherynge together, when thou saydest: * Let me heare the voyce of my Lorde God no moare, nor se this greate fyre any moare, that I dye not. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: they haue well spoken: I will raise them vp a prophete from amonge their brethzen lyke vnto the, and wyl put my wordes in his mouth, and he shall speake vnto them all that I shall commaunde hym. And whosoever will not herken vnto the wordes which he shall speake in my name, I wyl requyre it of hym.

But the prophete which shall presume to speake a worde in my name, whych I haue not commaunded hym to speake, or that speaketh in the name of strange goddes, the same prophete shall dye. And yf thou saye in thynne hart: howe shall we knowe the worde whych the Lorde hath not spoken? * The tokens shall thou haue. * Ene whē a prophete speaketh in the name of the Lorde, & yf y thyng folowe not nor come to passe, that is the thyng which y Lorde hath not spoken. But the prophete hath spoken it presumptuously: Thou shalt not therfore be afraied of him.

The xix. Chapter.
The feaunched towncs. The punishment of hym that deuyeth false witness.

When the Lorde thy God * hath rosted out the nacyns, whose lande the Lorde thy God geueth the, and thou succeedest in their inheritaunce, and dwellest in they cyties, and in they houses: thou shalt * appoynte iij. cyties for y in the myddes of the lande whych the Lorde thy God geueth the to possesse it: * thou shalt prepare the waye, and deuyde the coastes of thy lande, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the to inherete, into .iij. partes, that * who-

 * 2ro. xxi. forner commyterth murthur, maye see thy-ther. For thys cause must the slayer flye thy-ther, that he maye lyue. Who so kylleth hys neyghboure ignorantly, and hated hym not in tyme passed: And when a man goeth vnto
 the wodde w^h his neyghboure to hewe wood, * 2ro. xxi. and as his hāde fetcheth a stroke w^h the axe do cut downe the tre, the heade flyppeth from the helue, and sym-pteeth hys neyghboure that he dyeth: the same shall flye vnto one of the same cyties & lyue.
 Lest the executer of bloude folowe after the slayer whyle hys herte is whote, and ouertake hym, because the wayes is longe, and C slaye hym, and yet there is no cause worthy of death in hym, in as moche as he hated him not in tyme passed. Wherfore I commaunde the, sayinge: thou shalt appoynte out .iij. cy-ties for the.

And of the Lorde thy God enlarge thy coastes (as he hath sworne vnto thy fathers) and geue the all the lande whych he sayde he wold geue vnto thy fathers, thou shalt kepe all these comaundmentes to do them, whych
 I commaunde the thys daye, that thou loue the Lorde thy God, and walke in his wayes ener, and adde .iij. cyties mo for þ vnto those .iij. that innocent bloude be not ited in thy lā-de, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the to inheret, and so þ bloude come vpon the.

* But and of any mā eate hys neyghboure, and laye a wayte for hym, and ryle agaynst hym, and synce hym þ he dpe, and then flyeth vnto any of these cyties: the elders of his cy-tie shall sende, and fetch him thence, and de-lyuer hym into the handes of the iustice of bloude, that he maye dpe. Thyne eye shall not spare hym, but thou shalt put a waye innocent bloude from Israel, that it maye go well w^h the. * Thou shalt not remoue thy neyghbours marke, whych they of olde tyme haue sett in thine inheritaunce, that thou shalt inheret in the lande, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the to enioye it.

* One wytnesse shall not ryle agaynst a man for any maner trespase, or for any manner synne, or for any maner faute, that he offendeth in. * But at the mouthes of two wytnesses or of .iij. wytnesses shall the matter be stablyshed.

* If an vnyghteous wytnesse ryle vpa-gaynst a man to accuse him of trespase: then both the men whych strye together, shall stande before the Lorde, before the Iudges and the iudges, which shall be in those dayes, and the iudges shall make diligent inquisicyon. And of the wytnesse be foude false, and that he hath geue false wytnesse agaynst hys brother then shall ye do vnto hym, as he had thought to do vnto hys brother, and þ shall put euell awaye from the. And other shall beare, & feare, and shall henceforth comyt no moze any soche wyckednesse amonge you.

 And thynne eye shall haue no compassyon, but

The xx. Chapter.

* Who ought to go to battell. The lawe of ar-
 mes. The Canaanites must they kill.

When thou goest out to battell against thynne enemyes, and seest hoz-les and charrettes, and people mo then thou, be not * afrayed of the, * 2ro. xxi.
 for the Lorde thy God is w^h the, whych broughte the out of the lāde of Egypte. And whē ye are come nye vnto battell, þ Breaste shall come forth to speake vnto þ people, and shall saye vnto them: Heare O Israel, ye are come vnto battell agaynst poure enemyes
 * let not poure hartes faynte, nether feare, nor be amased nor adread of them. For the * Lorde poure God goeth w^h you, to fighte for you agaynst poure enemyes, & to saue you.

And let the officers speake vnto the people, sayinge: If any man haue bylt a newe house, and haue not dedicate it, let hym go & retorne to hys house, lest he dpe in þ battell, and another mā dedicate it. And of any mā haue planted a vyneyard, & haue not made it come: * (and lawfull for euery mā to eate of) let him go & retorne agayne vnto hys house, lest he dpe in the battell, and another make it come.
 * And of any mā be betrauthed vnto a wyfe, and haue not taken her, let him go and returne agayne vnto hys house, lest he dpe in the battell, and another man take her.

And let the officers speake further vnto the people, and saye: * If any man feare and be faynte herted, let hym go and retorne vnto hys house, lest he make hys brothers hert faynte as well as hys. And when the officers haue made ende of speakyng vnto the people, they shall make captaynes of warre ouer them.

When þ comest nye vnto a cytie to fyght agaynst it * offer the peace. And of they anwere the agayne pealably, and open vnto þ, then let all the people that is founde therein, be tributaryes vnto the, and serue the. And of they wyll make no peace w^h the, but make warre agaynst þ, thou shalt beseye it. And when the Lorde thy God hath deliuered it into thynne handes, thou shalt synce all the males therof w^h the edge of the swerde:
 But the women and the chyldren, * and the cattell, and all that is in the cytie, and all the spoule therof, shall thou take vnto thy selfe, and eate the spoule of thynne enemyes, whych the Lorde thy God hath geuen the. * But shalt thou do vnto all the cyties whych are a greete waye of frothe, and not of the cyties of these nacions.

But

But of the cyties of these nacions, whych
 the Lorde thy God shall geue the to inheret, thou shalt saue alpye nothinge that bzyeth.
 * But shalt destroye them without redēcyon, namely the Hethites, þ Amorites, the Cananites, the Pherezites, the Heuites, and the Jebusites, as the Lorde thy God hath comanded the, that they teache you not to do after all their abhominacyons, whych they haue done vnto their goddes, & so ye shalde synne agaynst the Lorde poure God.

When thou hast beleged a cytie longe tyme,
 and made warre agaynst it to take it, destroye not the trees therof, that thou wol-dest thrust an axe vnto them: But eate of them, and cut them not downe. For the trees of the felde are no men, to come agaynst the and so beseye the. Onely those trees whych thou knowest that they are not feutefull.
 * (But wylde, and fyte for other vyses) those shalt thou destroye and cutt downe, & make bulwoikes agaynst the cytie that maketh warre w^h the,
 vntyll thou subdue it.

The xxj. Chapter.

* Inquisition for murthur. Punishment for chyldren that desobey father and mother.

If one be founde slayne in the lande, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the to possesse it, and lyeth in the felde: and it is not knowne who hath slayne hym: Then thynne elders and thy iudges shall come forth, and mete vnto the cy-ties that are rounde aboute the slayne. And let the elders of that cytie whych is next vnto the slayne man, take out of the droue, an heffer that is not laboured w^h the, nor hath drawen in the yacke, and let þ elders of that cytie bryng the heffer vnto a harde valeye, whych is nether eared nor sowed, and strike of the heffers necke there in the valeye.

And the Breastes þ sonnes of Leui (whō
 the Lorde thy God hath chosen to mynistre, and to blesse in the name of the Lorde) shall come furth, and at theyr mouthes shall all stryfe and plage be ryped. And all the elders of the cytie that come furth to the slayne mā, shall waite their hādes ouer the heffer that is beheaded in the valeye, and shall answer and saye: oure handes haue not shedde thys blond, nether haue oure eyes sene it. Be incer-cyfull Lorde vnto thy people Israel, whych thou hast deliuered * and laye no innocent bloude vnto thy people of Israels charge: & the bloude shall be forgeue them. And so shall thou put innocent bloude fro the, when thou shalt haue done that whych is ryght in the syght of the Lorde.

When thou goest to warre agaynst thynne enemyes, and the Lorde thy God hath deli-uered them into thynne handes, and thou hast taken them captiue, and seest amonge the captiues a bewtiful woman, and hast a de-syre vnto her, that thou woldest haue her to thy wyfe, Thou shalt bryng her home to thyne house, and let her haue her heade & let her nayles growe, and put her rayment that she was taken in from her, and let her re-mayne in thine house, and bewep her father and her mother a moneth lōge, and after that shalt thou go in vnto her, and marie her, & she shall be thy wyfe. And of thou haue no fa-uoure vnto her, then let her go whether she lusteth: and sell her not for money, nor make chere sauce of her, because thou hast humbled her. * If a man haue two wyues, one loued and another hated, & they haue bozne him chyldren, both the loued and also the hated: If the fyrst bozne be the sonne of the hated: then when the tyme cometh that he dealeth hys goodes, amonge hys chyldren, he maye not make the sonne of the beloued fyrst bozne, before þ sonne of the hated whych is in deade the fyrst bozne: But he shall knowe the sonne of the hated for the fyrstbozne, and geue hym dowble porcyon of all þ he hath. For he is the fyrst of his strength, and to hym belongeth the ryght of the fyrst bozne.

* If any man haue a sonne that is stobutne and disobedient, that he wyll not her-ken vnto the voyce of hys father and voyce of hys mother, and they haue chastened him, and he wolde not hearken vnto them: Then shall hys father and hys mother take hym, & bryng hym out vnto the elders of that cy-tie, and vnto the gate of that same place, & saye vnto the elders of the cytie: Thys oure sonne is stoborne and disobedyent, and wyll not hearken vnto oure voyce, he is a ryoter, & a drouncharde. And all the men of that cytie shall stone him with stones vnto death. And thou shalt put euell a waye from the, and all Israel shall beare, and feare. * If a man haue committed a trespase worthy of death, & is put to death for it, & thou hangest hym on tree: hys body shall not remayne all nyghte vpon the tree, but thou shalt burye hym the same daye. For * the curse of God is on him that is hanged. Wefyle not thou thy lande, whych the Lorde thy God geueth the to inheret.

The xxij. Chapter.

* What thou oughtest to do w^h thou syndest thy neyghbours drath gonyng adraue. A mā shall not weare womens clothynge or a woman mannes clothyng. To weare a coate of wooll and of flayre is also forbydden. The punishment of hym that ac-cuseth a man vnyghteously: of an aduouter also and of hym that rauyeth a mayde.

Thou shalt not se thy brothers ore or they go astraye, & withdraue thy selfe from them: But shalt bryng the agayne vnto thy brother. And of thy brother be not nye vnto þ, or of thou knowe hym not, then bryng

byngge it vnto thyne a wne house, & it shall remaine wth the, vntill thy brother aske after them, and then deliuer him the agayne. In lyke maner shalt thou do with his asse and so shalt thou do with his rayment: and with all lost thynges of thy brother which he hath lost & hath founde, shalt thou do lykewise, and thou shalt not withdraue thy selfe.

* Thou shalt not sette thy brothers asse or ore falle doune by the waye, & withdraue thy selfe from them: but shalt helpe hym to heue them vp agayne.

The woman shall not weare that whiche pertayneth vnto the man, neither shall a man put on womans rayment. If of all that do so, are abhominacyon vnto the Lorde thy God.

If thou chauce vpon a byrdes nest by the waye, in whatsoeuer tree it be or on the grounde, whether they be younge or egges, and the damme lytynge vpon the younge or vpon the egges: Thou shalt not take the damme with the younge. But shalt in any wyse let the damme go, and take the younge to the, that thou mayst prosper and prolonge thy dayes.

23 When thou byldest a newe house, thou shalt make a batelment on the couffe, that thou lade not bloude vpon thyne house, yf any man fall therof.

* Thou shalt not sowe thy vyneyard with vynerse seedes: lest the frute of the seede which thou hast sowne, and the frute of thy vyneyard be defyled.

Thou shalt not plowe with an ore & an asse together. Thou shalt not weare a garment made of woll and flaxe together.

* Thou shalt make thy girdles (as þe mcs.) vpon the iij. quarters of thy vesture, where with thou couerest thy selfe.

If a man take a wyfe, and when he hath lyen wth her, hate her, and laye shamefull thynges vnto her charge, and byngge vpon an euell name vpon her, and saye: I toke this wyfe, and when I came to her, I founde her not a mayde: Then shall the father of the damsell and the mother byngge forth the tokens of the damells virginite, vnto the elders of the cytie in þe gate. And þe damells father shall laye vnto the elders: I gaue my daughter vnto this man to wyfe, and he hateth her: and so, he layeth shamefull thynges vnto her charge, sayinge: I founde not thy daughter a mayde. And yet these are the tokens of my daughters virginite. And they shall sprede the vesture before the elders of the cytie. And the elders of that cytie shall take that man and chastyce him, and meate hym in an hundred syles of syluer, and geue them vnto the father of the damsell, because he hath brought vpon an euell name vpon a mayde of Israel. And she shall be his wyfe, & he maye not put her awaye all his dayes.

But and yf the thyng be of a suertye, that the damsell be not founde a virgen, they shall byngge the damsell to the doze of her fathers house, and the men of that cytie shall stone her with stones to death, because she hath wrought folye in Israel, to playe the whoze in her fathers house. And so shalt thou put euell a waye from the.

* If a man be founde lyenge wth a woman, that hath a wedded husband, they shall dye ether other of them: both the man & laye with the wyfe, & also the wyfe: and so thou shalt put a waye euell from Israel.

If a mayde be handfasted vnto an husband, and then a man fynde her in þe towne and lye with her, ye shall byngge them both vnto the gates of the same cytie, & shall stone them with stones to death: The damsell, because she cryed not beyngge in the cytie: And the man, because he hath humbled his neyghbours wyfe, and thou shalt put a waye euell from the.

But yf a man fynde a betrauthed damsell in the felde, and force her, and lye wth her. Then the man that laye wth her shall dye alone, but vnto the damsell thou shalt do no harme: because there is in the damsell no cause of death. For as when a man repleth agaynst his neyghbour & slepeth him, euen so is this matter. For he founde her in þe felde, and the betrauthed damsell cryed: and there was no man to succoure her. * If a man fynde a mayde that is not betrauthed, and take her, and lye with her, and they be founde: Then the man that laye wth her, shall geue vnto the damells father. l. syles of syluer. And she shall be his wyfe, because he hath humbled her, and he maye not put her awaye all his dayes.

* No man shall take his fathers wyfe, nor vnhale his fathers couerynge.

The xxij. Chapter.
What manner of meumay not be admitted into the church. Sollicitons that happen in the night.

¶ One * that is gelded or hath his pzenye mebzers cutt of, shall come into þe congregacyon of the Lorde. And he þe is bozne of a comen woman, shall not come into þe congregacyon of the Lorde, no not in þe tenth generacyon he shall not entre into the congregacyon of the Lorde. * The Ammonites and the Moabites shall not come into the congregacyon of the Lorde, no not in the tenth generacyon, nor they shall neuer come into the congregacyon of the Lorde, because they met you not wth bread and water in the waye, when ye came out of Egypt, and because they byred agaynst the. * Balaam the sonne of Beor of Bethor, of Mesopotamia, to curse the. Nevertheless the Lorde thy God wolde not berken vnto Balaam, But

but the Lorde thy God turned the curse to a blessing vnto the, because þe Lorde thy God loved the. Thou shalt not seeke the prosperite or welth of them all thy dayes for euer. * Thou shalt not abhorre an Edomite, for he is thy brother: neither shalt thou abhorre an Egyptian, because thou wast a stranger in his lande. The chyldren that are begotten of them shall come into the congregacyon of the Lorde in the iij. generacyon.

When thou goest out wth the host agaynst thyne enemyes, kepe the from all wickednesse. If there be amonge you any man þe is vnclane, by the reason of vnclennesse that chaunceth hym by nyght, let hym go out of þe host, and not come in agayne, into þe host, but at euen let hym walke hym selfe wth water, & then when þe sonne is doune, let him come into the host agayne. Thou shalt haue a place also without the host, whether thou shalt resorte to, (for the naturall necessity) and thou shalt haue a sharpe poynte vpon thy wepon: and when thou wilt case thy selfe, drygge therewith, & turne and couer þe which is departed from the. For the Lorde thy God walketh in the middes of thyne host, to rydd the, and to set thyne enemyes before þe. Therefore shall the place of thyne host be pure, that he se no vnclane thyng in the, and so turne him selfe from the.

* Thou shalt not deliuer vnto his master the seruant whych is escaped from his master vnto the. He shall dwell with the, eue amonge you in what place he hym selfe lyketh best, in one of thy cyties where it is good for hym, and thou shalt not vex hym. There shall be no whoze of the daughters of Israel, nor whoze keeper of the sonnes of Israel. Thou shalt neither byngge the hyer of an whoze nor the pryce of a dogge into the house of the Lorde thy God, in any manner of vowe, for euen both of them are abhominacyon vnto the Lorde thy God.

* Thou shalt not hurt thy brother by vsury of money, ner by vsury of coine, ner by vsury of any thyng þe maye be hurt withall. Vnto a stranger thou mayst lende vpon vsury, but not vnto thy brother, that the Lorde thy God may blesse the in all that thou sette thyne hande to, in the lande whether thou goest to conquire it.

* When thou hast vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde thy God, thou shalt not slacke to paye it. For the Lorde thy God wyll surely requyre it of the, and it shall be synne in the. If þe shalt leue vowynge, it shall be no synne in the: but that which is once gone out of thy lippes, thou must kepe and do, accordynge as thou hast vowed vnto þe Lorde thy God of a freewyll, and as thou hast spoken wth thy mouth.

When thou comest into thy neyghbours vyneyard, thou mayst cate grapes thy belly full at thine a wne pleasure: but thou shalt put none in thy vessel. Euen so when thou comest into thy neyghbours cozne, * thou mayst plucke the eares with thyne hande, but thou shalt not moue a syle vnto thy neyghbours cozne.

The xxij. Chapter.

Deuozement is premytted. He that is newly married shall not be compelled to go to warre.

When a man hath take a wyfe and married her, yf he fynde no fauour in his eyes, because he hath spied some vnclennesse in her. * Then let him wyte her a bylle of deuozement, and put it in her hande, and sende her out of his house. And when she is departed out of his house, let her go, and be another mans wyfe. And yf the seconde husbande hate her, let him wyte her also a letter of deuozement, and put it in her hande and sende her out of his house: or yf the secnde man dye whych toke her to wyfe, her fyrst man whych sent her awaye, maye not take her agayne to be his wyfe, after þe she is defyled. If of that is abhominacyon in the syght of the Lorde. And thou shalt not cause the lade to synne, whych the Lorde thy God shall geue the to enheret.

* When a man taketh a newe wyfe, he shall not go a warrefare, neither shall he charged wth any busynesse: but shall be free at home one yere, & reioyse with his wyfe whych he hath taken. * No man shall take þe neyther of the vpper myllstone to pledge, for then he shall hurt a mans lyfe. * If any man be founde stealynge any of his bretherns chyldren of Israel, and abuseth him, or selleth him, the thefe shall dye. And þe shalt put euell a waye from the. Take heede to thy selfe as concernynge þe plague of leprosie, that thou obserue diligently. And ye shall do accordynge to all that the Preastes the Leuytes shall teache you: Euen as I commaunded them, so ye shall obserue to do. Remembre what the Lorde thy God dyd vnto * His Iam by þe waye, after that ye were come out of Egypte:

When thou dost lende thy brother any thinge, þe shalt not go into his house to fetch a pledge fro thence: but shalt stode without, and the man þe borrowed it of þe, shall byngge the pledge out vnto the. Forthermore, yf it be a poze body, thou shalt not slepe wth his pledge, but deliuer hym the pledge agayne when þe sonne goth doune that he maye slepe in his a wne rayment, and blesse the.

And it shall be ryghteousnes vnto the, before the Lorde thy God. * Thou shalt not defraude an hyred seruante that is nedye and poore, whether he be of thy brethen, or of the strangers that are in thy lande with in thy gates.

Thou shalt not hynder the ryght of the straunger nor of the fatherlesse, nor take a wedowes rayment to pledge. But remembere that thou wast a seruaunte in Egypte, and howe the Lorde thy God deliuered the thence: And therfore I commaunde the to do thys thyng.

*Whē thou cuttest doune thyne herueste in thy felde, and hast forgotte a sheaf in the felde, & shalt not go agayne to sett it. But it shalbe for the straunger, the fatherlesse & the widowe, that the Lorde thy God maye blesse the in all the workes of thyne hande. When thou beatest doune thyne olyue tree, & shalt not turne agayne to gather vp & thou ledest behynde the: but it shalbe for the straunger, the fatherlesse and the widowe. When thou getherest thy vineyarde, thou shalt not gether the grapes cleane after the: but leaue the for the straunger, the fatherlesse and the widowe. And remembre that thou also wast a seruaunte in the lande of Egypte: and therfore I commaunde the to do thys thyng.

The xxv. Chapter.

The punishment of offenders. The lawe of vengeance to the brother that is deyd. Measures and weights.

If there be stryfe betwene me, they shall come vnto the lawe, and let the iudges geue sentence betwene them, and iustifie the ryghteous, & condemne the vngodly. And yf any man be vngodly, and worthy of stryfes, then let the iudge cause to take hym doune, and to beate hym before hys face accordynge to hys trespase vnto a certayne nombre. *If stryfes he shall geue hym and not passe: lest yf he shulde excede and beate hym a boue that wylde many stryfes, thy brother shulde appere vngoodly before thyne eyes.

The xxviii. Chapter.

The promyses of the blessinges vnto them that regarde the commaundementes: and the curses to the contrarye.

- *Leu. xxi. a. If thou shalt hearken diligently vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, and obserue and do all hys commaundementes, whych I commaunde the thys daye, The Lorde wyll set the on hye aboue all nacpous of the erth.
 *Deu. xi. d. *And all these blessinges shall come on the, and ouertake the, yf thou shalt hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God. Blessed shalt thou be in the towne, and blessed in the felde: blessed shalt be the frute of thy body, and the frute of thy greasse, and the frute of thy cattell, the frute of thyne oxen, & the flockes of thy shepe: blessed shalt be thy basket and thy store. Blessed shalt thou be, when thou goest out, and blessed when thou comest in. *The Lorde shall geue ouer thynne enemies that ryle agaynst the, that they maye fall before thy face. They shall come out agaynst the one waye, and flee before the seven wayes. The Lorde shall put the blessinge vpon the in thy store houses, & in all that thou settest thynne hande to, & will blesse the in the lande whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the.
 The Lorde shall make the an holpe people vnto hym selfe, as he hath swozen vnto the: yf thou shalt kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde thy God, and walke in hys wayes.

And all nacpous of the erth shall se, that the name of the Lorde, is called vpon ouer the, and they shall be asferde, of the. And the Lorde shall make the plenteous in goodes, in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy cattell, and in the frute of thy grounde, in the lande whych the Lorde swaue vnto thy fathers, to geue the.

The Lorde shall open vnto the his good treasure, euen the heauē * to geue rayne vnto thy lande in due season, and to blesse all the labourers of thynne hande. * And thou shalt lende vnto many nacpous, but shalt not borrowe thy selfe. And the Lorde shall set the before and not behynde: & thou shalt be aboue only, and not beneth: yf thou hearken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde thy God, whiche I commaunde the thys daye, to kepe and to do them. And se that thou * bowe not asyde from any of these wordes, whiche I commaunde the thys daye, ether to the ryght hande or to the lefte, that thou woldest goo after straunge goddes to serue them.

* But and yf thou wilt not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe & to do all hys commaundementes and his ordinaunces, whiche I commaunde the thys daye: * all these curses shall come vpon the, and ouertake the: Curled shalt thou be in the towne, and curled in the felde: curled shalt thy basket be, & thy store. Curled shalt be the frute of thy body, and the frute of thy lande, and the frute of thyne oxen, and the flockes of thy shepe. Curled shalt thou be when thou goest in, and curled when thou goest out. The Lorde shall sende vpon the, cursynge, destruccyon, and rebuke in all that thou settest thynne hande to, and that thou doest: vntill he destroye the, and byynge the to nought quickly, because of the wyckednesse of thynne inuencions, and because thou hast forsaken me. * The Lorde shall make the pestilence cleaue vnto the, vntill he haue consumed the from of the lande, whether thou goest to enioye it. * The Lorde shall synpte the with swellynge, wpyth feucres, heet, burnynge, and wpyth the swerde, with wetherynge, and with blastynge. And they shall folowe the vntill thou perishe.

* And the heauen that is ouer thy head shall be brasse, and the erthe that is vnder the, yron. The Lorde shall turne the rayne of the lande vnto powder and dust: euen fro heauē shall they come doune vpon the, vntill thou be brought to nought. And the Lorde shall plage the before thynne enemies: Thou shalt come out one waye agaynst the, and flee seven wayes before them, and shalt be scattered amonge all the kyngdomes of the erthe. And thy carkelesse shall be meate vnto all maner foules of the ayre, and vnto the bestes of the erthe, and no man shall feare them awaye.

* The Lorde wyll synpte the with the botche of Egypte, and the emardodes, scalle, & mangelesse, yf thou mayest not be healed therof. And the Lorde shall synpte the with madnesse, and blyndnesse and dasyng of herte. Thou shalt grope at noone dayes, as yf blinde gropeth in darkenesse, and shalt not prosper in thy wayes. Thou shalt be oppressed wpyth wronge, and be polled euermore, & no man shall sucke the. * Thou shalt be betrowthed vnto unto a wyfe, and another man shall lye wpyth her. * Thou shalt buylde an house, and not dwell therein: Thou shalt also plante a vineyard, and shalt not gather the grapes. Thynne oxen shall be slayne before thynne eyes, and thou shalt not eate thereof. Thynne ass shall be violently take awaye enē before thy face, and shall not be restored to the agayne. Thy shepe shall be geue vnto thynne enemies, and no man shall rescue them. Thy sonnes and thy daughters shall be geuen vnto another nacpon, and thynne eyes shall se it, & dase vpon them all the daye longe, and there shall be no myghte in thynne hande. The frute of thy lande and all thy labourers shall a nacpon whych thou knowest not, eate, & thou shalt continually suffre violence onely, and be oppressed alwaye: so that thou shalt be cleane besyde thy selfe, for the syghte of thynne eyes whych thou shalt se:

The Lorde shall synpte the in the knees and legges, wpyth a myschonous botche that can not be healed: euen from the sole of thy fote vnto the toppe of thy head.

* The Lorde shall byynge the and thy kynges (whych thou shalt set ouer the) vnto a nacpon, whiche nether thou nor thy fathers haue knowne, that there thou mayest serue straunge Goddes: enē wodd and stone. And thou shalt be wondred at, spoken of, & iested at amonge all nacpous, whether the Lorde shall carpe the. Thou shalt carpe moche seed out in to the felde, and shalt gether but lyle in: for yf grethoppers shall destroye it. Thou shalt plante a vineyard and drasse it, but shalt nether dryncke of the wyne, nether gether the grapes, for the wormes shall eate it. Thou shalt haue olive trees thowowe out all thy coastes, but shalt not anoynte thy selfe wpyth the oyle, for thynne olyue trees shall be roted out: Thou shalt beget sonnes, and daughters, but shalt not haue them: for they shall be carryed awaye captiue. All thy trees and frute of thy lande shall be marred wpyth blastynge.

The stranger that is amonge you, shall clyme aboue the vpon hye, and thou shalt come doune beneth alowe. He shall lende the, & thou shalt not lende hym: he shall be before, & thou behynde.

Moreover, all these curses shall come vpon the, and shall folowe the and ouertake the, till thou be destroyed: because thou hast hearkened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe hys commaundementes, and hys ordinaunces, whych he commaunded the, and they shall be vpon the as synnyng and wonders, and vpon thy seed for euer, because thou seruedst not the Lorde thy God wpyth ioyfullnesse and wpyth a good herte, whan thou haddest aboundance of all thynges, therfore thou shalt serue thynne enemye, whych the Lorde shall sende vpon the. In hunger and thyrst, in nakednesse, and in nede of all thynges: and he shall put a yocke of yron vpon thy necke, vntill he haue broughte the to nought.

And the Lorde shall byynge a nacpon vpon the from a farre, and from the ende of the worlde, as swifte as an egle flyeth: a nacpon whose tonge thou shalt not vnderstande: a harde fauoured nacpon, whych shall not regarde the person of the olde, nor haue compassion on the younge. The same shall eate the frute of thy cattell, and the frute of thy lande, vntill he haue destroyed the: and shall leaue the nether corne, wyne, nor oyle, nether the encrease of thynne oxen, nor the flockes of thy shepe: vntill he haue broughte the to nought. And he shall kepe the in, in all thy ctyes, vntill he haue cast downe thy hye walles and stronge holdes, wherein thou trustedst, thowowe out all the lande. And he shall beseege the in all thy ctyes thowowe out all thy lande, whych the Lorde thy God hath geuen the.

* And thou shalt eate the frute of thynne awne bodye: the fleshe of thy sonnes, and of thy daughters, whych the Lorde thy God hath geuen the, in that straitnesse and sege, wherewith thynne enemye shall beseege the: so that it shall greue the man (that is tender & excedynge delicate amonge you,) to loke on hys brother and vpon hys wyfe that lyeth in hys bolome, and on the remnaunte of hys chyldren, whych he hath yet left: for feare of geuyng (vnto anye of them) of the fleshe of hys chyldren, whom he shall eate, because he hath nothynge left hym in that straitnesse & sege, wherewith thynne enemye shall beseege the in all thy ctyes.

Yee and the woman that is so tender and delicate, that she dare not aduenture to set the sole of her fote vpon the grounde, (for softnesse and tenderesse) shall be greued to loke on her husbände that lyeth in her bolome, & on her sonne and on her daughter: and on hys after byrthe (that is come out from betwene her legges,) and her chyldre whych she shall beare: for whan all thynges lack, she shall eat them secretly, in the sege & straitnesse, wherewith thynne enemye shall beseege the in thy ctyes.

* If thou wilt not kepe and do all the wordes of thys lawe (that are wyrtten in thys booke,) and feare thys glozious and fearfull name of the Lorde thy God: the Lorde wyll sende vnto the and thy seed, greates plagges and of longe continuance, euell synnynges and of longe duraunce. Moreover he wyll byynge vpon the all the diseases of Egypte, and those whych thou wast afrayed of shall cleaue vnto the. And all maner synnynges, and all maner plagges whych are not wyrtten wrytten in the booke of thys lawe, wylle the Lorde bynge vpon the, vntill he byngethe to nought. And ye shalbe leste fewe in nom-

 * Deut. x. d. b2c, where before ye were as the * starres of heauen in multytude: because thou woldest not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God.

* And it shall come to passe, y as the Lord reioyced ouer you, to do you good, & to multiplye you: enen so he wylle reioyse ouer you, to destroye you, & to bynge you to nought. And ye shalbe wasted from of the lād, whether thou goest to enioye it. And the Lorde shall scatter the amonge all nacions, from the one ende of the worlde vnto the other, and there shalbe serued straunge goddes, whych thou nor thy fathers haue knowne: enē wodd and stone.

And amonge these nacions shalbe synde no ease, neyther shall the sole of thy foote haue rest. But the Lorde shall geue the there an vnquyet herte, and dasyng eyes, and sorowe of mynde. And thy lyfe shall hāge before the and thou shalt feare both daye, and nyght, & shalt haue no trust in thy lyfe. In the moynynge thou shalt saye, wolde God it were nyght. And at nyght thou shalt saye: wolde God it were moynynge: for feare, of thynne harte whych thou shalt feare & for the syghte of thynne eyes, whych thou shalt se.

And the Lorde shall bynge the into Egypt agayne wryth chypres, by the waye which I had the, that thou shouldest * se it no moare. And there ye shalbe solde vnto poure enemies, for bondmen and bondwomen: & no man shall bye you.

The xxx. Chapter.

The people are exhorted to observe the commandments, whych ys thep breake, then are theye: and to be plagued.

* Deut. x. d. b2c

These are the wordes of the * appoyntmēt, which the Lord commanded Moyses, to make wryth the chyldren of Israel in the lād of Moab, besyde y appoyntmēt which he made wryth them in Horeb, and Moyses called all Israel, and sayde vnto them: Ye haue sene all that the Lorde dōd before poure eyes in the lande of Egypt, vnto Pharaon and vnto all hys scruautes, and vnto all hys lande, the greates temptacions whych thynne eyes haue sene, those greates myracles and wonders: and yet the Lorde hath not geue you an herte to perceaue, and eyes to se, and eares to heare vnto thys daye.

And I haue led you .xl. yere in the wylye myghte knowe, howe that I am the Lord poure God.

* And ye came vnto this place, & Sehon the kynge of hesbon, and Og kynge of Basan came out agaynst vs vnto battell, and we smote them, and toke thep lande, & gaue it for an inheritaunce vnto the Rubenites & Gadites, and to the halfe trybe of Manasse.

* kepe therfore the wordes of this appoyntment and do them, that ye maye vnderstāde all that ye ought to do. Ye stande thys daye euery one of you before the Lorde poure God: poure captaynes, poure trybes, poure elders, poure offycers, and all the men of Israel: poure chyldren also, poure wyues & the stranger that is in thynne hōste * frō the hewer of thy wodd, vnto the drawer of thy water: that thou shouldest go into the appoyntment of the Lord thy God, & into his othe * which the Lord thy God maketh wryth y this daye. I make not thys bonde & this othe wryth you only: but both wryth hym that standeth here wryth vs this daye before the Lord oure God, and also wryth hym that is not here with vs this daye. For ye knowe, howe we haue dwelt in the lād of Egypt, and howe we came thozowe the myddes of the nacions whych ye passed by. And ye sene sene thep abhominacions and thep ydolles: (wodd & stone, syluer and golde) whych were amōge them.

Let there be amonge you man or woman, kyured or trybe, whole hert turneth awaye this daye from the Lord oure God, to go and serue the goddes of these nacions: & lest there be amonge you some roote that beareth gall & wormwood, so that when he heareth the wordes of thys ooth, he blesse hym selfe in hys hert, sayinge: * I shall haue peace. I wylle walke in the meanynge of myne owne hert, * (Thou put thep dronken to the thyspe.) The xxx. Chapter.

The wordes of God is at hande.

When all these wordes are come vpon the, the blessing and the curse whych I haue set before the, thou shalt turne vnto thine hert, amonge all the nacions whether the Lorde thy God hath thrust the, and come agayne vnto the Lorde thy God, and heken vnto his voyce in all these thynges that I commaunde the thys daye: thou & thy chyldren wythall thynne herte and all thy soule: And the Lorde thy God wylle turne thy captiuite, and haue compassyon vpon the, & wylle turne, and set the agayne frō all the nacions, amonge whych the Lorde thy God shall haue scattered the. Though thou wast cast vnto the extreme partes of heauen: euen from thence wylle the Lorde thy God gether the, & frō thence wylle he sett the, & the Lorde thy God wylle bynge the into the lande whych thy fathers possessed, & thou shalt enioye it. And he wylle shewe the kyndnesse, and multiplye the aboue thy fathers. * And the Lorde thy God wylle circuncyse thynne hert, and the hert of thy seed, that y mayest loue the Lord thy God wythall thynne hert, and all thy soule, y thou mayest lyue. And the Lord thy God wylle put all these curses vpon thynne enemies, and on them y hate the, & y persecute the.

But thou shalt turne, and heke vnto the voyce of the Lorde, and do all hys commandmentes, which I commaunde the thys daye. And the Lord thy God wylle make the plentiful in all the workes of thynne hande, in the frute of thy bodye, and in the frute of thy catell, and in the frute of thy lande for thy welth. * For the Lorde wylle turne agayne and reioyse ouer the to do the good, as he reioyced ouer thy fathers: If thou heke onely vnto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to kepe his commandmentes and his ordinaunces whych are wrytten in the booke of this lawe, and yf thou turne vnto the Lorde thy God wythall thynne hert and all thy soule.

* For the commandment which I commaunde the this daye, is not separated from the, nethe farre of. It is not in heauen, that thou reachest to: (complayne a) saye: who shall go vpon vs to heauen, and fet it vs, that we maye heare it, and do it? Nethe is it beynde the see: that thou shouldest saye: who shall go ouer the see for vs, and fet it vs, y we maye heare it, and do it? But the worde is very npe vnto the: enē in thy mouth and in thynne hert, that thou do it.

* Beholde I haue set before the this daye lyfe and good, death and euell: For where as I commaunde the thys daye, to loue the Lorde thy God, to walke in hys wayes, and to kepe hys commandmentes, his ordinaunces, and hys lawes (yf thou so do) y shall lyue and multiplye, and the Lorde thy God shall blesse the in y lande, whether thou goest to possesse it.

But and yf thynne herte turne awaye, so that y wylle not heare: but shalt goo astraye, and worshyppe straunge goddes, and serue them, I pronounce vnto you also this daye, that ye shall surely perishe, and that ye shall not prolonge poure dayes vpon the lande whether thou passest ouer Iordan, to go and possesse it.

* I call heauen & erth to recorde this daye agaynst you, that I haue set before you lyfe and death, blessing & cursynge: Therfore chose lyfe, that both thou and thy seed maye lyue, that y mayest loue the Lorde thy God, and be obedient to hys voyce, & cleaue vnto him. For he is thy lyfe, and the length of thy dayes, that thou mayest dwell vpon the erth whych the Lorde swaue vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Isahac and Jacob, to geue them.

The xxxi. Chapter.

Moyses bringe readye to be ordeyned Josue to rule the people in hys steade. Thys booke Deuteronomie is wrytten and sayde, in the tabernacle besyde the arcke. The Levites are charged to reade it to the people.

And Moyses went and spake these wordes vnto all Israel, and sayd vnto them: I am an hundred and .xx. yere olde thys daye, and can nomore go out and in. Also the Lorde hath sayde vnto me * thou shalt not goo ouer thys Iordā. The Lorde poure God he wylle go ouer before the, and he wylle destroye these nacions before the, & thou shalt conquer them. * And Josue he shall go before the, as the Lorde hath sayde. And the Lorde shall geue them ouer before poure face, that ye maye do vnto them, accordyng vnto all the commandementes which I haue commaunded you. And Moses called vnto Josua, and sayde vnto hym in the syghte of all Israel: * We stronge & holde, for thou must go with thys people vnto the lande, which the Lorde hath sworne vnto their fathers, to geue them, & thou shalt geue it them to inheret. And the Lorde he doth go before y: he shall not faile the, neyther forsake the: feare not therfore, nor be discomforted. And Moses wrote this lawe, and deliuered it vnto the preastes the sonnes of Leui (whych bare the arcke of the testament of the Lorde) and vnto all the elders of Israel, & Moses commaunded them, sayyng: * At the poynt of vij. peares in the solemnyte of the fye yere, euen in the feast of Tabernacles, when all Israel is come to appeare before the Lorde thy God, in the place whych he hath chosen: thou shalt reade thys lawe before all Israel in theyr eares. Gether the people together: men, women and chyldren, and the straunger that is wythin thy gates, that they maye heare, and lerne and feare the Lorde your God, and kepe, and obserue all the wordes of thys lawe, and that their chyldren whych knowe nothyng, maye heare, and lerne to feare the Lorde your God, as longe as ye lye in the lande, whether ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Beholde thy dayes are come, y thou must dye. Call Josua therfore, and stande ye in the tabernacle of wytnesse, that I maye geue hym a charge. And Moses and Josua went, and stode in the tabernacle of wytnesse: And the Lorde appeared in the tabernacle: euen in the pylle of the cloude. And the * pylle of the cloude stode ouer the dore of the tabernacle. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: beholde, thou shalt slepe wyth thy fathers, and thys people wyllye vp, and go a whoyringe after straunge goddes of the lande (whether they go) and will forsake me, and breake the appoyntment, whych I haue made wyth them. And the myr wrath wyllye waite whote agaynst them, and I wyllye forsake them, and wyllye hyde my face from them, & they shalbe consumed. And moche aduersyte and tribulacions shal come vpon them, so that then they wyllye saye: Are not these troubles come vpon me, because God is not wyth me? And I also wyllye surely hyde awaye my face in that daye, for all the euils sake whych they shall haue wrought, in that they are turned vnto straunge Goddes.

Now therfore write ye thys songe for you, and teache it the chyldren of Israel, and put it in theyr mouthes, that thys songe maye be myr wytnesse agaynst the chyldren of Israel. For I wyllye byryng the into the lande, (whych I swore vnto theyr fathers) that floweth w m p l k e and honye, & they shall eate, and fyll them selues, and waxe fette, and turne vnto straunge goddes, and serue them, and blasphemie me, and breake my coneuant. And then when moche myschefe and tribulacion is come vpon the, thys songe shall answer them, as a wytnesse. For it shall not be forgotten out of the mouthes of theyr seed: for I knowe theyr imaginacion, whych they goo about euē now, before I haue broughte the into the lāde whych I swore. * And Moses therfore wrote thys songe the same reason, and taught it the chyldren of Israel. And he gaue Josua the sonne of Nun a charge, and sayd: * be holde, & stronge, for thou shalt byryng the chyldren of Israel into the lande, whych I swore vnto them, and I wyllye be wyth the.

And when Moses had made an ende of wyrtynge out of the wordes of this lawe in a booke vnto the ende of them, Moses commaunded the Leuites, whych bare the arke of the testament of the Lorde, sayyng: take ye the booke of thys lawe, & put it in the syde of the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God, y it maye be there for a wytnesse agayst the: for I knowe thy stuburnesse * and thy stiff necke: whyle I am yet a lyue wyth you this daye, ye haue bene disobedient vnto the Lorde: and howe moche more after my death.

Gather vnto me all the elders of poure trybes, & poure offycers, that I maye speake these wordes in theyr eares, and call heauen, and erth to recorde agaynst them. For I am sure that after my death, ye wyllye utterly be corrupte, and turne from the waye whych I haue commaunded you, and tribulacion wyllye come vpon you in the later dayes, because ye shall haue wrought wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde, to prouoke hym thowow the workes of your hādes. And Moses spake in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel the wordes of thys songe, vntill he had ended them.

* Perfecte is the worke of y most myghty God: for all hys wayes are iudgement. he is a God of trouth, without wickednesse: ryghteous, and iust is he.

* Forwarde haue they done agaynst hym thowow thes defozmities: not his owne chyldren, but a wycked & frowarde generacion. Do ye so rewarde the Lorde, O foalpe nacion & vnwyse? * Is not he thy father & thy ne owner? * hath he not made the, and ordeyned the? Remember the dayes of the worlde that is past: cōsydye the yeres from tyme to tyme. * Like thy father, and he wyllye the we the: thy elders, & they wyllye tell the. When the most highest, denyed the nacys, and whan he separated the sonnes of Adam, he put the borders of the nacys, fast by the multitude of the chyldren of Israel.

* For the Lordes parte is hys folke, and Jacob is the porcion of hys inheritaunce.

* He founde hym in a deserte lande, in a voyde grounde, & in a royringe wyldernesse. He led hym aboute, he gaue hym vnderstandyng, and kepte hym as the apple of his eye.

As an egle y stereth vp her nest and sterceth ouer her pouge, & stretcheth out hir winges, so doth he take them vp, & beareth the on his shoulders. The Lorde alone was hys guyde, & there was no straunge God w him.

He caried hym vp to an hye lande, that he myght eate the increase of the felde, * And he fedd hym wyth honye out of the rocke, and with oyle out of the most harde stone. Wyth butter of kyne, & mylke of the shepe, wyth fat of the lambes and of fat rammes and he goates, with y fat of most plectous wheate: and that thou myghtest drynke & the most pure bloude of the grape.

But he that shulde haue bene vpryght, whan he waxed fette, spurned with his heile.

Thou art well fedd, y art growen thicke: thou art euen laden with fatnesse.

And he forsoke God his maker, & regarded not the God of his saluacyō. They prouoked hym to angre wyth straunge goddes: eue w abhominacions prouoked they hym * They offered vnto deuils, and not to God, euen to goddes whō they knewe not: to newe goddes that came newly vp, whō their fathers feared not. Of the rocke that begat the, thou arte vnmyndefull, and hast forgotten God that made the. The Lorde therfore sawe it, and was angere, because of the prouokynge of hys sonnes and of hys daughters.

And he sayde: I wyllye hyde my face from them, & will se what their ende shall be. For they are a very frowarde generaciō, chyldren in whom is no fayth. They haue angred me wyth that whych is no God, and prouoked me wyth their vanyties. * And I also wyllye prouoke them wyth those & whych are no people, I wyllye anger them wyth a folyshe nacion. * For fyre is kyndled in my wrath, & burneth vnto the botome of hell. And hath consumed the earth with her increase, and sett a fyre the botoms of the mountaynes. I will heape mischeues vpon them, & wyllye destroye them wyth myne arrowes.

They shalbe burnt with hunger, and consumed w heate, and with bytter destruction: * I wyllye also sende the teeth of beastes vpon them, with the furiosnes of serpentys in the dust. Without forth, shall y swerde robbe the of their chyldren: and within in the chamber, feare: both younge men and younge women, and the suckelinges wyth the men of gray heades. I haue sayde: I will skater them abroad, and make the remembraunce of them to cease from amonge men. Were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemye, lest their aduersaries shulde vterly wythdrawe the selues, and lest they shulde saye: oure hye hande hath done all thys, and not the Lorde.

For it is a nacys without forecast, nether is there any vnderstandyng in them: O that they were wylse, and vnderstode thys, that they wolde consyder their later ende.

Howe shulde one chace a thousande, and two put ten thousande to flyght: excepte their maker had solde them, and excepte the Lorde had shutt them vp.

For their God is not as oure God: oure enemyes also them selues are iudges.

For their vyne is of the vinyarde of Sodome, and of the felde of Gomorra: They grapes are grapes of gall, and their clusters be bytter.

Their wyne is the popson of draggons, & the cruell gall of aspes. Is not thys layde in store wyth me, & sealed vp amonge my treasures? * Avengeance is myne, and I wyllye rewarde: their fete shall slpye in due tyme. For the daye of their destruction is at hande, and the thynges that shall come vpon the, make haste.

* For the Lorde shall iudge hys people, and haue compassyon on hys seruauntes: whan he seyth that their power is gone, and that they be in a maner shutt vp, or brought to naught and forsaken.

And he shall saye * wher are their goddes: their God, in whom they trusted?

The fat of whose sacrifices they dyd rate and dracke the wyne of their dryncke offrynges: let them ryle vp and helpe you, and be poure protectyon: (in necessyte.)

Se nowe, howe y I * I alone am God, & there is none but I: I wyllye, and wyllye make a lyue: I wounde, and I wyllye heale: * nether is there any y can deliuer out of my hande.

For I wyllye lyfte vp myne hande to heauen, and wyllye saye: I lyue euer.

If I whett the edge of my swerde, & myne hande take holde to do iustice, I wyllye re- l iij compence compence vengeance on myne enemyes, & wyll rewarde them that hate me.

I will make myne arrows broncke with blonde, and my swerde shall cate slethe, & p for the blonde of the slayne, & for their captiute, sens the begynnynge of the wrath of the enemye.

* Rom. 9. b. * Praise ye herben his people, for he will auenge the blonde of hys seruantes, & wyll auenge hym of his aduersaries, and wyll be mercifull vnto his lande, and to hys people.

* And Moses came and spake all the wordes of thys songe in the eares of the people, he and Josua the sonne of Nun. And Moses: spake all these wordes vnto the ende to all the people of Israel, and sayde vnto them:

* Deut. 31. b. * Sette poure herte vnto all p wordes which I testyfy vnto you thys dape: and ye shall commaunde them vnto poure chyldren, that they maye obserue and do all the wordes of thys lawe. And let it not be a vayne worde vnto you: for it is poure lyfe, and thoro-we thys worde ye shall p-rolonge poure dayes in the lande whether ye go ouer Jordan, to conquire it.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses p selfe same dape, sayinge: get the vp in to this mo-untayne Abarim. (That is to saye a passage)

vnto mount Nebo, whych is in the lande of Moab ouer agaynst Jericho. And beholde the lande of Canaan, which I geue vnto the chyldren of Israel to possesse. And dye in the mount whych thou goest vp vnto, and thou shalt be gathered vnto thy people. * As

* Num. 33. b. * Aaron thy brother dyed in mount Nebo, and was gathered vnto hys people: because ye trespassed agaynst me amonge the chyldren of Israel * at the waters of streffe, at Cades in the wyldernesse of zin: for ye sanctified me not amonge the chyldren of Israel. Thou shalt therfore se the lade before the, and shall not goo thither vnto p lande whych I geue the chyldren of Israel.

* The xxxij. Chapter.

Moses prayng blyssed all the tribes of Israel.

* A * Hys is the blyssynge wherewith Moses the man of God blessed the chyldren of Israel before hys death, and sayde: * The Lorde came from Sinai and he wed hys beames: from Seir vnto them, and appeared from mount Pharan, and he came wyth thousandes of sayntes, and in his ryghte hande a lawe of fyre for the. And he loued the people. * All hys sayntes also are in thy handes. They were smytte to go after thy fete, and to receaue of thy wordes. Moses gaue vs a lawe to be an inheritaunce of the cōgregacyon of Jacob. And he was in Israel kynge whē the heades of the people, and p-trybes of Israel were gathered together.

Let Ruben lyue, and not dye: and be scwe.

in nombze. Thys same also happen to Juda. And he sayde: heare Lorde the voyce of Iuda, and bynng hym vnto hys people: hys handes shall be good ynough for him, p-thon helpe hym agaynst hys enemyes.

And vnto Levi he sayde: * Thumim & vrim shall be with the, & wyth euery one that is godly in the. Thou dydest proue him also in the tentacyon & struedst wyth hym at the waters of streffe. He that hath sayde vnto his father and to his mother: I haue not sene him, & And he that knewe not his brethren, ner knewe his awne chyldren, those are they that haue obserued thy worde, and shall kepe thy couenaunt. They shall teache Jacob thy iudgementes, and Israel thy lawe. They shall put cens before thy nose, and the burnt sacrifice vpon thine altare. Blesse Lord his fyrst frutes and accept the worke of his handes: synpte the lopnes of the that cyle agaynst him, and of the that hate him, that they p-ryle not agayne.

And of Ben Jamin he sayde. The Lordes derlyng shall dwell in safetie vpon hym & the Lorde shall coner him all the dape longe, and he shall dwell betwene his shoulders.

And of Joseph he sayde: blessed of p Lord is his lande for the frutes of beaue, thoro-we the dewe and spynges that lye beneth, and for the swete frutes of the increase of p sonne, and cype frutes of the mone: for the fyrst frutes of the principall mountaynes, and for the frutes p the hylls bynng furth for euer, and for the frutes of the crech, and fulnesse therof: and for the good wyll of hym p dwelt in the * bushe, shall the blyssynge come vpon the heade of Joseph, & vpon the toppe of the heade of him p was separated fro amonge his brethren. His first bozne ore hath be wrie, and his hornes are as the hornes of an vncorne. And wyth them he shall trouble p na-cyons together, euen vnto the endes of the worlde. These are also p many thousandes of Ephraim, & the thousandes of Manasses.

And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioyse za-bulon in thy goynge out, and thou Issachar in thy tentes. They shall call the people vnto the hyll, and there they shall offer offerynges of ryghteousnes. For they shall lucke of the abundance of the see, and of treasure hyd in the lande.

And vnto Gad he sayde: blessed be p row-me maker Gad: he dwelleth as a Lyon, that catcheth the arme wyth the heade. He sawe therfore his begynnynge, and that there was a porcyon there to hyde the lawgauer, and he came with the heades of the people, and executed the ryghteousnes of the Lorde and his iudgementes with Israel.

And vnto Dan he sayde: Dan is a Lyons whelpe, he shall floure from Basan.

And vnto Nephthali he sayde, Nephthali hath hath a bundaunce of Gods good pleasure, & is fylled with the blyssynge of the Lorde, & shall haue his posselshys towarde the south west.

And to Aser he sayde: Aser shall be blessed with chyldren: he shall be acceptable vnto his brethren, & shall dyppe his fote in oyle: Thy dwellynge be p-ron and brasse, and thynce age be as thy youth.

There is none lyke vnto p God of Israel: which though he sit vpon the heane as vpon a horse, yet is he thy helper, whose glozy is in the celestiaall places. The eternall God is thy refuge, & vnder the armes of the Guerla-stynge God shalt thou lyue. He shall cast out the enemye before the, and save, destroye. Israel then shall dwell in safetie, & alone. And the eye of Jacob shall be vpon a lande of corne and wyne, and hys heauens shall droppe the dewe. happye art thou o Israel, who is lyke vnto the? O people, p art laud in the Lorde, which is the shyld of thy helpe, and swerde of thy glozye. Thynce enemyes haue lost their strength to the warde, and p shalt treade vpon the heygth of them.

The xxxij. Chapter.

Moses dyeth. Israel wepeth. Josua succeedeth in Moses roune.

* A * Moses went fro the playne of Moab vp into mount Nebo and vnto the toppe of * the hyll that is ouer agaynst Jericho. And the Lorde shewed hym all the lande of Gilead, euen vnto Dan, and all Nephthali and the lande of Ephraim & Manasse, & all the lande of Juda: euen vnto the vtmost see, and the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho p-tye of paulmetrees, euen vnto zoar. * And the Lorde sayde vnto hym. * Thys is the lande whych I sware vnto Abraham, Issachar and Jacob sayinge: I wyll geue it vnto thy seed. I haue caused the also to se it wyth thynce eyes, * but thou shalt not goo ouer thither.

So Moses the seruante of the Lorde dyed there in the lande of Moab accordynge to the worde of p Lorde. And he buried him in a vale in the lade of Moab ouer agaynst the house of Deor, but no man knoweth of his sepulchre vnto this dape. Moses was an hundred and twety yere olde when he dyed: hys eye was not dimme, nor hys naturall colour abated. And p chyldren of Israel * wepte for Mo. in p playne of Moab thretye dayes. And p dayes of wepyng & mour-nyng for Moses were ended.

And Josua the sonne of Nun was full of the spyte of wysdom: * for Moses had put hys handes vpon hym. And the chyldren of Israel were obedient vnto hym, and dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And there arose not a prophet sence in Israel lyke vnto Moses, whom the Lorde knewe face to face, accordynge vnto all the myracles and wonders which the Lorde sent him to do in p lade of Egypte, vnto Pharaos & all his seruantes & before all his lade: & accordynge to all that myghtie hande, & all p greate visions, which Moses shewed in the spygh of all Israel.

The first Chapter.

The Lord encourageth Josua to invade the lande of promise, and commaundeth him continually to reade Deuteronomie.

After the death of Moses the servant of the Lord, it happened also that the Lord spake unto Josua the sonne of Nun Moses minister saying: Moses my servant is dead. Now therefore up & goe over Jordan: thou & all this people, unto the lande the which I geue unto the children of Israel. * All the places that the sooles of your feet shall treade vpon, haue I geuen you, as I sayde vnto Moses: from the wilderness & this Libanon vnto the great ryuer Euphrates: all the lande of the Hethites, euen vnto the great see towarde the going downe of the sonne, shall be your coaste. There shall not a man be able to withstande you all the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was with Moses, so will I be with thee: and will not fayll the, nor forsake the. * Be strong therefore and bolde: for vnto this people shalt thou sweare the lande which I swore vnto their fathers to geue them. Onely be thou strong & as bolde as thou canst, that thou mayest obserue & do according to all the lawe, which Moses my servant commaunded thee. * Turne therfrom nether to the right hand, nor to the left: that thou mayest do wylly in all thou takest in hande: * let not the booke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth: But recorde therein daye & night that thou mayest obserue, & do according to all that is written therein. * For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, and then thou shalt do wylly. Haue not I commaunded thee, that thou shouldest be strong & hardy, & not feare neither saynt harted? For the Lord thy God am with thee, whether soeuer thou goest.

Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, saying: God hath ordeyned you this daye, & commaunde the people, saying: prepare you vitayles: for after these dayes ye shall passe ouer this Jordan, to goe in & enioye the lande which the Lord your God geueth you, to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, & half the tribe of Manasses spake Josua saying: * Remember the worde, which Moses the seruaut of the Lord commaunded you, saying: the Lord your God hath geuen you rest, & hath geuen you this land. Your wives, your children, and your cattell shall remayne in the lande which Moses gaue you on this syde Jordan: But ye shall go before your brethren armed, all ye men of warre, and helpe them vntill the Lord haue geue your brethren rest, as he hath geuen you, & vntill they also haue obtained the lande, which the Lord your God geueth them. And then shall ye retourne vnto the lande of your possession & enioye it, which the Lord your God hath geuen you on this syde Jordan towarde the sunne setting. And they answered Josua saying: * All that thou hast commaunded vs, we will do, and whether soeuer thou shalt say, we will go. According as we obeyed Moses in all thynges, so will we obey thee: onely the Lord thy God be with thee, as he was with Moses. And whosoever he be that doth disobey thy mouth, and will not hearken vnto thy wordes in all that thou commaundest him, let him dye: Onely be strong and of good courage.

The ii. Chapter.

Josua sendeth spies to Iericho, which were hye of Rahab.

And Josua the sonne of Nun sent out of Settim two men to spy secretely, saying: go & viewe the lande and also Iericho. And they went, and came into a harlots house, named Rahab, & lodged there. And it was tolde the kynge of Iericho, and sayd: Beholde, there came men in hyther to nyght, of the children of Israel, to spy out the countrey. And the kynge of Iericho sent vnto Rahab saying: byynge forth the men that are come to thee, & which are entred into thyne house: for they be come to searche out all the lande.

And the woman toke the two men & hid them. And sayde thus: in dede there came men vnto me, but I wist not whence they were. And aboute the tyme of the shutting of the gate when it was darcke, the men went out, whether the men went I wot not: folowe ye after them quychly, & ye shall ouer take them. But she brought them vp to the rooffe of the house, and she hid them in the stalckes of flaxe, which she had laynge abroad vpon the rooffe. And the men of the cypre pursued after them, the waye to Jordan, euen vnto the ferie, and as sone as they which pursued after them were gone out, they shutt the gate.

And os

And as euer they were a slepe, she came vnto them vpon a rooffe, & sayde vnto the men: I knowe, & the Lorde hath geuen you the lade * for the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, & the inhabitants of the land saynt at the presence of you. For we haue heard, how the Lorde dried vp the water of the redds see before you when you came out of Egypte, & what you dyd vnto the two kynges of the Amozites, that were on the other side Jordan. * Schon, & Og, whom ye utterly destroyed. And as sone as we had heard these thynges, we were sore afraide, & oure hearts dyd faite. And there remayned no more courage in any man at the presence of you. For the Lorde poure God, he is God in heauen above, & on the erth benethe.

Now therfore, I pray you, sweare vnto me * by the Lorde, as I haue shewed you mercie, ye shall also shewe mercie vnto my father's house, & geue me a true token. And that ye shall saue almye, bothe my father, & my mother, my brethren, & my sisters, and all that they haue. And that ye shall deliuer oure soules from death.

And the men answered her: oure liues for you to dye, yf ye utter not this oure business. And when the Lorde hath geuen vs the lade, we will deale mercifully & truly with the. And then she lett them downe by a corde * thozow a window: for her house was by the towne wall. And she dyd by the towne wall. And she sayd vnto them: gett you into the mountayne, lest the pursuers mete you, & hyde poure selues there thez dapes, vntill the pursuers be returned, and then shall ye goo poure awne waye.

And the men sayde vnto her: we will be blamelesse of this thy othe, which thou hast made vs sweare. * Beholde, when we come vnto the lade, ye shall hynde this purple corde in the widow, which is lattest vs downe bye. And thou shalt bring thy father, & thy mother, thy brethren, and all thy fathers household, euen vnto thy house. And then whosoever doth go out at the doores of thy house, into the street, his bloude shall be vpon his awne head, & we wilbe gylelesse. And whosoever shall be with the in the house, his bloude shall be on oure heade, yf any mannes hande touche him: And yf thou utter these oure wordes, we wilbe quyte of thy othe, which thou hast made vs sweare. And she sayde: accordyng vnto poure wordes, so be it: and she sent them awaye to departe. And she bounde the purple corde in the window.

And they departed, and came into the mountayne, and there abode thez dapes, vntill the pursuers were returned. And the pursuers sought them thozowe out all the waye but founde them not. And the two men returned, & descended from the mountayne, and passed ouer, and came to Joshua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that had chaunced them. And they sayd vnto Joshua: the Lorde truly hath deliuered into oure handes all the lade, and all the inhabitants of the contrey saynte at the presence of vs.

The.iii. Chapter.

Joshua with the people passe ouer Jordan.

AND Joshua rose erlye: and they removed from Settim, & came to Jordā, he and all the children of Israel, and lodged there, before they went ouer. And after thez dapes it fortuneth, that the officers wet thozow out the hoste, and commaunded the people sayinge: when ye se the arcke of the testament of the Lorde poure God, & the preastes that are Leuites bearing it: ye shall departe from poure place, & go after it. So yet that there shall be a space betwene you & it, aboute a two thousande cubites by measure. And ye shall not come nye vnto it, that ye maye knowe the waye, by which ye must go: for ye haue not gone this waye in tymes past. * Beware, that ye asproche not nye vnto the arke. And Joshua sayd vnto the people: * Sanctifie poure selues, for to morowe the Lorde shall do wonders amonge you.

And Joshua spake vnto the preastes, saying: Take vp the arke of the couenaunt: & go before the people. And they toke vp the arke of the testamēt, and went before the people.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Joshua: this daye will I begynne to magnifie the, in the syght of all Israel, & they maye knowe how that * as I was with Moses so will I be with the. And thou shalt commaunde the preastes that beare the arke of the couenaunt sayinge: when ye are come to the edge of the waters of Jordan, ye shall stande still in it.

And Joshua sayde vnto the children of Israel: come hither, & heare the wordes of the Lorde poure God. And Joshua sayde, herebye ye shall knowe that the luyng God is amonge you, & that he will wythout fayle cast out before you, the Cananites, & the Hethites, & the Hivites, & the Pherezites, & the Gergesites, & the Amozites, & the Jebusites. Beholde, the arke of the apointment of the Lorde of all the world goeth before you into Jordā. Now therfore take from amonge you twelue men out of the tribes of Israel, out of euery tribe a man. And as sone as the soles of the fete of the preastes (that beare the arke of the Lorde the Gouernour of all the world) tread in the waters of Jordan, the waters of Jordan shall be deuided: & the waters that come from above, shall stande shall stande still vpon an heape. And it fortuneth, that when the people were departed fro their tetes to goo ouer Jordā, the preastes bearyng the arke of the apointment, wet before the people. And as sone as they that bare the arke came vnto Jordā, & the fete of the preastes that bare the arke were dipped in the byrm of the water * (for Jordā blyeth to fill all his backes all the tyme of haruest) the waters also that came downe fro above, dyd ryle vp vpon an heape * (and appeared as great as a mountayne,) and departed farre fro Adam, & was besyde Jartan, And the waters that were beneth to ward the see of the wilderness, fell awaye & departed into the salt see, and the people went ryght ouer agaynst Jericho. And the preastes bare the arke of the apointment of the Lorde, stode dye within Jordā ready prepared, & all the Israelites went ouer thozow the dye, vntill all the people were gone cleane ouer thozow Jordā,

The.iiii. Chapter.

Joshua setteth vp twelue stones in Jordan.

AND it fortuneth, that when the people were all gone ouer Jordā, the Lorde spake vnto Joshua, sayinge: Take you twelue men out of the people, out of euery trybe a man. And commaunde you them, sayinge: take you hence out of the myddes of Jordā (euen out of the place where the preastes stode in a redynes) twelue stones * (of the most hardest) stones, which ye shall take awaye with you, and leaue them in the place, where you shall lodge this night. And Joshua called the twelue men, which he had prepared of the children of Israel, out of euery trybe a man, and Joshua sayde vnto them: gett you before the arke of the Lorde poure God, euen thozow the myddes of Jordā, & take vp euery man of you a stone vpon his shulder, according vnto the nombre of the trybes of the children of Israel, that this maye be a signe amonge you. That when poure children aske thier fathers in tyme to come, sayinge: what meane these stones with you? Ye maye answer them how that the waters of Jordan denyed at the presence of the arke of the apointment of the Lorde. For when it went ouer Jordā, the waters of Jordan denided: And these stones are become a memoriale vnto the children of Israel for euer.

And the children of Israel dyd euen so as Joshua commaunded, and toke vp twelue stones out of the myddes of Jordā, as the Lorde sayde vnto Joshua, accordyng to the nombre of the tribes of the children of Israel, & carped them awaye with them vnto the place where they lodged, & layed the downe there. And Joshua set vp twelue stones also in the myddes of Jordā, in the place where the fete of the preastes which bare the arke of the testament, stode.

And there haue they continued vnto this daye. For the preastes which bare the arke stode in the myddes of Jordā, vntill all was finished that the Lorde commaunded Joshua to saye vnto the people, accordyng to all that Moses charged Joshua. And the people halted, and wet ouer. It fortuneth also, that when all the people were cleane ouer, the arke of the Lorde went ouer also, & the preastes before the people. * And the children of Ruben, & the children of Gad, & halfe the tribe of Manasses went before the children of Israel armed, as Moses charged the. Ene fourty thousande prepared for warre, wet before the Lorde vnto battell, thozow the playne of Jericho. * That daye the Lorde magnified Joshua in the syght of all Israel, and they feared him, as they feared Moses all dapes of his lyfe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Joshua, sayinge: commaunde the preastes that beare the arke of witnesse, to come vp out of Jordā. Joshua therfore commaunded the preastes, sayinge: Come ye vp out of Jordā, And when the preastes bare the arke of the apointment of the Lorde were come vp out of the myddes of Jordā, and as sone as the soles of the preastes fete were set on the drye lade, the waters of Jordan returned agayne vnto their place, & went ouer all their banckes, as they dyd before. And the people came vp out of Jordā the tenth daye of the fyrst moneth, and pitched in Gilgal, euen in the east border of the cyte Jericho.

And the twelue stones which they toke out of Jordā, did Joshua pitche in Gilgal. And he spake vnto the children of Israel, sayinge: * Yf poure children aske thier fathers in tyme to come, & saye: what meane these stones? ye shall shewe poure children, & saye: Israel came ouer this Jordan on drye lade. For the Lorde poure God dyed vp the water of Jordan before you, vntill ye were gone ouer, as the Lorde poure God dyd before vs, which he dyed vp before vs, tyll we were gone ouer: that all the people of the world maye knowe the hande of the Lorde, how myghtie it is, and that ye might feare the Lorde poure God for euer.

The.v. Chapter.

The Cananites are asraide.

AND it fortuneth, that when all the kynges of the Amozites which are beyond Jordā west warde, & all the kynges of the Cananites which were by the see, heard, how the Lorde had dyed vp the waters of Jordan before the children of Israel, vntill they were gone ouer, they herthes fainted for feare. And ther was no spere in them any moare, for the presence of the children of Israel.

That same tyme þe Lorde sayde vnto Josua: * Make the iharpe knyues of stone & good to agayne and circumsise the children of Israel þe seconde tyme. And Josua made him iharpe knyues of stone & circumsised the children of Israel in the place called þe hille of þe fores knyues. And this is þe cause why Josua circumsised all the people þe came out of Egypte: Namely such as were males because þe all the men of warre, died in the wilderness by þe wape, after they came out of Egypte. For all the people þe came out were circumsised. But all þe people that were borne in the wilderness by the wape after they came out of Egypte, were not circumsised. For the children of Israel walked forty yeres in the wilderness, tyll all þe people of the men of warre þe came out of Egypte were consumed, because they hardened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde. Wherefore the Lorde sware, that he wolde not leaue them the land * which the Lorde sware vnto theyre fathers, that he wolde geue vs, euen a lande that floweth wyth milke & honye. And their children who he sett vp in their stead: the Josua circumsised: for they were uncircumsised, because they circumsised them not by the wape. And when they had circumsised all the people, they abode styll together in the holste till they were whole. And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: this dape I haue taken awaye þe name of Egypte fro you: wherefore the name of the same place is called Gilgal vnto this dape. And þe children of Israel abode in Gilgal * and helde the feast of passeouer the fourtene dape of þe moneth at ene in the playne of Jerico. And they did eat of þe corne of þe land on the morowe after passeouer. D Sweete cakes & parched corne in þe selfe same dape. For the * Manna ceased on the morowe, after they had begone to eat of þe corne of the lande, neither had the children of Israel Manna any moare, but dyd eat of the corne of the lande of Canaan that yere. And it fortuneth that when Josua was nyge to Jericho, he lyt up his eyes & looked: and behold, there stode a man against him, hauping a swerde drawn in his hāde. And Josua wēt vnto him, and sayde vnto him: arte thou on oure syde or on oure aduersaries. And he sayde, Naye, but as a captayne of the holste of the lord am I now come. And Josua fell on his face to the erth, and dyd reuerence, & sayde vnto hym, what sayth my Lorde vnto bys scruiant? And þe captayne of the Lordes holste sayde vnto Josua: * do thy good of thy fote, for the place wheron thou stādest, is holy. And Josua did so.

The vi. Chapter.

The walles of Jericho fall, and it is destroyed.

And Jericho was shut vp, & locked because of þe childre of Israel, neither myght anye man go out or in. And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: beholde, I haue geuen into thyne hand Jericho and þe hynge and the strong men of warre. And ye shall compass the cite, all ye that be men of warre, & go rounde aboute it once and so shall you do syxe dayes. And seven preastes shall beare before the Arke, seven troppettes of rāmes hornes * that be dēd in the tubie. And the seuenth dape, ye shall compass the cite seven tymes, and the preastes shall blowe with the trompettes. And when they make a longe blaste wyth the rāmes hōrne, & ye heare the sounde of the hōrne, all the people shall shoute w a great shoute. And the wall of the cite shall fall doune, and the people shall ascende vp, euery man streight before him. And Josua the sonne of Nun, called the preastes, and sayde vnto them: take vp the arke of the appoyntement, & lett seven preastes beare seven trompettes of rāmes hornes before the arke of the Lorde. And he sayde vnto the people, go and compass the cite: and lett him þe is harnessed, go before the arke of the Lorde. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people, the seven preastes bare the seven trompettes of rāmes hornes, and went forth before the arke of the Lorde, & blew with the trompettes, and the arke of the couenaunt of the Lorde folowed the. And all the men of armes went before the preastes, that blew with the troppettes, and the comen people came after the arke: and the preastes that went blew with troppettes. And Josua commaunded the people sayinge: Ye shall not shoute, ner make any noyse w youre voyce, neither shal any worde procede out of poure mōthe, vntill þe dape I bid you shoute, then shall ye shoute. And so þe arke of the Lorde compassed the cite, and went aboute it once: and they returned into the holste, and lodged there. And Josua rose erly in the moorning, and the preastes toke vp þe arke of the Lorde, and seven preastes bare seven trompettes of rāmes hornes, & went before the arke of the Lorde, and blew with the trompettes. And all the men of armes went before them, but the comen people came after the arke of the Lorde, which wēt before with the blowing of the trompettes. And the seconde dape they compassed the cite once, & returned agayne into the holste, & so they dyd syxe dayes. And when the seuenth dape came, they rose erly: euen with the dawninge of þe dape, and compassed the cite after the same manner seven tymes: only that dape they compassed the cite seven tymes.

And at the seuenth tyme, when þe preastes blew with the troppettes, Josua sayde vnto þe people: shoute, for þe Lorde hath geuen you þe cite. And the cite shalbe dāned: bothe it and all that are therein, vnto the Lorde: onely Rahab the harlot shal lyue, and all that are with her in the house, because she hidde the messengers that we sent. And in anywise be ye ware of the excommunicate thynges, lest ye make poure selues excommunicate, & take of the excommunicate thynges, and make þe holste of Israel excommunicate and trouble it. But all þe siluer, golde, vessels of brasle, & yron shalbe consecrate vnto the Lorde, & shal come into his treasure. And the people shouted, and blew wyth trompettes. And when the people heard þe sounde of the trope, they shouted w a great shoute: & the wall fell doune, so þe people wēt vp into þe cite, euery man streight before him, & toke þe cite. And they utterly destroyed all þe was in the cite, bothe man and woman, younge and olde, ore, shepe & alle, with the edge of the swerde. Then Josua sayde vnto the two mē that had spyed out þe contrey: * goo into þe harlottes house, and bringe out thence the woman, and all that she hath, * as ye sware to her. And the younge men that were spyes, went in, and brought out Rahab, and her father and mother and her brethren, and all þe she had. And they brought out all her kered, & put them without the holste of Israel. And they burnt the cite with fire, and all that was therein. Only the siluer and þe golde, the vessels of brasle and yron, they put vnto þe treasure of the house of þe Lorde. * And Josua lauded Rahab the harlott, & her fathers housholde, and all that she had, & she dwelt in Israel, euen vnto this dape because she hidde the messengers, which Josua sent to spye out Jericho. And Josua swart at that tyme, sayinge: cursed be the man before the Lorde, that riseth vp, & buildeth this cite Jericho: he shall laye the foundation * in his eldest sonne, and in his yongest sonne shal he sett vp the gates of it. And so the Lorde was w Josua, and his fame was noyed thowowe out all landes.

The vii. Chapter.

That is spyed out. Acan is stoned.

At yet þe children of Israel trespassed in the * excommunicate thynges: And * Acan the sonne of Camy, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareh of the tribe of Judah, toke of the excommunicate thynges. And the wrath of the Lorde waxed whote agaynst the children of Israel. And Josua sent mē from Jericho to Hai, which is helyde Bethauen, on the east syde of Bethel, & spake vnto them, sayinge: gett you vp, & bewte the countrey. And the men went vp, & spyed out Hai. And returned to Josua, and sayde vnto him, lett not all the people go vp, but let as it were a two or thre thousande men goo vp, and smyte Hai and make not all the people to labour thether, for they are but fewe. And so there went vp thether of þe people, aboute a thre thousande men, & they fledde before the men of Hai. And the men of Hai smote of them vpo a thyrtye and sixe men: for they chased them fro before þe gate euen vnto Sebarim, & smote them in the goyng doune. Wherefore þe heretes of þe people * for feare melted awaye like water. And Josua rent his clothes, and fell to the erth vpon his face before þe arke of the Lorde vntill the euen tyde, he and the elders of Israel, & put erth vpon their heddes. And Josua sayde * Alas, O Lorde God, wherefore hast þe brought thys people ouer Jordan, to deliuer vs into the hande of the Amorites, and to destroye vs: wold to God we had bene content, & dwelt on the other syde Jordan. Oh Lorde what shall I saye, when Israel turneth their backs before their enemyes: Surely the Canaanites, and all þe inhabitants of þe lande shal heare of it, & shal conspire agaynst vs, & destroye the name of vs out of the worlde. And what wilt thou do vnto thy myghtie name? And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua, gett þe vp, wherefore lyste thou thus vpo thy face? Israel hath synned, & they haue transgressed myne appoyntement, which I commaunded them: for they haue taken of the excommunicate thynges, and haue stolen, and dissembled, & put them vnto their auncie stuffe. And therefore is it that þe children of Israel cannot stande before their enemyes, but shal turne their backs before their enemyes because they be excommunicate. Whether wilt I be w you any moare, excepte ye rote out þe excommunicate fro amonge you. * Up therfore, & sanctifie the people, and saye: sanctifie poure selues against to morowe: for so sayd þe Lorde God of Israel. There is a damned thyng amonge you (O Israel) & therefore ye cannot stande against poure enemyes, vntill ye haue put þe damned thyng from amonge you. To morowe moorning therfore ye shall be brought accordyng to poure tribes. And þe tribe which the Lorde taketh, shal come accordyng to þe knyres therof. And þe knyred which the Lorde shal fynde gylty, shal come by housholders. And þe housholde which þe Lorde shal fynde faulde, shal come man by man. And he þe is foude in þe excommunication, shalbe burnt with fire, he and all that he hath, because he hath transgressed the conuauent of the Lord and brought folpe in Israell.

And so Josua rose vperly in the moynig and brought Israell by their tribes: and þ tribe of Iuda was caught. And he brought the kynredes of Iuda, and toke the kynred of þ zarchites. And he brought the kynred of the zarchites, man, by man, & zabdi was caught. And he brought his houtholde mā by man, and Acan the sonne of Carny, the sonne of zabdi, the sonne of zareth in the tribe of Iuda was caught.

D And Josua sayde vnto Acan: my sone, I beseeche the, geue glorie to þ Lord God of Israell, & geue hi praise, & shewe me what thou hast done, hyde it not from me. And Acan answered Josua, & sayde: of a truthe I haue sinned agaynst the Lord God of Israell, & thus & thus haue I done. I saue among the spolie a goodlye Babylonische garment, & two hundred sicles of siluer, & a tonge of golde of fyftie sicles weyghte, and I coucted them, & toke them. And beholde, they lye hydde in the erthe in my tente and the siluer is ther vnder.

And so Josua sent messengers: which whā they raine vnto his tēt, beholde, they were hid in his tent, and the syluer there vnder. Therfore they toke the out of the myddest of his tent, and brought them vnto Josua, and vnto all the chyldre of Israell, & layed them out before the Lord.

And Josua toke Acan the sonne of zareth, and the siluer, & the garment, and the tōge of golde, and his sonnes & his daughters, his oren, & his alres, his shepe, & his tent, & all that he had: and all Israell wyth hym brought them vnto the valepe of Acoz.

And Josua sayde: In as moche as thou haste troubled vs, the Lord shall trouble þ this daye. And all Israell stoned him with stones, and burned the with fire, and ouerwhelmed them with stones. And they cast vpo him a great heape of stones vnto this daye. And so the Lord turned from the wrathe of his indignacion. And the name of the place is called þ valepe of Acoz vnto this daye.

The. viii. Chapter.

The crege and wymping of Hai the kyng therof is bagged. Josua setteth vp an altare, the blesseth the people.

A And the Lord sayde vnto Josua: feare not, nether be thou saynt harted. Take all þ men of warre wyth the and vp, and gett the to Hai. Beholde, I haue geuen into thy hande, the kyng of Hai, and his people, his cytie and his lande.

And thou shalt do to Hai & her kyng, as thou dydest vnto Jericho and her kyng. Reuerthelesse þ spolie and catell therof, shall ye take vnto youre selues: And laye a watch vnto the towne, on the backsyde therof.

And so Josua arose, and all the men of warre, to go vp agaynst Hai. And Josua chose oute thyrtye thousande stronge men of warre, & sent the awaye by nyght. And he commaunded them, sayinge: beholde, ye shall lye awaye vnto þ towne on the backsyde therof. Go not very farre from þ cytie, but be all readye. And I and all þ people þ are with me, will approche vnto the cytie. And when they come out agaynst vs, as they did at the first tyme the will we flee before the. For they will come oute after vs & we will bring them out of the cytie. For they will saye: they flee before vs, as at þ first tyme: & we will flee before the. In the meane tyme shall ye ryle vp fro lping awaye, & destroye þ cytie: For þ Lord poure God will deliuer it into youre hāde. And whan ye haue taken þ cytie, ye shall set it on fire. Accordinge to the commaundement of the Lord that ye do: beholde, I haue charged you. Josua therfore sent the forth, & they went to lye awaye, & abode betwene Bethel and Hai, on the west syde of the cite of Hai. But Josua lodged that nyght amōge the people. And Josua rose vperly in the moynynge, and nombred the people, & wēt vp, he & the elders of Israel before the people agaynst Hai. And all the men of warre that were with him, wēt vp and dyue nye, and came agaynst the cytie, and pitched on the north syde of Hai, & there was a valepe betwene them and Hai. And he toke vpo a fync thousande men, and put them to lye awaye, betwene Bethel & Hai, on þ west syde of þ cytie. And they put þ people (euen all the polte that were on the northsyde) agaynst the cytie, and the lpers awaye on the west. And Josua walked þ same nyght in the myddes of the valepe.

And it fortuneth, þ when the kyng of Hai sawe it they halted and rose vperly, and the men of the cytie went oute agaynst Israell to battell, he & all his people, at a tyme apoynted, euen before the playne, and wist not that there were lpers awaye on the backsyde of the cytie.

And Josua & all Israel layned them selues to be put to the worlde before the, & fled toward the wilderness. And all þ people of þ towne were called together, to folowe after them. And they folowed after Josua & were drawe a waye from the cytie: And there was not a man left in Hai & in Bethel, þ wēt not out after Israell. And they left the cytie open, & folowed after Israell.

And the Lord sayde vnto Josua: stretch out þ spere þ is in thine hād, toward Hai, for I will geue it into thy hād. And Josua stretched stretched out the spere þ he had in his hād, toward the cite. And þ lpers awaye rose quicklye oute of their place, & ranne assone as Josua had stretched oute his hande, and they entred into the cite and toke it, & habited, & sett the cite on fire. And when þ men of Hai looked backe after them, they sawe þ smoke of the cite ascende vp to heauē. And they had no lcsure to flee ether thys waye or þ, & the people þ fledd to þ wylderesse, turned backe agayne vpon the folowers.

E And when Josua & all Israel sawe that the lpers awaye had take the cite, & that the smoke of it ascended, they turned agayne and layed on the men of Hai. And the other yssued oute of the cite agaynst them. And so were they in þ myddes of Israell: for these were on the one syde of them, & the reste on the other syde. And they layed vpo them, so þ they lett none of the shape, nor remayne. And the kyng of Hai they toke alpye, & brought hym to Josua. And when Israell had made an ende of slaying all the enhabiters of Hai in the felde of the wylderesse, where they chaled them, & when they were all fallen on the edge of the swerde, vntyll they were wasted, all the Israelites returned vnto Hai, & smote it in the edge of the swerde. And all that fell that daye, both of men & women, were twelue thousande, euen all the men of Hai.

For Josua plucked not hys hande backe agayne, which he stretched oute vpo þ spere, vntyll he had utterly destroyed all þ enhabitours of Hai. Only the catell and the spolie of þ cite, Israel toke vnto them selues, accordinge vnto the worde of þ Lord, which he commaunded Josua. And Josua sett Hai on fyre, and made it an heape for euer, and a wylderesse, euen vnto thys daye. And þ kyng of Hai he hāged on tree, vntyll euen. And assone as the sonne was downe, Josua commaunded þ they shulde take the carhas doune of the tree, and caste it at the enterig of the gate of the cite, and laye thereon a great heape of stones, that remayneth vnto this daye.

Then Josua * blyt an altare vnto the Lord God of Israell, in mount Eball, as Moses the seruauit of the Lord commaunded the chyldre of Israell, and as it is written in the * boke of the lawe of Moses: an altare of whole stones, & ouer which no man hath lyft any tole of yron. And they sacrificed thereon burnt sacrifices vnto the Lord, and offered peace offrynges. And he wrote there vpo the stones, a rehearsall of the lawe of Moses, and wrote it in the presence of the chyldren of Israell.

And all Israell and the elders therof, and their officers & Judges stode, parte on this syde the arche, & parte on that syde, before the preastes, & were Leuites, which bare the arche of the apoyntement of the Lord: as well the straunger, as they þ were borne amonge the: halfe on them on þ forefronte of the mounte Garizim, and halfe of them on the forefronte of mount Eball: as Moses the seruauit of the Lord had commaunded before, that they shulde blesse þ people Israell. Afterward he red all the wordes of the lawe, the blessings and cursynges, accordinge to all that is wyrtē in the boke of the lawe: And there was not one worde of all that Moses commaunded, which Josua read not before all the cōgregacyon of Israell: The women and chyldre, (and the straungers that were come) stōpyng amonge them.

The. ix. Chapter.

The Gibeonites obtayne peace of Josua.

A And it fortuneth that whā all the kyn- ges that dwell on thys syde Jordan in the hilles and valeys, and alonge by all the coastes of the great see, ouer agaynst Libanon (namely the hethites, & Amozites, the Cananites, the Phereites, the Heuites, and the Jebusites) herd therof, they gathered them selues together, to fyght agaynst Josua and agaynst Israell with one accorde.

And the enhabitours of Gibeon heard what Josua had done vnto Jericho, and to Hai: And they did worke wylylye, & went, and made them selues ambasadoures, and tolke with them vitayles, and olde sackes vpo their asses, and wyne bottles olde, and rēt and worne, and olde clouted shoes vpo their feete, and their raymet was olde, and all their prouision of bread was dyrd vp, and ho- red. And they came vnto Josua into the hoste, to Gilgall, and sayde vnto him and vnto all the men of Israell: we be come from a farre contrepe, and now make ye agreement with vs. And the men of Israell sayde vnto the heuite: paradventure thou dwellest amōge vs, and then howe can I make peace wyth the?

And they sayde vnto Josua: we are thy seruantes. And Josua sayde vnto them agayne: what are ye? and whence come ye? They answered him: fro a verpe farre contrepe thy seruantes are come, for the name of the Lord thy God: for we haue heard þ fame of (the power) of him, and all that he did in Egypte, and all that he dyd to the two kynges of the Amozites þ were beyonde Jordan, Sehon kyng of hesbon, and Og kyng of Basan, which was at Ashtaroth. Therfore oure elders and all the enhabitours of oure cōtrepe spake to vs, sayinge: take vitayles w pou to serue by þ waye, & go mete them, and saye vnto them: we are youre seruantes. And now make ye a cou-maunt of peace with vs. Chys our foode of bread, we take with vs oute of oure houses whokre, the daye we departed to come vnto you. And now behold, it is dyed vp, and bo red. And these bootelles of wyne which we filled, were newe: and se, they be rent. And these oure garmentes and shooes are worne for oltnesse, by the reason of the excedyng long Iournepe.

C And the men toke of their vitayles, and collected not with the mouth of the Lord. And Josua made peace with them, and made a conenaut with the, that they shulde be suffered to lyue: & the Lordes of the congregacyon swore vnto them. And it fortuned, p the dayes after they had made peace with the, they hearde that they were their neybouris, & p they dwelte amonge them. And the chyldre of Israel toke their Iourney, and came vnto their cyties the thyrde daye: and their cyties were Gibeon, & Gappira, Becroth and kariat Jarim. And the chyldre of Israel slewe them not, because p Lordes of p congregacyon had sworne vnto them by the Lorde God of Israel. And all the multitude murmured against p Lordes. But all the Lordes sayde vnto all the congregacyon: we haue sworne vnto the by p Lord God of Israel, & therfore we maye not hurte the. But this we wyll do to the: We will lett them lyue, lest wrath be vpon vs, because of the othe which we swore vnto hem. And the Lordes sayd vnto them a gayne: Let them lyue, & and he we wodd, ad drawe water vnto all the cōgregacion, and they did as the Lordes sayde vnto them.

* Deut. xxi. d

And Josua sent for them, & talked with them, and sayde: wherfore haue ye begyled vs, sayeng: We dwell farre from pou, whā pe dwell amōge vs: and now are you cursled, & there shall not cease to be of pou, bond men and heuers of wodd & drawers of water for the house of my God.

And they answered Josua and sayde: it was tolde thy seruantes, how that p Lord thy God had comaunded his seruant Moles to grue pou all the lāde, and to destroye all the cnhabytoures therof oute of poure syght, & therfore we were excedyng sore afrayed: & (as p pource) for oure lyues at p presence of pou, & haue done this thinge, & beholde we are i thine hāde, as it semeth good & ryght in thine eyes to do vnto vs, so do.

And cūen to dyd he vnto them, and ridde them oute of the hande of the chyldren of Israel, and they slewe them not. And Josua made them p same daye heuers of wodd, & drawers of water for the cōgregacyon and for the altar of God vnto thys daye, in the place which God shulde chose.

C The .x. Chapter.

C The Amorites are utter come of Josua. It sayeth Moyses. The sonne standeth still. The .v. kynges are hanged.

Ad it fortuned, that whē Adonizedec kyng of Ierusalē had heard how Josua had taken hai, & had destroyed it, and how that as he had done to Jericho and her kyng, eue so he had done to hai and her kyng, and how the Inhabitouris of Gibeon had made peace with Israel, and were amonge them, they feared exceedingly, for Gibeon was a great cytie, as any cytie of the kyngdome, & was greater then hai, and all the me therof were very myghtye.

* Josua. vi. d. and. viii. d.

Wherfore Adonizedec kyng of Ierusalē sent vnto Hoham kyng of hebron, and vnto Pirca kyng of Jarmuth, & vnto Japhia kyng of Lachis, and vnto Debir kyng of Eglon, sayeng: Come vp vnto me, & healepe me, p we may smyte Gibeon: for they haue made peace with Josua and with p chyldre of Israel. Therfore p .v. kynges of p Amorites, the kyng of Ierusalem, p kyng of hebron, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, p kyng of Eglon gathered the selues to geather, they withall their hostes, & beleged Gibeon, and made warre agaynst it.

And the men of Gibeon sent vnto Josua & to p hoste to Gilgal, sayeng: withdrowe not thy hande fro thy seruantes, come vp to vs, to saue vs, & to helpe vs: For al the kiges of p Amorites which dwell i p mountaynes are gathered together agaynst vs.

And so Josua ascended from Gilgal, he and all the people of warre with him, & all the men of myghte, and the Lord sayde vnto Josua, feare them not, for I haue delpynered them into thyne hande. Nether shal any of the stande agaynst p. Josua therfore came vnto them sodenlye, and went vp from Gilgal all nyght. And the Lord troubled them before Israel, and slewe them with a great slaughter at Gibeon, and chased them a longe the waye that gothe vp to Bethoron, and smote them to Elaka & Wakeba. And it fortuned, p as they fled fro Israel, & were in the goyng doune to Bethoron, the Lorde cast doune great stones from heauē vpon them, vntill Elaka. And there were mo deed with haple stones, then they were, whom the chyldren of Israel slewe with the swerde.

Then spake Josua before the Lorde, in the daye when p Lorde delpynered the Amorites before the chyldren of Israel, and he sayde in the syght of Israel. * Sōne stāde thou still vpon Gibeon, and thou Moyses, in Aialon. And the sonne abode, and the mone stode still, vntill the people aduēged them selues vpo their enemyes. Is not this writen in p boke of p ryght weis? C The sonne (I saye) abode in the myddes of heauē and halted halted not to goo doune by p space of a whole daye. And there was no daye lyke that, before it, or after it, that the Lorde heard p voyce of a man. For the Lorde fought for Israel.

D And Josua returned and all Israel with hym, vnto the holte to Gilgal: but the fyue kynges fledde, and were hyd in a caue at Wakeba. And it was tolde Josua of one sayeng, the fyue kynges are founde hid in a caue which is at Wakeba. And Josua sayd rowle great stones vpon the mouth of the caue, and set men by it, for to kepe them. And stande ye not styll, but folowe after poure enemyes, ad smyte all the hindmost, And soffre them not to entre into the cyties, for the Lorde poure God hath delpynered them into poure hāde. And it fortuned, when Josua and the chyldre of Israel had made an ende of slaying them with an exceedingly great slaughter tyll they were wasted, the rest that remayned of them, entred into walled cyties.

And all the people returned to the holte, to Josua at Wakeba in peace, neither dyd any man moue hys tong agaynst the chyldren of Israel. Then sayde Josua: open the mouth of the caue, and byng oute these .v. kynges vnto me oute of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those fyue kynges vnto hym, oute of the caue, euen the kyng of Ierusalem, the kyng of hebron, the kyng of Jarmuth, the kyng of Lachis, and the kyng of Eglon.

C And it fortuned, that when they brought oute those kynges vnto Josua: Josua called for all the men of Israel, and sayde vnto the chefe of the mē of warre, which were with hym: come nere, & put poure fete vpo the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere: and put their fete vpo the neckes of them. And Josua sayde vnto the: Ye shall not feare, ner be saynt harted. But be strōg and plucke vp poure hertes, for thus shall the Lorde do to all poure enemyes agaynst whom ye fyght.

* Josua. viii. d.

* Josua. viii. d.

* Josua. viii. d.

And then Josua smote them, and slewe them, & hanged the on fyue trees. And they hāged still vpo p trees vntill the euenyng. And at p goig doune of p sonne it fortuned that Josua gaue comaundement, and they toke the doune of p trees, ad cast the into p caue, (where in they had bene hyd), & layed great stones on p caues mouth, which remayne vnto this daye.

And that same daye Josua toke Wakeba, and smote it with p edge of the swerde, and the kyng therof also * destroyed he utterly, with all the soules that were therein, and let nought remayne. And he dyd to the kyng of Wakeba * as he dyd to the kyng of Jericho.

Then Josua went from Wakeba, and all Israel with hym vnto Libna, & fought against Libna. And the Lorde delpynered it and the kyng therof into the hand of Israel, and he smote it with the edge of the swerde, ad all the soules that were therein. He let nought remayne in it, but dyd vnto the kyng therof as he dyd vnto the kyng of Jericho.

* Josua. viii. d.

And Josua departed from Libna, and all Israel with hym, vnto Lachis, ad beleged it, and assaulted it. And the Lord delpynered Lachis into the hande of Israel. Which toke it the secōde daye, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, & all the soules that were theri, doing accordyng to all, as he had done to the cite of Libna.

Then Hoham kyng of Gether came by to helpe Lachis: And Josua smote hym & his people, vntill naught remayned of hym.

And from Lachis Josua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Israel with hym, and they beleged it, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, ad smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein he utterly destroyed the same daye, according to all that he had done to Lachis.

And Josua departed by from Eglon and all Israel with hym, vnto hebron. And they fought agaynst it, and when they had take it, they smote it with the edge of p swerde, and p kyng therof, and all the townes that pertayned to it, ad all the soules that were therein, and he lette nought remayning: but did accordig to all, as he had done to Eglon, and destroyed it utterly, ad all the soules that were therein.

And Josua returned, and all Israel with hym to Dabir, and fought agaynst it. And when he had taken it, and the kyng therof, and all the townes that pertayned thereto, they smote them with the edge of p swerde, ad utterly destroyed all the soules p were therein, nether let he ought remayne. Euen as he dyd to hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and p kyng therof, as he had done also to Libna and her kyng.

Josua therfore smote all the hill contreys, and the southe contreys, and the valleyes, and the hill sydes, & all their kynges, & lett nought remayne of the, but utterly destroyed all that * breathed, as the Lorde God of Israel commaunded. And Josua smote them from Cades barne vnto Iasah, and all the contrey of Gofan, eue vnto Gibeon. All those kynges and their lande dyd Josua take at one tyme: because the Lorde God of Israel fought for Israel. And Josua and all Israel returned, vnto the holte that was in Gilgal.

* Deut. xx. d.

C The .xi. Chapter.

C The battell of Josua with dyuers kynges.

And

Ad it fortuned, that when Jabin kyng of Hazor had heard those thynges: he sent to Jobab kyng of Madon, & to the kyng of Shimron, and to the kyng of Achsaph, and unto the kynges that are by north in the mountaynes, & playnes toward the southe syde of Ceneroth, & in the lowe countreys, & in the borders of Dor westward and unto the Cananytes bothe by East & West, & unto the Amorites, Hethites, Phelites, and Jebusites in the mountaynes: & unto the Hittites that were under hermon in the lande of Mizpa. And they came out with all their hostes with them, a multitude of folke, even as the sande that is on the see shore in a greete nobye with hostes & charrettes exceeding manye. And all these kynges mett together, and came, and pitched together at the waters of Merom, for to fight agaynst Israel.

And the Lorde sayde unto Josua: be not afrayde at the presence of them: for tomorrow aboute this tyme will I delivere them all slayne before Israel: thou shalt hough their hostes, & burne their charrettes with fire. And so Josua came and all the men of warre with hym agaynst them by the waters of Merom, & suddenly fell upon them. And the Lorde delivred them into the hande of Israel: and they smote them, and chased them unto great Sidon, & unto the whote waters, & unto the valeys of Mizpa which is Eastward: and smote them until they had none remaynyng of them. And Josua dyd unto them, as the Lorde had hym: he houghed their hostes, and burnt their charrettes with fyre.

And Josua at that tyme turned backe, & toke Hazor, & smote the kyng thereof with the swerde. And Hazor before tyme was the head of all those kyngdomes. And they smote all the soules that were there with the edge of the swerde, utterly destroying all: & nothing that breathed, was let remayne. And he burnt Hazor with fyre. And all the cyties of those kynges, and all the kynges of them, dyd Josua take, and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and utterly destroyed them: as Moses the servaunt of the Lorde commaunded.

But Israel burnt none of the cyties that were still in their strenght, save Hazor onlye that Josua burnt. And all the spoyle of the sayde cyties & the cattell, the chyldren of Israel caught unto them selues. But the men onlye they smote with the edge of the swerde until they had destroyed them nether left they ought that had breath. As the Lorde commaunded Moses his servaunt, so dyd Moses commaunde Josua, and even so dyd Josua: so that he mynyshed no worde, of all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And so Josua toke all the lande, the hylls and all the southe contrey, and all the lande of Golan, and the lowe contrey, and the playne, and the mountayne of Israel, & the lowe countrey of the same, even from the mounte of parayng, & gothe up to Seir unto the playne of Gad in the valeys of Libanon, under mounte hermon. And all the kynges of the same he toke, & smote them, and slewe them.

Josua made warre longe tyme with those kynges: nether was there anye cite made peace with the chyldren of Israel, save those Hethites that inhabited Gibeon, and therefore all other they toke with battell, for it came of the Lorde, which dyd harden their hartes, that they shulde come agaynst Israel in battell: & that they shulde destroye them utterly, and slewe them no mercy, but to byng them to naught. As the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And that same reason came Josua, and destroyed the Enakites out of the mountaynes: namely, out of Hebron, Dabir, Anab, and out of all the mountaynes of Juda, and out of all the mountaynes of Israel. And Josua destroyed them utterly with their cities. There was not one Enakite left in the lande of the chyldren of Israel, only in Ash-Geth, and Adod, the-
* 1. reg. xiii.

And Josua toke the whole lande, according to all that the Lorde sayd unto Moses, and Josua gaue it for a possession unto Israel: according to their partes and trybes: & the lande rested from warre.

The. xii. Chapter.

What kynges Josua and the chyldren of Israel helpe, which were in nombe. xxxi.

These are the kynges of the lande whych the chyldren of Israel smote, and possessed theyr land on the other syde Jordan eastward, from the ryuer Arnon, unto mounte hermon, and all the playne eastward: * Sehon kyng of the Amorites, that dwelt in Hebron, and ruled from Aroer, whych is besyde the ryuer of Arnon, and from the middell of the ryuer, and from halfe Gilead unto the ryuer Jabbok, whych is the border of the chyldren of Ammon: And from the playne unto the see of Cinneroth eastward, and unto the see in the playne: even the salt see eastward, the waye to Beth Jelsmoth, and from the southe vnder the spynges of the hill.

And the coaste of Og kyng of Basan which was of the remnant of the Gargathites, and dwelt at Ashtaroth, and Edrai: & ragyned in mount hermon, and in Salcah: & in all Basan, unto the border of the Gessurites, and rites & the Macathites, & halfe mount Gilead, unto the borders of Sehon kyng of Hebron. * Moses the servaunt of the Lorde & the chyldren of Israel smote them, & Moses the servaunt of the Lorde, gaue their lande for a possession, unto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the trybe of Manasses.

These are the kynges of the countrey, whych Josua & the chyldren of Israel smote on this syde Jordan, westward, from the playne of Gad which is in the valeys of Libanon, even unto the partyng mount that gothe up to Seir. Whych land Josua gaue unto the trybes of Israel to possesse, to every man his parte: in the upper lande, & nether lande, in playnes, and hyll sydes, in wilderness, and southe contrey: the Hethites, the Amorites, the Cananites, the Phelites, the Hittites, and the Jebusites.

The kyng of Jericho: was one. The kyng of Hai which is besyde Bethel: one. The kyng of Jerusalem: one. The kyng of Hebron: one. The kyng of Jarmuth: one. The kyng of Lachys: one. The kyng of Eglon: one. The kyng of Gazer: one. The kyng of Debir: one. The kyng of Sedec: one. The kyng of Horma: one. The kyng of Arad: one. The kyng of Libna: one. The kyng of Adullam: one. The kyng of Gath: one. The kyng of Bethel: one. The kyng of Tapuah: one. The kyng of Heber: one. The kyng of Aphik: one. The kyng of Lachish: one. The kyng of Gath: one. The kyng of Maon: one. The kyng of Carmel: one. The kyng of Dor in the contrey of Dor: one. The kyng of the nations of Gilgal: one. The kyng of Thirza: one. All the kynges together thyrtye and one.

The. xiii. Chapter.

Josua is commaunded to drype the lande to the chyldren of Israel.

Josua was olde, and streyken in yeares, and the Lorde sayde unto hym: thou art olde and streyken in yeares, and there remayneth yet exceeding moche lande to be possessed: This is the lande that yet remayneth: all the regyons of the Philistines: & all Gath: from Milgah which is on the outward parte of Egypt, unto the borders of Ascalon northward, whych lande is counted unto Canaan, even the Lordshippes of the Philistines, the Asathites, Asdodites, Ascalonites, Gethites, Akaonites, & the Gittites. And from the south, all the lande of the Cananites, and the caue, that is besyde the Sidonians, even unto Aphik, and to the border of the Amorites. And the land of the Gubites, and all Libanon toward the southe, from the playne of Gad vnder mount hermon, until a man come to Hemath: all the inhabitants of the hyll country, from Libanon unto the whote waters, and all the Sidonians, will I cast out from before the chyldren of Israel: onelye that thou in any wyse drype it by lotte unto the Israelites, to inheret, as I have commaunded the. Now therefore dride this land to inheret, unto the nyne trybes & the halfe trybe of Manasses. For with the other halfe the Rubenites & the Gadites have receaved theyr inheritaunce. * Whych Moses gaue them beyonde Jordan eastward: even as Moses the servaunt of the Lorde gaue them: from Aroer that lyeth on the bym of the ryuer Arnon, & from the cite that is in the myddes of the ryuer. And all the playne of Medeba unto Dibon, & all the cyties of Sehon kyng of the Amorites, whych ragyned in Hebron, even unto the border of the chyldren of Ammon: and Gilead, & the border of Geshuri and Machati, and all mount hermon, with all Basan unto Salcah: eue all the kyngdom of Og in Basan, whych he ragyned in Ashtaroth & Edrai, whych lande remayned yett of the Gassanites. These dyd Moses smyte, & cast the out.

Nevertheless the chyldren of Israel expelled not the Gessurites & the Machathites: But the Gessurites and the Machathites dwell amonge the Israelites eue unto this daye. Only unto the trybe of Lem, he gaue none inheritaunce: * But the offeringe of the Lorde God of Israel is theyr inheritaunce, as he sayde unto them.

Moses gaue unto the trybe of the chyldren of Ruben inheritaunce according to theyr kynredes. And theyr coaste was from Aroer that lyeth on the banke of the ryuer Arnon, & from the cite that is in the myddes of the ryuer, and all the playne which is by Medeba, Hebron, with all their townes that lye in the playne: Dibon and the hyll places of Baal, and the house Baalmeon: and Jahazah, and Kedemoth & Nephtali: and Sabamah and Zarahabai in the mounte of the valley, the house of Peor, and the spynges of the hylls: and Bethielsmoth: and all the cyties of the playne. And all the kyngdom of Sehon kyng of the Amorites, whych ragyned in Hebron, whych Moses smote: * With the lordes of Madian, Em, Rekem, Zur, and Hur and Reba, the which were dukes of Sehon dwelling in the contrey. And Balaam also the son of Beor the soothsayer, dyd the chyldren of Israel slaye with the swerde, among other of the that were slayne. And the border of the chyldren of Ruben was Jordan with the contrey that lyeth thereon. This was the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Ruben after:

after their kynredes, cyties & villages pertayning therto.

D And Moyses gaue enheritaunce vnto the trybe of Gad, euen vnto þe chylde of Gad he gaue by theyr kynredes. And theyr costes were Jazer, & all the cyties of Gilead, and halfe the lade of þe chylde of Ammon, vnto Aroer þe lyeth before Rabba. And fro Heshon vnto Ramoth, Wazphah, & Betonim: and fro Mahanaun vnto þe borders of Libbir. And in þe valeye they had Bethara, Bethnura, Socoth, and Zaphon, þe rest of the kyngdome of Sehon kyng of Heshon, vnto Jordan and the costes that lye therō, euen vnto the edge of the see of Ceneroth, on the other syde Jordā eastward. This is the enheritaunce of the chylde of Gad after their kynredes, theyr cyties and villages.

And Moyses gaue enheritaunce vnto the halfe trybe of Manasses. And this was þe possession of þe halfe trybe of Manasses by theyr kynredes. Theyr coste was fro Mahanaun, eue all Balan, & all þe kyngdome of Og kyng of Balan, and all þe townes of Jair which lye in Balan, eue theske cyties, & halfe Gilead, Astaroth, & Edrai, cyties of þe kyngdome of Og in Balan. And the pertayning vnto the chylde of Machir þe sonne of Manasses, eue þe halfe porcion of the chylde of Machir by theyr kynredes.

These are the thynges which Moyses did distribute in the felde of Moab, on þe other syde Jordā ouer against Jericho eastward. But vnto the trybe of Leui, Moyses gaue none enheritaunce, for the Lorde God of Israel is their enheritaunce, as he sayd vnto them.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

Caleb requyeth the heritage that was promysed hym, and Hebron was geuen hym.

And these are the contryes which the chylde of Israel enherited in þe lande of Canaan, which Eleazar the preaste, and Josua the sonne of Nun and the auncient heades of þe trybes of the chylde of Israel, distributed to them. By lotte they receaued their possessions as the Lorde comaunded by þe hade of Moyses, to geue vnto the nyne trybes, & vnto þe halfe trybe. For Moyses had geuen enheritaunce vnto two trybes and an halfe on þe other syde Jordā. But vnto þe Leuites he gaue none enheritaunce amoge the. For the chylde of Joseph were two tribes, Manasses & Ephraim. And therfore they gaue no parte vnto the Leuites in the land, laue cyties to dwell in with the suburbs of the same, for their bestes and cattell. As the Lorde commaunded Moyses: euen so þe chylde of Israel did whē they deuided þe lade.

And the chylde of Juda came vnto Josua in Gilgall. And Caleb the sonne of Jephune þe kenefyte sayde vnto hym: thou wottest what the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses the mā of God, about my matter ad thyne in Cades Barne. Forty yere olde was I whē Moyses the seruaut of the Lorde sent me fro Cades Barne to spie out the lande. And I brought hym worde agayne eue as it was i myne herte. Neuerthelesse my brethren that went vp wyth me, dyscourage the herte of the people. And I folowed the Lorde God.

And Moyses swore þe same dape, saying: the lande wheron thy fete haue troaden, shalbe thyne enheritaunce and thy chylde for euer, because þe hast folowed the Lorde God. And behold, the Lorde hath kept me alpye (as he sayde) this fourtye and fyue yeres, eue sence the Lorde spake this word vnto Moyses, whyle the chylde of Israel wanderyd in the wyldernesse. And now lo, I am this dape foure skore & fyue yere old: & yet am as stronge at this tyme, as I was when Moyses sent me: looke how stronge I was the, so strong am I now whether I go to warre, or come agayne.

Now therfore geue me this mountayne wherof the Lorde spake in that dape, for þe herdest in that dape, how the Enakims are there, and the cities great & walled. Peradventure the Lorde wilbe with me, & I shall be able to dreyne the out, as the Lorde sayd. And Josua blessed hym, & gaue vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephune, & Hebron to enheret. And Hebron therfore became þe enheritaunce of Caleb the sonne of Jephune the kenefyte, vnto this dape: because he folowed þe Lorde God of Israel. And the name of Hebron was called in olde tyme, kariatharbe. For the same was a great mā amoge the Enakims. And the lande ceased from warre.

The. xv. Chapter.

The lotte of the chylde of Juda & the names of the cyties and villages of the same.

This was the lotte of the trybe of the chylde of Juda by theyr kynredes: Namely, towarde the border of Edom in the wyldernesse of zin, southwarde, euen from the vtmost parte of the southe coste. And theyr south coste was from the byrke of the salt see, from a rock that lea- neth southward. And it wēt out to þe south syde toward the gopuge by to Acrabim, & went a longe to zuma, and ascended vp on the south syde vnto Cades Barne, & went a longe to Hebron, and went vp to Adar, and sette a compale to Karca. From thece went it a longe to Azmon, and reached vnto the ryuer of Egypt: and the ende of that cost was on the west syde. And this is theyr south coste.

Their east coste is the salt see, euen vnto the edge of Jordan. And their border in the north north quarter was fro the rocke of the see and fro the edge of Jordan. And the same border went vp to Bethhagla, and went a longe by the northsyde of Betharabah, and vp from thece to the stone of Bohen þe sonne of Ruben. And agayne, the same border went vp to Dabir fro the valeye of Aroer, and so northwarde, turnyng towarde Gilgall, that lieth before þe goyng vp to Adonim, whych is of the southe syde of the ryuer. And the same border wēt vp to þe waters of the fountayne of the Sone, and ended at the well of Rogell. And then went vp to the valeye of the sonne of Hemo, eue vnto the southe syde of Jebusi: the same is Jerusalem. And then went vp to the toppe of the hille that lyeth before the valeye of Hemo, westwarde, and by the edge of the valeye of the Giantes northwarde: And then it compasseth fro the toppe of the hill vnto the fountayne of the water of Rephthoah, and gothe out at the cities of mount Ephron: and draweth to Baala, whiche is kariatharim, (that is, a cytie of woodes,) and then it compasseth from Balah westwarde vnto mount Seir, & then goeth a longe vnto the syde of mount Jarim, (which is Chesalon) on þe north syde. And cometh downe to Bethlames, and gothe to Chamnah, and gothe out agayne vnto the syde of Akarō northwarde: And then draweth to Secron and gothe a longe to mount Balah, and goeth out at Jabnel: & the endes of the costes leane at the west see. And the west border was the great see, and the same coaste was the coast of the chylde of Juda rounde about in theyr kynredes.

And vnto Caleb the sonne of Jephune dyd Josua geue a parte among the chylde of Juda, accordyng to the mouthe of the Lorde, euen kariatharbe the father of Enoch, whiche cytie is Hebron. And Caleb droue thence the thre sonnes of Enak, Selai, and Ahman, and Chalmat, which were, the sonnes of Enak. And he wēt vp thence, to the inhabitoures of Dabir. And the name of Dabir in the olde tyme was kariath sephar. (That is, a cytie of letters.) And Caleb sayde: he that smyteth kariath sepher, & taketh it: to hym wyll I geue Aclah my daughter to wyfe. And Othniel, the sonne of Kenes, the brother of Caleb toke it. And he gaue hym Aclah his daughter to wyfe. And as he went in vnto hym, he moued hym, to aske of her father a felde. And he alpyghted of her alle. And Caleb sayde vnto her, what apleth the? Who answered: gyue me a blessing: for thou hast geuen me a south lande: geue me also springes of water. And he gaue her springes of water, bothe aboue and benethe. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the chylde of Juda by their kynredes.

And the vtmost cyties of the tribe of the chylde of Juda, towarde þe coastes of Edom southwarde, were: Kabez, Eder & Jagur: kinah, Dimonah, and Adada: kedeg, hazor and Jethnan: ziph, Telem and Baloth, hazor, hadathah, karioth, hestō (which is hazor) Eman, Sami, and Moladah: hazargadah, halmon & Bethphelech: halar lual, Bersabe, and Bazothah: Baalah, Jim, and Azen: Eltholad, Cecell, and Horma: ziklag, Medemenah & Sen: senah: Labaoth, Bethum, Ain and Rimō: all these cyties are twente and nyne with their villages. And in þe lowe cotrepe they had Esthaol, zarah, and Akenah: zoneah, Enganun, Chaphuah & Enam: Jarmuth Adulā, Socoh, & Azkah: Saarem, Abithaim, Cederah, and Cederothaim: foure tene cyties with their villages.

zenan, hadazah, and Magbalgad: Deleam, Mizpa, and Jektheel: Lachis, Bazcath and Eglon: Cabon, Lahamam, and Cethlis Caderoth, Bethdagon, Maamah and Hakedah: Syrtene cyties with their villages.

Lebna, Ether, and Alan: Jephthah, Anah, and Bezib: keilah, kabez and Mareshah: nyne cyties with their villages. Akron with her townes & villages. From Akro & from þe west, all that lyeth aboute Asdod with their villages. Asdod with her townes & villages. Azah with her townes & villages, euen vnto the ryuer of Egypte and the great see was their coaste.

And in the mountaynes, they had Samir, Jathir, and Socoh, Danah: and kariathse- nath, which is Dabir: Anab, Esthemoh, & Anm, Gozen, Holon, & Giloh: a leuen cyties with their villages. Arab, Dumah, & Elean: Janim, Beththaphuah & Apcab. Humatab, & kariatharbe: which is Hebron and zore nyne cyties with their villages. Maon, Carmel, Sibh, & Jutah: Jethracel, Jukadan, ad Sanoch: Cam, Sabaah, and Chamnah: ten cyties with their villages. Halhull Bethzur and Gedor: Maarath, Bethanoth, & Elthoron: syre cyties with their villages. Kariath Baal whych is kariath Jarim: (the cytie of woodes) and Harabba: two cyties with their villages.

In the wyldernesse they had Betharabah, Medin & Sacacah: Bebson, the cytie of salt, and Engaddi: syre cyties with their villages. Neuertheles, the Jebusites that were þe inhabitants of Jerusalem, coulde not þe chylde of Juda cast out. But the Jebusites dwell with the chylde of Juda vnto this dape.

The. xvi. Chapter.

The lotte of the parte of Ephraim,

Ad the lotte of þ childien of Joseph felle frō Jordā by Jericho, vnto the water of Jericho Estward, and to þ wildernesse that goeth vp from Jericho thozow out mount Bethel: & goeth out from Bethel to Lus, & runneth alōge vnto the borders of Aremataroth: & goeth downe agayne westward euen to the coaste of Japhlethi, and vnto the coaste of Bethhoron the nether, and to Gafor, and the endes of their coostes leaue at the west see. And so the childien of Joseph Manasses & Ephraim toke their enheritaunce.

And the border of þ childie of Ephraim was by their kinredes. Their border on the east syde, was: Astaroth, Ador, euen vnto Bethhoron þ vpper, & wēt out westward to Machmathah on þ Northside, and returneth Estward vnto Chaanath Silo, and past it on the Estside vnto Janoah, & wēt downe from Janoah to Atharoth & Naarath, & came to Jericho, & wēt out at Jordā. And their border wēt frō Chaphuab westward vnto the ryuer Kanah, and the endes were the west see. This is the enheritaunce of þ trybe of þ childie of Ephraim by their kynredes. And the separate cyties for the childien of Ephraim, were amōge the enheritaunce of the childien of Manasses: eue the cyties with their villages. And they draue not out þ Cananites þ dwelte in Gafor: but the Cananites dwell amōge the Ephraimites vnto this tyme, and serue vnder tribute.

The xvii. Chapter.

The lotte of porcion of the half tribe of Manasses. The Cananites become tributaries to the Israelites. Manasses & Ephraim require a greater porcion of heritage.

This was the lotte of þ tribe of Manasses, which was the * eldest sonne of Joseph. And Machir the eldest sonne of Manasses which was the father of Gilead (and a mā of warre) had Gilead and Basan, This was the possession of the rest of the childien of Manasses by their kinredes: Namely, of the childien of Abiezzer: the childien of Helek: the childien of Aziel: the childien of Sichem, the childien of Jephzer: þ childien of Semida: for these were þ male childie of Manasses the sonne of Joseph by their kinredes.

* But Zelaphead þ sonne of Jephzer, þ sonne of Gilead, þ sonne of Machir, the sonne of Manasses, had no sones but daughters whose names are these: Mahlah, Noa, Hagla, Melcha & Thirza: which came before Eleazar þ preaste, & before Josua the sonne of Nun, & before þ Lordes saying: * the Lord comāded Moyses to geue vs an enheritaunce amōge oure brethren. And therefore according to the comādemēt of the Lord, he gaue the an enheritaunce amōge þ brethren of their father. And there felle ten porcyōs to Manasses, besyde the lande of Gilead & Basan, which is on the other syde Jordan: because þ daughters of Manasses dyd enherett amōge hys sones. And Manasses other sones, had the lande of Gilead.

And the cooste of Manasses was from Aser to Machmathah þ lieth before Sichem and went a lōge on the ryght hande, euen vnto the enhabiters of Entaphuah, & the land of Chaphuab belōged to Manasses, whych Chaphuab is besyde the border of Manasses, and besyde the border of the childien of Ephraim. And the cooste descended vnto þ ryuer Canah southward, eue to the ryuer of the cyties of Ephraim, and betwene þ cyties of Manasses. The cooste of Manasses wente also on þ northsyde to the ryuer, & the endes of it go out at þ see: so that the south pertayned to Ephraim, & the north to Manasses, and the see is hys border. And they mette together in Aser northward, and in Astar eastward. And Manasses had in Astar & in Aser, Bethscan, & her townes: Ziblean, and hir townes: & the enhabitours of Dor, wyth the townes pertaynyng to the same: & the enhabitours of Endor with the townes of þ same: and the enhabitours of Chaanath with her townes: and the enhabitours of Magedo with the townes of þ same, euen the cōtreys. Yet the childien of Manasses coude not overcome those cyties. But the Cananites presumed to dwell in the same land. Neuerthelesse, as sone as þ childien of Israel were wared strōg, they put þ Cananites vnder tribute, but expelled them not.

And the childien of Joseph spake vnto Josua saying: why hast thou geuen me but one lotte and one porcyon to enheret, seing I am a great people, & for as moche as the Lord hath blessed me hitherto: and Josua answered them: yf þ be moche people, then gett the vp to the wodde cōtreys, and prepare for thy selfe there in the lande of the Phereaites & of the Giauantes, yf mounte Ephraim be to narrowe for the. And þ childie of Joseph sayd: The hill is not ynough for vs: & all the Cananites that dwell in þ lowe cōtreys haue charettes of yron, & so haue they that enhabite Bethscan, and the townes of the same, & they also that dwell in the valeys of Jezreel. And Josua sayde vnto the house of Joseph, Ephraim & Manasses: ye be moche people, and haue great power, & shall not therefore haue one lotte. Therefore þ hill shalbe pourses, & ye shall cut downe the wodde þ is in it: & the endes of it shalbe pourses, yf ye cast out þ Cananites which haue yron charettes, & are very strōge.

The

Seven are sent to deuyse the lande to the other seven trybes. The lotte of the childien of Benjamin.

Ad the whole congregacion of the childien of Israel came together at Silo, and set vp the tabernacle of witness there, and the lande was in subiection before them. And there remayned amōge the childien of Israel seven tribes, whych had not yet receaued their enheritaunce. And Josua sayd vnto the childien of Israel: how long are ye so slacke to come, and possesse the lande which the Lord God of poure fathers hath geuen you? Geue out from amōge you for euery trybe thre men, that I maye sende the. And that they maye ryse, and walke thozowe the lande and distribute it according to the enheritaunce therof, and come agayne to me.

And let them deuysde it vnto them in to seven partes. And Juda shal abyde in their coaste on þ south, and the house of Joseph shal stande in their coastes on the north. Describte ye the lande therfore into seven partes, and byng the description hether to me, and I shall cast lottes for you here before the Lord oure God. But * the Leuites haue no parte among you, for the preasthode of the lord is their enheritaunce. * And Gad, and Ruben, and halfe the tribbe of Manasses haue receaued their enheritaunce beyonde Jordan eastward, which Moyses the seruauit of the Lord gaue them.

And the men arose, & went their waye. And Josua charged the that wēt to describe the lande, saying: departe, & go thozowe the lande, and describe it, & come agayne to me, & I maye here cast lottes for you before þ Lord in Silo. And the men departed, & walked thozowe the lande, & described it by cyties into seven partes, in a booke, and returned to Josua into the hoste at Silo. And Josua cast lottes for the in Silo before the Lord, and there Josua deuysed þ land vnto the childien of Israel, to eche their porcion. And the lotte of the tribe of the childien of Benjamin came vp accordyng to their kynredes. And þ coaste of their lotte came out betwene þ childien of Juda and the childie of Joseph. And their north coaste was from Jordan, and went vp to the syde of Jericho on þ northsyde, & went vp thozowe the mountaynes westward, & they ended at the wildernesse of Bethauē: and went from thence to the southsyde of Lug (þ same is Bethel) & descended agayne to Atrothadar, vnto þ hylle that lyeth on the southe syde of þ nether Bethhoron. And the coaste turneth thence, & compasseth the corner of þ see southward, euen from the hill þ lyeth before Bethhoron southward, & goeth out at kiriatbaal which is kiriat Jarim, a cytie of the childie of Juda: this is the west quarter: & the south coaste goeth from the edge of kiriat Jarim, and goeth out westward, and there it turneth to the waterwell of Nephtoaah, & cometh downe agayne to þ edge of the hill, þ lyeth before þ valeys of þ sonne of Hennon, euen in the valeys of the Giauantes northward and descended into þ valeys of Hennon besyde Jebus southward, and goeth downe to the well of Rogell, and compasseth frō the north, and goeth forth to the well of þ sonne, and departeth from thence to þ places of Geliloth, which are toward þ goyng vp vnto Adomim: & goeth downe to þ skone of Bohan þ sonne of Ruben: & then goeth alonge toward the syde of the playne, northward: and goeth downe into the fel-des: and goeth alōge to the syde of Bethhaglah northward, & endeth at the pointe of the salt see north therfro, euen at the south ende of Jordan. This is the southe coaste.

And Jordan kepeth in this coaste on the east syde, and this is the enheritaunce of the childie of Benjamin by their coastes rōnde aboute thozow out their kynredes. These were the cyties of the trybes of the childie of Benjamin thozow out their kynredes: Jericho, Bethhaglah, & þ playne of Kazy: Betharabah, zamarrim, & Bethel: Aum, Dharah, and Dphrah: Chepar Ammona, Dphni, & Sabat, twelue cyties with their villages. Gibeō, Ramah, & Beroth: Mazphah, Caphairah, and Mozah: Rekē, Jarephel, and Charelah, zela, Eleph, and Jebusi, which is Jerusalem, Gibeath, and kiriat, fourene cyties with their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the childien of Benjamin thozowe out their kynredes,

The xix. Chapter.

The lottes of partes of zabulon, Issachar, Aser, Nephtali, Dan, and Josua.

Ad the seconde lotte came out for þ trybe of the childien of Simcon by their kynredes. And their enheritaunce was in the myddes of the enheritaunce of the childie of Juda. And they had in theyr enheritaunce, Bersabe, Sabē, & Moladah, Hazorhual, Balah, & Azem, Etcholah, Bethul & Hozmah, ziklag, Bethmarcaboth & Hazetinsah, Bethlebaath, and Saruhen thirtene cyties with their villages. Aini, Remon, Echer, & Ašan, foure cyties wyth their villages: & therto all þ villages that were rōnde about these cyties, euen vnto Balaath, Beor, & Ramath, southward. This is þ enheritaunce of þ tribe of þ childien of Simcon thozow out their kiredes. Out of þ lotte of the childie of Juda, came the enheritaunce

the inheritaunce of the children of Simeon. For the parte of the children of Juda was to morche for them: and therfore the childre of Simeon had their inheritaunce in the inheritaunce of them.

And the thyrde lotte arose for the childre of zabulon thow out their kynredes. And the coastes of their inheritaunce came to Sarid, & went by westwarde, and to Narialah, and reached to Dababech, and came thence to ryner that lyeth before Tolmucen: & turned fro Sarid eastwarde toward sonc rpyng vnto border of Chiloth Chabor: and then goeth out to Daberech, & goeth vp to Japhia: and from thence goeth a longe eastwarde, to Gethah, Jepher, Jthah, & Jazin, & goeth to Remon, Wethoar, & Reob. And compasseth it on ynor the syde to Nathan, & endeth in the valeye of Jephthahel. And Jatath, Nahalol, Seron, Jedalah, and Bethlehe: twelue cyties wyth their villages. This is the inheritaunce of the children of zabulon thow out their kynredes, and these are the cyties wyth their villages.

And fourth lotte came out for children of Isacar by their kynredes. And their coast was Jesraelah, Caluloth, & Sunem. Hapharaim, Sion, and Anabarith: harabith kision, and Abez: Rameth, Enganim, Enhadah, & Bethphazez. And his coast reacheth to Chabor, & Sahazunah & Bethlames, and endeth at Jordan, Syrte cyties with there villages. This is inheritaunce of the trybe of children of Isacar by their kynredes, And these are the cyties with their villages.

And the fifte lotte cam out for the trybe of the children of Aser by their kynredes. And their coast was: Helkath, Hali, Bete, & Achlap: Alamelech, Amaad and Wileal: & came to Carmel westwarde, & to Sihor Labanath, and turneth toward the sonne rpyng to Bethdagon, and cometh to zabulon & to the valeye of Jephthahel, toward north syde of Bethemek & Regel, & goeth out on lyfte syde of Abul: & to Hebron, Rohob, Ramon, & kanah, euen vnto great Siddo. And then the coast turneth to Ramah and to the strong cytie of zor, and turneth to hozah, & endeth at the see, by possessio of Achzibah: Amah also & Aphelk and Rohob: Twente and two cyties with their villages. This is inheritaunce of children of Aser by their kynredes: These are the cyties with their villages.

And the sixte lotte cam out for the children of Rephthali by their kynredes. And their coast was from heleph & fro Elom to zaananim, Adami, Rekeb and Jabneel euen to Lakum, and doth go out at Jordā. And then the coast turneth westwarde to Asanath Chabor, and the goeth out from thence to hulikah, and reacheth to zabulon on lyfte syde, & goeth to Aser on west syde, and to Juda vpon Jordan toward sonne rpyng. And their strong cyties are zidin, zer, Hamah, Kacath and Cenereth, Adamah, hermah & hazor: Kedes, Edrai, and Enhazor: Jerom, Magdele: hozē, Bethanah & Bethlames: ynpctene cyties w their villages. This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Rephthali by their kynredes: these also are the cyties & their villages.

And the seuenth lotte came out for trybe of the childre of Dan by their kynredes. And the coast of their inheritaunce was: zarah, Esthaol. * Jrlames, Saelabin, Alalō Jethlah: Eglon & Chenathab & Akarō: Eltheke, Gibethon & Waalath: Jehud Banebarak & Gathermon, Welericon and Arcō, w the border that lyeth before Japho. And coastes of children of Dan wēt out fro them. And the children of Dan wēt vp to fyght agaynst Leuen, and toke it, and smote it with edge of the swerde, and conquered it, & dwelt therein, & called it * Dan after the name of Dan their father.

This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of children of Dan i their kynredes: these also are the cyties with their villages, Whē they had made an ende of deuydyng lyde by her coastes, the children of Israell gaue an inheritaunce vnto Josua sonne of Aun amōge them, according to the worde of Lozde they gaue him the cytie which he asked, euen * Chanath scrab in mount Ephraim. And he bylte cytie & dwelt therein. * These are the inheritaunces which Eleazar the preast and Josua the sonne of Aun, and the auncient fathers of the trybes of the childre of Israell deuided by lotte in Siloh before the Lozde, in the doze of the tabernacle of witness, and so they made an ende of deuiding the contreye.

The .xx. Chapter.

The cyties of refuge & Sanctuaries.

The Lozde also spake vnto Josua sayng: Speake to children of Israell, and saye: * Appointe out fro amonge you cyties of refuge, wherof I spake vnto you by the had of Moses, that the fleer that killeth any person vnwares and vnwittinglye, maye flee thether. And those cyties shalbe poure refuge from the auenger of blood. And he that doth flee vnto one of those cyties, shall stāde at the entryng of the gate of the cytie, and shall speke his cause in the eares of the elders of the cytie.

And they shall take him into the cytie vnto them, & geue hym a place, that he maye dwel amonge them.

And yf the auenger of bloude folowe after him, they shall not deliuer the fleer into his hande: because he smote his frēde ignorantlye, and hated hym not before tyme.

And he shall dwell in the sayde cytie vntill he stāde before congregatio in Judgement, * and vntill the death of the hye preaste that shalbe in those dayes: for then shall the fleer retourne, and come vnto his awne cytie, and vnto his awne house, and vnto the cytie fro whence he fled. And they sanctified kedes i Galile, in mount Rephthali, and Sichem in mount Ephraim, and kiriatharbe (which is Hebron) in the mountaine of Juda. And on the other syde Jordā ouer agaynst Jericho eastwarde, they appointed Wozor in wildernes vpon the playne, out of tribe of Ruben: & Ramoth in Gilead out of the trybe of Gad: and Golan in Basan out of tribe of Manasses. These were the cyties appoynted for all children of Israell, and for the straunger y forourned amonge them, that whosoener killed any persō ignorantlye, y same might flee thether, & shulde not die by the hand of the auenger of bloude, vntill he stode before the congregacion: (to declare his cause.)

The .xxi. Chapter.

The cyties geuen to the Leuites, in nombre .xviii.

And then came the principall fathers of the Leuites vnto Eleazar the preast, and vnto Josua the sonne of Aun, and vnto auncient fathers that were ouer the trybes of the children of Israell, & spake vnto them at Silo in the lande of Canaan, saying: * the Lozde commaunded by Moses, to geue vs cyties to dwell in, with the suburbs therof, for oure catell. And children of Israell gaue vnto Leuites out of their inheritaunce at bidding of Lozde these cyties folowing w their suburbs.

And the lotte cam out for the kynred of the Cahathites: and the childre of Aaron the preaste, which were of the Leuites, had geuen them by lott, out of the trybe of Juda, out of the trybe of Simeon, and out of tribe of Beniamin: thirtene cyties. And the reast of the children of Cahath had by lotte, out of the kynredes of tribe of Ephraim, out of tribe of Dan, and out of halfe trybe of Manasses: ten cyties. And the childre of Gerson had by lotte out of kynredes of the trybe of Isacar, and out of the trybe of Aser, out of the trybe of Rephthali & out of the other halfe trybe of Manasses i Basan: thirtene cyties. And children of Merari by their kynredes, had out of the trybe of Ruben, and out of the trybe of Gad, and out of the trybe of zabulon, twelue cyties: And the children of Israell gaue by lotte vnto the Leuites these cyties with their suburbs, as the Lozde commaunded by Moses.

And they gaue out of the trybe of children of Juda, & out of the trybe of the childre of Simeon, these cyties by name: which the children of Aaron beig of the kynredes of the Cahathites, & of the childre of Leui, obtayned: for theirs was the fyrst lotte.

And they gaue them kiriath Arbe of the father of Enack (which is Hebron) in the hyll contreye of Juda, with the suburbs of the same rounde about it. But the londe that pertayned to the cytie, and the villages therof, gaue they to * Caleb the sonne of Jephune, to be his possession.

And thus they gaue to children of Aaron the preast, a cyte, to the which y slayer might flye: euen Hebron with her suburbs: Libna with her suburbs: & Jathir with her suburbs, & Estimoa with her suburbs: Holon w her suburbs, Dabir with her suburbs: Ain with her suburbs: Jutah with her suburbs: Bethlames with her suburbs: ynpctene cyties out of those two trybes. And out of the trybe of Beniamin, they gaue Gibeon with her suburbs: Gaba w her suburbs: Anatoth with her suburbs: Almon with her suburbs: foure cyties. All these cyties of children of Aaron preastes, were thirtene cyties with their suburbs. And kynredes of the children of Cahath that were Leuites: that is to saye the other childre of Cahath, had cities geue the for their lotte, out of the trybe of Ephraim. For they gaue them the cytie y the fleer might flye vnto: Sichem with her suburbs, in mount Ephraim: and Gazer with her suburbs, and kabzaim with her suburbs: & Bethhoron with her suburbs: foure cyties.

And out of the halfe trybe of Manasses, Chanach with her suburbs: and Gathremon with her suburbs: two cyties. All the cyties for the other kynredes of children of Cahath, were ten with their suburbs.

And vnto the children of Gerson which were of the kynredes of the Leuites, they gaue out of other halfe trybe of Manasses, the cytie of refuge for the fleer: Golan in Basan with her suburbs: & Beestherah with her suburbs: two cyties. And out of the trybe of Isacar, kision with her suburbs: and Daberah with her suburbs: & Jarimoth with her suburbs: Enganim with her suburbs: foure cyties.

And out of the trybe of Aser, Misael with her Suburbs: Ahdan with her Suburbs, Malakath with her Suburbs: & Rohob with her Suburbs: four cyties. And out of the trybe of Nephtali, the cytie for the hear to flye vnto: kedesh in Galile with her Suburbs: & Hamothdor with her Suburbs: & Carthah with her Suburbs: thre cyties. All the cyties of the Gersonites thow out their kynredes, were thirtene cyties with their Suburbs.

And vnto the other kynredes of the child of Merari, the rest of the Leuites, they gaue out of the trybe of Zabulon: Iecnan with her Suburbs: & Carthah with her Suburbs: Danma with her Suburbs, & Mahalal with her Suburbs: four cyties. And out of the trybe of Ruben, Bozor with her Suburbs: and Jabelah with her Suburbs: Kedmoth with her Suburbs, and Naphtaah with her Suburbs: four cyties. And out of the trybe of Gad, they gaue p cytie for p leat to flye vnto: Ramoth in Gilead with her Suburbs, and Mahanaim with her Suburbs, Hesbon with her Suburbs: & Jaser with her Suburbs: four cyties in all, so that all the cyties of p children of Merari thow out their kynredes (which were the rest of the kynredes of the Leuites) were by their lot, twelue cyties. And all the cyties of the Leuites had among the possession of p children of Israel were xliiii. with their Suburbs. And these cyties laye euery one seuerally, hauyng their Suburbs rounde aboute them thow out all the sayde cyties. And p Lorde gaue vnto Israel all the lande which * he sware to geue vnto their fathers. And they conquered it, and dwelt therein. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde aboute, accordyng to all p he sware vnto their fathers: and there stode not a man of all their enemyes before them. The Lorde also deliuered all they enemyes into their handes. * There shapen nothing of all the good thynges, which the Lorde had sayde vnto the house of Israel, But all came to passe.

The xxii. Chapter.

Ruben, Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasses are sent agaynst their possessions. They buyde an altare for a memoriall.

When Josua called vnto the Rubenites, the Gaddites and to the halfe trybe of Manasses, and sayde vnto them: * ye haue kept all that Moyses p seruauit of the Lorde commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you: ye haue not lefte poure brythre of a long reason vnto this daye, but haue kept the commaundement of the Lorde poure God.

And now that the Lorde hath geuen rest

vnto poure brythren as he promysed them, therfore retourne ye, and go vnto poure tentes, & vnto the lande of poure posselsion, which Moyses the seruauit of the Lorde gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

But in any wise take diligent hede, and do the commaundement and lawe, whych Moyses the seruauit of the Lorde charged you: * that ye loue the Lorde poure God, and walke in all hys wayes, and kepe hys commaundementes, and cleaue vnto him, and serue him with all poure hertes, & all poure soules. And so Josua blessed them and sent them awaye. And they wet vnto their tentes.

Vnto the one halfe of the trybe of Manasses Moyses gaue possession in Balan: & vnto the other halfe therof gaue Josua amonge their brythren on this syde Jordan westwarde. And Josua sent them awaye also vnto their tetes, and blessed them, and sayd vnto them: retourne with moche ryches vnto poure tentes, and with a great multitude of catell, with syluer and golde, with brasse, and yron, and with moche rayment and * deuide the spoyle of poure enemyes with poure brythren.

And the children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and halfe p trybe of Manasses, returned, and departed from the children of Israel out of Silo (which is in the lande of Canaan) to go vnto the coterpe of Gilead, to the lande of their possession, which they had opteyned, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde by the hande of Moyses. And when they came vnto p place of Seliloth besyde Jordan (that is in the lande of Canaan) there the children of Ruben, the children of Gad and p halfe trybe of Manasses, buyt an altare faste by Jordan, and that a great altare to se to. Which when the children of Israel hearde of, they sayd: beholde, p children of Ruben, the children of Gad, and the halfe trybe of Manasses haue buyt an altare in the forefront of p lande of Canaan euen in Seliloth besyde Jordā on the syde of p children of Israel. And when the children of Israel heard of it, p whole congregation of p childre of Israel gathered the together to Silo, to make batell agaynst them. And the childre of Israel sent vnto the children of Ruben, and to the children of Gad, and to p halfe trybe of Manasses, into the lande of Gilead, Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preaste, & with him ten Lodes, of euery chese house a Lode, thow out all p tribes of Israel, which were heades of their fathers householdes among p thousandes of Israel. And they wet vnto p children of Ruben, and to the children of Gad, & to the children of the halfe trybe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Gilead, and they

they spake with them, saying.

Thus saye the hole congregacion of the Lorde: * what transgression is this that ye haue transgressed agaynst the God of Israel, to turne awaye this daye fro p Lorde in that ye haue buyd an altare, for to rebele this daye agaynst the Lorde: Is the * wicked deade of Deor to lyttell for vs, wherof we are not yet cleansed vnto this daye, and for the which there was in p congregation of the people a plague of p Lorde: Ye also are turned awaye this daye from the Lorde. And seynge ye rebele to daye agaynst the Lorde, it wil come to passe, that to morow he shall be wroth w all the congregacion of Israel. Notwithstandyng ye pe thinke, that the lande of poure possession is vncleane, then come ouer vnto the lande of the possession of p Lorde, where in p Lodes tabernacle dwelleth, & take possession amonge vs. But transgresse not agaynst p Lorde, nor pronoke vs, to buyde you anye other altare, saue p altare of the Lorde oure God. * Wpd not I can the sonne of Jareth trespass i p excommunicate thig, & wroth fell on all p cōgregation of Israel, which notwithstandinge that he was but one man, yet he alone perished not for his wickednesse.

Then p children of Ruben & the children of Gad, and halfe the trybe of Manasses answered, and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israel: The God of goddes, the Lorde, God of goddes, euen p Lorde he knoweth, & Israel also shall knowe. If it be to rebele, or to transgresse agaynst p Lorde, then thou Lorde saue vs not this daye. * elles if we haue buyt vs an altare to turne fro folowing the Lorde, or to offer theron burnt offering or meatoffryng, or to offer peace offerings theron: let p Lorde require it. * (and iudge) And ye haue not rather done it of a carefulesse & of a sure occasiō, sayenge: In tyme to come poure children might saye vnto oures: what haue ye to do with p Lorde God of Israel: p Lorde hath made Jordā a border betwene vs and you (ye children of Ruben and of Gad) ye haue no parte therfore in the Lorde: and so shall poure children make oure children cease from fearinge the Lorde.

Therfore we * (toke better aduise) sayd: We wil make vs an altare, not for burnt-offeringe, nor for sacrifice, but for a * witness betwene vs and you, and oure generacions after vs, that we shulde serue the Lorde, with oure offerings, sacrifices and peace offerings before him: and that poure children shulde not saye to oures in tyme to come: ye haue no parte in the Lorde.

Therfore sayde we, that if they shulde so saye to vs or to oure generacions in tyme to come, that we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the fastiō of the altare of the Lorde, which oure fathers made, nether for burnt-offerynges nor sacrifices, but for a witness betwene vs and you. God for byd, that we shuld rebele agaynst the Lorde, and turne this daye fro after him, & buyd any other altare for burnt offerings, oblatiōs, or sacrifices, saue the altare of the Lorde oure God, that is before his tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the preaste, and the Lodes of p congregacion and heades ouer the thousandes of Israel which were with him, hearde these wordes that the children of Ruben, and the children of Gad and the childre of Manasses spake, they were well content. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preaste sayde vnto the children of Ruben, and to the children of Gad, & to the childre of Manasses: this daye we perceaue, that the Lorde is among vs, because ye haue not done this trespass agaynst p Lorde: Now ye haue rydde the children of Israel out of the hande of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the preaste w the Lodes, returned from the children of Ruben, and fro the children of Gad out of the lande of Gilead vnto p lande of Canaan, to the children of Israel, and brought them this worde agayne. And the sayeng pleased the children of Israel, and they blessed God, and byd not entende to go agaynst them in batell, & to destroye the lande which the children of Ruben and Gad dwelt in. And the children of Ruben, and the children of Gad called the altare: Oure witness, that the Lorde is God.

The xxiii. Chapter.

Josua exhorteth the people, that they forgoe not their felices to the Gentiles.

Ad it came to passe a longe reason after that the Lorde had geuen reste vnto Israel from all they enemyes rounde about, that Josua ward olde, and was stricken in age. And Josua called for all Israel, and for their elders, their heades their Judges and officers, and sayde vnto them: I am olde and stryken in age.

And ye haue sene all that p Lorde poure God hath done vnto all these naciōs before you, how p Lorde poure God hath fought for you. Beholde, I haue subdued vnto you these naciōs p remayne, to be an inheritaunce for poure tribes: euen from Jordan, and (from the lande) of all the naciōs that I haue destroyed, euen vnto the great See westwarde. * (And there remayne yet many naciōs.) And the Lorde poure God shall expell the before you, and cast the from out of poure sight, and ye shall conquere their lande, as the Lorde poure God hath saide vnto you.

Go to therfore * as strongly as ye maye, that ye that ye take hede and do all that is written in the booke of the lawe of Moyses, * that ye bowe not a syde therfro, to the ryght hand or to the lefte: and lest that wha ye come amonge these nations, (euen amonge these that are left with you) ye make mencion or sweare by the names of their goddes: and that ye nether serue them, nor bowe youre selues vnto them. But that ye sticke fast vnto y^e Lorde youre God, as ye haue done vnto this daye. So shall y^e Lorde cast out before you great nations and myghtye, as no man hath bene able to stande before you hitherto. * One man of you shall chase a thousand: for y^e Lorde youre God he fighteth for you, as he hath promised you. Take good hede therfore vnto youre selues, y^e ye loue the Lorde youre God.

¶ Els, yf ye go backe and cleaue vnto the rest of these nations y^e remayne wyth you, and shall make mariages with them, & go in vnto them, and they to you: be ye sure, that y^e Lorde youre God will nomore cast out all these nations fro before you. * But they shall be snares and trappes vnto you, and scourges in youre sydes, and thornes in youre eyes, vntill ye perishe fro of this good lande, whych the Lorde youre God hath geuen you.

¶ And behold, this daye, do I entre in to the waye of all the worlde, & ye knowe in all your hertes & in all youre soules, that * nothyng hath fayled of all the good thynges whiche the Lorde youre God promysed you: But all are come to passe, & nothyng hath fayled therof. Therfore, as all good thynges are come vpon you, whych the Lorde youre God promysed you, so shall y^e Lorde byrnyng vpon you all euell, vntill he haue destroyed you fro of this good lande, whych y^e Lorde youre God hath geuen you, wher ye haue transgressed the appoyntment of the Lorde youre God, which he commaunded you: and haue gone and serued straunge goddes, and bowed youre selues to the. Then shall the wrath of the Lorde waxe whote vpon you, & ye shall perishe quickely fro of the good lande, which he hath geuen you.

The xxiii. Chapter.

¶ Josua exhorteth the people to the keeping of the lawe. He dyeth. The bones of Ioseph are buried. Eleazar dyeth.

¶ Ad Josua gathered all the trybes of Israel to Sichem, and called for y^e elders of Israel, and for theyr heades, Judges and officers, and they presented them selues before God. And Josua sayde vnto all the people: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel: * your fathers dwelt on the other syde of the floud in olde tyme: euen Chareh the father of Abraham & of Nachor, and serued straunge goddes.

And I toke youre father Abraham from the other syde of the floud, & brought him thowow out all the lande of Canaan, & multiplied his seed, and * gaue him Iahac.

And I gaue vnto Iahac, Jacob & Esau. * And I gaue vnto Esau mount Seir, to possesse it. But Jacob and his childre wet downe into Egypte.

I sent Moyses also & Aaron. And I * plagued Egypte: & whan I had so done among them, I brought you out, and I brought your fathers out of Egypte. And as they came vnto the see, the Egyptians folowed after youre fathers with charettes & horsemen, vnto the redd see. * And whan they cried vnto the Lord, the Lord put darkness betwene you and the Egyptians, and brought the see vpon them, and couered the. And youre eyes haue sene what I haue done to the Egyptians. And ye dwelt in the wilderness a longe season.

And * I brought you into the lande of the Amorites, which dwelt on the other syde Jordan. And they fought with you: and I gaue them into your hand, that ye myght conquere their countre. And I destroyed the from out of youre syght.

¶ Then Balak the sonne of ziphor, king of Moab arose, & warred agaynst Israel, & sent & called Balaam the sonne of Beor, for to curse you. But I wolde not berken vnto Balaam, & therfore he rather blessed you: And so I deliuered you out of his hand. And ye wet ouer Iordā, and came vnto Jericho, and the men of Jericho fought agaynst you: the Amorites, Pherisites, Canaanites, herhetes, Girgolithes, Heuites, & Jebusites, and I deliuered them in to your hande.

And I sent * hornettes before you, which cast them out of youre sight: euen the two kinges of the Amorites: but not with your owne swerde, or with youre owne bowe. And I haue geuen you a lande, in which ye dyd no labour, and cyties which you built not, and which ye dwell in: vineyardes also, and Olyue trees which ye planted not, and wherof ye do eate.

* Now therfore feare the Lorde, & serue him in perfectnelle and truth: And put awaye the goddes, whych youre fathers serued on the other syde of the floud, and in Egypte, and serue ye the Lorde. And yf it seme euell vnto you to serue the Lorde, the chose you this daye whom you will serue: whether the goddes which youre fathers serued (that were on the other syde of the floud) ether the Goddes of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell. As for me and my howse, we will serue the Lorde.

The people answered and sayde: God forbyd, that we shulde forsake the Lorde, and serue serue straunge goddes. For the Lorde oure God, he it is that brought vs and oure fathers out of the lande of Egypte, and from the howse of bondage, and which dyd those great miracles in oure syght, & preserued vs in all the waye that we went, & amonge all the nations which we came thowow. And the Lorde byd cast out before vs all the nations, specially the Amorites, which dwell in the lande. And therfore will we also serue the Lorde, for he is oure God.

¶ And Josua sayd vnto the people, Ye can not serue the Lorde: for he is an holie God, and a gelous God, and cannot beare youre iniquite and synne. Yf ye forsake the Lorde and serue straunge goddes, * he will turne and do you euell, and consume you, after that he hath done you good. And the people sayde vnto Josua: naye, but we will serue the Lorde.

¶ And Josua sayde vnto the people: ye are witnesses youre selues, that ye haue chosen you the Lorde, to serue him: and they sayd: we are wytnesses. Then put awaye (sayde he) the straunge goddes which are amonge you, and bowe youre hertes vnto y^e Lorde God of Israel. The people sayde vnto Josua: the Lorde oure God will we serue, and his voyce will we obeye. And so Josua * made a couenant with the people the same daye, and set an ordinance and lawe before them in Sichem.

¶ And Josua wrote these wordes in the booke of the lawe of God, and * toke a great stone, and pitched it on ende in y^e sayde place, euen vnder an oke that was in the sanctuary of the Lorde. And Josua sayde vnto to all y^e people: beholde, * this stone shall be a witnesse vnto vs, for it hath hearde all y^e wordes of the Lorde which he spake wyth vs. It shall be therfore a witnesse vnto you, lest ye denye * (and dissemble wyth) youre God. And so Josua let the people departe, euery man vnto his inheritaunce.

¶ And after these thynges it came to passe, that Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruaunt of the Lorde died, beinge an hundred and ten yeres olde. And they buried hym in the cōtrey of hys inheritaunce, euen in Thānath Sareth, which is in mount Ephraim, on the northsyde of the hill of Gaas.

¶ And Israel serued the Lord * all y^e dayes of Josua, & all the dayes of the elders that ouerlyued Josua, and whych had knowne all y^e workes of the Lorde that he had done for Israel. And the * bones of Ioseph, which the childre of Israel brought out of Egypte, buried they in Sichem in a parcell of grounde, whych Jacob bought of y^e sonnes of hemor the father of Sichem, for an hundred peaces of syluer, and it became the inheritaunce of the children of Ioseph. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron dyed, whom they buried in a hill that pertayned to Whinches his sonne, which hill was geuen him in mount Ephraim.

The boke of Judges, called in the hebreue Shophetim and in the Latin Judicum.

The .xv. Chapter.

After Josua was dead, Juda was constitute Lorde ouer the arnye.

After the death of Josua it came to passe, that the childre of Israel asked y^e Lorde saying: Wh^o shall go vp for vs against the Cananites, and who shall first fight agaynst them. And the Lorde sayde: Juda shall go vp beholde I haue deliuered the lande in to hys handes. And Juda sayde vnto Simeon hys brother: come vp with me in my lotte, that we maye fight agaynst the Cananites. And I lyke wyse wyll go with the into thy lotte. And so Simeon went with him.

And Juda went vp, and the Lorde deliuered y^e Cananites & Phereites to thei^r handes. And they slewe of them in Bezek ten thousand men. And they founde Adoni bezek in Bezek. And they fought agaynst him, and slewe y^e Cananites and Phereites. But Adoni bezek fled, & they folowed after hym, and caught hym, and cut of his thobes and his great toes. And Adoni bezek sayde: thre skore & ten kynges hauing their thombes and great toes cut of, gathered their meate vnder my table: * as I haue done, so God hath done to me againe. And they brought him to Jerusalem, and there he dyed.

The children of Juda fought agaynst Jerusalem, and toke it * and smote it wyth y^e edge of the swerde, and set the cite on fire. After warde the children of Juda went to fight agaynst the Cananites, that dwelt in the mountayne, and towarde the south, & in the lowe contreye. And Juda went agaynst the Cananites that dwelt in Hebr^{on}, which befoze tyme was called kariath Arbe. And slew Sela, Ahiman & Chalmi. And fro thence they went to the inhabitants of Debir, whose name i olde tyme was called kariathsepher. (that is a cite of letters.)

And Caleb sayde * he that smyteth kariathsepher, & taketh it, to him will I geue my daughter to wyfe. And Othniel the sonne of Kenes Calebs younger brother toke it: to whom he gaue his daughter to wyfe, and as they went, he counceled hym to aske of her father a felde. And then she lyghted of her asse: and Caleb sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She answered vnto hym: geue me a blessing: for thou hast geue me a Southward (oz drye) lade, geue me also springes of water. And Caleb gaue her springes both aboue & beneath. And the children of the Kenites Moyses father in lawe went vp * out of Egypte of palme trees with the childre of Juda into the wylde of Juda, that lieth in the South of Arad, and they wete and dwelt amonge the people.

And Juda went with Simeon hys brother, and they slew the Cananites that inhabited zephath, and veterlye destroyed it, * and called the name of the cite Horma. And at the last Juda toke Bethanath the coastes therof, and Bethanath wyth the coastes therof, and Abaron with the coastes therof, And the lorde was wyth Juda, and he conquered the mountaynes, but coulde not dyscuss out y^e inhabitants of the valeys because they had charrettes of yron. And they gaue Hebron vnto Caleb, as Moyses sayde. And he expelled thence the thre sonnes of Enach.

* And the children of Benjamin dyd not cast out the Jebusites, that inhabited Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwell wyth the childre of Benjamin in Jerusalem vnto this daye.

* And in lyke maner they y^e were of the house of Joseph wet vp to Bethel & y^e lord was wyth the, & y^e house of Joseph serched out Bethel, which befoze tyme was called Lus. And the spyes sawe a man come out of the cite, and they sayde vnto hym: shewe vs the waye into the cite, * and we wyll shewe the mercy. And whan he had shewed them the waye into the cite, they smote it wyth the edge of the swerde, but let the man and all hys housholde go free. And y^e man went into the lande of the Hethites, and byle a cite, and called y^e name therof Lus which is the name therof vnto this daye.

* Nether dyd Manasses expelle Bethleah with her towne, Chaanach wyth her towne, the inhabitoures of Dor with her towne, y^e inhabitoures of Jebelaam wyth her towne, nether y^e inhabitoures of Magdo wyth her towne, but the Cananites were bolde to dwell in the lande. But it came to passe y^e as lone as Israel was waxed myghtie, they put the Cananites to tribute and expelled them not.

* Jos. xiii.

In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Cananites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Cananites dwell stille in Gazer amonge them.

Nether dyd Zabulon expelle the inhabitoures of Keton, nether the inhabitoures of Nahalol: But y^e Cananites dwell amonge them, and became tributaries.

* Nether dyd Aser cast out the inhabitoures of Acho, nether the inhabitoures of Zidon, & of Thahab, Aczib, & Halbah, Aphek, nez of Robob, but the Aserites dwell amonge the Cananites the inhabitoures of the lande, for they might not dyscuss them out.

Nether dyd Rephthalim dyscuss out the inhabitoures of Bethlames, nor the inhabitoures of Bethanath, but dwell amonge the Cananites the inhabitoures of y^e lande. Nethertheless the inhabitoures of Bethlames & of Bethanath became tributaries vnto them.

And the Amorites troubled the childre of Dan in the mountayne, and suffered them not to come downe to the valeys. And the Amorites were content to dwell in mount Heres (which is by interpretacion: a wyne house) in Hailon and in Salabim. And the hand of Joseph preynted, so that they became tributaries: & the coaste of y^e Amorytes was from the goyng vp to Herabim, and from the rocke vpwarde.

The .ii. Chapter.

The Angell rebuketh the people, because they had made peace wyth the Cananites. Idolaters are punished.

And the angell of the Lorde came vnto Gilgal to Bochim, & sayde: I made you to come out of Egypte, and haue brought you vnto the lande which I swore vnto your fathers. * And I sayd: I wyll not breake myne appoyntment y^e I made with you. And ye also shall make no couenant wyth the inhabitoures of this lande, but shall breake downe their altars: Nethertheless ye haue not hearkened vnto my voice, why haue ye this done? Wherefoze, I haue lyke wyse determyned, y^e I wyll not cast the out befoze you: but they shalbe thornes vnto you, and their goddes shalbe a snare vnto you. And when the angell of the Lorde spake these wordes vnto all the childre of Israel, the people cryed out and wepte: And called the name of the sayde place. * Bochim, and offered sacrifices vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua had sent the people a waye, the childre of Israel went euery man into hys inheritaunce to possesse the lande. * And the people serued the Lorde all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that out lyued Josua, and had sene all the great workes of the lord that he dyd for Israel: and Josua the sonne of Nun the seruant of the Lorde * dyed, when he was an hundred & ten yeres olde: whom they buried in the colles of hys inheritaunce: euen in Chamnath hares in mount Ephraim on the northside of the hill Saas. And euen so all that generacyon were put vnto their fathers, and there arose another generacyon after them whych nether knewe the Lorde, nor yet the workes whych he had done for Israel.

And then y^e children of Israel * dyd wyche in the syght of the lorde, and serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lorde God of their fathers, whych brought them out of the land of Egypte, and folowed straunge goddes, euen of the goddes of the nacions that were round aboute them, and bowed them selues vnto them and angred the lorde. They forsoke the lord, and serued Baal and Astaroth, and the wrath of the lorde waxed hate agaynst Israel, and he deliuered them into the handes of raueners, that spoyled the, and solde them into the handes of their enemyes rounde aboute them, so y^e they had no power any longer to stonde befoze their enemyes. But whether soeuer they went out, the hand of the lord was agaynst them with euell lucke, euen as the lord promysed them, & as he swore vnto them. And he punished them sore.

Nethertheless the lorde rayled vp Judges, which deliuered them out of the handes of their oppressers, and yet for all that they wold not harken vnto their Judges: But rather went a whooping after straunge goddes, and bowed them selues vnto them, and turned quicklye out of y^e waye, which their fathers walked in, obeying the commaundementes of the Lorde: But they dyd not so.

And when the lord rayled them vp Judges, he was with the Judge, and deliuered them out of the handes of their enemyes all the dayes of the Judge * for the Lorde had compassyon ouer their sore wynges, whych they had, by the reason of them y^e oppressed them & vexed them: yet for all y^e as lone as the iudge was dead, they turned and dyd wyll y^e their fathers, in folowinge straunge goddes, and in scruping them, and ceased not from their owne inuencions, nor from their malprouse waye.

And the wrath of the Lorde was moued agaynst Israel, & he sayde: because this people hath transgressed myne appoyntment which I commaunded their fathers, & haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, I wyll hence furth not cast out befoze the one man of the nacions, which Josua leaft when he dyed, y^e through them I maye proue Israel, whether they wyll kepe the waye of the Lorde, & walke therein, as their fathers dyd oz not

And so the Lord leaft those nationes, & drove them not out ynnedpatlye, nether delyuered them into the hande of Josua.

The. iii. Chapter.

Othoniell deliuereth Israel. Ahud killeth Heng Eglon. Samgar killeth the Philistines.

These are the names of the children of Israel which the Lord left, that he myght proue Israel by the: such as manye of Israel as had not knowne all the warres of Canaan: Onlye for the learninge of the generacion of the childre of Israel: he also myght teach them warre, in as much as they were before them, knew nothing therof. Of those who he left, there were syue lordes of the Philistines, & all the Canaanites, & the Sodonites, and the Hittites that dwelt in mount Libanon: euen from mount Baal Hermon vnto Hemath. Those remayned to proue Israel by, and to wete, whether they wold hearken vnto the commaundementes of the lord, which he commaunded their fathers by the hand of Moses.

And the childre of Israel dwelt amonge the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, where siters, Hittites, and Jebusites, & toke the daughters of them to be their wyues, & gaue their owne daughters to their sonnes, & serued their Goddes. And the childre of Israel did wickedlye in the syght of the lord, and forgate the lord their God, and serued Baalim & Aseroth. Therefore the lord was angrie with Israel, & delyuered the into the handes of Chusan Rishathaim kyng of Mesopotamia, and the childre of Israel serued Chusan Rishathaim. vii. yeres.

And when the childre of Israel cryed vnto the lord, the lord stered vp a sauer, to the childre of Israel, & saued the: one Othoniell the sonne of Kenes. Calebs pounger brother. And the sperte of the lord came vpon him. And he indged Israel, and wet out to warre. And the lord delyuered Chusan Rishathaim kyng of Mesopotamia into his hande, & his hande preyed agaynst Chusan Rishathaim. And the lande had rest fouretye yeres, and Othoniell the sonne of Kenes died. And the childre of Israel wet to agayne, & committed wickednesse in the syght of the lord. And the Lord strenghted Eglon the kyng of the Moabites, agaynst the childre of Israel, because they had committed wickednesse before the lord. And this (Eglon) gathered vnto hym the childre of Ammon, and the Amalekites, and went and smote Israel, & conquered the cite of Beulme trees. And so the childre of Israel serued Eglon the kyng of Moab. xvi. yeres. But when they cryed vnto the lord, the lord stered the vp a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini, a man that coude do nothing hand-somelye with his ryght hande.

And by him the childre of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kyng of Moab: but Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte length, & he dyd gyde yt vnto his rayment vpon his right thigh, and carryed the present vnto Eglon the kyng of Moab: And Eglon was a very fatte man. And it fortuneth that when he had presented the present, he sent the people that bare it awaye, but he him selfe turned agayne (fro the place of graue ymages, that was by Gilgal) and sayde: I haue a secret errand vnto the, O kyng. Which sayde: kepe sylence. And all that stode before hym, went out from hym.

And Ahud came vnto hym, and in a somer parler, which he had, sat he hi selfe alone, and Ahud sayde: I haue a message vnto the fro God. And he arose out of his seate. And Ahud put forth his lefte hande, & toke the dagger fro his ryght thigh, & thrust it into his belye, and the hilt went in after the blade. And the fatte, closed the hilt, so he myght not drawe the dagger out of his belye, but the dyt came out. Ahud gat him out at a posterne doore, and shut the doores of the parler about him, and locked them.

When he was gone out, his seruantes came, and when they sawe that the doores of the parler were locked, they sayde: peradventure he couereth his fete in his somer chabber. And they taried tyll they were ashamed, and beholde: seying he opened not the doores of the parler: they toke a keye, & opened them. And beholde, their Lord was fallen downe dead on the erthe. And Ahud escaped (whyle they taried) and was gone beyonde, to the place of the graue ymages, and escaped into Seirath.

And when he was come, he blew a trompette in mount Ephraim. And the childre of Israel wet downe wyth hym from the hyll and he went before them. And he sayde vnto them, folowe me: for the Lord hath delyuered your enemyes, the Moabites into your hande. And they descended after him, and toke the passages of Jordan, towarde Moab, and suffered not a man to passe ouer. And they slew of the Moabites the same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, which were all fatte men of warre, & there shapen not a man, so Moab was subdued that daye, vnder the hande of Israel: and the land had rest. lxx. yeres.

After hym was Samgar the sonne of Anath, whych slewe of the Philistines. vi. hundred men with an oxe goade, and delyuered Israel also.

The. iiii. Chapter.

Deborah and Barak deliuer Israel: Sisera is killeth of Jael.

And the

And the childre of Israel beganne agayne to do wickedlye in the syght of the Lord, when Ahud was dead. And the Lord sold them into the hande of Jabin kyng of Canaan, & raygned in Hazor, whose captayne of warre was called Sisera, which dwelt in Haroseth of gentyles. And the childre of Israel cryed vnto the Lord: for he had nyne hundred charrettes of yron, & twentie yeres he troubled the childre of Israel very sore.

And Deborah a Prophetsse, the wyfe of Lapidoth Judged Israel the same tyme, & she same Deborah dwelt vnder a pauline tree betwene Ramath and Bethel, in mount Ephraim.

And the childre of Israel came vp to her for iudgement. And she sent & called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, out of Kedesh Nephtholim, and sayde vnto him. Hath not the Lord God of Israel comaunded the, to leade with faire wordes men to mouite Chabor, and take with the ten thousande men, of the childre of Nephtholim & of the childre of Zabulon? And I will byrnyng vnto the to the ryuer kyslon, Sisera, & Captayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charrettes, & his people, and will delyuer him to thyne handes. And Barak sayde vnto her: if thou wilt go with me, I will go: But if thou wilt not come with me, I will not go. She sayde: I will surely go with thee, but this iourney thou takest, shall not be for thyne honour, for the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hande of a woman. Deborah wet with Barak to kedesh. And Barak called zabul & Nephtholim to kedesh, & led after hym ten thousande men: and Deborah went vp with him.

But Haber the kenite (which was of the childre of Hobab the father in lawe of Moses) remoued from the other kenytes, & pyttched his tette vntill the playne of Zaanaim, whych is by kedesh.

And they shewed Sisera, & Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mount Chabor. And Sisera gathered together all his charrettes, eu. ix. hundred charrettes of yron, & all the people that were with him from Haroseth of the gentyles, vnto the ryuer of kyslon. And Deborah layde vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in which the Lord hath delyuered Sisera into thyne hande: Is not the Lord gone out before the? And so Barak wet downe from mount Chabor, & ten thousande men after him.

But the Lord destroyed Sisera and all his charrettes, & all his hoste with the edge of the swerde, before Barak: so the Sisera lyghted downe of his charrett, & fled awaye on his fete. But Barak folowed after the charrettes and after the hoste, eu. vnto Haroseth of the gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisera fell vpon the edge of the swerde, and there was not a man lefte. Now he it Sisera fled awaye on his fete to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Haber the kenite: for there was peace betwene Jabin the kyng of Hazor, & the household of Haber the kenite.

And Jael went out to mete Sisera, and sayde vnto him: turne in my lord, turne in to me, feare not. And when he had turned in vnto her into her tette, she couered hym with a matell. And he sayd vnto her, geue me a lyttel water to drynke, for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottell of mylke, & gaue hym drynke, & couered him. And agayne he sayde vnto her: stode in the doore of the tette, and when any man doth come and enquire of the, whether there be any man here, thou shalt saye: nape.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a nape of the tette, & an hammer in her hand, & went softlye vnto hym, and smote the nape into the temples of his head, and fastened it into the ground, for he slumbered sore, and was weery: And so he dyed.

And Beholde, as Barak folowed after Sisera, Jael came out to mete hi, & sayde vnto him: come, & I will shew the the man, whom thou seekest. And when he came into her tette: Beholde, Sisera laye dead, & his nape was in his temples. And so God brought Jabin the kyng of Canaan into subieccio that daye before the childre of Israel. And the hande of the childre of Israel prospered, & preyed agaynst Jabin the kyng of Canaan, vntill they had brought hi to naught.

The. v. Chapter.

The songe and thankes geuyng of Deborah and Barak after the victorye.

When Deborah & Barak the sonne of Abinoam sange the same daye, sayng: Prayse ye the Lord, & for the augeyng of Israel, and for the people that became so mynyng. Heare O ye kynges, hearken O ye prynces: I, eu. I, will syng vnto the Lord, I will prayse the Lord God of Israel.

Lord, when thou wentest out of Seir, when thou departedst out of the felde of Edom, the erth trembled, & the heauens rayned: the cloudes also dropped water. The mountaynes melted before the Lord, euen as dyd Sinai, before the Lord God of Israel.

In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anath, in the dayes of Jael, & the wayes were vnoccupied: And the ronners of the pathes walked thorow by wayes.

The inhabytors of the towncs were gone, they were gone in Israel, vntill Deborah came vp, which came vp a mother in Israel. They chose new goddes, and then had they (the enemye) in the gates, though they were wilde and speare. There was not a child of spere sene amonge fouretye thousande lande of Israel.

My hart loueth the gouerners of Israel, and them that are willing amonge the people. O prayse ye the Lorde.

Speake ye & ryde on sayre asses, & sitte vppermost i iudgement, & walke by & wayes.

At the cryng of the archers amonge the drawers of water, there shall they speake of & righteousnes of the Lorde, his righte counsel in the vnfenced places of Israel: then shall the people of the Lorde go downe to the gates.

Up Deboza vp get the vp, and syng a son ge: * Aryle Barac, and leade the captiue captiue, thou sonne of Abinoam.

Then shall they that remayne, haue dominion of the proudest of the people (of Jabbin): The Lorde shall for my sake haue dominion ouer the myghtie. Out of * Ephraim was there a rote of them agaynst Amalech, and after the, Benjamin amoge thy people. Out of Machir came rulers, & out of Zabulon they that gouerne the penne of the wypter.

And of Issachar, there were pynners with Deboza, Issachar also and Barac were sent on their fete into the valley, whā in the departing awaye of Rubē there were greate men, and wyse of hert.

Why abodest thou among the shepe foldes, to heare the bleatings of the flockes, & to separate thy selfe awaye w greate men and wyse of hert?

Silcad also abode beyonde Jordane: and why doth Dan remayne in whippes?

Aser continued on the see shore, and taried in hys decayed places.

But the people of zabulon haue isoperde their lyues euen vnto the dethe, lyke as did Nephtalim in the hye places of the felde.

The kynge of Canaan in Chanah, by the waters of Megiddo, and wanne no money.

They fought fro heauen, euen the starres in their courtes fought agaynst Silera.

Surely they haue founde, they deuyde the spoyles: eueri mā hath a dāsell or two: Silera hath a praye of diuerse couloured garments, eue a praye of raymet dyed w sōdyre coloures, & & are made of nedle worke: rayment of diuerse coloures & of nedle worke which is mete for him & is chefe in distributige of & spoyles. So perishe all thine enemyes: O Lorde, but they & loue hi, let the be as the sonne whan he ryseth in his might, And the lande had rest fourtye yeres.

The vi. Chapter.

Israel is oppressed of the Madianites: Gedeon is sent of God to be their deliuerer.

And the chyldre of Israel * comitted wyckednes in the sight of the Lorde.

And & Lorde deliuered them into the handes of Madia seven yeres. And the hande of Madian preyed agaynst Israel, & because of & Madianites, the chyldre of Israel made them denues in the mountaynes & caues and stronge holdes. And whē Israel had sowē, the Madianites, & Amalechites & they of & east contreye came vp together against them: & pytched their tētes against them, & destroyed the increase of the erthe, euen till & come vnto Azah: & lefte no sustenance for Israel, nether shepe, ore, or asse: for they went by, they and their cattell, & came w their tētes as a multitude of grethopers: so & bothe they & also their camels were w out nōbye. And they etred into & lāde to destroye it. And so was Israel exceedingly impouered in & sight of & Madianites, & cryed vnto & Lorde. And whē & chyldre of Israel cryed vnto & Lorde because of the Madianites, & Lorde sent vnto them a prophet, which sayd vnto the: Thus sayth & lord god of Israel: I sette you fro Egypt & brought you out of & house of bondage, & I rydd you out of the hande of the Egyptians, & out of & hand of all & oppressed you & cast the out before you, & gaue you the land. And I sayd vnto you: I am the Lorde your God, * feare not the goddesses of the Amorites in whose lande you dwell. But you haue not obeyed my voyce. And the Angell of the Lorde came, & late vnder an Oke which was i Ephrah, that pertayned vnto Joas & father of & Elerites. And his

his sonne Gedeon pressed out whete out of & eares in a presse, to hyde it from the Madianites: & the angell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym, & sayde: the Lorde is wth the, thou mightie mā of warr. And Gedeon answered him: Oh my Lorde, if the Lorde be wth vs, why is all this come vpon vs? & where be all hys myracles which our fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: Did not & lord bring vs out of Egypt? But now & Lorde hath forsaken vs, & deliuered vs into the handes of the Madianites. And & Lorde looked vpo him, & sayd: Gohce in this thy might, and thou shalt deliuer Israel out of & handes of the Madianites: haue not I sent the? And he answered him: Oh lord, wherewith shall I saue Israel? Beholde, my kinred is pooze in Manasses, and I am lytle in my fathers house. The Lorde sayde vnto him: I will be with the: and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one mā. And he answered him: Wh: if I haue soude grace i thy syght, the sheue me a sygne, that it is thou that talkest w me. Departe not hence, vntill I come agayne vnto the, and till I bring myne offryng, & haue sett it before the.

And he sayde: I wyll tarpe vntill thou come agayne. And Gedeon went in, & made redye a kydd, and swete hakes of an Ephra of flowze, & put it w the fleshe in a basket, & put & broth i a pottle, & brought it out vnto hym vnder the Oke, & presented it. And the angell of God sayd vnto him: take the flesch & & swete hakes, & laye the vpo this rocke, & powze out the broth. And he dyd so. The angell of the Lorde put forth the ende of the staffe & he helde in his hande, & touched the fleshe and the swete hakes. And * there arose vp fyre out of & rocke, & consumed the flesch & the swete hakes. But & angell of the Lorde vanished out of his syght. And whē Gedeon perceaued that it was an angell of the Lorde, he sayd: Alas, O Lord God, * haue I therfore sene an angell of the lord face to face, & I shulde dye? And the Lorde sayde vnto him: peace be vnto the, feare not, thou shalt not dye. The Gedeon made an aultare there vnto the Lorde, & called it: The Lorde of peace. And vnto thys daye it is yet in Ephrah, & pertayneth vnto the father of the Elerites. And it fortuned that & same nyght the Lorde sayde vnto him: take a yōg bullock out of thy fathers dyne, & another of. vii. yeres olde, & destroye the aultare of Baal & thy father hath, & cutte downe the groue & is by it, & make an aultare vnto & Lorde thy God vpo & toppe of this rocke in a couenient place. And take the secōde bullock, & offer burnt sacrifice vpon & wodd of & groue, which & shalt cut downe. The Gedeon toke ten mē of his seruantes, & dyd as & Lorde bad him. But because he durst not do it by daye for feare of his fathers household & of the mē of the cytie, he dyd it by nyght.

And whē the mē of the cytie were vperlye in the morning: Beholde, the aultare of Baal was broken, & the groue cut downe & was by it, & the secōde bullock offered vpon the aultare that was made. And they sayde one to another: who hath done this thing? & whā they enquired & asked, they sayde: Gedeon & sonne of Joas hath done this thing. Then the mē of the cytie sayde vnto Joas: bringe out thy sonne, that he maye dye: because he hath destroyed & aultare of Baal, & cut downe & groue & was by it. And Joas sayde vnto all & stode by him: will ye leade Baals cause? or will ye be his defenders? he & hath medled agaynst hi, let him dye in the morninge. If he be a God, let him be auenged of him, that cast downe hys aultare. And from & daye was Gedeon called: Jero baal, because his father had sayde: Let Baal be auenged of hym, that hath broken downe his aultare.

All the Madianites therfore, & the Amalekites & they of the east, were gathered to geather, & wēt, & pitched in & valeye of Israhel: but & sprete of the Lorde came vpo Gedeon. * And he blew a tōpette, & called: Abiezzer to folow hi, & sent messengers thorow out all Manasses, & called them, which also dyd folowe him. And he sent messengers vnto Aser, zabulō and Nephtalim, and they came to mete hym.

And Gedeon sayd vnto God: wilt & saue Israel in my hāde, as & hast sayde: Beholde, I wyll put a fleece of wolle in the threaf: syng place. And if & dew come on & fleece onlye, & it be drye vpon all the erth besyde, then shall I be sure, & & wilt saue Israel by my hāde, as & saydest. And it came so to passe. For he rose vperlye on the morowe, and thrust the fleece together, and wronge the dewe therout, & fylled a bowle of water: & Gedeon sayd agayne vnto God: be not angrye w me, & * I speake once moare. For I wyll proue once agayne by the fleece. Let it be drye onlye vpon the fleece, and dewe vpo all the grounde. And God did so that same nyght: For it was drye vpon the fleece onlye, & there was dew on all the grounde.

The vii. Chapter.

Gedeon with. iii. hund:ed men ouercometh the Madianites. & zeb and zeb are slayd.

Then * Jero baal (other wyse called Gedeon) and all the people that were wth hym, rose vperlye, and pytched besyde the well of Harad, so that the hofte of the Madianites were on the northsyde of the rock that boweth towarde the valley. And the Lorde sayde vnto Gedeon: the people that are with & are to many for me to geue the Madianites

*Jud. ii. 1.

Madianites into their hands, lest Israel make their vaunte agaynst me and saye: myne a lone hande hath saved me. Now therfore make a proclamacyon in feares of the people, & saye: * yf any mā drede or be aferde, let him retorne. And y people arose erlye. And there departed & returned of the people which were at mount Gilead. xxi. thousand, and there abode ten thousande.

B And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: y people are yet to many, byyng them downe vnto the water, and I wyll trye them vnto y there. And of whom I saye vnto the, thys shall go with the, the same shall go with y. And of who soeuer I saye vnto y, this shall not go wyth the, the same shall not go. So he brought downe the people vnto the water, and y Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: as many as lappe the water wyth theyr tonges, as a dogge doth, them put by them selues, & so do them y knele downe vpon their knees to byncke. And the nobze of them that put there handes to their mouthes and lapped, were. iii. hundred men. But all y remmaunt of y people kneled downe vpon their knees to byncke water. And the Lord sayde vnto Gedeon: By these thre hūdzd men that lapped water, wyll I saue you: and deliuer the Madianites into thyne hande. And let all the other people go euery man vnto his place.

They therfore of the people toke vitayles wyth them, & their trompettes. And he sent all y rest of Israel, euery mā vnto his tent, and confortd those thre hūdzd wyth him. And the host of Madian was benethe hym in a valeye. And it fortunyd that the same nyght the Lord sayd vnto him: Arise, get the downe vnto y hoste, for I haue deliuered it into thyne hande. But yf thou feare to go downe, then go y & Pharah thy ladde downe to the hoost, & thou shalt heke what they saye, & so shall thyne handes be strong, to go downe vnto the hoste.

Then went he downe and Pharah hys ladde, euen harde vnto y men of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, and all they of the East, lay a longe in y valeye, lyke a multitude of greeshoppers, and their camelles were without nombyze, euen as the sande by the see syde in multitude. And when Gedeon was come:

B Beholde, there was a mā that tolde a dreame vnto his neyghboure, & sayde: Behold, I dreamed a dreame, and me thought that a losse of barley bread, tumbled into y hoste of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and smote it that it felle, & ouerturned it, that the tente laye a longe. And his felowe answered and sayde: this is nothing elles saue the swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israell: for into his hāde hath God deliuered Madian, and all the hoste.

When Gedeon hearde the tellynge of the dreame, and the interpretacyon of the same, he wasorryp, and returned vnto the hoste of Israel: and sayde: vp, for the Lord hath deliuered into youre hande the hoste of Madian. And he deuptyd the thre hundred men into thre companies, & gaue euery man a trompet in his hande, wyth an emptye pytcher, and lampes theri, and sayde vnto them: loke on me, and do lyke wyse: that when I come to the syde of the hoste, euen as I do, so do you: When I blowe wyth a trompet and all that are wyth me, blowe ye wyth trompettes also on euery syde of the hoste, & saye: here is the swerde of the Lord and of Gedeon.

And so Gedeon & the thre hundred men y were wyth him, came vnto the syde of the host in y begynnig of the myddell watche, & repelyd vp y watche men. And they blew wyth their trompettes, & brake the pytchers y were in theyr hādes. And all y thre companies blew wyth trompettes & brake the pytchers, & helde the lampes in their left handes, & the trompettes in their ryght, to blowe wythall. And they cried: the swerde of the Lord and of Gedeon. And they stode still, euery man in his place rounde about the hoste. And they wythin the hoste, rāne, & cryed & fled. And the thre hundred blew wyth trompettes, & the Lord sett * euery mānes swerde vpon hys neyghboure, thow out all the hoste. And the hoste fled to Bethlitah, to zererath, & to the edge of the playne of Meholah vnto Tabath. And the men of Israel beyng gathered together out of y trybe of Repphalim, of Aser, & of all Manasses folowed after the Madianites. And Gedeon sent messengers vnto all moūt Ephraim, sayig: come downe agayst y Madianites, & take befoze the y waters vnto Bethbarath & to Jorā. Then all y men of Ephraim gathered together, & toke the waters vnto Bethbarath, & to Jorā. And they toke two captaynes of the Madianites, Oreb and zeb, and slew Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and zeb at the pyllle zeb, & folowed after Madian. And brought the heades of Oreb and zeb, to Gedeon on the other syde Jorā.

The. viii. Chapter.

Ephraim maketh insurrection agaynst Gedeon, but is come pacified.

And the men of Ephraim sayde vnto hym: why hast y serued vs thus, that thou calledst vs not, whē thou wētest to fyght wyth y Madianites? And they chode wyth hym a good. * (and had all moō done hym violence.) And he sayde vnto them: What dede haue I done lyke vnto poures: & is not a not a cluster of Ephraim better, then the wyne heruest of Abiezer? God hath deliuered into youre handes the Lordes of Madian, Oreb and zeb. And what was I able to do lyke as you haue done? And the thespirtes abated fro of him, whē he had sayde y. And Gedeon came to Jorā to passe ouer, he & the thre hundred men that were wyth hym, vcrpe saynte, and yet folowed the chace. And he sayde vnto the mē of Socoth: geue I praye you kakkes of byced vnto the people that folowe me: for they be sayntie, that I maye folowe after zebath, and zalmona kynges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth sayde: are the handes of zebath & zalmona now in thyne hādes, that we shulde geue byced vnto thyne armye? Gedeon sayde, therfore whē the Lord hath deliuered zebath and zalmona into myne hande, I wyll teare the fleshe of you wyth the thornes of the wilderness and w byers. And he went vp thence to Phanael, & spake vnto them lyke wyse. And the men of Phanael answered hym, as dyd the men of Socoth. And he sayde also vnto the men of Phanael: when I come agayne in peace, I wyll breake downe this towre. zebath and zalmona were in Carhar, and their hostes wyth them, vpon a. xv. thousand mē, which were all that were left of all the hostes of them of the East: for there were slayne a hundred and twente thousande men, that dyed wyth swerdes.

D And Gedeon went thowoe them that dwell in Tabernacles on the east syde of Robah and Jebah, and smote the hoste: for the hoste did cast no perrelles. And whā zebath and zalmona fledde, he folowed after them, and toke the two kynges of Madian, zebath and zalmona, and discomforcted all the hoste.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas returned from battell, afore the sonne was downe, and caught a ladde of the men of Socoth, & enquired of him. And he wrote hym of y lordes & Elders of Socoth. lxxvii. mē. And he came vnto the men of Socoth, and sayde: Beholde, here I haue zebath and zalmona, w which ye did cast me in the tethe, sayinge: are the handes of zebath and zalmona all redye in thyne hāde, that we shuld geue byced vnto thy faintye mē? And he toke the elders of the cite, & thornes of y wilderness & byers, & made the mē of Socoth to fele the. And he brake downe the towre of * Phanael, & slew the men of the cite.

And the sayd he vnto zebath & zalmona, what maner of mē were they whom ye slew? at Chibor: and they answered: the lykenesse of the and them is all one, eue after the fallpon of the chyldzen of a kyng. And he sayde: they were my byethzen, euen my mothers chyldzen. As trulpe as the Lord lyueth, yf ye had saued their lyues, I wolde not slepe you. And he sayde vnto Jether his eldest sonne: vp and slepe them: But the lad due not hys swerde, for he feared, because he was yet yong. Then zebath & zalmona sayde: Ryle thou, & falle vpon vs: for as the man is, so is his strength. And Gedeon arose and slew zebath and zalmona, & toke awaye the ornamentes, that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel sayde vnto Gedeon: Raygne thou ouer vs, bothe thou, thy sonne & thy sonnes sonne, for thou hast deliuered vs out of the hand of Madian. And Gedeon sayd vnto them: I wyll not raygne ouer you, nether shall my childe raygne ouer you, but the Lord shall raygne ouer you.

And agayne Gedeon sayde vnto them: I wolde desyre a certayne request of you, eue yf you wolde geue me euery man y carpynges of his praye. For they had golde carpynges, because they were Ismaelites: & they answered: We wyll geue them. And they spred a mantell, & dyd cast there in euery man y carpynges of hys pray: & the weyght of the golden carpynges y he required, was a thousand & seven hundred syces of golde, besyde cheynes, pomaunders and purple rayment: that was on the kynges of Madian, & besyde the cheynes, that were about their camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, & put it in his cite Ephrah. And all Israell went a whoring after it, in the same place, whych thyng became a ruyne vnto Gedeon and to his house. Thus was Madian brought lowe befoze y chyldzen of Israel, so y they lyfte vp their heades no moare. And y contreye was in quietnes fourtye yeres in the dayes of Gedeon.

And Jerobaal the sonne of Joas went, and dwelte in his a lone house. And Gedeon had * lxx. sonnes of his bodye begotten, for he had many wyues. And his concubine that was in Sichē, bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, in a good age, and was buryed in the sepulchre of Joas his father, eue in Ephrah, that pertayned vnto the father of the Ezrites.

But it fortunyd, that as lone as Gedeon was deed, y chyldzen of Israel turned awaye & went a whoring after Baalim, & made a counaūt w Baal to be their God, & y chyldzen of Israel thought not on y Lord their god, which had deliuered the out of y hādes of all their enemyes on euery syde. Nether shewed they mercy on y house of Jerobaal, other wyse called Gedeon, accordyng to all y goodnesse which he had shewed vnto Israell.

The. ix. Chapter.

Abimelech is made kyng.

Abimelech

Abimelech the sonne of Jerobaal wēt to Sichem, vnto his mothers brethren, and communed with them and with all his mothers fathers kired, saying saye I praye you, by the eares of all the cubabypoures of Sichem: whether is better for you, that all the sonnes of Jerobaal (which are. lxx. persones) raygne ouer you, ether that one raygne ouer you? Remember, that I am of poure bone, and of poure flesh. And his mothers brethren spake of hym in the audience of the men of Sichem all these wordes, and their hartes were moued to folowe Abimelech. For they sayde: he is oure brother. And they gaue him. lxx. peces of syluer out of the tēple of Baal Berith, where wyth Abimelech hyed dayne and lyght persones which wēt with him. And he went vnto his fathers house at Shechem * and slewe all his brethren, the sonnes of Jerobaal, enen. lxx. persones * with one stone. Not withstandynge, yet Joatham the yongest sonne of Jerobaal escaped, for he hyd hym selfe. And all the men of Sichem gathered together, and all the house of Mello, & came and made Abimelech kyng in the playne, where p great stone was by Sichem.

And when they tolde it to Joatham, he went and stode in the toppe of mount Garzim, and lyfte vp his voyce, and cried, and sayde vnto them: herke vnto me pou men of Sichem, p God maye herke vnto you. * The trees wēt forth to anoynt a king ouer them, and sayde vnto p olyue tree: raygne thou ouer vs. But the olyue tree sayd vnto them: shulde I leane my fattenesse, whych both goddes and men praye in me, and go to be promoted ouer p trees? And the trees sayde to the fygge tree: come thou, and be king ouer vs. The fygge tree answered the: shuld I forsake my swetnes, and my good frute, ad go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayde the trees vnto the vyne: come thou and be kyng ouer vs. The vyne sayde vnto them: shuld I leane my wyne whereby I cheare bothe goddes and men, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? The sayde all the trees vnto the fyre bushe: come thou, & raygne ouer vs. And the fyre bushe sayde vnto p trees: pf it be true p ye will anoynt me kyng ouer you, then come, & put poure trust vnder my shadowe. Pf no, the fyre come out of the firre bushe, and waste the Cedre trees of Libanon.

Now therfore, pf ye do trulpe and vncorruptlye, to make Abimelech kyng: and pf ye haue dealte well with Jerobaal and his house, & haue done vnto hym accordyng to the deservyng of his handes, indge ye. For enen he (my father) fought for you, and aduentured his lyfe, and rydde you out of the hande of Madian. And ye are rylen vp against my fathers house this daye, and haue slayue his chyldren, enen. lxx. persones with one stone, and haue made Abimelech the sonne of his mayde seruaunt, kyng ouer the men of Sichem, because he is poure brother: pf ye the haue dealte trulpe and purelye with Jerobaal and with his house this daye, then reioyse ye wyth Abimelech, and let him reioyse with you. But pf you haue not dealt trulpe, then I praye God a fyre maye come out of Abimelech, and consume the me of Sichem and the house of Mello. And that there maye come a fyre fro among the men of Sichem, and out of the house of Mello, and consume Abimelech. And Joatham ranne awaye, and fledde, and went to Beer and dwelt there, for feare of Abimelech his brother. When Abimelech had raygned thre yere, God sent a spere of hate betwene Abimelech, & p men of Sichem. And p citizens of Sichem rayled vpon Abimelech, & wished p the wickednes done to p. lxx. sonnes of Jerobaal in pght come on him, and p god wolde lape the bloude of them vnto Abimelech their brother which slewe the, and vnto the other men of Sichem which ayded him in the kylling of his brethren. And p citizens of Sichem set men to lape awaye for hym in the toppe of the mountaynes, which me (while they taried for his coming) robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimelech.

And Gaal the sonne of Abed came wyth his brethren, and they gat the to Sichem. And the men of Sichem put their confidence in him. And they went out into the felde, & gathered i their grapes, and troade them, and made mery: and went into the house of their goddes, and dyd eat and drynke, and cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Abed sayde: what is Abimelech? and what is Sichem? that we shulde serue him? Is he not the sonne of Jerobaal? and zebul is his officer? Serue soche as come of * hemoz p father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we shulde serue him? wold God this people were vnder my hāde, the wolde I take Abimelech out of p waye. And he spake against Abimelech: make thynne hoste greater, & go out. And when zebul the ruler of the cytie hearde the wordes of Gaal p sone of Abed, he was wroth, and sent messengers vnto Abimelech priuely, saying: Behold, Gaal the sonne of Abed and his brethren be come to Sichem: & beholde, they sett the cytie against p. Nowe therfore vp by nyght, thou and all the people p is wyth the, and lye in wayte in p felde. And ryse eyle in the morninge as sone as the sonne is vp, and fall vnto the cite. And pf he and the people that is wyth hym, come out agaynst p, do to him what what thine hādes shalbe able. And Abimelech roase vp, & all the people p were w him by night, and they layd awaye against Sichem in fourē copanyes. And Gaal p sone of Abed wēt out, & stode in p entering of p gate of the cytie. And Abimelech rose vp, & p folcke p were w him, fro layig awaye. And when Gaal saw p people, he sayd to zebul: beholde, there come people downe fro p top of p mountaynes. And zebul sayd vnto him: p gadw of p hylles seme me vnto p. (that erreure art thou diseaued.) Gaal answered agayne, & sayd: se, there come folcke downe by p myddell of p lād, & another copany come a lōg by p playne of p charmaras. Then sayd zebul vnto hi: where is now thimouth p sayd: what felow is Abimelech, that we shuld serue hi? Is not this p people p p hāst despyed? Go out now & fyght with the. And Gaal went out before the cyties of Sichem, & fought w Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him, p he fledde before hi. (and he droue him in to the cytie) & many were ouerthrowen & wounded, enen vnto p entering of p gate. And Abimelech dwelt at Arumah. And zebul thrust out Gaal & his brethren, p thei shulde not dwell in Sichem. (p suffered them not to tarie therein.) And on p morow, it happened p the people wēt out into p felde. And they tolde Abimelech. And he toke the people, & deuided them into thre copanyes, and layd awaye in the felde, and lokē, & beholde, the people were come out of the cytie, and he ranne vpon them, and smote them.

And Abimelech, & the copanyes p were w him, reached forther, & stode in the entriege of the gate of p cytie. And the two other copanyes ranne vnto all the people p were in the felde, & slue the. And when Abimelech had fought against p cytie all that daye, he toke it, & slew p people p was therein, & destroyed p cytie & towed salt thozow it. And when all p me of p towne of Sichem heard p, they entered into a strong holde of the house of their God Baal Berith. (where they made a bonde with him: & therof dyd the place take the name which place was exceeding strong) And it was tolde Abimelech, that all the me of the towne of Sichem were gathered together, & Abimelech gat him to mount zelmon, bothe he & all the people p were w him, & toke axes w him and cut downe bowes of trees, & toke them & bare them on his shulder, & sayde vnto the folcke p were wyth hym: what ye haue sene me do, spede poure selues, and do lyke wyse as I haue done. And all p men p were among the people, cut downe bowes, and folowed Abimelech, and put the into the holde, and sett the holde a fier by them: so that (with smoke and fyre) all the men of the towne of Sichem were slayne, vpon a thowlande men and women.

Then wēt Abimelech to Thebez, and besieged it, and toke it. But there was a strōg towre with in the cytie, and thither ranne all the men and women, and all the chefe p were in the cytie, and shut it to them, and got them vpon (by the bolwoykes) to the toppe of the towre. And Abimelech came vnto p towre, and fought agaynst it, and wēt hard vnto the doze of the towre, to set it on fier. And a certayne woman * cast a pece of a mylstone vpon his head, and all to brake his brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the young man that bare his harness, & sayd vnto him: * draw thy swerde and slee me, p me lape not of me: a womā slew him. And his ladd thrust him thozow, and he dyed. And when the men of Israel sawe p Abimelech was deed, they departed, euery man vnto his awne house. And thus * the wyckednesse of Abimelech whych he dyd vnto his father, in slepyng his leuentye brethren and thereto all the wyckednesse of the me of Sichem, dyd God bring vpon their heedē. And vpon them came the curse of Joathā the sonne of Jerobaal.

Then wēt Abimelech to Thebez, and besieged it, and toke it. But there was a strōg towre with in the cytie, and thither ranne all the men and women, and all the chefe p were in the cytie, and shut it to them, and got them vpon (by the bolwoykes) to the toppe of the towre. And Abimelech came vnto p towre, and fought agaynst it, and wēt hard vnto the doze of the towre, to set it on fier. And a certayne woman * cast a pece of a mylstone vpon his head, and all to brake his brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the young man that bare his harness, & sayd vnto him: * draw thy swerde and slee me, p me lape not of me: a womā slew him. And his ladd thrust him thozow, and he dyed. And when the men of Israel sawe p Abimelech was deed, they departed, euery man vnto his awne house. And thus * the wyckednesse of Abimelech whych he dyd vnto his father, in slepyng his leuentye brethren and thereto all the wyckednesse of the me of Sichem, dyd God bring vpon their heedē. And vpon them came the curse of Joathā the sonne of Jerobaal.

Chapter.

Chola and Jair are Judges of Israel.

After Abimelech there arose, to defende Israel, one Chola (the sonne of Phuah) his vncles sone, a mā of Akar, which dwelt in Samir in mount Ephraim. And he iudged Israel. xlii. yere and dyed, and was buryed in Samir. And after him arose Jair a Gileadite, and iudged Israel. xlii. yere. And he had thirtie sonnes that * rode on thirtie Ass coltes, & they had thirtie cyties, which are called p townes of Jair vnto this daye, and are in the lande of Gilead. And Jair dyed & was buryed in hamon.

* And p chyldren of Israel brought wyckednesse yet agayne, i p syght of the Lord, & serued Baalim and Ashtaroth, & p goddes of Siria, p goddess of Sidon, and the goddess of Moab, the goddess of the chyldre of Ammon, and the goddess of the Philistines, and forsoke the Lord & serued not him. And the Lord was wroth with Israel, & solde the into the hādes of the Philistines, & into the hādes of the chyldre of Ammon: which fro that yere forth, pld & oppressed p chyldre of Israel. xvi. yere, all that were on the other syde Jordan: in the lāde of the Amorites which is i Gilead. Moreover, p chyldre of Ammon wēt ouer Jordan to fight agaynst Juda, Beniamin, and the house of Ephraim: so p Israel was sore cōbred. And the chyldre of Israel cryed vnto the Lord, sayig: we haue synned agaynst the: for we haue forsaken oure awne God, and haue serued Baalim. And the Lord sayde vnto the

to the childre of Israel: dyd not the Egyptians, the Amorites, the childre of Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, & the Moabites, oppresse you? And ye cryed to me & I deliuered you out of their handes. And for all that ye haue forsaken me, and serued straung goddes, wherfore I will helpe you no more. So & crye vnto the goddes which ye haue chosen, and lett them saue you in the tyme of youre tribulacion.

And the children of Israel sayde vnto the Lorde: We haue sined: do thou vnto vs whatsoeuer please thee, deliuer vs onely this daye. And they put away the straung goddes fro them, and serued the Lorde. And his soule had pteie on the miserie of Israel.

Then the childre of Ammon gathered to gether, & pitched in Gilead. And the childre of Israel gathered them together, & pitched in Mizpa. And the Lords of Gilead sayde eche to other: Whosoener will beginne & batell agaynst the childre of Ammon, the same shalbe heid ouer all the inhabitants of Gilead.

The. xi. Chapter.

Jephthah deliuereth Israel from the Ammonites.

And there was one Jephthah a Gileadite, a strong man, & sonne of an harlot: and Gilead begat Jephthah.

And Gileads wyfe bare him sonnes, which when they were come to age, thrust out Jephthah, and sayd vnto him: Thou shalt not inheret in oure fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straung woman. Then Jephthah fledd fro his brethren, & dwelt in the land of Tob. And there gathered ydols (as they call them) men to Jephthah, and wote out w him. And it chaunced in processe of tyme, the childre of Ammon made warre agaynst Israel.

And when the children of Ammon fought thus agaynst Israel, the elders of Gilead wote to lett Jephthah out of the land of Tob (to helpe them) and sayd vnto him: come & be oure captayne, & we maye fyght w the childre of Ammon.

Jephthah answered the elders of Gilead: did not ye hate me & expell me out of my fathers house? how happeneth it the, & you come vnto me now in tyme of youre tribulacion? And the elders of Gilead sayde vnto Jephthah: Therefore we turne agayne to the now, & thou mayest go w vs, & fight agaynst the childre of Ammon and be oure heid ouer all the inhabitants of Gilead.

And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Gilead: If ye byynge me home agayn, to fight with the childre of Ammon, then yf the Lorde deliuer them before me, shall I be your heid? And the elders of Gilead sayde to Jephthah: The Lorde be witnesse betwene vs yf we do not accordig to thy wordes. The Jephthah went w the elders of Gilead. And the people made hym heid and ruler ouer the. And Jephthah rehearsed all his wordes before the Lorde in Mizpa.

And Jephthah set messengers vnto the king of the childre of Ammon, saying: what hast thou to do w me, & thou art come agaynst me, to fight in my land? The king of the childre of Ammon answered vnto the messengers of Jephthah: Because Israel toke away my land, wher they came out of Egypt: eue from Arnon vnto Iabok, and vnto Iordā. Now therfore restore those landes agayne w faire meanes.

And Jephthah set messengers agayne vnto the childre of Ammon, and sayd vnto hi: thus sayeth Jephthah: Israel toke not away the land of Moab, nor y land of the childre of Ammon. But wher Israel came out of Egypt, & walked thowow the wilderness, eue vnto the redde see, they came to Cadēs & sent messengers vnto the king of Edō, saying: let me (I praye thee) go thowow thy land. But the king of Edō wolde not agre thereto. And in lyke maner they set vnto the king of Moab, but he wolde not cōfēt. And so Israel abode still in Cadēs. And the they wēt along thowow the wilderness, & cōpassed the lande of Edō, & the land of Moab, & came a long by the east syde of the land of Moab, & pitched on the other syde of Arnon, & wolde not come with in the coaste of Moab: for Arnon was the vtmost border of Moab. And the Israel set messengers vnto Sehon, king of the Amorites, & king of Ihesbon, & sayd vnto him: Let vs passe thowow thy land vnto oure awne contraye. But Sehon cōfētēd not to Israel, & he wolde go thowow his coast: but gathered all his people together, & pitched in Jahaz, & fought w Israel. And the Lord God of Israel deliuered Sehon & all his folke into the handes of Israel. And so Israel smote the & cōquered all the land of the Amorites, the inhabitants of the lande cōtrep. And they conquered all the coastes of the Amorites, fro Arnon vnto Iabok, & fro the wilderness vnto Iordā. So now, sayng the Lorde God of Israel hath cast out the Amorites before his people Israel, shuldest thou possesse the land? Naye, but what people, Camos thy God dryueth out, that land possesse the. Eue so whatsoeuer nacion the Lorde oure God expelleth, that lande ought we to enioye.

And art thou better then Balack the sonne of zephor king of Moab? dyd he strue w Israel or fyght agaynst the, all the whyle Israel dwelt in Ihesbon and her townes, in Aroer & her townes, & in all the cyties & be a lōge by the coastes of Arnon, the hundred yerres? why dydst thou not recouer them in all that space? Wherfore I haue not lpynd agaynst the. But thou doest me wronge, to warre agaynst me. The Lorde therfore which is a Judge be Judge thys daye betwene the childre of Israel, and the childre of Ammon. howbeit the kynge of the of the childre of Ammon, harkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, which he sent him. Then the spere of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer to Gilead & to Manasses, & came to Mazpah that lieth in Gilead, and from thence vnto the childre of Ammon. And Jephthah vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayd: If thou shalt deliuer the childre of Ammon into my handes, then that thinge that cometh out of the doores of my house agaynst me, when I come home in peace, from the childre of Ammon, shalbe the Lorde, and I will offer it vp for a burnt offering. And so Jephthah went vnto the childre of Ammon to fyght w the. And the Lorde deliuered them into his handes. And he smote them fro Aroer tyll thou come to Menith, euen xx. cytes: and so forth to the playne of the vyneyardes, with an exceeding great slaughter. And thus the childre of Ammon were brought vnder, before the childre of Israel.

of the childre of Ammon, harkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah, which he sent him.

Then the spere of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer to Gilead & to Manasses, & came to Mazpah that lieth in Gilead, and from thence vnto the childre of Ammon. And Jephthah vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayd: If thou shalt deliuer the childre of Ammon into my handes, then that thinge that cometh out of the doores of my house agaynst me, when I come home in peace, from the childre of Ammon, shalbe the Lorde, and I will offer it vp for a burnt offering. And so Jephthah went vnto the childre of Ammon to fyght w the. And the Lorde deliuered them into his handes. And he smote them fro Aroer tyll thou come to Menith, euen xx. cytes: and so forth to the playne of the vyneyardes, with an exceeding great slaughter. And thus the childre of Ammon were brought vnder, before the childre of Israel.

When Jephthah came to Mazpah vnto his house, se, his daughter came out agaynst him, with tymberelles & dāsses, which was his onely childe: so that besyde her, he had neither sonne, nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothes, and sayde: Alas my daughter, thou hast brought me lowe, ad art one of them that trouble me. For I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde, and cannot go backe. And she sayd vnto him: my father, yf thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the Lorde, the Lorde do w me accordyng to it that proceeded out of thy mouth, for as moch as the Lorde hath aduenged the (as thou sayest) of thyne enemies the childre of Ammon. And she sayde vnto her father: do thys moche for me: lett me alone two monethes, that I maye go downe to the mountaynes, & bewaile my virginyte, & my felowes. And he sayd: go, & he sent her awaye two monethes. And so she went with her companions, & lamented her maydenheede vpon the mountaynes. And after the ende of the two monethes, she turned agayne vnto her father, which dyd with her accordyng to his vowe which he had vowed, & she had knowne no man. And it grew to a custome in Israel. The daughters of Israel came yere by yere to lamēt the daughter of Jephthah the Gileadite, foure dayes in a yere.

The. xij. Chapter.

The battail of Jephthah agaynst Ephraim. After the death of Jephthah succeeded Elon. After Elon Abdon.

And the men of Ephraim gathered them selues together, & wēt northwarde, and sayde vnto Jephthah: Wherfore wentest thou to fyght with the childre of Ammon, and dydest not call vs to go with the: we will therfore burne thine house vpon thy fper. And Jephthah said vnto the: If my people were at great stryfe w the childre of Ammon. And when I called yon, ye deliuered me not out of their handes. And wher I sawe ye deliuered me not, I put my lyfe in my handes, & wēt vnto the childre of Ammon. And the Lorde deliuered them into my handes. Wherfore then are ye come vpon me now, to fyght w me?

Jephthah therfore gathered together all the men of Gilead, & fought w the Ephraimites. And the me of Gilead smote the Ephraimites, because they sayd: Ye Gileadites are but runagates of Ephraim amonge the Ephraimites & the Manassites. Wherfore, the men of Gilead toke the passages of Iordan before the Ephraimites. And when those Ephraimites that were escaped, sayde: lett vs go ouer, then the men of Gilead sayd vnto them: Art thou an Ephraimite? they sayde: naye. Then sayde they vnto hi: then saye: Schibboleth. Wherby is by interpretation, an eare of corne. And he sayde: Schibboleth: for he coulde not so pronounce. And then they toke him, and slewe hym at the passages of Iordan. And there were ouerthowen at that tyme of the Ephraimites. xliij. And Jephthah iudged Israel. vi. yere, & dyed, and was buried in one of the cyties of Gilead. After thys man, iudged Israel one Abazan of Bethlechem, & he had. xxx. sonnes and. xxx. daughters, whom he sent out, and toke. xxx. other in, for his sonnes. And when Abazan had iudged Israel. vii. yere, he dyed, and was buried at Bethlechem.

After hi, Elon a zabilonite iudged Israel ten yere, & Elon the zabilonite dyed, & was buried in Aialon, in the countre of zabilon. After hym, Abdon the sonne of Hellel a pharathonite iudged Israel. And he had. xl. sonnes, and thirty neucus, that rode on. lxx. asse coltes. And when Abdon the sonne of Hellel the pharathonite had iudged Israel fyght yere, he dyed, & was buried in pharathon in the lande of Ephraim, in the mount of the Amalekites.

The. xiiij. Chapter.

Israel being an ydoler (as opposed of the Philistines). The birth of Samson. The sacrifice of Samsons father.

And the childre of Israel began agayne to commytte wyckednes in the sight of the Lorde. And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of the Philistines forty yere. And ther was a man in zaraah of the kynred of Dan, named Manoah, whose wyfe was barren, and bare not. And the Angel of the Lorde appeared vnto the woman: and sayde vnto her: Beholde, thou art barren, and bearest not: But thou shalt conceiue, & beare a sonne. And now beware: & thou drinke no wyne. nether strong drinke, nether eate any vncleane

if thinge:

thing: for so, thou shalt conceale and beare a soune. And there may no raso come on hys heed. For the ladd shalbe an abstayner vnto God, euen fro hys ^(infancye & from hys) byrth. And he shall begyne to deliuer Israell out of the handes of the Philistines.

Then the wyfe came, & tolde her husband sayenge: a man of God came vnto me, & the fallis of him was yke the fallion of an Angell of God, excedyng fearfull. But I asked hym not whence he was, nether tolde he me hys name, but sayd vnto me: beholde, thou shalt be with childe & beere a soune, and now drinke no wyne nor strong dryncke, nether eate any vncleane thyng: for the ladd shalbe an abstayner to God, euen from ^(infancye and from hys) byrth, to the daye of hys death.

Then Manoah made intercessyon to the Lorde, and sayde: I praye the my Lorde, lett the man of God whych thou sendest, come once moare vnto vs, ad teache vs what we shal do vnto the ladd, when he is borne. And God hearde the voyce of Manoah, and the angell of God came agayne vnto the wyfe as she sat in the felde. But Manoah her husband was not with her. And the wyfe made hast, and ranne, and shewed her husbunde, & sayde vnto hym: Beholde, the man appeared vnto me, that came vnto me to daye.

And Manoah arose, and went after hys wyfe, and came to the man, and sayde vnto hym: art thou the man that spakest vnto my wyfe? And he sayde: I am. Manoah sayde: now when thy sayeng is come to passe: what shalbe the maner of the childe, ad what shal he do? And the angell of the Lorde sayd vnto Manoah: thy wyfe must absteyne from all that I sayde vnto her: she maye eate of no thyng y cometh of the vyne tree, ner dryncke wyne or strög dryncke, nor eate any vncleane thyng: But must obserue all that I bad her. Manoah sayde vnto the angell of the Lorde: we wyl kepe the spyll, vntyll we haue made redye a kydd, and haue sett it befoze the. And the angell of the Lorde sayde vnto Manoah, though thou make me abyde. * I wyl not eate of thy bread. And yf thou wylt offere a burnt offering, thou must offer it vnto the Lorde. For Manoah wist not, that it was an angell of the Lorde. And Manoah said agayne vnto the angell of the Lorde: what is thy name, that when thy sayenge is come to passe, we maye do the some worthyppe? And the angell of the Lorde sayd vnto hym: why askest thou after my name, whych is

Secrete. And so Manoah toke a kydd w a meate offeringe, and offered it vpon a rocke vnto the Lorde. And the angell dyd wonderouslye. Manoah and hys wyfe lokyng vpon. And when the flame came vp toward heauen fro the aultare, the angell of the Lorde ascended vp in the flame of the aultare. And Manoah and hys wyfe looked vpon it, and fell flat on their faces vnto the ground. But the angell of the Lorde dyd nomoare appeare vnto Manoah and his wife. And then Manoah knew that it was an angell of the Lorde, and sayde vnto hys wyfe: we shall surlye dye, because we haue sene God. But his wife said vnto him: Yf the Lorde wold kyll vs, he wolde not haue receaued a burnt offeringe & a meate offeringe of oure handes, nether wolde he haue shewed vs all these thynges, nor wolde now haue tolde vs any soche. And the wyfe bare a soune, and called his name Samson. And the ladd grewe, and the Lorde blessed hym. And yf spete of the Lorde begane to moue hym in the host of Dan, betwene Zorah & Eschol.

The xiii. Chapter.

The marriage of Samson. He kylleth a lyon. He poundeth a ryddle. He kylleth thretye men. Hys wyfe forsaketh hym, and taketh another.

Samson wet downe to Chanath, and saue a woman in Chanath of the daughters of the Philistines, and he came vp, and tolde hys father and hys mother, and sayde: I haue sene a woman in Chanath of the daughters of the Philistines. And now geue me her to wyfe. Then hys father and mother sayde vnto hym: Is there neuer a woman among the daughters of thy brethren, and amonge all my people, but that thou must go, and take a wyfe of the vncircumcised Philistines? And Samson sayde vnto his father: geue me this woman, for she please me well. But hys father and mother wylt not that it was the Lordes doyng, and that he sought an occasion agaynst the Philistines, for at tyme the Philistines raygned ouer Israel.

Then went Samson and hys father and his mother downe to Chanath, and came to the vineyardes of Chanath. And behold a pounce ^(wood) lyon roared vpon hym. And the spete of the Lorde came vpon hym. And he tare hym, as he wolde haue rent a kydd, and yet had nothyng in hys hande, nether tolde hys father & mother what he had done. And he went downe, & talked with the woman, which seemed well fauored in the syght of Samson.

And within a thorte space after, as he went thither agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned oute of the waye, to se the carkasse of the lyon. And beholde, there was a swarme of bees, and honye in the carkasse of the lion. And he toke of the honye in hys handes, and wente catynge, and came to hys father and mother, and gaue them also. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honye oute of the carkasse of the lyon.

And so hys father came vnto the woman, and

and Samson made there a feast, for so vled the yonge men to do. And when they ^(the cyprians of that place) sawe him, they brought xxx companions to be with hym. And Samson sayd vnto them: I wil now put forth a ryddle vnto you. And yf you can declare it me within vii. dayes of the feast, & fynde it out, I will geue you xxx. shertes, and xxx. chaunge of garmentes. But yf you cannot declare it me, then shall ye geue me xxx. shertes and xxx. chaunge of garmentes. And they answered hym: put forth thy ryddle, that we maye heare it. And he sayd vnto them: Out of the eater came meate: and out of the stronge came swetnes. And they coulde not i. iij. dayes expounde the ryddle. And when the seventh daye was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe: flater thyn husband, ^(and pntwade hym) that he maye declare vs the ryddle, lest we burne the & thy fathers house with fyer. haue ye called vs hyther, to make vs beggers? And Samsons wyfe wepte befoze hym ^(complayned) and sayde: Surely thou hatest me and lonest me not: for thou hast put forth a ryddle vnto the chyldren of my folke, and hast not tolde it me. And he sayde vnto her: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father and my mother, and shall I tell it the?

And Samsons wyfe wepte befoze hym xij. dayes, whyle the feast lasted. And the vii. daye he tolde her, because the laye so sore vpo him. And he tolde it the chyldren of her folke. And the men of the cypie sayd vnto hym the seventh daye, befoze the sonne went downe. What is sweter then honye, & what is stronger then a lyon? Then sayde he vnto the: If ye had not plowed with my cause, ye had not founde out my ryddle. And he spete of the Lorde came vpon hym. And he went downe to Askalon, and slewe thretye men of them, and spoyled them, and gaue chaunge of garmentes vnto them whych expounded the ryddle. And he was wroth, and wet vp to hys fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was geuen to one of hys companions, that he had taken vnto hym.

The xv. Chapter.

Samson teth fyebrandes to fyre tayles. With the Jawe bone of an asse he kylleth a thousand men. Out of a great tothe in the Jawe God geueth hym watre.

But it chaunced within a whyle after, euen in the tyme of whete heruest, that Samson visited hys wyfe with a kydd, sayenge: I wyl go into my wyfe into the chamber: but her father wolde not suffre hym to go in. And her father sayd: I thought that thou haddest hated her, and therfore gaue I her vnto one of thy copanions. Is not her ponger sylter sayer then we? Take her in steade of the other. Samson sayd vnto them: Now am I more blamelesse then the Philistines, and therfore wyl I do them displeasure.

And Samson went out, and caught thre hundred foxes, and toke fyrebrandes, and fastened taylor to taylor, and put a fyre brand in the myddes betwene two tayles. And wha he had set the brandes of fyre, he sent the out ^(that they myght runne abrode, which went immediately) into the stading corne of the Philistines, and burnt vp both the repd corne and also the standing, with the bynepardes and olyues. Then the Philistines sayde: who hath done this? And it was tolde them that Samson the sonne in lawe of the Chamnite, because he had taken hys wyfe, and geuen her to hys copanion. And the Philistines came vp and burnt her and her father with fyer.

And Samson sayde vnto them: Though ye haue done this, yet wyl I be aduenged of you, and then I wyl cease. And he smote them legges and thyghs with a myghtye plague. And then he went and dwelt in the caue of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp, & pitched in Juda, and laye in ^{(a place, that was afterwards called) Lehi} ^(that is a Jawe bone, wher theyr host was scattered abrode). And the me of Juda sayde, why are ye come vp vnto vs? They answered: to binde Samson are we come vp, and to do to hym as he hath done to vs. Then thre thousande men of Juda went downe to the caue of the rocke Etam, and sayde to Samson: wottest thou not that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? Wherfore then hast thou done thus vnto vs? He answered them: as they dyd vnto me, so haue I done vnto them.

And they sayd vnto hym agayne: we are come downe to bynde the, and to deliuer the into the hand of the Philistines. And Samson sayd vnto them: swere vnto me ^(and pntwades me) that ye shall not sal vpon me your selues. They answered hym, sayenge: No, but we wyl bynde the, and deliuer y vnto their handes: But we wyl not kyll the. And they boude him with two new cordes, & brought hym from the rocke. And when he came to Lehi, the Philistines shewed agaynst him. And the spete of the Lorde came vpon hym, and the cordes that were vpon hys armes, became as flaxe that was burnt w fyer, for the bandes lowled from of hys handes. And he founde a rotten Jawe bone of an asse, and put forth hys hande, and caught it, and slue a thousande men therwith.

And Samson sayde: with the Jawe of an asse, haue I made heapes of them: with the Jawe of an asse haue I slaine a thousand men. And when he had left speakyng, he cast awaye the Jawe bone out of hys hand, and called the place: Ramath Lehi. ^(That is by interpretacion the leftryng up of the Jawe bone). And he was sore a thyrt, and called on the Lorde, & sayde: Thou hast geuen this great victory, in the bande of thy seruaut. And now I must dye for thy sake, and fall into the handes of the vncircumcised. But God brake a great toth that was in the Jawe, and ther came water therout. And when he had dröcke, his sprete came agayne, and was refreshed, wherfore the name therof was called, vnto this daye, the well of the caller on, which came of the Jawe. And he iudged Israell in the dayes of the Philistines, twenty yeaers.

The .xviij. Chapter.

Samson lyeth by the gates of Gaza: He was deceived by Dalila: She pulleth downe the house vpon the Philistines, and dyeth with them.

Ihen wente Samson to Azath, *and sawe ther an harlot, and went in vnto her. And it was tolde the Azathites, sayeng: Samson is come hither. And they went aboute, & layde awayte for hym there. all nyght in the gate of the cite, and were still all the nyght, saying: in the mornynge whan it is daye, we shall kyl hym. And Samson toke his rest tyll mydnyght, & aroise at mydnyght, and toke the doers of the gate of the cite, and the two syde postes, and rent them of, with the barre and all, and put them vpon his shoulders, and carped them vnto the top of an hyll, that is before hebron.

And after this, it fortuneth, that by the ryper of Sorok, he loued a woman, called Dalila: vnto whom came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto her: perswade hym, and se wherein his great strenght lieth, and by what meane we maye overcome him that we maye bynde him, to byng him vnder, and euery one of vs shal geue the alenen hundred syluerlynges.

And Dalila sayde to Samson: Oh, tell me where thy great strenght lieth, and how thou myghtest be bounde, and brought vnder. Samson answered vnto her: If they bynde me with seuen grene withes y were neuer dyed, I shalbe weake as other men. And then y lordes of y Philistines brought her seuen wythes that were yet grene and neuer dyed, and she bounde hym therewith. Not withstandinge she had men lyng in wayte with her in the chaubze. And she sayd vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And immediatly he brake the cordes as a strynge of towne: (that is to sayne) breaketh, when it fealeth fier. And so his strenght was not knowne.

And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: Se, y hast mocked me & tolde me lyes. Now therfore tel me, wherwith y mightest be bounde. He answered her: yf they bynde me with new ropes that neuer were occupied, I shalbe weake, and as another man. Dalila therfore toke new ropes, and bounde hym therewith, and sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyes of wayte in the chamber, & he brake them from of hys armes, as they had bene but a threde. And Dalila sayde vnto Samson: yhereto thou hast begyled me, and tolde me lyes: yet tell me, how thou myghtest be bounde. He sayde vnto her: If thou plattedest the wylokes of my head with an heare lace. And she fastened them with a nayle, and sayde vnto hym: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, & plucked awaye the nayle, that was in the plattinge with the heare lace. And she sayde vnto hym agayne: how canst thou saye that thou louest me, when thyne herte is not with me? beholde, y hast mocked me thys thre tymes, & hast not tolde me, wherin thy greates strenght lyeth. And as she laye vpon him with her wordes continually vexyng of hym, hys soule was encombred euen vnto the death. And so he tolde her all his herte, & sayd vnto her: there neuer came raser vpon myne heed, for I haue bene an abstayner: (that is to saye consecrate) vnto God, euen from my mothers wöbe: therfore whan I am shauen, my strenght wyll go from me, and I shal waxe weake, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalila sawe that he had tolde her all his herte, she sent and called for the lordes of y Philistines, sayeng: come vpyet this once, for he hath shewed me all hys herte.

Then the lordes of the Philistines came vnto her, & brought y money in their handes. And she made him slepe vpon her knees: & she toke hys heere downe in her lappe, & she sent for a man, & he byd shaued of the seuen lockes of his heed, & begane to vexe him, & his strenght was gone fro him. And she sayde: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, & sayd: I wil go out now as at other tymes before, & shake my selfe, & he wist not y the Lord was departed fro him. But the Philistines toke hym, and put out his eyes, & brought hym downe to Azath, & bounde hym with two fetters of brasse. And he byd grynde in the prison house, howbeit the heere of hys head beganne to growe agayne after that he was shauen.

Then the lordes of y Philistines gathered them together, for to offer a solempne offryng vnto Dagon theyr God, and to reioyse: for they sayde, oure God hath deliuered Samson oure enemy into oure handes. And when the people sawe hym, they prayled theyr God: for they sayde: oure God hath deliuered into oure handes oure enemy, and destroyer of oure countrey, whych shew manye of vs. And when theyr hertes were merue, it fortuneth, that they sayde: sende for Samson, that he maye make vs laugh. And they fetter Samson oute of the prison house, and he played before them, and they set hym betwene the pylers. And Samson sayde sayd vnto the ladd that leed him by the hand: sett me that I maye touche the pylers, that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to them. And the house was full of men & women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines. And there were vpon the rounse a thre thousande men and women, that behelde whyle Samson played.

And Samson called vnto the Lord, and sayde: O Lord God, thyncke vpon me, and strengthen me, at thys tyme onlpe, O God, that I maye be aduenged of the Philistines for my two eyes. And Samson caught the two middell pylers on which the house stode, and on which it was bozne vp, the one in hys ryght hande, and the other in hys lefte, and sayde: my soule shall dye with the Philistines, and bowed them with all hys myghte. And the house fell vpon the lordes and vpon all the people that were therein. And so the deed which he siewe at hys deeth, were moother then they whych he siewe in hys lyfe. And then hys brethren and al the house of hys father came downe, & toke him vp, & brought hym, and buryed hym betwene zarah and Estahol, in the buryng place of Manoah hys father. And he iudged Israell twenty yeaers.

The .xviij. Chapter.

Of Micah whose mother made hym an Idol of syluer.

There was a man in most Ephraim named Micah, and he sayde vnto hys mother: the leuen hundred syluerlynges that were taken fro the, aboute which thou cursedst, & spakest it in myne eares. Behold, the syluer is with me, I toke it awaye. And hys mother sayde: blessed be y my sonne, in y Lord. And when he had restored the leuen hundred syluerlynges to his mother agayne, his mother sayde: I bowed the syluer vnto y Lord of myne hande for the my sonne: that y shuldest make a grauen ymage and an ymage of metall. Now therfore, I wyll geue it the agayne. And when he restored the monney agayne vnto his mother, his mother toke two hundred syluerlynges, and gaue them to a goldsmith, which made therof a graue ymage, and a ymage of metall, and it was in the house of Micah. And the man Micah had a temple of goddes, and made an Ephod and Theraphim, (that is to saye, a garment for the piete, and Idols,) and fylled the hande of one of hys sonnes which became hys preste. * In those dayes there was no kyng in Israel, but euery man byd that which was good in hys awne eyes.

And there was a ponge mā out of Bethlehem Juda, of the kynred of Juda: which ponge man was a Leuite, & iourneled ther. And the man departed oute of the cite of Bethlehe Juda, to go dwel where he coude fynde a coueniet place. And he came to most Ephraim, to the house of Micah as he iourneled. And Micah sayde vnto hym. whence comest thou? The leuite answered hym. I am of Bethlehe Juda, & go to dwell where I maye fynde a place: (and where I maye fynde it to be for my profit.) And Micah sayd agayne vnto him: dwell with me, and be vnto me a father and a preste. And I wyll geue the ten syluerlynges by yeaer, two garmentes, and thy meate and dryncke.

And the Leuite was content to dwell with the man, and was vnto hym as one of hys awne sonnes. And Micah consecrated y hāde of the leuite, and the ponge man became his preste, and was in the house of Micah. Then sayde Micah: now I am sure, that the Lord wyll be good vnto me, seynge: I haue a leuite to my preste.

The .xviij. Chapter.

The chyldren of Dan take the goddes and the preste of Micah awaye. They destroye Laish, & aucte byde it agayne.

In those dayes *there was no kyng in Israel. And in those dayes the tribe of Dan sought then an inheritance to dwell in * for vnto y tymes there fel none inheritance vnto them amonge the trybe of Israel. And the chyldren of Dan sent of their kyndred fyue actyue men in feates of warre oute of theyr coastes, euen out of zarah and Estahol, to vexe the lande and searche it out, and sayde vnto the: go, and searche out the lāde: which whan they came to most Ephraim, euen to the house of Micah, they lodged ther. And whē they were in the house of Micah, they knewe the voyce of y ponge mā the leuite: and when they turned in thyther, they sayde vnto hym: who brought the hyther? what makest thou in thys place? and what hast thou here? And he answered them: thus and thus dealed Micah with me, and hath hired me, and I am become hys preste. And they sayde vnto hym agayne: Alke coucell now of God, y we maye knowe, whether the waye whych we go, shalbe prosperous, or no. And the preste sayde vnto them: go in peace, for the Lord gydeth your waye which ye go.

Then the fyue mā departed, and came to Laish, and sawe the people that were therein, how they dwelt careles, after the maner of y Sydonis, styll, and without castynge of parrelles: and that no man made any trouble in the land, or vsurped any domynio, but were farre from the Sidons, and had no busines with other men. And they came vnto theyr brethren, to zarah & Estahol. And their brethren sayd vnto them: what haue ye done?

And they answered: Arysle, that we maye C C iij go vp

* Num. xxi. a go vp agaynst them, * for we haue sene the lande: surely a very good one. And do ye fytt stil: be not slouthful to departe: But come to conquer the lande: (it shalbe no labour.) If ye will go, ye shall come vnto a people that casteth no pavelles, & it is a very large countre: which God hath geuen into your handes. It is also a place, which doth lacke nothyng & is in the world.

And there departed thence of the kynred of the Danites, euen out of Zarahah and Esthaol, syxe hundred men appoynted with instruments of warre. And they went vp, and pitched in Kariat Sarim which is in Iuda. Wherfore they called the place, the hoost of Dan, vnto this daye: and it is on the backsyde of Kariat Sarim. And they went thence vnto mount Ephraim, & came to the house of Micah. Then answered the fyue men that went to spye out the countre of Laish, & sayde vnto their brethren: wot ye not y there is in these houses an Ephod, & Theraphim, a grauen ymage, & an ymage of metall: Now therfore conspyde what ye haue to do.

And they turned thitherwarde and came to the house of y pong man the Leuite, euen vnto the house of Micah, and saluted hym peably. And the syxe hundred men gyrded with weapons of warre, which were of the chyldren of Dan, stode by y enterpyng of the gate. And the fyue men that wnt to spye out the lande, went in thither and toke the kerued ymage, and the Ephod, Theraphim, & the ymage of metall. And the prest stode in the enterpyng of the gate with the syxe hundred men y were armed vnto batayl, whyle the other wente into Michas house, and set the kerued ymage, the Ephod, Theraphim, and the ymage of metall. Then sayd y prest vnto the: what do ye? They answered hym: holde thy peace, & laye thyne hande vpon thy mouth, and come with vs, to be our father & prest. Is it better for the to be a prest vnto the house of one man, then to be a prest vnto a trybe or a kynred in Israel? And the prest was glad and toke the Ephod, and Theraphim, and the grauen ymage, & went with the people. And they turned and departed, and put the chyldren, the catell and there other substance before them.

And when they were a good waye from the house of Micah, the men that were in y houses, and in Michas house, made an outcrye, and folowed after the chyldren of Dan, and called vnto them. And they turned their faces, and sayde vnto Micah: what ayleth the, y thou makest an outcrye? And he sayd: ye haue taken awaye my goddes whych I made, and also the prest, & go your wayes with the. And what haue I more? how then saye ye vnto me, what ayleth the? And the chyldren of Dan sayde vnto hym: let not thy voyce be hearde amonge vs, lest angere fellows rise vpon the, and thou loose thy lyfe with the lyues of all thyne household. And so the chyldren of Dan wente they wayes. And when Micah sawe that they were to stronge for hym, he turned and went backe vnto his house agayne.

And they toke the thynges which Micah had made, & the prest which he had, & came vnto Laish, euen vnto a people that were at rest & without mistrust, & smote them with the edge of the swerd, & burnt the cytie with fyre. And there was no mā to helpe, because Laish was farre from Sidon, & they had no medelyng with any other man. And the cyte stode in the valey that lyeth by Betharchob. And they bult the there a cytie, & dwelt therein. * And called it Dan, after y name of Dan their father which was bozne vnto Israel. Howbeit, in very dede the name of the cytie was Laish at the begynninge.

And the chyldren of Dan set them vp the grauen ymage. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and his sennes were the prestes in y trybe of Dan vntill they were carryed awaye out of the land captyue. And they sett them vp the kerued ymage which Micah made, all the whyle y the house of God was in Silo.

The xix. Chapter.

Of the Leuyte, whose wyfe was vylanously kyllid in Gibeā.

In thosedayes, when there was no kyng in Israel, that a certayn leuyte soger carynge on the syde of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubyne out of Bethlehem Iuda: and his concubyne playd the whoze by hym, and went awaye from hym, vnto her fathers house to Bethlehem Iuda, and there continued foure monethes. And her husbande arose, and went after her, to speake frendely vnto her, and to bring her home agayne, hauyng his ladd with hym, and a couple of asses. And he brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosell sawe hym, he reioysed of his comyng. And his father in lawe the damosells father kept him. And the Leuyte abode with hym thre dayes, and so they dyd eate and drinke, and lodged there.

The fourth daye whan they arose erly in the mornyng, the man stode vp, to departe. And the damoselles father sayd vnto his sone in lawe: confort thyne hert with a morsell of bread, & then go your waye. And they fate downe, and dyd eate and drinke both of them together. And the damoselles father sayd vnto the man: Be content I praye the, & tarye all nyght, and let thyne herte be mery. And when the man stode vp to departe, his father in lawe compelled him to turne agayne: and to and to tarye all nyght there. And he rose vperly the fyfth daye to departe, and the damoselles father sayde, comforte thine herte: & they taried vntill after middaye. And they dyd eate bothe of them to geather.

And when the man arose to departe with his concubine and his ladd, his father in lawe the damoselles father sayde vnto hym: beholde, the daye gothe fast awaye & draweth towarde euen, tarye all night: at y least waye tarye this daye here, that thyne hert maye be mery. And to morowe get thou erlye vpon your waye, that thou mayest get the to thy tent. Neuerthelater the man wolde not tary, but arose and departed, and came as ferre as Jebus, (which is Jerusalem) and his two asses laden, and his concubine and his ladd with him. And when they were fast by Jebus the daye was sore spent, and the younge man sayd vnto his master: come I praye the and let vs turne in, into this cytie of the Jebusites and lodge all night there. His master answered him: we will not turne to a straunge cytie that are not of the chyldren of Israel: we will go forth to Gibeā. And he sayd vnto his ladd, go forwarde, and we shall come to one of these places to lodge all night ether in Gibeā or in Rama: And they went forwarde vpon they waye, and the sonne wet downe vpon them, when they were fast by Gibeā which belongeth to them of Ben Jamin. And they turned thitherwarde to go in, and lodge all nyght in Gibeā. And when he came, he sat him downe in a street of the cytie, for there was no man that toke them to lodgyng. And behold, there came an olde man from his worke, out of the felde at eue, which was also of mount Ephraim, & dwelt as a stranger in Gibeā. But the men of the place were the chyldren of Zebulun. And when he had lyfte vp his eyes, he sawe a wayefaring man in the streete of the cytie. And the olde man sayde: whether goest thou? And whence comest thou? He answered him: we come from Bethlehem Iuda towards the syde of mount Ephraim: from thence am I, and I wnt to Bethlehem Iuda, and go now to the house of the Lord. And there is no mā that receaueth me to house. We haue strawe and prauender for oure asses, and bread & wyne for me and thy handmayde, and for the ladd that is with thy seruauit, and we lacke nothyng.

The olde man sayd: peace be with the, all that thou lackest shalt thou fynde with me: onelye abyde not in the streete all nyght, and so he brought him into his house, and gaue fodder vnto his asses. And they washed their fete, and dyd eate and drinke. And as they were makynge their berttes mery, beholde, the men of the cytie which were wicked, set the house rounde aboute, and thrust at the doore, and spake to the man of the house, the olde man, sayinge: bringe forth the man that came into thyne house, that we maye knowe hym.

And the man of the house, the olde man went out, and sayde vnto the, Oh, naye my brethren, do not so wickedlye, sayng that this man is come into myne house: do not so vnmere a thing. Beholde, here is my daughter a mayden, and this mannes concubine, them I will bringe out now vnto you, and humble them, and do with them what semeth you good: but vnto this man, do not so abhominable a thinge. But the men wolde not hearken to him. And the man toke his concubine, and brought her out vnto the, which linewe her, and abused her, all the nyght, euen vnto the mornyng. And when the daye beganne to sprynge, they let her go.

And then came the woman in the dawning of the daye, & fell downe at the doore of the mannes house, where her Lord was, till it was daye. And her Lord arose vp in the mornyng, and opened the doores of y house, and went out to go his waye. And beholde, the woman, euen his concubine laye a longe before the doore of the house, & her handes stretched out vpon the threshold. And he sayde: (thynkinge her to haue bene asleepe) sayde vnto her: vp and let vs be goynge. But she answered not. Then the man (perceauyng that she was dead) toke her vp vpon an Ass, and stode vp, and gat him vnto his awne home. And when he was come vnto his house, he toke a knyfe, & caught his concubine, and deuided her with the bones into twelue peces, and sent her into all quarters of Israel. And all that sawe it, sayde: there was no soche dede done or sence the chyldren of Israel ca out of Egypt vnto this daye, & consyde the matter, take aduise ment, and saye poure myndes.

The xx. Chapter

The battell of the Israelites agaynst the trybe of Ben Jamin for the Leuites wyfe which was kyllid.

Ihen all the chyldren of Israel went out: and the congregacyon was gathered together as it had bene but one man, euen from Dan to Bersaba and vnto the lande of Gilead, vnto the Lordes in Mizpa, and there stode folke out of al quarters and of all the trybes of Israel, in the congregacyon of the people of God, foure hundred thousande fote men that drewe swerdes. And whan the chyldren of Ben Jamin hearde that the chyldren of Israel were gone vnto Mizpa, and had sayde. O ye chyldren of Israel, tell vs how this wickednesse happened. And the Leuite, the womans husbande that was slayne, answered and sayde, I came into Gibeā that is in Ben Jamin with my concubyne to lodge lodged all nyght. And the men of Gibeon rose agaynst me, and set the house round aboute vpon me by nyght, and thought to haue slayne me: and my concubynne haue they so forced, that she is deed. And I toke my concubynne, and cutt her in peces, and sent her thorow out all the landes of the enheritaunce of Israel. For they haue committed abhominacyon and folly in Israel. Beholde, ye are all chyldren of Israel. Donde thys matter, and geue youre aduys in the case.

And all the people arose, as it had ben one man, saying, there shall not a man of vs go to his tene, nether turne into his house. But this shalbe it that we wyl do to Gibeon: we will go vpon by lotte agaynst it. And we will take ten men of the hundred thowse out all the trybes of Israel, and an hundred of the thowse, and a thowse out of ten thowse, to sett vitale for the people to make that they maye go agaynst Gibeon. Ben Jamin, because of all the abhominacyon, that they haue wrought in Israel. And so all the men of Israel gathered to geather agaynst the cytie, kytte to geather, as it had ben but one man. And the trybes of Israel sent men thorow all the trybe of Ben Jamin sayinge

* Josu. xxi. b

* what wyckednesse is this that is happened amonge you? Now therfore deliuer vs the men, those chyldren of Belial which are in Gibeon, that we maye sleie them, and put awaye euell from Israel.

Neuerthelater the chyldren of Ben Jamin wolde not heeke vnto the voyce of their brethren the chyldren of Israel: but gathered them selues to geather out of the cyties vnto Gibeon, to come out and fight agaynst the chyldren of Israel. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin were nombred at that tyme, out of the cyties. xxvi. thousand men that drew swerdes, besyde the inhabitants of Gibeon, which were nombred seven hundred chosen men.

And amonge all these folke were seven hundred left handed men, which euery one coulde flyng stones at an heare breadeth, and not myste. And the chyldren of Israel besyde Ben Jamin, were nombred foure hundred thowse men that drew swerdes, ad were all men of warre.

brought them to the erth.

And the folke of the chyldren of Israel plucked vp their hertes, and wet to agayne, ad made batell in the same place where they dyd the fyrst daye. And the chyldren of Israel went vp, and wept before the Lord vnto euen, and asked of the Lord, saying, Shall we go agayne to battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin oure brethren? And the Lord sayde: go vp agaynst the. And the chyldren of Israel came out agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin the seconde daye. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin went agaynst them out of Gibeon, the seconde daye, and destroyed to the erth of the chyldren of Israel once agayne. xviij. thowse men that drew swerdes euery man of them.

Then the chyldren of Israel and all the people went vp and cam vnto Bethel, and wepte and sat there before the Lord, and fasted the same daye vnto eue, & offered burnt-offerynges and peaceofferynges before the Lord. And the chyldren of Israel asked the Lord: for there was the arke of the apoyntment of God, in those dayes. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron waytyng vpon it at that tyme, sayde: Shall I get me vp to go out any moare to battell agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin my brethren, or shall I cease? The Lord sayde: go, for to morowe I will deliuer the into youre handes. And Israel sett layres a wayte rounde about Gibeon. And the chyldren of Israel wet vp agaynst the chyldren of Ben Jamin the thyrde tyme, and put them selues in araye agaynst Gibeon, as twyse before. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin came out agaynst the people, and were drawen awaye from the cytie: And they beganne to smyte of the people deed (as twyse before, by two hye wayes of which one gothe vp to Bethel ad the other to Gibeon thowse the felde) vpon a thyrtye men of Israel. And the chyldren of Ben Jamin sayde: They are fallen before vs, as at the fyrst. But the chyldren of Israel sayde: let vs flye and plucke them awaye from the cytie, vnto the hye wayes.

And all the men of Israel rose vp out of their place, and put them selues in araye at Baal Thamar. And lyke wyse the layres in wayte of Israel came forth out of their places, euen out of the medowes that were aboute Gibeon, & came agaynst Gibeon: ten thowse chosen men out of all Israel, and there was a soze battell. But the other wyl not that so great euill was so nye them. And the Lord plagued Ben Jamin before Israel, & the chyldren of Israel destroyed of the Beniamites the same daye. xxv. thowse and a hundred men, that drew swerdes euery one of them. And whan the chyldren of Ben Jamin sawe that they were put to the worst, the men of Israel

Israel gaue rowme to the Beniamites, because they trusted vnto the layres in wayte which they had layde besyde Gibeon. And the layres in wayte halted, and ranne vpon Gibeon, and went and smote all the cytie with the edge of the swerde. And an apoyntment had the men of Israel from the layres in wayte that they shulde make a greatesmoke rise vp out of the cytie. And whan the men of Israel fledd in the battell Ben Jamin began to smyte deed of the chyldren of Israel, aboute a thyrtye parsonnes, and sayde: the other are put to the worst before vs, as in the fyrst battell. But whan there began to arise out of the cytie a pyler of smoke, the Beniamites looked backe: and beholde, the wastynge of the hole cytie began to ascende vnto heauen.

When the men of Israel also turned agayne, the men of Ben Jamin were abashed: for they saw that euell approached them. And therfore they turned their backs before the men of Israel vnto the waye that leade to the wilderness, but the men of warre ouertoke the. And besyde that, they which came out of the cytie, destroyed them in the myddle of them. And thus they compassed the Beniamites aboute, and chased them to Menuha, and ouerranne them to Gibeon on the east syde: and there were slayne of Ben Jamin. xviij. thowse, which were all men of warre. And they turned and fledd to the wilderness warde, and vnto the rocke of Rimmon. And the other slue by the waye of the rest of them, fyue thowse men, and stycked vnto them, vntill they cam to Giddom and slue two thowse men of them. So that all that were slayne that same daye of Ben Jamin were. xxv. thowse men that drew swerdes, which were all men of warre: onely. vi. hundred men turned and fledd to the wilderness, vnto the Rocke of Rimmon, and abode there. iij. monethes. And the men of Israel turned backe agayne vnto the chyldren of Ben Jamin, & smote them with the edge of the swerde in the cyties, bothe man and beast and all that came to hande, and sett on fyre all the cyties that they coulde come by.

The. xxi. Chapter.

The inhabitants of Gilead are utterly destroyed.

And euery man of Israel sware in Mizpa, sayinge: there shall none of vs geue his daughter vnto any of Ben Jamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethel & abode there tyll euen before God, & lyfte vp their voyces and wept sore, and sayde. O Lord God of Israel, why is thys chaunced in Israel, that there shulde be thys daye one trybelackynge in Israel? And on the morow the people rose vp by tyme, and made there an altare, and offered burnt-offerynges and peaceofferynges.

And the chyldren of Israel asked, who are they amonge all the tribes of Israel, that came not vp with the congregacyon vnto the Lord? for they had made a greatesmoke rise vp to the Lord to Mizpa, sayinge: he shall suerlye dye. And the chyldren of Israel had pytie on Ben Jamin they brethren, and sayde: there is one trybe cut of from Israel thys daye: what shall we do vnto the remnaunt of them, that they maye haue wyues? we haue sworn by the Lord, that we will not geue the of oure daughters to wyues. And they sayde: Is there any of the trybes of Israel, that came not vp to Mizpa to the Lord? And beholde, there came none of the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead vnto the host and congregacyon. For the people were bewed: and beholde, there were none of the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead there. And they sent thither a multitude, euen. xij. thowse men of the strongest of them, and commaunded them, sayinge: go and smyte the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead with the edge of the swerde, both women and chyldren. * And this is it that ye shall do: utterly destroye all the males and all the women that haue lyeuen by men. And they founde amonge the inhabitants of Jabes Gilead foure hundred damoselles, virgines, that had knowen no man, by lyeing with any male. And they brought them vnto the host to Silo, which is in the lande of Canaan.

* Josu. xxi. c.

And the hole congregacio sent and spake with the chyldren of Ben Jamin that were in the Rocke of Rimmon, and called peccablye vnto them: and Ben Jamin came agayne at that tyme, and they gaue them wyues, which they had laued alyue of the women of Jabes Gilead. But they suffysed them not. And the people had compassyon on Ben Jamin, because that God had made a gappe in the trybes of Israel. And then the elders of the congregacyon, sayde: what shall we do to the remnaunt of them, to get them wyues, seinge all the wyues of Ben Jamin are destroyed? And they sayde: there must be an inheritaunce for them that be escaped of Ben Jamin, that a trybe be not destroyed out of Israel: howbeit, we maye not geue them wyues of oure daughters. For the chyldren of Israel had sworn, sayinge: cursed be he, that geueth a wyffe to Ben Jamin.

Then they sayde: beholde, there is a feast of the Lord yearly in Sylo, which is on the northsyde of Bethel, and on the east syde of the waye the waye that goeth from Bethel to Sichem and south from Libanon. Therefore they commaunded the chyldre of Ben Jamin, saying: go and lye in waye in the vnyrardes. And when ye se that the daughters of Silo come out to daunce in a rowe, then come ye out of the vnyrardes, and catch you euery man a wyfe of the daughters of Ben Jamin. And when they fathers or brethren come vnto vs to complayne, we wyll saye vnto them: haue pytie on vs for theyr sakes, because we reserued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre. Neither haue ye geuen vnto the, that ye shulde synne at this tyme.

And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyen so: and toke them wyues accordynge to the nombre of them that daunced, whom they caught. And they went, and returned vnto theyr inheritaunce, and repayed the cyties, and dwelt in them.

And the chyldre of Israhell departed thence at that tyme, and wet euery man to hys trybe, and to hys kynred, and went out from thence euery man to hys inheritaunce. * In those dayes there, was no kynge in Israhell: but euery man dyd as which seemed ryght in his awne eyes.

The ende of the booke of Judges, called in the hebreue Sophim.

The booke of Ruth.

The fyrst Chapter.

Elimelech goeth with hys wyfe and chyldren into the lande of Moab.

In fortunē, that in the dayes of a certayne iudge: whē the Judges iudged, there fell a darth in the lande, and a certen mā of Bethlehem Juda went for to sojourne in the countrey of Moab: he and hys wyfe, and hys two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelech, and the name of hys wyfe, Naomi: and the names of hys two sonnes were, Mahlon and Chilion, and they were Ephraimites, out of Bethlehem Juda. And whē they came into the land of Moab, they continued there. And Elimelech Naomis husband dyed, and she remayned with her two sonnes, which toke them wyues of the nations of the Moabites: the ones name was Orpha, and the others Ruth. And they dwelled there about a ten yere. And Mahlon and Chilion dyed also euen both of them, and the woman was left desolate of her two sonnes and of her husbāde. Then toke she vp with her daughters in lawe, and returned from the countrey of Moab: for she had heard saye in the countrey of Moab, how that the Lorde had visyted hys people, and geuen them byed. Wherefore she departed out of the place where she was, and her two daughters with her. And they went on theyr waye to returne vnto the lande of Juda. And Naomi sayde vnto her two daughters in lawe: go and returne eche of you vnto your mothers house: and the Lorde deale as kyndlye with you, as ye haue dealt with the deed, and with me. And the Lorde geue you, that you maye fynde rest, ether of you in the house of her husbāde. And when she kyssed them, they lyst by theyr voyce, and wepte, and sayde vnto her: we wyll go with the vnto thy folke. And Naomi sayde: turne agayne my daughters: for what cause wyll you go with me? Are ther any mo chyldren in my wombe, to be your husbādes? Turne agayne my daughters, and go: for I am to olde to haue an husbāde. And yf I sayde, I haue hope, yf I toke a man also this nyght: yet and though I had all readye borne sonnes, wolde ye tarye after them, tyll they were of age: or wolde ye for the so long refrayne from takynge of husbādes? Not so my daughters: for it greueth me moch for youre sakes, that the hande of the Lorde is gone out agaynst me.

And they lyst by their voyces, and wepte agayne, and Orpha kyssed her mother in lawe, but Ruth abode still by her. And Naomi sayde: se, thy syster in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people and vnto her goddes: returne thou after her. And Ruth answered: entreate me not to leaue the, and to returne fro after the: for whether thou goest, I will go also, & where thou dwellest, there I will dwell: thy people shal be my people, and thy God my God. Where thou dyest, there will I dye, and there will I be buried. The Lorde do so ad so to me, yf ought but death onelye departe the and me asondre.

When she sawe she was stedfastly mynded to go with her, she left speakeynge vnto her. And so they went both, vntill they came to Bethlehem. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was nopsed of the thow all the cytie, and the women sayd: is not this Naomi? And she answered the: call me not Naomi, (that is to saye, be my selfe) but call me Mara, (that is to saye, bitter.) for yf Almyghty hath made me verry bytter. I went out full: and yf Lorde hath brought me home agayne emptye. Why then call ye me Naomi: seynge the Lorde hath humbled me, and the almyghty hath brought me vnto aduersyte? And so Naomi

Naomi with Ruth the Moabite her daughter in lawe returned out of the countrey of Moab, and came to Bethlehem, in the begynninge of barley harveste.

The ij. Chapter.

Ruth gathereth corne in the felde of Booz.

Now Naomis husband had a kinsman of strenght, and myght, (which was of the kynred of Elimelech) named Booz. And Ruth the Moabite sayd vnto Naomi: let me go to the felde, and geather eares of corne: (such as the reapers leaue) after any man in whose syght, I fynde grace. And she sayde vnto her: go my daughter. And she went, and came to the felde, and geathered after the reapers, and her chaunce was, that the same felde pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelech. And behold, Booz came from Bethlehem, and sayd vnto the reapers: the Lorde be with you. And they answered him: the Lorde blesse the. The sayd Booz vnto his younge man that stode by the reapers. Whose damosell is this? And the younge man that stode by the reapers, answered, and sayde: it is the Moabite damosell, that came with Naomi out of the countrey of Moab, and she sayde vnto vs: Oh, let me lease & geather after the reapers, the eares that remaine: and so she came, and hath continued euen from the moornyng vnto now, save that she taried a litle in y house.

Then sayde Booz vnto Ruth: hearest thou my daughter: go to no nother felde to geather, neher go from hence: but abyde here by my maydens. Let thine eyes be on the felde that they reape, and go thou after the maydens. Haue I not charged the younge men, that they shal do y no hurt? Whereouer when thou art a thyrt, go vnto the vessels, and drinck of that which the laddes haue drawē.

Then she fell on her face and bowed her selfe to y grounde, and sayd vnto him: how is it that I haue founde grace in thine eyes, ad that thou shuldest knowe me, seing I am an aliaunt?

And Booz answered and sayde vnto her: all is tolde ad shewed me, that thou hast done vnto thy mother in lawe, sence y death of thyne husbāde, how thou hast left thy father and thy mother, and y lande where thou wast borne, ad art come vnto a nacio which thou knewest not in tyme passed. The Lorde quyte thy worcke, and a full rewarde be geuen the of the Lorde God of Israhell, vnder whose wynges thou art come to abyde. The she sayde: let me fynde fauoure in thy syghte my Lorde, thou that hast comforted me, and spoken hartely vnto thy mayde, which yet ain not like vnto one of thy maydens. Booz sayde vnto her agayne: in tyme of refection come thou hither, and eate of the byed, and dypp thy soppe in the vinegre. And she sate downe by y reapers, & he reached her a parched corne: of the which she dyd eate, ad was sufficed, and left parte. And when she was rylen vp to geather, Booz commaunded hys younge mē, saying: let her geather eue amonge the heapes, and forbydde her not. And leaue her some of the sheues for the nonce, and let it lye, y she maye geather it vp, (without shame) and rebuke her not. And so she geathered in the felde, vntill euen, and thershed that she had geathered, and it was in measure vpon an Ephah (that is the bushell) of barleye. And she toke it vp, and went into the cytie: and when her mother in lawe had sene what she had geathered, she plucked out also, & gaue to her that she had reserued, whē she had eaten ynough. And her mother in lawe sayd vnto her: where hast thou geathered to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he, that knewe y. And she shewed her mother in lawe how she had wrought with him, and sayde: the mannes name with whom I wrought to daye is Booz. And Naomi sayd vnto her daughter in lawe: blessed be he of the Lorde, for he craffeth not to do good to the lyuing and to the deed. And Naomi sayde agayne vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, ad of oure next kynne. And Ruth the Moabite sayde: he sayde vnto me also. Thou shalt be w my younge men, vntill they haue ended all my harvest. And Naomi answered vnto Ruth her daughter in lawe: it is best my daughter that thou go out with hys maydens, that they fall not vpon the in any other felde. And so she kept her by the maydens of Booz, to geather, vnto the ende of barley harvest and of whete heruest also: and dwelt with her mother in lawe.

The iij. Chapter.

Ruth cleaeth at Boozs feet, and is knowne bys husbāde.

When Naomi her mother in lawe sayde vnto her: my daughter, what I not seke rest for the; that thou mayst prosper? And is not Booz oure kynsman, with whose maydens thou wast? Beholde, he wenoweth barleye to nyght in the thershyngge floure: washe thy selfe therfore, and anoynt the, and put thy rayment vpon the, and gett the downe to the barne. But let not a man knowe of the, vntill he haue leaft eatynge and drynckynge. And when he goeth to slepe, marcke the place where he layeth hym downe, and then go and lyte vp the clothes, that are on his fete, and laye the downe there, and so shall he tell the what thou shalt do. And she answered her: all that thou byddyst me, I will do. And so she went downe vnto the barne, and dyd accordynge to all that her mother in lawe bade her. And when Booz had eaten & droncken, and made

made him merce, and was gone in, to lye do-wne besyde the heape of corne, she came softlye, and lifte vp the clothes of his fete, and layde her downe. And at mydnight the man was asrayde and groped. And beholde: a woman laye at his fete. And he sayde: what art thou? she answered: I am Ruth thine had mayde, spede thy wynges ouer thine hand mayde, for thou art the next of the kynne.
He sayd: blessed be y in the Lorde my daughter, for thou hast shewed more goodnesse in the later ende, then at the begynnyng, in as moche as thou folowedest not younge men, whether they were poore or riche. And now my daughter feare not, I will do to the all y thou requirest, for all the cytie of my people doth knowe, that thou art a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy next kynne: howebeit, there is one nyer then I.
Tary this night. And when moorning is come, yf he will marie the, it is good, so let him do. But and yf he will not haue the, as sure as the Lorde lyueth I will haue the: lye it yll vntill y morning. And so she laye at his fete vntill the moorning. And she arose vp before one coulede knowe another. And he sayde: let no man knowe, that there came any woman into the barne. And he sayde agayne: bringe thy matell that thou hast vpon the, and holde it vp. And whan she helde it vp, he mette in sixe measures of Barlepe, ad layde it on her. And he gatt her into the cytie: and whā she came into her mother in lawe, she sayde:
how is it with y my daughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And sayde also: these sixe measures of barlepe ga-ue he me, and sayd: thou shalt not come emp-tie vnto thy mother in lawe. Then sayd she, my daughter, syt still, vntill y knowe how the matter will chaunce. For the man will not be in reast, vntill he haue spynshed the thinge this same day.

The. iij. Chapter.

Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whom he begett eth Obed.

When went Booz vnto the gate ad sate him downe there: ad beholde, the kynsmā of which Booz spake, cam by. Vnto whom, he sayde: come and sytte downe here, and called him by his name. And he turned in, and sate downe. And he toke ten me of the elders of the citie, and sayd: syt ye downe here. And they sat downe. And he sayde vnto the kyns-man: Naomi that is come agayne out of the cōstrepe of Moab * will sell a parcell of lan-de, which was oure brother Elimelecs. And I thought to do the to wete, and bid the bye it before the inhabitoures and elders of my people. Yf thou be disposed to redeme it, do:
but and yf thou wilt not pouchase it, then tell me, y I maye knowe. For there is none to calenge it, saue thou, and I nexte the. And the other answered: I will pouchase it.

Then sayde Booz, what daye thou blest the felde of the hand of Naomi, thou must take also Ruth the Moabite the * wyfe of the deyd, to stete vp the name of the deyd vpon his enheritaunce. The kynsmā answered: I ca-not pouchase it, for marriage of myne a wne enheritaunce: take thou my right to the, for I cannot pouchase it. Now, this was the maner of olde tyme in Israell concerninge purches and chaunging, for to stablish all thin-ge: that a man must plucke of his shoue, ad geue it his neyghboure, and this was a sure witness in Israell.

Therefore the kynsmā saide to Booz: Wye it thou: and so dyde of his shoue. And Booz sayde vnto the elders and vnto all the people: ye are witnesses this daye, that I haue bought all that was Elimelecs, and all that was Chilion and Mahlon, of the hand of Naomi. And moreover, Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of Mahlon, haue I purchased to be my wyfe, to stete vp the name of the deyd vpon his enheritaunce, and that his name be not put out from amonge his bretheren, and from the gate of his place: ye are witnesses this daye.

And all the people that were in the gate,
and the elders sayde: we are wytnesses:
the Lorde make the woman that is come into thyne house, lyke * Rachel ad Lea, which twayne dyd builde the house of Israell: do thou also valeantly in Ephrata, and be famous in Bethlechem. Thy house be like y house of Pharez * whō Chamar bare vnto Juda, euen of the seide which the Lorde shall geue the of this younge woman.

And so Booz toke Ruth, and she was his wyfe. And whā he wēt in vnto her, the Lorde gaue, that she conceaued, and bare a sonne.
And the women sayde vnto Naomi: blessed be the Lorde, the which hath not left y without a kynsmā, to haue a name in Israell, ad that shall bring thy life agayne, and cherishe thine olde age. For thy daughter in lawe which loueth the, hath borne vnto him: and she is better to the then seven sonnes. And Naomi toke the childe, ad layde it in her lap-pe, and became nourse vnto it. And her ney-bours gaue it a name, saying: there is a childe borne to Naomi, and called it, Obed. The same is the father of Isai, the father of Da-
uid. These are the generacions of * Pharez: Pharez begat Hezron: Hezron begat Ram,
Ram begat Aminadab, Aminadab begat Nahlon, Nahlon begat Salmon, Salmon begat Booz. Booz begat Obed, Obed begat Isai, Isai begat Dauid.

The fyrst Chapter.

Elkana hath .ii. wyues, Hanna and Phenenna.

here was a mā of o-

med * El-kana y son
ne of Jero-
hā. y sonne

of Elthū, the sonne of Thohu, the sonne of zuph, an Ephrathite: whych had two wy-
ues. y one called hāna, & the other Phenenna.
And Phenenna had children, but Hanna had none. * And the sayd mā wēt vp out of his citie euery feassfull daye, to praye & to offer vnto y Lord of hostes in Silo, where were the two sonnes of Eli (Hophni & Phinehas) y lordes prestes. And it fell on a solemne daye, y Elkana offered, ad gaue to Phenenna his wife & to all her sonnes and daughters porcyōs. But vnto Hanna he gaue a porcyōn w a heuye chere, for he loued Hanna, and the Lorde had made her barren.
And her enemye (Phenenna) vered her soze cōtynually, to moue her, because y lord had made her barrē. And so did she yere by yere as ofte as she wēt vp to the house of y lord.
And so chafed her, which wepte, ad did not eate. The sayde Elkana her hūbād to her:
Hanna, why wepest thou? and why eatest y not? and why is thyne herte troubled? am not I better to the, the ten sonnes? So hā-na rose vp after y they had eaten & droncke in Splo. And Eli the pzeaste sate vpon a stole by one of the syde postes of the temple of the Lorde. And she was troubled in her mynde, and prayed vnto the Lorde, & wepte soze, and vowed a vowe, and sayd: O Lord of hostes, yf thou wilt loke on the trouble of thine handmayde, & remēbre me, and not forget thine handmayde, but geue vnto thi ne hāmayde a māchylde: I will geue him vnto y Lord all y dayes of his lyfe, * & there shall no easer come vpon his heed. And as the cōtinued praying before y lord, it fortuned, y Eli marked her mouth. For Hanna spake i her herte, & her lyppes did but moue onely, but her voyce was not heard: & therfore Eli thought she had bene drōcken, and Eli sayd vnto her: how lōg wilt y be drōcken? put adwaye from the, the wyne y thou hast. Hanna answered and sayde: not so my Lord, I am a woman of a sorrowfull herte:

I haue droncke nether wyne noz stronge drynck, but haue * powred out my soule before y Lord. Count not thyne handmayde to be lyke a daughter of Belial, for out of the aboundance of my heuyenes & greafe:
haue I spoken hitherto.

Eli answered her agayne: & sayde go in peace: y God of Israell graunt the thy peti-cyōn, y thou hast asked of hym. She sayde:
let thyne hāmayde fynde grace i thy sight
And so y woman went her waye, & dyd eat, & loked no more so sadde. And they rose vp earlye, & worshipped before y lord, & the returned, & came to theyr house to Ramath.
And whā Elkana knew hāna his wyfe, y Lord remēbred her: for in pzeccle of tyme it came to passe, y she conceaued, & bare a sonne, & called his name Samuel (sayeng: because I haue asked him of y Lord. And El-kana & all his house went vp to offer vnto the Lorde, the offeringe due for y feast, & also his vowe: Acuertheles, hāna wēt not vp, but sayde vnto her hūbād: I will ta-rye vntill y ladde be wened, & then I will bring him y he maye appeare before y Lord, & there abide for euer. Elkana her hūbād answered her: do what semeth y best: tarpe at home, vntill y halt wened hi, & I besech y Lord, to make good his sayeg. And so the womā abode, & gaue her sonne sucke, vntill she wened him. And whē she had wened him she toke hym with her, with thre bullockes & an Ephā of floure, & a bottel of wyne, and brought him vnto y house of y Lord in Silo, & the childe was yet but tēder of age. And they slue a bullocke, & brought in y ladd to Eli, and she sayd: Oh my Lord: as truly as thy soule lyueth my Lord, I am the womā y stode before the here, praying vnto y Lorde. For this ladde I prayed, and the Lorde hath geue me my desire, whych I asked of him: and therefore I haue geuen hym vnto the Lorde, as long as he is myte for the lorde. And they worshipped the Lorde there.

The. ii. Chapter.

The song of Hanna. The offence of the sonnes of Eli.

Ad Hanna prayed and sayde: myne herte reioyseth in ϕ Lord, and myne horne is exalted in the Lorde. My mouth is wyde open ouer myne enemyes, for I reioyse in thy saluacyō. There is no- ne so holpe as the Lord, for without the, is nothing. Neither is there any of strength as is oure God. Take not to moche proude- lyte let olde thynges depart out of your mou- thes, for the Lorde is a God of knowledg, and his purposes come to passe. The bo- we with the myghte men are broken: and they that were weake, haue girded the sel- ues wth strength. They that were full, haue hired out them selues for breed, & they that were hongre, cease so to be, tyll the baren hath borne seuen: & she ϕ had many chyldre, is wared feble. * The Lord kylleth, and ma- keth aloue: byngeth downe to the graue and fetcheth vp agayne. * The Lorde ma- keth poore, & maketh ryche: byngeth lowe, and henneth vp on hye. * He reyleth vp the poore out of the dust, and lyfteth vp ϕ beg- ger from the dong hyll: to sett them amōge princes, and to enherett the with the seate of gloyre. For the pillers of the erth are the lordes, and he hath sett the rounde worlde vpon the. He wyll kepe the fete of hys sayn- tes, and the wycked shall kepe sylence in darcknesse, & * in his awne myght shall no mā be strōge. The lordes aduersaries shall be destroyed of hym: and out of heauē shall he thūder vpon euery one of the. The Lorde shall iudge the endes of the worlde, & shall gyue myght vnto his kyng, and exalte the horne of his anoynted. And Elkana wēt to Ramath to his house, & the ladd byd my- nistre vnto the Lorde before Eli the preaste.

But the sonnes of Eli were chyldren of Belial, and knewe not the Lord. And the preastes made a lawe for ϕ people, ϕ when- soeuer any man offered any offeringe, the preastes ladd came, while the fleshe was in seking, & a fleshope wth thre tethe in his hand, and thrust it into the pāne: kettel, cal- dren, or potte. And all that the fleshe hoke brought vp, that the preaste toke awaye. And so they did vnto all ϕ Israelites, that came thither to Silo. See & therto, before they burnt ϕ fatte, the preastes ladd came and sayd to the man that offered: geue flesch that I maye dresse it for the preaste, for he wyll not haue soddē fleshe of the, but rawe.

And yf any man sayde vnto hym: let them burne the fatt according to the dawe, & then take as moche as thine herte desyreth. The ladd wold answer him, yee, ϕ shalt geue it me now: and yf thou wylt not, I wyll take it with violence. And the synne of ϕ young- mer: was very great before the Lorde. For men abhorred the offeringe of the Lorde.

But the child Samuel ministered before the Lorde, girded about wth a lyncn Ephod. Moreover, hys mother made him a lyle coate, & brought it to him from pere to pere, whē she came vp with her hus- bande to offer the offeringe in the solempne feastes: and Eli blessed Elkana & his wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde geue the seede of thys womā, for the petyō that she asked of the Lorde. And they went vnto their awne ho- me. And the Lorde visited Hāna, so that she conceaued & bare thre sonnes & two daugh- ters. And the chyld Samuel grewe before the Lorde.

Eli was very olde, & herde all that his sonnes byd vnto all Israel, and how they laye with the women ϕ waped at the doze of the Tabernacle of wytnesse, & he sayde vnto them: why do ye soche thynges? For of all these people I heare euell reportes of you. Oh, naye my sonnes: for it is no good reporte that I heare, how that ye make the lordes people to trespasse. If one mā synne agaynst another, & daplemen maye be iud- ges: but yf a man synne agaynst the Lorde who will be his dayleman? For wth stand- yng, they hekened not vnto the voyce of their father, because the Lorde wolde slaye them. The chyld Samuel p^{ro}ph^{et}ed* and grew, and was in fauoure both wth ϕ Lorde, and also wth men.

And there cam a man of God vnto Eli, & sayd vnto him: thus sayeth the Lorde: byd not I apere vnto the house of thy father, whē they were in Egypte subiect vnto Pha- raos house. And I chose thy father out of all ϕ trybes of Israel to be my preaste, for to offer vpon myne autare, & to burne in- cense, & and to weare an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto ϕ house of thy father all the burnt offeringes of the chyldren of Is- raell. Wherfore treade ye downe my sacri- fice and myne offeringe, which I commaun- ded to be made in the Tabernacle, & hono- rest thy chyldren aboue me, to make poure selues fatt of the first frutes of all the offe- rynges of Israel my people. Wherfore the Lorde God of Israel sayeth: I sayde, that thy house and the house of thy father shuld walke before me for euer. But now the Lorde sayeth: that he farre from me: for them that worshippe me, I will worshippe, & they ϕ despyle me, shall come to shame. Behol- de, the dayes come, ϕ I will cut of thyne ar- me, & the arme of thy fathers house, ϕ there shal not be an elder i thine house. And thou shalt se thyne enemye in the tabernacle of ϕ Lorde, & in all that welthe whiche God shal giue Israel, & there shall not be an elder in thyne house for euer. Neuerthelesse, I wyll not destroye all the males that come of the fro myne autare. But to make thyne eyes daf, & to make thyne herte melte. And all they they ϕ be multiplyed in thyne house, * shall dye, yf they be men.

And this shal be a signe vnto the, that shall come vpon thy two sonnes: Hophny & Phinehes: euen in one dawe they shall dye both. And I wyll sterre me v ϕ a faythfull preste, ϕ shall do accordyng to my herte and mynde: And I will buyde him a sure house. And he shall walke before myne anoynted for euer. And they ϕ are left in thyne house, shall come, and crouch to him for a lyle pece of spl- ner & a cake of bread, & shall saye: put me (I praye the) in one offyce or other amonge the prestes, that I maye eate a morsell of bread.

The. iij. Chapter.

The Lorde collecteth Samuel thre tymes.

Ad the chyld Samuel mynistrd vnto the Lorde before Eli: & ϕ worde of the Lorde was precious in those dayes, nether was there any open dyspon. And it chaunced at ϕ tyme, that Eli laye in his place, and hys eyes be- ganne to waxe dymme that he coulde not se. And yf the lape of God went out, Samuel layde hym downe to slepe in the tēple of the Lorde, where the arke of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel, & he sayde, here am I, and he ran vnto Eli, & sayd: here am I, for ϕ calledst me. And he sayd: I called the not: go agayne, & slepe. And he went, and layde him downe to slepe. And the Lorde called once a- gayne: Samuel, & Samuel arose & went to Eli, & sayd, I am here, for thou dydest call me. And he answered: I called ϕ not, my son- ne. So agayne, and take thy rest: Samuel knewe not yet the Lorde, nether was ϕ worde of ϕ Lorde yet opened vnto hym. And the Lorde went to, & called Samuel ϕ thyr- d tyme. And he arose, & went to Eli, & sayde: I am here, for ϕ hast called me. And Eli percea- ned ϕ the Lorde had called the chyld. Ther- fore, Eli sayde vnto Samuel: go, & lye dow- ne: & yf he call the agayne, then saye, speake on Lorde, for thy seruaut heareth. So Sa- muel went, & layde hym downe in hys place. And the Lorde came, & stode, & called as befo- re, Samuel Samuel. Samuel answered: speake on: for thy seruaut heareth. And the Lorde sayde to Samuel: beholde, I will do a thinge in Israel, ϕ both the carres of as many as heareth it, shall tynge. In ϕ dawe I wyll rayse v ϕ agaynst Eli, all thynges whiche I haue spoken concernyng his house: from the begynnyng to the endyng. I haue tolde him, * that I wyll iudge hys house for euer. For ϕ wicke dres whiche he knoweth, & for whē the people cursd hys sonnes for ϕ same wic- kednes, he hath not corrected the. And ther- fore, I haue swozne vnto the house of Eli, ϕ the wycke dresse of Elies house, shall not be purged wth sacrifice nor offering for euer. Sa- muel laye tyll the mornynge, and opened the dores of the house of the Lorde.

And Samuel feared to shewe Eli the vi- sion. Then Eli called Samuel, & sayde: Sa- muel my sonne. And he answered: here I am. He sayde: what is that the Lorde hath sayde vnto the? I praye the, se thou hyde it not fro me. * God do so, & so to the, yf thou hyde any thyng from me, of all that he sayde vnto the. And Samuel tolde hym euery whytte, and hydd nothyng from hym. And he sayd: it is the Lorde, let him do what semeth hym best.

And Samuel grewe, & the Lorde was wth him, & left none of hys wordes vnp^{er}- formed. And all Israel from Dan to Bersa- be wylt that faythfull Samuel was made the Lordes prophete. And the Lorde appered agayne in Silo: for the Lorde opened hym selfe to Samuel in Silo, thozow the worde of the Lorde.

The. iij. Chapter.

The arke of the Lorde is taken. Eli & hys chyldren dye.

Ad Samuel spake vnto all Israel. And it fortuneth that in those dayes the Philis- tynges came together to fight. And Israel went out against the Philistynes to battay- le, and pyched besyde the * helpe stone. And the Philistynes pyched in A phel. And put them selues in araye agaynst Israel. And whē they ioyned the battell, Israel was put to the worle before the Philistines. And the Philistynes slue in araye alonge by the fel- des, about a foure thousande men.

And when the people were come into their tentes, the elders of Israel sayde: wherfore hath the Lorde cast vs downe this dawe be- fore the Philistines: let vs fetch the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde oute of Silo vnto vs, ϕ whē it cometh amōge vs, it maye saue vs, oute of the hāde of oure enemy. And so the people sent to Silo, & fet fro thens the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde of 100- stes, which dwelleth betwene the cherubins. And there were the two sonnes of Eli, Ho- phny, & Phinehes with the arke of the appo- yntment of God. And it fortuneth, ϕ whē the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came into the hoost, all Israel shewed a myghtie shoute, so that the erthe rangge agayne.

And whā the Philistines herde the noyse of the shoute, they sayd: what meaneth ϕ soude of this myghty shoute in ϕ hoost of ϕ Ebues? And they vnderstode, howe that the arke of the Lorde was come into the hoost: And the Philistines were afrayed, and sayde: God is come into the hoost. And they sayd agayne: Wo vnto vs, for it was nener so before this: Wo vnto vs, who shall deliuer vs out of ϕ hande of these myghty Goddes: these are the Goddes that smote the Egyptians with so many plagues in the wyldernes. Be stronge and quite youre selues lyke men, Oye Phi- listynes, that ye be no seruantes vnto the un-

untill the place that is vnder Bethel:

D And then Samuel *toke a stone, and pitched it betwene Mizpa and the mark of the rock, and called the name thereof, *stone of helpe, saying: hitherto hath the Lord helped vs. And so the Philistines were brought vnder, & they came nomore into the coastes of Israel: & the hand of the Lord was agaynst the Philistines all the dayes of Samuel. Thereto, the cities which the Philistines had taken fro Israel, were restored agayne to Israel, euen fro Azoron to Gath, in the coastes of the same, & Israel plucked them out of the handes of the Philistines. And there was peace betwene Israel & the Amozites. Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and wet about yere by yere to Bethel, Gilgal, and Mizpa, & iudged Israel in all those places, & came agayne to Rama: for there was his house, & ther he iudged Israel also, & there he buyt an aulter vnto the Lorde.

The viij. Chapter.

The people requyre a kynge.

When Samuel was olde, he made his sonnes iudges ouer Israel. The name of his eldest sone was Joel, and the name of the secōd Abia: & they were iudges in Beerseba. And his sonnes walked not in his wayes: but turned a syde after lucre, and *toke rewarde, and peruerced the ryght. Then all the elders of Israel gathered the together, and came to Samuel vnto Rama, & sayd vnto him: behold, thou art olde, and thy sonnes walke not in thy wayes. Now therefore *make vs a kynge to iudge vs, as all other nations haue. But the thing displeased Samuel, when they sayde: geue vs a king to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: heare the voyce of the people in all that they saye vnto the. For they haue not cast away, but me: that I shulde not raygne ouer the. And as they haue euer done (Ience I brought them out of Egypt vnto this daye, and haue forsaken me, and serued other goddes) euen so do they vnto the. Nowe therefore herken vnto their voyce: howbeit, yet testifie vnto the and shewe the *the auctorite of the king that shall raygne ouer the. And Samuel told all the wordes of the Lorde vnto the people, that asked a kynge of him, and he sayde: this shalbe the auctorite of the kynge that shal raygne ouer you: *he wyl take your sonnes and put the to his charettes, and make his horsmen of the, to runne before his charret: and will make him of them, captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer fiftyes, and wyl let them to care his grounde, and to gather in his heruest, and to make instrumentes of warre, and apparell for his charettes. And he wyl take your daughters, & make the apoticaries, cooke and bakers. And he shal take the best of your feldest, *and of your vyneyardes, and of your olyue trees, and geue them to his seruantes. And he shal take the tenth of your seed, and of your vyneyardes, and geue it to his chamberlaynes, and to his seruantes. And he shal take the best of your mēseruautes and maydseruautes and yong men, and of your asses, and put the to his worke. And he shal take the tenth of your shepe, and ye shalbe his seruantes. And ye shal crye out at that tyme vpon your kynge, which ye shal haue chosen you, & the Lorde will not heare you at that daye.

After thes, the people wolde not heare the voyce of Samuel, but dyd say: naye, not so. But there shalbe a king ouer vs, that we maye be lyke other nacions, and that oure kynge maye iudge vs, and go out before vs, and fyght our battayles. (for vs.) Therefore, when Samuel hearde all the wordes of the people, he rehearsed them in the eares of the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde to Samuel: herken vnto thei voyce, and make the a king: And Samuel sayde vnto the men of Israel: go euery man vnto his cite.

The ix. Chapter.

Saul the sonne of Cis is chosen kynge.

Ther was a man of Be Jamin named *Cis the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of Zeror, the sone of Bechoath, the sonne of Abiah, the sonne of a man that was a Jeminite, a man of strength and might: and the same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly yong mā and a fayre: so that amonge the chyldren of Israel there was none goodlyer then he. For from the shoulders vwarde, he was hyper then all the other people. And the asses of thys Cis Sauls father were lost: and Cis sayde to Saul his sonne: take one of the laddes with the and go vp & seeke the asses. And he went thowow mount Ephraim, & thowowe the lade of Salis: but they founde them not. Then they went thowowe the lade of Salim, and there they were not. When they wet also thowowe the lade of Jemini, they founde the not. At the last, when they were come to the land of zuph, Saul saide to his lad the was with him: come, let vs retorne, lest my father leaue caring for the asses, & take thought for vs. He sayd vnto him: behold, there is in this cite a mā of God, & he is a worshipfull mā: all the sayth, cometh suerly to passe. Nowe then let vs go thither: peraduenture he shal shewe vs what waye we maye go. Then sayd Saul to his lad: if we will go, what shal we buy the mā? For our bread is all spent out of oure vessels, & there is no nother present to bring the man of God: what haue we? And the lad answered Saul agayne, and sayde: I haue founde about me the fourth parte of a shele, that will I geue the man of God, to tell vs oure waye.

Before tyme in Israel when a man wet to seeke an answer of God, thus wise he spake, come, and let vs go to the sear. For he that is now called a prophet, was in the olde tyme called a sear. Then sayde Saul to his lad: well sayde of the: come, let vs go. And so they went vnto the cylie where the man of God was. And as they were goinge vp into the cylie, they mett wyth damoselles: & came out to drawe water, and sayd vnto them: is there here a sear? And the maydens answered the, yee, & (here is one) beholde, he is before you. Make hast now, for he cam this daye to the cylie for there is an offering of the people this daye in the hill. When ye be come into the cylie, ye shal fynde hym straght waye, for he go vp to the hill to cate: for the people wyl not cate vntill he come, because he doth blesse the offering. And then cate they the bydden to the feast. Nowe therfore get you vp, for this daye shal ye fynde hym. And they went vp into the cylie. And when they were come into the myddes of the cite: beholde, Samuel came out agaynst the, for to go vp to the hill. *But the Lorde had tolde Samuel in his care (a daye before Saul came) sayenge: to morowe thys tyme I wyl sende the a man out of the lande of Ben Jamin, hym shalt thou anoynte to be captayne ouer my people Israel, that he maye saue my people out of the hande of the Philistines: for I haue looked vpon my people, and they crye is come vnto me. When Samuel therfore saw Saul, the Lorde answered hym: se, this is the mā, who I spake to the of. Thys same shal raygne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the myddle of the gate, & sayde: tell me I praye the, where the sears house is. Samuel answered Saul, and sayde: I am the sear, go vp before me vnto the hill, for ye shal cate wyth me to daye. And to morowe I wyl let the go, and wyl tell the all that is in thynne hert. And as for thynne asses they were lost thre dayes ago, care not for them, for they are founde. And moreover, whose shal the bewtiful thinges of Israel be: belonge they not to the, and vnto all thy fathers house? But Saul answered and sayde: am not I the sonne of a Jeminite of the smallest trybe of Israel? and my kynred is the least of all the kynredes of the trybe of Ben Jamin. Wherefore then speakest thou so to me?

And Samuel toke Saul and his lad, and brought them into the parlor, and made the sytt in the cheffest place amonge them they were bydden: which were vpon a thirtie persones. And Samuel sayde vnto the cooke: bypunge forth the porcyon whych I gaue the, and of whych I sayd vnto the: kepe it with the. And the cooke toke by the shoulder, & that whych was vpon it, & set it before Saul. And Samuel sayd: beholde, & which is left: put it before the & cate, for hitherto hath it bene kept for the, of purpose, when I called the people. And so Saul dyd eat with Samuel the daye. And when they were come downe from the hill into the cylie, Samuel comened wyth Saul vpon the toppe of the house: and when they arose crye about the springe of the daye, Samuel called Saul vpon the toppe of the house, sayenge: vp, & I maye sende the awaye. And Saul arose. And they wet out at the doores both, he & Samuel. And when they were come almost out of the towne, Samuel sayd to Saul: byd the lad go before vs (and he wet before) but stande thou still a whyle, that I maye shewe the what God sayeth.

The x. Chapter.

Saul is anoynted kynge, and propheseth.

And the Samuel toke a vessell of oyle, & powred it vpon his heed, & *kysed him, & sayde: hath not the Lorde anoynted the, to be captayne ouer thys inheritaunce? (and thou shalt deliuer thys people out of the handes of thys enemies, which are rounde aboute the. And thys token shalt thou haue, that the Lorde hath anoynted the to be prince.) When thou art departed fro me this daye, thou shalt fynde two me by *Rahels sepulchre in the border of Ben Jamin, euen at zalezah. And they will saye vnto the: the asses which thou wentest to seeke, are founde. And lo, thy father hath left the care of the asses, & soroweth for you, sayenge: what shall I do for my sonne? The shalt thou go forth fro there, & shalt come to the playne of Chaboz. And there shalt mete the thre me goinge vp, & to God to Bethel: one carpeng thre hiddes: & another carpeg thre lones of breed: & another carpeg a botell of wyne. And they wyl salute the, & geue the two lones of breed: which thou shalt receaue of thei hades. After that thou shalt come to the hill of God, where the Philistines kepe their watche. And when thou art come thither to the cylie, thou shalt mete a companye of prophetes minging downe fro the hill, with a psalter, a tymbell, a pyper, & a harpe before the, & they shal prophesy. And the sonne of the Lorde wyl come vpon the also, & thou shalt prophesy, & thou shalt saye: as hath the Lorde sayd vnto me, & as hath the Lorde sayd vnto me.

 man. Therefore whē these signes are chaū-ced the, do what thou hast to do, for God is wyth the. And I shalt go before me to Gilgal. And I also wyll come downe vnto the,

 I come to the, and shew the, what thou shalt do. And as sone as he had turned hys shoulder to go fro Samuel, God gaue hym another maner of herts, & all those tokens came to passe that same dape. And whē they came to the hill: beholde, the companye of proph-etes met hym, and * the spete of God cam vpon hym also, & he prophesied amōg them.

 And all that knew hym before, when they sawe that he prophesied amōg the proph-etes, they sayd eche to other: what is this y happened vnto the soune of Cis? * Is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And one of the same place answered & sayde: who is their father? And therof came the prouerbe: what is Saul also amonge the prophetes? And when he had made an ende of prophesying, he cam to the hill. And Sauls fathers brother sayde vnto hym and to hys lad: whether wēt per he sayde: to seke the asses: & whē we sa that they were no where, we came to Samuel. And Sauls vncle sayde: tell me what Samuel sayde vnto you? Saul answered his vncle: he tolde vs planely, that the asses were founde. But of the kyngdome wherof Samuel spake, tolde he hym not. And Samuel called the people together vnto y Lord de to Mizpa, and sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel:

 I brought Israel out of Egypt, and deliue-red you out of the hande of the Egyptians, & out of the hādes of all kyngdomes that troubled you. And ye haue this dape cast awaye youre God that helped you out of all youre aduersities & tribulacions. And ye haue sayd vnto hym: * make a kyngue ouer vs. Howe therefore stande ye before the Lord by poure trybes & poure thousands. And whā Samuel had brought all the tribes of Israel, the tribe of Beniamin was caught. Whē he had brought the tribe of Beniamin by their kyn-redes, the kynred of Matri was caught: and at the last Saul y soune of Cis was caught.

 And whā they sought hym, he coule not be founde. Therefore they asked the Lord further, yf the man shulde come thither. And the Lord answered: beholde, he hath hydd hym selfe amonge the stuffe. And they ranne & fet him thēce. And when he stode amōg the people, he was hyper then any of the people, fro y shoulders vwarde. And Samuel sayde to all the people: Se ye not him, whō the Lord hath chosen, & howe there is none lyke hym amonge all the people. And all the people showed & sayde: * God lend the kyngue lye.

Then Samuel tolde the people: & the dūtye of the kyngdome, & wrote it in a booke, and layde it vpon the Lord, and sent all the people awaye, euery man to hys house.
 And Saul also went home to Gibea. And there folowed him strong men, whose ber-tes God had touched. But the chyld of Be-lial sayde: howe shall he saue vs? * and they despised him, and brought him no presentes.

 And he helde is tongue.

The xj. Chapter.

The people requeth the kyngdome of Saul.

Nahas the Ammonite came, & besieged Jabes in Gilead. And all the men of Jabes sayde vnto Nabas:
 make a couenaunt wyth vs, and we wyll be thy seruantes: And Nabas the Ammonite answered them: In thys will I make a couenaunt wyth you, yf I maye thrust out all poure eyght eyes, and bypunge that shame vpon all Israel. To whō the elders of Jabes sayd: geue vs seue dapes respite: that we maye sende messengers vnto all the coastes of Israel. And then yf there be no man to helpe vs, we wyll come out to
 the. Then came the messengers to Gibea vnto Saul, and tolde thys tydinge in the eres of the people. And all the people lyfte vp theyr voyces and wept. And beholde, Saul came folowynge the catell out of the felde, & Saul sayde: what ayleth thys people, that they wepe? And they tolde hym the tydynges of the men of Jabes. And the spete of God came vpon Saul, when he heard those tydinges, and he was excedyng angere, and toke a pocke of oxen, and hewed them in pe-ces, & sent them thowowe out all the coastes of Israel by the hādes of messengers, sayng:
 whosoeuer cometh not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall hys oxen be serued.
 And the feare of the Lord fell on the people, and they cam out as it had bene but one man. And when he nombred them in Bezek, the chyldren of Israel were thre hundre thousande men, and the men of Juda thirtie thousande. And they sayde vnto the messengers y cam: so saye vnto the men of Jabes in Gilead: to morow by that tyme the soune be-hote, ye shal haue helpe. And the messengers cam & shewed the men of Jabes, which were glad. Therefore the men of Jabes sayde: to-morowe we wyll come out vnto you, and ye shall do wyth vs all that please you.
 And on the morowe it fortuned, that Saul put the people in iij. partes. And they cam in vpon the host in the moorning watche, & slue
 the Ammonites, vntill the heat of the dape.
 And they that remayned, were skattered: so y two of them were not left together. And the people sayde vnto Samuel: what is he that darre saye: shall Saul raygne ouer vs?
 bypunge those men, that we maye slaye them.
 And

And Saul sayde: there shall nomā dye thys dape, for to dape y Lord hath saued Israel.
 Then sayde Samuel vnto the people: come, that we maye go to Gilgal, and renewe the kyngdome there. And all the people wēt to Gilgal, & made Saul kyng there, before the Lord in Gilgal. And there they offered peaceofferings before the Lord.
 And there Saul and all the mē of Israel re-ioysed excedyngly.

The xij. Chapter.

Samuel declareth hym selfe to be an innocent Judge.

Samuel sayd vnto all Israel: beholde, I haue hekened vnto your voyce in all that ye sayde vnto me, & haue made you a kyngue. Howe therfore, poure kyngue walketh before you. And I am olde and graye headed: and beholde, my sonnes are with you, and I haue walked before you frō my chyldhode vnto thys dape.
 Beholde, here I am: beare recorde of me before the Lord and before hys anoynted: *
 whose ore haue I taken? or whose Ass haue I taken? whō haue I done wrog to? Whom haue I hurt? or of whose hande haue I re-ceaued any bypbe, to blynde myne eyes ther-wyth? I wyll restore it you agayne. They sayde: thou hast done vs no wroge, nor hurt vs, nether hast thou take ought of any mannes hande. He sayde vnto them agayne: the Lord is witnesse agaynst you, & hys anoynt-ed is wytnesse thys dape, y ye haue founde naught in my hādes. And they answered: he is wytnesse. And Samuel sayd vnto the people: it is the Lord, y made Moses & Aaron, & y brought poure fathers out of the lāde of Egypt. Howe therefore stāde still, y I maye reason w you before the Lord, accordyng to all the tynghtousnes of the Lord, which he shewed both you and poure fathers.

* After y Jacob was come into Egypte, and poure fathers cryed vnto the Lord: the Lord sent Moses & Aaron, which brought your fathers out of Egypt, & made the dwell in this place. * And whā they forgot the lord their God, he deliuered the into the hand of Sisara captaine of the host of Hazor: and into the hande of the Philistynes, and into the hande of the kyngue of Moab, and they fought agaynst them. And they cryed vnto the Lord, & sayde: we haue sinned, because we haue forsaken the Lord, and haue serued Baalim and Ashtaroth. Howe therefore de-liuer vs out of the handes of oure enemyes and we wyll serue the. And the Lord sent Jerobaal * Nadab * Iephthah, & Samuel, and deliuered you out of the handes of poure enemyes on euery syde, and ye dwelled safe. And for all that, whē you sawe that Nabas the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon cam agaynst you, ye sayde vnto me: * not so but a kyng shall raigne ouer vs, whē yet the Lord poure God was poure kyngue. Howe therefore, beholde, the kyngue whō ye haue chosen, and whom ye haue despyed: lo, the Lord hath set a kyngue ouer you. Yf ye wyll feare the Lord & serue hym, and heare hys voyce, & not disobey the worde of the Lord: both ye & the kyngue that raygneth ouer you, shall folowe the Lord poure God: yf ye wyll not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lord, but disobeye the Lordes mouth: then shall the hande of the Lord be vpon you and on poure fathers. Howe also stande, and se thys great thyngue, whych the Lord will do before poure eyes: is it not now wheathered? I will call vnto the Lord, and he shall sende thunder and rayne: that ye maye perceaue and se, howe that poure wickednes is great, which ye haue done in the syght of the Lord, in al-kyngue you a kyngue. And so, Samuel called vnto the Lord, and the Lord sent thunder and rayne the same dape. And all the people feared the Lord and Samuel excedyngly.

 And all the people sayde vnto Samuel:
 praye for thy seruantes vnto the Lord thy God, that we dye not: for we haue sinned in alkyngue vs a kyngue, besyde all the synnes y euer we dyd.

And Samuel sayde vnto the people: feare not. Ye haue in dede done all thys wyckednesse, yet departe not from folowynge of the Lord. But serue hym euen wyth all poure hertes. Nether turne ye after wayne thinges whych are not able to profyt you, for they are but vanitie. For the * Lord wyll not forsake hys people, because of hys great mimes sake: because it hath pleased the Lord, to make you his people. More ouer God for-bydde, that I shulde synne agaynst the Lord, de, and cease prayng for you, but to shewe you the good & tyght waye. Therefore feare pou the Lord, and serue hym in the tructh, and wyth all poure hertes: & consyde, howe great thinges he hath done for you. But and yf ye do wyckedlye, then shall ye perishe, both ye and poure kyngue.

The xiiij. Chapter.

The Philistines are smitten of Saul and Jonathas. Saul bypunge disobeynt to Goddes commaundement, is shewed of Samuel, that he shall not raygne.

Saul had bene kyngue one yere (whā these thynges came to passe) and he raygned two yeaes ouer Israel.
 And Saul chose him thre thousand men of Israel: two thousande were wyth Saul in Michmas and in mount Bethel, & a thousande wyth Jonathas in Gibea Benjamin. And the rest of the people he sent, eu-ry man to hys owne house agayne. And Jonathas smote the holdre of the Philistines, y was in the byll, and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul blew the tropet tho-rowe

rowe out all the lade, saye ge: let the Chyues heare. And all Israel hearde saye, howe that Saul had destroyed an holde of the Philistines, wherfore Israel stanche before Philistines. And the people gathered together after Saul to Gilgal.

The Philistines also geathered them selues together to fyght wyth Israel, thirtie thousand charettes and spre thousand horse men, with other people like the land by the sees syde in multitude, and came vp, and pitched in Michmas eastwarde from Bethanien. And when the me of Israel sawe it, they were in a strypte, & feare came vpo the people, and they hyd them selues in caves, and in pny holes, and in rocks, and in hye places, & in pittes. And some of the Chyues went ouer Jordan to go vnto the lande of Gad & Gilead. And Saul was yet in Gilgal, & all the people that folowed him were astonyed.

And he tarped seue dayes, euen vnto tyme Samuel had appoynted. But Samuel came not to Gilgal, & the people were therefore skatered fro him. And Saul sayd: bring a burnt sacrifice to me & peace offerings. And he offered burnt sacrifice. And as sone as he had made an ende of offeringe & burnt sacrifice, beholde, Samuel cam. And Saul went agaynst him, to blesse him. And Samuel sayde, what hast thou done? Saul sayde: because I saw that the people skatered fro me, and I came not wthin the dayes apoynted, and the Philistines geathered the selues together to Michmas: therefore sayd I: Philistines shall come downe now vpon me to Gilgal, & I haue not made supplicacio vnto the Lord. And what I had overcome myselfe, at the last I offered a burnt offeringe.

And Samuel sayde to Saul: & art become a sole, thou hast not kept the comaundment of the Lord thy God, which he comaunded the. For at this tyme wold the Lord haue stablyshed thy kingdome vpo Israel for euer. But now, thy kyngdome shall not continue.

The Lord hath sought him a man after his awne hart, & the Lord hath commaunded him to be captayne ouer his people: because thou hast not kept & whych the Lord commaunded the. And Samuel arose & gat hym vp from Gilgal to Gibeon Beniamin.

And the remnant of the fowle went vp after Saul, to mete the people, which fought agaynst them, as they were cominge from Gilgal to Gibeon in the hill of Beniamin.

And Saul nobred the people that were founde w him, & they were about a fyre hundred men. And Saul and Jonathas his sonne and the people that were founde wyth the, had they abdyng in the hill of Beniamin. But the Philistines pitched in Michmas. And there came out of the host of Philistines thre compaignes, to destroye: one compaigne turned vnto the waye & leadeth to Ephraim vnto the lande of Saul. And a nother compaigne turned the waye to Bethoron. And the thyrde compaigne turned to the waye of the cost & is sene aboue the vale of seboim toward the wyldernesse. There was no syneth founde thowoe out all the lade of Israel. For the Philistines sayde: Lest happily the Chyues make them swerdes or speeres. But all Israelites went downe to the Philistines, to mend euerie man his share, his mattock, his axe & his necessary toles. And then the edges of the shares, mattocks, doge foxkes, and axes were blunt, and also the foxkes were to be set in. And sone in tyme of battell there was nether swerde nor speere founde in the handes of any of the people that were wyth Saul and Jonathas. But with Saul and Jonathas his sonne was there somewhat founde. And the watch of Philistines came out, to go ouer vnto Michmas.

The xxiij. Chapter.

Jonathas and his harnesse bearer putteth the Philistines to flight. He casteth the honpe.

And it fortuneth the same tyme, & Jonathas the sonne of Saul sayd vnto his younge man that bare his harnesse: come, and let vs go ouer to the Philistines watche that are pouder on the other syde, and he tolde not his father. And Saul tarped in the vtmost parte of Gibeon vnder Rimmon, whych is in Egipt, & the people that were wyth him were vpon a fyre hundred men. And Abia the sonne of Achib Jehabods brother, the sonne of Phinehes, the sonne of Eli, was the Lordes preaste in Silo, & ware an Ephod. And the people wist not that Jonathas was gone.

And in the myddes of the passage (by which Jonathas sought to go ouer vnto the Philistines watch) were there two sharpe rocks, euen one on the one syde, & the other on the other syde: the one called Bozez, & the other Sene. The forefront of the one, leaned northwarde toward Michmas, & the other was southwarde, toward Gibeon. And Jonathas sayd to the younge man that bare his harnesse: come and let vs go ouer vnto the watch, of these vncircumcised, peradventure the Lord will worke w vs: for it is no hardnesse w the Lord to saue ether in manye or in fewe. And his harnesse bearer sayde vnto hi: do all this in thyne hert: So where it pleaseth the. Behold, I am w the, as thine hert lusteth. The sayde Jonathas: beholde, we go ouer vnto these me, & shall shew oure selues vnto the: if they saye on this wise to vs: tarpe, vntill we come to you, the we will stode stil in place, & not go vp vnto the. But if they saye: come vp vnto vs, the we will go vp, for the Lord hath deliuered them into oure handes. And thys shalbe a sygne vnto vs. And they bothe shewed the selues vnto the watch of Philistines.

Philistines. And Philistines sayde: se, the hebrues come out of the holes where they had hyd the selues in. And men of the watche answered Jonathas and his harnesse bearer, & sayde, come vp to vs, and we will shew you a thinge. And Jonathas sayde vnto his harnesse bearer, come vp after me, for the Lord hath deliuered them into the hande of Israel. And Jonathas clame vp vpo handes & fete, & his harnesse bearer after him. And when they had sene Jonathas (face) they fell before Jonathas: & his harnesse bearer stode the after hym. And that first slaughter which Jonathas and his harnesse bearer made, was vpon a twentie men, within the compasse as it were about an halfe caker of lade. And ther was a feare in the host, in the felde, & amonge all people: in so moche that they were gone out of the watche to robbe, were a frayde also: and the erth trembled, for the feare that was sent of God. And the watche men of Saul in Gibeon Beniamin, sawe. And beholde, the people (of the Philistines) were skatered & were synette as they went. Then sayde Saul vnto the people: I was with him. Seache and se, who is gone awaye fro vs. And when they had nobred, beholde, Jonathas & his harnesse bearer were not there. And Saul sayde vnto Abia: bringe hither the arcke of God. For the arcke of God was at that tyme wyth the chyldren of Israel. And it fortuneth & while Saul talked vnto the preaste, the people that was in the hoste of the Philistines spred further abrode.

And Saul sayde vnto the preaste: drawe thynne handes. And Saul ioynd hymselfe vnto all the people that were with him, & they came to the battell. And beholde, euery manes swerde was agaynst his felowe, and there was a very greete rumore. Moreover, the Chyues were wyth the Philistines before that tyme, and were come with them in all partes of the hoste, turned, to be with the Israelites & were wyth Saul & Jonathas. And all men of Israel also, which had hyd them selues in mount Ephraim, as sone as they heard howe that the Philistines were fled, they folowed after them in the battell. And so God holpe Israel that daye. And the battell continued vnto Bethanien.

And whyle the men of Israel were kepte downe wyth hunger that daye, Saul charged the people with an ooth sayinge: Cursed be the man that eateth any foode vntill nyght, tyll I be aduenged of myne enemyes. And so, none of the people tasted any sustinaunce. And all the inhabytors of the lade came to a wood where honpe laye vpon the groude. And the people came into the wood: And beholde, the honpe dropped, and no man moued his hande to his mouth, for the people feared the ooth. But Jonathas hearde not what his father charged the people with the ooth, wherfore he put forth the ende of the rodd that was in his hande, and dyt it in an honpe combe, & put his hande to his mouth, and his eyes receaued syght. Then answered one of the people and sayde: thy father adured the people, sayinge: Cursed be the man that eateth any sustinaunce this daye, & the people were faynt. Then sayde Jonathas: my father hath troubled the lande: se howe myne eyes hath receaued syght, because I tasted a lytle of this honpe: howe much more then to daye if the people had eaten of the spoule of their enemyes whych they founde. And had there not bene then a moche greater slaughter amonge Philistines? And they layed on the Philistines that daye, from Michmas to Aialo. And the people were exceedinge faynt.

And the people gat the to the spoule, & toke shepe, oxen, & calues, & stode the on the groude, & the people dydeate the w the bloude. Then men tolde Saul, sayinge: Beholde, the people synne agaynst the Lord, in that they eate with the bloude. And he sayde: ye haue trespassed. Rowle a great stone vnto me this daye, and Saul sayde agayne: So abroade amonge the people & hyd them byng me euerie man his ore & euerie man his shepe, and slave them here, and synne not agaynst the Lord in eatinge w the bloude. And the people brought euery man his ore in his hande, by nyght, & stode them there. And Saul made an altare vnto the Lord. And that was the fyrst altare that he made vnto the Lord. And Saul sayde: lett vs go downe after the Philistines by nyght and spoule the, vntill it be daye in the morninge, & lett vs not leaue one man of the. And they sayd: do whatsoeuer thou thinkest best. Then sayde the preast: lett vs come hither vnto God. And Saul asked of God: Shall I go downe after the Philistines? Wile thou deliuer them into the handes of Israel? But he answered him not at that tyme. And Saul sayde: let the people come hyther out of all quarters, and knowe & se by whos hande thys synne is chaunced this daye: for as truly as the Lord lyueth which saueth Israel, though it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye the death. But there was no man amonge all the people that answered him.

Then he sayde vnto all Israel: be ye on one syde, and I & Jonathas my sonne wille on the other syde. And the people sayde vnto Saul: what thou thynekst best, do. Therefore Saul sayde vnto the Lord God of Israel: geue a perfect lott. (The Lord God, geue the iudgement. Howe happeneth it, that thou geuest the treueth no answer to daye? If this synne be in me or in Jonathas my sonne, helpe it, or if this iniquite be in the people.) And Saul & Jonathas were caught, but the people shapd free. And Saul sayde, cast lottes betwene me & Jonathas my sonne. And Jonathas Gathas was caught. Then Saul sayde to Jonathas: tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathas tolde him, & sayde. I tasted a lytle honye with the ende of the rodd that was in myne hande: and lo, I must dye.

Saul answered: * God do so and so to me, thou shalt dye the death Jonathas. And the people sayde vnto Saul: Shall Jonathas dye, which hath somyghtelpe helped Israel? God forbode. As truly as the Lorde lyueth, * there shall not one here of hys heed fall to the ground: for he hath wrought with God thys daye. And so the people deliuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. And then Saul departed by feld folowinge p Philistines. And p Philistines went to their awne place. And so Saul helde the kyngdome ouer Israel, & fought agaynst all his enemyes on euery syde: agaynst Moab: agaynst the chyldren of Ammon: agaynst Edom: agaynst p kynges of toba, and agaynst the Philistines. And whether so euer he turned him selfe, there he wane: and he gathered his host together, and smote the * Amaleckites, & rydd Israel out of the hādes of them that spoyled them. The sonnes of Saul were: Jonathas, Jesui, and Melchisua. And hys two daughters were thus named: y elder was called Merob, and the younger Michol. And y name of Sauls wife, was Abinoa p daughter of Abimaaz. And y name of hys chiefe captayne was Abner p sonne of Ner, Sauls vncle. And * Cis was Sauls father. And Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Abiel. And there was loze warre agaynst the Philistines, all the dayes of Saul. And whomsoever Saul sawe to be a stroge mā, and mete for y warre he toke him vnto him.

Amuel sayde vnto Saul: * p Lorde sent me to anoynt p, to be kyng ouer his people Israel. Nowe therfore hearken thou vnto the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I remembre p whych Amaleck dyd to Israel * howe they laped wayte for the in p waye, as they came out of Egypte. Nowe therfore go, & synke Amaleck, and destrope ye all p pertayneth vnto them, & se thou haue no compassyō on the * (as couete nothyng that they haue) slaye both man & womā, infant & sucklyng. oxe, and shepe, camell and Asse.

And Saul gathered the people together, & * nombred them in Telaim, two hundred thousande foote men, and ten thousande mē of Juda. And Saul came vnto a cpye of Amaleck, & set watche in p valeye. And Saul sayde vnto the kenites: go, & departe, & gett you downe from amonge the Amaleckites, lest I destrope you with them: for ye shewed mercy to all the chyldren of Israel, whē they came out of Egypt. And so the kenites departed from amonge the Amaleckites.

And Saul smote the Amaleckites from Heula, as thou comest to Sur, that lyeth before Egypt, and toke Agag p kyng of the Amaleckites alyue, & vterlye destroyed all the people with y edge of the swerde. * But Saul and the people spared Agag, and the better shepe, & the latter oxen, & the lambes, and all that was good, & wolde not destrope them. But all p was foule & naught worth, that they destroyed vterlye. Then came the word of p Lorde vnto Samuel, sayinge: it * repenteth me, p I haue made Saul kyng. * For he is turned from me, and hath not performed my commaundementes. And Samuel was euell apayed, and cried vnto the Lorde all nyght. And whan Samuel rose erlye, to mete Saul in p moynyng, it was tolde Samuel, that Saul was come to Carmel, & beholde, he * hath made him there a place, & is turned, and departed, and gone downe to Gilgall.

And Samuel came to Saul, & * (Saul of fered burnt sacrifice vnto the Lorde of the spys of p people, whych he had brought ferd Amalec. And whan Samuel was come vnto Saul,) Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue fulfilled the commaundment of p Lord. Samuel sayde: what meaneth then the bleatynge of the shepe in myne eares, and the noyle of the oxen which I heare? Saul answered: they haue broughte them from the Amaleckites. For the people spared the best of the shepe and of the oxen, to sacrifice them vnto the Lorde thy God. And y remnant haue we destroyed vterlye.

Samuel sayde to Saul: lett me tell the what the Lorde hath sayde to me this nyght. And he sayde vnto hym: saye on. Samuel sayde * when p wast a lytle in thyn awne syght, wast p not made the heed of the trybes of Israel? And the Lorde anoynted the kyng ouer Israel. And the Lorde sent the on a iourneye, & sayde: Go, & vterlye destrope those synners the Amaleckites, and syght agaynst them, vntill thou vterlye destrope them. And wherfore hast thou not hearkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde, but hast turned to p praye, and hast done p whych is wycked in the syght of the Lorde?

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: yee, I haue harkened vnto the voyce of the Lorde, & haue gone the waye which p Lorde sent me vnto, and haue broughte Agag the kyng of Amaleck, and haue vterlye destroyed the Amaleckites. But p people toke of p shepe, oxen, and the chiefe of the chynges whych shulde haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto p Lorde thy God in Gilgall. And Samuel muell sayde: hath the Lorde as great pleasure in burnt sacrifices & offeringes, as whan the voyce of p Lorde is obeyed? Beholde, to obeye is better then sacrifice, & to hearken, is better then the fatt of rammes. For rebellyn is as the synne of * witchcraft, and stubbornesse is as the wickednesse of Idolatrie. Because thou hast cast awaye p worde of the Lorde, therfore hath the Lorde cast awaye the also, from beynge kyng.

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: I haue synned, for I haue gone farther then the sayinge of the Lorde and thy wordes, because I feared p people, & obeyed their voyce. Nowe therfore take awaye my synne, and turne agayne with me, p I maye worshyppe the Lorde. And Samuel sayde vnto Saul: I will not retorne with the: for thou hast cast awaye p worde of the Lorde, and the Lorde hath cast awaye the, that thou shalt not be kyng ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned hym selfe to go awaye, he caught the lappe of hys coat, & it rent. And Samuel sayde vnto hym: the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome of Israel fro the this daye, & hath geue it to a neyghboure of thynne, that is better then thou. * The strength of Israel will not begyle nor repēt: for he is not a man, that can repent.

He sayde: I haue synned. But nowe honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israel, & turne agayne with me, that I maye worshyppe p Lorde thy God. And so Samuel turned agayne, and folowed Saul. And Saul worshipped p Lorde. Then sayde Samuel: Bynge ye hither to me, Agag the kyng of the Amaleckites. And Agag came vnto hym & delycately. And Agag sayde: truly the bytter deeth cometh on. And Samuel sayde: As thy swerde hath made wemē chyldlesse, so shall thy mother be chyldlesse aboute other women. And Samuel hewed Agag in peeces before the Lorde in Gilgall. And then * Samuel departed to Rama. And Saul went home to his house to Gibea. And Samuel came nomore to se Saul vntill the daye of his deeth. Neuerthelesse Samuel mourned for Saul, & the Lorde * repented, that he had made Saul kyng ouer Israel.

The xvi. Chapter.

David is anoynted kyng. An euell sprete cometh vpon Saul.

He Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: howe longe wilt thou mourne for Saul, seyng I haue cast hym awaye from rayngynge ouer Israel? Fyll thynne hōrne with oynment, and come, that I maye sende the to Isai the Bethlehemit, for I haue provided me a kyng amonge hys sonnes. And Samuel sayd: howe can I goor? For yf Saul heare it, he will kyll me. The Lorde answered: Take an heifer w the, and sape: I am come to offer to the Lorde. And call Isai to the offerynge, and I will shewe the, what p shalt do: And thou shalt anoynt hym whom I name vnto the. And so Samuel dyd as the Lorde bad him, and came to Bethlehem, and the elders of the towne were astonied at his comynge, and sayde: * Comest thou peaceably? He answered: yee, I am come to offer vnto the Lorde. * Sanctifye youre selues, & come with me to the offerynge. And he sanctified Isai & his sonnes, & bad the to the offerynge. And whē they were come, he looked on Eliab, & sayde: * Surely the Lorde anoynted is before hym. But the Lorde sayde vnto Samuel: loke not on his fashyon, or on p leght of hys stature, because I haue refused hym: for God seyth not as man seyth. For man loketh on the outwarde apperance but God beholdeth the harte. Then Isai called Abinadab, and made him come before Samuel. And he sayde: nether hath the Lorde chosen thys. Then Isai made Samina come, and he sayde: nether yet hath the Lorde chosen him. Agayne, Isai made seue of his sonnes to come before Samuel. And Samuel sayde vnto Isai: the Lorde hath chosen none of these.

And Samuel sayde vnto Isai: are here all thy chyldren? He sayde: there is yet a lytle one behynde, that kepeth the shepe. And Samuel sayd vnto Isai: sende and fette him, for we will not sytte downe, tyl he be come hyther. And he sent, & brought hym in. And he was browne, and of an excellēt bewyke, & well fauored in syght. And the Lorde sayde: Arise, and anoynt him, for this is he. Therfore Samuel toke the hōrne wyth the oynment, & anoynted him in the myddes of hys brethzen. And the sprete of the Lorde came vpon David, from that daye forwarde. And Samuel rose vp, and went to Rama.

But the sprete of the Lorde departed fro Saul, and an euell sprete sent of the Lorde vexed him. And Sauls seruantes sayde vnto him: Beholde, an euell sprete sent of God vexed the, lett oure Lord therfore comaunde his seruantes (that are before the) to seke a man, p is a comynge player wyth an harpe: that when the euell sprete sent of God cometh vpon the, he maye playe with hys hāde and thou shalt be eased. Saul sayde vnto his seruantes: prouide me a man then that can playe well, and bynge him to me. Then answered one of his seruantes and sayde: Beholde, I haue sene a sonne of Isai the Bethlehemit, that can playe vpon instrumēt, and is an actiue felowe, and a man of warre and prudēt in doyng of feates, & well made and the Lorde is with hym. Wherfore Saul sent messengers vnto Isai, and sayde: sende me David thy sonne, which is wyth p shepe. And Isai toke an asse laden with bzeed, and a flacke a flasket of wyne, and a kyd, and sent them by David his sonne vnto Saul. And David came to Saul, & stode before him, & he loued him very well, and he was made his harness-bearer. And Saul sent to Iai, sayinge: lett David remaine with me, for he hath founde fauour in my syght. And so it fortunied, that when the euell sprete sent of God came vpon Saul, David toke an harpe, & played wyth his hande, & so Saul was refreshed, & byd amende, and the euell sprete departed fro him.

¶ The. xvij. Chapter.

¶ David ouercometh great Goliath.

The Philistines gathered their hoste to battell, and came together to Socoth which is in Iuda, and pitched betwene Socoth & Azekah, in y^e coast of Dammin. And Saul and the me of Israel came together, and pitched in the Oke valley, and put them selues in aray, to fyght agaynst the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyll on the one syde, and Israel stode on an hyll on the other syde; and there was a valeye betwene them: And there came a man betwene them both, out of the tentes of the Philistines, named Goliath * of Gath lyc cubytes and an handbredth lōge, and had an helmet of brasle vpon hys heed, and a coate of maple about hym. And the weyght of hys coate of maple was fyue thousande spyles of brasle. And he had bootes of brasle vpon his legges, and a shyld of brasle vpon his shoulders. And the chaite of his spere was like a weuers beame. And his speare heed weped. vj. hūdyed sikles of yron. And one bearynge a shyld went before hym.

And he stode and cryed agaynst the hoste of Israel, & sayde vnto the: Why are ye come out in aray to battell: am not I a Philistine and you seruautes to Saul: chole you a mā from amonge you, & lett him come downe to me. And yf he be able to fyght with me, & to beate me, then will we be your seruautes. But yf I can ouercome him and beate him, then shall ye be our seruautes, & serue vs. And the Philistine sayde: I desyre the host of Israel this daye, gene me a man, yf we maye fight together. When Saul and all Israel hearde those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged, & greatly afrayed. David was the sonne of an Ephraimite (of whome cron is made afoie) of Bethlehem Iuda, named Iai, whych had eight sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saul, and came to age amonge men. And the thre eldest sonnes of Iai went, and folowed Saul to the battell. And the names of hys thre sonnes that went to battell, were: Eliab the eldest, & the next, Abinadab, and the thyrde Sams, and David was y^e least. And the thre eldest went after Saul. David also went and departed fro Saul, to fede his fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth in the moynynge and euenynge, and continued fouretye dayes.

And Iai sayde vnto David his sonne take for thy brethren an Epha of this parched corne and these ten loanes, and brynge it vnto the hoste to thy brethren. And carpe these ten frethe chesles vnto y^e captayne, & loke howe thy brethren fare, and sett out theire pledge. And Saul and they, and all the m^e of Israel were in the oke valey, fightinge with y^e Philistines. And David rose vpon crye in the moynynge, and leste y^e shepe with a keeper, & toke and went as Iai had commaūded him, and came with in y^e compasse of the host. And the hoste went out in aray, and shewed in the battell: for Israel & the Philistines had put the selues in aray, the one agaynst y^e other. And David toke downe the gear from him, and put them vnder the handes of the keeper of the vessels, & ranne into y^e hoste, and came, and saluted his brethren. And as he talked wth them, Beholde: there stode a mā in the myddes (Goliath y^e Philistine by name) of Gath out of the aray of the Philistines, & spake of the maner aboue rehered, that David heard it. And all the men of Israel, when they sawe the man, ranne awaye from hym, and were soze afrayed. And euery man of Israel sayde: Sawe ye this man come forth: euen to reuple Israel is he come. * And to hym y^e beatech hym, wyl the kyng geue great ryches, and will geue him his daughter therto: yee & make his fathers house free in Israel.

And David spake to the men that stode by, and sayde: What shalbe done to the man that beatech this Philistine, & taketh awaye the shame fro Israel: And what is this vncircumcised Philistine, that he shulde reuple the hoste of the lvyng God: And the people answered him (after this maner,) sayinge: so shall it be done to the mā, that beatech hym. And Eliab his eldest brother hearde whē he spake vnto the men, and Eliab was angere wth David, and sayde: Why camest y^e downe hither: and with whom hast thou leste those few shepe in y^e wilderness: I know thy pryde, and the malice of thynne herte, yf thou art come downe to le y^e battell. And David sayd:

And what haue I nowe done: is there not a worde: And he departed from hym into the presence of another, and spake of y^e same maner, and the people answered hym agayne, as before.

And they that hearde the wordes whych David spake, rehered them before Saul, which caused him to be fette. And David sayd to Saul: Let no mannes hert sayle hym because of him. Thy seruaunt wyl go, & fyght with yonder Philistine. And Saul sayde to David agayne: y^e art not able to go agaynst yonder Philistine, to fyght wth him. For thou art but a chyld, but he is a mā of warre cūe fro his yowth. David answered vnto Saul: Thy seruaunt kept his fathers shepe, & there came * a Lyon and lyke wille a Beare, & toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after him, and smote hym, and toke it out of his mouth. And when he arose agaynst me, I caught him by the bearde, and smote hym, & slue hym. And so thy seruaunt slue the Lyon & y^e beare (also) hath thy seruaunt slayne. And truly this vncircumcised Philistine shalbe as one of the. * (Saul, wyl I go, & take awaye the rebuke of the people, for what is this vncircumcised Philistine?) seyng he hath rayled on the hoste of y^e lvyng God. And David spake mozeouer: the Lorde that deliuered me out of the hande of y^e Lyon & out of the hande of y^e beare, he shall deliuer me also out of the hande of this Philistine.

And Saul sayde vnto David: go, and the Lorde shall be with the. And Saul put hys rayment vpon David, and put an helmet of brasle vpon hys heed, & put a coate of maple vpon him, and gyrded David with hys a wne swerde vpon his rayment. And he assayed to go. And because he neuer proued it, David sayde vnto Saul: I cannot go with these, for I haue not vsed my selfe therto: and David put them of hym, and toke hys staffe in hys hande, and chose him fyue smoth stones out of a broke, and put them in a sheperdes bagge which he had, & in a spyng poke: & his spyng was in his hāde, & he went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and dūe nere agaynst David, and the man y^e bare the shyld went before hym. And when the Philistine looked aboute, and sawe David, he disdaind hym, for he was but yōge, and well coloured, and goodlye to loke vpon. And the Philistine said vnto David: am I a dogge, that thou comest to me with a staffe: and the Philistine cursed David in the name of his goddes. And the Philistine sayde to David: come to me, & I wyl geue thy fleshe vnto the foules of the ayre, & to the beastes of the felde. Then sayde David to the Philistine: thou comest to me wyth a swerde, a speare and a shyld: But I come to the in the name of the Lorde of hostes, the God of the hoste of Israel, whom thou hast rayled vpon. This daye shall the Lorde deliuer the into my hande, and I shall smyte the, & take thine heed from the, and wyl geue y^e carcasses of the hoste of the Philistines this daye vnto the foules of the ayre, and to the beastes of the erth, that all they whych be in the worlde, maye knowe, that there is a God in Israel. And all this congregacyon shall knowe, that the Lorde sauech not with swerd and speare. For y^e battell is the Lordes, and he shall geue you into oure handes.

And whē the Philistine arose to come and drawe nie vnto David, David hastid, & rāne into the battayll euen agaynst the Philistine. And David put his hande in hys bagge, and toke out a stone, and slange it, & smote the Philistine in his forehead, y^e stone souncke into his forehead * and he felle grouelynge to the erth. And so David ouercame the Philistine with a spyng and a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slue hym, euen whan David had no swerde in hys hande. But David rāne, and stode vpon the Philistine, & toke hys swerde, and dūe it out of hys sheath, and slue hym, & cutte of hys heed therewith. And when the Philistines sawe, that theyr champion was deed * they fled. And the men of Israel and of Iuda arose, and shewed, & folowed after the Philistines, vntyll they came to the valeye, and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe wounded by the waye to Saaram, euen vnto Gath & Akaron. And the chyldren of Israel returned fro chalynge after the Philistines, and spoiled theyr tentes. And David toke the heed of the Philistine, and brought it to Ierusalem: But he put his armour in hys tente.

When Saul sawe David go forth agaynst the Philistine, he sayde vnto * Abner y^e cap- tayne of his hoste: Abner, whose sonne is this young man: Abner answered: as truly as thy soule lvyeth (O kyng) I canot tell. And the kyng sayde: Enquire thou, whose sonne the youngynge is. And when David was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke hym, and brought hym before Saul, wyth the heed of the Philistine in hys hande. And Saul sayde to hym: whose sonne art thou, thou yonge man: David answered: I am the sonne of thy seruaunt Iai the Bethlehemite.

¶ The. xviii. Chapter.

¶ The bond betwene David and Jonathan. Saul goeth aboute to sle David.

And when he had made an ende of speakynge vnto Saul, the sonne of Jonathan was knyt wyth the soule of David, and Jonathan loued hym as hys awne soule. And Saul toke him that daye, and wolde let him go no more home to hys fathers house. And Jonathan made a couenant wyth David, because he loued loured him as his awne soule. And Jonathas put of his a wne coate that was vpon him, & gaue it Dauid, & therto his cloke, his sword, his bowe and hys gyrdle. And Dauid went oure whether soeuer Saul sent hym, and behaued him selfe wysely. And Saul sett hym ouer hys men of warre, and he was accepted in the syght of all the people, and in the syght of Sauls seruantes.

25 And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, y women came out of all cyties of Israel syngyng & dauncyng, agaynst kyng Saul, and wyth tymbrelles, wyth ioye, and wyth instrumentes of musick. And the women answered one another in theyr playe, & sayde

* Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid hys ten thousande. And Saul was excedyng wroth, and the sayunge displeased him, and he sayde: they haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousande, and to me but a thousande, & what can he more haue, saue the kyngdome? Wherefore Saul looked on syde of Dauid from that daye forwarde. And it happened on the morowe, that the euell spete sent of God came vpon Saul, and he prophesied in the myddes of y house. And Dauid played with hys hande lyke as at other tymes, and there was a rauelyng in Sauls hande. And Saul toke the rauelyng, & sayde: I wyll naye Dauid to the wall withit. And Dauid auoyded oute of hys presence two tymes. And Saul was afearde of Dauid, because y Lord was with hym, & was departed fro Saul. Therefore Saul put him from hym, and made him a captyne ouer a thousand, and he went out & in before y people. And Dauid behaued him selfe wysely in all his wayes, & the Lord was with him. Wherefore when Saul saw y he was so excedyng wysely, he was afrayd of him. But all Israel and Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in before them. And Saul sayde to Dauid. Beholde, my eldest daughter Merob, her I wyll geue y to wyfe. Only playe the man with me, and fyght the Lordes batelles. For Saul thought: myne hande shall not be vpon hym, but the hand of y Philistines. And Dauid answered Saul: what am I? and what is my lyfe oz the kyngred of my father in Israel, that I shulde be sonne in lawe to the kyng? Howbeit when the tyme was come y Merob Sauls daughter shulde haue bene geue to Dauid, she was geuen vnto Achiel a Bethloothite, to wyfe. Howbeit, Michol Sauls daughter loued Dauid. And they shewed Saul: & the thyng displeased him not. And Saul sayde: I wyll geue hym her y she maye be a snare to hym, & that the hande of the Philistines maye be agaynst him. Wherefore Saul sayde to Dauid: thou shalt this daye be my sonne in lawe in the other daughter. And Saul commaunded hys seruantes, to come wyth Dauid secretlye & to saue: Beholde the kyng hath a fauoure to the, and all his seruantes loue the, be nowe therfore the kynges sonne in lawe.

And Sauls seruantes spake those wordes in the eares of Dauid. And Dauid sayde: semeth it to you a lyght thyng to be a kynges sonne in lawe: I am a poore man and of small reputacio. And the seruantes brought Saul worde agayne, sayinge: of this maner spake Dauid. And Saul sayd: this wise shal ye saue to Dauid: the kynges careth for no nother dowrye, but for an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines, to be aduenged of the kynges enemyes. But Saul thought to make Dauid fall into the handes of the Philistines. And when hys seruantes tolde Dauid these wordes, it pleased Dauid well to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And y dayes were expyed, Dauid arose with his men, and wēt & slue of the Philistines, two hundred men, and Dauid brought theyr foreskynnes, and satisfied the kyng therof, to be hys sonne in lawe. * Wherefore Saul gaue hym Michol hys daughter to wyfe. And Saul sawe and understode, howe that the Lord was with Dauid, and that Michol his daughter loued hym, and he was the moare afrayed of Dauid, and Saul became alwaye Dauids enemye. The lordes of y Philistines vled to go furth. And it fortuned y whan they went furth, Dauid behaued hym selfe wysely: the all the seruantes of Saul: so that his name was moche set by.

The. xix. Chapter.

Saul commaundeth to slay Dauid. Michol hys wyfe saucth hym.

Saul spake to Jonathas hys sonne, and to all hys seruantes, that they shulde kyll Dauid. * But Jonathas Sauls sonne had a greates fauoure to Dauid, and Jonathas tolde Dauid sayinge: Saul my father goeth aboute to slaye the. Nowe therfore take hede to thy selfe vntyll the morowyng, and abyde in some secret place, and hyde thy selfe. And I wyll go oute, and stande by my father in the felde where thou art, and wyll comen wyth my father of the, and whatsoeuer I se, I wyll tell the.

And Jonathas spake good of Dauid vnto Saul hys father, and sayde vnto hym: let not the kyng synne agaynst hys seruant Dauid, for he hath not synned agaynst the, and hys workes haue bene to the ward very good. For he dyd * & put hys lyfe in hys hande, and slue the Philistine, and the Lord brought to passe a greates healt for all Israel. Thou sawest it, and thou reioysedest, wherefore then wilt thou synne agaynst innocent bloude, and slaye Dauid without a cause? And Saul harkened vnto the voyce of y Jonathas, Jonathas, and swate: as truly as the Lord syneth, he shall not dye. And Jonathas called Dauid, and shewed hym all those wordes, & brought Dauid to Saul. And he was in his presence as in tymes past.

And the warre began agayne, and Dauid went out and fought wyth the Philistines, and slue them with a great slaughter, & they fledde fro him. And the euell spete sent of the Lord was vpon Saul, as he sat in hys house hauinge a Janelinge in his hande, and Dauid played with his hande. And Saul entended to naye Dauid to the walle with the Janelinge. But he ryd hym selfe out of Sauls presence, as he smote the speare. (wyth a bayne broke) into y walle. And Dauid fledde & was saued the same nyght. Saul also sent messengers vnto Dauids house, to watch him, and to sleve him in y morowyng. And Michol Dauids wyfe tolde it him, sayinge: If thou saue not thy selfe this night, to morowe y wilt be slayne. And so * Michol lett Dauid downe thowre a wyndowe, and he wēt, & fled, and was saued. And then he toke an Image and layed it in the bed, and put a pylowe stuffed with goates hearre vnder the heed of it, and couered it with a clothe. And whē Saul sent messengers to fetch Dauid, he sayde, he is sycke. And Saul sent the messengers agayne to se Dauid, sayinge: bringe him to me, bed & all, y I maye slaye him. And when y messengers were come in: Beholde, there laye an Image in the bed, with a pylowe of goates hearre vnder the heed of it. And Saul sayde vnto Michol: why hast thou mocked me so, and sent awaye myne enemye that he is escaped? Michol answered Saul. For he sayde vnto me, let me go, or elles I wyll kyll the. And so Dauid fledde, and escaped, & came to Samuel to Rama, tolde hym all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went, and dwelt in y Ramoth.

And one tolde Saul, sayinge: Beholde, Dauid is at Ramoth in Rama. And Saul sent messengers to sett Dauid. And when they sawe a companye of prophetes prophesyng, & Samuel stadyng fast by the, the spete of God fell vpon the messengers of Saul, and they prophesied to. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, & they prophesied lyke wyse. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the thyrde tyme, and they prophesied also. Then wēt he hym selfe to Rama, & came to a great well that is in Serbu, & he asked and sayde: where are Samuel and Dauid? And one sayde: Beholde, they be at Ramoth in Rama, & he went thither, cū to Ramoth in Rama, and the spete of God came vpon him also, & he went prophesyng, vntyll he came to Ramoth in Rama. And he & scrip of his clothes, & prophesied before Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all that daye & all that nyght. * And therof it is, that they saue: is Saul * i. i. c. c. also amonge the prophetes.

The. xx. Chapter.

Dauid complauneth vnto Jonathas.

And Dauid fled from Ramoth which is in Rama, came, & layde before Jonathas. What haue I done? wherein am I faultie? what is the synne that I haue committed before thy father, that he scheth my lyfe? he sayde vnto him: God forbyd, y shalt not dye. Beholde, my father will do no thyng eether great oz small, but that he will shewe it me. And howe shulde my father hyde thyng from me? he wyll not do it. And Dauid swate agayne, and sayde, thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, and therfore he sayeth: Jonathas shall not knowe it, lest he be sorpy. And in very dede, euen as truly as the Lord lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, there is but a steppe betwene me and deeth. Then sayde Jonathas vnto Dauid: whatsoeuer thy soule desyrez that I wyll do vnto the. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde to morowe is the begynnyng of the moone, and I shulde sytt in the kyngre at meate. But let me go, that I maye hyde my selfe in the felde vnto the thyrde daye at euen. If thy father speake of me, then saue, Dauid asked leaue of me, that he myght go to Bethlehem to his awne cyrie, for there is holden a yerely feast for all y kynred. And yf he saye: it is well done, then thy seruant shall haue peace. But and yf he be angrye, then be sure that wyckednesse is vtterly concluded of hym. And then thou shalt shewe mercye vnto thy seruant: for thou hast made wyth me thy seruant a bonde in the Lord. Notwithstandinge, yf there be in me any trespass, then sleve me thy selfe, and bypunge me not to thy father.

And Jonathas answered, God kepe that from y. (nepeher is it possible to come to passe.) It oz yf I knowe, that wyckednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the, thynkest thou that I shulde not tell it the? Then sayde Dauid, who shall tell me, yf thy father answered cruelly? And Jonathas sayd vnto Dauid, come and lett vs go out into y felde. And they went out both of them into the felde.

And Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: The Lord God of Israel loke on it, when I haue groped my fathers mynde, one tyme oz other within this thre dayes, y it stande well with Dauid. If I then sende not vnto the & shewe it the, the Lord do so and so vnto Jonathas. But yf my father haue any pleasure to do y euell, I wyll shewe the also, and sende the awaye that thou mayst go in peace. And the Lord be wyth the, as he hath bene with my father.

* i. c. c. v. d. d. and. xxi. c.

father. And thou shalt performe vnto me the mercy of the Lorde, not onely whyle I lyue but euen whē I am dead, and plucke not thy mercy awaye from my house for euer. No not when the Lorde hath destroyed the enemyes of Dauid, euerie one from the face of the earth.

And so Jonathas made a bonde with the house of Dauid, desyringe y^e the Lorde shulde seke it out by the handes of Dauids enemyes (yf it were broke.) And wth other wordes dyd Jonathas sweare vnto Dauid, because he loued him. For he loued hi, as his awne soule.

Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid: to morowe is the first daye of the mone. And thou shalt be missed, because the place where thou wast wont to lyt, shall be emptye. Wherefore this daye thre dayes come downe in any wyse vnto the place where thou dydest hyde thy selfe, & whan the busynes was in hande: euen by y^e stone castell. And I wyll shote thre arrowes by the one syde therof, as though I shott the at a marke, & will sende a lad, and byd hym go seke the arrowes. And yf I saye vnto the lad: se, the arrowes are on thys syde the, byynge them: then come y^e for it is peace, & no hurte, as sure as the Lorde lyueth. But and yf I saye vnto the lad, beholde, the arrowes are be yonde the, then go (in peace) for y^e Lorde hath sent y^e awaye. And as touchynge this which thou and I haue spoken: beholde the Lorde be betwene the & me for euer.

And so Dauid byd him selfe in the felde. And when the newe mone was come, the kyng sat him downe to eate meate. And the kyng sat him downe after the olde maner, in hys seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose and Abner late by Sauls syde, & Dauids place was emptye. Neuertheless, Saul sayde nothinge at all that daye. For he thought: some thynge hath chaunced him y^e he is not cleane.

But on the morowe which was the seconde daye of y^e newe mone, it happened that Dauids place was emptye agayne. And Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sone. Wherefore cometh not y^e sonne of Isai to meate, nether yesterdaye nor to daye? And Jonathas answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked lycence of me, to go to Bethlehē, for he sayde: let me go I praye the for oure kynred dothe holde an offerynge in the cyrie, and my brother hath sent for me.

And therfore yf I haue founde fauoure in thyn eyes, lett me go, and se my brethren. This is the cause, that he cometh not vnto the kynges table. Then was Saul angrey with Jonathas, & sayde vnto him: Thou wycked rebell, do not I knowe, y^e thou hast chosen the sonne of Isai vnto thyn awne rebuke, & vnto the rebuke & shame of thy mother? For as longe as the sonne of Isai lyueth vpon the earth, thou shalt not be stablished, nor yet thy kingdom, wherefore now sende and fete him vnto me, * for he is the chyld of death.

And Jonathas answered vnto Saul his father, and sayde to him. Wherefore shulde he dye: what hath he done? And Saul lyfte vp a speare to hyt him, wherby Jonathas wylt well, y^e it was vtterlye determined of his father, to slepe Dauid. And so Jonathas arose fro the table in a greate anger, & dyd eate no meate the secōde daye of y^e mone, for he was fory for Dauid, because hys father had done him shame. On y^e nexte morning, Jonathas wet out into the felde, at the tyme apoynted with Dauid, & a lytle ladd with him. And he sayde vnto his boye: runne & seke out myne arrowes whych I shote. And as the boye ran he shot an arrowe beyonde him. And when y^e lad was come to y^e place whether Jonathas had shot the arrowe, Jonathas cryed after y^e lad, and sayde: Is not the arrowe beyonde the? And Jonathas cryed after y^e lad agayne: make spede, and stande not still. And Jonathas lad gathered vp the arrowes, & came to his master. But the lad wist nothinge of the matter. Onely Jonathas and Dauid wist it. And Jonathas gaue his weapōs vnto y^e lad that was wyth him, & sayde vnto him: go & carye them to the towne. And as sone as the lad was gone, Dauid arose out of a place y^e was towarde the south, and fell on hys face to the ground, and worshypped thre tymes. And they kissed ether other, & wept together so longe, tyll Dauid excended in weping. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peace. And y^e thynge which we haue sworn both of vs in the name of the Lorde, sayynge: y^e Lorde be betwene y^e & me, & betwene thy seide & myne, let the stonde for euer. And he arose, & departed. And Jonathas went into the towne.

The xxij. Chapter.

Dauid fleeth into Gath to Achimelech the priest, and getteth of hym the shewe breade to satisfye his hunger. Afterwarde he lyeth to kyng Achis, and there sayneth hym selfe to be mad.

When came Dauid to Gath to Achimelech the priest: And Achimelech was astounded at the sodayne comynge of Dauid, & sayd vnto him: Why art thou alone, & no man wth y^e?

And Dauid sayde to Achimelech y^e priest: the kyng hath commaunded me to do a certeyn thynge, and hath sayde vnto me, let no man knowe where aboute I sende the, and what I haue commaunded the to do. And I haue appoynted my seruantes, to soche and soche places. Nowe therfore yf y^e hast ought vnder thynne hande * geue me fyue loaves of breade, or what cometh to hande.

And the priest answered Dauid, and sayde: there is no comen bread vnder myne hande, but here is halowed bread, yf the younge men haue kepte them selues from vncleane thynge especiallye women. Dauid answered the priest, and sayde vnto hym: Wth of a

of a truth women hath bene locked vp from us about a thre dayes. When I came out, & the vesselles of the younge men were holy. How be it this waye is vnpure, and how much more shal there be holynes in the vessel. * And so the priest gaue hi halowed bred, for there was no nother bred there, saue the shewe bred, that were take from before the Lorde, to put freshe bred there, the daye that it was taken awaye.

And ther was there the same daye a certē man of the seruantes of Saul abydyng before the Lorde, named Doeg an Edomite, the cheifest of Sauls hearde men.

And Dauid sayd vnto Achimelech: is not here vnder thynne hande other speare or swerde? For I haue nether brought my swerde nor my harness with me, because the kynges busines required haste. And the priest sayd: the swerde of Goliath the Philistine whome thou sleest in y^e Dcke valley, beholde, it is here wrapt in a cloth behynd the Ephod. If thou wilt take that, take it, for there is no nother saue that here. And Dauid sayd: there is none to that, geue it me.

And Dauid arose and fled the same daye from the presence of Saul, & wet to Achis the kyng of Geth. And the seruantes of Achis sayd of him: is not this Dauid the kyng of the lande? dyd they not syng vnto him, in daunces sayng * Saul hath slayne his thousand, & Dauid his ten thousand? And Dauid put those wordes into his heart, & was sore afrayed of Achis the kyng of Geth. And he chaunged his speche before them, & sayned him selfe madd in theyr handes, & scrabled on the doores of the gate, and let his spittel fall downe vpon his beard. Then sayde Achis vnto his seruante: Loo, y^e se y^e this man is besyde hym selfe, wherefore then haue ye brought hym to me? haue I nede of madd mē that ye haue brought this felow to playe the mad mā in my presence? Shall he come into my howse.

The xxij. Chapter.

Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Achimelech is accused of treason and slayn. & lyff. Achis is accused of treason because they receaued Dauid. Achis is destroyed of Saul, Achis fleeth to Dauid.

And therfore departed thence, and escaped, and came vnto the caue Daballam. When his brethren also ad all his fathers house heard it, they went downe thither to hym. And there gathered vnto him all men that were in combrance, and in dett, and troubled in their mindes, & he became a captayne ouer them. And there were with hym vpon a foure hundred men. And Dauid went thence to Mizpa in the lande of Moab, and sayde vnto the kyng of Moab: Let my father &

my mother (I praye the) come forth vnto you, tyll I knowe what God will do for me. And he brought them before the kig of Moab. And they dwelt wth hi all the while that Dauid kepte him selfe i hold. And the prophet Gad sayde vnto Dauid: abide not in holde, but departe and go into the lab of Juda. Then Dauid departed and came into the forest hareth. And Saul heard y^e Dauid was come abrode, and also the mē that were wyth hym. And Saul satt in Gibeon vnder a tree in Rama, haupng hys speare in his hand, & all his men stode about hym. And Saul sayde vnto his seruantes that stode about hi. Heare I praye you y^e you sonnes of Beniamin: will the sone of Isai geue euerie one of you felde and vineardes, & make you all captaynes ouer thousandes & ouer hundredes? that ye haue also conspired agaynst me, and there is none that telleth it me in myne eare. * And where as my sone hath made a bonde wth the sone of Isai, ther is none of you that mourneth for me, or sheweth it in myne eare: beholde, my sone hath stered vp my seruant to lye awaye agaynst me thys same daye.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite which also stode by the seruantes of Saul, and sayde: I saw the sone of Isai, whē he came to Nob, to Achimelech the sone of Ahitob, which asked counsell of the Lorde for hym, & gaue hym vitayles, & the swerde of Goliath the Philistine also. Then the kyng sent & called for Achimelech y^e priest y^e sone of Ahitob, & all his fathers house: that is to saye, the priestes that were in Nob.

And they cam all to the kyng. And Saul sayde: heare now y^e sone of Ahitob. He answered: here I am, my Lorde. And Saul sayde vnto hym: why haue ye conspired agaynst me, y^e the sone of Isai, in y^e thou hast geuen him vitayle, & a swerde, and hast asked counsell of God for hi, that he shuld aryse agaynst me, & lye awaye for me this daye? Achimelech answered the king & sayd: who is so faithfull amōg all thy seruantes as Dauid, & therto the kynges sone in law, & goeth at thy bydding, & is had in honour in thynne house: haue I this daye begone first to aske counsell of God for hi. That be farre fro me: yf I had knowen it, lett not y^e kyng put soch a thynge vnto his seruant. In all y^e house of my father. For thy seruant knewe nothyng of all this, ether lesse or more. The king sayde: thou shalt surelye dye. And the king sayde vnto the fote men that stode about him: turne, & slep the priestes of the Lorde, both because theyr hād is wth Dauid, & because they knewe when Dauid fled, & shewed it not to me. But y^e seruantes of tes of the kyng wolde not mone their handes, to fall vpon the preastes of the Lorde. And the kyng sayde to Doeg: turne thou, and fall vpon the preastes. And Doeg the Edomite turned, and ranne vpon the preastes, and slue that same daye foure thore & fyne persones, y dyd weare a lynne Ephod. And Rob the cytic of the preastes smote he wyth the edge of the swerde, both men & women, childre and sucklynges, oxen and asses and shepe.

And one of the sonnes of Ahimelech the sonne of Abitob (named Abiathar) escaped & fled to David. And Abiathar shewed David, how that Saul had slayne the lordes preastes. And David sayde vnto Abiathar: I wist it the same daye, when Doeg the Edomite was there, that he wolde tell Saul. And I am cause of the death of all y soulles of thy fathers house. Abide thou w me, and feare not: for yf anye ma seke my soule, he shall seke thynne also, w me thou shalt be in safegard.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

David fleeth into the wilderness of ziph.

When they told David sayig: Behold the Philistines fight agaynst keilah, and spoyle the barnes.

Therefore David asked the Lords aduyse, saying: Shall I goo and smyte these Philistines? And the Lorde answered vnto David: go and smyte the Philistines, and saue keilah. And Davids men y were with him, sayd vnto him: se, we be afrayed here in Iuda: how much more then yf we come to keilah agaynst the host of the Philistines? Then David asked y Lorde agayne. And the Lorde answered him and sayde: Arise, & go downe to keilah, for I will deliuer the Philistines in to thynne hande.

And so David and his men went to keilah, and fought with the Philistines, & dzoue a waye their catell, and smote them with a great slaughter. And so David saued the inhabitants of keilah. And it chaunced, when Abiathar the sonne of Ahimelech fled to David to keilah, that he brought an Ephod with him in his hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that David was come to keilah. And Saul sayde: God hath deliuered hi into myne had. for he is shut in now y he is come into a towne that hath gates & barres. And Saul called all y people together to warre, for to go downe to keilah, and to beslege David & his men. And David hauig knowlege that Saul imagined myschef agayst him, sayd, to Abiathar y preast: * Wryng the Ephod. Then sayde David: O Lord God of Israel, thi seruaut hath heard, y Saul is about to come agayst keilah to destroye y cytic for my sake: Wyl the men of keilah deliuer me into hys hande? And will Saul come downe, as thy seruaut hath heard saye: O Lord God of Israel, tell they seruaut. And the Lorde sayde: he will come downe. Then sayd David: Will the men of keilah deliuer me and y men that are with me into the hand of Saul? & the Lorde sayde: they will betraue you.

Then David & his men which were vpon a syre hūdyed, arose & departed out of keilah & wēt whether they could. And it was told Saul, that David was fled from keilah, & he let the iourney a lone. David abode i the wilderness in strōg holdes, & remayned in a mountayne in the wilderness of ziph. And Saul sought hi euery daye, but God deliuered him not i to his had. And David saw y Saul was come out, to seke his life. And David was in the wylde of ziph in a thicket. And Jonathas Sauls sone arose, & went to David in to the thicket, & comforted his hand in God, & sayde vnto hym: feare not, for the hand of Saul my father shall not fynd the, & thou shalt be hig ouer Israel, & I must be next vnto the. And that doth Saul my father know. And they made abonde both of them together before the Lorde. And David tarped spyl in the thicket, and Jonathas went to his house. Then came y ziphites to Saul, to Gibeā, saying: Dost thou not David hyde hi selfe fast by ys in strōg holdes, in a thicket that is by y hyl of hachila, on the ryght syde of y wilderness? Now therefore kyng, y mayest come downe accordyng to all the lust of thy soule: come downe, & oure parte shall be to deliuer hym into the kynges hande. And Saul sayde: Blessed are ye in the Lorde: for ye haue compassiō on me. So I praye you, & ordre the matter well, knowe & se his haunt, where hys fote hath bene, and who hath sene him there: for it is tolde me, that he is very sottel, & worketh craftely. Se therefore, & know all y lurking places, where he hideth him selfe, and come ye agayne to me with the certentye, & I will go wyth you. And yf he be in the lād, I will serche hi out thorow out all the thousandes of Iuda.

And they arose, and went to ziph before Saul. But David and his men were in the wilderness of Maon, in the playne y is, on the ryght the ryght hand of Jesimon. Saul also and his men wente to seke: and they tolde David. Wherefore he went vnto a Roche, and abode in the wilderness of Maon. And whē Saul hearde that, he folowed after David in the wilderness of Maon. And Saul & his men went on the one syde of the mountayne, & David & his men on the other syde. And David toke thought, how to get frō Saul. For Saul & his me copased David & his men, rounde about, to take them.

But there cam a messenger to Saul, sayig: Hast the, & come, for the Philistines are come into the lād. Wherefore, Saul returned from persecuting David, & went agaynst the Philistines. And therfore is it, y they called the place: The rock of separacion. And David went thence, & dwelt in strong holdes at Engadi.

The. xxxiii. Chapter.

David fleeth into Engadi and thre hydyth hym in a cave. Saul cometh in thither to do hys easement.

When Saul was come agayne from folowig after the Philistines, it fortuned, that there were, which told hi sayig: beholde, David is in y wilderness of Engadi. Then Saul toke thre thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seke David and his me in the heigth of the Rockies, where wilde gootes remayne.

And he cam to the flockes of shepe in the waye. And Saul went in to a cave to couer his fete. And David and hys me remayned in the inward partes of the caue. And the men of David sayd vnto him: se, y daye is come, of which the Lorde sayde vnto the: Beholde: I will deliuer thynne enemyes into thynne had, & y shalt do to him as it shall seme good in thy syght. Then David arose and cutt of a lappe of Sauls garment priuelye. And immediatly y Davids hert smote hym because he had cutt of a lapp of Sauls garment. And he sayde vnto his men: the Lorde kepe me frō doing that thig vnto my master y Lords anoynted, to laye mine hande vpon hym, seynge he is the anoynted of the Lorde. * (for as truly as the Lord lyueth, excepte the Lorde smyte him, or excepte his daye come, or yf he go not downe to warre and preiher the Lorde be mercifull vnto me, that I laye not my had vpon the Lorde anoynted.) And so David kept of hys seruantes with these wordes, and soffred them not to ryle agaynst Saul.

But Saul rose vp out of the caue & went a waye, David also arose and went out of the caue, and cryed after Saul, saying: My Lorde kyng. And when Saul looked behynde hym. David stowed to the erth, and bowed him selfe, & sayd to Saul: wherefore geuest thou an eare to mennes wordes that saye, David seketh euell agaynst the? Beholde, this daye thynne eyes haue sene.

how that the Lorde had deliuered the thys daye into myne hand in the caue. And some bad me kyll the, but I had compassiō on the, and sayde: I will not laye my handes on my master, for he is the Lordes anoynted. And mozeouer, my father, behold, & se yet the lapp of thy garment in my hand: in as moch as I kyled the not, when I cutt of y lapp of thy garment. Understande therfore & se, y there is nether euell nor wickednesse in me, and that I haue not spynned agaynst the. And yet thou huntst after my soule to take it. The Lorde be iudge betwene the and me, and the Lorde aduenge me of the. But myne hande be not vpon the. Accordyng as the olde prouerbe sayeth: wyckednesse proceedeth from the wycked: But myne hande be not vpon the. After whom is the kyng of Israel come out? After who dost thou moue persecuciō? after a deed dogg, and after a flee. The Lorde be iudge, and iudge betwene the and me, & se & pleate my cause, and a venge me of thynne hande.

When David had made an ende of speakig these wordes to Saul, Saul sayde: is this thy voyce my sone David? and Saul lyfte vp his voyce, and wepte, and sayde to David: thou art ryghtcouler then I, for thou hast rewarded me with good, where as I haue rewarded the wyth euell. And thou hast shewed thys daye, how that thou hast dealt lounglye wyth me, for as moche as whē the Lorde had locked me in thynne handes, y kyledst me not. For who shall finde his enemye, & lett him depart in to a good waye? Wherefore the Lorde reward y with good, for that thou hast done vnto me this daye. And now beholde, I wote well that thou shalt be kyng, and that the kingdom of Israel shall be stablyshed in thynne hade. Swereno therefor vnto me by the Lorde that thou shalt not destroye my seade after me, & that thou shalt not put my name out of my fathers house. And David & y ware vnto Saul, and Saul wēt home. But David and his men gatt the vp vnto an hold.

The. xxxv. Chapter.

Samuel dyeth. David fleeth into the wilderness of Ibaran.

Ad Samuel dyed, and all the Israelites gathered togethery and lamented hym, and buryed hym in his owne house at Rama.

And David arose, and gat hym to y wilderness of Ibaran. And there was a man in Maon whose possession was in Carmel, and the man was excedyng myghtie, and had thre thousand shepe & a thousand gootes. And he was shepyng his shepe in Carmel.

The name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and she was a woman of a singular wisdom and betwixt. But the man was churlish, and of shrewde conditions, and was of the kynred of Caleb. And David heard in the wilderness, & Abal dyd there hys shepe. And David sent out ten young men, and sayde vnto them: get you vp to Carmel, and go to Abal, and grete hym in my name. And thus shal ye saye: peace be to y, peace be to thyne house, & peace be vnto all that thou hast. Wherofe, I haue heard saye, & y hast shewers. Now thy sheperdes were with vs ^(in the wilderness) and we dyd the no synne, nether was there ought ^(of the flocke) mysfing vnto them, all the whyle they were in Carmel: aske thy laddes, & they will shewe the. Wherofe let these young men fynde fauour in thine eyes (for we come in a good reason) and geue I praye the whatsoeuer cometh to thyne hande, vnto thy seruantes, and to thy sonne David.

And whan Dauids young men came, they tolde Abal all those wordes in y name of David, & the helde they: peace. And Abal answered Dauids seruantes, & sayde: what is David? & what is the sone of Israhel? there is plenty of seruantes now a dayes, that breake awaye euery man from his master. Shal I the take my breed, my water & my fleische? I haue kylled for my shepers, & geue it vnto me who I wote not where they be? And so Dauids seruantes turned their waye, and went agayne, and came and tolde him all those saynges. And David sayd vnto hys men: gyde euery man hys swerde aboute him. And they gydded euery mā his swerde aboute him, & David was gydded with his swerde. And there folowed David vpon a foure hundred men, and two hundred abode by the stuffe. But one of the laddes tolde Abigail Abals wyfe, sayng: Wherofe, David sent messengers vnto oure master out of the wilderness to salute him & he rayled on the. And yet the men are very good vnto vs, & dyd vs no displeasure, nether missed we any thing, as long as we were conuersant with the, when we were in the feldeg. They were a wall of defence vnto vs both by nyght & daye, all the whyle we were with the keeping shepe. Now therfore, take hede, and se what y hast to do, for there is an occasion of euell geuen agaynst oure master and all his household, scynge: he is as a sonne of beliall vngacious to speake to. Then Abigail made hast, & toke two hundred lounes, & two bottles of wine, and fyue shepe readye dressed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundred fringes of fyngges, and laded the on asses, & sayde vnto her young mē: go ye before me. Beholde, I come after you. But she tolde her husband Abal nothing thereof. And as she rode on her asse she came pryncely downe y syde of the hyll, & beholde, David and hys mē came downe agaynst her, & she met the.

And David sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this felow hath in y wilderness: so that nought was mysfied of all y pertayned vnto hym. And he hath quite me euell for good. So and so do God vnto the enemyes of dauid, yf I leaue of all that pertayne to him, by the dawnyng of the daye, any thig that pisseth agaynst the walle.

And when Abigail saw David, she hastened & lyghted of her asse, and fell before David on her face, and bowed her self to y ground and fell at his fete, and sayde: Let this unhappie deade be counted myne, my Lorde, & let thine handmayde speake in thine audience, and heare the wordes of thy handmayde. Let not my Lorde ^(the kyng) regard this vnhyfte mā Abal: for as his name is, so is he. Abal is his name, & follic is w h i. But I thine handmayde saw not y young men of my Lorde who y sendest.

Now therfore my Lorde, as sure as y lord lyueth, & as thy soule lyueth, y Lorde hath withholden the fro coming to shede blood, & withdraw y thine hand fro bloude shedde. Now, I praye God, y thine enemyes & they y entende to do my Lorde euell, may be as Abal. And now this is the blessing which thyne hād mayde hath brought vnto my Lorde: & lett it be geuen vnto y poung men, that folow my Lorde. For geue the trespass of thine handmayde, for the Lord will make my Lorde a sure house, because my Lord fyghteth y batayles of y Lorde, and there coulde none euell be founde in the in all thy dayes. And yf any man ryse to persecute the, & to seke thy soule, y soule of my Lorde shall be bound as y in y hōdell of y lyuing w y Lord thy God. And y soulles of thy enemyes shal God cast out, euen as out of the myde of a flyng. And when y Lord shall haue done to my Lord all the good y he hath promysed y, & shall haue made the ruler ouer Israhel: then shall it be no decap vnto the, ner discourge of herte vnto my Lorde, y thou hast not shedde blood causelesse, ner aduenged thy selfe.

But when the Lord shall haue dealt well with my Lorde, the thynck on thyne handmayde. And David sayd to Abigail: blessed be the Lorde God of Israhel, which sent the this daye to mete me. Blessed is thy sayng, & blessed art thou, which hast kept me thys daye from coming to shede blood, and from aduengyng my self with myne awne hand. For in very deade, as sure as y Lord God of Israhel lyueth, which hath kept me backe from hurtynge the, excepte thou haddest hastened and met me, thinkest y, there had bene left vnto Abal by the dawnyng of the daye, a daye, a pisset agaynst the walle. And so David receaued of her hād, that which she had brought him & sayd to her: go vp in peace to thyne house. Beholde, I haue herde thy voyce, and haue accepted thy persone.

And Abigail came to Abal: and behold, he held a feast in his house, lyke the feast of a kyng, & Abals herte was mery within hi, for he was very droncke. Wherofe she tolde him nothing, nether lytle nor moare, vntill y morow daye. But in y mornynge, whē the wine was gone out of Abal, hys wife tolde him these wordes, and his herte dyed within him, and he became as a stone & vpon a ten dayes after, the Lorde smote Abal, & he dyed. And when David heard that Abal was deed, he sayde: Blessed be the Lorde that hath iudged the cause of my rebuke of the hād of Abal, and hath kept his seruant from euell, and hath recouered the wickednesse of Abal vpo his awne heed. And David sent to comen w Abigail: to thyntēt to take her to his wife. And when the seruantes of David were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her sayng: David sent vs vnto the, to take y to his wife. And she arose, & bowed her self on her face to the erth, and sayde: Beholde: let thy handmayde be a seruant, to waite the fete of the seruantes of my Lord. And Abigail hastened, and arose, and gat her vp vpon an asse, w fyue damoselles of hers y went at her fete, and she went attē y messengers of David, and became hys wife. David also toke Abinoam of Jezrahel, & they were both his wyues. But Saul gaue y Michol hys daughter Dauids wyfe to phalti y sōne of Laish which was of Gallil.

The. xvi. Chapter.

Saul sleapeth in his tent: and David taketh awaye his speare and a cruell of water, that stode at his heed.

He ziphites came vnto Saul to Gibea, sayng: Woth not David hyde hym self in the hill of Hachila which is before Jeshimon? Saul arose, and went downe to the wilderness of ziph, haunyng thre thousande chosē mē of Israhel with hym, for to seke David in the wilderness of ziph. And Saul pitched in the hyll of Hachila which lyeth before Jeshimon, by y waye side. But David dwelt in y wilderness. And he saw that Saul cam after hym into the wilderness. David therfore sent out spyes, & vnderstode, that Saul was come i very dede.

And David arose and came to the place where Saul had pitched, & David beheld the place, where Saul laye, and Abner the sōne of Ner which was his chefe captayne Saul laye within, & the people & the hoste rounde about him. Then answered David and spake to Ahimelech the Hethite, & to Abisai the sonne of Zarnia and brother to Joab, sayng: Who will go downe with me to Saul to the hoste? And Abisai saide: I will go downe with the.

And so David and Abisai came downe to y people by nyght. And behold, Saul laye sleping within the hoste, & his speare stakke in the ground at his heed. But Abner & the people laye round about hym. Then sayde Abisai to David: God hath deliuered thyne enemye into thyne hād this daye. Now therfore, lett me smyte hym once with my speare to the erth, & I wyll not smyte hym the secōde tyme. And David sayde to Abisai: destroye him not. For who can laye his hād on the Lordes anoynted, & be gyltles? And David sayde furthermore: as sure as the Lorde lyueth, the Lorde shall smyte hi or his daye shall come to dye, or he shall descende into battell, & there perishe. The Lord kepe me from laying myne hād vpo the Lordes anoynted: But take thou now the speare that is at his heed, & the cruell of water, & let vs go. And so David toke y speare & the cruell of water from Sauls heed, and they gatt them awaye, and no man saw it or marked yt or awaked. For they were all a slepe, because the Lorde had sent a deade sleape vpon the. Then David went ouer to the other hyde, and stode on the toppe of an hyll a farre of (a great space beynge betwene them) and David cryed to the people, and to Abner the sonne of Ner, sayng: Hearest thou not Abner? Abner answered, and sayde: What art thou that cryest to the hig? and David sayd to Abner: art not thou a man: and who is lyke the in Israhel? Wherofe the hast thou not kept thy Lord the kyng? For there is me one of the folke in, to destroy the kyng thy lord. It is not good that y hast done. As truly as the Lorde lyueth, y are woth thy to dye, because ye haue not kepte yōre master, the Lordes anoynted. And now se where the kynges speare is and the cruell of water, that was at his heed.

And Saul knew Dauids voyce, & sayde: Is this thy voyce my sōne David? & David sayd: it is my voyce, my Lord, O kyng. And he sayde: wherofe doth my lord thus persecute his seruant? for what haue I done? or what euell is in myne hād? Now therfore let my Lord the kyng heare y wordes of his seruant. If y Lorde haue stered y vpon agaynst me, let hi smell the sauoure of a sacrifice. But yf they be y children of men, cursed are they before y lord for they haue cast me out this daye fro abiding i y enheritance of the Lord, sayng: hece, & go serue other gods. Now therfore let not my blood fall to the erth before the face of the lord. For the kyng of Israhel is come out to vs a flee, as whan one doth hunt a paretge in the most ayres. Then sayde Saul: I haue synned, come agayn my sone David, for I will do þe no moare harme, because my soule was precious in thine eyes thys daye. Beholde, I haue playd the fole, & haue erred exceedingly. And David answered and sayd: Behold, þe kynges speare, lett one of þe young men come ouer, & fette it. The Lorde reward euery man accordyng to his ryghte weelwille. & sayth: for þe Lorde deliuered the into my hand thys daye, but I wolde not laye myne hand vpon þe Lorde's anoynted. And beholde, lyke as thy lyfe was moche set bye this daye in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lorde, that he deliuer me out of all tribulacion. Then Saul sayd to David: Blessed art thou my sone David, for thou shalt be a doer and pcurayle. And so David went his waye, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

¶ III a flee,

The xxvii. Chapter.

David fleeth to Achis kyng of Geth.

And David sayde in his hert: I shall perishe one daye or other by the hand of Saul. Therefore is there nothing better for me, then to flee and saue my selfe in the land of the Philistines, and Saul shall cease & seke me nomore in all the coastes of Israel, & so shall I escape out of his hand. And David arole, & he & þe fyre hyndred men þe were w him went vnto Achis, þe sonne of Maach, kyng of Geth. And David dwelt w Achis at Geth, both he & his men, euery man w his houtholde, & David w hys two wyues: Abinoa þe Jezraelite, & Abigail Nabals wife of Carmel. And it was tolde Saul, þe David was fled to Geth, and he sought no moare for him. And David sayd vnto Achis: If I haue now found grace in thine eyes, lett thegeue me a place in some towne i þe felde, þe I maye dwell there. For why shulde thy seruaut dwell i þe heed cytie of þe kyngdome w þe? Then Achis gaue hym zikleg þe same daye, for which cause zikleg pertauneth vnto the kynges of Iuda vnto thys daye. And þe tyme that David dwelt i þe cōtrepe of the Philistines, was foure monethes, and certayne dayes. And David & his men wēt vp, and ranne vpo the Gerizites, the Gerizites & þe Amalekites: for those nations were fro the begynnyng the inhabiteres of the lande, as men go to Sur, vnto the lāde of Egypte. And David smote the land, and lett nether man ner woman alpye, and droue awaye the shepe, the oxen, the asses, camelles, and clothes, and returned, and came to Achis. And Achis sayde: where haue ye bene a roung this daye? And David answered: Toward þe south of Iuda, & toward þe south of the Jezraelites, & toward the south of the Gerizites. And David saued nether mā nor woman alpye ner suffred them to come to Geth, for feare (sayeth he) lest they shuld telle on vs saig to dyd David & so wylde his maner all the while he dwelleth in the cōtrepe of the Philistines. And Achis beleued David sayng he abhorreth his people of Israel, & therefore he shalbe my seruaut for euer.

The xxviii. Chapter.

The Philistines moue warre agaynst Saul which seeketh after an enchaunter.

And it chaunced in those dayes, that the Philistines gathered their hoost together to warre, to fyght with Israel. And Achis sayde to David: Behold, thou shalt goo out with me to the battell, thou & the men þe are with the. And David sayde to Achis: then þe shalt know, what thy seruaut can do. And Achis sayde agayne to David: Then I will make þe keeper of my heed for euer. Samuel was then deed, & all Israel had lameded hym, & buryed him i Rama his awne cytie. And Saul hat put þe wemen that had spyetes of prophesye, & þe sorthslayers out of the lād. And the Philistines gathered together, & came, & pitched in Sunem. And Saul gathered all Israel together, & they pitched in Giboa: And whē Saul saw the hoste of the Philistines, he was afrayed, & his hert was sore astonied. And whan Saul asked counsell of the Lorde, the Lorde answered hi not, nether by dreames, nor by Urim nor yet by prophetes. The sayd Saul vnto his seruantes: seke me a woman that hath a spyete of prophesye, þe I maye go to her & aske of her. And hys seruantes sayde to him: Beholde, there is a woman that hath a spyete of prophesye at Endor.

And Saul chaunged himself, and put on other rayment, & then went he & two men with hym, and they came to the woman by nyght. And he sayde: prophesye vnto me by þe spyete, & bring me him vp whō I shall name vnto the. And the womā sayde vnto hym: Beholde thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath destroyed þe wemen that had prophesying spyetes, & the sorcerars out of the lāde. Wherefore then sekest thou an occasion agaynst my soule, that he maye kyll me? And Saul swore to her by the Lorde sayng: As luerly as þe Lorde lyueth, there shall no harme chaunce þe for this thyng. The sayd þe womā: whō shall I fetch vnto the? He answered: Bring me vp Samuel. Whē þe woman saw Samuel, she cryed w a lowde voyce, and spake to Saul sayng: why hast thou disceaued me? for þe art Saul. And þe kyng sayde vnto her, be not afrayed: What seest thou? The womā sayd vnto Saul: I se goddes ascēdig vp out of

out of the erth. He sayde vnto her agayne: what fastid is he of? She answered: there cometh vp an olde man w a mantell vpo hym. And Saul perceaued þe it was Samuel & he stouped w his face to the grounde, & bowed hym selfe. And Samuel sayd to Saul: why hast thou vnquieted me, to make me be brought vp? Saul answered: I am sore encombred, for the Philistynes make warre agaynst me, & God is departed from me and answereth me no more, nether by prophetes, nether by dreames. And therefore I haue called the, þe thou mayest tell me, what I shall do. Then sayd Samuel: wherefore doest þe aske of me, whyle þe Lorde is gone from the, & is become thine enemye? Truly þe Lorde hath done for hym selfe, euen as he spake & by my hād. For the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome out of thine hande, & geue it thy neybour David. Because thou obeyedst not þe voyce of the Lorde, nor executedst hys searce wraoth vpo the Amalekites, therefore hath þe Lorde done this vnto the this daye. And moreover, the Lorde wyl deliuer Israel w the, into the hādes of the Philistines. & Comowen shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me, and the Lorde shall geue the hoste of Israel into the hādes of þe Philistines. Then Saul fell streyght waye flatte on the erth a longe as he was, and was sore adread because of the wordes of Samuel.

And there was no strength in hym, for he had eatē no bread all the daye and the nyght before. And the womā cam vnto Saul, and saue that he was sore troubled, and sayde vnto hym: Se, thine hād mayd hath obeyed thy voyce, & I haue put my soule in my hande, and haue harkened vnto thy wordes, which thou saydest vnto me. Nowe therefore harken thou also vnto þe voyce of thine hād mayd, and let me sett a morsell of bread before the, that thou mayest eate and gett the strength, & then go on thy iourneye. He refused, and sayde: I wyl not eate. But hys seruantes & the womā together cōpelled him, and he hearkened vnto theyr voyce. And so he arole from the erth, and sat him on a bedd. The woman had a fat calfe in the house, and she halsted & kyllid it, and toke flowre & knebed it, and dyd bake swete cakes thereof, and brought the before Saul and before his seruantes. And whē they had eatē, they stode vp, and went awaye the same nyght.

The xxix. Chapter.

David goeth with kyng Achis to fyght agaynst Saul.

And the Philistines were gathered together all their armyes vnto Aphec. And þe Israelites pitched in Aitin, which is i Jezrael. And þe Lorde of the Philistines wēt forth w the hundredes & thousandes. But David & his men came behide w Achis. Then sayde the Lorde of the Philistines, what are pouder Chaucs? Achis sayd vnto þe Lorde of þe Philistines: Is not thys David the seruaut of Saul the kyng of Israel, whych hath bene wyth me these dayes of petes? I haue founde no fault in hym, sence he fledd vnto me vnto thys daye. And the Lorde of the Philistines were wroth wyth hym and sayde vnto hym: Make this felowe retorne, that he maye go agayne to hys place whych thou hast appoynted hym: and let hym not go downe wyth vs to battell, lest in the battell he be an aduersarye to vs. For wher wyth coulde he better obtayne the sauoure of hys master, then wyth the heedes of these men? Is not thys David, to whō they singe in daunces? Saul sue hys thousande, and David hys ten thousande? Then Achis called David, and sayde vnto hym: As sure as the Lorde lyueth, thou hast bene honest, and good in my syght, whan thou wentest out & in wyth me in the hoost: neyther haue I founde euell with the, sence thou camest to me vnto thys daye. Reuercheleste the Lorde of þe Philistines saoure the not: Wherefore now retorne, & go in peace, that thou displeast not the Lorde of the Philistynes. And David sayde vnto Achis: And what haue I done? what hast thou founde in thy seruaut, as lōg as I haue bene wyth the vnto thys daye, þe I maye not go fyght against the enemyes of my Lorde the kynges?

Achis answered & sayd to David: I knowe that thou art good, & art in my syght, as an Angell of God. Not wythstandinge the Lorde of the Philistynes haue sayde: Let hym not go vp w vs to battell. Wherefore nowe ryse vp earlye in þe mornynge w thy masters seruantes that are come to the: and when ye be vp earlye (as sone as ye haue lyght) departe. And so David and his men rose vp earlye to departe in the mornynge, & to retorne into the land of the Philistines. And þe Philistines went vnto Jezrael.

The xxx. Chapter.

David returnyng from kyng Achis smytheth zikleg & burneth.

But whan David & hys men were come to zikleg the thirde daye, the Amalekites had rushed in vpon the south, and vpon zikleg, & had smytten zikleg, & burnid it w fyre, & had taken the wemen (þe were therin) psoners, both small & great: but slew not a mā, saue carped them w the, & wēt theyr wayes. So David and hys men came to the cytie: & beholde, it was burnt with fyre, & the wyues, theyr sonnes and their daughters were carped awaye. Then David and the people that was wyth hym, lyfte vp their voyces & wept, vntill they coulde wepe no more. And David & his men were take psoners also: Abinoam the Jezrebelite, and abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite. And David was in a shewe combrance: for the people entended to stone hym, because the vertes of all the people were vexed for theyr sonnes & theyr daughters.

But David toke a good courage to hym in the Lorde hym God & sayde to Abiathar the preste Abimelechs sonne: I pray þ, bring me the Ephod. And Abiathar brought the Ephod to David. And David asked counsell at the Lorde, sayinge: shall I folowe after this companie: and shall I ouertake them? And he answered him: folow, for thou shalt ouertake them, and recouer the praye.

So David and the syxe hundred men that were with hym, wet & cam to the ruer Besoz, where a part of them abode. But David and foure hundred men folowed: for two hundred abode behinde, bryngge to werpe to go ouer the ruer Besoz. And they foude an Egyptian in the felde, and brought hym to David: and gaue hym bread to eate, & water to dryncke, & gaue hym a fewe fygges & two clousters of reasings. And when he had eaten, hym spere cam agayne to hym: for he had eaten, no bread nor dryncke no water in thre dayes & thre nyghtes. And David sayd vnto him: to whom belogest thou? & whence art thou? he sayd: I am a poge mā of Egypt and seruant to an Amalekite: and my master left me behynde, because it is thre dayes agone, & I fell spcke: we came a roung vpo the south of Chetius, and against Iuda, and towarde the south of Caleb. And we burnt zikleg with fyre. And David sayde to hym: canst thou bryngge me to this companie? And he sayde: swere vnto me by God, that thou wilt nether kyll me, nor deliuer me into the handes of my master, and I will bryngge the to the companie. And whē he had brought hym thither, beholde, they laye skatered a-broade vpo the erth, eatynge & drynckynge, & daunfynge, because of the pleuous & great pray, & they had caried awaye out of þ land of the Philistines, & out of the lāde of Iuda.

And David layd vpon the from the euen, vntill the twylyght on the morow: so þ there escaped not a man of them, save foure hundred young men which rode awaye vpo camels, and fledd. And David recouered all þ the Amalekites had caried awaye, & David rescued hym two wyues: so that ther was no person of them lacking, small or grent, sonne or daughter, or of the spoyle of all that they had take awaye. David recouered them all agayne. And David toke all the shepe, & the oxen. And they dāne them before his catell, & sayd: this is David's pray. And David came to the two hundred men, & were to werpe for to folowe David, whom they had made also to abyde at the ruer Besoz. And they cam to mete David, & þ people þ were with him. And whē David cam to þ people, he saluted the. Then answered all the wycked & the vntyftes (of the men þ went with David) & sayde: because they went not with vs, therfore will we geue them none of þ praye, that we haue recouered. But let every man take hym wyfe and hym chyldren: Those lett them carie awaye, and be walkynge.

Then sayde David: ye shall not do so (my brethren) w that which the Lorde hath geuen vs, & hath preserued vs, & deliuered the companye þ came agaynst vs, into oure handes. For who shuld herke vnto you in this matter? But as hym parte is þ goeth downe & fyghteth, so shall his parte be, that taryeth by the stuffe, & it maye be parted alyke. And so from þ daye forwarde: was that made a statute & lawe in Israel, vntill this daye. When David therfore cam to zikleg, he sent (as he) of the praye vnto the elders of Iuda: and to hym frendes sayinge: se, there is a blessing for you, of the spoyle of the encirpes of the Lorde. He sent to them of Bethel: to them of south Ramoth: to the of Jathir: to them of Aroer: to them of Sephamoth: to them of Ekemoa: to them of Rachel: to them of the cyties of Ierahmeel: to them of the cyties of the knites: to them of hozma: to them of Bosasan: to them of Aithach: to the that are in Hebrō, and in all places, wher David and hym men were wont to haunt.

The xxxi. Chapter.

Saul killeth hym selfe, and hym chyldren are slayne in the battell.

David & the men of Israel fledd awaye from the Philistines, & fell downe wounded in mount Gilboa. And the Philistynes preased fore vpon Saul & his sonnes, & slewe Jonathan, & Abinadab & Melchishua Sauls sonnes. And whā the battell went fore agaynst Saul, the archers with bowes founde hym, & he was fore afrayed of the archers. Then sayd Saul vnto his harnesberer: draw out thy swerde, & thrust me thorowe therwith, lest these vncircused come, & thrust me thorowe and make a mockynge stocke of me. But hym harnesberer wolde not, for he was fore afrayed. And Saul toke a swerde, and fell vpon it. And whē his harnesberer sawe that Saul was deed, he fell lykewyse vpon his swerde, & dyed with hym. And so Saul dyed, & his thre sonnes, and his harnesberer, and all hym men that came daye togeather.

And when the men of Israel that were on þ other syde of þ valeye, & they of þ other syde Jordan, heard, that the men of Israel were put to flight, and that Saul and hym sonnes were deed, they left the cyties, & rāne awaye and the Philistines cam, and dwelt in them.

* On the

On the morowe when þ Philistines were come to spoyle them that were slayne, they founde Saul and hym thre sonnes lyenge in mount Gilboa. And they cut of his heed, and stripped him out of his harnesse: & sent into the lande of the Philistines on euery syde, & they shulde publyshe it in the temple of their Idoles, and amonge the people. And they layd vpon hym harnesse in the house of Ashtaroth, but they hanged vpon hym body on the wall of Bethsan. When the inhabitants of Iabes in Gilead hearde therof, what the Philistines had done to Saul, they arose (as many as were stronge men) and went all nyght and toke the body of Saul, and the bodies of hym sonnes fro the wall of Bethsan, and came to Iabes, and burnt them there and toke their bones and buryed them vnder a tree at Iabes, and fasted seven dayes.

The fyrst Chapter.

The lamentacion of David for Saul & Jonathan.

After the death of Saul when David was returned from the slaughter of the Amalekites, and had bene two dayes in zikleg: Beholde, there came a mā the thyrde daye out of the hoste from Saul, with his clothes rent and erth vpon hym heed. And when he came to David, he fell to the erth and dyd obeysaunce. David sayde vnto him: whence comest thou? he sayde vnto him: Out of the hoste of Israel am I escaped. And David sayde vnto him: And what is chauced? tell me. he sayde: the people is fled from the battell: and many of the people are ouerthrowen, and deed: and Saul & Jonathan his sonne are deed also.

And David sayde vnto the younge man that tolde him these thynges: how knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan hym sonne be deed? The younge man that tolde him, answered: I came by chaunce to mount Gilboa: And beholde, Saul leancd vpon his speare. For the charrettes and companyes of horsemen folowed harde after him. And when he looked backe he sawe me, and called me. And I answered: here am I. And he sayde vnto me: what art thou? I answered hym: I am an Amalekite. he sayde vnto me agayne: Stonde vpo me, and sleme me: for anguysh is come vpon me, though my lyfe be yet all in me. And so I stode vpo hym, and sleue him: for I was sure þ he coude not lyue, after that he had fallen. And I toke the crowne þ was vpon hym heed, and the Brafelet that was on hym arme, and haue brought them hyther vnto my Lorde.

Then David toke holde on hym clothes, & and rent them, and so dyd all the men that were with him. And they mourned, and wepte, and fasted vntill euen, for Saul and Jonathan his sonne, & for the people of the Lorde, and for the house of Israel, because they were ouerthrowen with the swerde.

And David sayde vnto the younge man that brought him these tydinges. Whē art thou? And he answered. I am the sonne of an alpaunt an Amalekite. And David sayde vnto him: Howe is it þ thou wast not afrayed, to laye thyne hande on the Lordes anoynted, to destrope hym? And David called one of his younge men and sayde: Go to, and runne vpon him. And he smote hym: that he dyed: then sayde David vnto him: thy bloude be vpon thyne awne heed. For thyne awne mouth hath testyfyed agaynst the sayinge: I haue slayne the Lordes anoynted.

And David mourned with thys lamentacyon ouer Saul and ouer Jonathan hym sonne, and bad teache the chyldren of Israel the vse of the bowe. And Beholde, it is wyrtten in the boke of the ryght wes. And he sayde: Confyde, O Israel, these that be deed and wound: ded vpon the hye helles. Noble Israel, the wounded are slayne vpo thy hilles: Oh howe are the myghtie ouerthrowen. Tell ye not in Gath, nor publyshe it in þ streates of Ashtalon: lest the daughters of the Philistines reioyse, and lest the daughters of the vncircused triumph. Ye mountaynes of Gilboa, vpon you be nether dewe nor rayne, & not vpon these felde of offerpynges. For there þ shulde of the myghtie is cast downe: þ shulde of Saul, as though he had not bene anoynted with oyle. The bowe of Jonathan & the swerde of Saul turned neuer backe agayne emptye, from the bloude of the slayne, & from ^{* ii. Reg. ii. f.} Joab and Abiſai ſue Abner was, & Abner had ſlayne their brother Iſbail at Gibeon in battell. And Dauid ſayd to Joab, and to all the people that were with hym. ^{* ii. Reg. i. b.} Rent your clothes, and put on ſacke cloth, and mourne before Abner. And hig Dauid himſelf folowed the corſe. And when they buried Abner in hebron, the kyng liſte by his voyce, & wepte beyde the ſepulchre of Abner, and ſo dyd all the people. And the kyng lamented ouer Abner, and ſayde: ^{* i. Reg. x. d.} I died Abner as a foole dieth: thy handes were not bounde, ner thy fete brought into cheynes: but as a man ſallet before wicked childre, ſo ſelleſt thou. And all they that were of the people, wept yet moare ouer hym.

And when all the people came to eate meate with Dauid, while it was yet daye, Dauid ſware ſaying: Soe ſo do God to me, yf I taſt bread or ought elles, tyll the ſonne be downe. And the people wiſt it, and it pleaſed them. And what ſoever the kyng dyd, it pleaſed all the people. For all the people & all Iſrael vnderſtoode that day, how that it was not the kynges dede, & Abner the ſonne of Ner was ſlayne. And the kyng ſayde vnto his ſeruautes: know ye not, how that there is a lord and a great man fallen this daye in Iſrael? And I am this daye tender, and anoynted king. And theſe men the ſonnes of ſarua be to hard for me. The Lord rewarde the doer of euil, accordyng to his wykedneſſe.

The. iiii. Chapter.

Baanah and Rechab ſer Iſboſeth the ſonne of Saul.

^{* ii. Reg. ix. d.} When Sauls ſonne heard that Abner was deed in hebron, his handes were feble, & all the Iſraelites were afrayed: & Sauls ſonne had two men & were cap- tayne ouer the ſouldiars, & one called Baanah, and the other Rechab, the ſonnes of Rimmon a Berothite, of the chyldren of Benjamin: for Beroth was reckened to Benjamin. And theſe Berothites fled to Gethaim, and ſoiourned there vntill the ſame tyme. ^{* ii. Reg. ix. d.} And Jonathan Sauls ſonne had a ſonne that was lame on hys feete. And he was fyue yere olde, when the tydings came of Saul & Jonathan out of Iſrael. And his nourse toke him vp, & fled awaye. And as he made haſt to flee, the childe fell, & began to halt, and hys name was Giphioſeth. And the ſonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, Rechab and Baanah wet, and came in the heat of the daye to the houſe of Iſboſeth, which ſlept on a bed at none. ^{* ii. Reg. ix. d.} And the woman that was the keper of the doore, and cleaſed the wheate, was a ſepte. And they came into the myddes of the houſe: as though they wold haue fetched wheate, and Rechab and Baana hys brother ſmote him vnder the ſhort rybbes and fled. For when they came into the houſe, he ſlept on his bed in hys reſting chamber, and they ſmote hym and ſue him, ad beheaded hym, and toke hys heed, & gat them awaye thorow the plaine all the night. And they brought the heed of Iſboſeth vnto Dauid, to hebron, and ſayde to the kyng: behold, there is the heed of Iſboſeth Sauls ſonne, thine enemye which ſought after thy lyfe. And the Lord hath aduenged my lord the kyng this daye of Saul and of his ſeede. And Dauid answered Rechab and Baana hys brother, the ſonnes of Rimmon the Berothite, and ſayde vnto them: ^{* i. Reg. x. d.} as ſurely as the Lord lyueth, which hath deliuered my ſoule out of all aduerſities: ^{* ii. Reg. ix. d.} When one tolde me & ſayd that Saul was deed, thin- kyng to haue brought good tydings, I caught hym, and ſue hym in ziklag: whych thought that I wolde haue geuen hym a rewarde for hys tydings bringyng. How moch moze wha wycked men haue ſlayne a ryghteous perſon, in his awne houſe and vpo his bed: Shall I not require his bloud of your hande, and take you from the erth? And Dauid commaunded his young men, & they ſue them, and cut off their handes and fete, & hanged them vp ouer the pole in hebron. But they toke the heed of Iſboſeth, and buried it in the ſepulchre of Abner in hebron. ^{* ii. Reg. ix. d.}

The. v. Chapter.

Dauid ſet a gapye anoynted kyng: and taketh the Arcke from Gyon.

^{* i. Reg. x. d.} When came all the trybes of Iſrael to Dauid, vnto hebron and ſayd, Be- holde, we are of thy bone, and of thy fleſhe. And in tyme paſt whē Saul was ouer kyng, thou leddeſt Iſrael in and oute. And the Lord hath ſayd to the: thou ſhalt fede my people Iſrael, and thou ſhalt be a capayne ouer Iſrael. And ſo all the elders of Iſrael came to the kyng to hebron. And kyng Dauid made a couenaunt wyth them in hebron before the Lord. And they anoynted Dauid kyng ouer Iſrael. Dauid was thirtie yere olde, when he began to raygne, and he raygned fourty yere. In hebron he raygned ouer Iuda ſeven yere, and fyve monethes: And in Ieruſalem he raygned thirtie yere and thre yeres ouer all Iſrael and Iuda.

The kyng alſo and his men went to Ieruſalem, vnto the Jebuſites, the inhabitants of the land. Which ſpake vnto Dauid ſay- ing: ^{* i. Reg. x. d.} Except thou take awaye the blynde and the lame, thou ſhalt not come in hither. For they ſayd: Thou art not able to come in hither. Neuertheleſſe Dauid toke the ſtrong holde of Sion. The ſame is the cite of Dauid. And Dauid ſayd the ſame daye: Who ſoever ſoever ſmyteth the Jebuſites, & getteth vp to the gutters of the houſes, & ſmyteth the lame & the blynde & hate the Dauidſ ſoule: ^{* i. Reg. x. d.} Wherefore: they ſayd, the blynde and the lame ſhall not come into the houſe. And ſo Dauid dwelt in the towre, & called it the cite of Dauid, & buylt round about it fro Millo inwarde. And Dauid prospered & grew, and the Lord God of hoſtes was with him. And hiram kyng of Tyre ſent meſſengers to Dauid, and Cedar trees, and carpenters & Maſons for walles: and they built Dauid an houſe. And Dauid perceaued, that the Lord had ſtabliſhed hym kyng ouer Iſrael, & that he had exalted his kingdom for his people Iſraels ſake. And Dauid toke him concubynes and wyues out of Ieruſalem, after he was come from hebron, & mo ſonnes, & daughters were yet borne to Dauid. ^{* i. Reg. x. d.} And theſe be the names of the ſonnes & were borne vnto hym in Ieruſalem: Samsu, Sobab, Nathan, & Salomo, Ithar alſo and Eliſua, Nepheg, & Iaphia, Eliſama Eliada, and Eliaphel.

But when the Philiftines heard, & they had anoynted Dauid kyng ouer Iſrael, they came all vp to ſeke Dauid. And as ſone as Dauid heard of it, he gat hym to an holde. And when the Philiftines came, they layde the a long in the valeye of Rephaim. ^{* i. Reg. x. d.} And Dauid asked counsell of the Lord ſayng: Shall I go vp to the Philiftines? wilt thou deliuer them into my handes? And the Lord answered vnto Dauid: go vp, for I will doubtleſſe deliuer the Philiftines into thy handes. And Dauid came to the playne of Perazim, and ſmote them there, and ſayd: the Lord hath decyded myne enemies aſondre before me, as waters be decyded aſondre. And therefore, the name of the place was called: the playne of Perazim: And there they left their images, & Dauid & his men toke them vp. And the Philiftines came yet agayne, and layd them ſelues in the valeye of Rephaim. And wha Dauid asked at the Lord: ^{* i. Reg. x. d.} Shall I go vp agayne ſo Philiftines? & wilt thou deliuer them into my hande? He answered: Thou ſhalt not go vp: but compaſſe them on the backſyde, & come vpon the ouer agaynſt the Peretrees. And when thou heareſt the noyſe of a thing going in the toppes of the Peretrees, then remoue. For the ſhall the Lord go out before the, to ſmyte the hoſte of the Philiftines. And Dauid did as the Lord had commaunded hym, & ſmote the Philiftines from Gaba, vntill thou come to Gazer.

The. vi. Chapter.

The arcke is brought forth of the houſe of Abinadab. Wha is ſpoken & dyeth, Dauid daunceth before it, & is therefore cryed of hys wyfe Michol.

^{* i. Reg. x. d.} Aſaine: Dauid gathered together all the choſen men of Iſrael, euen thirtie thouſand, & aroſe, & went withall the folke that were with hym of the men of Iuda, to ſett awaye from thence, the Arcke of God: whole name is called the name of the Lord of hoſtes that dwellyth vpon it, betwene the cherubyns. And they put the Arcke of God vpon a new cart, and brought it out of the houſe of Abinadab & was at Gibeon. And Elza & Abio the ſonnes of Abinadab draue the new carte. And whē they brought it out of the houſe of Abinadab that was at Gibeon, with the Arcke of God, Abio wet before the Arcke. And Dauid and all the houſe of Iſrael playde before the Lord in ſondrye inſtrumentes made of Cete wood, with harpes, psalteries, tymbrells, ſedylles, and ſymbals.

And when they came to Nachons thre- tyng floure, Elza put his hand to the arcke of God, and held it, for the oxen ſtumbled. And the Lord was wroth wyth Elza, and God ſmote him in the ſame place for his fault, and there he dyed before the Arcke of God. And Dauid was diſpleaſed, becauſe the Lord had ſmytten Elza. And the name of the place was called Perez. The retyng of Elza, vntill thys daye. And Dauid was then afrayed of the Lord, and ſayde: how ſhall the Arcke of the Lord come to me? And ſo Dauid wolde not bring the Arcke of the Lord vnto him into the cite of Dauid. But Dauid caried it into the houſe of Obeth Edom a Gethite. And the Arcke of the Lord continued in the houſe of Obeth Edom the Gethite, thre monethes, and the Lord bleſſed Obeth Edom, and all hys houſholde. And one tolde kyng Dauid, how that the Lord had bleſſed the houſe of Obeth Edom, and all that pertayned vnto hym, becauſe of the Arcke of God. And Dauid went and brought the Arcke of God from the houſe of Obeth Edom, into the cite of Dauid wyth gladneſſe. ^{* i. Reg. x. d.} (And there were with Dauid ſeven coſtes of balcers, & calues for ſacrifices.) And when they that bare the Arcke of the Lord, had gone fyve ſpaces, he offered an ore and a fat ſhepe. And Dauid ^{* i. Reg. x. d.} (played on harpe ſtrings, and) daunced before the Lord withall his myght, and was gydded with a lynnyn Ephod. So Dauid and all the houſe of Iſrael brought the arch: (of the couenaunt) of the Lord, wyth howtyng and trumpet blowyng.

And it fortuneth, that as the arcke of the Lord came into the cite of Dauid, Michol Sauls daughter looked thorow a window, and ſaw kyng Dauid ſpyng, and daunce before the Lord, and ſhe diſpyled hym in her heart. And when they brought in the Arcke of the Lorde. they set it in his place. euen in the myddes of the tabernacle & David had pitched for it. And David offered burnt offerings & peace offerings before the lord. And as sone as David had made an ende of offering burnt offerings & peace offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the Lord of hostes, & gaue among all the folke, euen amonge the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men, to euery one a Cake of bread, & a peece of fleshe, & a flasket of dryncke. And so all the people departed euery one to his house.

Then David returned to & blessed his household: and Michol & daughter of Saul came out to meete David, & sayd: O how glorious was & hig of Israel this daye, which was vncouered to daye, in & eyes of & maydens of his seruantes, as if it had bene a lyght brayned felow vncouered. And David sayd vnto Michol. I thought to dance before the Lord, which chose me rather the thy father, & all his kynne, and commaunded me to be ruler ouer all the people of & Lord eue ouer Israel. And therefore will I playe before the Lorde. And wilbe yet more vyle then so, & wilbe meke in myne awne syght: & of the very same maydeseruantes which thou hast spokē of: shal I be had in honoure. Therefore Michol & daughter of Saul had no chylde, vnto the daye of her deeth.

The vii. Chapter.

David would build God a house: but he forbyde: den of God.

Fortuned, that as the kyng satt in his house (after & the Lord had geuen hym rest roude about fro all his enemies) he sayde vnto Nathan the prophet: behold, I dwell now in an house of Cedar trees, but the Arcke of God dwelleth within the curtayne. And Nathan sayd vnto the kyng: go & do all that is in thine heart for the Lord is with the.

And it fortunēd the same nyght that the word of the lord came vnto Nathan saye: go and tell my seruant David, thus sayth the Lorde: shalt thou bylde me an house to dwelle in? For I haue not dwelt in any house, sence the tyme & I brought the chylde of Israel out of Egypt, vnto this daye: but haue walked, in a tent and tabernacle. In all the places where in I haue walked with all the chylde of Israel, spake I one word to any of the tribes of Israel (I sence I commaunded the iudges to fede my people Israel) sayeng: why bylde ye not me an house of Cedar trees? Now therefore, so saye vnto my seruant David: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes. * I toke the from the shepe cote (as thou wast folowynge shepe) that thou myghtest be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And I was with the in all that thou wentest to, & haue destroyed all thynne enemies out of thy syght, and haue made the a great name, lyke vnto the name of the great men that are in the worlde. And therefore, I will appoynt a place for my people Israel, and will plant it, & they may dwell in a place of their awne, and moue no moare, nether shall wyckyd people trouble the any moare, as they did at the begynnyng: sence the tyme that I sett Iudges ouer my people Israel. And I will geue the rest from all thine enemies. And the Lord telleth the, that he will make the an howse.

And when thy dayes be fulfilled, & shalt sleepe wyth thy fathers, and I will set vp thy seede after the, which shall proceed out of thy bodye, & will stablysh his kyngdome. * he shall bylde an house for my name, & I will stablysh the seate of his kyngdome for euer. * I will be his father, and he shalbe my sonne: * & if he synne, I will chasten hym with the rodde as men be chastened, & w soche plagis as the chylde of me be plagued w. But my mercie shal not depart awaye fro hi, as I toke it fro Saul, whom I put downe before the. And thynne house & thy kyngdome shall endure w out ende after the, * and thy seate shalbe stablyshed for euer. According to all these wordes and accordyng to all thys visyon, dyd Nathan speake vnto David. Then went David in, and set hym downe before the Lord, and sayde: what am I, O Lord God? and what is my house? that thou shuldest haue brought me this farre forth? And this was yet a small thing in thy sight, O Lord God, but & hast spokē also of thy seruantes house for a great while to come: for & this is & vyle of mā, O Lord God. And what can David saye moare vnto the: for thou Lord God knowest thy seruant. & Eue for thy wordes sake & according to thine awne heart hast & done all these greates thynges to make them knowen vnto thy seruant.

Wherefore thou art great, O Lord God: for there is none lyke the * nether is there any God saue thou, accordyng to all that we haue heard w oure eares. * And what one people in the erth is lyke thy people Israel? * whose God, went & deliuered them, that they myght be his people, & that he myght make hym a name, & to shewe great & terrible things in & erthe, for thy people * which thou redemedst to the out of Egypt, eue the people with their goddes. For thou hast ordeyned thy people Israel, to be thy people for euer. And & Lorde art become the & God. And now (Lord God) the worde that thou hast spoken concernyng thy seruant and his house: make it good for euer, and do as thou hast sayd. For so shall thy name be magnified magnified for euer, of men & shall saye: the Lorde of hostes is the God of Israel: and the house of thy seruant shall be stablyshed before the. For & O Lord of hostes, God of Israel, hast tolde in the care of thy seruant, sayeng: * I will bylde the an house. And therefore hath thy seruant found in his heart, to praye this prayer vnto &. * Therefore now Lord God, thou art God, and thy wordes must be true, thou that hast tolde this goodnesse vnto thy seruant. And now go to, and blesse the house of thy seruant, that it maye contynue for euer before the. for & Lord God hast spokē it, and with thy blessing shall the house of thy seruant be blessed for euer.

The viii. Chapter.

David ouercometh the Philistines.

After this it fortunēd & David smote the Philistines, and subdued them, & toke the byrdell of bondage out of the bande of the Philistines. * And he smote & Moabites & measured them with a lyne, & cast the downe to the ground. * Euen wyth two lynes measured he them whom he slue, and the length of one lyne saued he a lyne. And so became the Moabites Davids seruantes, & payed tribute. David smote also, Hadarezer the sonne of Rehob kyng of zoba as he went to reconer his border at the ryuer Euphrat. And David toke a thousand & seven hundred horsmen of his hoost, and twentye thousand fote men, and cut of the hofe of all his charette horses, referuyng onely one hundred charettes. And whā the Sirians of Damascon came to succoure Hadarezer kyng of zoba, David slue of the Sirians two and twentye thousand men, and put souldyours in Siria Damascon. And & Sirians became seruantes, to David, payng tribute. And thus & Lord sarned David, in all that he wet vnto. And David toke & sheldes of gold that belonged to the seruantes of Hadarezer, & brought them to Ierusalem. And out of Betan & Berothai (cittes of Hadarezer) did David bring exceeding moch brasse. * (wherof Salomon made all the brasen vessel in the temple, & the brasen lanternes, and the pillars, and the altare.)

Whē Choi kyng of Amath heard how David had smytten all the hoste of Hadarezer, he sent Jooram his sonne vnto kyng David, to salute hym with peace, & to blesse hym, because he had fought agaynst Hadarezer, and beaten hym: for Choi had greate warre w Hadarezer, which Jooram brought with hi, vesselles of siluer, vesselles of golde, and vesselles of brasse. Which brasse kyng David dyd dedicat vnto the Lord w the syluer and golde that he had consecrated of all nacjons, whych he subdued: of Siria of the Moabites, & of the chylde of Ammon, of the Philistines, & of Hamath, and of the spoule of Hadarezer sonne of Rehob kyng of zoba. And David gat hym a name after that he returned & had smytten of the Sirians in the valeye of Salt. xviij. thousand men. * And he put keepers in Edom, euen thozow out al Edom put he souldyours, & all they of Edom became Davids seruantes, And the Lorde kept David whatsoeuer he toke in hand. And David raygned ouer all Israel, and executed ryght, & Justice vnto all his people. And * Joab the sonne of Zarahiah was ouer the host, and Jehoshaphat & sonne of Ahitub was recorder. And Sadach the sonne of Ahitub, & Bimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the Priestes, and Sarai was the Scribe. And * Banaiahu & sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Cherethites and the Phelthites: & Davids sonnes were these rulers.

The ix. Chapter.

David restoreth all the felde of Saul, to Goliath: booteh the sonne of Jonathan.

And David sayd: is there yet any mā left of & house of Saul? For I will shew hym mercie for Jonathan sake. And there was of & household of Saul a seruant who se name was ziba: & whan they had called hym vnto David, the kyng sayd vnto him: art thou ziba? he sayd: thy seruant is he. And & kyng sayde: remaineth ther yet any man of & house of Saul, who I maye shew the mercie of God vpo: ziba answered the kyng: * Jonathan hath yet a sonne, which is lame on his fete. The kyng sayd vnto him: where is he? ziba sayd vnto the kyng: behold, he is in the house of Machir & sonne of Amiel of Lodeber. Then kyng David sent, & fett hym out of the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel, out of Lodeber. Now when Hiphiboseh the sonne of Jonathan, & sonne of Saul was come vnto David, he fell on his face, and did reuerence. And the kyng sayde: Hiphiboseh? he answered: Behold thy seruant. David sayde vnto him: feare not, for I will surely shew the kindnesse for Jonathan thy fathers sake, & will restore &

That was come to him. And David was exceeding wroth wth the man, and sayde to Nathan: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, the man that hath done this thyng * is * the chylde of death. He shall restore the lambe * twyle foure folde, because he dyd thys thyng, and had no pitye. And Nathan sayth to David: thou art the mā. Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, * I anoynted the kynge ouer Israel, and rydde the out of the hāde of Saul, I gaue the thy masters house, and thy masters wyues into thy bosome, and gaue the, the house of Israel and of Iuda, & night (yf that had bene to lyte) haue geuen the so moche moare. Wherfore then hast thou despised the commaundement of the Lorde, to do wyckednesse in hys syght / thou hast kylde Urias the Iethite with the swerde, and hast takē his wife to thy wyfe, & hast slayne hym with the swerde of the chyldezen of Ammon.

Nowe therfore, the swerde shall neuer depart from thyne house, because thou hast despised me, and taken the wyfe of Urias the Iethite, to be thy wife. Wherfore thus sayth the Lorde: beholde, I wyll steepe by euell agaynst the, euen out of thyne awne house, & wyll * take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and geue them vnto thy nepghbour, and he shall lye wth thy wyues * in the syght of the sonne. For thou dydest it secretly, But I wyll do thys thyng before all Israel, and in the open sonne lpght.

And David sayde vnto Nathan * I haue sinned agaynst the Lorde. And Nathan sayd vnto David: the Lorde also hath put away thy synne, thou shalt not dye. Howbeit, because in doyng thys deade, thou hast geuen the enemyes of the Lorde a cause to rāple, the chylde that is borne vnto the, shall surely dye. And Nathan departed vnto hys house. And the Lorde stroke the chylde that Urias wyfe bare vnto David, and it sickened sore. David therfore besought God for y^e chylde, and fasted and went in, and laye all nyght vpon the erthe. And the elders of hys house arose and went to hym, to take him vp from y^e erth. But he wolde not, neither dyd he eate meat wth them.

And it happened the seuenth daye, that y^e chylde dyed. And the seruantes of David durst not tell him, that the chylde was deed. For they sayd: beholde, while the chylde was yet alyue, we spake vnto hym, and he wolde not hearken vnto oure voyce. Howe wyll he then beke hym selfe, yf we tell hym, that the chylde is deed? But David seynge hys seruantes whysperynge, perceaued, that the chylde was deed, & David sayd vnto hys seruantes: is the chylde deed? They sayde: yee. And David arose fro the erth, and washed and anoynted hym selfe, and chaiged his apparell, & came into the house of the Lorde, & worshypped, & after ward cam to hys awne house and badd y^e they shulde set a bryd before hym, and he dyd eate. Then sayd his seruantes vnto hym: what thyng is thys, that thou hast done? Thou dydest faste and wepe for the chylde, whyle it was a lyue, & as sone as it was deed, thou diddest eate vp, and eate meate. He sayde: whyle the chylde was yet a lyue, I fasted and wepte. For this I thought: who can tell whether God wyll haue mercy on me, that the chylde maye lyue. * But nowe, seynge it is deed, wherfore shulde I fast: can I bynge him agayne any moare? I shall go to hym, rather the he shall come agayne to me. And David comforted Bethsabe his wyfe, and went in vnto her, and laye wth her, and she bare a sonne, and called his name * Salomon, and the Lorde loued hym. And he sent by the hande of Nathan the prophete, and called his name * Jedidias, of the Lordes behalfe.

Joab fought agaynst Raba the cytie of the chyldezen of Ammon, and toke the cyty of the kyngdome. And Joab sent messengers to David, sayeng: I haue made assawt to Raba, and haue taken the cytie wth waters. Nowe therfore geather y^e rest of the people together, and besege the cytie, that thou mayest take it: lest I take it, and call it after my name. And David geathered all y^e people together, and went agaynst Raba, & beleged it, and gatt it. * And he toke the kynges crowne from of hys heed, which waped an hundred wayght of golde, and in it were pcepyous stones. And it was set on Davids heed. And he brought out the spoyle of the cytie in exceeding great aboundance. And he carped out the people that was therein, and put them vpon sawes and vpon yron harowes, and vpo axes of yro, & thrust them into the cylehell. Thus dyd he with all the cyties of the chyldezen of Ammon. And so David and all the people returned vnto Jerusalem.

The xiiij. Chapter.

Amnon Davids sonne despyeth hys syster Thamar. Absalom therfore killeth Amnon.

After this it chaunced that Absalom the sonne of David had a fayre syster, named Thamar, whom Amnon the sonne of David loued. And he was so sore vexed, that he fell sycke for the loue of hys syster Thamar: for she was a vyrgyn, and he thought it harde for hym to haue hys purpose of her. But Amnon had a frende, called Jonadab, y^e sonne of Simeah Davids brother: and Jonadab was a very wyse mā. And he sayde vnto him: how cometh it, that thou beyng the kynges sonne, art thus consumed euery daye? Wylt thou not tell me? Amnon answered hym: I loue Thamar Thamar my brother Absaloms syster. Jonadab sayde vnto him: laye y^e downe on thy bedde, & make thy selfe sicke. And when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto hym: Oh let my syster Thamar come, and geue me meate, & dresse it in my syght, that I maye se it and eate it of her hande.

And so Amnon laye downe, & made hym selfe sicke. And whē the kynge was come to se him, Amnon sayde vnto him: Oh let Thamar my syster come, & make me a couple of frytters in my syght, that I maye eate of her hande. Then David sent home to Thamar, sayeng: go now to thy brother Ammons house, and dresse him meate. So Thamar went to her brother Ammons house, and he was layed downe. And she toke flour, and made paste, and dresed frytters in his syght, & dyd bake them, and toke a platter, & powred them out before him, but he wolde not eate. And Amnon sayde: haue out all men from me. And they went all out from hym. And Amnon sayde vnto Thamar: bynge the meate into the chambze, that I maye eate of thyne hād. And Thamar toke the frytters, whych she had made, & brought them into the chambze to Amnon her brother. And whā she had set the before him, to eate, he toke her, and sayd vnto her: come lye wth me my syster. And she answered him: nay my brother, do not force me, for there hath no such thinge bene done in Israel: do not thou this abhominacion. For whither shall I be able to go wth my shame? And thou shalt be as one of the foles in Israel. O speake vnto the kynge, and he shall not denye me vnto the.

Howbeit he wolde not hearken vnto her voyce but toke her, & forced her, and laye wth her. And the Amnon hated her exceedingly: so that y^e hate wher wth he hated her, was greater then y^e loue, wth which he before loued her. And Amnon sayde vnto her: vp, & get y^e thee. She answered hi: Thou hast no cause. This euell y^e y^e puttest me awaye is greater then y^e other that y^e dydest vnto me. Neurtherlesse he wolde not heare her, but called his boye that serued him, & sayd: put awaye this woman fro me, & bolt y^e doze after her. And she had a kirtell of diuerse coloures vpo her: for so she were y^e kynges daughters (that were virgines) appareled. The his seruā brought her oute, ad locked y^e doze after her. And Thamar toke & put a shew on her heed, & rent her gaye kirtell y^e was on her, & layed her hande on her heed, & so wēt: & as she wēt, cryed. And Absalom her brother sayde vnto her: hath Amnon thy brother bene with the? Now yet he still my syster: he is thy brother. Let not this thyng grene thine hert. And so Thamar remayned desolate in her brother Absaloms house. But whā kynge David heard of all these thynges, he was very wroth.

(And he wolde not beke the syster of Amnon hys sonne for he loued hym, because he was hys syster.) And Absalom sayde vnto hys brother Amnon: nether good ner badd. Howbeit Absalom hated Amnon because he had forced hys syster Thamar.

And it happened after two yere, that Absalom had * shepe shearers in y^e playne of Ba: 302 besyde the trybe of Ephyraim, & had all y^e kynges sonnes, and cam to the kyng, & sayd: beholde, thy seruānt hath shepe shearers, let the kynge wth his seruantes come to thy seruānt. The king answered Absalom: naye my sonne. We will not go all, ner be chargeable vnto the. And Absalom laye sore ypon hym: howbeit he wolde not go, but blessed hym. Then sayd Absalom: yf thou wilt not come, then let my brother Amnon go wth vs. And the kynge answered hym: what nedeth it, that he go wth the? But Absalom made soche instace that he let Amnon, & all y^e kynges chyldezen go with hym.

Nowe had Absalom comaūded his yonge men, sayeng: marke when Ammons hert is mery wth wyne. & when I byd you slayte Amnon, then kyll hym: and feare not, haue not I bydden you be bolde therfore, & slayte the men. And the yonge men of Absalom dyd vnto Amnon euen as Absalom had comaūded. And all the kynges sonnes arose, & euery man gat hym vp, vpon hys hule, & fled. And it fortuned, that whyle they were yet in the waye, y^e dynges cam to David sayeng: Absalom hath slayne all the kynges sonnes, & there is none left alyue. Then David arose, & tare his garmentes, and laye along on y^e erth: & all his seruantes stode by with theyr clothes rent. And Jonadab the sonne of Simeah Davids brother, answered, and sayde: let not my Lorde suppose y^e they haue slayne all the yonge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon only is deed. For that hath bene determined in Absaloms mynde, sence he forced hys syster Thamar. Nowe therfore, let not my Lorde the kynge take the thyng so greuouslye, to thincke that all y^e kynges sonnes are deed, saue Amnon only is deed.

But Absalom fled. And the yonge man that kept the watche, lyfte vp hys eyes, and looked: And beholde, ther cam moche people by a waye, a longe by the hynder parte on an hylls syde. And Jonadab sayde vnto the kynge: beholde, the kynges sonnes come. As thy seruānt sayde, so it is. And as sone as he had leste speakeynge: beholde, the kynges sonnes came, and lyfte vp theyr voyces, and wepte. The kynge also and all hys seruantes wepte exceedingly. But Absalom escaped, and wēt to Chalmat the sonne of Amihur kynge of Gedar. And David mourned for hys sonne euery daye. And so Absalom escaped and went to Gedar, and was there thre yeres. And kyng David desired to go forth unto Absalom: for where as Amnon was deed, he was comforted ouer hym.

¶ The. xliij. Chapter. The. xliij. Chapter. The. xliij. Chapter.

The sonne of zacaria perceaued, that the kynges heart was toward Absalom, & he sent to Tekoa, and fett thence a wyle woman, and sayde vnto her: sayne thy selfe to be a mourner, and put on mourning apparel. And anoynt not thy self with oyle: but be as a woman that had longe tyme mourned for some deed bodye. And come to the kyng, and speake of thys maner vnto hym. And so Joab taught her what she shuld saye.

¶ And when the woman of Tekoa had fallen on her face to the ground, and done obeysaunce, she sayde vnto the kyng: helpe me O kyng. The kyng sayde vnto her: what ayleth the? She answered: I am a wedowe, and myne husbnde is deed. And thy handmayde had two sonnes, and they two fought together in the felde, where was no man to go betwene them: but the one smote the other and slewe hym. And beholde, the whole kyned is rysen agaynst thy handmayde, and they sayd: *delyuer vs him that smote hys brother: that we maye kyll hym for þe soule of his brother whome he slewe. We will destroye the heyre also. And so they shall quenche my sparkle which is left, that he shall steepe vnto my husbnde: neither name nor issue vnto þe erth. And the kyng sayde vnto the woman: go home to thyne house, I wyll geue a charge for the. And the woman of Tekoa sayde vnto the kyng: My Lord O kyng, thys trespase be on me and on my fathers house, and the kyng and hys seate be gyltlesse. And the kyng sayd: yf any man saye ought vnto the, byngng hym to me, and he shall hurte the no moare. Then sayde she: *let the kyng remember hys Lord God, that the auenger of the bloude geather not on heapes together to destroye, and that they slaye not my sonne. And he answered: as sure as the Lord lyueth: there shall not one heere of thy sonne fall to the erthe.

¶ The woman sayde: let thyne handmayde speake one worde moare vnto my Lord þe kyng. And he sayde: saye on. The woman sayde: wherfore the hast þe determined such a thyng agaynst þe people of God? For þe kyng doth speake this thyng as one which is fauoure, that he shulde not sett home agayne hys banesched. For we must nedes dye, & perishe as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be geathered vp agayne: *neither doth God spare any soule. Let the kyng therefore fynde þe meanes, þe hys banesched be not vterly expelled fro hym. Nowe therefore am I come, to speake of this thyng vnto the kyng my Lord: for they þe of the people, haue feared me. And thy handmayde sayde: Nowe wyll I speake vnto þe kyng, paraunter the kyng will perfourme þe request of his handmayde. And the kyng shall heare his handmayde, to delyuer her out of the hande of the man, that wolde haue destroyed me and also my sonne out of þe inheritaunce of God. And thyne handmayde sayde: the worde of my Lord the kyng shall now be comfortable: for my Lord the kyng is as an Angel of God, in hearyng of good and badde: therefore the Lord thy God be with the.

¶ Then the kyng answered, & sayde vnto þe woman: hyde not from me (I praye the) the thyng that I shall aske the. And the woman sayde: let my Lord the kyng now saye on. And the kyng sayde: Is not the hande of Joab with the in all this matter? The woman answered, and sayde: *as sure as thy soule lyueth my Lord kyng, there is els no man on the ryght hande nor on the lefte: but as my Lord the kyng hath spoken, thy seruauit Joab he had me, and he put all these wordes in the mouth of thyne handmayde. For to the intent that I shulde alter my communicacyon, hath thy seruauit Joab done this thinge. And my Lord is wise, eue as an Angel of God, to vnderstand all thynges that are in the erthe. And the kyng sayde vnto Joab beholde, I am content to do this thing. So, and fett home the chylde Absalom agayne. And Joab fell to the ground on his face, and bowed hym selfe, & blessed the kyng. And Joab sayde: nowe thy seruauit knoweth, that I haue founde grace in thy syght (my Lord O kyng) in that the kyng hath fulfilled the request of hys seruauit. And so Joab arose, and wet to Gesur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. And the kyng sayd: let him turne to hys awne house, and not se my face. And so Absalom returned to hys awne house, and sawe not the kynges face.

¶ But in all Israel there was not so goodlye a man as Absalom, for he was very beuysful: so moche þe fro þe sole of his fote to þe toppe of his heed, there was no blemeshe in him. And wher he shaued hys heed (for at euery yere end he shaued it, because þe heer was heuie on hym, hym and must nedes shauet it) the heere of his heed wayed two hundred cycles after the kynges weyght. And this Absalom had thre sonnes bozne him and one daughter, named Thamar, whyche was a layre womā to loken vnto. So Absalom dwelt two yere in Jerusalem, & sawe not the kynges face. Therefore Absalom sent for Joab, to haue sent hym to the kyng. But he wolde not come to him. And whan he sent agayne, he wolde not come. Therefore he sayde vnto hys seruantes: beholde, Joab hath a parcell of lande fast by my place, and he hath barlye therein. So, and set it on fire. And Absaloms seruantes sett it on fyre. ¶ And Joabs seruantes came with their garments rent, and sayde: Absaloms seruantes haue burnt the pyce of lande with fyre.

¶ Then Joab arose & came to Absalom vnto his house, & sayde vnto him: wherfore haue thy seruantes burnt my felde with fyre. And Absalom answered Joab: beholde, I sent for the, desyringe the to come, because I wolde haue sent the to þe kyng, for to saye: wherfore am I come from Gesur. It had bene better for me, to haue bene there still. Nowe therefore, wolde I se the kynges face. And yf there be any trespase in me, kyll thou me. And so Joab came to the kyng, & tolde him: whych whan he had sent for Absalom, he came to the kyng, and fell to the ground on hys face before hym. And the kyng kysed Absalom.

¶ The. xv. Chapter.

¶ Absalom maketh insurreccion agaynst hys father. David is fayne to flete for feare of hym.

After this it fortuned, that Absalom gatt hym charities and horsles, and cystic men to runne before him. And he roose vp earlye in the mornynge, and stode in the place of the entring in of the gate. And euery man that had anye matter and came to the kyng for iudgement, him dyd Absalom call vnto hym, and sayde: of what cystic art thou? he answered: thy seruauit is of one of the trybes of Israel. And Absalom sayde vnto hym: se, thy matter is good and ryght, but there is no man deputed of the kyng to heare the. Absalom sayde mozeouer: Oh, that I were made iudge in the lande, that euery man which hath anye pleye and matter in the lawe, myght come to me, and that I myght do him iustice. And whā any man came nye to hym, and dyd hym obeysaunce, he put forth his hande and toke hym to hym, and kysed hym. And on this maner dyd Absalom to all Israel that came to the kyng for iudgement, and he stole the hertes of the men of Israel. And after fourtye yeres it fortuned that Absalom sayde vnto the kyng: let me go nowe, to Hebron, and paye my vowe which I haue vowed, vnto the Lord: for thy seruauit bowed a vowe: * (when I was in Gesur in the lade of Siria) saye: yf the Lord shall bringe me agayne to Jerusalem, I wyll sette vnto the Lord. And the kyng sayde vnto hym: go in peace. And so he arose, and went to Hebron.

¶ But Absalom sent spyes thowowe out all þe trybes of Israel saye: as sone as ye heare the voyce of the tropet blowe, ye shall saye: Absalom raigneth kyng in Hebron. And with Absalom went two hundred men out of Jerusalem, that were called. And they went w pure hertes, not knowinge of any thyng. And Absalom sent also for Ahithophel the Gilonite Davids counsellor, that he shulde come out of hys cystic Gilo, whyle he offered sacrifices. And there was wrought stronge treason. For the people went and increased w Absalom in multitude. And there cam a messenger to David & sayd: the hertes of the men of Israel are turned after Absalom. And David sayde vnto all his seruantes þe were w him at Jerusalem: vp, þe we maye be gone, for we shall not esse escape from Absalom. Make spede, to departe: lest he come sodenlye, and catche vs, & bringe some myschance vnto vs, and synke the cystic with the edge of the swerde. And þe kynges seruantes sayde vnto him: beholde, thy seruantes are redye, to do what soeuer my Lord þe kyng shall apoynte.

¶ And the kyng & all his household departed a fote. And he left behinde hym * ten concubines, to kepe the house. And so þe kyng & all the people went out a fote, & tarried in a place that was farre of. And all his seruantes wet about him. And all the Gerythites and all the Phlethites and all þe Gethites: * (myghtie men of warre) (euen. vij. hundred men) which were come a fote from Geth) went before the kyng. Then sayde þe kyng to * Ithai the Gethite, wherfore comest thou with vs? Returne and abide with the kyng, for thou art a stranger, and art remoued fro thyne awne place. Thou camest but yester daye, and shulde I vniqueste the to daye to go w vs? I wyll go whether I can. Therefore returne thou, & carpe agayne thy brethren. Merceye and truthe: * (shall the Lord be wnto the.) And Ithai answered the kyng and sayd: as trulpe as God lyueth & as my Lord the kyng lyueth, in what place my Lord the kyng shalbe, whether in deeth or lyfe, euen there also wyll thy seruauit be. And David þe kyng sayde to Ithai: come then, and go forwarde. And Ithai the Gethite went forth, & all hys men, & all the chylde that were w hym. And all the countre wepte wth a loude voyce, & so dyd all the people that wet forth. The kyng also hym selfe passed ouer the broke Lydon. And all the people went towarde the wape þe leader to the wylder-nesse. And Sadock and all þe Leuites were wth wyth him, and bare the arcke of the apoyntment of God. And there they set downe the Arcke of God. And Abiathar went vp, vntill the people were all come ouer, out of the cytie. And the kynge sayde vnto Sadock. Carpe the Arcke of God agayne into the cytie. If I shall fynde fauoure in the eyes of the Lorde, he will bringe me agayne, and shewe me both it, & the tabernacle therof. But and yf the Lorde thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the, beholde, here am I, let him do wyth me, what semeth good in his eyes.

¶ The kynge sayde also vnto Sadock the preaste: Art not thou a Seer? Returne into the cytie in peace. And take your two sonnes wyth you: Ahimaaz thy sonne, and Jonathan the sonne of Abiathar. Beholde, I will tarpe in the felde of the wyldernesse, vntill there come some worde from you to be tolde me. Sadock therfore and Abiathar carped the Arcke of God agayne to Jerusalem, and they tarped there. And David went vp on mount olyuet, and wepte as he went, and had his heed couered, & went barefote. And all the people that was wyth hym, had euery man hys heed couered, and as they went vp, they wepte also. And one tolde David sayenge: Abithophel is one of them that haue conspired wyth Absalom. And David sayde. O Lorde, turne the counsell of Abithophel into folyshenes.

When David was come to the topp of the mount, he worshipped God: and beholde, Husai the Arachite came agaynst hym wyth hys coote torne, and hauynge erth vpon his heed. Vnto whome David sayde: pf thou go wyth me, thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. But yf thou returne to the cytie, & saye vnto Absalom: I wyll be thy seruauit. O kynge: (as I haue thus longe bene thy fathers seruauit, so am I nowe thy seruauit) thou mayst for my sake destroye the counsell of Abithophel. And thou hast there wyth the Sadock and Abiathar the Preastes, vnto whom thou shalt shewe all that thou canst heare out of the kynge's house. And beholde, they haue there wyth the two sonnes: Ahimaaz Sadockes sonne, and Jonathan Abiathars sonne: by them also shall ye sende me all that ye can heare. And so Husai Dauid's frende gat hym to the cytie. And Absalom also entred into Jerusalem.

¶ The xvj. Chapter.

¶ Ziba hys ynge presents to David, dothe falslye accuse Abithophel. Semei curseth David, & howeth to it. Absalom by the counsell of Abithophel, lyeth wyth hys fathers concubines.

¶ And when David was a lytle past the topp of the hyll: beholde ziba the seruauit of Abithophel came to mete hym wyth a couple of Asse ladeled, and vpon them two hundred lounes and one hundred bunches of Resynges, and an hundred trappes of dyed hygges, and a bottell of wyne. And the kynge sayd vnto ziba: what meanest thou wyth these? And ziba sayde. They be Asse for the kynge's household to ryde on, and bread and frute for the younge men to eate, and wyne: that such as be saynt in the wyldernesse, maye drynke. And the kynge sayde: where is thy masters sonne? ziba answered vnto the kynge: beholde, he tarpyeth styll at Jerusalem. For he sayde: this daye shall the house of Israel restore me the kyngdome of my father. Then sayde the kynge to ziba, beholde, thynne are all that pertayned vnto Abithophel. And ziba sayde: I do homage to the. I beseeche the that I maye fynde grace in thy syght, my Lorde, O kynge.

And when kynge David came to Bahurim: beholde, thence cam out a man of the kynred of the house of Saul, named Semei the sonne of Gera, and he cam out cursynge. And he cast stones at David, and at all the seruantes of kynge David: And all the people also and all the men of warre were on hys ryght hande, and on hys left. And thus sayde Semei whan he cursed: come forth, come forth thou bloude shedder, and thou man of Belypall. The Lorde hath brought vpon the all the bloude of the house of Saul, in whose steade thou hast raygned, and the Lorde hath deliuered the kyngdome into the hande of Absalom thy sonne. And beholde part come to thy mischefe, because part a bloude shedder.

Then sayde Absai the sonne of Zaria vnto the kynge: why doth this deed dogg curseth my Lorde the kynge? let me go nowe, and take of the heed of hym. And the kynge sayde: what haue I to do wyth you ye sonnes of Zaria: let hym curse: for the Lorde hath bydden hym curse David. Who dare then saye: Wherefore hast thou done so? And David sayde to Absai, and to all his seruantes, beholde, my sonne whych cam of myne awne bodye, seketh my lyfe. How moche more then maye this sonne of Zemia do it? Suffre him to curse: for the Lorde hath bydden him: haplye the Lorde wyll loke on my weppynge eyes & wretchednesse, & do me good for hys cursynge this daye. And as David and his men went by the waye, Semei wet alowe on the hylls byde ouer agaynst hym, & cursed as he wet, and threwe stones at him, and cast dust. And the kynge and all the were wyth him cam wepye, and refreshed the felues there.

And Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem, and Abithophel was wyth him. And as sone as Husai the Arachite was come vnto Absalom, he sayde vnto hym: God saue the kynge, God saue the kynge. And Absalom sayde agayne to Husai: is this thy kyndnesse thou owest to thy frende?

frende? Why wentest thou not wyth hym? Husai answered vnto Absalom: naye not so, but whom the Lorde and this people and all the men of Israel chole, hys will I be, and wyth hym wyll I dwell. Moreover, vnto whome shall I do seruice, but euen to hys sonne? And as I was seruauit before to thy father, euen so shall I be wyth the. Then spake Absalom to Abithophel: geue counsell, what is best for vs to do. And Abithophel sayde vnto Absalom: get the in vnto thy fathers concubines, which he hath left to kepe the house. And all Israel shall heare, that part cast out of thy father: then shall the handes of all that are wyth the, be stronge. And so they pitched Absalom a tent vpon the topp of the house. And he went in vnto hys fathers concubynes in the syght of all Israel.

And the counsell of Abithophel which he counceled in those dayes, was as a man had asked counsell of God: euen so was all the counsell of Abithophel, both wyth David and wyth Absalom.

¶ The xvij. Chapter.

¶ Abithophel, seynge hys counsell disallowed of Husai and forsaken, hangeith hym selfe.

¶ Abithophel sayde vnto Absalom: let me chole out nowe twele thousande men. And I will by, & folowe after David this nyght. And I wyll come vpon hym, whyle he is wepye and weake handed, and wyll feare hym. And all the people that are wyth hym, shall flee. And so will I smyte the kynge onely, and wyll byrnyng agayne all the people vnto the, & euen as casely as yf I wolde byrnye anye other thing. And whan I haue slayne the man whom thou sekest, all the people shall haue rest. And saying pleased Absalom well, and all the elders of Israel. Then sayde Absalom: call also Husai the Arachite, and let vs heare his counsell. Wher Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vnto hym, sayenge: Abithophel hath geuen soche counsell: Shall we do after his saying, or no? tell thou.

Husai answered vnto Absalom: the counsell that Abithophel hath geuen, is not good at this tyme: For (sayd Husai) I knowest thy father, & his men, howe that they be strong. And they be chafed in their myndes, and are euen as a Beare robbed of her whelpes in the felde. Thy father is a man also practised in warre, & maketh no tarienge wyth people. Beholde he lurketh now in some caue, or in some other ströge place. And though some of his men be ouerthrowe at the fyrst byrnt, yet they that heare it will saye: The people that foloweth Absalom, be put to the worlde. And the best men thou hast whole herttes are as the hertes of Lyons, shall theyr the-

rat. For all Israel knoweth, that thy father is a myghty man, and they whych be wyth him are all men of warre.

Therefore my counsell is, that all Israel be gathered vnto the, from Dan to Beerseba, (which are as the lande of the see in noby) and that thou go to batayle in thynne awne person. For so shall we come vpon him in one place or other, where we shall fynde hym, & we will fall vpon him, euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the grounde. And of all the men that are wyth hym, we shall not leaue hym one. Moreover, yf he be gotten into a towne, then shall all the men of Israel bringe ropes to that cytie, and we wyll drawe it into the ryuer, vntill there be not one stone founde there. And Absalom and all the men of Israel sayde: the counsell of Husai the Arachite is better, then the counsell of Abithophel. For it was euen the Lordes determination to destroye the good counsell of Abithophel: that the Lorde myght byrnye euell vpon Absalom. Then sayde Husai vnto Sadock and Abiathar the Preastes: of this and that maner dyd Abithophel and the elders of Israel counsell Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counceled. Nowe therefore send quickely, and shewe David saying: tarpe not all nyght in the felde of the wyldernesse, but gett the ouer, lest the kynge be deuoured and all the people that are wyth hym. Nowe Jonathan and Ahimaaz abode by the well Rogell: for they myght not be sene to come into the cytie. And a wyche went and tolde them. And they went, & shewed kynge David.

Acuerthelesse a lad sawe them, and tolde it to Absalom. But they went both of them awaye quykely, and cam to a manes house in Bahurim, which had a well in his yarde, into the whych they went downe. And a woman toke and spede a couerlet ouer the welles mouth, and drawed fymentie come theron. And the thynge was not spped. And when Absaloms seruantes came to the wyfe to the house, they sayde: Where is Ahimaaz & Jonathan? The woman answered the: they be gone ouer the lytell broke of water. And when they had sought them and coulde not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as sone as they were departed, the other came out of the well, and went and tolde kynge David, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and get you quykely ouer the water for soche counsell hath Abithophel geuen, agaynst you. Then David arose, & all the people that were wyth hym, and they were come ouer Jordan be that it was daye: so there lacked not one of the, & was not come ouer Jordan. And when Abithophel sawe, & his counsell was not followed, he ladeled his Asse, & arose, & gate hym home to hys awne house, and to hys frende.

awone cytie, and put hys household in order, and hanged him selfe, and dyed, and was buryed in the sepulchre of hys father.

Then Dauid came to Mahanaim. And Abfalom passed ouer Jordan, he and all the men of Israel with him. And Abfalom made Amasa captaigne of y^e hoste in stede of Joab, whych Amasa was a mannes sonne named Jethra an Israelite, that went into Abigail the daughter of Nahas syster to Zeruia Joabs mother. So Israel and Abfalom pitched in the lande of Gilead. And whē Dauid was come to Mahanaim, Sobai the sonne of Nahas out of * Rabba the cite of the children of Ammon, & Machir the sonne of Ammuel out of Lodeber, and * Berzelai the Gileadite out of Roglim, brought beddes, basens, erthen vessels, wheat & barley, flour, and parched corne, beanes, rice, oilemell, honny, butter, shepe and cheefe of kyene, for Dauid and all the people that were with him, to cate. For they sayd: The people is hongrye, wecrye, and thyrstye in the wyldernesse.

C The xviij. Chapter.

Abfalom is overcome in battell. He hangech by the tree in an Oke. He is killed & put in a dyche. Dauid is so sorowfull for the deeth of Abfalom that he wepeth.

AND Dauid nombred the people that were wth hym, and sette captaines of thousandes and of hundredes ouer them. And Dauid sent forth y^e thirde parte of the people vnder the hande of Joab, and another parte vnder the hande of Abisai the sonne of Zeruia Joabs brother, and the other thyrde parte vnder the hande of Ittai the Gethite. And the kyng sayde vnto the people: I wyll go with you also. And the people answered: Thou shalt not go forth: for yf we fle, oure aduersaries will not care for vs: nether shall they regard vs, though halfe vs were slayne: but yart worth ten thousande of vs: wherfore it is better, y thou succoure vs out of the cytie. And the kyng sayde vnto them: what semeth you best, that wyll I do.

23 And the kyng stode by the gate syde, and all the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes. And y^e kyng commaunded Joab & Abisai, & * Ittai sayeng: Intreate y^e younge man Abfalom gently for my sake. And all the people hearde, that the kyng gaue all y^e captaynes charge concernynge Abfalom. And so the people wet out into the felde agaynst Israel, and the battell was in the woode of Ephraim: where the people of Israel were put to the worst before the seruautes of Dauid, & there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twentye thousande men: for y^e felde was fought there in dyverse places, all abroade vpon the erthe. And y^e wordd deuoured moo people that daye, than dyd the swerde. And Abfalom came before the seruautes of Dauid rydynge vpon a Mule, whych carped hym vnder y^e thicke bowes of a great Oke. And y^e mule was caught of the Oke, and he was lifte vp betwene heuen & erthe: & y^e mule that was vnder hym, wet his waye. And one y^e sawit tolde Joab, sayeng: beholde, I sawe Abfalom hange in an Oke: and Joab sayde vnto the man y^e tolde him. Yf thou dydest se hym, why dydest not thou there synre him to the ground, & I wold haue geuen the ten sicles of siluer, & a girdle.

The man sayde vnto Joab: though thou woldest laye a thousande sicles of siluer in my hande, yet wolde I not stretch out myne hande agaynst the kynges sonne. For we hearde with oure eares whē the kyng charged the, and Abisai and Ittai, sayenge: Beware, y none touch the younge mā Abfalom: wherfore, yf I had done it, I woulde haue done agaynst myne owne life: for there is no matter hyd from the kyng: yee and thou thy selfe woldest haue bene agaynst me. Then sayde Joab: I may not stande thus taryeng wth the.

And he toke thre speares in his hande, & thrust them thorowe Abfalom, while he was yet a lyue on the bodye of the tree. And ten seruautes that bare Joabs wepys, turned, and smote Abfalom and slue him. And whē Joab blew the trompet, the people returned from folowynge Israel: for Joab spared the people. And they toke Abfalom, and cast hym into a great pytt in the wood, & layed a myghtie great heape of stones vpon hym. And all Israel fled to their tentes. And thys Abfalom yrt in hys lyfe tyme * toke counsell & reared vp a pyller, whych is in kynges dale. For he sayd: I haue no sonne. And therefore to kepe my name in remembraunce do I it. And he called the pyller after hys awone name. And it is called vnto thys daye: Abfaloms pyller.

Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock: let me runne nowe, and beare the kyng tydings, how y^e the Lorde hath iudged hym quyte of the hande of hys enemyes. And Joab sayd vnto hym: yart no man to beare good tydynge to daye: y shalt beare tydynge another tyme: but to daye y shalt beare none, because the kynges sonne is deed. The sayde Joab to Chusi: go and tell the kyng, what thou hast sene: And Chusi bowed him selfe vnto Joab, and ranne. Then sayd Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come wyll, let me also rine after Chusi. And Joab sayd: wherfore wilt thou runne my sonne: seing that for the tydynge thou shalt haue no rewarde: well (sayde he) come what will, let me runne. He sayd vnto him: runne. The Ahimaaz rane by y^e playne waye, and came before Chusi.

And

24 And Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And the watchman went vp to the rouffe ouer the gate vnto the walle, & lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe: & beholde, there cam a man runnyng alone. And y^e watchman cryed, & tolde y^e kyng. And the kyng sayde: yf he be alone, there is good tydinges in his mouth. And he came, & drewe nye. And y^e watchman sawe another man runnyng, and he called vnto the porter and sayde: beholde, there cometh another man runnyng alone. And the kyng sayde: he is also a tydinges bynger. And the watchman sayde: me thynketh the runnyng of the formost is lyke y^e runnyng of Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock. The kyng sayde: he is a good man, and cometh with good tydinges. And Ahimaaz called, & sayde vnto the kyng: good tydinges, and he fell downe flat to the erth vpon his face before the kyng, and sayde: blessed be the Lorde thy God, which hath shutt vp the men that lyft vp their handes agaynst my Lorde the kyng. And the kyng sayde: is the younge mā Abfalom safe? Ahimaaz answered: whē Joab sent (Chusi) the kynges seruaunt, and me thy seruaunt, I sawe much a doo. But I whotte not what it was. And y^e kyng sayde vnto him: turne, and stande here. And he turned, and stode still.

And beholde, Chusi came also, and sayde: Good tydinges my Lorde the kyng, for y^e Lorde hath quytte the thys daye out of the hande of all them y^e rose agaynst the. And the kyng sayde vnto Chusi: Is the younge mā Abfalom safe? Chusi answered: The enemyes of my Lorde the kyng, and all that rse agaynst y^e, to do the hurt, be as that younge man is. And the kyng was moued, and went vp to a chambze ouer the gate, and wept. And as he went, thus he sayde: O my sonne Abfalom, my sonne, my sonne Abfalom, wolde God I had dyed for the: O Abfalom my sonne, my sonne.

C The xix. Chapter.

Dauid is returned to his kyngdome, and brought agayne to Iherusalem.

AND it was tolde Joab: beholde, y^e kyng wepeth and mourneth for Abfalom. And the victorie of that daye was turned into mournynge vnto all y^e people. For the people hearde saye that daye, howe the kyng sorowed for hys sonne. And the people stode a waye that daye from goynge into the cytie, as people conformed stele a waye, when they flee in battell. But the kyng hyd his face, and cryed with a loude voyce. O my sonne Abfalom, O Abfalom my sonne, my sonne.

And Joab came into the hogge to y^e kyng, and sayde: thou hast shamed this daye the faces of all thy seruautes, which this daye haue saved thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes and of thy daughters, & the lyues of thy wiues, and of thy concubynes, in that thou lovest thyn enemyes, and hatest thy frendes. For thou hast declared thys daye, that thou regardest nether thy Lordes nor seruautes. And this daye I do perceane, that yf Abfalom had lyued, & all we had dyed this daye, that had pleased y^e well. Nowe therfore vp, and come out, and speake kyndely vnto thy seruautes: for I swere by the Lorde, except thou come out, there will not tarye one man with the thys nyght. And that wilbe worse vnto the, then all the euell that fell on the from thy youth vnto thys houre. Then the kyng arose, and latt downe in the Gate. And the y^e tolde vnto all the people, sayenge: Beholde, the kyng doth lytt in y^e Gate. And all the people came before the kyng. But Israel fled, euery man to hys tent.

And it fortunēd y^e all the people were at stryffe thorowe out all the trybes of Israel, sayenge: the kyng saued vs out of the hāde of oure enemyes, he deliuered vs out of y^e hāde of y^e Philistines, and nowe he is fled out of the lande for Abfalom. But Abfalom whō we anoynted ouer vs, is deed in battell. Therfore, why are ye so still, that ye byringe not y^e kyng agayne? And kyng Dauid sent to Sadock and Abiathar y^e preastes, sayenge: speake vnto the elders of Iuda & saye: why are ye behynde, to byringe y^e kyng agayne to his house, seynge that soch tydinges is come fro all Israel vnto the kyng euen to hys house?

(For the kyng had sayde: Thus shall ye take vnto the people of Iuda.) Ye are my brethren, my bones & my fleche: wherfore then are ye the last that byringe the kyng home agayne? And saye ye to Amasa: art thou not of my bone & of my fleche? God do so and so to me, yf thou be not captaigne of y^e host to me for euer in y^e roume of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Iuda, euen, as the hert of one man: so y^e they sent this worde to the kyng: Returne thou with all thy seruautes. So the kyng returned, & came to Jordan. And Iuda came to Gilgal, for to go downe to mete y^e kyng, & to conuey him ouer Jordā. And Simei * y^e sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jerimiel, whych was of Bahurim, hasted, and came with the men of Iuda to mete king Dauid, and there were a thousande men of Benjamin wth hym, & * Iba the seruaunt of the house of Saul and his xv. sonnes and twentye seruautes with him. And they went quychly ouer Jordan before the kyng. And there went ouer a boate that carped ouer y^e kynges household and they dyd hym pleasure.

And Simei the sonne of Gera fell before the kyng (as he was come ouer Jordā) and sayde vnto hi: let not my Lorde impute wickednesse vnto me, ner remember the thynges (that they seruaunt dyd wickedly when my

ff v Lorde

Lozde the kyng departed out of Jerusalem that the kyng shulde take it to herte. For thy seruaut doth knowe, howe I haue done amysse. And therfore beholde, I am the fyrst this daye of all the house of Ioseph, that am come to go downe, to mete my Lozde the kyng. But Abisai sonne of Nerua answered, and sayde: shall not Semai dye for this, because he cursed the Lozdes anoynted? And Dauid sayde: what matter is betwene you and me ye sonnes of Nerua? For thys daye ye be aduersaries vnto me. Shall there any mā dye this daye in Israel? Do not I knowe, that I am this daye kyng ouer Israel? And therfore the kyng sayde vnto Semai: thou shalt not dye, & the kyng swaue vnto him.

And Miphiboseth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kyng, & had nether washed his fete, ner shauen his beerde, ner washed his clothes from the tyme the kyng departed, vntill he came agayne in peace. And it fortuned that when he was come to Jerusalem, and met the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto him: wherfore wentest not thou wyth me Miphiboseth? he answered: my Lozde, O kyng, my seruaut decaued me. For thy seruaut sayde I wolde haue mine Asse saddled to ryde thereon, for to go to the kyng, because thy seruaut is lame. And ziba hath falsely reported of thy seruaut vnto my Lozde the kyng. And my Lozde the kyng is as an angel of God: do therfore what semeth good in thine eyes. For all my fathers house were but deed in befoze my Lozde the kyng: and yet dydest thou put thy seruaut amonge the ydols at thine awne table. What ryght therfore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto y kyng? And the kyng sayde vnto him: why speakest thou yet in thine awne cause? (He is determyned, that) I haue sayde: thou and ziba deuide the landes betwene you. And Miphiboseth sayde vnto y kyng: yee lett him take all: for so moch as my Lozde the kyng is come agayne in peace vnto his awne house.

And Berselai the Gileadite came downe from Roglim, and went ouer Jordan with the kyng, to conuaye him ouer Jordan: Berselai was a very aged man, euen foure score yere olde, & prouyded y kyng of sustenance, whyle he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of verye great substance. And y kyng sayde vnto Berselai: come thou with me, & I will fede the with me in Jerusalem. And Berselai sayde vnto the kyng: I am thus olde, and howe am I able to go vp with the kyng vnto Jerusalem? I am this daye foure score yere olde: and can I decerne betwene good and euell: hath thy seruaut any fast in that he eateth or drinketh? Can he heare any more the voyce of synginge men & women? Wherfore then shulde thy seruaut be yet a burthen vnto my Lozde the kyng?

Thy seruaut will go a lytle waye ouer Jordan with the kyng: and why wyll y kyng recompence it me with soch a reward? Let thy seruaut turne back agayne, that I maye dye in myne awne cytie, and (be buried) in y graue of my father and of my mother. Beholde, here is thy seruaut: Chimeam: let him go with my Lozde the kyng, and do to him, what shall please the.

And the kyng answered: Chimeam shall go with me. And I will do to him that thou shalt be content with. And whatsoeuer thou shalt requyre of me, that same will I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordan: And whē the kyng was come ouer Jordan, he kyssed Berselai, and blessed him, & he wēt backe agayne vnto his awne place. And then the kyng went to Gilgal, and Chimeam wēt with him, & so dyd all the people of Judah, and brought ouer the kyng, and there were but halfe the men of Israel.

And beholde, all the men of Israel came to the kyng, and sayde vnto him, why haue our brethren y me of Juda stolen the awaye and haue brought the kyng & his household, and all Dauids men with him ouer Jordan? And all the men of Juda answered the men of Israel: the kyng is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angrye for y matter? thynke ye that we ate of y kynges cost, or that we take vs any gyftes? And the men of Israel answered y men of Juda and sayde: we haue ten partes in the kyng, & haue thereto more ryght to Dauid then ye. Why then dyd ye despyse vs, y oure aduise shulde not be fyrst had in restorunge oure kyng agayne? And y wordes of the me of Juda were fearer, then the wordes of the men of Israel.

The xx. Chapter.

Seba the sonne of Bichri repeth Israel agaynst Dauid. Joab killeth Amasa traitorously. The heed of Seba is deliuered to Joab. Dauids receauers are nombred.

Whan there cam thither a certayne mā of Belial (named Seba, the sonne of Bichri, a mā of gemini) he blew a trōpet & layde: we haue no parte in Dauid, neither haue we inheritaunce in the sonne of Isai, let the men of Israel departe vnto there tentes. And so euery euery man of Israel went from Dauid, and folowed Seba the sonne of Bichri. But the men of Juda clane fast vnto their kyng, frō Jordanto Jerusalem.

And Dauid came to his house to Jerusalem, & and toke the ten women his concubines, that he had left behynde him to kepe the house, and put them in warde, and sedd the: but laye no moare wyth them. And so they were enclosed vnto the daye of their deeth, lyvinge in weddowhode.

Then sayde the kyng to Amasa: call me the men of Juda togeather agaynst the thirde daye, and be thou here also. And so Amasa went to gather the men of Juda togeather: but taried longer, then the tyme which he had appoynted him. And Dauid sayde to Abisai: nowe shall Seba the sonne of Bichri do vs more harme, then dyd Absalom. Take thou therfore y kynges seruantes, & folowe after him: lest he gett him walled cyties, and escape vs. And there went out after hym Joabs men, and the Crethites and the Phelithites, and all the myghtiest mē. And they departed out of Jerusalem to folowe after Seba the sonne of Bichri. And when they were at the great stone in Gibeon, Amasa went befoze them. And Joabs garnēt (that he had about him) was gyrded vnto him, and he had gyrded thereon, a knyfe, which was toynd fast to his loynes, in soch a wyth, y (as he wēt) it fell some tymes out. And Joab sayde to Amasa: art thou in health my brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the chymme with the ryght hande, to & kyss hym. But Amasa toke no heed to the knyffe that was in Joabs hande, for therwith he smote hym

* in the thort rybbes, and shed out his bowelles to the groude, and thrust at him no more, and he dyed.

So Joab and Abisai his brother folowed after Seba the sonne of Bichri. And one of Joabs men (stode by him, and sayde: he y beareth any fauoure to Joab, or good will to Dauid, let him go after Joab: And Amasa laye walowed in bloude, in the myddes of the waye. And there was a man, which whē he sawe that * all the people stode styll, he rowled Amasa out of the waye into the felde, & cast a cloth vpon him, because he sawe that euery one that came, stode styll by hym. And as sone as he was combeled out of the waye, all the people went after Joab, to folowe after Seba the sonne of Bichri.

And he went thorowe all the trybes of Israel vnto Abel, and to Bethmaacha and all the places of Barim. And they geathered together, and went after him. And they came, & beleged him in Abel & in Bethmaacha. And they cast vp a bancke agaynst the cytie that stode in the valleye. All the people that was with Joab, thrust at the wall to ouerthrowe it. Then cryed a wyle woman out of the cytie, heare heare, byd Joab come hither, that I maye speake with hym. When Joab was come vnto her, the woman sayde: art y Joab? he answered: I am he. She sayde vnto him: heare the wordes of thy handmayder. And he answered: I do heare. And she sayde agayne: * They spake in the olde tyme, sayinge: men must aske peace first, how mocherather shulde they so do to Abell? For so haue they contynued hytherto: I am one of them that are peaceable and saythfull in Israel. And thou goest about to destroye a citie and a mother in Israel. Why wilt thou deuoure the inheritaunce of the Lozde?

And Joab answered, and sayde: God forbyd, God forbid it me, that I shulde ether deuoure or destroye. The matter is not so: but a man of mount Ephraim (Seba y sonne of Bichri by name) hath y lyfte vp his hade agaynst the kyng, euen agaynst Dauid. Destroye vs hym only, and I will departe from the cytie. And the woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heed shall be throwe to the, ouer the wall. And then the woman went vnto all y people, with her wisdom. And they smote of the heed of Seba y sonne of Bichri, and cast it out to Joab. * And he blew a trompet, and they scattered from the cytie, euery man to his tent. And Joab returned to Jerusalem, vnto the kyng.

Joab was ouer all the hoste of Israel. And Banai y sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Crethites & Phelithites. And Adoram was ouer the tribute. And Jeholaphat the sonne of Ahilud was Recorder. Sena was scribe. And Sadock & Abiathar were the preastes. And Ira the Jairite was Dauids preast.

The xxj. Chapter.

Three drete yeres. The vengeance of the synners of Saul lygeth on his seven sonnes, which are hanged. Four great barrells, which Dauid had agaynst the Philistines.

Then there fell an hongre in the dayes of Dauid, thre yeres together. And Dauid enquired of the Lozde. And the Lozde answered: it is for Saul, and y house of bloude, because he slue the * Gibaonites. And the kyng called the Gibaonites, & sayde vnto them: Nowe the Gibaonites were, not of the * chyldren of Israel, but a remnant of the Ammonites, and the chyldren of Israel swaue vnto them: And Saul sought to slep them, for a zeile that he had to the chyldren of Israel and of Juda. Wherfore Dauid sayde vnto the, what shall I do for you, and wherwith shall I make the attonemēt, that ye maye & blesse the inheritaunce of the Lozde?

The Gibaonites answered hym: we wyll haue no syluer ner gold, of Saul ner of his house: nether is it oure mynde, y thou shuldest

Wdest kyll any man in Israel. he sayde: what save ye then? I shall do for you? They answered the king: the man that consumed vs, & ymagined to bypunge vs to nought him will we destroye, that nought of him continewe in any of the coastes of Israel. Let seven men of his sonnes be deliuered vnto vs, and we will hange them vp vnto the Lorde, in Gibeah of Saul, whom the Lorde dyd chose. And the kyng sayde: I will geue them you.

But the kyng had compassyon on Miphibosheth the sonne of Jonathas, the sonne of Saul, because of the Lorde: the Lorde was bene- twene them: eue betwene Dauid and Jonathas the sonne of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Rizpa the daughter of Aia (who she bare vnto Saul) euen Armoni and Miphibosheth, & the fyue sonnes of Michol (the daughter of Saul) whom she bare to Abriel the sonne of Barzilai the Gethiathite. And he deliuered them vnto the handes of the Gibeonites, which hanged them in the hill before the Lorde. And they fell all seven together, and were slayne in the dayes of heruest: euen in the fyrst dayes, and in the begynnyng of Barley heruest.

And Rizpa the daughter of Aia toke sackcloth and hanged it by for the vpon the Rocke, euen from the begynnyng of haruest vntill rayne dropped vpon them out of heuen: and suffered nether the byrddes of the Ayre to fall on them by daye, nor bestes of the felde by nyght. And it was tolde Dauid what Rizpa the daughter of Aia the concubine of Saul had done: and Dauid went, & toke the bones of Saul and of Jonathas his sonne, fro the men of Jabes in Gilead (which had stolen them from the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged them: when the Philistines had slayne Saul in Gilboa.) And he brought thence the bones of Saul, and the bones of Jonathas his sonne, & they toke vpon the bones of them that were hanged. And the bones of Saul and Jonathas his sonne buried they in the contrey of Beniamin, in zela, in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And when they had performed all that the kyng commaunded, God was then at one with the lande.

It fortuned, that the Philistines had yet warre agayne with Israel. And Dauid wote downe & his seruantes with hym, & fought agaynst the Philistines. And Dauid waxed fayntie, and Ieshy of Nob one of the sonnes of the gyautes (the prion of whose speare wayded thre hundred syces, and he byng weyded with a newe swerde) thought to haue slayne Dauid. * But Abisai the sonne of zarua succoured hym, and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the seruantes of Dauid sware vnto him, sayinge: Thou shalt go no moare out with vs to battell, that y quench not the lyght of Israel. And yet after this, there was a battell with the Philistines at Nob, and then Sibbechai the Hushathite slewe Haph which was one of the sonnes of the gyautes.

And there was yet another battell in * Nob with the Philistines, where Elhanan the sonne of Jaer Ogim, a Bethlemitte slewe one Goliath a Gethite: the staffe of whose speare was as great as a weeners cloth beam.

And there was yet another battell in Geth where was a man of a great stature, & had on every hand, vi. fyngers and on every fote vi. toes. xxiij. in all. And was borne also of the kynred of the gyautes in Geth. And when he despyed Israel, Jonathas the sonne of Simea the brother of Dauid slewe hym. These foure gyautes were borne in Geth, & fell into the hande of Dauid and into the handes of his seruantes.

The xxij. Chapter.

The sonne of Dauid for his deliuerance from his enemyes.

And Dauid spake the wordes of this song vnto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had deliuered him out of the hande of all his enemyes, and out of the hande of Saul.

And he sayde the Lorde is my rocke, and my castel, and my deliuerer. God is my strength, in him will I trust: he is my shyld, and the horne of my saluacion: my worship and my refuge: my saluour, thou shalt saue me from wronge.

* I will call on the Lorde which is prayse worthy, and so shall I be saued from myne enemyes. For the corrupcyons of death closed me about: the floudes of Belial put me in feare. The sorowes of hell compassed me about: the snares of death overtoke me. In my tribulacion will I call vpon the Lorde, and crye to my God. And he shall heare my voyce out of his temple, and my crye shall enter into his eares. The erth trembled and quaked: the foundacyons of heuen moued and shoke, when he was angrie.

Smoke went vpon his wrath, and consuming fyre out of his mouth, coles were kindled therof. And he bowed heuē, and came downe, and there was darcknesse vnder his fete. And he satt vpon Cherub & dyd as he was seene carped vpon the wynges of the wynde. He made darcknesse a tabernacle rounde about hym, with waters gathered together in thicke cloudes. Thowowe the byghtnesse of his presence were the fyre coles kindled.

God thundred from heuen, and he that is most hye, doth put out his voyce. He shotte arrows, and shatred them: he hurled lyghtninge, tenynge, and ouerthrewe them. The flowinges of the see appered, and the foundacyons of the world were sene, by the reason of the rebukinge of the Lorde, and thowowe the blastynge of the byreth of his nostrelles. He shall sende from heauen, and sett me, he shall plucke me out of many waters.

He shall deliuer me from my myghtye aduersarye, and fro myne enemyes, for they are to stryde for me. When they had ouertaken me in the dape of my calamitye the Lorde stayed me vp. For he brought me out into rowmth: he deliuered me, because he had a loue vnto me.

* The Lorde will rewarde me accordyng to my ryghtwysnesse: accordyng to the purenesse of my handes will he recompense me. For I haue kept the wayes of the Lorde, & done no wyckednesse agaynst my God. For all his lawes are in my syght, & his statutes wyll not I put awaye fro me. In his syght also haue I bene vndefyled, & haue kepte me fro myne awne iniquite.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordyng to my ryghtwysnesse, eue after my purenesse in his eyesyght. Wyth the godly thou shalt be godly, and wth the man that is vncorrupt, thou shalt be vncorrupt. Wyth the pure thou shalt be pure, & with the frowarde thou shalt be frowarde. And the poore people shall be in aduersyte, & shalt helpe. And on y proude shalt thou cast thine eyes. Thou art my light O Lorde: the Lorde shall lyght my darcknesse.

For with thy helpe I will runne thowowe an hoste of men, and in my God wyll I sprynge ouer a walle. God is vncorrupt in his waye: the worde of the Lorde is tryed in the fyre: he is the defender of all them that trust in him.

For who is a God, saue the Lorde? & who is myghtie, saue our God? God strengtheth me with power, and multiplyth the waye in battell cleare before me. He maketh my fete lyke hartes fete, & setteth me fast vpon my hye holde.

* He teacheth my handes to fyght, & eue a bowe of stele is to weake for myne armes.

Thou hast genen me the shield of thy saluacion, and with thy louinge mekenesse thou dost multiplie me. Thou shalt make me spare to walke in, and my legges shall not faile me. I wyll folowe vpon myne enemyes and destroye them, and turne not agayne vntill I haue consumed them.

I will wastethem and synpte them, that they shall not be able to arple: yee, they shall fall vnder my fete.

Thou hast gyrded me about with myght to battell, and them that roase agaynst me, hast thou subdued vnder me.

And thou made myne enemyes (& them that hated me) to turne their backs to me, that I myght destroye them. They loke for helpe, but there is none to saue them: yee, euen vnto the Lorde do they crye, but he heareth them not.

I will beate them as smalle as the dust of the erth: I will stampe them as the dyte of the strete, and will spreade them abroad.

Thou shalt deliuer me from the dysceypon of my people: thou shalt kepe me to be an heed ouer nacyns: the people whych I knewe not, shall serue me.

Strange children dissemble with me: As the hearyng of the eare they obeye me.

Strange chyldre will syncke awaye, and they shall be smytten with feare in their preyre chamber. God is a lyue, and blessed be my maker: magnified be God, my most stronge saluacion. It is God that aduengeth me, and byngeth downe the people vnder me. He deliuereth me fro myne enemyes, & also shalt lyfte me vpon hye from them that crye agaynst me, thou shalt deliuer me from the wicked men.

And therefore I will prayse the O Lorde amonge the nacyns, and wyll synge vnto thy name. Whych theweth greate saluacion for his kyng, and dealeth mercifully with his anoynted: euen wyth Dauid, and wyth his seide for evermore.

The xxij. Chapter.

The last communicacion of Dauid, and the description of the myghty men to him belonging.

These be the last sayinges of Dauid. Dauid the sonne of Isay sayde. And the ma which was made, the anoynted of the God of Jacob, and the noble Psalmist of Israel sayde: the Lorde spake by me, & his worde was in my tonge. The God of Israel spake of me, euen the most myghtie of Israel, sayde: he shall beare rule ouer me, ought to rule in styte in the feare of God. And as the moynynge lyght when the sonne is vp, a moynynge in which are no cloudes to lett the byghtnesse, and as the grasse of the erth is by the vertue of the rayne. So shall not my house be so w God. * For he hath made with me an euerlastinge coneuant, perfecte and sure in all poyntes: & this is truly all my health: all my desire it growe but not as grasse. But the vngodly ma of Belial shall be as a thorne cleane plucked vp, which can not be taken w handes: But the man that shall touche them, must haue prion, or a longe helme. * Ozeis must they be burnt with fyre in the same place.

These be the names of the myghty men whom Dauid had: & one of them was in the seat of wisdome, beuge cheffest amonge thre, pleasaunt was he and stronge: he slewe cyghth hundred at one tyme. After him was Eleazar the sonne of Dodi the sonne of Abiath, one of the thre worthies to Dauid, which despyed the Philistines that were there gathered together to battell: whā the men of Israel were gone by. he arose & layed on the Philistines, vntill hys hande was weyre, and claued vnto the swerde. And the Lorde gaue great victorie the same daye. And the people (which had fled) returned, and went after him to runne to the spoyle. After him was Samma the sonne of Age the hararite: and the Philistines gathered together besyde a towne. (where was a parcell of lande full of eyce) and the people fled from the Philistines. But he stode in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it, and slue the Philistines. And the Lorde gaue great victorie.

i. Para. xlv. b.

* These thre (which were of the thirte chiefe captaynes) went downe to Dauid in þ haruest tyme vnto the caue Adullam, & the host of the Philistines abode in the valeye of Grauntes. And Dauid was then in an holde. And the Soudiours of the Philistines were in Bethlechem. And Dauid longed and sayde. Oh, that I had of the water that is in the well by the gate of Bethlechem, for to drinke. And the thre myghtie brake thorow the host of the Philistines, & fette water out of the well of Bethlechem that was by the gate, and toke and brought it to Dauid: & euerthelesse he wolde not drynke thereof, but offered it vnto the Lorde, and sayde: the Lorde forbyd that I shulde do so. Is not this the bloude of the men that wente in seapardye of their lyues: and therfore he wolde not drynke it. And these thinges dyd these thre myghtie men. * Abisai the brother of Joab, þ sonne of Saruah, was chiefe amonge the thre, and helpte by hys speare agaynst thre hundred, & slue them, and had the name amonge the thre. For he was nobler man then the thre and was their captayne. Howbeit he attayned not vnto * the thre.

ii. Reg. xv. b.

And Banaiabū the sonne of Jehoiada (þ sonne of a myghtie man) valiant in actes, of Iabzeel. slue two stronge lyōs, euen lyōs of Moab. he went downe also, & slue a lyon in a pyt in tyme of snowe. And he slue an Egypcian, a goodly bygge man, which had a speare in his hande. But he went downe to him with a staffe, and plucked the speare out of the Egypcians hande, and slue him wth hys awne speare. These thynges dyd Banaiabū the sone of Jehoiada, & had the name amonge the thre worthies. he was honorable amonge thirte, but he attayned not to þ (first) thre. And Dauid made him of hys counsell. Abisai the brother of Joab also was one of the thirte. Then Elihanā the sonne of Mado of Bethlechem: Sāma the haronite: Elia the harodite: Helez the Dalite: Ira the sonne of Akas the Chekite: Abieser of Anathoth: Neobai the husathite: zelmōn an Aphite:

Maharai the Netophatite: Heleb the sonne of Baanah an Netophatite: Ittai the sonne of Ribai out of an hill of the chyldre of Benjamin: Banaiabū the Phiratōnite: Bedai, of the ryuer of Gaas: Abialbon the Arbathite: Ainauetha Barhumite: Elibaba a Saalbonite: and the sonnes of Isen, Jonathas, Samma the hararite. Abiam the sonne of Sarai an hararite: Eliphelet the sonne of Anbai the sonne of a Naachathite: Eliam the sonne of Aithophel the Gilonite: Hezrai the Carmelite: Paarai the Arbite: Igal the sonne of Nathan of zoba: Bani the Gadite: zelec an Amomite: Maharai a Berothite, which was the harnesser of Joab þ sonne of Zarua. Ira the Jethite: Gareb þ Jethite: Uria the Hethite, thirte & seven in all.

The xxiii. Chapter.

Dauid causeth the people to be numbered, and therfore is Israel plagued with pestilence: so that in thre dayes there dyed. lxx. thousande.

Agaynne, the Lord was wroth agaynst Israel, and he moued Dauid agaynst the, in þ he sayde: * go and nōbre Israel and Juda. For the kyng sayde to Joab the captayne of his host: go thou abroade now, thorow out all the tribes of Israel, euen from Dan to Beer Seba, & nōbre ye the people, that I maye knowe the nōmbre of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kyng: I beseeche þ Lorde thy God, to make þ people as many moo as they be: ye and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lorde the kyng maye se them. And what is the cause þ my Lorde the kyng hath a lust to this thinge? For wilt thou drynge the kynges worde preuapled agaynst Joab and agaynst the captaynes of þ hoste: And Joab and the captaynes of the host went out from the pience of the kyng, to nōbre the people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jordan, and pitched in Arzer on the ryght syde of the cyrie that lyeth in the myddes of the valeye of Gad, ouer agaynst Iazer. And then they came to Gilead, and to the nether lande, where was a newe habitacyō, & from thence they came to Dan Jaan about to Sidon, & came to the strōge holde of Tyre, and to all the cyties of the heuites and of the Cananites, & then went out to þ South of Juda, euē to Beerseba. And so, whē they had bene abroade thorowe out all the lande, they returned to Ierusalē agayne, after the ende of nyne monethes and twentye dayes. And Joab deliuered by the nōbre and summe of the people vnto the kyng. And there were in Israel eyght hundred thousande men of myght þ drewe swerdes. And the men of Juda were fye hundred thousande men.

And Dauid's hert smote hym, after that he had nōbred the people. And Dauid sayde vnto the Lorde: I haue synned exceedingly in that in that I haue done. And nowe Lorde take awaye the trespace of thy seruaut: for I haue done very folyshe. And when Dauid was vp in a moynge, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophet Gad Dauid's seer, sayinge: go and saye vnto Dauid, thus sayth þ Lorde: I offer the thre thynges, chose þ which of them I shall do vnto the.

So Gad came to Dauid, and shewed him, & sayde vnto him. Wilt thou haue seven yerres hunger to come in thy lande, or wilt þ see. iij. monethes before thyne enemies, they folowinge the, or that there be thre dayes pe silence in thy lande? Nowe therfore aduise the, & se, what answer I shall geue to him þ sent me. And Dauid sayde vnto Gad: I am in extreme trouble. * We will fall now into the hāde of the Lorde, for moch is his mercye, and lett me not falle into the hande of man.

And so þ Lorde sent a pestilce in Israel. fro the moynge vnto the tyme appoynted. And there dyed of the people from Dan to Beerseba seuenthy thousande men. And when the Angell stretched out his hāde vpon Ierusalem to destroye it, the Lorde had compassion to do that euell, and sayde to the Angell that destroyed þ people: it is nowe sufficient: holde thyne hande. And þ angell was by the threshinge place of Arefna the Jebusite. And Dauid spake vnto the Lorde (when he sawe the angell that smote the people) and sayde: loo, it is I that haue synned, and I þ haue done wyckedly. But these shepe, what haue they done: lett thyne hande (I praye the) be agaynst me and agaynst my fathers house.

And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto him: go vp and reare an altare vnto the Lorde in the threshinge flowre of Arefna the Jebusite. And Dauid (accordinge to the sayinge of Gad) wēt vp, as the Lorde commaunded. And Arefna looked, and sawe the kyng and his seruantes cominge towarde him. And Arefna wēt out, and bowed him selfe before the kyng flat on his face vpon the groude, and Arefna sayde: wherefore is my Lorde the kyng come to his seruaut? Dauid answered: to bye the threshinge flowre of the, and to make an altare vnto the Lorde, that the plage maye cease from the people.

And Arefna sayde vnto Dauid: let my Lorde the kyng take and offer what semyth him good in his eyes: Beholde, here be oxen for burnt sacrifice, and steades and the other instrumentes of the oxen for wood. All these thynges dyd Arefna geue vnto the kyng, & sayde mozeouer vnto the kyng: þ Lorde thy God accept the. And the kyng sayde vnto Arefna: not so, but I wyll bye it of the at a pryce, and wyll not offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde my God of þ which doth cost me nothinge. And so Dauid bought þ threshinge flowre, & the oxen & for fyfte species of silver. And Dauid buyt there an altare vnto þ Lorde, & offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerings. And so the Lorde was intreated for the lāde. And the plage ceased fro Israel.

The ende of þ second boke of Samuel: otherwyse called the seconde of the kynges.

The thirde boke of the kynges after the rekonyng of the Latynistes: which thirde boke and the fourth also, is but one with the hebrues.

The first Chapter.

The younge virgin Abisag kepeth Dauid in his extreme age. Abonia occupieth the realme vnto þ kyng to his father. Salomō is annoynted kyng, and so Abonia getteth him awaye.

And kyng Dauid was olde & stryken in yeres: so þ when they couered hym wth clothes, he caught no heat. wherfore his seruantes sayde vnto hi: let there be sought for my Lorde þ kyng a younge mayden, to stonde before þ kyng and to cheryshe hi. And let her lye in thy bolome, þ my Lorde the kinge maye get heate. And so they sought for a fayre damosell thorow out all þ coastes of Israel, & founde one Abisag a Sunamite, & brought her to the kyng. And the damosell was exceedinge fayre, & cheryshed þ kyng, & ministered to hi. But þ kyng knewe her not.

And Abonia the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe, sayinge: I will be kyng. And he gatt him charettes & horsmen, and fyfte men to ruine before him. And his father wolde not displease him at anye tyme, nor sayd somoch to him as, why doest thou so? And he was a goodlye mā, & his mother bare him next after Absalom. And he toke counsell at Joab the sonne the sonne of zarua, & at Abiathar p̄ p̄east. And they helpeſed Adonia. But Sadock the p̄east, Banaiahu p̄ sonne of Jehoiada, Nathan the p̄phet, Semel and Rei, and all the men of myght which were with David, fauoured not Adonia. And Adonia sacrificed shepe and oxen, and fatt catell, by the stonke of zobelet, which is fast * by the well of Rogell, and called all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and the men of Iuda the kynges seruantes. But Nathan the p̄phet and Banaiahu, and the other myghtie men, and Salomon his brother, he called not.

Wherefore, Nathan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, sayinge: hast thou not hearde howe that Adonia p̄ sonne of Hagith doth rayne, and David oure Lord knoweth it not: Nowe therfore come, & I will geue p̄ counsell, howe to saue thyne a wone lyfe, & the lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. So and get the in vnto kyng David, and saye vnto him: didst not I (my Lord & kyng) swere vnto thy handmayde, sayinge: Salomō thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate: whys then Adonia kyng? Beholde, whyle thou yet talkest there with p̄ kyng, I will come in after p̄, & cōfirme thy wordes.

And Bethsabe went in vnto the kyng in to the chāber. And the kyng was verry olde, and Abisag the Sunamite ministred vnto p̄ kyng. And Bethsabe stowped, & made obeysaunce vnto the kyng. And p̄ kyng sayde: what is thy matter? She answered him: My Lord, thou swarest by the Lord thy God vnto thyne handmayde: Salomō thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate. And beholde, nowe is Adonia kyng, & my Lord the kyng wotteth not of it. And he hath offered oxen, fat catell, & many shepe, and hath called all the sonnes of the kyng, & Abiathar the p̄east, and Joab the captayne of the hoste. But Salomon thy seruant hath he not byddē. And nowe my Lord (p̄ kyng,) the eyes of all Israel waite on the, p̄ thou shuldest tell them, who ought to syt on the seate of my Lord the kyng after him. For elles when my Lord the kyng shall sleape with his fathers, I and my sonne Salomon shall be * synners.

And whyle she yet talked with the kyng, Nathan p̄ p̄phet came also. And they tolde the kyng sayinge: beholde, here cometh Nathan the p̄phete. And whē he was come in to the kyng, he made obeysaunce before the kyng vpon his face on the ground, & Nathan sayde: My Lord (p̄ kyng) hast thou sayd, Adonia shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this daye, & hath slayne many oxen, & fat shepe, and hath called all the kynges sonnes, & the captaynes of the host, & Abiathar the p̄east. And beholde, they eate and dzyneke before him, and saye: God saue kyng Adonia. But me thy seruant, and Sadock the p̄east, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, & thy seruant Salomon hath he not called. Is this thyng done of my Lord the kyng, & p̄ hast not shewed it vnto thy seruant, who shulde syt on p̄ seate of my Lord p̄ kyng after him?

Then kyng David answered & sayde: call me Bethsabe. And she came into the kynges presence, and stode before him. And p̄ kyng iware sayinge: As truly as the Lord lyueth (p̄ hath rydd my soule out of all aduersyte) euen as I sware vnto the by the Lord God of Israel, sayinge: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, & he shall syt vpon my seate for me, so will I do this daye. Then Bethsabe bowed on her face to the erth, & byd reuerence vnto the kyng, & sayde: I praye God p̄ my Lord kyng David (p̄ maye lyue euer. And kyng David sayde: call me Sadock the p̄east, & Nathan the p̄phet, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada. And they came before the kyng. The kyng also sayde vnto them: take vpon the seruantes of poure Lord, & set Salomon my sonne vpon myne a wone chyle, & carpe him downe to Gihon. And let Sadock the p̄east, & Nathan the p̄phet anoynte him there, kyng ouer Israel. And blowe ye w̄ trompettes, & saye: God saue kyng Salomō. And then come vp after him, that he maye come and syt vpon my seate. For he shall be kyng in my steade. And I will cōmaunde him to be captayne ouer Israel and Iuda. And Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada answered the kyng, & sayde: Amen. I praye God p̄ the Lord God of my Lord p̄ kyng saye so to. And as God hath bene with my Lord the kyng, eue so be he with Salomō also, & make his seate greater, then the seate of my Lord kyng Davids hath bene.

And so Sadock the p̄east, and Nathan the p̄phet, & Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, & the Crethites and Phelchites went downe, & sett Salomon vpon kyng Davids chyle, and brought him to Gihon. And Sadock the p̄east toke an horn of oyle out of the tabernacle, and anoynted Salomō. And all they of the people blew trompettes, and sayde: God saue kyng Salomō. And all the people cam vp after him, ppying with pipes and reioysyng greatlye, so p̄ the erth range with the sounde of them.

And Adonia and all the gesses p̄ he had called vnto him, hearde it, euen as they had made an ende of eatyng. And when Joab hearde the sounde of the trompet, he sayde: howe happeneth it p̄ there is soche a noyse in the cytie? And as he yet spake: beholde, Jonathan p̄ sonne of Abiathar p̄ p̄east came. And Adonia sayde vnto him: come in, for p̄ art a valeant man, and byrnyng good tydynges. And Jonathan answered & sayd to Adonia:

Amly

Merely oure Lord kyng David hath made Salomon kyng. And the kyng hath sent to him, Sadock the p̄east, & Nathan the p̄phet, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and the Crethites, and the Phelchites, and they haue set him vpon p̄ kynges mule. And Sadock the p̄east, and Nathan the p̄phet haue anoynted hym kyng in Gihon. And they came vp agayne, and reioysed, that the cytie dyd sounde agayne. And that is the noyse, that ye haue hearde. And Salomon syteth on the seate of the kingdome. And mozeouer the kynges seruantes came to blesse oure Lord kyng David, sayinge: thy God make the name of Salomon moze honorable then thy name, and make hys seate greater then thy seate. And the kyng bowed hym selfe vpon the bedd. And thus sayde the kyng: Blessed be the Lord God of Israel: which hath made one to syt on my seate this daye, myne eye seynge it.

And all the gesses that were with Adonia were afrayed, and rose vp, and went euery man hys waye. And Adonia fearyng the presence of Salomon, arose, and went, ^{in to the tabernacle of the Lord,} and caught holde on the hornes of the aultare. And one tolde Salomon, sayinge: beholde, Adonia doth feare kyng Salomon: for he hath * caught holoe on the hornes of the aultare, saying: let kyng Salomon swere vnto me this daye that he wyl not slep his seruant with the swerde. And Salomon sayde: yf he wyl be a chylde of vertue, there shall not an heere of hym fall to the earth. But and yf wickednes be founde in him, he shall dye. And so kyng Salomon sent, and they brought hym fro the aultare. And he came, and dyd obeysaunce vnto kyng Salomon. And Salomon sayde vnto hym: gett the to thyne house.

The iiij. Chapter.

David dyeth. Adonia requyret to haue Abisag to hys concubine, and therefore Salomon commaundeth to slaye hym. Abiathar is put from his p̄esthode. Semel and Joab are slayned.

In the dayes of David drewe nye p̄ he shulde dye, and he charged Salomon hys sonne, sayinge: I go the waye of all the worlde, * be thou stronge therfore, and shewe thy selfe a man. kepe thou the watch of the Lord thy God, that thou walke in hys wayes, and kepe his statutes, and his p̄ceptes, hys iudgements, and hys testimonyes, euen as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moyses: that thou mayest prospere in all that thou doest, and in euery thyng that thou medlest withall. That the Lord also maye make good hys worde which he spake vnto me, sayinge: yf thy chylde take heade to the p̄ waye, that they walke before me in truethe, with all their hartes, and with all their soules, * then shalt thou not be without a man on the seat of Israel.

* Mozeouer, thou wottest howe Joab p̄ sonne of zarua serued me, and what he dyd to that two captaynes of the hostes of Israel: vnto Abner the sonne of Ner, and vnto Amasa the sonne of Jether: whom he slue and shed bloude in tyme of peace (euen as it had bene in warre) * and put the bloude of warre vpon hys gyrdle that was about hys loynes, and in hys shoes that were on hys fete. Deale with hym therfore accordyng to thy wysdome, and byrnyng not hys hoore heed downe to the graue in peace. * But shewe kyndnes vnto the sonnes of Bersai the Gileadites, that they maye eate at thy table. For they came to me, when I fled from Abisalon thy brother.

* And beholde, thou hast with the Seimei the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Gemin, of Bahurim, which cursed me with an horrible curse, in the daye whā I went to Mahanaim. But he came to mete me at Jordan, and I sware to hym by the Lord, sayinge: I wyl not slep the with the swerde: But thou shalt not counte him as vngyltic. For thou art a man of wysdome, and knowest what thou oughtest to do vnto hym. His hoore heed shalt thou byrnyng to the graue with bloude.

And so * David slepte with hys fathers, and was buryed in the cytie of David. And the dayes which David raygned vpon Israel, were fourtye yeres: seuen yeres raygned he in Hebron: and thirtie and thre yeres raygned he in Ierusalem. * Then satt Salomon vpon the seate of David his father, & his kyngdome was stablished mightie.

And Adonia the sonne of Hagith came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon. And she sayde: * Comest thou peaceably? And he sayde: peaceably. He sayde mozeouer: I haue somwhat to saye vnto the. She sayde: saye on. And he sayde: thou knowest that the kyngdome was myne, and that all Israel set their faces on me, that I shulde raygne, howbeit, p̄ kyngdome is turned awaye, and geue to my brother: for it is appoynted him of the Lord: and nowe I aske a petition of the: denye me nott. And she sayde vnto him: Saye on. And he sayde: speake, I praye the, vnto Salomon the kyng, for he will not saye the naye, that he geue me Abisag the Sunamite to wyfe. And Bethsabe sayde: well, I will speake for the vnto the kyng.

Bethsabe therfore went vnto the kyng Salomon, to speake vnto him for Adonia. And the kyng rose vp to mete her, and bowed hym selfe vnto her, and satt him downe on his seate. And there was a seate sett for the kynges mother, and she sat on his right syde. Then she sayde: I besyge a lytell petition of the the, I praye the, save me not naye. And the kyng sayde vnto her: Aske on, my mother: for I will not save the naye. She sayde: lett Abisag the Sunamite be given to Adonia thy brother to wyfe. And king Salomon answered and sayde vnto his mother: why dost thou aske Abisag the Sunamite for Adonia: alke for him the kyngdome also: for he is myne elder brother, and hath for hym Abiathar the pcesse, and Joab the sonne of zarua. Then kyng Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayinge: God do so, and so to me, if Adonia haue not spoken this word agaynst his awne lyfe. Howe therfore, as trulye as the Lorde lyueth, which hath ordeyned me, and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and made me an house, as he promised, Adonia shall dye thys daye. And kyng Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, and he smote hym, that he dyed.

And vnto Abiathar the pcesse, sayde the kyng: get the to Anatorh vnto thynne awne felde: for thou arte worthy of deeth: but I wyll not at this tyme kylle the, because thou barest the arke of y^e Lorde God befoze Dauid my father, and because thou hast suffred with my father in all hys afflictions. And so Salomon put awaye Abiathar from being pcesse vnto the Lorde: that he myght fulfill the wordes of the Lorde which he spake ouer the house of Eli in Silo. Then tidynge came also to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonia: though he turned not after Abiathar. And Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and caught holde on the hornes of the altare. And it was tolde kyng Salomon, howe that Joab fled vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and stode by the altare.

Then Salomon sent Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada, sayinge: go and fall vpon him. And Banaiahu came into the tabernacle of the Lorde, and sayde vnto hym, Thus sayeth the kyng: come out. And he sayde: naye, but I will dye eny here. And Banaiahu broughte the kyng worde agayne, sayinge: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me.

And the kyng sayde. Doe euen as he hath sayde: smyte hym, and burpe hym, that thou mayest take awaye the bloude, which Joab shed causelesse, from me, and from the house of my father. And the Lorde shall bypnyng hys bloud vpon his awne heed, for he smote two men right wyse and better then he, and slue them with the swerde, my father Dauid not knowynge therof: euen Abner the sonne of Ner, captayne of the hoost of Israel, and Amasa the sonne of Jether captaine of y^e hoost of Iuda. Theyr bloude shall therfore retorne vpon the heed of Joab, and on the heed of hys seed for euer. But vpon Dauid, and vpon his seed, and vpon hys house, and vpon hys seate shall there be peace for euer of the Lorde. So Banaiahu y^e sonne of Jehoiada wote vp, and smote hym, and slue hym, and buried hym in hys awne house in the wylder-nesse. And the kyng put Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada in hys rowme ouer the hoost and put Sadock the pcesse in the rowme of Abiathar.

And the kyng sente and called Semel, and sayde vnto hym: buylde the an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there: and se that thou go not forth thence any whether. For be thou sure, that the daye that thou goest out, and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalt dye y^e daye, and thy bloude shall be vpon thynne awne heade. And Semel sayde vnto the kyng. Thys is a good thinge: as my Lorde the kyng hath sayde: so wyll hys seruante do. And Semel dwelt in Jerusalem many a daye. And it chaunced after thre yeres, that two of the seruantes of Semel ranne away vnto Achis, sonne of Maacha king of Geth. And they tolde Semel, sayinge: beholde, thy seruantes be in Geth. And Semel stode vp, & sadled hys asse, and gat hym to Geth to Achis, to seke hys seruantes, and returned, and brought hys seruantes agayne from Geth.

And it was tolde Salomon, howe that Semel hath gone from Jerusalem to geth, and was come agayne. And the kyng sent, and called Semel, and sayd vnto hym: why dost thou charge the by the Lorde with an othe, and testifyed vnto the, sayinge: be sure, that whensoever thou goest out, and walkest a-broade any whether, thou shalt dye y^e deeth. And thou saydest vnto me: it is good tidynge that I haue hearde. Why then hast thou not kept the othe of the Lorde, and the commandement that I charged the withall?

The kyng sayde mozeouer to Semel: thou remembrest all the wyckednesse which thynne hert knoweth, and that thou dydest to Dauid my father. The Lorde also shall bypnyng thy wyckednesse vpon thynne awne heed: and kyng Salomon shall be blessed, and the seat of Dauid stablyshed befoze y^e Lorde for euer. So the kyng commaunded Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada: which went out, and smote hym that he dyed: And the kyngdome was stablyshed in the hande of Salomon.

The. iij. Chapter.

¶ Salomon taketh Pharaos daughter to wyfe. The Lord appeareth to hym and geueth hym wysdome. The pleasyng of the two harlots who shalde owe the lyuing chylde: and Salomons sentence therin.

Salomon made affinite with Pharaos kyng of Egypt, & toke Pharaos daughter, and brought her in to y^e cytie of Dauid, vntill he had made an ende of buyldinge his awne his awne house, & the house of the Lorde, and the wall of Jerusalem rounde about. Onely the people sacrificed in altars made on hylls, because there was no house buylde vnto the name of y^e Lorde, vntill those dayes. And Salomon loued y^e Lorde, and walked in the ordynances of Dauid hys father, saue onely that he sacrificed and offered incense vpon altars in hylls.

¶ And the kyng went to Gibeon, to offer there: for that was a speciall offerynge place. A thousand burntofferings dyd Salomon offre vpon that altare: and in Gibeon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God sayde: aske what thou wilt, that I maye geue it the. And Salomon sayde: thou hast shewed vnto thy seruante Dauid my father great mercy, when he walked befoze the in trueth, in ryghtewynesse, & in playnesse of hert with the. And thou hast kepte for hym this greute mercy, that y^e hast geuen hym a sonne, to sytt on hys seate: as it is come to passe thys daye. * And nowe, O Lord my God, it is thou y^e hast made thy seruante kyng in steade of Dauid my father, * And I am but ponge, and wote not howe to go out and in. And thy seruante is in the myddes of thy people, which thou hast chosen. And verely, the people are so manye, that they cannot be tolde nor nombred for multitude. * Geue therfore vnto thy seruante an vnderstandynge hert, to iudge thy people, y^e I maye decerne betwene good and bad. For who is able to iudge thys, thy so myghtye a people?

And thys pleased the Lorde well, y^e Salomon had desyred thys thynge. And God sayde vnto him: because thou hast asked this thynge, and hast not asked longe lyfe, nether hast asked ryches, nor y^e soule of thynne enemyes, but hast asked vnderstandynge and discrecyon in iudgement.

Beholde, I haue done accordynge to thy petycon. For I haue geuen the a wyse and an vnderstandynge herte, so that there was none like the befoze the, nether after the thal eny aryle lyke vnto the. And I haue also geuen the, that which thou hast not asked, eny rychesse and honoure, so that there shall be no kyng lyke vnto the all thy dayes. And yf y^e wilt walke in my wayes, to kepe myne ordynances and my commandmentes, * as thy father Dauid dyd walke, I will lengthen thy dayes. When Salomon awoke, behold, it was a dreame. * And he came to Jerusalem and stode befoze the arke of the testament of the Lorde, and offered burntofferings and peaceofferings, and made a feaste to all his seruantes.

* Then came there two women, that were harlottes, vnto the kyng, and stode befoze hym. And the one woman sayde: Oh my Lorde, I and thys woman dwell in one house. And I was deliuered of a chylde with her in the house. And the thyrde daye after that I was deliuered, she was deliuered also: and we were together, and no straunger with vs in the house, saue we two. And thys wyues chylde dyed in the nyght, for she smothered it. And she rose at mydnyght, and toke my sonne from my syde, whyle thynne handemayde slepte, and layde it in her bosome, and putt her deed chylde in my bosome. And when I rose vp to geue my chylde sucke: beholde, it was deed. But wha I had looked vpon it in the moynyng, beholde, it was not my sonne, which I dyd beare.

The other woman sayde: it is not so: but my sonne lyueth, and thy sonne is deed. And she sayde agayne: No, but thy sonne is deed, and my sonne is aloue. And thus they pleaded befoze the kyng. Then sayde the kyng: the one sayth, this that is aloue is my sonne: and the deed is thynne. And the other sayth, naye: but thy sonne is the deed, & the lyuing chylde is myne. And the kyng sayde: bypnyng me a swerde. And they brought out a swerde befoze the kyng. And the kyng sayde. Wende the lyuing chylde in two, and geue the one halfe to the one, and the other to the other.

Then spake the woman, whose the lyuing chylde was, vnto the kyng, for her bowelles yerned vpon her sonne, and sayde: I beseeche the my Lorde, geue her the lyuing chylde, and in no wyse slepe it. But the other sayd: let it be nether myne nor thynne, but deuyde it. Then the kyng answered and sayd: * geue her the lyuing chylde, and slepe it not: for she is the mother therof. And all they of Israel hearde of the iudgement, which the kyng hath iudged, and feared the kyng: for they sawe that the wysdome of God was in hym, to do iustice. R

The. iij. Chapter.

¶ The pceses and rulers vnder Salomon. The purpauce for his vitayles. The nombre of his horses and of hys parables.

Ad so kyng Salomon was a kyng ouer all Israel. And these were hys lordes. Azariahu the sonne of Sadock the pcesse. Elihozeoph and Abiah the sonnes of Sila, scriybes. Jehosaphath the sonne of Ahilud, the recorder. Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the hooste. And Sadock and Abiathar were the pceses. And Azariahu the sonne of Nathan was ouer the officers. And zabud the sonne of Nathan was a pcesse, the kynges companyon. And Abisar stewarde of household. And * Adoniram the sonne of Abda was ouer the trybutes.

And Salomon had twelue officers ouer all Israel all Israel, which prouyded vitayle for the kyng and his household: eche man hys moneth in a yere, made prouision for necessary thynges. And these are they names: the sonne of Hur in mount Ephraim: the sonne of Dekar in Mahaz, and in Saalbin & Bethsames, Elon and Bethhana: the sonne of Hefed in Aruboth, to whom perteyned Socho and all the land of Isepher: the sonne of Abinadab in all the region of Dor, which had Tapheh the daughter of Salomon to wyfe. Baana the sonne of Ahilud was ouer Chanach & Magiddo, & ouer all Bethsan, which is by zarthana beneath Jezrael, fro Bethsan to the playne of Nehola, eue vnto the place that is oueragaynst Tchernaim: the sonne of Gaber had Ramoth Gilead, & his were the townes of Jare: the sonne of Manasse, which are in Gilead, & vnder him was the region of Argob which is in Basan the scoze greete cyties with walles and barres of brasse.

Ahinadab the sonne of Hiddo had Ahenaim. Ahimaz was in Jephthaim, and he toke Bahmuth the daughter of Salomon to wyfe. Baana the sonne of Husai was in Aser & in Aloth. Jeholaphat the sonne of Paruah was in Flachar. Semei the sonne of Elia was in Benjamin. Gaber the sonne of Ury was in the countrey of Gilead, the lande of Schon kyng of the Amozites, & of Og kyng of Basan, and was officer alone in the lande. And Juda and Israel were many, euen as the land of the see in nobye, eatyng, drynkyng & making mery. And Salomon raygned ouer all kyngdoms, fro the ryuer vnto the lande of the Philistines: eue vnto the border of Egypt, and they brought presentes, and serued Salomon all the dayes of hys lyfe.

And Salomons breed for one daye was xxx. quarters of machet flour, and the scoze quarters of meale. ten stalled oxen, and xx. out of the pastures, and a hundred shepe, besyde hertres, buckes, and wilde goates, and capons. For he ruled in all the region on the other side Euphrates, fro Chiphlah to Azza, ouer all the kynges on the other syde the ryuer. And he had peace with all hys seruantes on euery syde. And Juda and Israel dwelt without feare, euery man vnder hys vyne and vnder hys fygg tre, from Dan to Beerseba, all the dayes of Salomon.

And Salomon had xl. M. stables of horses for charrettes, and xij. M. horsmen. And the officers prouyded vitayle for kyng Salomon and for all that came out of any place to kyng Salomons table, euery man hys moneth, so that there lacked nothyng. Barlye also and straw for the horses and mules, brought they vnto the place where the officers were, euery man in hys offyce.

And God gaue Salomon wysdome and vnderstandyng exceedinge moche, and a large hert, euen as the sand that is on the see shore: and Salomons wysdome excelled the wysdome of all the chyldren of the east contrey, and all the wysdome of Egypt. For he was wyser then all men, pee then, Ethan the Gzrahite, and Heman, Chalcol, & Darda the sonnes of Mahol. And his name was spoken of thowome out all nacjons on euery syde. And Salomon spake the thousand prouerbes. And his songes were a thousand and fyue. And he spake of trees, euen fro the Cedar tre that groweth in Libanon, vnto the floe that spryngeth out of the wall. He spake also of beastes, of foules, of wormes, and of spylles. And there came of all nacjons to heare the wysdome of Salomon, and from all kynges of the earth, which had hearde of hys wysdome.

The. v. Chapter.

King Hiram sendeth Cedar timber to the building of the temple. The description of the workes.

And Hiram kyng of Tyre sent his seruantes vnto Salomon, for he had heard, that they had annoynted hym kyng in the rowme of hys father. For Hiram was euer a louer of Dauid. And Salomon sent to Hiram, saying: thou knowest how that Dauid my father coude not bulde an house vnto the name of the Lorde hys God, for the warres which were aboute hi on euery syde, vntill the Lorde putt them vnder the soles of hys fete. But now the Lorde my God hath geue me rest on euery syde, so that there is neither aduersarye, nor anye euill plage. And behold, I am determined to bulde an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God, as the Lorde spake vnto Dauid my father saying: thy sonne whom I wyll set vpo thy seate for the, he shall bulde an house vnto my name. Nowe therfore, commaunde thou that they hewe me Cedar trees out of Libanon. And my seruantes shalbe with thyne, and vnto tye, wyll I geue the fyre for thy seruantes, accordyng to all soche thynges as thou shalt appoynte, for thou knowest that there are not amonge vs, that can skyll to hewe tymber, lyke vnto the Sidonys.

Whan Hiram heard the wordes of Salomon, he reioysed greatly, & sayd. Blessed be the Lorde this daye which hath geue vnto dauid a wyse a wyse sonne ouer this myghty people. And Hiram sent to Salomon, saying: I haue conseyded the thynges which thou sentest to me for: & will accople all thy desyre, concerning tymber of Cedar trees ad fyre. My seruantes shall bryng them fro Libanon to the see. And I will conuey them by ship vnto the place that thou shalt therewe me: & wyll cause the to be discharged there, ad thou shalt receaue the. And thou shalt do me a pleasure agayne if thou mynstre fode for myne house. And so Hiram gaue Salomon cedar trees & fyre trees, accordyng to all hys desyre. And Salomon gaue Hiram. xx. M. quarters of whete for fode to his household, and twenty buttes of pure oyle. Thus much gaue Salomon to Hiram yere by yere.

And the Lorde gaue Salomon wysdome as he promysed him. And ther was peace betwene Hiram and Salomon: & they two were cōfedered together. And king Salomon reysed a some out of all Israel. And the some was thirtie thousande men, whom he sent to Liban. x. M. a moneth by course, so that when they had bene one moneth in Liban, they abode two monethes at home.

And Adoniram was ouer the some. And Salomon had the scoze and ten thousande that bare burthenes, and foure scoze thousand masons in the mountaynes, besydes the lordes, who Salomon appoynted to ouer se the worke, euen the thousand and the hundred, which ruled the people. And they wrought in the worke. And the kyng commaunded them to bryng great stones, weighty stones and hewed stones for the foundation of the house. And Salomons masons and the masons of Hiram dore hewe them, in the worke of the corners. And so they prepared both tymber & stones for the building of the house.

The. vi. Chapter.

Howe, and when the temple was builded.

And it came to passe in the iij. C. and lxx. yere (after the chyldren of Israel were come out of the land of Egypt) and the iij. yere of the raygne of Salomon vpo Israel: and in the moneth x. ziff, which is the ij. moneth, he beganne to bulde the house of the Lorde. And the house which Salomon buylt for the Lorde, was. lx. cubytes longe, and. xx. cubytes broade, and. xxx. cubytes hye. And he made a porche before the body of the temple, which was. xx. cubytes longe after the bredth of the house, and. x. cubytes broade, euen in the forefrot of the house. And in the house he made wyndowes broade without, and narrowe within.

And in the wall of the house, he made chambers rounde about, (eue in the walles of the house) rounde about the temple & the queer: and made sydes rounde about. The nether-

most chamber was fyue cubytes broad, and the myddle was fyre cubytes broade, & the thyrde was seue cubytes broad. For without in the wall of the house he layd beames round about, that the beames of the chambers shuld not be fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was buylt of stone, made perfecte already before it was brought thither, so that there was neither hammer, ner axe, ether any tole of yron heard in the house, whyle it was in building.

The dore of the myddle chamber was in the ryght syde of the house: and men went by the wyndyng stappes into the myddle chamber, and out of the myddle, into the thyrde. And so he buylt the house and fynyshedit, and rouffit it with beames of Cedar timber. And then he buylt chambers to all the temple, of fyue cubytes heygth, and they were ioyned to the house with beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Lorde came to Salomon, saying: concerninge the house which thou arte in buildinge, if thou wyll walke in myne ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe my commaundementes, to walke in the: then wyll I make good vnto the my prouises, which I promysed Dauid thy father. And I wyll dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel, and will not forsake my people Israel. Salomon therfore built the house and fynyshedit, and syled the walles of the house within, with borders of Cedar tree: euen fro the paucmet of the house vnto the rouffed byde he syled the walles of it within, with Cedar tre: and boarded the floure of the house with planckes of fyre.

And he syled. xx. cubytes in the sydes of the queer of the temple, both floore & walles with bordes of Cedar, & dyssedit within in the secrete place of the temple, euen in the moost holpe. And the fyrst house, that is to saye, the body of the temple without, was fourty cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the house within, was kurned with knoppes, & graned with floures, and all was Cedar timber, so that no stone was sene. And the queer that was within the temple, he prepared, to set there the arke of the appoyntment of the Lorde: And the queer before was twenty cubytes lōge, and twenty cubytes in bredth, and twenty cubytes in heygth. And he syled it with pure golde, and boarded the altare with Cedar.

And Salomon also syled the house within with pure golde. And he made golden barres runne alonge the queer, which he had couered with golde. And the whole house, he ouerlayd with golde vntill he had ended it. And the altare was in the queer he ouerlayde with golde also.

And within the queer he made. ij. C. chambers of olyue tree, ten cubytes hye. If yue Salomons iii. Kynges. house.

cubytes longe was a wyng of the one Cherub, and fyue cubytes longe was a wyng of the other Cherub: so that fro the vntermost parte of one wyng vnto the vntermost part of the other, were ten cubytes.

And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hye also, so y^e both the Cherubes were of one measure & one syde. For the heigth of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of y^e other. And he put the Cherubes within the pinner house. * And the Cherubes stretched out their wynges, so that the one wyng of y^e one touched the one wall, and the one wyng of the other touched the other wall. And the other two wynges of them touched one another in the myddes of y^e house. And he overlaped the Cherubs with golde.

And in all the walles of the house round about, he made fygures of carued and spled worke: as namelý, pictures of Cherubs and Palmietrees and grauen floures, both within in the queer, & without in the temple. And the floure of the house he couered with golde both within in y^e queer and also without in the temple. And in the enterynge of the queer he made two dozes of Olive tree. And both the upper & two syde postes were .v. square. The two dozes also were of Olive tree, and he graued them with grauynge of Cherubs and Palmietrees, and grauen floures, & couered them with gold, and laped thynne plates of golde vpon the Cherubs and Palmietrees. And in like maner dyd he in the doze of the temple, sauyng that the postes were of Olive tree four square. The two dozes were of fyre tree: and epyther doze with two folding leaues, he graued therō Cherubs Palmietrees, and floures: and couered them with golde, which was laped thynne vpon the carued worke. And he buylt the pinner court wth thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourth yere was the foundation of the house of the Lorde laped: euen in the moneth ziff. And in the eleuenth yere in the moneth Bull, which is the egypt moneth, was the house full fynished thowout all the partes therof, and accordynge to all the fashyon of it. And so was he seuen yere in buyldynge it. The viij. Chapter.

The luydinge of the house of Salomon. The house of Pharaos daughter. The forme of the pylers of brasie, of the brasen see &c.

But Salomon was buyldynge his awne house thirtene yere, & fynished it all. And he buylt the house in the wodd of Libanon, an hundred cubytes longe, and fyfthe cubytes broad, & .xxx. cubytes hye. And it stode vpon foure rowes of Cedar pylars, and Cedar beames were laped vpon the pylers. And y^e rounke was Cedar aboue vpon the beames, that laye on the pylers: euen fyue and four-tye beames in fyftene rowes. And there were wyndowes in thre rowes: and the wyndowes were one agaynst another thre folde. And the dozes with the syde postes, and the upperposte were fouresquare, and had wyndowes one agaynst another thre folde.

And he made a porch by the pylars, that bare vpon the house .l. cubytes longe, and .xxx. cubytes broad: & that porch was before those & the other pylers. For there was a thicke tree set before them. Then he made a porche to spt a iudge in, spled with Cedar & thowout all the panementes. And hys awne house (that he kept residue in: & that was in another court without y^e porch) was made of that same worke. And then Salomon made an house for Pharaos daughter: whō he had taken to wyfe, lyke vnto the fashyon of that porche. And all these were of the best stones, hewed after a measure, and sawed wth sawes within and without, from the foundation vnto the beames that laye aboue, after the measure, & euen so on the outsyde toward the great court. And the foundation was laped vpon ryche stones & y^e very great stones: wherof some were .x. cubytes, & some viij. cubytes. And aboue were good stones squared after a certayn rule, & couered wth Cedar. And the great court round about was wth thre rowes of hewed stone, & one rowe of Cedar plackes, after y^e maner of the pinner court of the house of the Lorde, & of the porch of the temple. * And kyng Salomon sent and fett one hiram out of Tyre, a wedowes sonne of the tribe of Nephtalim, his father beyng a man of Tyre. Which hiram was a craftesman in brasie: full of wysdome, vnderstandynge and conynge: to worke all maner of worke in brasie. And he came to kyng Salomō, & wrought all his worke. For he cast two pylers of brasie of .xviij. cubytes hye a pece, & a stringe of .xij. cubytes dyd compass ether them about. And he made .ij. heed peeces of molten brasie (after the fashyon of a crowne) to sett on the toppes of the pylers. The heigth of the one heed pece contained .v. cubytes, & the heigth of the other heed pece cōteyned .v. cubytes also: he made also net worck & garlandes of cheyne worke, vpon the heed peeces that were on the top of the pylers, euen seuen rowes vpon the one heed pece, and seue vpon the other. And so he made the pylers, and two rowes round about, in the one wth then worke, to couer the heed peeces y^e were vpon the pomgranates. And thus dyd he also for the other heed pece. And the heed peeces that were on the toppes of the pylers, couered he aboue with a curyous worke of roses: toward the palace by the space of .iiij. cubytes. Likewyle, vnder y^e heed peeces in those .ij. pylers beneath, oueragaynst y^e myddes & before y^e net worke. And vpon the secōde heed pece were were ther .ij. pomgranates in two rowes round about. And he set vpon the pylers in the porch of the tēple. And whē he had set vpon the right pillar, he called y^e name therof: Joachi: & whā he had set vpon the left pillar, he called y^e name therof: Boaz. And in the toppe of the pylers was a worke of roses, and so was y^e workmanthyp of the pylers fynished.

And he made a molten lauatory, ten cubytes wyde fro byrm to byrm, round in compass, & .v. cubytes hye. And a stryng of thretye cubytes dyd cōpasse it about: and vnder the byrm of it, there were knoppes round about, ten in one cubite: and they cōpassed the lauatory round about. And y^e knoppes were cast wth it, in two rowes, when it was caste. And it stode on twelue oxen: of which thre looked toward the north, .ij. toward the west, .ij. toward the south, & .ij. toward the east. and the lauatory stode vpon them, & all they^e hinderpartes were inward. It was an hand breadeth thyecke, & y^e byrm wrought lyke the byrm of a cup wth floures of lylies. And it cōteyned two thousand & bates.

And he made .x. sockettes of brasie .iiij. cubytes longe, and .iiij. cubytes broad a pece, & .iiij. cubytes hye. And the worke of the sockettes was on this maner. They had sides, and the sydes were betwene the ledges. And on the sydes that were betwene the ledges, were lyons, oxen and cherubs. And lykewyle, vpon the ledges that were aboue: and beneath the lyons and oxen were certayne addicions made of thynne worke. And vnder eury socket, were foure brasen wheles, and bordes of brasie. And in the foure corners therof, were vnderletters vnder the lauatory, cast eche oueragaynst hys felowe.

And the stalke of the lauatory was in the myddle of it, & (where it is seue on the out syde) one cubite hye, and a cubite and an halfe rounde: and in the heigth of it were grauen worckes, whose sydes were made four square, and not rounde. And vnder the sydes were .iiij. wheles: and the axeltrees ioynd fast to the bottome. And the heigth of eury whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the workmanthyp of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charret whele. And the axeltrees, the nauelles, spokes and shaftes were all molten: And there were foure vnderletters in the .iiij. corners of one socket: and the vnderletters were of the very bottome selfe. And in y^e heigth of the bottome was there round compass of a cubite hye: and in that heigth of the bottome, there proceeded both ledges & sydes out of the same. For in the bordes of the ledges, and on the sydes, he had grauen pictures of cherubins, lyons and palmietrees, one by another rounde aboute. Thus made he the ten sockettes after this maner. And they had all one fashyon of castynge: one measure, and one size. Then made he .x. launces of brasie, one launcer conteyning .xl. bates: and one launcer was ffoure cubytes, and vpon eury one of the ten sockettes, he put one launcer. And he put fyue of those sockettes on the right side of y^e house and other fyue on the left. And he set the lauatory on the ryght syde of the house eastward and toward the south.

And hiram made pottes, shouels and basens, and so fynished all the worke y^e he made kyng Salomon for the house of the Lorde: y^e is to saye, two pylers, two round heed peeces, that were to be sett on the toppes of the two pylers. .ii. net worckes to couer the two round heed peeces set vpon the toppes of the pylers, and .iiij. pomgranates for the two net worckes, eue two rowes of pomgranates in one net worke, to couer the two heed peeces that were to be sett on the toppes of the pylers. And the ten sockettes, and ten launces on the sockettes. The lauatory and .xij. oxen vnder it: and pottes, shouelles and basens. And all these vessels which hira made to kyng Salomō for the house of y^e Lorde, were of bright brasie. In the playne of Jordan did the kyng cast them: euen in the thyecke claye betwene Sococh and zarthan. And Salomon left all the vessels vnwaped, because they were so exceeding many, neyther founde they our the weygth of the brasie.

And so Salomō made all the vessels that pertayned vnto the house of the Lorde: the golden aulter and the golden table, wher on the shewe bread was. And fyue candellstykkes, for the ryght syde, and fyue for the left: before the queer of pure golde: with floures, lampes, and snuffers of golde: & boules, flat peeces, basens, spones and masoures of pure golde: and hundres made he of golde for the dozes of the queer, the place moost holy, and for the dozes of the temple also.

And so was ended all y^e worke that kyng Salomon made for the house of the Lorde. And Salomō brought in y^e thinges which Dauid his father had dedicated: euen the siluer, golde, & vessels: and laped the vpainoge the treasures of the house of the Lorde.

The viij. Chapter.

The ark is borne into the temple. A cloude fylleth the temple. The temple is blessed.

When Salomō gathered together the elders of Israel, all y^e heades of the tribes, and them that were captaynes among the father of y^e childre of Israel, vnto him in Jerusalem, that they might bring vpon the ark of the appointemet of the Lorde: out of the cite of Dauid, which is Syon. And all the men of Israel assembled vnto kyng Salomon to the festac that falleth in the monethe Ethanim, which is the seuenth moneth. And all the elders of Israel were come and the prestes toke vp the arke. They bare the arke of the Lord into the tabernacle of witness, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle: those dyd the prestes and the Levites beare. And kyng Salomon and all the congregacion of Israel that were assembled vnto hym, and went with hym before the arke, dyd offer shepe and oxen, that coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And so the prestes brought the arke of p appoyntment of p Lord vnto his place: eue into the queer of the temple a place most holy, vnder the winges of the cherubs. For the cherubs stretched out their winges ouer the place of the arke, & couered both it & also the stauers therof a hie vpon it. And they drew out the stauers, & the endes of the myght appeared out of the holy place within the queer:

but they were not sene about. And there they haue bene vnto this daye: and ther was nothyng in the arke, & saue the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb, in the which tables p Lord made an apoyntment with the chyldren of Israel, when he brought them out of the lande of Egypt.

And it fortuned p when the prestes were come out of the holy place, the cloude fylled the house of the Lord, & the prestes coulde not stonde and minister, because of the cloude: for the glory of the Lord had fylled p house of the Lord. Then spake Salomon: the Lord & sayde: p he wolde dwell in the darke cloude. I haue built the an house to dwell in an habitacō for the, to abyde in for ever. And the kyng turned his face, and blessed all the congregacion of Israel: and all the congregacion of Israel stode still. And he sayd:

Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, which spake whys mouth vnto Dauid my father, and hath w his hande fulfilled it, saying: Sene the daye p I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no cytie of all p trybes of Israel, to buyde an house, & my name myght be therein. But I haue chosen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to builde an house for p name of p Lord God of Israel. And the Lord sayd vnto Dauid my father. Where as it was thyne herte to buyde an house vnto my name, thou didest well, p thou was so mynded. Neuertheless p shalt not buyde p house, but thy sone that shall come out of thyne loynes, he shall buyde the house vnto my name. And p Lord hath made good his worde p he spake. And I am ryen vpon the rowme of Dauid my father, and sitt on the seate of Israel as the Lord promised and haue buyt an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And I haue prepared thir in a place for the arke wherein is the couenant of the Lord, which he made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the lande of Egypt, Salomon stode before the aultare of the Lord in the syght of all the congregacion of Israel, and stretched out hys handes toward heauen, and sayde: * Lord God of Israel, ther is no

God like the in heauen above, or in the earth beneath, thou that kepest couenant and mercy for thy seruantes that walke before the with all their hert: thou that hast kept with thy seruant Dauid my father, & thou promysdest hym. Thou spakest also with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it w thyne hādē, as it is come to passe this daye. Therefore nowe

Lord God of Israel kepe with thy seruant Dauid my father p thou promysdest hym, saying: * thou shalt not be without a mā in my syght to sēt in the seate of Israel: so that thy chyld, take hede to their waye, that they walke before me as thou hast walked in my syght. And nowe, O God of Israel, let thy worde be verifed, which thou spakest vnto thy seruant Dauid my father.

Will God in dede dwell on the earth? We holde the heuens, and heuens of all heuens are not able to cōterne the. And howe shalde thā this house do it, that I haue builded: haue p therfore respect vnto the prayer of thy seruant, and to hys supplicacyon, O Lord my God, to heare the voyce and prayer before the this daye: that thyne eyes maye be open toward this house, night and daye, euen toward this place, of which thou hast sayde: * My name shalbe there. That p mayest herken vnto p prayer which thy seruant prayeth in this place. And regarde p, p supplicacyon of thy seruant & of thy people Israel, whē they praye in this place. And heare thou in heauen thy dwellinge place, & when thou hearest, haue mercy. * P any man trespass against his neyghbour, and there go an oth betwene them, and the one compelled the other, and come swearyng before thyne aultare in this house, then herken thou in heauen, and worke and iudge thy seruantes, that p condempne the vngodly to byrnyng hys waye vpon his head, and iustifye the righteous to geue hym accordyng to hys ryghteousnesse. * W hē thy people Israel be put to p worke before the enemye, because they haue synned agaynst the: and afterwarde turne agayne to the, and knowledge vnto thy name, and praye and make intercessiō vnto the in thys house: then heare thou in heauen, to be merciful vnto the synne of the people Israel, & byrnyng them agayne into the lande, which thou gauest vnto their fathers.

* If heaue be shut vp, & there be no rayne because they haue synned agaynst the: yet p they praye in thys place, & knowledge vnto thy name, & turne from their synne, thozow thy scourgyng of them: then heare thou in heauen, and be merciful * (vnto the synners) of thy thy seruantes and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe them a good waye to walke in, and geue rayne vpon thy lōde that thou hast geuen vnto thy people to enheret.

If there be in the lande derty, or pestilence, or drought, blastynge, grechopper or caterpillar, or yf they enemye besegge them in the lande of they cyties, or whatsoeuer plage or synnelle chaunce: * then what prayers & supplicacyon soeuer be made of any man of all thy people Israel, which shall knowledg euey man the plage of his awne hert, and stretch forth hys handes toward thy house: heare thou then in heauen, euen in thy dwellinge place, and be mercysfull, and worke, and geue euey man accordyng to all hys wayes (eue as thou that only knowest his hert, for thou onely knowest the hertes of all the chyldren of men:) that they maye feare the as lōge as they lyue in the lāde, which thou gauest vnto our fathers. And lyke wyse, yf a stranger that is not of thy people Israel * come out of a farre contrey for thy names sake, for they shall heare of thy grete name, & of thy myghtie hādē and of thy stretched out arme & shall come and praye in thys house. Therefore, heare thou in heauen thy dwellinge place, and do all that the stranger calleth to the for: that all nactons of the erth maye knowe thy name and feare the, as do thy people Israel: and that they maye knowe that thy name is called vpon in thys house whych I haue buyt.

Pf thy people go out to batell agaynst their enemye, whether soeuer thou shalt sende the and shal praye vnto the, (O Lord) * toward the waye of the cytie whyche thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I haue buyt for thy name: heare thou in heauen they prayer and supplicacyon, and iudge their cause.

Pf they synne agaynst the * (for there is no man that synneth not) and thou be angrie with them, and deliuer them into the hande of they enemyes: so that they carpe them a waye pyloners vnto the lande of they enemyes, whether farre or neare, yet p they turne agayne vnto they hertes in the lande (to the whych they be carryed a waye captiue,) and retorne and praye vnto the in the lāde of they enemyes, saying: we haue synned, we haue done wyckedlye, and haue committed vngodlynesse, and so turne agayne vnto the with all they herte, and all they soule in the lande of their enemies, which led them a waye captiue, and praye vnto the toward the waye of they lande, whych thou gauest vnto they fathers, and toward the cytie, which thou hast chosen, & toward the house which I haue buyt for thy name: then heare thou they * prayer and supplicacyon in heauen thy dwellinge place, & iudge they cause:

and be mercysfull vnto thy people, that haue synned agaynst the, and vnto all they iniquities, wherby they haue done wyckedlye agaynst the, and get thou them the fauoure of those which led them a waye captiue, that they maye haue compassyon on them. For they be thy people, and thyne enherytaunce, which thou broughtest out of Egypt, euen from the myddes of the fornace of piron. And let thyne eyes be open vnto the prayer of thy seruant, and vnto the prayer of thy people Israel * to herken vnto the, in all that they call for vnto p. For thou dydest separt the, from amonge all the nactons of the erth, to be thyne owne enheritaunce (as thou saydest by the hande of Moses thy seruant, when thou broughtest oure fathers, & out of Egypte O Lord God.

* And when Salomō had made an ende of prayinge all thys prayer and supplicacyon vnto the Lord, he arose from before the aultare of the Lord, and from knelyng on hys knees, and from stretchyng of his hādē vnto heauen, an stode and blessed all the congregacion of Israel with a loude voyce, saying. Blessed be the Lord, that hath geuen rest vnto hys people Israel, accordyng to all that he promised, * there hath not fayled one word of all the good promysse, which he promysed by the hande of Moses hys seruant. The Lord oure God be with vs, as he was with our fathers, and forsake vs not, neither leave vs: but that he maye bowe oure hertes vnto hi, that we maye walke in all his wayes and kepe hys commaundementes hys statutes and hys lawes, whyche he commaunded oure fathers. And these my wordes whych I haue prayed before the Lord, be nye vnto the Lord oure God daye and nyght, that he defende the cause of his seruant, and the cause of hys people Israel (what thyng soeuer chaunce at any tyme) that all nactons of the erth maye knowe, that the Lord is God, and none but he. Let youre herte therfore be perfecte with the Lord oure God, that ye walke in hys statutes, and kepe hys commaundementes, as thys daye.

And so the kyng & all the chyldren of Israel benedictid the house of the Lord. The same daye dyd the kyng halowe the myddel of the court, that was before the house of the Lord: for there he offered burnt offeringes, meate offeringes and the fat of p peace offeringes: because p brazen aultare that was before p Lord, was to lytle for reccaue p burnt offeringes, meate offeringes, and the fat of the peace offeringes.

thy seruantes and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe them a good waye to walke in, and geue rayne vpon thy lōde that thou hast geuen vnto thy people to enheret.

If there be in the lande derty, or pestilence, or drought, blastynge, grechopper or caterpillar, or yf they enemye besegge them in the lande of they cyties, or whatsoeuer plage or synnelle chaunce: * then what prayers & supplicacyon soeuer be made of any man of all thy people Israel, which shall knowledg euey man the plage of his awne hert, and stretch forth hys handes toward thy house: heare thou then in heauen, euen in thy dwellinge place, and be mercysfull, and worke, and geue euey man accordyng to all hys wayes (eue as thou that only knowest his hert, for thou onely knowest the hertes of all the chyldren of men:) that they maye feare the as lōge as they lyue in the lāde, which thou gauest vnto our fathers. And lyke wyse, yf a stranger that is not of thy people Israel * come out of a farre contrey for thy names sake, for they shall heare of thy grete name, & of thy myghtie hādē and of thy stretched out arme & shall come and praye in thys house. Therefore, heare thou in heauen thy dwellinge place, and do all that the stranger calleth to the for: that all nactons of the erth maye knowe thy name and feare the, as do thy people Israel: and that they maye knowe that thy name is called vpon in thys house whych I haue buyt.

Pf thy people go out to batell agaynst their enemye, whether soeuer thou shalt sende the and shal praye vnto the, (O Lord) * toward the waye of the cytie whyche thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I haue buyt for thy name: heare thou in heauen they prayer and supplicacyon, and iudge their cause.

Pf they synne agaynst the * (for there is no man that synneth not) and thou be angrie with them, and deliuer them into the hande of they enemyes: so that they carpe them a waye pyloners vnto the lande of they enemyes, whether farre or neare, yet p they turne agayne vnto they hertes in the lande (to the whych they be carryed a waye captiue,) and retorne and praye vnto the in the lāde of they enemyes, saying: we haue synned, we haue done wyckedlye, and haue committed vngodlynesse, and so turne agayne vnto the with all they herte, and all they soule in the lande of their enemies, which led them a waye captiue, and praye vnto the toward the waye of they lande, whych thou gauest vnto they fathers, and toward the cytie, which thou hast chosen, & toward the house which I haue buyt for thy name: then heare thou they * prayer and supplicacyon in heauen thy dwellinge place, & iudge they cause:

and be mercysfull vnto thy people, that haue synned agaynst the, and vnto all they iniquities, wherby they haue done wyckedlye agaynst the, and get thou them the fauoure of those which led them a waye captiue, that they maye haue compassyon on them. For they be thy people, and thyne enherytaunce, which thou broughtest out of Egypt, euen from the myddes of the fornace of piron. And let thyne eyes be open vnto the prayer of thy seruant, and vnto the prayer of thy people Israel * to herken vnto the, in all that they call for vnto p. For thou dydest separt the, from amonge all the nactons of the erth, to be thyne owne enheritaunce (as thou saydest by the hande of Moses thy seruant, when thou broughtest oure fathers, & out of Egypte O Lord God.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye feast & all Israel with hym, a very great congregacyon, euen from the entrynge in of hemath vnto the ryuer of Egypt, before the

 Deu. xlii. c.* Lorde our God, * seuen dayes & seuen dayes euen, xiiij. dayes. And the eighth daye he sent the people a waye. And they blessed the kyng and went vnto theyr tentes ioyous and with glad herte, because of all the goodnesse that the Lorde had done for Dauid his seruant, and for Israel his people.

The. ix. Chapter.

The Lorde appeareth the seconde tyme to Salomon. Salomon geueth vnto his Canaanites tribute. He sendeth Shyppes for golde. He buyldeth many cyties.

 2. Sam. vii. c.* And when Salomon had * synys- quied the buyldinge of the house of the Lorde and the kynges palace, & all that he had in his mynde, and was apoynted to make: the Lorde appered vnto hym agayne, as he appered to hym at Gibeon. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: I haue hearde thy prayer and thy intercessyon, that thou hast made before me. For I haue halowed this house (which thou hast buylt) to put my name there for euer, and myne eyes and myne herte shall be there perpetuallye. And yf thou wilt walke before me (as Dauid thy father walked) in purenesse of herte and in righteousnesse, to do all that I haue commaunded the, and wilt kepe my statutes, & my lawes, then will I stablish the scate of thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer, as I promysed to Dauid thy father sayinge.

 11. Reg. iii. a.*  Thou shalt not be without a man vpon the scate of Israel.

But and yf ye and your chyldren turne awaye from me, and will not kepe my commaundementes and my statutes (whyche I haue set before you) but go and serue other Goddes, and worshyppe them: then will I wete Israel oute of the lande, whyche I haue geuen them. And this house whyche I haue halowed * for my name, will I cast oute of my syght. And Israel shall be a prouerbe and a fable amonge all nacjons. And this house shall be taken awaye: so that every one that passeth by it, shall be assayed, and shall saye, and they shall saye: * why hath the Lorde done thus vnto this lande and to this house? And they shall answer: because they forsake the Lorde theyr God, whyche brought theyr fathers out of the lande of Egypt, and haue taken holde vpon other Goddes, and haue worshipped them, and serued the, therefore hath the Lorde brought vpon them all this euill. * And it fortuned, that at the ende of twente yeres, Salomon synys- quied the buyldinge of the two houses, that is to wete, the house of the Lorde and the kynges palace. And Hyzram the kyng of Tyre brought Salomon tymbre of Cedar, and fyre trees, golde, and whatsoeuer he desired. And Salomon agayne gaue Hyzram xx. cyties into the lade of Galile. And Hyzram came oute from Tyre to se the cyties whyche Salomon had geuen hym, and they pleased hym not. And he sayde: what cyties are these, which thou hast geuen me, my brother? and he called them the lande of Canaan vnto this daye. And Hyzram sent the kyng fyre skore hundred wayght of golde. And this is the summe, which kyng Salomon rayled for a tribute whan he buylded the house of the Lorde and his awne house, and the wall of Jerusalem, and the hazor, and Megiddo, and Gazer.

For Pharaos kyng of Egypte went vp, & toke Gazer, and burnt it with fyre, and the Canaanites ydwell in the cytie, and gaue it for a present vnto his daughter, Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylt Gazer and Beth Horon the nether: and Baalath and Chamath in the wyldernesse and in the lande: and all the treasure cyties that Salomon had, (and were builded: those he made stronge) and cyties for his charettes, & cyties for his horsemen, and all that Salomon desired and wolde buyld in Jerusalem, in Libanon, and in all the lande of his dominyon.

And all the people that were left of the Amorites, Hethites, Phereites, Hittites, Jebusites, (whyche were not of the chyldren of Israel) theyr chyldren that were left after them in the lande, whom the chyldren of Israel also were not able to destroye. Those dyd Salomon compell to byng tribute vnto this daye. But of the chyldren of Israel dyd Salomon * make no bondemen. But they were men of warre, his ministers, his Lordes, his captaynes, and rulers of his charettes, and of his horsemen. And these were the Lordes, that were sett ouer Salomons worke: euen fyue hundred were they and fyfte, and they ruled the people that wrought the worke.

And Pharaos daughter came vp oute of the cytie of Dauid vnto the house which Salomon had buylt for her. And then dyd he also buyld the Millo. And this was a yere dyd Salomon offer burnt offerings and peace offerings vpon the altare, whyche he buylt vnto the Lorde. And he burnt incense vpon the altare that was before the Lorde, and so he synysquied the house.

And kyng Salomon made a nauye of Shyppes in Azion Gaber whyche is besyde Elath, on the bypncke of the redd see, in the lande of Edom. And Hyzram sent by Shyppes also of his seruantes, that were Shyppmen, and had knowledge of the see, with the seruantes of Salomon. And they came to Ophyr and fet from thence one and twente skore score hundred wayght of golde, & brought it to kyng Salomon.

The. x. Chapter.

The quene of Saba cometh to heare the wysdome of Salomon, whose royallte is here described.

 1. Reg. x. c.* And the * Quene of Saba hearynge the fame of Salomon (concernynge the name of the Lorde) came to proue hi with harde questyons. And she came to Jerusalem with a very great traine: with Camelles that bare swete odoures, and golde exceeding moche, and precious stones. And she came to Salomon and comoned with him of all that was in her hert. And Salomon declared vnto her all her questyons, so that there was not one thinge hydd from the kyng, which he expounded not vnto her.

And the quene of Saba cōsydered all Salomons wysdome, and the house that he had buylded, and the meate of his table, & the sytynge of his seruantes, the order of his mynisters, and theyr apparell, his dyncke, and his burnt sacrifices that he offered in the house of the Lorde, and she was astounded. And she sayde vnto the kyng. It was a true worde that I heard in myne awne lande of thy saynges, and of thy wysdome. Howbeit I beleued it not, tyll I came, & sawe it with myne eyes. And beholde, the one halfe was not tolde me: for thy wysdome and prosperitee exceedeth the fame whych I heard of the. Happy are thy men: and happye are these thy seruantes, which stande euer before the, and heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Lord thy god, which loued the, to set the on the seat of Israel, because the Lord loued Israel for euer, and made the kyng, to do equyte and righte wysnesse.

And she gaue the kyng fyre skore hundred weight of golde, and of iweete odoures exceeding moche, and precious stones. There came nomore soche aboundaunce of swete odoures, as the quene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomon. The nauye also of the * Shyppes of Hyzram (that caried golde from Ophyr) brought lykewyse greute plenty of Almuge tre and precious stones. And the kyng made of the Almuge trees, pillars for the house of the Lorde and for the kynges palace, and made harpes and psalteries for synners. There came no moare suche Almuge trees, nor were anye moare sene vnto this daye. And kyng Salomon gaue vnto the Quene of Saba accordynge to all her desire whatsoeuer she asked: besydes that he gaue her of a fre wyll with his awne hande. And so she returned vnto her awne countrey: both she, and her seruantes.

The wayght of golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was fyre hundred thre score and fyre talentes of golde, besydes that he had of chapmen and of marchautes and of Botycarpes, and of all the kynges of Arabia, and of the Lordes of the countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beate gold, fyre hundred syckles of gold went to a buckler. And he made thre hundred shylde of beaten golde, thre pounde of golde went to one shylde, and the kyng put them in the * house of the wood of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seate of pure, and couered it with the best golde. And the seate had fyre steppes. And the toppe of the seate was rounde behynde, & there were pomelles on ether syde on the place of the seate and two Lyons stode besyde the pomelles. And there stode. xii. Lyons on the steppes. vi. on a syde. Ther was none lyke (worke) sene in any kyngdome. * And all kynges Salomons dynckynge vessels were of golde, & lykewyse all the vessels of the house of the wood of Libanon were of pure gold. And as for syluer, it was nothing worth in the dayes of Salomon, for the kynges nauye of Shyppes wet on the sear vnto Tharshish the name of Hyzrams Shyppes: eue once in the yere wet the nauye to Tharshish, & brought golde and Dylner (Elephantys teth, apes and peccores). * And to kyng Salomon exceeded all the kynges of the erth both in riches & wysdome. And all the worlde resorted to Salomon, to heare his wysdome, which God had put in his herte. And brought him euery man his present, vessels of syluer and vessels of golde, rayment, harnesse, and swete odoures and horses and Mules, yere by yere. And Salomon gathered together charettes and horsemen: and he had a thousande and foure hundred charettes, & twelue thousande horsemen, whom he bestowed in the charette cyties, and with the kyng at Jerusalem.

* And the kyng made syluer in Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, & Cedar as plenteous as the wyld fygge trees that growe abundantly in the felde. The byngynge of horses also out of Egypt: & the collection of the wares: dyd the kynges marchautes take agayne, and sold the stuffe for a pryce. A charet came vp out of Egypt for fyre hundred syckles of syluer: that is one horse for an hundred and fyfte. And euen so for all the kynges of the Hethithes and for the kynges of Syria, dyd they bynge them oute thowowe theyr handes.

The. xi. Chapter.

Salomon hath seuen hundred quenes and thre hundred concubynes, which bynge hym to idolatrye. His aduersaries rebel agaynst hym. He dyeth.

 1. Reg. x. c.* At kyng * Salomon loued many outelandysh women: and the daughter of Pharaos: and women of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, & Idonites, wives and bechited. Where as yet (concernyng these nacionys) the Lorde sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: * Come not ye at them, nor let them come at you: elles wyll they turne youre hertes after theyr goddes. Neuerthelesse, Salomō claued vnto them in loue. * And he had seuen hundred Quenes, and thre hundred concubines, and his wyues turned a waye his hert, for it came to passe, when Salomon was elde, hys wyues turned his herte after other Gods: and his herte was not perfecte with the Lorde his God, as was the herte of Dauid his father: for Salomon folowed Astaroth the God of the zydons, and Milcom, the abhominacion of the Ammonites. And Salomō wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde, & folowed not the Lorde perfectly, as dyd Dauid hys father. For than did Salomō buylde an hye place for Chamoth the abhominacyon of Moab, in the hyll that is before Jerusalem, & vnto Moloch the abhominacyon of the chyldren of Ammon. And lyke wise dyd he for all his outlandyshe wyues, which burnt incense and offered vnto theyr gods. And the Lorde was angrie with Salomon, because hys hert was turned from the Lorde God of Israel * which had appeared vnto him twyfe, and gaue him a charge (concernyng this thyng) that he shuld not folowe other gods. But he kepte not that, which the Lorde commaunded him, wherfore the Lorde sayde vnto Salomon: for as moch as this is done of the, and thou hast not kepte myne appoyntment, and my statutes (which I commaunded the) I wyll rent the kyngdome from the, and wyll geue it to thy seruauant. Notwithstandyng in thy dayes I will not do it because of Dauid thy father but will take it fro the hāde of thy sonne. Howbeit, I will not take awaye all thy kyngdome: but will geue one trybe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruauant, and because of Jerusalem which I haue chosen.

And the Lorde stered vp an aduersarye vnto Salomō: euen one Hadad an Edomite of the kynges fede, which was in Edō. For whē Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the capayne of the hoste was gone vp to burie the that were slayne, he smote all the men chyldren in Edom. For syxe monethes dyd Joab remayne there and all Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chyldren in Edom. And thys Hadad fled and certen other Edomites of hys fathers seruantes with him, to come into Egypte: Hadad beyng yet a lytle chyld. And they arose out of Madian, and came to Paran, and toke mē with them out of Parā and came to Egypte vnto Pharaos kyng of Egypte, which gaue him an house, & appoynted him vitayles, and gaue him lande.

And Hadad gat greate fauoure in syghe of Pharaos, so that he gaue hym to wyfe the sysser of his awne wyfe, euen the sysser of Chahpene the quene. And y sister of Chahpene bare him Genubath his sonne, whom Chahpene nozished in Pharaos house. And Genubath was of Pharaos household amonge the sonnes of Pharaos. And when Hadad hearde in Egypte, that Dauid was layde to slepe wyth hys fathers, and that Joab the capayne of y host was deed also, he sayd to Pharaos: let me departe, that I maye go to myne awne contreye. Pharaos sayde vnto hym: what hast thou lacked here with me, y thou woldest thus go to thine awne contreye? he answered. Nothing. howbeit, let me go. And God stered him vp an other aduersary, one Rezon the sonne of Eliada, whyche fled from his Lorde Hadadzer kyng of Zobā. And he gathered men vnto hym, and became capayne ouer the companye, when Dauid slewe them. And they went to Damasco, and dwelt there, and raigned in Damasco: Therfore was he an aduersarye to Israel all the dayes of Salomō. And this was y myschefe, in that Hadad dyd abhorre Israel, and raygned ouer Syria.

And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat an Ephraimite of zareda (whose mother was called zeruah, which was a wydowe, and he Salomons seruauant) lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kyng. But this was the cause, that he lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kyng. Salomon buylte Hells, & mended the broke places of the cytie of Dauid his father. And this felowe Jeroboam was a man of warre. And Salomon sawe the younge man, that he was able to do the worke, he made hym ruler ouer all y tribute of y house of Ioseph. And it chaunced at that season, that Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem, and the prophete Abiah the Silonite mett him by the waye haupnge a newe mantell on hym, and they two were alone in the felde. And Abiah caught the newe mantell that was on hym and rent it in twelue peces, and sayde to Jeroboam take the ten peces. For thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: behold, I wyll rent the kyngdome oute of the handes of Salomon, and wyll geue ten tribes to the * and he shall haue one, for my seruante Dauid sake and for Jerusalem the cytie whyche I haue chosen out of all the trybes of Israel: because they haue forsaken me, and haue worshypped vnto Astaroth the God of the zydons, & Chamoth the God of the Moabites, and Milcom the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes (to fulfyll my pleasure, my statutes and my lawes) as dyd Dauid hys father.

I wyll not take the whole kyngdome out of his hāde: but wyll make hym chiefe all hys lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruantes sake, whom I chose: because he kepte my commaundementes mentes and my statutes. * But I wyll take the kyngdome out of his sonnes hande, & wyll geue it vnto the, euen ten tribes of it: and vnto hys sonne wyll I geue one trybe, y Dauid my seruauant maye haue a lyght allwaye before me in Jerusalem, the cytie which I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I wyll take the, & thou shalt raygne accordyng to all that thy soule desyret, & shalt be kyng ouer Israel. And yf thou herke vnto all that I commaunde the, & wyll walke in my wayes & do that is ryght in my syght, that thou kepe my statutes & my commaundementes (as Dauid my seruauant dyd) then wyll I be with the, & buylde the a sure house that shall contynewe, as I buylte for my seruauant Dauid, and wyll geue Israel vnto the. And I wyll for thys offence (which Salomon hath committed) bere the seede of Dauid, but not for euer.

Salomon sought therfore to kyll Jeroboam, and Jeroboam arose, and fled into Egypte vnto Sisak kyng of Egypte, and continued there in Egypte vntill the deeth of Salomon. The rest of the wordes that concerne Salomon, and all that he dyd, and hys wysdome: are they not wyrtten in the booke of the wordes of Salomon? The tyme that Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israel, was fourty yere. And Salomon slepte and he layde him with hys fathers, and was buried in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in hys steade.

The .xii. Chapter.

The kyngdome is deuyded, Rehobam raygneth ouer ii. trybes, and Jeroboam ouer x. A darum is noted. Jeroboam maketh golden calves.

AD * Rehoboam went to Sichem: for all Israel were come to Sichem, to make him kyng. And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (which was yet in Egypte) hearde of it * for he fled to Egypte from the presence of kyng Salomon, & dwelt in Egypte. So they sent and called hym, and Jeroboam and all the congregacyon of Israel came, and spake vnto Rehoboam, sayenge thy father made oure poche greuous, now therfore, make thou the greuous service of thy father and hys soze poche which he putt vpon vs, lyghter, & we wyll serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam toke coucell with the olde men that stode before Salomon hys father, while he yet lyued, and sayde: what coucell geue ye, that I maye haue matter to answer thys people? And they sayde vnto hym: If thou be a seruauant vnto thys people this daye, and folowe theyr myndes and answer them, and speake kynde wordes to them: they wyll be thy seruantes for euer.

But he forsoke the counsell that the olde mē had geuen him, and called vnto hys counsell yonge men, that were growen vp with him, and wayted on hym.

And he sayde vnto them: what counsell geue ye, that we maye answer thys people? for they haue commoned with me, sayenge: make the poche which thy father dyd putt vpon vs, lyghter. And the yonge men that were growen vp with hym, spake vnto hym sayenge: Thus shalt thou speake vnto thys people (that haue sayde vnto the: thy father made oure poche heuye, butt make thou it vs lyghter) Euen thus shalt thou saye vnto them: * My lytle synger shalbe wayghtier, the my father was in the loynes. And nowe where as my father did lade you & put a greuous poche vpon you, I wyll make it heuyer. My father also corrected you w scourges, but I wyll chastise you with scorpions. And so Jeroboam and all the people came to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kyng had apoynted, sayenge: come to me agayne the thyrde daye. And the kyng answered the people churlyshly, and left the olde mens counsell (that they gaue hym) & spake to them after the counsell of the yonge mē, sayenge. My father made youre poche greuous, and I will make it greuouser. My father also chastised you with whippes, but I wyll chastise you with scorpions. And the kyng herkened not vnto the people. for it was the ordinaunce of God, that he myght * performe hys sayenge, which y Lorde spake by Abiah y Silonite vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

And so, when all Israel sawe, y the kyng regarded them not, the people answered the kyng with these wordes, sayenge. * what porcion haue we in Dauid: we haue no inheritance in the sonne of Isai. * To youre tentes, O Israel, nowe se to thynne awne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto theyr tentes. Howbeit, ouer the chyldren of Israel which dwelt in the cytie of Iuda, dyd Rehoboam raygne styll. Then kyng Rehoboam sent Adura the receauer of the tribute. And all they of Israel stoned hym to deeth. But kyng Rehoboam made spede to gett hym vp to hys charret, and to fflye to Jerusalem. And they of Israel rebelled agaynst the house of Dauid, vnto thys daye. And when all Israel heard that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent and called hym vnto the multitude, and made hym kyng ouer all Israel: and there was no trybe that folowed the house of Dauid, but Iuda onely. * And when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered all the house of Iuda, with the trybe of Ben Jamin an hundred & foure skore thousande of chosen mē (which were good warryours) to fyght agaynst the house of Israel, rael, and to byrge the kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon.

And the worde of God came vnto Se-maia the man of God, sayenge: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Juda, and vnto all the house of Juda & Ben-Jamin, and to the remnant of the people, sayenge. Thus sayth the Lorde. Ye shall not go vp, nor yet fyght agaynst your brethren the chyldren of Israel, retorne euery man to his house, for this thinge is my doing. They herkened therfore to the worde of the Lorde, and returned to departe, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. Then Jeroboam buyt Sichem in mount Ephraim, & dwelt therein.
And went from thence, & buyt Penuel.

* Judi. viii. d

And Jeroboam thought in his hert. now shall the kyngdome retorne to the house of Dauid. For yf this people go vp and do sacrifice in the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem, then shall I hert of this people turne agayne vnto the Lorde Rehoboam kyng of Juda:
and so shall they kylle me, and go agayne to Rehoboam kyng of Juda. * Whereupon the kyng toke counsell, and made two calves of golde, and sayde vnto them. It is muche for you to go vp to Ierusalem. * Beholde, Israel: these are thy goddesses, which brou-

the one in Bethel, and the other set he in Dan.
And this thyng turned to speme. for the people went (because of the one) as farre as Da.
And he made an house of hillaultares, * and made preastes of the lowest of the people, which were not of the sonnes of Levi. And Jeroboam made a feaste the xv. daye of the eyght moneth, lyke vnto the feaste that is in Juda, and offered on the aultare. And so did he in Bethel, to offer vnto the calves that he had made. And he put in Bethel the prea-stes of the hillaultares, which he had made.
And he offered burnt offerings vpon the alter, which he had made in Bethel, the xv.
daye of the eyght moneth: eue in the moneth which he had ymagined of hys awne herte:
and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldre of Israel, and offred vpon the aultare, and burnt incense.

The. xiiij. Chapter.

Jeroboam doynge sacrifice vnto the calves, is reprehended of the prophete. Hys hande dyeth by, whyle he putteth it out agaynst the prophete. The prophete is killed, and buried.

And beholde, there came a man of God out of Juda (by the worde of the Lorde) vnto Bethel, & Jeroboam stode by the aultare to put incense. And he cried agaynst the aultare in the worde of the Lorde & sayde. O aultare, aultare, thus sayth the Lorde. Beholde, a chyld shall be borne vnto the house of Dauid, (Josia by name) & vpon the shall he offer the preastes of the hillaulta-res that burne incense vpon the, & menies bones shall be bent vpon the. And he gaue a token the same tyme, sayenge: this is the token, that the Lorde hath spoken it. Beholde, the aultare shall rent, and the ashes that are vpon it, shall fall out.

And when the kyng heard the sayenge of the ma of God (which had cryed agaynst the aultare in Bethel) he stretched out hys hande from the aultare, sayenge: hold him. And his hande which he put forth agaynst him, dyed by, & he coude not pull it in agayne to hym:
the aultare also claued asunder, and the ashes fell out from the aultare, accordynge to the token which the man of God had geuen by the worde of the Lorde. And the kyng answered, and sayde vnto the man of God. * Oh praye vnto the Lorde thy God, and make in-tercessyon for me, that my hande maye be restored me agayne. And the man of God besought the Lorde, and the kynges hande was restored agayne, & became as it was afore.

* 2. ph. vii.
Aume. iii.
Rece. vii.

And the kyng sayde vnto the ma of God
come home with me, that thou mayest dyne, and I will geue thee a rewarde. And the ma of God sayde vnto the kyng: yf thou wol-dest geue me halfe thyne house, I will not go in with thee, neither will I eate breade or drincke water in thy place. For so was it charged me, thou shouldest the worde of the Lorde, sayeng: eate no bread nor dryncke water, nor turne agayne by the same waye that thou camest. And so he went another waye, & returned not by the waye that he came to Bethel.
And there dwelt an olde prophet in Bethel, & hys sonne came, and tolde hym all the workes, that the man of God had done that daye in Bethel: & the wordes which he had spoken vnto the kyng & tolde they they father also. And the father sayde vnto the what waye went he? And his sonnes shewed him what waye the ma of God went, which came from Juda. And he sayde vnto hys son-nes: saddle me the Asse. Which whan they had saddled, he gatt hym vpon theron, & went after the man of God, & founde hym syttinge vnder a tree. And he sayde vnto him: art thou the ma of God that camest from Juda? And he sayde: I am.

He sayde vnto him: come home with me, and eate bread. He answered: I maye not returne with thee, to go in with the neither will I eate bread or dryncke water with thee in this place. For it was sayde to me in the worde of the Lorde: Thou shalt eate no bread, nor drincke water there, nor turne agayne to go by the waye that thou camest. He sayde vnto him:
I am a prophet also as well as thou, and an Angell spake vnto me in the worde of the Lorde, sayenge: byrge him agayne with the into thyne house, that he maye eate bread and dryncke water. And he lyled vnto hym. And so he went agayne with hym, and dyd eate bread

bread in hys house and dryncke water,

And it fortuneth, that as they late at the table, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete, that brought him agayne. And he cryed vnto the man of God that came from Juda, sayenge: thus sayth the Lorde: because thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, and hast not kept the comaundement which the Lorde thy God commaunded the, but camest backe agayne, and hast eaten bread and dryncke water, in the place (concernynge the which the Lorde dyd saye vnto the: Thou shalt eate no bread nor dryncke water) thy carkasse shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

And so it came to passe, that when he had eaten bread and dryncke, the prophete which brought him agayne, saddled him an asse. And whan he was gone, * a Lyon met hym by the waye, and slue him, and his carkasse was cast in the waye, and the Asse stode therby, and the Lyon stode by the carse also. And men that passed by, sawe the carkasse cast in the waye, and the Lyon standynge therby: & they came and tolde it in the towne where the olde prophete dwelt. And when the pro-phete that brought him backe agayne from the waye, heard the therof, he sayde: it is the ma of God: he was disobedient vnto the worde of the Lorde, and therfore the Lorde hath delynered him vnto the Lyon, which hath rent him and slayne him, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde, which he spake vnto hym. And he spake to his sonnes, sayenge. Saddle me an Ass: and so they dyd. And he went, and foude hys bode cast in the waye, and the Asse and the Lyon stode by the carse. And the Lyon had not eaten the carkasse, nor hurt the Ass.
And the prophete toke by the bode of the man of God, and layed it vpon the Ass, and brought it agayne: and the olde prophete came to the cytie to lament, and to burye hym.
And he layde hys bode in his awne graue,
and they lamented ouer him. (Alas my brother.) And when he had buried him, he spake to his sonnes, sayeng. Whē I am deed, se that ye burye me in the sepulchre wherin the man of God is buried: laye my bones besyde hys bones. * For the sayenge which he cryed at the worde of the Lorde agaynst the aultare in Bethel (and agaynst all the houses of hill aultares which are in yscyties of Samarie) shall come to passe.

Howbeit, for all that, Jeroboam conuerted not from hys wycked waye: but turned backe, and made of the lowest of the people preastes of the hillaultares. And whoso pleased hym, he fylled hys hande, and he became preaste of the hillaultares. And this thyng turned to speme vnto the house of Jeroboam euen to destruction hym, and to byrge hym to naught from of the face the erthe.

The. xliiij. Chapter.

Jeroboams wyfe asketh counsell of Abia the prophete. Jeroboam dyeth. Siseck kyng of Egypte robbereth the house of the Lorde. Rehoboam dyeth, and Abiam succedeth hym.

That tyme Abia the sonne of A-Jeroboam fell sycke. And Jer-oboam sayde vnto hys wyfe: hy-(I praye the) and disguise thy selfe, that thou be not knowen to be the wyfe of Jeroboam, and get the to Sillo. For ther is Abia the prophete which tolde me * that I shoulde be kyng ouer this people. And take with the ten lounes, and cracknelles, and a cruse of honye, and go to him:
that he maye tell the what shall become of the childe. And Jeroboams wyfe dyd so: and arose, and wet to Sillo, and came to the house of Abia. But Abia coude not se, for hys eyes were waxen dymme for age.

* 1. 1. 2. c. 1. 1. 1.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Abia: beholde, the wyfe of Jeroboam cometh, to aske a thinge of the for her sonne, for he is sycke. But thus shalt thou saye vnto her. And when she came in, she feyned her selfe to be a nother woman.
But when Abia heard the sounde of her fete as she came in at the doore, he sayde: come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, why feynest thou thy selfe so, to be another? I am sent to the to shewe the heuy thinges.

13

Go, tell Jeroboam, thus sayth the Lorde
God of Israel. I repent me for as moche as * I exalted the from amonge the people, and made the pryncce ouer my people Israel.
I dyd rent the kyngdome awaye from the house of Dauid and gaue it the: Neuertheles, thou hast not bene as my seruante Da-uid, which kepte my commaundementes, and folowed me wyth all hys herte, to do y whych is ryght in myne eyes: but hast done cuyll, aboue all that were before the: for thou hast gone, and made the other goddesses, and molten ymages, to prouoke me, and hast cast me behynde thy backe: therfore beholde, I will byrge euell vpon the house of Jeroboam, and will rote out from Jeroboam euen hym that * ysseth agaynst the wall and hym that is in prison and forsaken in Israel, and will take awaye the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, as a man taketh awaye donge, tyll he hath carped out all.

* 1. 1. 2. c. 1. 1. 1.

* 19. re. rbi. a * Whosoever (of Jeroboams house) dye in the towne, hym shall the dogges eate: & he þ dyeth in the felde, shall the fowles of the ayre eate: for the Lorde hath sayde it. Up therfore and gett the to thynne house. Beholde, whan thy fotre entereth into the cytie, þ chylde shall dye. And all they of Israel shall mourne for him, and burye hym: for he onely of Jeroboam, shall come to the sepulchre, because in hym there is founde goodnesse toward the Lorde God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam.

Wherconer, the Lorde shall stee hym vp a kyng ouer Israel, which shall destroye the house of Jeroboam in that dape. But what is it now? For the Lorde shall synne Israel, as whan a rede is shak in the water and he shall wyde Israel out of thys good lande (which he gaue to theyr fathers,) and shall shatter them beyonde the ryuer, because they haue made the Idoles groues, and angred the Lorde. And he shall geue Israel vp, because of the synnes of Jeroboam, which dyd synne, and made Israel to synne.

And Jeroboams wyfe arose, and departed, and came to Thirzah, and whan she came to the thersholde of the doze, the chylde was deed. And all Israel buried hym, and lamented hym, accordynge to the worde of þ Lorde which he spake by the hãde of hys seruauit Abia the prophete. And the rest of the wordes that concerne Jeroboam, howe he warred, and howe he raygned. Beholde they are wyrtte in the boke of the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel. And the dapes which Jeroboam raygned, were. xlii. yere. And whan he was layed aslepe with hys fathers, Nadab his sonne raygned in his steade.

Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon raygned in Juda, and Rehoboam was. xli. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned. xlii. yere in Jerusalem (the cytie which the Lorde dyd chole out of all the trybes of Israel, to put his name there.) His mothers name was Naama an Ammonite. And Juda wrought wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde, and angred him in moo thinges then their fathers dyd, in their synnes, which they synned. For they also made the hyllaulters, Images, & Idols groues on euery hye hyll, & vnder euery thicket. And there was a lues of male chyliden in the lande, & they dyd accordynge to all the abhominacions of the nacions which the Lorde cast out before the chyliden of Israel. And it fortuneth, that in the fyft yere of kyng Rehoboam: Silack kyng of Egypte came vp agaynst Jerusalem, and toke awaye the treasures of þ house of the Lorde, & the treasures of the kynges house, & spoyled all that was to be had. And he toke awaye the shylde of golde which Salomon had made. In whose steade kyng Rehoboam made brasen shylde, and comit-ted them vnto the handes of the keepynge of the captaynes of the garde, which wayted at the doze of the kynges house. And whan the kyng went into the house of the Lorde, they of the garde bare them, and brought them agayne into the garde chambze.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Rehoboam, and all þ he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda? And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam all theyr lyues. And Rehoboam slepte with his fathers, and was buried besyde his fathers in the cytie of Dauid. Hys mothers name was Naama an Ammonite. And Abiam hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The. xv. Chapter.

¶ Wicked Abia raygneth ouer Juda, & reghetwee Ala succeedeth in hys towne. The battell betwene Ala & Baasa. Jehosaphat succeedeth Ala. Nadab succeedeth Jeroboam. Baasa killeth Nadab.

In the xvij. yere of kyng Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, raygned Abia ouer Juda. This yere raygned he in Jerusalem: and hys mothers name was Maacha the daughter of Abisalom. And he walked in all the synnes of his father, which he had done before hym and hys hert was not perfect with the Lorde hys God: as the hert of Dauid his father. Neuerthelesse for Dauids sake dyd the Lorde hys God geue hym a lyght in Jerusalem, that he sett vp his sonne after hym, and to stablishe Jerusalem: because Dauid dyd that which was ryght in the syght of þ Lorde, and turned from nothyng that he commaunded hym all the dapes of hys lyfe: as he onely in the matter of Urias the Hethite. And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam as longe as he lyued. The rest of the wordes that concerne Abiam, and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Cronicles of the kynges of Juda? And ther was warre betwene Abiam and Jeroboam. And Abiam slepte with hys fathers, and they buried hym in the cytie of Dauid. And Ala his sonne raygned in his steade.

In the. xx. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel, raygned Ala ouer Juda. xli. yere raygned he in Jerusalem, & hys mothers name was Maacha, the daughter of Abisalom. And Ala dyd that semed ryght in the eyes of the Lorde, as dyd Dauid his father. And he toke awaye the whoze keepers out of the lande, and put awaye all the abhominable Idols that his fathers had made. And he put downe Maacha & hys mother from beyng rule, because she had made ymages in groues. And Ala destroyed her ymages, and burnt them by the broke Cedron. But þ hyllaulters were not put downe. Neuerthelesse Alaes herte was perfecte with the Lorde all all his dapes. He brought in the holy vessels of his father, (þ he had dedicat) vnto þ house of the Lorde: golde & syluer, & Jewelles. And there was warre betwene Ala & Baasa kyng of Israel all theyr dapes.

And Baasa kyng of Israel, went vp agaynst Juda, & buyt Rama, so þ he wolde let none go out or in, to Ala kyng of Juda. Then Ala toke all the syluer & golde, that was left in the treasures of the house of the Lorde, & the treasures of the kynges house, and deliuered them vnto the handes of hys seruantes, & Ala sent them to Benhadad the sonne of Tabrimon the sonne of Hezion kyng of Siria, (that dwelt at Damasco,) sayenge: there is a bonde betwene me & the, betwene my father and thy father. And beholde, I haue sent vnto the a present of syluer & golde þ thou come & breake the bonde þ thou hast w Baasa kyng of Israel, that he maye departe from me. So Benhadad herkened vnto kyng Ala, and sent the captaynes of the hostes (which he had) agaynst the cyties of Israel, & smote Hion, & Ma, & Abel, Beth Macab, & all the region of Ceneroth with all the lande of Nephtali. And whan Baasa heard therof, he left buylding of Rama & dwelt i Thirza. Then kyng Ala made a proclamacyon thowout all Juda, þ none shuld be excused. And so they toke the stones of Ramah & the tymber (wherwith Baasa had buylded,) & kyng Ala buyt with them the hyll of Ben Tamin and Mizpa.

The remnaunt of all the wordes that concerne Ala, and all hys myght and all that he dyd, & the cyties whych he buylded, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Juda? Neuerthelesse in hys olde age he was diseased in hys fete. And Ala slepte with hys fathers, & was buried besyde his fathers in the cytie of Dauid hys father. And Jehosaphat his sonne raygned in his steade. And Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam beganne to raygne vpon Israel the seconde yere of Ala kyng of Juda, and raygned vpo Israel two yere. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, walkynge in the waye of hys father and in hys synne wherwith he made Israel synne. And Baasa the sonne of Abia (whych was of the house of Alachar) conspired agaynst hym, and Baasa smote him at Gibbethon which is a cytie of the Philistines: for Nadab & all Israel layed seage to Gibbethon. Euen in the thirde yere of Ala kyng of Juda, dyd Baasa slaye hym, and raygned in his steade. And it fortuneth that whan he was kyng, he smot all þ house of Jeroboam, and left him naught that breathed, vntyll he had put hym cleane out, accordynge vnto the sayeng of the Lorde, which he spake by his seruauit Abia the Helonite: because of the synnes of Jeroboam wherwith he synned and made Israel synne, whan he with hys prouocacyon angred the Lorde God of Israel.

The rest of the wordes that concerne Nadab, and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtte in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Israel? And there was warre betwene Ala and Baasa kyng of Israel all theyr dapes.

So in the thirde yere of Ala kyng of Juda, began Baasa the sonne of Abia to raygne ouer all Israel in Thirza. xliij. yere. And he dyd þ which is euell in the syght of þ Lorde, walkynge in the waye of Jeroboam, & in his synne, which made Israel to synne.

The. xvi. Chapter.

¶ Jehu prophetheth agaynst Baasa, whom Ela succeedeth. Zimri killeth hys master Ela, and destroyed þ house of Baasa. Nadab succeedeth Amri, and taketh to wyfe wycked Jezabel.

¶ Then the worde of the Lorde came to Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynst Baasa, sayeng: for as moche as I exalted the out of þ dust, & made the captayne ouer my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the waye of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Israel to synne, to angre me w theyr synnes: Beholde, I wyll roote out the polte rite of Baasa, and the posterite of hys house, and wyll make hys house lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. That man of Baasa whych dyeth in the cytie, him shall the dogges eate: and that man of hym whych dyeth in the felde, shall the foules of the ayre eate.

The rest of þ wordes þ concerne Baasa, & what he dyd, & his power, are they not wyrtten in þ boke of þ chronicles of the kynges of Israel? And so Baasa slepte w hys fathers, & was buried in Thirza. And Ela his sonne raygned in his steade. And by the hãde of the prophete Jehu þ sonne of Hanani, came the worde of the Lorde agaynst Baasa, and agaynst his house, & agaynst all the wyckednesse that he dyd in the syght of the Lorde (in angreng him w the worke of his awne handes) that he shulde be lyke the house of Jeroboam, & because he kyled hym. (that is to saye Jehu the sonne of Hanani the prophete.)

The. xxvi. yere of Ala kyng of Juda beganne Ela þ sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Israel in Thirza, two yere. And his seruauit zimri (which was captayne of halfe his charrettes) conspired agaynst hym, as he was in Thirza dynckynge: and was droncken in þ house of Arza stuard of hys house in Thirza. And zimri came, and smote him, and kyled hym in the. xxvi. yere of Ala kyng of Juda, and raygned in hys steade. And it fortuneth that whan he was kyng & and satt on hys seate, he slue all the house of Baasa, not leauynge therof, one to pille agaynst a wall: yee, he slue hys kynskolles and frendes, also.

And thus dyd zimri destroye all the house of Baala, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, whych he spake agaynst Baala by the hande of Ichu the prophet, for all the synnes of Baala & synnes of Ela hys sonne, whych they synned, and made Israel to synne, and anger the Lord God of Israel with their vanities. The rest of þ wordes þ concerne Ela, & all he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel?

In the xxviij. yere of Aia kyng of Iuda, dyd zimri raygne. vij. dayes in Thirza, and the people was then in the host besegunge Sebethon a cite of þ Philistines. And þ people in the host heard one saye: zimri hath conspired, & slayne þ kyng: wherfore, all they of Israel made Amri (the captayne of the host) kyng ouer Israel that same daye, enen in þ host. And Amri departed by fro Sibbethon, and all Israel with hym, & they beseged Thirza. And when zimri sawe þ the cite must nedes be taken, he went into the palace of the kynges house, and burnt him selfe and the kynges house wth fyre, and so dyed, for his synnes whych he synned, in doyng þ which is euell in the syght of the Lorde, and in walkyng in the waye of Jeroboam and in hys synnes whych he dyd, and in that he made Israel to synne.

The rest of the wordes þ concerne zimri and the treason þ he wrought, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel: Then were the people of Israel deuyned into two partes, for halfe þ people folowed Thibni þ sonne of Sinath, makynge hym kyng: & the other halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preyed agaynst the people that folowed Thibni the sonne of Sinath. And so Thibni dyed, and Amri raygned.

In þ xxxi. yere of Aia kyng of Iuda, beganne Amri to raygne ouer Israel. xii. yere. Sice yere raygned he in Thirza. he bought the hill & Schomron of one Schemar for two talentes of syluer, and buyt in the hill, and called the name of the cite whych he buyt, after the name of Schemar whych had bene owner of the hill Schomron. But Amri wrought that which is euell in þ eyes of the Lorde, and dyd worse then all þ were before hym. For he walked in all þ waye of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, & in hys synnes, & made Israel synne, to anger þ Lorde God of Israel wth their vanities. The rest of the wordes þ concerne Amri, & all þ he dyd, & his strength þ he shewed, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of þ kynges of Israel: And so Amri slepte wth hys fathers and was buryed in Schemaron, and Ahab hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

In þ xxxviij. yere of Aia kyng of Iuda, beganne Ahab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and the same Ahab the sonne of Amri raygned ouer Israel i Samaria. xxiij. yere. And Ahab the sonne of Amri dyd euell in the syght of the Lord, aboue all that were before. For it semed vnto hym but a lyght thinge to walke in the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. he toke Jezabel also the daughter of Ethbaal kyng of the Sidonites to wyfe, and * went and serued Baal, & worshypped hym. And he reared vp an altare for Baal in the temple of Baal, whych he had buylded in Schomron. And Ahab made groines, and proceeded further in angryng the Lorde God of Israel then all the kynges of Israel that were before hym.

In his dayes dyd hiel of Bethel buylde Jericho. And it * coste him Abira his eldest sonne whē he layde þ foundation, & his youngest sonne Segub, whē he sett vp the gates, accordyng vnto the worde of þ Lorde * whych he spake by Iosua the sonne of Nun.

The xxviij. Chapter.

Elia is worshypped and fed of rauens, and after is sent to zarphath (otherwise called Saraptha) to a woman, whose chylde he rapseth to lyfe.

And Elia the Thelbite (whych was of þ cutabittes of Gilead) layde vnto Ahab: * as truly as the Lord God of Israel lyueth, before whome I stande * there shalbe nether dewe nor rayne these yeres, but accordyng to my worde.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto hi, sayng: gett the hence, & turne the estwarde, & hide thy selfe in þ brooke Cherith, þ is it that lyeth before Jordā: Thou shalt drynck of þ ryuer, & I haue comaunded the rauens to fede þ there. And so he wet, & dyd accordyng vnto the worde of þ Lorde: For he wet, & dwelt by þ brooke Cherith, þ is before Jordan. And þ rauens brought him bread & fleshe in the morning, & lykewise bread & fleshe in þ euening, & he dranke of the brooke. And it chaunced after a while, þ the brooke dyed vp, because ther fell no rayne vpo þ erth. And þ word of the Lorde came vnto him, sayng: * vp & gett the to zarphath, whych is in Sidō, & dwell there. Beholde I haue comaunded a wydowe there to sustayne the. So he arose, & went to zarphath. And whē he came to the gate of the cite, the wedow was there, gathering stikkes. And he called to her, & sayd: * fet me I praye þ, a lytle water in a vessel, þ I maye dryncke. And as she was goyng to fet it, he cryed after her, and sayd: byyng me I praye the, a morsell of bread also in thyne hande. She sayd: As truly as the Lord thy God lyueth, I haue no bread readye, but enen an handfull of meale in a barell, and a lytle oyle in a cruse. And behold, I am gathering two stikkes for to go in, & dresse it for me and my sonne, that we maye cate it, and dye.

And Elia sayde vnto her: feare not, come and do as thou hast sayde: but make me therof a lytle cake fyrt of all, & bringe it vnto me: and afterwarde make for the and thy sonne. For thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: the meale in the barell shall not be wasted neether shall the oyle in the cruse be mynished, vntyll the Lorde haue sent rayne vpon the erthe. And she went, and dyd as Elia sayde. And she & he & her house dyd cate a good space, and the meale wasted not out of the barell, neether was the oyle spent out of þ cruse accordyng to the worde of the Lorde, whych he spake by the hande of Elia.

And after these thynges, it happened, that the sonne of the wyfe of the house fell sycke. And his sycknesse was so soze, þ there was no breath left in him. And she sayde vnto Elia: what haue I to do with the, O thou man of God: art thou come vnto me, to call my synne agayne foremebraunce, & to slaye my sonne? he sayde vnto her: geue me thy sonne. And he toke him out of her lappe, and carped him vp into a losse wher he abode, & layde him vpo his awne bedd, & called vnto the Lorde, and sayde: O Lorde my God, hast thou punyshed also this wedowe (w whom I dwell as a stranger) & hast slayne her sonne? And he stretched hym selfe vpon the chylde thre tymes, & called vnto the Lorde, and sayd: O Lorde my God, let this chylde soule come into him agayne. And the Lorde hearde the voyce of Elia, and the soule of the chylde came into hym agayne, & he reuyned. And Elia toke the boye, and brought hym downe out of the chambre into the house, & deliuered hym vnto hys mother, and Elia sayde: beholde, thy sonne lyueth. And the woman sayde vnto Elia: nowe I knowe, that thou art a man of God, and that the worde of the Lorde in thy mouth, is true.

The xxviij. Chapter.

Elia is sent to Ahab. Obadiah (otherwise called Abdia) dyedeth an hundred prophetes. Elia killeth all Baals prophetes: & afterwarde obdianeth rapne.

After procelle of many dayes þ worde of the Lord came to Elia in the thyrde yere, sayng: go shewe thy selfe vnto Ahab, and * I wyll sende rayne vpon the erth. And Elia went to shewe hym selfe vnto Ahab, & ther was a great famymment in Schomron. And Ahab called Obadiah, whych was the gouernour of hys house: & Obadiah feared God greatly: For when Jezabell destroyed the prophetes of þ Lorde, he toke an hundred prophetes and hid the, liffie mē in one caue & fyttie in another, & prouyded bred & water for the. And Ahab sayde vnto Obadiah: Go into the lāde, vnto all fountaynes of water, & vnto all brokes, þf haply we maye fynde grasse, to saue the horses ad the mules, & that we destroye not some of the beastes. And so they deuyned the lāde betwene the, to walke thorow it. Ahab went one waye by hym selfe, and Obadiah went another waye by hym selfe.

And it chaunced that as Obadiah was in the waye, Elia mett hi. And Obadiah knewe hym, & fell on hys face, & sayde: art not þ my Lord Elia? And he answered hym: I am he. So and tell thy Lorde: beholde, Elia is here. he sayde: what haue I synned, that þ woldest deliuer thy seruāt into þ hād of Ahab, to sleie me? As trulie as the Lord thy God lyueth, there is no nacyon or kyngdome, wherther my Lorde hath not sent, to seke the. And when they sayde: he is not there, he tooke an othe of the kyngdome & nacyō, whan he founde the not. And nowe thou sayest: goo & tell thy Lorde, that Elia is here. And as sone as I am gone from the, the sperte of the Lord shall carie the into some place that I do not knowe. and so when I come and tell Ahab, & he canne not finde the, he shall sleie me. But I thy seruāt feare the Lorde from my youth vp. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd, when Jezabell slue the prophetes of þ Lorde howe I bydde an hundred men of the Lordes prophetes, fyttie mē in one caue and fyttie in another, and prouyded the of bred and water: And nowe thou sayest, goo thou nowe and shewe thy Lorde. Beholde, Elia is here, that he maye sleie me?

And Elia sayde: as truly as the Lorde of hostes lyueth, before whō I stande, I wyll shewe my selfe vnto him this daye. So Obadiah went to mete Ahab, and tolde hym. And Ahab went to mete Elia. And it fortuneth þ whan Ahab sawe Elia, he sayde vnto him: art thou he that troubleth Israel? he answered: it is not I that haue troubled Israel, but thou, and thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lorde, and thou hast folowed Baal. Nowe therfore sende and geather to me all Israel vnto mount Carmel, and the prophetes of Baal * foure hundred and fyttie, and the prophetes of the Idols groues foure hundred, which cate of Jezabels table. So Ahab sent vnto all the chyl dren of Israel, & gathered þ prophetes together vnto mount Carmel.

And Elia came vnto all the people, and sayde: howe lōge halte ye betwene two oppo-nions: If the Lord be God, folowe hym: but yf Baal be he, then go after hym. And the people answered hym not one worde. Then sayde Elia vnto the people agayne. I onely remaine a prophete of y Lord: but Baals prophetes are foure hundred and fyfte. Let them therfore geue vs two oxen, & let them chose the one, & cut hym in peces, & lape hym on wodd, and put no fyre vnder: and I will dresse the other oxe, & lape him on wodd, and will put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of youre God, & I wyll call on the name of the Lord: and then the God that answereth by fyre, let him be God.

* And all the people answered & sayde. yf is well spoken. And Elia sayd vnto the prophetes of Baal: chose you an oxe, and dresse hym fyrst (for ye are many) and call on the name of your goddes, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke the one oxe that he dyd geue them, & they dresse it: & called on the name of Baal from moynynge to noone: sayng. O Baal heare vs. But there was no voyce nor one to answer. And they lepte vpon the altier that they had made. And at none it fortuned, that Elia mocked them, and sayde: crye lowde, for he is a God: peradventure he is talkinge or occupped (in folowinge vpon his enemyes) or is in his iourneye, or happily he slepeth, & must be awaked wth the poure crye. And they cryed lowde, and cut the felues, as their maner was, wth knyues & lasters, tyll the bloude folowed on them. And it chaunced, y when myddaye was passed: & they prophesied vntill y tyme of y eue nyng sacrifice. But there was nether voyce ner one to answer, ner any y regarded the.

And Elia sayde vnto all the folke: come to me. And all y people came to hym. & And he repayzed the altier of the Lord, that was broken. * And Elia toke. xij. stones accordig to the nombre of the. xij. trybes of the sonnes of Jacob: vnto who the worde of the Lord came, sayng. * Israel shal be thy name. And with the stones he made an altiare in the name of the Lord. And he made a dyche rōude about y altier, & as hyde as two forowes of the corne felde. And he put the wodd in order, & he wed the oxe in peces, & laped hym on the wodd, and sayde: fyll foure barels wth water, and powre it on the burnesacrifice & on the wodd. And he sayd: do so agayne. And they dyd so the seconde tyme. And he sayde agayne: do it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd it the thyrde tyme. And the water ranne rounde about the altier, and he fylled the pitte wyth water also.

And it fortuned whē y tyme came (when y burnt sacrifice of y eveninge vled to be offered) Elia the prophete came & sayd: Lord God of Abraham, Isaac & of Israel, it shal be knowe this daye, that thou art the God in Israel, & that I am thy seruant, & y I haue done all these thynges at thy commaundemēt: Heare me (O Lord) heare me, y this people maye knowe, that thou art y Lord God, & y hast turned theyr herte agayne now at the last. * And the fyre of the Lord fell, & consumed the burnt sacrifice & y wodd, the stones & the dust, & lyked vpon the water y was in y pitte. And whē all y people sawe it, they fell on their faces, & sayd. The Lord, he is God, y Lord, he is God. And Elia sayde vnto the. Take the prophetes of Baal, & let not one of them escape. And they toke them, and Elia brought the vnto y brooke Rison, & slue the there. And Elia sayd vnto Ahab: gett y vp, eate and drinke, for ther is a soude of moche rayne. And so Ahab went vp to eate and to drinke, & Elia wēt vp to y toppe of Carmel. And he layde y selfe flat vpon the erth, & put his face betwene his knees, & sayd to his seruant: go vp (I praye y) & looke toward the wape of the see. And he wēt vp & looked, & sayde: there is nothyng. And he sayde: go agayne. vij. tymes. And it fortuned, y at y seuenth tyme he sayd: behold, there ariseth a litte clowde of the see, lyke a mānes hande. he sayde: go, & saye vnto Ahab, Make fast thy charact, & gett the downe, y the rayne stoppe the not. And it came to passe, y in the meane while, y heuē was blacke wth clowdes & wide, & there was a great rayne. And Ahab gatt vpon y came to Jezreel. And the hād of y Lord was on Elia, & he gyrded vpon y loynes, & ranne before Ahab, tyll he came to Jezreel.

The. xix. Chapter.

Elia fleeing from Jezabel is nourished of the Angell of God, and is commaunded to annoynte Ahab, Jehu and Eliseus, whom the Hebrewes call, Elissa.

And Ahab tolde Jezabel, all that Elia had done, and howe he had slayne all the prophetes wyth the swerde. Then Jezabel sent a messenger vnto Elia, sayng: * so & so let the goddes do to me, yf I make not thy soule lyke one of theyrs, by to morowe thys tyme. When he sawe that, he arose & went for his lyfe, and came to Beerseba in Iuda, & left his seruant there. But he hym selfe went a dayes iourney into the wyldernesse, and came and satt downe vnder a Juniper tree, and despyed for his soule: that he myght dye, and sayde, * it is nowe ynough (O Lord) take my soule, for I am not better then my fathers.

And as he laye and slepte vnder the Juniper tree: beholde, an Angell touched hym, and sayde vnto hym: vp, and eate. And whā he looked aboute hym: beholde, there was a loaffe of bryed brende & a vessel of water at his heed. And he dyd eate and drinke, and layde him downe agayne to slepe. And the Angell of the Lord came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched him, and sayde: vp, and eate, for thou hast yet a great iourneye.

And

And he arose, and dyd eate and dryncke, and walked in the strength of that meate * fourte dayes & fourete nyghtes, euen vnto the mount of God. * Whan he came thither into a caue, he lodged there in, all nyght.

And beholde, the worde of the Lord came to him & sayde vnto hym: what doest y here Elia? And he answered. I haue bene gelous for the Lord God of hostes sake. For the chyldre of Israel haue forsake thy couenāt, & broken downe thyne altiers and slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, and I onely am lefte, and they seke my lyfe to take it awaye. And he sayde: come out & stande vpon the mount, before the Lord. And beholde * y Lord went by, & a myghtie stronge wynde that rent the mountaynes & brake the rockes before the Lord. But the Lord was not in the wynde. And after the wynde came an erth quake. But the Lord was not in the erth quake. And after the erth quake, came fire: but the Lord was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a small still voyce. And when Elia hearde it, he couered his face with his mantle, & went out & stode in the entringe in of the caue. And beholde, there came a voyce vnto him, & sayd. what doest thou here Elia? And he answered. I haue bene gelous for y Lord God of hostes sake: because the chyldren of Israel haue forsaken thy couenānt, cast downe thyne altiers, & slayne thy prophetes with the swerde, & I onely am lefte, & they seke my lyfe to take it awaye. And the Lord sayde vnto him: go & turne thy waye to the wyldernesse vnto Damasco, that thou mayest annoynte * Hazael, kyng ouer Siria. And: Jehu y sonne of Nimsi, shalt thou annoynt kyng ouer Israel. And Elysa the sonne of Saphat of Abel Meholah shalt y annoynt to be prophete in thy rowme. And it shal come to passe that whoso escapeth y swerde of Hazael, hym shall Jehu slaye: and yf any man scape the swerde of Jehu, hym shall Elia put to death. And therto * I haue lefte me senen thousande in Israel, of whych neuer man bowed his knees vnto Baal, nor kyssed him wyth his mouth.

So he departed thence, & founde Elisa the sonne of Saphat plowynge, & haunyng twelue yocke of oxen before him, & he wth the twelue. And Elia wēt by him, & cast his mantell vpon him. And he lefte the oxen, & ranne after Elia & sayde: * let me y praye the, kyss me my father & my mother, & then I will folow y. he sayd vnto him: go backe agayne, for what is it, y I haue done to y? And whā he wēt backe agayne fro him, he toke a couple of oxen, & slue them, and dresse the fleshe wyth the instrumentes of the oxen, & gaue vnto the people, and they dyd eate. And then he arose, & went after Elia, and mynistred vnto hym.

The. xx. Chapter.

The fyrst and seconde tyme y Samaria was beseged of Benhadad kyng of Siria.

And Benhadad the kyng of Siria gathered all his hoste together, haunyng. xxij. kynges wth hym, and hostes and charettes: & went vp and beseged Samaria, & warred agaynst it. And he sent messengers to Ahab kyng of Israel into the eptie, and sayde vnto him: thus sayeth Zēhadad. Thy syluer and thy golde is myne, and the sayrest of thy wyues, and of thy chyldren be myne. And the kyng of Israel answered and sayde. My Lord kyng accordynge to thy sayeng, I am thyne and all that I haue.

And whan the messengers came agayne, they sayd: thus sayeth Zēhadad. For as moche as I haue sent vnto the, sayinge: thou shalt deliuer me thy syluer & thy golde, and thy wyues, & thy chyldren. I wyll therfore sende my seruantes vnto y to meow this tyme: & they shal serche thyne house, & the houses of thy seruantes. And whatsoeuer is pleasaunt in thyne eyes, they shal take it in their hādes, and bryng it awaye. Then the kyng of Israel sent for all the elders of the lande, & sayde: take hede I praye yon & se, howe thys felow goeth about myschefe. For he set vnto me, for my wyues, for my chyldre, for my syluer & for my golde: & I denyed hym not. And all the elders & all the people sayde: herken not vnto hym, nor consent.

Wherfore he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tell my Lord the kyng, all that thou dydest send for to thy seruant at the fyrst tyme, that I wyll do, but this thing I maye not do. And the messengers departed, and brought answer agayne. And Benhadad sent vnto hym agayne, and sayd: and thus do the Gods vnto me, yf y dust of Samaria be ynough for all the people that folowe me, to take euery man an hādfull. And the kyng of Israel answered, & sayde: tell hym: let not him that putteth on his harness bothe hym selfe, as he that putteth it of. And it fortuned, that whē Zēhadad hearde that tydynge, as he was wth kynges drynkyng within the payllyons, he sayde vnto his seruantes, put on y harness. And they set them selues in aray agaynst the eptie.

And beholde there came a Prophet vnto Ahab kyng of Israel, sayinge: thus sayth the Lord. Hast thou sene all this great multitude: beholde, I wyll deliuer it into thyne hande this daye, and thou shalt knowe, that I am the Lord. And Ahab sayd: By who? he sayde: thus sayth the Lord: euen by the seruantes of y gouernours of the sheres. he sayde agayne: Who shal ordre the batayll? And he answered: thou. Then he nombred the seruantes of the gouernours of the sheres: and they were two hundred and. xxij. And

And after them also, he nombred all the people, all the chyldre of Israel, euen seven thousand. And they went out at none. but Benhadad dyd dyncke tyll he was droncken in the paupylous both he and his kynges: euen xxij. kynges, that holpe hym. And the seruantes of the gouernours of the thynges wet out fyrst.

And Benhadad sent out, and they thewed hym, sayeng: there are me come out of Samaria. he sayde. Whether they be come out for peace, take them a lyue: or whether they be come out to fyght, take them yet a lyue. And so those younge men of the gouernours of the thynges came out of the cytie, and the host after them, and they slue euery one his enemye that came in his waye. And the Syrians fled, and they of Israel folowed after them. And Benhadad the kyng of Syria scaped on a horse, wyth his horsemen. And the kyng of Israel went out, and smote the horses & charrettes, & wyth a great slaughter slue he the Syrians.

And there came a prophete to the kyng of Israel, and sayde vnto hym: go forth and playe the man, be wyse and take hede what thou doest: for when the yere is gone about, the kyng of Siria wyll come vp agaynst the. And the seruantes of the kyng of Siria sayde vnto hym. The Gods of the hillis are theyr Gods, and therfore they had the better of vs: but let vs fyght agaynst them in the playne, and for what ye will, we shall haue the better of them. And this do: take his kynges awaye euery man out of his place, ad put dukes in their rowmes. And do thou nombze the an hoste, lyke the host that thou hast losse, soche horses & soch charrettes, and we will fyght agaynst them in the playne, & thou shalt se vs gett the better of them. And he hekened vnto their voyce, & dyd euen so.

And it fortuneth, that after the yere was gone aboute, Benhadad nombzed the Syrians, and wet vp to Aphek to fyght agaynst Israel. And the chyldre of Israel were nombzed, & with theyr whole nombze went they agaynst them, and the chyldre of Israel pitched before them, lyke two lytic flockes of kyddes: but the Syrians fylled the countrey. And there came a ma of God, and sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: thus sayth the Lorde: Because the Syrians haue sayed: the Lorde is but God of the hillis, and not God of the valeys. therfore will I deliuer all this great multitude into thine hāde, & ye shall knowe, that I am the Lorde. And they pitched one ouer agaynst the other. viij. dayes, & it came to passe, & in the seventh daye a batayle was topned. And the chyldre of Israel slue of Syrians an hundred thousand fote me one daye. But the rest fled to Aphek into the cytie. And there fell a walle vpon. xxvij. thousand of men & were left. And Benhadad fled, & came into the cytie, from chambze to chambze.

And his seruantes sayde vnto hym. Beholde, we haue heard saye, that thy kynges of the house of Israel are mercifull kynges. We will therfore put sacke cloth about thy loynes, and ropes about oure neckes, & go out to the kyng of Israel: & saye vnto hym. We will therfore put sacke cloth aboute theyr loynes, & put ropes aboute theyr hedes, & came to the kyng of Israel, & sayde. Thy seruant Benhadad sayeth, I praye & let me lyue. he sayde: is he yet a lyue? he is my brother. And they toke a worde for good lucke & hastily caught it out of his mouth & sayde: yet thy brother Benhadad. he sayd: go, bring hym hyther. And Benhadad came out vnto hym, & he caused him to come vp into a charret. And he sayd vnto him: the cyties whych my father toke fro thy father, I wyll restore agayne. And thou shalt make streates for me in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I wyll make an apoyntment with the, & send the awaye. And so he made an apoyntment with him, and sent hym awaye.

And there was a certen man of the chyldre of the prophetes, whych sayde vnto his neyghbour in the worde of the Lorde: smyte me I praye the. And the ma wold not smyte him: Then sayde he vnto him. Because thou hast not hekened vnto the voyce of the Lorde: beholde as soone as I art departed from me, a lyon shall slaye the. And it came to passe, & as soone as he was departed fro him, a Lyon founde him, & slue him. Then he founde another man & sayde: smyte me I praye the. And the man smote him, so that in smytinge he wounded hym. So the prophete went forth, & wayted for the kyng by the waye, & put him selfe out of knowledge w a shew, whych he layed vpon his face. And whē the kyng came by, he cryed vnto the kyng, & sayd: thy seruant went out in the myddes of the wastell. And beholde, there wet awaye a man, whō another man brought vnto me, and sayde: kepe this man. And if he be mysled or lost, thy lyfe shall go for his: or else, thou shalt paye a talent of syluer. And as the seruant had here & there to do, he was gone. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto hym: euen so shall thy iudgement be, as thou hast despynd it thy selfe.

And he hasted, & toke a shew awaye fro his face, & the kyng of Israel knewe him, & he was of the prophetes. And he sayde vnto him: thus sayth the Lorde: because thou hast lett go a man that is in my curse, thy lyfe shall go for his lyfe, and thy people for his people. And the kyng of Israel wet to his house, wayward, & displeasure, & came to Samaria.

The xxj. Chapter.

¶ Jezabel commaundeth to kill Naboth, for the dyce that he refused to sell to Ahab. Belial reproacheth Ahab, and he repenteth.

After

After these thynges, it chaunced, & Naboth the Jezrahelite had a vyneparde in Jezrahel, hard by the palace of Ahab kyng of Samaria. And Ahab spake vnto Naboth, sayenge. * Geue me thy vyneparde, & I maye make me a garden of verbes therof, because it lyeth so nye my house: & I will geue the for it a better vyneparde then it is: or rather if it please the, I will geue the, & worthe of it in money. And Naboth sayde to Ahab: the Lorde forbyd it fro me, that I shulde geue the inheritaunce of my father vnto the.

And Ahab came into his house heuy. & euell a payde, because of the worde whych Naboth the Jezrahelite had spoken to him, for he had sayde: I wyll not geue the the inheritaunce of my fathers. And he layde him downe vpon his bed, and turned awaye his face, (to the wall) and wolde eate no bread. But Jezabell his wyfe came to him, and sayde vnto hym: why is thy sprete so wayward, that thou eatest no bread? And he sayde vnto her: For I spake vnto Naboth the Jezrahelite, and sayde vnto hym: geue me thy vyneparde for money: or else if it please the, I wyll geue the another vyneparde for it. And he answered: I wyl not geue the my vyneparde.

And Jezabell his wyfe sayde vnto hym: Dost thou thus gouerne the kyngedom of Israel? vp, & eate bread, and set thyne hert at rest. I will geue the, & thy vyneparde of Naboth the Jezrahelite. And so she wrote a letter in Ahabys name, and sealed it wyth his seale and sent the lettre vnto the elders and to the nobles that were in his cytye dwelling wyth Naboth. And she wrote in the letter, sayenge: proclayne a fast, and set Naboth on hye amonge the people, and set two vntyriffes before him, to beare witness wythynne agaynst him, sayenge: Thou dydest blasphemie God and the kyng. And then carpe hym out, and stone hym to deeth.

And the men of his cytye: that is to saye, whych dwelt in his cytye, did as Jezabel had sent vnto them, and as it was writte in the letter whych she had sent vnto them. They proclamed fastyng, and set Naboth among the chefe of the people, & there came in two men (the chyldren of Belial) and sate before him. And the two vntyriffic persones wytnessed agaynst Naboth, in the presence of the people, sayeng: Naboth dyd blasphemie God and the kyng. * And they caried hym out of his cytye, and stoned hym wyth stones that he dyed. And then they sent to Jezabel, sayenge: Naboth is stoned to deeth. And it fortuneth when Jezabel heard that Naboth was stoned to deeth: she sayde to Ahab: vp, & ad take possession of the vyneparde of Naboth, the Jezrahelite, whych he denied to geue the for money, for Naboth is not aliue, but deed. And when Ahab heard that Naboth was deed, he stode vp to go downe to the vyneparde of Naboth the Jezrahelite, and to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto Elia the Thelbite, sayeng: vp and go downe to mete Ahab kyng of Israel, whych is in Samaria. For lo, he is gone downe to the vyneparde of Naboth: to take possession of it. And therfore shalt thou saye vnto him thus sayth the Lorde: hast thou kylled, & gotten possession? And thou shalt speake vnto him sayeng: thus sayth the Lorde * in the place wher dogges lycked the bloud of Naboth, shall dogges like euen thy bloud also. And Ahab sayde to Elia: hast thou founde me, o thou myne enemye? he answered: I haue founde the: for I art eneged solde to worche wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde. Beholde, I will bring euell vpon the, and will make cleane riddance of thy posterite: & I will * destroye fro Ahab, euen hym & maketh water agaynst the wall, & him & is shut vp & left behynde in Israel: & I will make thyne house, lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, & lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Abia, for the prouocation, wherwith thou hast prouoked, and made Israel to synne.

And of Jezabel spake the Lorde sayeng: * dogges shall eate Jezabel, in the possession of Jezrahel. * And he that dyeth of Ahab in the towne, him shall dogges eate: & he that dyeth in the felde, him shall the foules of the ayre eate. But there was none lyke Ahab whych dyd euen sell hym selfe, to worche wickednesse in the syght of the Lorde, and that because Jezabel his wyfe pycked hym forwarde. he dyd exceedyng abhominable, in folowynge foule doles, according to all thynges, as did the Ammorites * whom the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel.

And it fortuneth, that when Ahab heard those wordes, he rent his clothes, and put sackcloth about his flesch, and fasted, and laye in sack and went bare fote. And the worde of the Lorde came to Elia, the Thelbite, sayenge: seest thou how Ahab humbled hym selfe before me: because he so submytteth hym selfe before me. I wyl not byge that euell in his dayes: but in his sonnes dayes, wyl I bringe euell vpon his house. And they continued thre yere without warre betwene Siria and Israel.

The xxii. Chapter.

¶ Four hundred falsse prophetes do counsell Ahab and Achasaph to warre agaynst Ramoth: onely Michaiah propheseth the truthe, for which he is smytten and put in prison. Of Achasia otherwise called Achasias.

¶ And

ouer fyttie (with his fyttie men) which came to him, & beholde, he satt on the toppe of an hyll. And he spake vnto hym: Thou man of God, the kyng hath sayd: come downe. Elia answered and sayd to the captayne ouer the fyttie: yf I be a man of God, fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the & thy fyttie.
* And there came fire of God, and consumed him and his fyttie. And the kyng went agayne, & sent to him another captaine ouer fyttie wpyth hys fyttie. And he answered and sayde vnto hym: O man of God, thus hath the kyng sayd: make hast, and come downe.
Elia answered and sayd vnto them: yf I be a man of God, fyre come downe from heauen, and consume the & thy fyttie. And there came fyre of God downe from heauen, & consumed hym and hys fyttie.

And the kyng went agayne and sent the thirde captayne ouer fyftie wth his fyfte me. And the thirde captayne ouer fyftie went vp and came & fell on his knees befoze Elia ad besought him, and sayde vnto hym: O man of God, let my lyfe and the lyfe of these fyftie thy seruantes be precious in thy syght. Beholde, there came fire downe fro heauen, and burnt vp the two fore captaynes ouer fyftie with their fyfties: therfoze let my lyfe now be precious in thy syght. And the Angell of the Lorde sayd vnto Elia: go downe wth him, & be not afrayd of him. And he arose, and went downe wth hym vnto the kyng.

And he sayd vnto hi, thus sayth þ Lord:
for as moch as thou hast sent messengers to aske counsell at Beelzebub þ God of Ekro as though there had bene no God in Israell whose worde thou mightest seke after: therfore thou shalt not come downe of the bedd on which thou art gone vp, but shalt dye the death. And so he dyed accordyng to þ worde of the Lord which Elia had spokē. And Je-hozamb^e (his brother) beganne to rargne in his steade, in the seconde yeare of Jehozam the sonne of Jeholaphat kyng of Iuda, because he had no sonne. The rest of the wordes that concerne Ahazia, what thynges he dyd, are they not writte in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Israell?

The.ii.Chapter.

¶ Elia deuileth þ waters with his mantell. He is taken bp into heuē. The better þ benemoule waters are healed. The child;ren that moeke Elifus (othirwise called Elifa) are rent in peces.

And it chaunced, that when the
* Lorde wolde take vp Elia in to heaueⁱ ⁊ by a whorlewīd, Elia wēt with Elisa from Gilgal. And Elia sayd vnto Elisa tary here I pray the, for the Lorde hath sent me to Bethel. Elisa sayd vnto him: * as surely as the Lord lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I will not leaue þ. And they came do-wne to Bethel, and the children of the Prophets y were at Bethel, came out to Elifa, & sayde vnto hym: knowest thou not, how y y Lord will take awaye thy master & fro thy head thys daye? he sayd: I know it also holde ye youre peace.

And Elia sayd vnto him: Elisa, tary here B
I praye the, for the Lord hath sent me to Jericho. He sayd: as surely as the Lord lyueth, and as surely as thy soule lyueth, I wil not leane the, & so they came to Jericho. And the chyl dren of the prophetes þ were at Jericho came to Elisa & sayd vnto hym: knowest þ not, that the Lord will take awaye thy master from thy head thys daye? he answered:
I know it also, holde ye your peace. And Elia sayd vnto hi: tarye I praye þ here, for the Lord hath sent me to Jorda. He sayd: as surely as the Lord lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I wil not leane the. And so they two went together. And lyttle men of the son-nes of the prophetes came and stode on the other syde asarre of, and they two stode by Jordan.

And Elia toke his matell and wrapte it together, & smote the waters, and they were deuided, parte the one waye & parte y other, so that they two went ouer thozow the drye lande. * Luke. ix. 8. And it chaunced, that whā the Lorde wolde take vp Elia in to heauen, by a whorlewinde, Elia went with Elisa from Gilgal. And Elia sayde vnto Elisa tary here I praye the, for the Lorde hath sent me to Bethel. Elisa sayde vnto him: * as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I will not leaue the. phetes y^e were at Bethel, came out to Elisa, & sayde vnto him: knowest thou not, howe that the Lorde will take awaye thy master fro thy head this daye? he sayde: I knowe it also holde ye youre peace.

And Elia sayde vnto him. Elisa, tary here I praye the, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jericho. he sayde: as surely as the Lorde lyueth and as surely as thy soule lyueth, I will not leaue the, & so they came to Jericho. And the chyldren of the prophetes y^e were at Jericho came to Elisa and sayde vnto him: knowest thou not, that the Lorde will take awaye thy master from thy head this daye? he answered: I knowe it also, holde ye your peace. And Elia sayde vnto him: tarye I praye the here, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jordan. he sayde: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I will not leaue y^e. parted this waye & that waye, & Elia went ouer. And whā the chyldren of the prophetes which were at Jericho sawe hym from a farre, they sayde: the spyte of Elia doth rest on Elisa, and they came to mete him, and fell to the groude before him, & sayde vnto him. Se: there be with thy seruantes fyfte ströge men: let them go & seke thy master: happye the spyte of the Lorde hath taken hym vp, and cast hym vpon some mountayne or in to some valeye. And he sayde. Ye shall sende none. And whā they laye vpon him tyll he was a shamed, he sayde. Send. They sent therfore fyfte men, which sought him thre dayes and thre nyghtes, but founde him not. And whā they came agayne to him, which taryed at Jericho, he sayde vnto the: dyd I not saye vnto you, that ye shulde not go?

And the men of the cylie sayde vnto Elia beholde, Syr, the dwellinge of this cylie is pleasaunt as thou thy selfe seest: but the water is naught & the groude baren. he sayde. Wrynge me a new cruse, and put salt therein. And they brought it to him. And he wet vnto the springe of the waters, and cast the salt in thither, & sayde: thus sayth y^e Lorde. I haue healed this water, ther shall not come hereafter the ether deeth or barrenesse. So y^e waters were healed vnto this daye, accordyng to the sayinge of Elisus, which he spake.

And he went by fro thence vnto Bethel. And as he was goinge vp the waye, there came lytle chyldre out of the cylie, & mocked him, & sayd vnto him. Go vp thou bald heed, go vp thou bald heed. And he turned backe, and looked on them, and cursed them in the name of the Lorde. And there came two the Beares out of that woodd, & tare. xlii. chyldren of them. And he went from thence to mount Carmel, and from thence he turned agayne to Samaria.

¶ The iii. Chapter.

¶ The kynges of Israel, Iuda and Edom lacke water, which they obtayne through the prayer of Elisus. The kyng of Moab fighteth against Israel.

Jehoram the sonne of Ihab beganne to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria the. xviij. yere of Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda, and raygned twelue yeres. And he wrought euill in the syght of the Lorde: but not lyke his father and lyke his mother, for he put awaye y^e ymages of Baal, that his father had made. Neuerthelesse, he cleaued vnto the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (which made Israel to synne) and departed not ther from.

And Mesa kyng of Moab was a Lorde of shepe, and rendered vnto the kyng of Israel an hundred thousande lamhes & an hundred thousande raimures with y^e wolles. But whā Ihab was deed, it fortuneth, that the kyng of Moab rebelled agaynst the kyng of Israel. And kyng Jehoram went out of Samaria the same ceason, and nombred all Israel, & wet, & sent to Jehosaphat y^e kyng of Iuda, sayinge: the kyng of Moab hath offended agaynst me, wilt thou come w me agaynst Moab to battell? he answered: I wyll come vp, for as I am, so art y^e: and as my people be, so are thy people, & thy horses as myne. And he sayde. what waye shall we go vp? And he answered. The waye thowowe the wilderness of Edom.

And so the kyng of Israel toke his iourneye, and the kyng of Iuda, & the kyng of Edom. And when they had copassed y^e waye seven dayes, they had no water for the hooft and for the cattell that folowed them. And y^e kyng of Israel sayde. Alas, y^e Lorde hath called these thre kynges together, to deliuer the ouer into the hande of Moab. But Jehosaphat sayde: * is there not here a prophet of the Lorde, that we maye enquire of y^e Lorde by hym? And one of the kynges of Israel's seruantes answered and sayde: here is Elisa y^e sonne of Saphat, which powred water on the hādes of Elia. And Jehosaphat sayde: Is not the worde of the Lorde w hym? And so the kyng of Israel, & Jehosaphat and the kyng of Edom went downe to him.

And Elisa sayde vnto the kynges of Israel. what haue I to do with the? Set the, to the prophetes of thy father, and to the prophetes of thy mother. And the kynges of Israel sayde vnto him. O whaye, for the Lorde hath called these thre kynges together to deliuer the into the hāde of Moab. And Elisa sayde: as sure as y^e Lorde of hostes lyueth, in whose syght I stand, and it were not, y^e I regarde y^e presence of Jehosaphat the kyng of Iuda, I wolde not loke towarde the, nor yet se the. But nowe bringe me a mynstrell. And whā the mynstrell played, the hande of the Lorde came vpon him. And he sayde. Thus sayth y^e Lorde. Make this playne grounde full of ditches. For thus sayth the Lorde: ye shall see neither wynde nor rayne, & yet the broke shal be fylled w water, that ye maye dryncke, both ye, and youre bestes, and youre cattell. And this is yet but a small thynge in the syght of the Lorde, for almost as he will geue ouer y^e Moabites also into youre handes. And ye shall smyte euery stronge towne, and euery goodlye cylie, and shall fell euery pleasaunt tree, and stoppe euery well of water, and marre euery good platte of groude with stones. And in the morninge, whā the meate-offeryng was offered, it fortuneth, that there came water by the waye from Edom, and the contreye was fylled with water.

And when all the Moabites heard of the kynges were come vp to syght agaynst the, they gathered all to geather, fro y^e youngest that that was able to put on harnesse and so vnderwarde, and stode in the border of the lande.

And they were vp early in the morninge and the sonne shone vpon the water, that the Moabites sawe the water a farre of as red as bloude, and they sayde. This is y^e bloude of slaughter: the kynges are slayne and one hath smytte another. Howe therfore Moab getteth to the spoyle. And whē they came to the hoste of Israel, the Israelites stode vp and smote the Moabites, so that they fledd before them, but they folowed vpon them, & smote Moab. And they ouerthrewe the cyties, & on euery good parcell of lāde, cast euery mā his stone, and fylled it, and they scopte all the welles of waters, and felde all y^e good trees. Onely in the cite of bick left they the stones therof: howbeit they went aboute it with synges, and smote it.

And when the kyng of Moab sawe, that the battell was sore agaynst him, he toke wth him seven hundred men that drew y^e swerde to haue gone thowowe, euen vnto y^e kyng of Edō: but they coude not. And then he toke his eldest sonne (that shulde haue raygned in his steade) & offered him for a burnt offering vpon the wall. And ther was great indignacyon agaynst Israel, and they departed from him, and returned to their awne lande.

The. iij. Chapter.

God greuteth a certen poore woman wth a flour by her seruice. He. iij. (whom the text calleth Elia: is) a child of God a childe for his hostesse: which brech and is after rayped to lyfe. He maketh flour the porage: and multiplieth the loafes.

And there cryed a certen woman vnto Elisa, sayinge: thy seruant my husbande is deed, and thou knowest, that thy seruant dyd feare the Lorde.

And the creditore is come, to sett my two sonnes, to be his bondemen. Elisa sayde vnto her. Tell me what shall I do for y^e? What hast thou in thyne house? She sayde, thyne handmayde hath nothinge at all in y^e house, save a pitcher with ople. He sayde vnto her: Go & borowe vessel for the, of them that are without euen of all thy neybores, empty vesselles and that not a fewe. And when thou art come in, thou shalt shutt the doze after the and after thy sonnes, and powze out into all those vesselles, and sett asyde y^e which is full.

23 And so the woman went from him, and shutt the doze after her and after her sonnes. And they brought to her, & she powzed out. And it came to passe, that when the vesselles were full, she sayde vnto her sonne: bynge me yet a vessel. And he sayde vnto her: I haue no mo. And the oyle ceased. Then she came, and tolde the man of God. And he sayde: go & sell the oyle, & paye the y^e thou art in debt vnto, but lyue y^e & thy chyldren of y^e rest. &

And it fell on a dape, that Elisa came to Sunem, where was a great woman, & toke him in, for to eate bread. And so it came to passe, that fro that tyme forth (as ofte as he came y^e waye) he turned in thither to eate bread. And she sayde vnto her husbande. Beholde, I perceaue, that this is a holy man of God, that cometh so oft by oure place. Let vs make him a chambze (I praye the) with walles, & let vs set him there a beed, & a table, a stole & a candellsticke: that he maye turne in thither when he cometh to vs.

And it fortuned on a dape, y^e he came thither & turned into the chambze, & laye there in, and sayde to Gehezi his seruant: call this Sunamite. And whan he called her, she presented hyr selfe before hym. And agayne he sayde vnto him: Tell her. Beholde, thou hast bene carefull for vs, and hast made all thys prouisiō. What shall we nowe do for y^e? woldest thou be spoken for to the kyng or to the captayne of the hoste? She answered. I dwell amonge myne awne people. And he sayde agayne, what is to be done for her? Gehezi answered. Merely she hath no chylde, & her husbande is olde. And he sayde: call her. And whan he had called her, she stode in the doze. And he sayde * by such a tyme, and as sone as the frute can lue, thou shalt embrace a sonne. And she sayde: Oh naye my Lorde, y^e mā of God, do not lye vnto thine handmayd. And the wyfe conceaued, and bare a sonne y^e same ealon that Elisens had sayde vnto her as sone as the frute coude haue lyfe.

And when the chylde was growne, it fell on a dape, that he wēt out to his father, and to the reapers. And he sayde vnto hyr father, my heed, my heed. And he sayd to a lad. Carpe him to his mother. And whan he had taken him and brought him to his mother, he sate on her knees tyll none, and then dyed. And she went vp, and layde him on the bed of the man of God, and shutt the doze about him, and went out, and called vnto her husbande and sayde: sende with me (I praye y^e) one of the younge mē & one of the asses, for I wyll runne to the man of God, and come agayne. And he sayde: wherfore wilt thou go to him seinge that to dape is nether newe mone nor Saboth dape. She answered: For health. Then she labelled an asse, & sayde to hir seruant: leade awaye the asse, and make her not to go slowly (because I ryde vpon her) but whan I byd the.

And so she went & came vnto the man of God, to mount Carmel. And it fortuned: that when the mā of God sawe her farre of, he sayde to Gehezi his seruant. Beholde, y^eder is the Sunamite. Rūne therfore to mete her, and saye vnto her: Is all well with the and with thy husbande, & with the ladd? And she answered. All is well. And whē she came to the

to the man of God vp to the byll, she caught him by the fete. But Gehezi went to her, to thrust her awaye. And y^e man of God sayde: let her alone, for her soule is vbered within her, and the Lorde hath hid it from me, and hath not tolde it me. Then she sayde: byd I desyre a sonne of my Lorde: byd I not requyre the, that thou shuldest not disceane me?

Then he sayde to Gehezi: * gyde vp thy loynes, and take my staffe in thyne hāde, and go thy waye. * If y^e mete anye mā & salute him not. And yf any salute the, and were him not agayne. And laye my staffe vpon the face of the chylde. And the mother of the chylde sayde: * as sure as the Lorde lyueth, & as thy soule liueth. I will not leaue y^e. And he arose and folowed her. Gehezi went before them, & layed the staffe vpon the face of the chylde. But there was nether voyce nor any feling. Wherfore he went agayne to mete him, and tolde him, sayinge: the chylde is not awaked.

And when Elisa was come into y^e house: Beholde, the chylde was deed and layde vpon his bed. He went in therfore, & shutt the doze to the ladd and him, and prayed vnto y^e Lorde. * And went vp & laye vpon the ladd, & put his mouth on his mouth, & his eyes vpon his eyes, & his handes vpon his hādes, and whā he so laye vpon the chylde, the fleithe of the chylde waxed warme. And she wēt agayne, & walked once vp and downe in y^e house, and then went vp, and layed him selfe vpon him agayne. And then y^e chylde gasped seven times and opened his eyes. And he called Gehezi, & sayde: Call for this Sunamite. So he called her: which whē she was come in vnto him, he sayde vnto her: * take thy sone. Therfore she went in, and fell at his fete, & bowed her selfe to the grounde, and toke vp her sonne, and went out. * Elisa came agayne to Gilgal, and there was a derth in the lande, and the chylde of the prophetes dwelt with him. And he sayde vnto his seruant. Set a great pot on the fyze, and make pottage for the chyldren of the prophetes. And one went out into the felde, to gather herbes, & founde (as it were) a wilde vyne, and gathered therof wyld Coloponyntidas his lappe full, & came, & thzed them into the potte of potage: for they knewe it not. So they powzed out for the men to eate. And it fortuned, y^e when they tasted of the pottage, they cryed out, and sayde: O thou man of God (there is derth in the pot: and they coude not eate therof. But he sayde: bynge meale. And he cast it into y^e pot, & sayde: fyll for the people, that they maye eate, and there was no moze harme in the pot.

There came a man from Baal Salisa, & brought the man of God bread of y^e fyrt frutes, eue. xx. loafes of barley, and newe corne which was yet in his bagges. And he sayde:

Geue vnto the people, that they maye eate. And his mynster answered: why, shall I set this before an hundred men? He sayde agayne: geue it vnto the people that they maye eate. For thus sayth the Lorde * they shall eate, and ther shall be left ouer. And so he sett it before them, & they dyde eate, and left ouer, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde.

The. v. Chapter.

Naaman the Syrian is healed of his leprosie. Gehezi is rayped with a leprosie, because he toke money and rayment of Naaman.

Naaman, captayne of the hoste of the kyng of Siria, was a greates man, and honorable in the syght of his master: because y^e by him the Lorde had geue health vnto Siria. He was also a myghtie man, and experte in warre, but he was a leper. And the Syrians had gone out by copanies, & had brought out of the contreye of Israel a lytle mayde, & she was with Naamās wyfe. And she sayde vnto her ladye: I wold to God my Lorde were with the prophet that is in Samaria: for he wolde deliuer him of his leprosie. And she went in, and tolde his Lorde, sayinge: thus and thus sayde the mayde, that is of y^e lāde of Israel. And y^e kyng of Siria sayde: Come and entre in and I wyll sende a letter vnto the kyng of Israel. And he came, and toke with him ten talentes of syluer, and y^e thousande peces of golde, & ten chaunge of raymetes, and brought the letter to y^e kyng of Israel contarynyng this tenoure: Howe when this letter is come vnto the: Beholde, I haue therewith sent Naaman my seruant to the, that thou mayest rydde him of his leprosie. And it fortuned, that when y^e kyng of Israel had redde the letter, he rent his clothes, and sayde: * am I God, that I shulde slaye, & make a lyuer: for he doth sende to me that I shulde deliuer a man fro his leprosie. Wherfore cosyder (I praye you) and se howe he seeketh a quarell agaynst me. whā whē Elisa the man of God had hearde, howe that the kyng of Israel had rent his clothes, he sent to y^e kyng, sayinge. Wherfore hast thou rent thy clothes: let him come nowe to me, & he shall know, y^e there is a prophet in Israel.

And so Naaman came wth his hertles and with his charettes, & stode at the doze of the house of Elisa. And Elisa sent a messenger vnto him, sayinge: go and washe y^e in Jordā seven tymes, & thy fleithe shall come agayne to the, & thou shalt be cleansed. But Naamā was wroth, & wēt awaye, & sayde. Beholde I thought wth my selfe: he wolde surely come out, and stande & call on the name of y^e Lorde his God, and put his hande on the place that he maye heale the leprosie. For not Abana & Pharpar, ryuers of Damasco, better then all the waters of Israel: yf I washe me also in them in them, shall I not be cleansed? And so he turned him, and departed with displeasure. And his seruantes came, & comoned with hym, and sayde: Father, yf the prophete had bydd the do some great thinge, oughtest thou not to haue done it? how moche rather then, whā he sayth to the: washe, and be cleane? Then went he downe, & washed him selfe seue ty-mes in Jorā, accordyng to the sayinge of þ man of God, & his fleshe chaūged, like vnto þ fleshe of a lytle chyldre, & he was cleasēd.

And he turned agayne to the man of God, he and all his cōpanie, and stode before him, and sayde: Beholde, I knowe nowe þ there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. ¶ Howe therfore like a blessinge of thy seruānt. But he saide: * as surely as the Lorde liueth (before whom I stāde) I will receaue none. And whan the other wolde haue constrained hym to receaue it, he wolde not.

And Naaman sayde: * (Euen as thou wilt, but I beseeche the.) ¶ Shall there not be geue to thy seruānt as moch of this erthe as two mules maye beare? For thy seruānt will here forth offer nether burnt sacrifice nor offeringe vnto any other God, saue vnto the Lorde. But herin the Lorde be mercifull to thy seruānt, that when my master goeth into the house of Rimmon, & doth worshyppe there, & leane on my hande, and I also worshyppe in the house of Rimmon. (Whan I do worshyppe I saye) in the house of Rimmon, the Lorde be mercifull vnto thy seruānt because of thys thinge. Vnto whō he sayde: go in peace. And when he was departed from him as it were a furlonge of grounde, Gehazi the seruānt of Elisa the man of God, sayde: beholde, my master hath spared Naaman thys Syrian, that he wolde not receaue of hys hande those thynges þ he offered. As surely as the Lorde liueth, I will runne after him, & take some what of him. And so Gehazi folowed Naaman.

And whē Naamā sawe him runninge after him, he lycht downe from the charet, to mete him, and sayde: * is all well? he answered: All is well. Beholde, my master hath sent me, sayinge: se, there be come to me euen nowe fro mount Ephraim two yonge men of the chyldren of the prophetes: geue them I praye the, one talent of syluer and two chaunge of garmētes. And Naamā sayde: With a good will. Take two talents: & he compelled him to bynde two talents of syluer in two bagges, with two chaunge of garmētes, and layed them vpon two of his seruantes, to beare them before him. And whan he came in to a secrete place, he toke them fro their hande, & bestowed it in the house, & the men were let go, and they departed.

But he went in, and stode before his master. And Elisa sayde vnto him: whence comest þ Gehazi? he sayde: thy seruānt went no whether. But he sayde vnto hym: went not myne hert with the, when the man turned agayne from his charet to mete the? ¶ Is it nowe a tyme to receaue moneye, to receaue garmētes, olyue trees, vineyardes, shepe and oxen, men seruantes & mayde seruantes? The leprose therfore of Naaman shall cleaue vnto the, and vnto thy seed for euer. * And he went out from his presence a leper, as whyte as snowe.

The viij. Chapter.

¶ Elisa maketh pson to stoppynge aboute the waie. The Syrians beseege Israel, so that two hundred men ager together to save their awne chyldren.

The chyldre of the prophetes sayde vnto Elisa: Beholde, the place where we dwell with þ is to lytle for vs. We will therfore go vnto Jorāne, and take thence euery mā a beame, and buyde vs a place, to dwell in. And he answered: goo. And one sayde: be content I praye the, and come with thy seruantes. And he answered: I will come, and so he went with them.

And when they came to Jorāne, they cutt downe wood. But it fortunēd, that as one was felling downe of a tre, the axe heed fel into the water. And he cryed, & sayde: Alas master, it was lent me. And the man of God sayde: Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he cutt downe a stycke, & cast it in thither, & immediatly the yrd dyd swymme. Therfore sayde he: take it vp. And he stretched out his hande, and toke it vp.

But the kyng of Siria warred agaynst Israel, & toke counsell with his seruantes, and sayde: In ponde secrete place shalbe my remainyng. And the man of God sent vnto the kyng of Israel, sayinge: Beware, that thou go not ouer to such a place, for there the Syrians are lurking. Therfore the kyng of Israel sent to the place which the man of God tolde him, and warned him of, and saved him selfe from it, not once nor twyse.

And the hert of the kyng of Siria was troubled for this thinge, and he called for his seruantes and sayde vnto them: wyl ye not shewe me, which of oure mē (betrayeth me) to the kyng of Israel? And one of his seruantes sayde: none my Lorde o kyng. But Elisa the prophet, that is in Israel, telleth the kyng of Israel, yea euen, the wordes þ thou speakest in thy preye chābre. He sayde: go, & spie where he is, that I maye sende and fet him. And one tolde him, sayinge: beholde, he is in Dohā. Therfore sent he thither hoxles and charettes, and a myghty hoste. And they came by nyght, & compassed þ citie about.

And when the seruānt of the mā of God rose vpearly to go out: Beholde, there was an host round about the towne with hoxles and charettes. And his seruānt sayde vnto him:

him: Alas master, what shall we do? he answered: feare not, for they that be with vs, are moo then they that be wyth them. And Elisa prayed and sayde: Lorde (I beseeche þ) open hys eyes, that he maye se. And the Lorde opened the eyes of the yonge man. And beholde, the mountayne was full of hoxles, and charettes of fyre rounde aboute Elisa. And when they came downe to hym, Elisa prayed vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Smyte thys people (I praye the) with * blindness. And he smote them with blindness, accordyng to the desyre of Elisa. And Elisa sayde vnto them this is not the waye, nether is this the towne: folowe me, and I wyl bringe you to the mā whom ye seke. But he led them to Samaria.

And it fortunēd, that when they were come to Samaria, Elisa sayde: Lorde, open their eyes that they maye se. And the Lorde opened their eyes, and they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto Elisa, when he sawe them: My father, shall I smyte them? And he answered: Thou shalt not smyte them. But smyte those that thou hast taken with thyn awne swerde, and wth thyn awne bowe. But rather let bread and water befoze them, that they maye eate and drinke, and go to their master. And he prepared a great refecce for them. And when they had eaten and drōcke, he sent the a waye and they went to their master. And so the loudpoures of Syria came nomore into the lande of Israel.

¶ After thys it chaunced, that Benhadad kyng of Siria gathered all his hoste & wēt vp, and beleged Samaria. But there was a grete derth in Samaria: and beholde, they beleged it, vntill an Asses heed (was solde) for foure saore syluer pens, and the fourth part of a Cab of dones dange for fyue sicles. And as þ kyng of Israel was gonge vpo the wall, there cryed a womā vnto him sayinge: helpe, my Lorde o kyng. he sayd: yf þ Lord do not succoure the: wherwith can I helpe the? ¶ wth the barne, or wth the wyne presse? And the kyng sayde vnto her: what wilt þ? She answered: ponde womā sayde vnto me: byryng thy sonne, & we maye eate him to daye, and we wyl eate myne to morowe. * And so we dressed my sonne and dyd eate him. And I sayde to her the other daye: byryng thy sonne & we maye eate hym, and she hath byd her sonne. And it came to passe, that when the kyng hearde þ wordes of the woman, he rent his clothes, and went vp on the wall. And the people looked: and beholde he had a sack cloth vnder, vpon hys fleshe.

Then he sayde: * God do so & so to me, yf the heed of Elisa þ sonne of Saphat shall stāde on him this daye. But Elisa satt in his house and the elders satt by him, & the kyng sent a man before him. But yet the messenger came to him, he sayde to the elders: haue ye not seue, howe that the sonne of this murthe-rar hath sent, to take a waye myne heed: be circumspect when the messenger cometh, and shut the doze, and holde him at the doze: is not the sounde of hys masters fete behinde him? Whyle he yet talked with the: 2 chorde þ messenger came downe vnto him, & sayde beholde, this euell is of þ Lorde, & what more shall I loke for of the Lorde=

The viij. Chapter.

¶ Elisa prophesyeth p troubles of bytallies and other thynges to Samaria. The Syrians runne awaye & haue no man folowynge them. The Lorde that wolde not beleue the wordes of Elisa is trod den to death.

When Elisa sayde: heare ye the word of the Lorde: thus sayth þ Lorde. * to morowe thys tyme shall a boushell of fyne floure be solde for a Sicle, and two boushelles of Barley for a Sycke in the gate of Samaria. Then a certayne Lorde, on whose hand the kyng leaned answered the man of God, and sayde: beholde, yf the Lorde wolde make wryndowes in heuen, myghte this sayinge come to passe? he sayde: Beholde, thou shalt se it wth thyn eyes, but shalt not eate therof.

And there were foure leperous men at þ entrynge in of þ gate. And they sayde one to another, why lytt we here, vntill we dye? ¶ If we saye: we will entre into the citie, beholde: the derth is in the cytie, and we shall dye therein. And yf we lytt here, we dye also. Howe therfore come, and let vs fall vpo the hoste of the Syrians: If they saue oure lyues we shall lyue: yf they kyl vs, then are we deed. And so they arose in the nyght, to go to the hoste of þ Syrians. And when they were come to the vtmost parte of the hoste of Siria: beholde, there was no man there.

¶ For the Lorde had made the hoste of the Syrians * to heare a noyse of charettes and a noyse of hoxles, & the noyse of a great hoste. In so moch þ they sayde one to another, lo, þ kyng of Israel hath byred agaynst vs þ kynges of the heethes, and the kynges of the Egepyans, to come vpo vs. Wherfore they arose and fled in þ nyght, and left their fetes their hoxles, and their Asses, and the felde which they had pychede en as it was, & fled for their lyues. And when these lippers came to the edge of the host, they wēt into a tent, & dyd eate, & dyneke, & caried thence syluer, & gold and raymēt, and went and bydd it: came agayne and entred into another tent, and caried thence also, and went and hidd it.

Then sayde one to another: We do not well thys daye, for as moch as it is a daye to byryng good tydings, & we holde oure peace yf we tarpe tyll þ daye lyght, some mischiffe wyl wyll come vpon vs. Nowe therfore come, that we maye goo, and tell the kynges howe. And so they came, & called vnto the porter of the cytie, and tolde them sayinge: we came to the paultions of the Syrians: & se, there was no man there, neither voyce of man, but hoxses and Asse tye, and the tentes were, euen as they were wont to be.

And so the man called vnto the porters, & they tolde the kynges house within. And the kyng arose in the nyght, and sayde vnto his seruantes. I wyll shewe you now, what the Syrians haue done vnto vs. They knowe that we be hungrye, & therfore are they gone out of the paultions, to hyde them selues in the felde, sayinge: Wha they come out of the cytie, we shall catch them alyue, and get into the cytie. And one of his seruantes answered, and sayde. Let men take (I praye you) fyue of y^e hoxses that remayne, and are left in the multitude. Beholde they are euen as all the multitude of Israel that are left in y^e cytie: beholde (I saye) they are euen as all the multitude of y^e Israelites that are consumed, & we wyll sende, & se. They take therfore the hoxses of two charrettes, and the kyng sent after the hoste of the Syrians, sayinge: go, & se. And they went after them, euen vnto Jordan: and lo, all the waye was full of clothes and vesselles which the Syrians had cast from them in their haste.

And the messengers returned, and tolde the kyng. And the people went out, & spoyled the tentes of the Syrians. And so it came to passe, that a busshel of fyne flour was sold for a sycke, and two busshelles of barley for a sycke. * accordyng to the worde of the Lorde. And the kyng appointed y^e Lorde (on whose hand he leaned) to be at the gate. And y^e people trode vpon him in the gate, and he dyed, accordyng to the worde of the man of God which he sayde, when y^e kyng came downe to him. And so came the thyng to passe y^e the man of God had spoken to y^e kyng, sayinge: two busshelles of barley for a sycke, & a busshel of fyne flour for another, shalbe * to morowe this tyme in the gate of Samaria. Wher vnto that Lorde answered the mā of God, and sayde. Yee, and yf y^e Lorde made wyndowes in heauē myght it come to passe. And he sayde. Beholde, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, & shalt not eate therof. And euen so chaunced it vnto him: for the people trod vpon him in the gate, and he dyed.

¶ The viij. Chapter.

¶ Elisa propheseth vnto the Sunamite y^e berth of hys p. 12. After y^e berth of Hazael raygned Hazael in Siria. Jehoia y^e sonne of Jehosaphat raygneth in Iuda. Edom falleth from Iuda, & Jehoiah succedeth Jehoia.

And spake * Elisa vnto the woman (whose sonne he had restored to lyf agayne) sayinge: vband go, thou and thyne house, & sojourne where-soeuer thou canst, for y^e Lorde hath called for a derth, and the same shal come vpon y^e land seuen yeres. And the woman arose, and dyd after the sayinge of y^e man of God, and went both she and her household, & sojourned in the lande of the Philistines seuen yere. And at y^e seuen yeres ende, it fortuned, that the woman came agayne out of the lande of y^e Philistines, and went out to call vpon the kyng for her house and for her land. And the kyng talked with Gehazi the seruant of the man of God, sayinge: tell me I praye the all the great deedes that Elisa hath done: he tolde y^e kyng, howe he had restored a deed bodye to lyf agayne: but in the meane tyme y^e woman (whose sonne he had rayled vpon agayne) cryed to y^e kyng for her house & for her land. And Gehazi sayde: My Lorde & kyng, this is the woman, and this is her sonne whom Elisa rayled vpon agayne. And when y^e kyng asked the woman, she tolde hym. And so the kyng deliuered her a chābrelapne, sayinge: restore thou vnto her all that are hers, and all the frutes of the felde, sence the daye that she left the lande, vnto this tyme.

And * Elisa came to Damascus, & Benhadad the kyng of Siria was sycke. And one tolde him sayinge. The mā of God is come hither. And y^e kyng sayde vnto Hazael: * take a present in thine hāde, and goo mete the man of God, that thou mayest aske the Lorde by him, whether I shall recouer of this disease. And so Hazael wēt to mete him and toke the present with him, and of euery good thinge of Damascus, enū as moch as fourty Camels coude beare, and came & presented hym selfe before hym, and sayde: Thy sonne Benhadad kyng of Siria hath sent me to the, sayinge, shall I recouer of this dyscase?

And Elisa sayd vnto him: go & saye vnto him: thou shalt recouer, howbeit y^e Lorde hath thewed me, y^e he shall surely dye. And he looked asyde, and was ashamed, and y^e man of God wepte. And Hazael sayde: why wepeth my Lorde? he answered: for I knowe the euill thinges that thou shalt do vnto the chyldren of Israel: for their stronge cyties shalt thou sett on fyre, and their posige men shalt thou slei with y^e swerde & shalt dash out the braynes of their suckynge chyldren, & all to teare their women with chyldre.

But Hazael sayde: what is thy seruait, a dogge, that I shulde do this great thyng? And Elisa answered: the Lorde hath thewed me, that thou shalt be kyng of Siria. And so he departed from Elisa, & came to his master, which sayde to him. What sayde Elisa to the? he answered: he tolde me, that thou shuldest recouer. And on the morowe it fortuned, that he toke a thicke cloth, and dypt it in water, and spread it on his face, and he dyed, and Hazael raygned in his steade.

¶ The xij. Chapter.

¶ The xij. Chapter.
The fyfte yere of Jehoiam the sonne of Ahab kyng of Israel, Jehosaphat beyng also kyng of Iuda, Jehoia the sonne of Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda, begane to raygne. * xxxij. yere olde was he, when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned eynht yere in Ierusalem. And he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, as they that were of y^e house of Ahab: for the daughter of Ahab was his wyfe, and he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde. And y^e Lorde wolde not destroye Iuda, and that because of Dauid hys seruait, * as he promysed hym to geue hym all waye a lycht amonge hys chyldren.

* In those dayes Edom dyd wickedly whē he was vnder the hande of Iuda. For they made them a kyng of theyr awne. So Jehoiam went to zair, he and all his charrettes with hym. And he rose by nyght, and smote the Edomites, which compassed hym in, with the captaynes of hys charrettes, & the people fledd into theyr tentes. But Edom rebelled, so that he wold not be vnder the hāde of Iuda vnto this daye. And then Lobnab began to be disobedient euen that same tyme.

The rest of the wordes that cocerne Jo-ram and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtē in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Iuda: And Jo-ram rested with hys fathers, and was buryed belyde his fathers in the cite of Dauid. And * Ahaziah his sonne raygned in his steade. In the xij. yere of Jo-ram the sonne of Ahab kyng of Israel, dyd Ahaziah the sonne of Jehoia kyng of Iuda begynne to raygne. Two & twenty yere olde was Ahaziah when he begane to raygne, and he raygned one yere in Ierusalem, and hys mothers name was Athaliah the daughter of Omri kyng of Israel. But he walked in the waye of the house of Ahab, and dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, euen as dyd the house of Ahab. For he was y^e sone in lawe of the house of Ahab.

And he went with Joia the sonne of Ahab to warre agaynst Hazael kyng of Siria, in Ramoth Gilead, & the Sirians wounded Jo-ram. And * kyng Jo-ram went back agayne to be healed in Ierusalem of the woundes which the Sirians had geue hym at Ramoth, when he fought agaynst Hazael kyng of Siria. And Ahaziah the sonne of Jeho-ram kyng of Iuda went downe to se Joia the sonne of Ahab in Ierusalem, because he was sycke there.

¶ The ix. Chapter.

¶ Jehu is made kyng of Israel, and killeth Jehoia the kyng therof, and Ahaziah, otherwyse called Jehoia, the kyng of Iuda also, and causeth Jezabel to be caste downe out of a wyndowe, and the dogges eate her.

And Elisa the prophete called one of the chyldren of the prophetes, & sayd vnto him: * gye vnto thy loynes, and take thys boxe of oyle in thyne hande, and get the to Ramoth in Gilead. And when thou comest thither, loke where is Jehu the sonne of Jehosaphat, the sone of Nuni, and go to him, and make hym arysen vnto a secret chambze. Then take the boxe of oyle, and powze it on hys heed, and saye: thus sayth the Lorde: I haue anoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel. And then open the doze, and flee without any taryng. And so the seruait of the prophete gat him to Ramoth Gilead: and when he came in, beholde, the captaynes of the host were sittyng together. And he sayde: I haue an errand to y^e, o captayne. And Jehu sayde: vnto which of all ys? he sayde: to the, o captayne. And he arose, and went into the house.

And he powzed the oyle on hys heed, and sayde vnto hym: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: * I haue anoynted the to be kyng ouer the people of the Lorde, euen ouer Israel. Thou shalt smyte y^e house of Ahab thy master, that I maye aduēge the bloud of my seruantes the prophetes, and the bloude of all the seruantes of the Lorde, of the hande of Jezabel, for the whole house of Ahab shalbe destroyed, and * I wyll destroye from Ahab, euen hym y^e maketh water agaynst the wall, and hym that is presoned and forsaken in Israel: and I wyll make the house of Ahab lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, and lyke the house of Baasa y^e sonne of Abia. And as for Jezabel * the dogges shal eate her in the felde of Jezrael, and ther shalbe none to burye her. And he opened the dore, and fledd.

Jehu came out to the seruantes of hys lozde, and one sayde vnto hym, is all well? wherfore came thys madd felowe to the? And he sayde vnto the: ye knowe what manner of man it is, and what hys comunicacyō is. They sayde vnto hym agayne: it is not so, tell vs. He sayde: thus and thus spake he to me, sayinge: Thus sayth the Lorde: I haue anoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel. Then they * belyde the horologe hasted, and toke euery man hys garment, and put it vnder hym, and blew with trompettes, sayinge: Jehu is kyng. And so, Jehu the sonne of Jehosaphat the sonne of Nuni conspyred agaynst Jo-ram. Jo-ram kepte Ramoth Gilead, he and all Israel because of Hazael kyng of Siria: and * kyng Jo-ram returned to be healed in Ierusalem, of the woundes which the Sirians had geuen him, when he fought with Hazael kyng of Siria.

And Jehu sayde: If it be poure myndes, then let no man departe and scape out of the cite, to go, & tell in Ierusalem. So Jehu gat vnto a charette, and wente to Ierusalem, where Jo-ram laye, & Ahaziah kyng of Iuda was come downe thither to se Joia. And the watchman that stode on þe towre in Jerrael. spyed the company of Jehu as he came,

and sayde: I see a companye. And Jehozam sayd: take an horsman, and sende to mete the,
that he maye aske whether it be peace. And so there went one on horsbacke to mete him, and sayde: thus sayth the kyng: is it peace?
and Jehu sayde: what hast thou to do with peace: turne the behynde me. And the watchman tolde, sayinge: the messenger came to them, but he cometh not agayne.

Then he sent out another on horsbacke, which came to them, and sayde: thus sayth the kyng: is it peace? Jehu answered: what hast thou to do with peace: turne the behind me. And the watchman tolde, sayinge: he came to them also, and cometh not agayne, and the drynge is lyke the drynge of Jehu the sonne of Nimsi: for he drincketh the cha-ret as he were madd. And Jehozam sayde:
make ready. And þe charret was made ready.
And Jehozam kyng of Israel, and Ahazia-hu kyng of Juda went out ether of them in hys charret agaynst Jehu, and met hym in þe furlonge of Naboth þe Jezraelite. And it for-tuned, that when Jehozam sawe Jehu, he sayde: is it peace Jehu? he answered: What peace shulde there be, so longe as þe whoredoms of thy mother Jezabel, and her witchcraftes are so great? And Jehozam turned his handes, and fled, and sayde to Ahaziah: there is fal-shed, o Ahaziah. And Jehu toke a bowe in hys handes, and smote Jehozam betwene the armes, & the arrowe went thorow his hert.

And he fell downe flatt in hys charret. Then sayde Jehu to Sidkar a captayne: take him, & cast him in the plat of the grounde of Na-both the Jezraelite. For I remembre þe whan I and þe roade together in a charret after Ahab his father, þe Lorde layed this heuy burthe vpon hym. I haue sene yesterdape þe bloud of Naboth, & the bloud of his sonnes, sayde
the Lorde: & I will quyte it the in this ground, sayth the Lorde. Nowe therfore take him, & cast hym in the plat of ground, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde. But whē Ahaziah the kyng of Juda sawe this, he fled by the waye of the gardē house. And Jehu folowed after hym, & layde: smyte him also in the cha-ret: (and they smote hym) in hys charret. at þe goynge vnto Gur by Jibleā, & he fled to Magiddo, & ther dyed. And his seruantes caried hym in a charret to Jerusalem, & buryed hym there in his sepulchre, w his fathers, in þe cite of David. And in the xi. yere of Joaz þe sonne of Ahab, beganne Ahaziah to raygne ouer Juda. And whē Jehu was come to Jezrahel

Jezabel hearde of it, & sarched her face, & tired her heed, & looked out at a windowe.
And as Jehu entred at þe gate, she sayde: had shunri peace which shue hys master? And he lyft vpon his eyes to the windowe, and sayde:

who is of my syde, who? And ther looked out to hym two of the chamberlaynes. And he sayde: throwe her downe. So they threwe her downe, and her bloude dashed towarde the wall, & toward the horses, and he troade her vnder fote.

And when he was come in, he dyd eate & dryncke, & sayde: go & vset I praye you ponder cursed creature, and burye her: for she is a kynges daughter. And so when they came to burye her, they founde nomore of her then the skulle, and the fete, and the palmes of her handes. Wherfore they come agayne, & told hym. And he sayde: this is the worde of the Lorde, which he spake by the hande of his ser-uaunt Elia the Thesbite, sayinge: * in the felde of Jezrahel shall dogges eate the flesch of Jezabel. And so þe carcas of Jezabel was euen as donge vpon the earth, in the felde of Jezrahel: so that no man myght saye: This was Jezabel.

The x. Chapter.

Jehu causeth the xxx. sonnes of Ahab to be slayne and after þe xij. of hys brethren. He synneth a meane also to kyll all the prestes of Baal. After hys deeth, hys sonne raygneth in hys steade.

Ahab had xxx. sonnes in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, and sent to Samaria vnto þe rulers of Je-rael, to the elders, and to them that brought vpon Ahab's children, sayinge: nowe whan this letter cometh to you, ye þe haue with you your masters sonnes, ye haue with you both charrettes and horses: a strong cite haue ye also: and harness, loke which of your masters sonnes is best and most mete, and let hym on hys fathers seate, & and fyghe for your Lorde's house. But they were excea-dingly afrayde, & sayde: se, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, how shall we then be able to stande? And he that was gouerner of Ahab's house, and he that ruled the cite, þe elders also, & þe tutors sent to Jehu, sayinge: we are thy seruantes, & will do all þe thys that thou shalt say: we will make no man kyng:
therfore do þe what semeth good in thine eyes.

Then he wrote another letter to the, sayinge: If ye be myne, and will hearken vnto my voyce, then take the heedes of the me that are your masters sonnes, and come to me to Jezrahel by to morowe this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were lxx. persones, and they were with the great men of the cite, which brought them vpon. And when the letter came to them, they toke the kynges chyldren, and slue them, euen lxx. persones, & layed theyr heedes in basnettes, and sent them to him to Jezrahel. And there came a messenger, and tolde hym, sayinge: they haue brought the heedes of the kynges sonnes. And he sayde:
let them laye them on two heapes in the en-terynge in of the gate, vntill the morynge.
And

And whā it was dape, he went out, and stode, & sayde to all þe folke: ye be ryghteous.
Beholde, I conspired agaynst my master, and slue him. But who slue all these? Lerne here, þe ther shall fall vnto the erth nothyng of the worde of þe Lorde, which he spake concering the house of Ahab. For þe Lorde hath brought to passe the thynges þe he spake: by þe hande of his seruaut * Elia. And so Jehu slue all þe remayned of the house of Ahab, in Jezrahel:
and all þe were great w him, & his kynfolkes and his prestes, so þe he let nothyng of him re-mayne. And he arose, & departed, & came to Samaria. And whā Jehu was in the waye to the house where the shepherdes dyd there their shepe, he met w the brethren of Ahazia-hu kyng of Juda, & sayde: what are ye? They answered: the brethren of Ahaziah are we,
and go downe to salute þe chyldren of þe kyng
and of þe quene. And he sayde: take the alme.
Whā when they had taken them alme, they slue them at the well which was by the house where the shepe are chozen, euen two and fourtye men, nether left he any of them.

And when he was departed thence, he met w Jehonadab þe sonne of Rechab comynge agaynst him. And he blessed him, & sayde to hym: is thine hert ryght, as myne hert is true w thine? And Jehonadab answered: yea that it is, & (as it be sayth he) then geue me thine hande. And whā he had geuen him his hand, he toke him vnto him into þe charret, & sayde:
come w me, & se the zeale that I haue for the Lorde: & so they made him ryde in hys charret.
And when he came to Samaria, he slue all þe remayned vnto Ahab in Samaria, tyll he had wypte him out, accordyng to the saying of the Lorde which he spake to Elia.

And Jehu gathered all þe people together and sayd vnto the: * Ahab serued Baal a lytle. But Jehu shall serue hym more. Nowe therfore call vnto me all þe prophetes of Ba-al all soch as serue him, & all his prestes, and let none be lackyng. For I haue a greate sacrifice to do to Baal: & therfore, whosocuer is myssed, he shall not lyue. But Jehu dyd it for a sutteltye, to the intēt that he might de-stroye þe seruantes of Baal. And Jehu sayde: Proclayme an holy conuocacyon for Baal, and Jehu sent vnto all Israel. And all þe ser-uantes of Baal came, þe ther was not a mā lefte behynde that came not. And they came into the house of Baal, & the house of Baal
was full from one ende to another.

And he sayde vnto hym that was the ke-per of the vestrye, bringe forth garnētes for all the seruantes of Baal. And he brought them out garmentes. And when Jehu went with Jehonadab the sonne of Rechab into þe house of Baal, he sayde vnto the seruantes of Baal: searche, and loke, that there be here
w you none of the seruantes of the Lorde, but the seruantes of Baal only. And when they wēt in to offer sacrifice & burnt offeringe:

Jehu appoynted lxxx. men without, & sayd:
If any of the me whom I haue brought vnder your handes, escape, he that letteth him go, shall dye for hym.

And it fortunēd, þe as sone as he had made an ende of offering the burnt sacrifice, Jehu sayde to the men of warre, and to the captai-nes: go in, and slepe them, let none come out.
And they smote them with the edge of the sward. And the men of warre and the captaines cast them out, and went vnto the citye of the temple of Baal, and fet the ymages out of the temple of Baal, and burnt them.
And they brake the ymage of Baal, & oza-ke the house of Baal, & made a drafft house of it vnto this dape. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But fro þe synnes of Jeroboā the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel to synne: Jehu departed not, nether from following of them: (nether forsoke he) * the golde calues that were in Bethel and in Dan.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Jehu: because thou hast done ryght well, in byrnyng to passe the thyng that is ryght in myne eyes, and hast done vnto the house of Ahab accor-dyng to all thynges þe are in myne hert, therfore shall * thy chyldren vnto the fourth ge-neracyon syt on the seate of Israel. But Jehu cared not for this, to walke in the lawe of the Lorde God of Israel with all his hert: for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboā, which made Israel to synne.

And those dayes the Lorde began to cut Israel short: * and hazael smote it in all þe coastes of Israel, fro Jordan eastwarde: eue all the land of Gilead, the Gadites, the Rubenites, and the þe were of Manasses, fro A-roer vnto the ryuer of Arnon: euen Gilead & Basan. The rest of the wordes þe concerne Jehu, & all þe he dyd, and all his power, are they not witten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel? And Jehu slept w hys fathers, & they buryed him in Samaria, and Jehoahaz his sonne raygned in hys steade.
And the tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria, is lxxviij. yeres.

The xj. Chapter.

Athalia putteth to deeth all the kynges sonnes except Jehoiash þe sonne of Jehoiab, which is hit: den and after her deeth is made kyng.

And Athalia the mother of Ahazia-hu, when she sawe that her sonne was deed, she arose, and destroyed all the kynges seed. But Jehosaba the daughter of kyng Joaz, and syster of Ahaziah, toke Joas the sonne of Ahazia-hu, and scale hym from amonge the kynges sonnes that were slayne, & hid his nourse with hym, out of a slepyng chābre, and hyd hym from Athalia, that he was not slayne. And he was with her hyd in the house of þe Lorde

vj. yere. And Athalia did raigne ouer y lade. And the vij. yere Jehoiada sent and fet y rulers ouer hundredes, w the captaynes, & the of the garde, and toke them to hym into the house of the Lorde, and made a bonde w the, and toke an othe of them in the house of the Lorde, and thewed them the kynges sonne. And he comaunded the, saying: thys is it y ye must do: one thyrde parte of you, whose dewty is to come on y Sabbath daye, shall kepe the watch of the kynges house. And another thyrde parte shall kepe the gate of Sur: and another thyrde parte shall kepe y gate, which is beynde them of the garde: and so shall y kepe the watche of the house of Messah, & two partes of you, that is, all that go out on the Sabbath daye, shall kepe the watche of the house of the Lorde about the kyng, and ye shall copasse the kyng rounde about, and euery ma shall haue his weapen in his hnde. And whosoeuer cometh with in the ranges, let hym be slayne. And se that ye be with the kyng as he goeth out and in.

*ii. Paralip.
xiii. a.

And the captaynes ouer y hundredes dyd, according to all thinges that y Jehoiada the preste comaunded: and they toke euery man hys me, that were to come in on y Sabbath daye with the that shuld go out on y Sabbath, and came to Jehoiada the preste. And to the captaynes ouer hundredes, dyd the preste geue kinge Dauids speares & myldes that were in the tēple. And they of the garde stode, & euery man had his weapen in hys hande rounde about the kyng, fro y ryght corner of the temple to the left, alonge by the altar and the tēple. And he brought out the kynges sonne, & put the crowne vpon him: & deliuered hym * & the witnesse, and made hym kyng, & anoynted hym. And they clapte their handes, and sayde: God saue the kyng.

*And when Athalia heard the noyse of y rnyng of the people, she came to the people into the tēple of the Lorde. And when she looked, behold, the kyng stode by a pillar, as the manner was, and the syngers & the troyettes by the kyng, and all the people of the lande reioyced, and blew w troyettes. And Athalia rent hie clothes and cryed: treason, treason. But Jehoiada the preste commaunded the captaynes of the hundredes that had the rule of the host, and sayd vnto the: haue her out without the tēple, y she maye be within the ranges, and y any folowe her, kyll hym with the swearde: for the preste had sayd the maye not be slayne in the house of the Lorde. And they layde hndes on her tyll she came in to the waye, by the which the hores went in to the kynges palace: & there was she slayne. D

*ii. pa. xlii. d

* And Jehoiada made a bonde betwene the Lorde and the kyng, and the people, that they shuld be the Lordes people, and also betwene the kyng and the people. And all the people of the lade wet into y house of Baal, and destroyed it, his altars also. & his ymagges brake they downe lustely, and slue Athalia the preste of Baal before the altars. And the preste set a watch ouer the house of the Lorde, and roke the rulers ouer hundredes, the captaynes & them of the garde, and all the people of the lande. And they brought the kyng from the house of the Lorde: and came by the waye of the gate of them of the garde to the kynges palace. And he sat hym downe on the seate of the kynges. And all the people of the lande reioyced, and the cytye was in quyet. And they slue Athalia w the swearde besyde the kynges palace. Seue yere olde was Jehoas, when he beganne to raigne.

The xiiij. Chapter.

Jehoas maketh prouision for the reparinge of the tēple, he is killed by tmo of hys seruantes, and Amaziabu raigneth in hys stede.

And he beganne to raigne in the vij. yere of Jhu. xl. yere raigned he in Jerusalem: & his mothers name was Zebiah of Beersaba. And he did y which was good in the syght of y Lorde, as longe as Jehoiada the preste enfourmed hym. But the hylaltars were not take awaye, for y people offered & burnt incense yet vpon the hylaltars. And Jehoas sayde to the prestes: all the syluer of dedicat thinges y be brought to the house of the Lorde in curraunt moneye, y is to saye, the money that euery man y is set at, and all the money y euery man with a willing hert geueth & bringeth into the house of the Lorde, let the prestes take it to the, euery ma of his aquaputauce, to repayre the broken places of the house, wheresoeuer any decaye is founde. And so it came to passe, that vnto the xliij. yere of king Jehoas, y prestes had mended nothing, that was decayed in y temple. Then kyng Jehoas called for Jehoiada the byshop, and the prestes, and sayde vnto the: why repayre ye not the broke places of the temple? Howe therfore, se that ye receaue nomore money of your aquaputauce, except ye deliuer it to repayre the temple withall. And the prestes consented to receaue nomore money of the people: except to repayre the decayed places of the temple.

But

But Jehoiada the preste toke a chest and bozred an hoale in the lyd of it, & set it besyde the altare on the ryght syde, as euery ma cometh into the temple of the Lorde. And the prestes y kepte the vessels, put therinall the money y was brought into the house of the Lorde. And it fortuned, that when they saw there was moche money in the chest, y kyng gescribe and the hye preste came, vp, and tolde the money that was founde in the house of the Lorde, and put it in to a bagg.

*ii. pa. xlii. d

And they gaue the money sealed into the hndes of the that executed the worcke, and that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lorde: and they brought it out to the carpenters and buylders (that wrought vpon the house of the Lorde) and to masons and hewers of stone: And they bought tymber and fre stone, to repayre the decay in the house of the Lorde, and to all that went out to mende the temple: howbeit there was not made for the house of the Lorde, bowlls of syluer, instrumentes of Musicke, basens, trompettes or any vessels of golde, or vessel of syluer, of the money that was brought in to the house of the Lorde: But they gaue that to the workemen, and repayed therewith the house of the Lorde. Moreover, they reckoned not wyth the men, into whose handes they deliuered that money to be bestowed on workemen: for they dyd their busynes saythfully. Howbeit trespase money and synne money was not brought in to the house of the Lorde, for it was the prestes.

*ii. pa. xlii. d

Then came Hazael kyng of Siria vp, and fought agaynst Seth and toke it, & Hazael set hys face to go vp to Jerusalem. And Jehoas kyng of Juda toke all the halowed thynges that Jehosaphat, Jehoram and Haziah his fathers kynges of Juda, had dedicated, and that he hym selfe had dedicated, and all the golde that was found in the treasures of the house of the Lorde and in the kynges house, and sent it to Hazael kyng of Siria: and so he departed from Jerusalem.

The remnaunt of the wordes that concerne Jehoas and all that he dyd, are they not wyttē in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Juda: And hys awne seruantes arole, and wrought treason, and slue Jehoas in the house Hillo, whan he came downe to Silla. Jozabar the sonne of Semeth and Jehozabad the sonne of Somer hys seruantes, smote hym, & he dyed. And they buryed hym wyth his fathers in y ctye of Dauid. And Amaziabu hys sonne raigned in hys stede.

The xiiij. Chapter.

Jehoahaz the sonne of Jhu is deliuered into the handes of the Syryes, & dyeth. Joas hys sonne raigneth in hys stede. Elisa dyeth.

In the xliij. yere of Joas the sonne of Jehoahaz the sonne of Jhu beganne to raigne ouer Israel in Samaria seuentene yere. And he wrought that whych was euell in the syght of the Lorde, and followed the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat whych made Israel to synne, and departed not ther fro. And the Lorde was angry wyth Israel, and deliuered them into the hand of Hazael kyng of Siria, and into the hande of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael all they dayes.

And Jehoahaz besought the Lorde, & the Lorde heard him. For he colozed the trouble of Israel, wher with the kyng of Siria troubled them. And the Lorde gaue Israel a deliuerer, so that they went out from vnder the subiecyon of the Syrias. And the chyldre of Israel dwelt in theyr tentes as before tyme. Neuerthelesse they departed not fro the synnes of the house of Jeroboam, whych made Israel synne, but walked i the. And there remained an Idols groue tyll also in Samaria. Neither dyd he leaue of the people to Jehoahaz, but fyfte horemē ten charctes, & ten thousand foremen * for the kyng of Siria destroyed them, and made them lyke theyr shed dust. The rest of the wordes that concerne Jehoahaz, and all that he dyd, and hys power, are they not wyttē in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Israel: And Jehoahaz slepte wyth hys fathers, and they buryed hym in Samaria, and Joas his sonne raigned in hys stede. In the xxxviij. yere of Joas kyng of Juda, beganne Jehoas the sonne of Jehoahaz to raigne ouer Israel in Samaria syxtene yere, and dyd that whych is euell in the syght of the Lorde, and departed not from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, (that made Israel synne) for he walked therein.

The remnaunt of the wordes that concerne Joas & all y he dyd, & hys power wher wyth he fought agaynst Amaziabu kyng of Juda are they not wyttē in the chronycle boke of the kynges of Israel: And Joas slepte with his fathers, and Jeroboam sat vpon his seate. And Joas was buried in Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel.

When Elisa was fallen speke of hys synnes (wher of he dyed) Joas the kyng of Israel came downe vnto hym, & wepte before him, & sayd: * O my father, my father, & the charct of Israel, & the horemē of the same. Elisa sayde vnto hym: take bowes & arrowes. And he toke vnto him bowes & arrowes. And he sayde to the kyng of Israel: put thine hnd vpo the bowe, & he put his hnde vpo it. And Elisa put his hndes vpo the kynges hndes, & sayde: open a window east ward: & whā he had opened it, Elisa sayde: spote, & he spote.

*iii. reg. ii. d

And

And he sayd: the arrowe of belth of the Lord: and the arrowe of helth agaynst Siria, for þu shalt smyte Siria in Apphek, tyll thou haue made an ende of them.

And he sayd: take þu arrowes: & he toke the. And he sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: smyte the ground: & he smote thyle and crested. And the man of God was angrie wth him, & sayd: þu shuldest haue smyte syue of syue tymes: & then thou haddest smytten Siria tyll thou haddest made an ende of them: where now þu shalt smyte Siria but thyle. And so Elia dyed and they buryed hym, & þe souldiers of the Moabites came into þe lād, the same yere. And it chaunced as some of them were buryenge a man, and spyed the souldiers, they cast the mā into the sepulchre of Elia. And whā the mā was rolled downe, and touched the body of Elia: he reuyued, and stode vpon hys fete.

But Hazael vnted Israel, all the dayes of Jehoahaz. And þe Lord had mercey on them & pitied the, & had respecte vnto the, because of his appointmēt made wth Abrahā, Israhel & Jacob, and wolde not destrepe the, nether cast he the from hym as yet. So Hazael the kyng of Siria dyed and Shadad his sonne raygned in his steade. And Jehoahaz þe sonne of Jehoahaz wte agayne, and toke out of the hāde of Shadad þe sonne of Hazael, the eyeres which he had taken awaye out of the hāde of Jehoahaz hys father, in warre: for thre tymes dyd Joas beate hym, and restored the eyeres vnto Israel agayne.

The xiiij. Chapter.

Amaziah the kyng of Iuda puteth to death the manquellers of his father, and after smyth Joas. Joas dyeth & Jeroboam hys sonne succedeth in hys rowme, & after hym raygneth zacharia. Amaziah is kyllid in Lachis, and Azaria raygneth in hys steade.

In the seconde yere of Joas sonne of Jehoahaz kyng of Israel raygned Amaziah the sonne of Joas kyng of Iuda: * he was xxv. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned xxx. yere in Jerusalem, & hys mothers name was Jehoaddan, of Jerusalem. And he dyd þe which is good in the syght of the Lord, yet not lyke Dauid his father:

but dyd accordynge to all thynges as Joas hys father dyd. Nether were the hyllaulters taken awaye: for as yet the people dyd sacrifice & burnt incense on the hyllaulters. And as sone as the kyngdome was setteled in hys hande: it came to passe, that he slue hys seruantes which had kyllid the kyng hys father. But the chyldren of those myrtherars he slue not, accordynge vnto it that is writte in the boke of the lawe of Moyses: where in the Lord commaunded, sayinge: * let not the fathers dye for the chyldren, nor let the chyldren be slayne for the fathers: But let euery mā be put to death for his awne synne.

* deca. xxiij. b. in the boke of the lawe of Moyses: where in the Lord commaunded, sayinge: * let not the fathers dye for the chyldren, nor let the chyldren be slayne for the fathers: But let euery mā be put to death for his awne synne.

he slue of Edom in the salt valeye * ten thousande, and toke the castell on the rock in the same battell, & called the name of it Joktheel vnto this daye.

Then Amaziah sent messengers to Jehoahaz the sonne of Jehoahaz sonne of Jehu kyng of Israel, sayinge: come, & let vs sece the other. And Jehoahaz the kyng of Israel sent to Amaziah kyng of Iuda, sayinge: * dyd not a thystle grow in libanon, sende to a Cedre tre that is in Libanon, sayinge: geue thy daughter to my sonne to wyfe: And the wyldc beaste that was in Libanon, wēt and troade downe the thistell. Thou hast smytte Edom, thyn hart hath made the proude: Enioye thys gloze, & tarpe at home. Why dost thou prouoke to mischene, & thou shuldest be ouerthrowen, and Iuda wyth the?

But Amaziah wolde not heare. And Jehoahaz kyng of Israel wēt up, and he and Amaziah kyng of Iuda sawe ether other at Bethsames whych is in Iuda. And Iuda was put to the worse before Israel, and they fled euery man to theyr tentes. And Jehoahaz kyng of Israel toke Amaziah kyng of Iuda, the sonne of Jehoahaz the sonne of Ahaziah, at Bethsames, and came to Jerusalem & brake downe the wall of Jerusalem from the gate of Ephraim to þe corner gate, foure hundred cubytes. And he toke all the golde and syluer and all the vesselles that were founde in the house of the Lord, & in the treasures of the kynges house, and the chyldren toke he to be hys wardes & returned to Samaria agayne.

The rest of the actes of Jehoahaz which he dyd, & hys power, and howe he fought with Amaziah kyng of Iuda, are they not writte in the Chronycle boke of the kynges of Israel: and Jehoahaz slepte with his fathers, and was buryed at Samaria, amonge the kynges of Israel: and Jeroboam hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

Amaziah the sonne of Joas kyng of Iuda, lyued after the deeth of Jehoahaz sonne of Jehoahaz kyng of Israel, fyftene yere. And the remnaunt of the wordes that concerne Amaziah, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Iuda: But they conspired treason agaynst hym in Jerusalem: and whā he fled to Lachis, they sent after hym to Lachis, and slue hym there. And they broughed hym on horsys, & he was buryed at Jerusalem wyth hys fathers in the ctye of Dauid. * And all the people of Iuda toke Azaria, whych was xvi. yere olde, and made hym kyng for hys father Amaziah. He buylt * Elath, and broughed it agayne to Iuda, after that the kyng was layde to rest wyth hys fathers.

In the xv. yere of Amaziah the sonne of Joas kyng of Iuda, was Jeroboam þe sonne of Joas

Joas made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, and raygned xli. yere, and wrought þe which was euell in þe syght of þe Lord. Nether turned he awaye from all the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat which made Israel to synne. He restored the coaste of Israel fro the enterynge of Hemath vnto the see of þe wilderness, according to the worde of the Lord God of Israel, which he spake by the hande of his seruant * Jona the sonne of Amithai the prophete, which was of Seth hephce. For the Lord sawe howe that the aspyceyon of Israel was excedynge bytter, in so moche that the presoned and the forsaken were at an ende. And ther was none to helpe Israel. And the Lord sayde not, that he wolde putt out the name of Israel from vnder heauen, but he helped the by the hande of Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

The rest of the wordes þe concerne Jeroboam, and all that he dyd, and hys strength, which he executed in the warres, and howe he restored Damasco, and Hemath to Iuda in Israel, are not they wyrtten in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israel: And Jeroboam slepte with hys fathers, even wth the kynges of Israel, and zacharia hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The xxv. Chapter.
Azaria the kyng of Iuda becommeth a leper. Of Jotha, Shallum, Menahem, Pekahia, Aziah, Jotham, and Ahaz.

In the xxv. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel, beganne Azaria sonne of Amaziah kyng of Iuda to raygne. Syxtene yere olde was he when he was made kyng, and he raygned two and fyftene yere in Jerusalem, and hys mothers name was Jehoicihu of Jerusalem. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lord, accordynge to all thynges as dyd hys father Amaziah: saue þe the hyllaulters, were not put awaye: for the people offered, and burned incense styll on the hyllaulters.

And the Lord smote the kyng, and he was a leper vnto þe dape of his deeth, * and dwelt in a seuerall house at libertye, and Jotha the kynges sonne gouerned the palace, and iudged the people of the lande. The reste of the wordes þe concerne Azaria and all þe dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of þe chronicles of the kynges of Iuda: And so Azaria slepte with his fathers, and they buryed hym with hys fathers in the ctye of Dauid, and Jotham hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

In the xxxviij. yere of Azaria kyng of Iuda dyd zacharia the sonne of Jeroboam raygne vpon Israel in Samaria. vi. monethes: and wrought þe which was euell in þe syght of the Lord, as dyd hys fathers: and turned not awaye from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel to synne. And Shallum the sonne of Jabez conspyred against hym, & smote hym in the syght of the people, & kyllid hym, & raygned in his steade.

The rest of the wordes that concerne zacharia, beholde, they are wyrtten in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Israel. Thys is also the worde of the Lord, which he spake vnto Jehu, sayinge: * thy sonnes shall syt on the seate of Israel in þe fourth generation after the. And it came so to passe.

Shallum the sonne of Jabez beganne to raygne in the xxxix. yere of Azaria kyng of Iuda: & he raygned a moneth in Samaria. For Menahem the sonne of Gadi went vp fro Thirza, & came to Samaria, & smote Shallum the sonne of Jabez in Samaria, & slue hym, & raygned in his steade. The rest of the wordes that concerne Shallum, & the treason which he conspyred, beholde, they are wyrtten in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israel. The same tyme Menahem destroyed Thiphlah, & all þe were therein, & the coastes therof fro Cherzahi. And because they opened not to hym, he smote it, and rype vnto all their women with chylde.

The xxxix. yere of Azaria kyng of Iuda began Menahem the sonne of Gadi to raygne vpon Israel ten yere in Samaria. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lord, & turned not awaye all his dayes fro the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel to synne. And whā the kyng of Assiria came vnto þe lād. And Menahem gaue whā a. talentes of syluer, that his hand might be with him and stablyshe the kyngdome in his hande. And Menahem made a proclamaciō for the money in Israel, that all men of substance shulde geue the kyng of Assiria fyfetye speles of syluer a pece. And so the kyng of Assiria turned back agayne, and tarped not there in the lande. The rest of the wordes þe concerne Menahem, and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtte in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Israel: And Menahem slepte with his fathers, & Pekahia hys sonne dyd in his steade succede hym in the kyngdome.

In the fyftieth yere of Azaria kyng of Iuda, beganne Pekahia the sonne of Menahem to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria two yere, & dyd that which was euell in the syght of the Lord: and lefte not of fro the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, which made Israel synne. But Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, which was a captayne of his, conspyred agaynst hym, & smote hym in Samaria, even in the palace of the kynges house with Argob and Aris: and with him were fyfetye men of the Giladites: and he kyllid hym, and raygned in hys rowme. The rest of the wordes that concerne Pekahia, and all that he dyd, beholde, they are wyrtte in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

In the liij yere of Azaria kyng of Juda beganne Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria. xx. yere. & dyd enell in the syght of the Lorde, and turned not awaye fro the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, that made Israel synne. In the dayes of Pekah kyng of Israel, came Tiglath Pelesar kyng of Assyria, and toke Iion, Abel, Bethmaacha, Tanoah, Kedesh, Hazor, Gilad, Galile, and all the lande of Nephtali, & carryed the awaye to Assyria.

And Hosea sonne of Elia conspired treason agaynst Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu, and smote him, and slue him: and raygned in his steade in the xx. yere of Jotham the sonne of Azariah. The rest of the wordes y concerne Pekah and all that he dyd, behold, they are wyrtte in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Israel.

The seconde yere of Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu kyng of Israel, beganne Jotham the sonne of Azariah kyng of Juda to raygne. If yue and twentye yere olde was he when he began to raygne: and he raygned syxtene yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name was Jerusa the daughter of Zadok. And he dyd y which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde: enen accordyng to all as dyd his father Azariah, so dyd he. But the hyllalters were nott put awaye: for the people offered ad burnt incense tyll in the hyllalters: he buylt the hygher doore of the house of the Lord. The rest of the wordes that concerne Jotham, and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtte in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Juda. In those dayes the Lorde beganne to sende into Juda, Rezin the kyng of Siria, and Pekah the sonne of Remaliahu. And Jotham slepte w his fathers, and was buried w his fathers in the cite of David hys father, and Ahaz hys sonne raygned in his steade.

The. xvi. Chapter.

Ahaz kyng of Juda consecrateth hys sonne in syer, and hath manye battayles agaynst the kynges of Israel. In the steade of Ahaz raygneth Hezekiah hys sonne.

In the xviij. yere of Pekah sonne of Remaliahu kyng of Israel, Ahaz the sonne of Jotham kyng of Juda, beganne to raygne. Twentye yere olde was he, when he was made kyng:

and raygned syxtene yere in Jerusalem, and dyd not that which was ryght in the eyes of the Lorde hys God, lyke David hys father: But walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, yre, and made hys sonne to go thowen the syer, after the abhominacyons of the heythen, whom the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered and burnt incense in the hyllalters, and on the hylls, and under every thicke tree. * Then Rezin kyng of Siria and Pekah sonne of Remaliahu kyng of Israel came vp to Jerusalem to syght. And they fought agaynst Ahaz, but could not overcome hym. At the same tyme Rezin kyng of Siria brought Tiglathagayne to Siria, and rydd the Jewes thence. And the Syrians came to Elath, and dwell therein vnto this daye.

So Ahaz sent messengers to Tiglath Peleser kyng of Assyria, sayinge: I am thy seruant and thy sonne, come vp and deliuer me out of the hande of the kynges of Siria, & out of the hande of the kyng of Israel, which ryse vp agaynst me. And Ahaz toke the siluer and the golde that was founde in y house of the Lorde, and in the treasures of y kinges house, and sent a rewarde to the kyng of Assyria. * And the kyng of Assyria consented vnto hym. For the kyng of Assyria wet vp agaynst Damasco. And when he had taken it, he carryed the people awaye to kyp, and slue Rezin.

And kyng Ahaz went to Damasco, to mete Tiglath Peleser kyng of Assyria. And when kyng Ahaz sawe an aulter that was at Damasco, he sent to ARIA the preste the paterne of the aulter, & the fastyon of it, and all the workmanthp therof. And ARIA the preste made an aulter in all poyntes lyke to the paterne which kyng Ahaz had sent from Damasco: enen so dyd ARIA the preste make it, agaynst kyng Ahaz came from Damasco. And so, when the kyng was come from Damasco, he sawe the aulter, and the kyng wet to it, & offered theron. And he burnt his burnt-offeringe, and hys meatofferinge, and powdered hys dypnckofferyng: and spynckled the bloude of hys peaceofferynges besyde y aulter, y was by y brasen aulter which was before the Lord, and set it wout the temple betwene the aulter and the temple of the Lord: and put it on the northsyde of the aulter.

And kyng Ahaz commaunded ARIA the preste, and sayde: vpon the greates aulter set on syer in the moynyng the burnt-offeringe, & in the euen the meatofferinge, and the kinges burnt sacrifice & his meatofferinge, with the burnt-offeryng of all the people of the lande, and their meatofferinge, & their dypnckofferynges: & powze therby, all the bloude of the sacrifice offerynges. But y brasen aulter will I come and se. And ARIA the preste dyd accordyng to all thynges as kyng. Ahaz commaunded hym. * And kyng Ahaz brake the sydes of the botomes, and toke the lauer fro of them, and toke downe the Lauatoze fro of the brasen oren that were vnder it, & put it vpon a pavement of stones. And the veyle for the Sabbath (that they had made in the house) & the kynges entreye without turned he to the house of the Lorde, for feare of the kynges of Assyria. Thereste of the wordes y concerne Ahaz, what he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda: And Ahaz slepte with hys fathers, and was buried with hys fathers in the cite of David: and Hezekiah hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The. xvii. Chapter.

Hosea kyng of Israel is taken. And he and all hys realme brought to the Assyrians.

In the xli. yere of Ahaz kyng of Juda, beganne Hosea the sonne of Elia to raygne in Samaria vpo Israel. ix. yere, and dyd y which was euill in the syght of the Lorde, but not as the kynges of Israel that were before him. And Salimanasar kyng of Assyria came vp agaynst him, and Hosea became hys seruant, and gaue hym presentes. And the kyng of Assyria founde treason in Hosea: for he had sent messengers to So, kyng of Egypte, and brought no presente vnto y kyng of Assyria, from yere to yere: and therfore the kyng of Assyria toke hym: and put hym in prysoun. * And then the kyng of Assyria came vp thowout all the lande, & gat vp agaynst Samaria, and brayged it thre yere. In y nyth yere of Hosea, the kyng of Assyria toke Samaria, and carryed Israel awaye vnto Assyria, and put them in Gala, in haboz by the ryuer of Goza, and in the cyties of the Medes. For it came to passe, that the chyldren of Israel synned agaynst the Lorde theyr God, which had brought them out of the lande of Egypt, from vnder the bande of Pharaon kyng of Egypte, and feared other Gods. And they walked in the ceremonies of the heythen, whom the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel, & in the ceremonies which the kynges of Israel had made. And the chyldren of Israel went about to hyde those thynges that were not well, fro the Lorde theyr God. And they buylt them hyllalters in all theyr cyties, bothe in the towres where they kept watch, and also in the stroge towres. And they made the ymages and groues in every hye hyll, and under every thicke tre. And there they burnt incense in all the hyllalters, as dyd y heythen (who the Lorde carryed awaye before them) and wrought wycked thynges to angre y Lorde withall: for they serued most vile Idoles, wherof the Lorde had sayde vnto them.

* Ye shall do no soche thyng.

And the Lorde restified in Israel, and in Juda by all the prophetes and by all y leas, sayinge. * Turne fro youre wycked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and my statutes, accordyng to all the lawe which I commaunded youre fathers, and which I sent to you by my seruantes the prophetes. * Notwithstandinge they wolde not heare: but rather hardened theyr neckes, lyke to y stubburnesse of their fathers that dyd not beleue in the Lorde their God. For they refused hys statutes, and hys appoyntment that he made with theyr fathers, & the witness (wherwith he witnessed vnto the) & they folowed vanitye, and became vayne, and went after the heythen that were rounde aboute the: concerning whom, the Lorde had charged the, that they shuld not do lyke the. But they left the commaundementes of the Lord theyr God, and made them Images of metall: euen two calves: and made Idole groues, & worshipped all the hoste of heauen, and serued Baal. * And they sacrificed theyr sonnes, & theyr daughters in fyre, and vsed witchcraft and enchauntementes: euen sellynge them selues to worke wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde, and to angre hym.

And the Lorde was exceedinge wroth w Israel, and put them out of hys syght: that there was lefte but the trybe of Juda onely. Neuertheles, Juda also kept not the commaundementes of the Lorde theyr God, but walked in the ceremonies of Israel, which they made. And the Lorde cast vp all the seed of Israel, and vered them, and deliuered them into the handes of spoylers, vntill he had cast them out of hys syght. For Israel denyed them selues from the house of David, & made them a kyng, enen Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. And Jeroboam drewe Israel awaye, that they shulde not folowe the Lorde: and made them synne a greates synne: for the chyldren of Israel walked in all the synnes of Jeroboam which he dyd, and departed not therfro, vntill the Lorde put Israel awaye out of hys syght, as he had sayde by all hys seruantes the prophetes. And so was Israel carryed awaye out of theyr awne lade to Assyria enen vnto this daye.

And the kyng of Assyria brought men from Babylon, from Cutha, from Aua, fro Hanath, and from Sepharuaim, and put the in the cyties of Samaria, in steade of y chyldren of Israel. And they possessed Samaria, and dwell in the cyties therof. And it fortuneth, that at the begynnyng of theyr dwellinge there, they feared not the Lorde. And y Lorde sent Lyons amonge them, which slue them. Wherfore, men sayde to the kyng of Assyria. The nacpions which thou hast traslated, & put in y cyties of Samaria, knowe I v not not the lawe of the God of the lande, therfore he hath sent ypon them: and beholde they slape them, because they knowe not the maner of worshyping of y God of the lade.

Then the kyng of Assyria commaunded sayenge: carpe thether one or twayne of the prestes, whom ye brought thence, and let them go, and dwell there, and teache them y fastyon howe to serue the God of the cōtre. And then one of the prestes which they had carped theere came, and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them howe they shulde feare the Lorde. Howbeit euery nacyon made them Gods of theyr awne and put them in the houses of the hyllaulters which the Samaritans had made, euery nacyon in their cyties wher in they dwelt. The me of Babilō made Socoth Benoth: and the men of Cuth made Aregal: and the men of Hamath made Nima: The Tuites made Ribbaz, and Tharthak. And the Sepharuites burnt theyr chyldren in fyre for Azamelech and Anamelech, the Gods of Sepharuaim. And so they feared the Lorde, and made them prestes of the hyllaulters, which sacrificed for them in the houses of the hyllaulters. And so they feared the Lorde, and serued theyr awne Gods after the maner of the people, whom they carped thence.

And vnto this daye they do after the olde maner: and nether feare God, nether do after theyr ordinaunces and customes, and after the lawe and commaundement which the Lorde commaunded the chyldren of Jacob, who he called Israel. And the Lorde made an appoyntement wyth them, and charged them, sayenge: * feare none other Goddes, noz bowe youre selues to them, noz serue the noz sacrifice to the: but feare the Lord which brought you out of the lade of Egypte with greate power and a stretched out arme: hym feare, and to hym bowe, and to hym do sacrifice. The statutes, ordinaunces, lawe and commaundement which he wrote for you, se that ye be diligent to do for euermore, & feare not any other goddes. And the appoyntment that I haue made with you, se ye forget not and feare none other goddes: but the Lorde poure God ye shall feare, and he shall deliuer you out of the handes of all poure enemyes. Howbeit, they dyd not hearken, but dyd after theyr olde custome. And so these nacions feared the Lorde, and serued theyr ymages also: lyke as dyd theyr chyldren and theyr chyldrens chyldren. Euen as dyd theyr fathers, so do they vnto this daye.

The. xliii. Chapter.

Hezekia kyng of Iuda putteth downe the brazen serpent, and destroyeth the ydolles. Salmannazar kyngeth Israel to the Assyrians. The blasphemie of Sennacherib oz Sanherib.

In the thyrde yere of Hosa sonne of Ela kyng of Israel it came to passe, that Hezekia the sonne of Ahaz kyng of Iuda dyd raygne. * Twetye and fyue yere olde was he, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned. xlii. yere in Ierusalem. His mothers name also was Abi the daughter of zacharia, and he dyd y which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde accordyng to all as dyd Dauid hys father. * He put awaye the hyllaulters, and brake the ymages and cut downe the groues, and all to brake the * brazen serpent that Hosa had made: for vnto those dayes the chyldren of Israel dyd burne sacrifice to it, & he called it Nehustan. He trusted in the Lorde God of Israel, so that after hym was none lyke him amonge all the kynges of Iuda, nether were there anye soche before hym. For he claued to the Lorde, and departed not from hym, but kepte hys commaundementes, which the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the Lorde was with hym: so y he prospered in all thynges which he toke in hande. And he rebelled agaynst the kyng of Assyria, and serued him not. He smote the Philistines euen vnto Gaza and y coastes therof, & both castels where they kepte watches and stronge cyties.

* And in the fourth yere of kyng Hezekia, (which was the seuenth yere of Hosa sonne of Ela kyng of Israel) it fortuned, that Salmannazar kyng of Assyria came vpagaynst Samaria, & beleged it. And after thre yeres they toke it euen in the syxte yere of Hezekia: that is to saye, y nyth yere of Hosa kyng of Israel. And Samaria was wonne. And the kyng of Assyria, dyd carue awaye Israel vnto Assyria, and put them in Halah and in Habor by the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of the Medes: because they wolde not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde theyr God: but transgressed hys appoyntment, and all that Moyses the seruaunt of the Lord commaunded, & wolde nether heare them noz do them.

* Therfore in the. liiii. yere of kyng Hezekia dyd Sennacherib kyng of Assyria come vpagaynst all the stronge cyties of Iuda, and toke them. And Hezekia kyng of Iuda sent to the kyng of Assyria to Lachis, sayyng: I haue offended: departe from me, and me, and all y thou puttest on me, that will I beare. And the kyng of Assyria appoynted vnto Hezekia kyng of Iuda thre hundred talentes of syluer, & thretye talentes of gold. * And Hezekia gaue him all the syluer that was fonde in the house of the Lorde, & in the treasures of the kynges house. At the same creason dyd Hezekia rent of the doores of the temple of the Lorde & the pillers (whyche the sayde Hezekia kyng of Iuda had covered ouer) & gaue the to the kyng of Assyria.

And the kyng of Assyria sent Tharthan and Rablaris and Rablake from Lachis to kyng Hezekia with a great hoste agaynst Ierusalem. And they went vp, and came to Ierusalem, & gat them vp, & stode by the cōduyte of the vpper pole which is in y wape of the fullers felde. And whan they had called to the kyng, there came out to them, * Eliakim y sonne of Elia which was steward of housholde, and Sobna the scribe, & Joah the sonne of Asaph, the recorder. And Rablake sayde vnto them: Tell ye Hezekia I praye you: thus sayth the great kyng, eue the kyng of Assyria: What confidence is this y thou hast? Wilt thou speake soche a lyght worde in dede? By cōsell and powre I will be ready to make warre. On who then dost thou trust, that thou rebellest agaynst me? * Dost thou truste to the staffe of this broken reede Egypte, on which yf a mā leane, it will go into his hande, and pearce it. Euen so is Pharaos kyng of Egypte vnto all that trust on him. * If ye saye vnto me, we trust in the Lorde oure God: Is not that he whose hyllaulters and his other aulters, Hezekia hath put downe, and hath sayde to Iuda & Ierusalem, ye shall worshyppe before this aultre here in Ierusalem.

Nowe therfore deliuer wardes to my Lorde y kyng of Assyria, that ye rebell not, & I will deliuer the two thousande horses, yf thou be able to sett ryders vpon the: Why thynkest thou scozne at the presence of one of the leest dukes of my masters seruantes, & trustest to Egypte for charettres and horsme? Moreover, am I come now without y brydginge of the Lorde to this place, to destroye the Lorde sayde to me: go vp to this lade, and destroye it. And Eliakim the sonne of Helkia & Sobna, & Joah sayde vnto Rablake: speake (I praye the) to thy seruantes in the Assyrians language, for we vnderstande it: & talke not w vs in the Jewes tonge, in the eares of this people that are on y wall. And Rablake sayde vnto them: hath my master sent me to thy master and to y, to speake these wordes? hath he not sent me because of the men which sytt on the wall, y they maye eate their awne donge, & dryncke their awne piss with you?

And so Rablake stode, and cryed with a lowde voyce in the Jewes language, and spake sayyng: heare the sayyng of the great kyng of Assyria. Thus sayth the kyng: let not Hezekia begyle you, for he shall not be able to deliuer you out of myne hāde: nether let Hezekia make you to trust in the Lorde, sayyng: y Lorde shall surely deliuer vs, and this cytie shall not be geuen ouer into y hāde of the kyng of Assyria. Herken not vnto Hezekia, for thus sayth the kyng of Assyria.

Deale kindly with me, & come out to me. And then eate euery man of his awne vyne, and of his awne figge tree, & dryncke euery mā of the water of his awne well, & yll I come, and sett you to as good a lande as youres is: a lande of corne and wyne, a lande of bread and vyneyardes, a lande of oyle, of olyue trees, and of hony: that ye maye lyue, and not dye. And herken not vnto Hezekia, for he begyleth you, sayyng: the Lorde shall deliuer vs. * hath euery one of the Gods of the nacions deliuered his lande, out of the hande of the kyng of Assyria? where is the God of Hamath, & of Arphad? and where is the God of Sepharuaim, Hena & Iua? dyd they deliuer Samaria out of myne hande, & what God is it amonge all the goddes of the nacions, that hath deliuered his lande out of myne hande. Shall the Lorde deliuer Ierusalem out of myne hande?

But they y were of the people helde their peace, and answered not him a worde: for y kyng had comaunded, sayyng: answer him not. Then Eliakim which was the steward of housholde, and Sobna y scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the recorder, came to Hezekia with their clothes rent, and tolde him the wordes of Rablake.

The. xlii. Chapter.

The Angell of y Lorde killeth an hosted foure thowse and fyue thousande men of the Assyrians. Sennacherib is killeth of his awne fowles.

It came to passe, y when kyng Hezekia hearde it, he rent hys clothes, and put on sacke, and came into the * house of the Lorde, and sent Eliakim which was y steward of housholde, and Sobna the scribe, & the elders of y prestes clothed in sacke, to Asaph the prophete the sonne of Amos. And they sayde vnto him, thus sayth Hezekia: this daye is a daye of tribulacion and of rebuke and blasphemie. For the chyldren are come to the byrth, and there is no strenght to be deliuered. Paraventure the Lorde thy God will heare all the wordes of Rablake, who the kyng of Assyria his master hath sent, to rayle on the lyuyng God, and to rebuke him with wordes, which the Lorde thy God hath hearde: And lyfte thou vp thy prayer for the remnant that are lefte. So the seruantes of kyng Hezekia came to Asaph: And Isaie sayd vnto them: So shall ye save to pource master: Thus sayth the Lorde: be not afrayde of þe wordes which thou hast heard, with which the younge men of the kyng of Assyria haue rayled on me. Beholde, I will put him in another mynde, and he shall heare thydinges, and so returne to his awne lande:

* And I will bringe to passe, þe shall fall vpon the swerde * euen in his awne lande.

And Rabfalech went backe agayne, and founde þe kyng of Assyria fyghting agaynst Libna: for he had hearde, howe that he was departed fro Lachis. And whē he hearde men saye of Tirhaka kyng of þe blacke Moyses: Beholde, he is come out to fyght agaynst þe, he departed, & sent messengers vnto hezekia sayinge. Thus speake to hezekia kyng of Iuda, sayinge: let not thy God disceane þe, in who þe trustest, sayinge: Jerusalem shall not be deliuered into the hande of the kyng of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast heard, what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue utterly destroyed the. And shalt thou escape? haue the Gods of the hethen deliuered the, which myne anfettes haue destroyed: As Gozan, & Haran, Rezech, & the chyldren of Eden which were in Withlazar: where is þe kyng of Hamath, and the kyng of Arphad, the kyng of the cy- tie of Sepharuaim, & of Hena & Iua?

So hezekia receaued the letter of þe hande of the messengers, and redd it: And hezekia went vp into the house of the Lorde, & layde it abroade before the Lorde. And hezekia prayed before the Lorde, and sayde: O Lord God of Israel, which dwellest betwene the Cherubs, þat art God alone ouer all the kyng- domes of the erth, thou hast made heauen & earth, howe downe thine care, & heare: Open Lorde thine eyes (I beseeche the) & se: and heare the wordes of Sennacherib which hath sent thys man to rayle on the lypunge God. Of a truthe Lorde, the kinges of Assy- ria haue destroyed nacys and their landes, and haue sett fyre on their Gods. For they were no Gods, but the worcke of the handes of man: euen of wood & stone. And they de- stroyed them. Nowe therfore, O Lorde oure

God, I beseeche the, saue thou vs out of hys hāde, þe all the kyngdomes of the earth maye knowe, that thou onely art the Lorde God. And I say the sonne of Amoz sent to heze- kia, sayinge: thus sayth the Lorde God of Is- rael: þe which thou hast prayed me, concerninge Sennacherib kyng of Assyria, I haue hearde it. This is therfore the worde that þe

Lorde hath sayde of him: þe virgin enē the daughter of Sion hath despyled the, and laughed the to scoone (o þe kyng of Assyria) the daughter of Jerusalem hath shaken her head at the. * Whom hast thou rayled on, & whom hast thou blasphemed? Agaynst who hast thou exalted thy voyce, and lysted by thine eyes to hys. Euen agaynst the holy of Israel. By the hande of thy messengers thou hast rayled on the Lorde and sayde: is the multitude of my charettes I am come by to the toppes of the mountaynes, euen alonge by the sydes of Libanon, and I will cut downe the hye Cedar trees and the lustie fyre trees therof: and I will go into the lod- ging of his nest, & into þe wood of his playne. I haue digged & droncke straunge waters, and in the steppe of my goynge will I drye all the water poles that are beleaged.

Hast thou not hearde, howe I haue ordy- ned such a thynge a great while ago, & ha- ue prepared it fro þe begynninge? And shall I not nowe bringe it forth, þe it maye destroye, and to bringe stronge cyties into wast hea- pes of stones? And þe inhabitants of the shalbe of lytle power, & saynt herted, and confoun- ded, and shalbe lyke the grasle of the felde, or grene herbe, or as þe eye on the toppes of the houses: or as þe corne þis vntripe, & smyt- ten w blastyng. I knowe thy dwellinge, thy commynge out, and thy goynge in, & thy fure agaynst me. And because þe ragest agaynst me, and thynkest thy selfe so bleisid: this is come vp vnto myne eares, & I will put my holie in thy nastreis, and my bytt in thy lypres, and will bringe the backe agayne, the same waye thou camest.

And this shalbe a sygne vnto the (O he- zekia) þe shall eate this pere of soch thynges as growe of them selues, and the next yere soch as come vp of those that dyd growe of their awne accorde. And the thirde yere sowe ye and reape, plant vyneyardes and eate the frutes therof. And if that is escaped & lefte, of þe daughter of Iuda, shall yet agayne take rotynge downe warde and beare frute vp- warde. For out of Ierusalem shall go a rem- nant, and a nombre that shall escape out of mount Sion: the zeile of the Lorde of hostes shall bringe thys thyng to passe.

Wherfore, thus sayth þe Lorde, concerninge the kyng of Assyria: he shall not come to this cytie, nor shote an arrowe into it, nor come before it with wilde, nor cast bancke agaynst it: but shall go backe agayne the waye he ca- me, & shall not come into this cytie sayeth the Lorde. For I will defende this cytie, to saue it, for myne awne sake, and for Dauid my seruantes sake.

And so it came to passe that the selfe same nyght þe angell of the Lorde wet out & smote in the hoste of the Assyrians an hundred foure skore and fyue thousande. And when þe rem- nant were vp erlye in the mornynge: they sawe, they were all deed coarles. * And so Sennacherib kyng of Assyria auoyded and departed, and went agayne, & dwelt at Ri- niue. And it fortunēd, þe as he was in a temple worshyping worshyping Nisroch hys God, Adrame- lech & Sarelar his awne sonnes smote hym with the swerde. And they escaped into the lande of Armenia, and Asarhaddon hys son- ne raygned in his steade.

The xx. Chapter.

Hezekia is speke, and receaueth the sygne of his health. He receaueth rewardes of Berodach, and is repheued of Isay because he shewed hym the treasure. He dyeth and Manasse hys sonne raygneth in hys steade.

About that tyme * was hezekia sycke vnto þe deeth. And the pro- phete Isay þe sonne of Amoz ca- me to him, and sayde vnto hym. Thus sayth þe Lorde: * put thy- ne houtholde in an ordre, for thou shalt die, and not lyue. And hezekia turned his face to the wall, & prayed vnto the Lorde, sayinge: I beseeche the nowe, O Lorde, remēbre howe I haue walked before the in truthe and with a perfecte herte, and haue done that which is good in thy syght, and hezekia wepte sore.

And it fortunēd that * afore Isay was gone out into the myddle of the courte, the worde of þe Lorde came to him, sayinge: tur- ne agayne, and tell hezekia the captayne of my people: Thus sayth þe Lorde God of Da- uid thy father: I haue herde thy prayer, and sene thy teares. And beholde, I will heale þe, so that on the thyrde daye thou shalt go vp into the house of the Lorde. And I will adde vnto thy dayes yet fyfene yere, and will de- lyuer the and this cytie out of the hāde of the kyng of Assyria, and will defende thys cy- tie for myne awne sake, and for Dauid my seruantes sake. And Isay sayde. Take a lo- pe of fygges. And they toke and layed it on the soze, and he recovered.

And hezekia sayde vnto Isay. what shalbe the sygne, that the Lorde will heale me, and that I shall go vp into the house of the Lorde the thyrde daye? Isay answered: thys sygne shalt thou haue of the Lorde, that the Lorde will do that he hath spoken. * Shall the sha- dowe go forwarde ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees? hezekia answered: it is a lyght thyng for the shadowe to go downe ten degrees. * (neither is that my desyre) but yf the shadowe go backwarde ten degrees, it is no lyght thyng. And Isay the prophete called vnto the Lorde, * and he brought the sha- dowe ten degrees backwarde by which it had gone downe in the dyall of Abaz.

* The same reason Berodach Baladan the sonne of Baladā kyng of Babilon sent letters ad a present vnto hezekia, for he had hearde, howe that hezekia was sycke. And hezekia was glad of them, and shewed them all hys treasure house syluer, golde, odoures, precious opyntmente, all the house of hys ar- moye, and all that was founde in hys trea- sures: there was nothyng in hys house, & in all his realme, that hezekia shewed the not.

And Isay the prophete came vnto kyng D hezekia, and sayde vnto hym. What sayed these men, and from whēce came they to the? And hezekia sayde: they be come from a far- re countree, euen from Babilon. And he say- de agayne: what haue they sene in thy house? hezekia answered: all the thynges that are in my house haue they sene: there is nothyng amōge my treasures, that I haue not shewed them. And Isay sayde vnto hezekia: heare the worde of the Lorde: Beholde, the dayes come, that all that is in thy house, and what soeuer thy father haue layde vp in store vnto thys daye * shalbe caried into Babilon, and nothyng shal be left sayth the Lorde. And of thy sonnes (that shall procede oute of the, and which thou shalt begette) shall they take awaye, and they shalbe chambre- lains in the palayce of the kyng of Babilon. And hezekia sayde vnto Isay: wellcome be the worde of the Lorde which thou hast spo- ken: And he sayde: shall ther not be peace and truthe in my dayes?

The remnant of the wordes that con- cerne hezekia, and all hys power, and howe he made a pole and a conduyte, and brought water into the cytie, are they not written in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Iuda: * And hezekia slepe to his fathers, * and Manasse hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The xxi. Chapter.

Manasse restoreth agayne the Idolles and after dyeth, in whose steade his sonne Acaze- deth, which is killed of hys awne seruantes. After hym raygneth Saphthul Josia, whom we ble to call Josias, or Josiah.

Manasse * was twelue yere olde, when he beganne to raygne and raygned fyfty & fyue yere in Jeru- salem: hys mothers name also was hephziba. And he dyd euill in the syght of the Lorde, euen after the abhorma- nacyons of the hethen whom the * Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. For he went and buyt vp the hyllaulters, * which hezekia hys father had destroyed. And he reared vp auters for Baal, and made Idoll groues: as dyd Ahab kyng of Israel, and worshypped all the hoste of heauen, and ser- ued them. And he buyt auters in the house of the Lorde, of which the Lorde sayde: * in Ierusalem will I put my name. And he buyt auters for all the host of heauen, euen in two courtres of the house of the Lorde. * And he offered hys sonnes in fyre, and gaue hede vnto witchcraft and socery, and mayntened workers with spretes, and tellers of fortun- es: and brought moche wyckednesse in the syght of the Lorde to angre hym.

And he put an ymage of a grone (that he had made) euen in the temple, of which the Lorde had sayde to Dauid and to Salomon hys sonne, * in thys house and in Ierusalem (which

(which I haue chosen out of all trybes of Israel) wyll I put my name for euer. Neither will I make the fete of Israel more any more out of the lande, which I gaue theyr fathers: so that they wyll obserue and do all that I haue commaunded them, and accordyng to all the lawe that my seruauit Moses commaunded them. But they hekened not: and Manasse ledde them out of the waye to do more wyckedlye then dyd the hethen people, whom the Lord destroyed befoze the chyldren of Israel.

And the Lord spake by his seruantes y prophetes, sayinge: because Manasse kyng of Iuda hath done soche abhominacions, and hath wrought more wyckedlye then all that the Amozites, which were befoze hym dyd: & hath made Iuda synne also with hys Idoles. Therefore thus sayth the Lord God of Israel. * Beholde, I wyll byynge soche euell vpon Ierusalem and Iuda, that whoso heareth of it both his eares shall tynge. And I wyll stretch ouer Ierusalem & the squaryng lyne of Samaria, and the plommet of the house of Ihab. And I wyll wyppen out Ierusalem, as a mā wyppeth a dishe, and when he hath wypped it, turneth it vpon the face downe. And I wyll leaue the remnant of myne inheritance, and deliuer them into the hande of theyr enemies, and they shall be robbed and spoiled of all their aduersaries: euen because they haue done euell in my syght, & haue angered me, fence the tyme theyr fathers came out of Egypte vnto this daye.

And Manasse shedd innocent bloude exceedinglye moche, tyll he replenished Ierusalem from corner to corner, besyde hys synne wherwith he made Iuda to synne, and to do euell in the syght of the Lord.

The rest of the wordes y concerne Manasse, and all that he dyd, and hys synne that he spured, are they not written in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Iuda? And Manasse slepte with hys fathers, and was buried in his awne house, euell in the garden of Aza: & Amon his sonne raygned in hys steade.

* Amon was. xxi. yere olde whē he beganne to raygne, and he raygned two yere in Ierusalem. Hys mothers name also was Hielemech the daughter of Harum of Iotba. And he did euell in the syght of the Lord (as his father Manasse dyd), and walked in all the waye y his father walked in: & serued the ydoles y his father serued, & worshypped the. And he forsoke the Lord God of hys fathers, & walked not in the waye of the Lord.

And the seruantes of Amon conspyred agaynst hym, and slue the kyng in hys awne house. And the people of the lande slue all the that had conspyred agaynst kyng Amon, & the people made Josia hys sonne kyng, in hys steade. The rest of the wordes that concerne Amon, what thynges he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the chronicles of the kynges of Iuda? And they buried hym in hys sepulchre, in the garden of Aza: & Josia hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The. xxi. Chapter.

After Josiah hearde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he sendeth to Eldah the prophete for counsell.

Josia was * eght yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned. xxi. yere in Ierusalem. Hys mothers name also was Jedida the daughter of Adaia of Boscath. He dyd that which is ryght in the syght of the Lord, and walked in all the wayes of Dauid his father, and bowed nether to the ryght hande or to the left.

* And it came to passe, that in the. xviii. yere of the raygne of kyng Josia, y kyng sent Saphan the sonne of Azalia the sonne of Meshai the scribe, to the house of the Lord, sayenge: * go vnto Helkia y hye Priest, that he maye somme y spuer which is brought into the house of the Lord, which the keepers of y porche haue gathered of the people, and let them deliuer it into the hande of them that do the worke, and that haue the ouerlyght of the house of the Lord: and let them geue it to them that worke in the house of the Lord (to repaie the decayed places of the temple,) euen vnto carpenters & masons, and workers vpon the walles, and for to bye tymbre and fre stone to repaie the temple. Howbeit, let no rekonynge be made with the of the monye that is deliuered into their hande, for their vse is to deale faithfully.

* And Helkia the hye preste sayd vnto Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the house of the Lord, and Helkia gaue the boke to Saphan, and he red it. And Saphan the scribe came to the kyng, and brought him worde agayne, and sayde: thy seruantes haue bestowed y monye (that was founde in the temple) & haue deliuered it vnto them that do the worke, & that haue the ouerlyght of the house of the Lord. And Saphan the scribe shewed the kyng, sayenge: Helkia the preste hath deliuered me a boke. And Saphan red in it befoze the kyng.

And it fortuned, y when the kyng had hearde y wordes of the boke of the lawe, he rent his clothes. And the kyng commaunded Helkia the Priest, & Ahikam y sonne of Saphan, and Achbor the sonne of Michaia, and Saphan the scribe, and Ashbia a seruauit of the kynges, sayenge: * go ye and enquire of the Lord for me and for the people, and for all Iuda, concernynge the wordes of this boke that is founde. For great is the wrath of the Lord that is kindled agaynst vs, because cause oure fathers haue not hekened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do accordyng vnto all that which is wyrtten therein for vs.

So Helkia the hye preste and Ahikam, Achbor, and Saphan, and Ashbia went vnto Hulda the prophetesse the wyfe of Sullā the sonne of Chikna the sonne of Harham keeper of the wardrope: whyche prophetesse dwelt in Ierusalem in the house of the doctrine, and they commoned with her. And she answered them: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel. Tell the man that sent you to me: thus sayth the Lord: beholde, I wyll byynge euell vpon this place, and on the inhabitants therof. (eue all the wordes of the boke which the kyng of Iuda hath red) because they haue forsaken me, and haue burnt incense vnto other Gods, to angre me with all the workes of theyr handes: My wrath also shall be kindled agaynst this place, and shall not be quenched.

But to the kyng of Iuda (which sent you to aske counsell of the Lord,) so shall ye saye: thus sayth the Lord God of Israel as touchynge the wordes which ye haue heard: Because thyne herte dyd melt, and because thou hast humbled thy selfe befoze me the Lord, when y heardest what I spake agaynst this place, and agaynst the inhabitants of the same (howe that they shulde be destroyed and accursed:) and hast rent thy clothes and wepte befoze me: of that also haue I hearde, sayth the Lord. Beholde therefore, I wyll reueale the vnto thy fathers, and thou shalt be put into thy grane in peace, and thyne eyes shall not se all the euell, which I wyll bringe vpon this place. And they brought the kyng worde agayne.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

Josia readeth Deuteronomie befoze the people. He putteth downe the ydoles, after he had killed the prelates therof. He kepeth passouer. He was killed in ageddo, and hys sonne Jehoahaz raygned in hys steade. After he was taken, hys sonne Jehoahaz was made kyng.

And then * the kyng sent, and there gathered vnto hym all the elders of Iuda and of Ierusalem. And the kyng went vnto the house of the Lord, with all the men of Iuda and all the inhabitours of Ierusalem, with the prelates, and prophetes and all the people both small and greate. And he red in the eares of them * all the wordes of the boke of the couenant, which was founde in the house of the Lord. And the kyng stode by a pyler * and made a conuauent befoze the Lord, that they shulde walke after the Lord, and kepe his commaundmentes, hys wytnesses, & hys statutes with all theyr herte, and all theyr soule, and make good the wordes of the sayde appoyntment that were wyrtten in the sayde boke. And all the people consented to the appoyntment.

And the kyng commaunded Helkia the hye preste, and the inferioure prelates and the keepers of the ornaments, to byynge out of the temple of the Lord, all the vesselles y were made for Baal, for the Idole groues, & for all the hoste of heauen. And he burnt the without Ierusalem in the feldest of Cedron, and caried the ashes of them into Bethel. And he put downe y ministers of Baal whom the kynges of Iuda had founded to burne incense in the * hyllaulters and cyties of Iuda, that were rounde aboute Ierusalem, and also them that burnt incense vnto Baal, to the sonne, to the mone, to the planetes, and to all the hoste of heauen. And he brought out the groue from the temple of y Lord without Ierusalem vnto the broke Cedron, and burnt it there at the broke Cedron, and stampete it to pouldre, and cast the duste therof vpon the graues of the chyldren of the people. And he brake downe the celles of the male stues that were by the house of y Lord, where the women wone hangynge for the Idole groue.

And he brought all the prelates out of the cyties of Iuda, and despyled the hyllaulters, where the prelates had burnt incense: euen fro Geba to Beerseba, and destroyed the alters of the Gates, that were in y enterynge in of the gate of Josia the gouernoure of the cite which were (as a man goeth in) on the left hande of the gate of the cite. Neuertheless the prelates of the hyllaulters came not vnto the altar of the Lord in Ierusalem, saue onlye they dyd eate of y swete breade among theyr brethren.

And he despyled * Eopheth, which is in the valeye of the chyldren of Ammon, because no man shulde offer hys sonne or hys daughter in fyre to Molech: he put downe the horses that the kynges of Israel had geuen to the sonne at the enterynge in of the house of the Lord, by the chabre of Nathan-melech the chamberlaine which was ruler of the suburbs, and burnt the charrettes of the sonne with fyre. And the alters that were on the toppe of the parloure of Aha: (which y kynges of Iuda had made) and the * altars which Manasse had made in y two courttes of the house of the Lord, dyd the kyng brake downe, and ranne thence, and cast the dust of them into the broke Cedron.

And the hyllaulters that were befoze Ierusalem on the ryght hande of the mounte Oliuete * (which Salomon the kyng of Israel had buyded for Asaroth the Idoll of the zydons, and for Chamoth the Idoll of the Moabites, and for Milchom the abhominable Idoll of y chyldren of Ammon) those the kyng despyled: and brake the ymages, and cut downe y Idoll groues, and fylled theyr places with the bones of men.

* iii. Regu. fiii. a. Worouer * the altar that was at Bethel, the hyllalter made by Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat (which made Israel synne) bothe the altar and also the hyll, he brake downe and burnt the hyllalter and stampede it to powder, and burnt y^e Idole grone. And as Josia turned hym selfe, he spied the grones that were in the mounne, and sent and fette the bones out of the grones, and burnt them vpon the altar, to polute it, accordynge to y^e worde of the Lorde that the man of God prophesied * which tolde the same wordes.

* iii. Regu. fiii. a. When he sayde: what graue stone is y^e poster that I see? And the men of the cytie tolde hym, it is the sepulchre of the man of God, wherch came from Juda, and tolde the selfe same thynges that thou hast done to the altar of Bethel. And he sayd let hym be: he that no man moue hys bones. And so hys bones were saued with y^e bones of a prophete that came out of Samaria.

And all the houses of the hyllalters in the cyties of Samaria which the kynges of Israel had made, to angre * (the Lorde) with all: those Josia put out of the waye, and dyd to them according to all the actes that he had done in Bethel. And he sacrificed all y^e preestes of the hyllalters y^e were ther euen vpon the alters, and burnt mennes bones vpon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

* ii. Para. fiii. a. And the kyng commaunderd all the people, sayng: * kepe the feast of passeouer vnto the Lorde your God * as it is wyrtten in the boke of thys couenaunt. * There was no passeouer holden lyke that, from y^e dayes of the iudges that iudged Israel, and in all the dayes of the kynges of Israel and of the kynges of Juda. In the xviij. yere of kyng Josia was this passeouer holden to the Lorde in Jerusalem.

And thereto workers with spyetes, & sothsayers, ymagis, ydoles, and all the abhominacions that were spyed in the lande of Juda and in Jerusalem, those did Josia put out of the waye, to perfourme the wordes of the lawe, which were wyrtten in the boke, that helkia the preaste founde in the house of the Lorde: lyke vnto him was there no kyng before hym, that turned to the Lorde with all hys herte, with all his soule & all hys myght accordynge to all the lawe of Moyses, nether after hym arose there any soche as he.

* iii. Regu. fiii. a. Not withstandinge the Lorde turned not fro the fearenesse of hys great wrath (wherewith he was angrie agaynst Juda) because of all the prouocacions that Manasse had prouoked hym withall. And the Lorde sayde: * I wyll put Juda also, out of my syght, as I haue done awaye Israel, and wyll cast of thys cytie Jerusalem which I haue chosen; and the house of whyche I sayde: my name shalbe there.

Therest of the wordes that concerne Josia and all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the Chronycles of the kynges of Juda?

* ii. Para. fiii. a. In hys dayes Pharaos Necho kyng of Egypte wet vpagaynst the kyng of Assyria to the ryuer of Euphrates. And kyng Josia went agaynst hym, and was slayne of hym at Magiddo, when he had sene hym. And hys seruantes caried hym deed from Magiddo, and brought hym to Jerusalem & buried hym in hys awne sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke Jehoahaz the sonne of Josia, and anoynted hym, and made hym kyng in hys fathers steade.

Jehoahaz was. xxiij. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and raygned thre monethes in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was hamiel y^e daughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd euell in the syght of y^e Lorde, accordinge to all thynges as his fathers had done. And Pharaos Necho put hym in bonds at Ribla in the lande of Hamath, that he shulde not raygne in Jerusalem, and put the lande to a tribute of an hundred talentes of syluer and a talent of golde. And Pharaos Necho made Eliakim y^e sonne of Josia kyng in the rowme of Josia his father, and turned hys name to Jehoakim, and toke Jehoahaz awaye, whych when he came to Egypte, dyed there.

And Jehoakim gaue the syluer and the golde to Pharaos: & taxed the lande, to geue the moneye accordynge to the request of Pharaos: requyringe of euery man (accordynge to theyr abylite) syluer and golde: euen of the people of the lade, to geue vnto Pharaos Necho. Jehoakim was. xxiij. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned a. xi. yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was zebuda the daughter of Bedaia of Ruma. And he dyd that which was euell in y^e syght of the Lorde, accordynge to all thinge as his fathers had done.

The. xxiii. Chapter.

Jehoakim dyeth, Jerusalem is besieged of the Babylonians. Jehoakim perished hym selfe to the kyng of Babylon. And in hys reuyme came Zedekiah, which was called zedekiah.

In hys dayes came Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon vp, and Jehoakim became hys seruant thre yere, and then turned, and rebelled agaynst hym. And the Lorde sent vpo him y^e men of warre from amonge the Caldeys, from amonge the Syrians, out of the Moabites, and from the chyldren of Ammon: and sent them agaynst Juda, to destroye it, accordynge to the sayng of the Lorde, which he spake by hys seruantes the prophetes. Oncly, at the byddynge of the Lorde happened it so to Juda, to put them out of his syght, for the synnes of Manasse, accordynge accordynge to all that he dyd: and for the innocent bloude that he shed, and spyled Jerusalem with innocent bloude: and the Lorde wolde not be reconcyled.

* ii. Para. fiii. a. Therest of the wordes that concerne Jehoakim, & all that he dyd, are they not wyrtten in the boke of the chronycles of the kynges of Juda: And so Jehoakim slepte to hys fathers: and * Jehoachin hys sonne raygned in hys steade. And the kyng of Egypt came nomore out of his lande: for the kyng of Babylō had taken fro the ryuer of Egypt vnto the ryuer of Euphrates, all y^e pertayned to the kyng of Egypte. Jehoachin was xviij. yere olde, & raygned in Jerusalem thre monethes. Hys mothers name also was Rehusa, y^e daughter of Elmatha of Jerusalem. And he dyd y^e which was euell in the syght of the Lorde, accordinge to all as hys father had done. * In that tyme came the seruantes of Nabuchadnezar kyng of Babylō vpon agaynst Jerusalem, & the cytie was beleged. And Nabuchadnezar the kyng of Babylō came agaynst the cytie: & his seruantes dyd belege it. * And Jehoachin y^e kyng of Juda came out to the kyng of Babylō, he and hys mother, hys seruantes, hys lordes, and hys chamberlaynes. And the kyng of Babylō toke hym, in the cyght yere of hys raygne.

* And he caried out thence all the treasures of the house of the Lorde, & the treasure of the kynges house: and brake all the vessels of golde, which Salomon kyng of Israel had made in the temple of the Lorde, as the Lorde had sayde. And he caried awaye all Jerusalem, and all the lordes, and all the strong men of warre, euen. x. into captiuite: and all craftes men and keepers, none remayning saue the poore common people of the lande.

And he caried awaye Jehoachin to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, his chamberlaynes, and the that were myghty in the lande: those caried he awaye into captiuite fro Jerusalem to Babylō. And all the actiue me of warre, euen. vij. and craftesmen, and porters. And all y^e were stronge and apte for warre, dyd the kyng of Babylon bringe to Babylon captiue. * And the kyng of Babylon made Mathania hys fathers brother, kyng in his steade, & chaunged hys name to zedekia.

* zedekia was. xxi. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned cleue yere in Jerusalem. Hys mothers name also was hamital the daughter of Jeremia of Libna. And he dyd euell in the syght of the Lorde, accordynge to all as Jehoachin had done. For the wrath of the Lorde was moued agaynst Jerusalem and Juda, vntyll he cast the out of hys syght. And zedekia rebelled agaynst the kyng of Babylon.

The. xxv. Chapter.

Jerusalem is besieged of Nabuchadnezar, other: wyle called, Nabuchadnezar, and it and the temple are bothe burnt. The sonnes of zedekia are slayne before hys eyes, and after are hys awne eyes put out. Juda is brought to Babylon, and after is Jehoachin exalted.

And it fortuned, * that in the nynthe yere of hys raygne, the tenth daye of the tenth moneth: Nabuchadnezar kyng of Babylon came, he and all his host agaynst Jerusalem: and pitched agaynst it, and made engynes agaynst it on euery syde. And the cytie was beleged vnto the eleuenth yere of kyng zedekia. * And the nynthe daye of the moneth, there was so greate hongre in the cytie, that there was no breed for the people of the lande.

And the cytie was broke vp: and all the men of armes fledde by nyght, by a waye thowre a gate which is betwene two walles, by the kynges garden: the Chaldees lyinge about the cytie.

And the kyng went the waye toward the playne. And the souldyers of y^e Chaldees folowed after the kyng, and toke him in the playne of Jericho, and all hys arme were scattered awaye from hym, * (and lefte hym.) So they toke the kyng, and brought hym to Nabuchadnezar the kyng of Babylō to Ribla, where they reasoned wth hym. And they slue the sonnes of zedekia before hys eyes: and he put out the eyes of zedekia, and fettered him with two chaynes, and caried hym to Babylō.

And the. vij. daye of the. v. moneth which is the. xij. yere of kyng Nabuchadnezar kyng of Babylō, came Nebusaradan a seruant of the kyng of Babylō, and chefe captayne of the men of warre, vnto Jerusalem: & burnt the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house, & all the houses of Jerusalem, & all great houses burnt he wth fyre. And all the souldiers of the Chaldees that were with the chefe captayne of the men of warre, broke downe y^e walles of Jerusalem rounde about. But the rest of the people y^e were left in the cytie, and them y^e were fledde to the kyng of Babylō, wth the remaunt of the comen people, dyd Nabusaradan the chefe captayne of the me of warre carie awaye: but the captayne of the souldyers lefte of the poore of the lande, to dresse the vynes, and to tyll the grounde.

* And the pylers of brasle that were in y^e house of the Lorde, and the sockettes, and the brasen lanatoz that was in the house of the Lorde dyd the Chaldees brake, and caried all the brasle of them to Babylō. And the pottes, thouelles, dresynge knyues, spones, and all the vessels of brasle that they minystrid in, toke they awaye. And the fyre panes, and basens, and soch thinges as were of golde, & of siluer, the toke the chefe captayne awaye: euen two pylers, one lanatoz, and the sockets which Salomon had made for the house of the Lord. The brasie of all these vessels was without waight. The height of the one pyller was .xviij. cubytes, and the heed therof was brasie, and the cubytes hye and vpon the heed was there a wyethē worke and pomegranates rounde aboute, all of brasie. And of the same fassyon was the seconde pyller, with a wyethen worke.

And the chiefe captayne of y^e mē of warre toke Sarama the chiefe preste, and zephoniah the hyest preste saue one, and the thre keepers of the holy thynges. And out of the cite he toke a chamberlayne, that had the ouerlight of the men of warre, and .v. men of the that were euer in y^e kynges presence, which were founde in the cite: and him that was scribe to the captayne of the host, which brought out the people of the lāde to warre, and the skozē men of the people of the lande, y^e were founde in the cite. And Nebusaradan the chiefe captayne of the mē of warre toke these, and brought them to the kyng of Babylon to Ribla. And the kyng of Babylon smote them, and slue them at Ribla in the hande of Hanath. And so Juda was carped awaye out of the lande.

Howebeit, there remayned people in the lande of Juda, whom Nebuchadnezar kyng of Babylon lefte, & made Sedalia the sonne of Abiam the sonne of Saphan ruler ouer the. And all the captaynes of the souldyers, and other men hearde, y^e the kyng of Babylon had made Sedalia gouernour: and there came to Sedalia to Nazphah: Ismael the sonne of Gedalia, Johanna the sonne of Iarea, Sarama the sonne of Chanhumeth y^e Metophaite, and Jazania the sonne of Maachati, & thep^r men. And Sedalia swore to them and to the mē whom they had with them, and sayde vnto the: feare not ye because ye are the seruantes of the caldees, dwell in the lande, and serue the kinge of Babilon, and ye shal be well.

But it chaunced in the seuenth moneth, that Ismael the sonne of Nethania the sonne of Elisama, of the kynges bloude, came, and ten men with hym, and smote Gedalia, that he dyed: and so dyd he the Jewes and y^e Chaldee that were with hym at Mizpa.

And all the people, bothe small and grete, and the captaynes of warre arose, and came to Egypte: for they were afrayd of the Chaldee. Notwithstandyng yet in the seuen and thyrtye pere after Jehoachin kyng of Juda was carped awaye the seuen and twentye dawe of the twelue moneth, Cusimeroch kyng of Babylō, the same peare y^e he began to raygne, dyd lyfte vp the heade of Jehoachin kyng of Juda out of the prison, and spake kyndely to hym, and set hym seate aboute the seate of the kynges that were with hym in Babylon: and chaunged hym prison garmentes. And he dyd euer cate breed befoze hym, all the dayes of hym lyfe. Hys porcyon was a conynuall porcyon that was assigned hym of the kyng, euer y dawe a certayne, as longe as he lyued.

* Gen. xlii. a Exo. vi. b.
Num. xxi. a.

Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel: for asmoche as he was the eldest. * and had begotten by his fathers bedd, his byrthright was geuen vnto the sonnes of Joseph the sonne of Israel. Howbeit, the genealogie is not reckoned after this byrthright. For Juda, be penyapled aboue his brethren, and of this trybe came schefe, and the byrthright was geuen to Joseph. The sonnes then of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel were: Henoeh, Phalu, hebron and Charni.

The sonnes of Joel: Samaiah: his sonne, Gog his sonne, and Sembi his sonne, Micah his sonne, Reata his sonne, and Saal his sonne, Beera his sonne. Whome Thiglath Pilneser kynge of Assyria carryed awaye: for he was a great lord among the Rubenites. And when his brethren in theyr kynredes, reckoned the genealogie of theyr generacyon: Jeiel and zachariah were the chiefe.

And Saal the sonne of Azan, the sonne of Sema, the sonne of Joel, dwelt in Aroer: and so forth vnto Bebo and Baalmicon. And eastwarde, he inhabited vnto the entrynge in of the wyldernesse, from the ryuer Euphrates: for they had moche catell in the lande of Gilead.

And in the dayes of Saul, they warred with the Hagarites, which were ouerthrowen into theyr hande. And they dwelte in theyr tentes thowout all the east lande of Gilgal.

And the chyldren of Gad dwelte ouer against them in the lande of Basan, euen vnto Saleha. And in Basan, Joel was schefe, and Sapham the nexte, then Janai and Saphat. And they brethren of the household of theyr fathers, were Michael, Meosuesam, Seba, Jozai, Jahcan, zia, Eber, Senen. These are the chyldren of Abihail the sonne of Huri, the sonne of Jerobah, the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Michael, the sonne of Jesilai, the sonne of Jahdo, the sonne of Suz. Abi (the sonne of Abdiel, the sonne of Sani) was a captayne of the household of theyr fathers. And they dwelt in Gilead, in Basan, and in her townes, and in all the suburbs of Sharon, and in theyr borders.

All these were reckoned by kynredes in the dayes of Jotham kynge of Juda, and in the dayes of Jeroboam kynge of Israel. The sonnes of Ruben, and of Gad, and of halfe the trybe of Manasse, were fyghtynge men, and able to beare shyld and swerde, and to shote with bowe, excercysed in warre, euen foure and fourty thousande, seuen hundred and thyskore, that wente out to the warre. And they fought with the Hagarites, with Jetur, Nephtis and Modab. And they were helped of the Lorde against the, and the Hagarites were deliuered into their hande, and so were all that were with them. For they cryed to God in the battayll, and he hearded them, because they put theyr trust in hym. And they toke of theyr catell and of theyr camels, fyfthe thousande, and two hundred and fyfthe thousande shepe, and two thousande asses, and of the soules of men, an hundred thousande: and there fell many wounded, because of warre was of God. And they dwelt in theyr steades, vntill the tyme that they were carryed awaye.

And the chyldren of the halfe trybe of Manasse dwelt in the lande, from Basan vnto Baal Hermon, and Semir, and vnto mount Hermon: for they were growne to a greete multitude. And these were the heedes of the householdes of theyr fathers: Ephraim, and Jeeli, Eliel and Azriel, Jeremia and Hodania, and Jaohdiel, stronge men and valeaunt, famous men, and heedes of the householdes of theyr fathers.

And they transgressed agaynst the God of theyr fathers, and went a whooringe after the goddesses of the people of the land, whiche God destroyed before them: and God stered by the spere of Phul kynge of Assyria, and the spere of Thiglath Pilneser kynge of Assyria, and carryed them awaye: euen the Rubenites, the Gaddites, and the halfe trybe of Manasse, and brought them vnto Halah, Habor, Hara: and to the ryuer Gozan, vnto this daye.

The x. Chapter.

The battell of Saul agaynst the Philistines: in which he dyeth, and hys sonnes also.

And the Philistines fought agaynst Israel. * And the me of Israel fled before the Philistines, & were overthrowen & wounded in Mount Gilboa. And y^e Philistines folowed, & were scarce after Saul & his sonnes. & the Philistines smote Ichonathan & Abinadab & Malchisua the sonnes of Saul: And the battell went loze agaynst Saul.

Saul, & the archers founde hym, and he was wounded of shoters. Then sayde Saul to his wep^e bearer: drawe thy swerde, and thrust me thorow therwith, that these uncirciscid come not and do me shame. But hys wep^e bearer wolde not, for he feared excedynglye. So Saul caught a swerde, and fell vpon it. And when his harnessbearer sawe that Saul was deed, he fell on a swerde also and dyed.

And thus Saul and his thre sonnes, and all they of hys house dyed together. And whē all the men of Israel that were in the valeye, sawe howe they fled, and that Saul and his sonnes were deed, they forsoke they^e cyties and ranne awaye, and the Philistines came, and dwelt in them.

* And it fortuned that on the morowe when the Philistines came to stripe the deed bodies they founde Saul & hys sonnes overthrowen in mount Gilboa. And when they had stript hym, they toke hys heed, and hys harness, and sent them into the lande of the Philistines rounde aboute to shewe the vnto they^e Idols, and to the people. And they put his harness in the house of they^e God, & set vpon hys heade in the temple of Dagon.

And when all they of Jabes in Gilead hearde all that the Philistines had done to Saul: they arose (all the strongest of them) and set awaye the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sonnes, and brought them to Jabes, and buried the bones of them vnder an oke in Jabes and fasted seven dayes.

So Saul dyed for hys trespass that he trespassed agaynst the Lorde, in y^e he kept not the worde of the Lorde, and in that he sought and asked counsell of a womā that wrought with a spete, and asked not of y^e Lorde. And therfore he shew hym, and turned the kyngdome vnto David the sonne of Isai.

The xi. Chapter.

After the death of Saul is David appointed in Hebron. The Jebusites rebell agaynst David, fro which he taketh the towne of Syon. Hys men are nobryd.

When all Israel gathered them selues to David vnto hebron * sayenge: Behold, we be thy bones and thy fleshe. And mozeouer in tyme past, euen when Saul was kyng, thou leddest Israel out & in. And the Lorde thy God sayde vnto thee: thou shalt fede my people Israel, and thou shalt be captayne ouer my people Israel. Therfore came all the elders of Israel to the kyng, to hebron, and David made a councail with them in hebron, before the Lorde. And they annoynted David kyng ouer Israel, & accordyng to the worde of the Lorde by the hande of Samuel.

And David and all Israel went to Jerusalem, which is Jebus: where as were y^e Jebusites, the enabiteres of the lande. And the enabiteres of Jebus sayde to David: thou comest not here. Neuertheless, David wanne the castell of Syon, which is called the cytie of David. And David: * sayde, whosoeuer smyteth the Jebusites fyrst, shalbe the principall captayne and a Lorde. So, Joab the sonne of Zaruia went fyrst vp, and was made the cheff captayne. And David dwelt in the castell Syon, and therfore they called it the cytie of David. And he buylt y^e cytie on euery syde, euen from Billo rounde about, and Joab repared y^e rest of the cytie. And David prospered, and waxed greate, and the Lorde of hostes was with hym.

* These are the principall men of power whom David had, and that claue to hym in hys kyngdome with all Israel, to make hym kyng, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde vnto Israel. And this is the nombre of the myghtye men whom David had: Josobeam the sonne of Bachmoni the cheff amonge thretye: he lyfte vpon hys spere agaynst thre hundred, and wounded them at one tyme.

After him was Eleazar his vnckles sone an Ahothite, which was one of the thre myghtyest. He was with David at Basdammun, & there the Philistines were gathered together to battell. And there was there a parrell of grounde full of barley, and the people fled before the Philistines. And they, the thre afore sayde, kept forth into the middes of the felde, and saued it from burnynge and shew the Philistines. And the Lorde gaue a great victorie.

And the thre of the thretye cheff captaynes went to a rocke to David, into the caue Adullam. And the hoste of the Philistines abode in the valeye of Rephaim. And when David was in the holde, y^e Philistines watch was at Bethlehem y^e same tyme. And David longed, & sayde: * Oh that one wolde geue me dryncke of the water of the well that is at the gate at Bethlehe. And the thre brake thorowe the host of the Philistines, and drewe water out of the well, that was by the gate at Bethlehe: & toke it, and brought it to David. Neuertheless, David wolde not drynke of it, but rather offered it to the Lorde, and sayde: my God forbyd it me, that I shulde do this thynge. Shall I drynke the bloude of these men, that haue put they^e lyues in Iopardye: (for with the Iopardye of they^e lyues they brought it) therfore he wolde not drynke it. And this did these thre myghtyest.

And Abisai the brother of Joab: he also was captayne amonge thre: for he lyfte vpon hys spere agaynst thre hundred, & wounded them, and had a name amonge the thre: Pee amonge thre, he was moze honorable then y^e two, for he was their captayne. howbeit, he attayned not vnto the cytie.

Banaia the sonne of Jehoiada (the sonne of a very stronge man) dyd greater actes then then Abimelech: for he slue two strong Lyons of Moab, and went downe, and slue a Lyon in a pyntime of snowe. And he slue an Egyptian, whose stature was euen spue cubytes longe, & in the Egyptians hande was a speare lyke a weavers beame. And the other went downe to hym with a waster, and plucked yf speare out of the Egyptians hande, and slue hym wth his awne speare. Soche thynges dyd Banai the sone of Jehoiada, & had yf name amonge the thre myghtyest, & was honorable amonge thurtie: but attayned not vnto yf (first) thre. And David made him of hys counsell.

The other me of armes were these: Asahel yf brother of Joab, Elhanan hys vnckles sone of Bethlehem. Sammoth the Harodite, Helez the Pelonite: Ira the sone of Jekes yf the Gibeonite, Abieser the Anathothite: Sibacai the Husathite, Iai the Thobite: Maharai yf the Bethphathite, Heier the sone of Baana yf the Bethphathite. Ithai the sone of Ribai of Gibeon that pertayneth to the children of Benjamin: Benai the Whirathomite: Hurai of the ryuers of Gaas, Abiel the Arbathite: Azmabeth the Baharumite, Elhahab the Saalbonite. The sonnes of Hassem the Gersonite, Jonathan the sone of Sage, an Hararite. Ahiam the sone of Sacar the Hararite, Eliphal the sone of Ur. Hephher the Mecherathite, Abia the Pelonite: Hezro yf Carmelite, Naari yf sone of Ezrai: Joel yf brother of Nathan: Abihah the sone of Huri: Zelegah the Ammonite, Naharai a Gerothite the bearer of the harness of Joab the sone of Zerui: Ira the Jithite, & Gareb a Jethuite. Uria the Hethite, and Zabab the sone of Abial: Adina the sone of Siza a Rubenite, a captayne of the Rubenites, and thyrtye wth him. Hanan the sone of Maacah, and Josaphat a Githanite: Uria an Astherathite: Sama and Jehiel the sonnes of Hothan an Aroerite: Jediel the sone of Zimri, and Johahys brother an Hathizite. Eliel a Mahanpte, Teribai & Josai the sonnes of Elnaam, and Jithma a Moabite. Eliel and Obed, and Jauiel a Melobate.

The. xii. Chapter.

What they were that went with David when he fledde from Saul.

These are they that came to David to ziklag, whyle he yet kept hym selfe close, because of Saul yf sone of Cis: and they were very stronge helpers in battell. They were weapened with bowes, & coulde hulle stones with the ryght hande and with the lyft and shote arrowes oute of a bowe, & were of Sauls brethren, eue of Benjamin. The cheffest were Abieser, and Joas yf sonnes of Simaa a Gibeonite, and Jeziel and Pelet the sonnes of Asmaneth. Beracah and Jehu of Anathoth. And Asmaia a gilbeonite a migh-tye man amonge thyrtye, and moze then the thyrtye. Jeremias, Jehaziel, Johanan, & Josabab of Gedor. Eleusai, Jerimoth Bealia Semaria, and Seaphatia, the Haraphites. Elcana, Jekia, Azrael, Jozer, Josheam Hakozim. Joia and Jhabiah the sonnes of Jeroram of Gedub.

And of the Gadites there leparated them selues, some vnto David into the holde of yf wylberness, men of myghte, and men apte for warre, & yf coulde hadle shylde and speare, whose faces were lyke the faces of Lions, and they were as swyfte as the Rooses in the mountaynes: Ezer the fyrst, Obdia the secōde, & Eliab the thyrde, Asmiana the fourth, Jeremia the fyfte. Bethai the syxte, Eliel the seuenth, Johanan the eyght, Elisabab the nynt, Jeremia the tenth, and Nachbaonai the eleuenth. These were of yf sonnes of Gad, and were captaynes ouer the men of warre, the small pursued an hundred, and the great a thousande. These are they that went ouer Jordan in the fyrst moneth when he had fylled ouer all hys banckes. And they put to flyght all them of the valeye both towarde the East and Weste.

And there came of the chyldren of Benjamin and Juda to the holde vnto David. And David wet out to mete them and answered, and sayde vnto the, If ye be come peasabyle vnto me, to helpe me, myne hert shalbe knytt vnto you. But and yf you come to betraye me to myne aduersaryes (seyng ther is no wyckednes in myne handes) the God of oure fathers loke thereon and rebuke it. And the saryte came vpon Amasai which was the chefe amonge thyrtye, and he sayde, thyne are we David, and on thy syde thou sone of Isai: * Peace, peace be vnto the, and peace be to thyne helpers, for thy God is thyme helpe. Then David receaued them, and made them heedes of compaynes of the men of warre.

And there fell some of Manasse to David when he came with the Philistines agaynst Saul to battell, * but they helped them not for yf Lordes of the Philistines toke aduysment and sent hym awaye agayne sayng he wyl fall to hys Waster Saul to the iopardie of oure heedes. As he went to ziklag, there fell to hym of Manasse: Adna Josadad, Jediel, Michael, Josabab, Elihu and zilthai, heedes of the thousandes that were of Manasse. And they holpe David agaynst the rousers. For they were all myghtie me of warre, and captaynes in the hoost. For at that tyme there came one or other to David dape by dape to helpe hym: vntyll it was a greate hoost, lyke the hooste of God.

And this is the nobze of the chefe captaynes that were prepared to battell, and came to David to hebron, to turne the kyngdome of Saul of Saul to hym, accordyng to the worde of the Lorde.

The chyldren of Juda that bare shylde & speare, were syxe thousande and eyght hundred ready prepared to yf warre. Of the chyldren of Simeon, men of myght to warre, seuen thousande and one hundred. Of the chyldren of Levi, foure thousande and syxe hundred. And Jehoiada was the chefe of them of Aaron, and with him thre thousande and seuen hundred. And zadock a yonge man strong and valaunt & of his fathers household. xxi. captaynes. And of the children of Benjamin the brethren of Saul, thre thousande. And a greate parte of them dyd (vnto that tyme) folowe the house of Saul.

And of the children of Ephraim. x. thousande & eyght hundred myghte men of warre and famous men in the household of their fathers. And of the halfe trybe of Manasse xviij. thousande, which were appoynted by name to come and make David kyng. And of the chyldren of Issacar, which were men yf had vnderstandyng in the ryght tyme, to knowe (howe to commaunde) what Israel ought to do. The heedes of them were two hundred and all their brethren were at their wyll. And of zabulō that went out to the battayll and proceeded forth to the warre, wth all maner of instrumentes of warre, fyfte thousand that were prepared to the warre, without anye dublenesse of hart. And of Nephtali a thousande captaynes, and with them (with shylde & speare) xxxviij. thousande. And of Dan prepared to battell. xviij. thousande & syxe hundred. And of Aser that went out to the warre, & kepte the forefront of the batell, fourtye thousand. And of yf other syde of Jordan, of yf Rubenites, and Gadites & of the halfe tribe of Manasse, with all maner of instrumentes of warre, an hundred & twentye thousande.

All these were men of warre, keepyng the forefront of the batell with perfect hart, and came to hebron to make David kyng ouer all Israel. And all the rest of Israel was of one accorde, to make David king. And there they were with David thre dayes, eatyng and drychking: for they brethren had prepared for them. Mozeouer they that were nye them, vntyll Issacar, zabulō and Nephtali, brought breade on Asses, Camels, Mules, & oxen, and meate: floure, fygges, raisyns, wyne and oyle, oxen, and shepe aboundantlie. For there was ioye in Israel.

The. xiii. Chapter.

The Arcke is brought agayne from Kariath Jarim to Ierusalem. Uria (otherwise called Othi) dyeth.

And David counceled with the capitaynes of thousandes and hundredes, & with all yf Lordes, and sayd vnto all the congregacyon of Israel: If it seme you good, and to be of the Lorde oure God, we wyl take and sende vnto oure brethren that are left in all the lāde of Israel, & with them also, to the prestes and Lewites which are in their cyties & Suburbes, togather the together vnto vs. And we wyl byrnye agayne yf Arcke of the Lorde to vs: for we regarded it not in the dayes of Saul. And all the cōgregaciō was cōtent that he shulde do so, for the thyng semed good in yf eyes of all the people.

So David gathered all Israel together from Sihor in Egypte, vnto yf entryng of hemath, to bringe the arcke of the Lorde from Kariath Jarim. And David went wth all Israel to an hys place towarde Kariath Jarim, that was in Juda, to fet thence the arcke of the Lord God, that dwelleth betwē the Cherubes: where hys name is called on. And they caried the Arcke of God in a newe cartte out of yf house of Abinadab. And Uria & hys brother gupped yf cartte. And David & all Israel played before the arcke of God wth all they myght, with synnyng, and harpes, psalteries, & tymbrelles and trompettes. And when they came vnto the thre. lpyng flowze of Chidon, Uria put forth his hande to holde the arcke, for the oxen: * beynge a litle wycke. It was bled. And the Lorde was wroth with Uria, and smote hym, because he put hys hande to the arcke. And there he dyed before God. And David was out of quyetie, because the Lorde had rent a rent in Uria, & he called the name of that place: yf retyng of Uria vnto this dape. And David was afrayde of God that dape sayng: howe shall I bringe the arcke of God home to me? And so David brought not the arcke home to hym to yf cytie of David: But caried it into the house of Obededom a Gethite. And the arcke of God remayned with Obededom, euen in hys house, thre monethes. And he blessed the house of Obededom and all that he had.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

Uria smytheth moze and woorkmen to David which hath two victories of the Philistines.

Shyram the kyng of Tyre sent messengers to David & tymbze of Cedar trees, with masons and carpenters, to buylde hym an house. And David perceaued, that the Lorde had confirmed hym kyng vpon Israel, and that hys kyngdome was lyfte vp on hys, because of hys people Israel. And David toke yet mo wyues at Ierusalem, and begat mo sonnes and daughters. These are the names of hys chyldren, which were bozne vnto him at Ierusalem: Samua, Sobab, Nathan and Shalomon: Ribhar, Elisua and Eliphalet, Nogga, Nepheg and Japhia. Elisama, Beruada and Eliphalet.

And when the Philistines heard yf David was anoynted kyng vpon all Israel, all the Philistines

Philistines went vnto seke Dauid. And Dauid heard of it, and went oute agaynst them. And the Philistines came in, & prained the rowe the valey of Rephaim. And Dauid asked counsell at God saying: Shall I go agaynst the Philistines, and wylt thou deliuer them into myne hande? And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: go vp, for I wyl deliuer the into thine hande. And so they came vp to Baal Perazim: & Dauid smote them there. And Dauid sayd: God hath deuised myne enemies with myne hande, as a man wolde druyde water. And therefore they called the name of that place Baal Perazim. And whā they had leste they gods there, Dauid gaue a commandment, and they were burnt with fyre.

And the Philistines came together agayne & rushed into y valley. And Dauid asked agayne at God. And God sayde to hym: go not vp after the, but turne awaye from the, that thou mayest come vpon them ouer agaynst the peccetres. And when thou hearest a sound go in the toppes of the peccetres, the go out to battell: for God is gone forth before the, to smyte the hoste of the Philistines. Dauid therfore byd as God commaunded him: & they smote the hoste of the Philistines, fro Gibron to Gazer. And y fame of Dauid went out into all landes, and the Lorde made all nacyns feare hym.

The xv. Chapter.

The Leuites dynged the Arcke agayne. Dauid delyng before it, is deliued of his wyle wyche.

And Dauid made hym houses in Sep-tic of Dauid, and prepared a place for the arcke of God, pytched for it a tent. Then Dauid sayde the arcke of God oughe not to be carped but of the Leuites. For them hath the Lorde chosen to beare the arcke of the Lorde, and to minister vnto hym for euer. And Dauid gathered all Israel together to Jerusalem, to fetch the arcke of the Lorde vnto hys place which he had ordeyned for it. And Dauid brought together the chyldren of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the sonnes of Cabath was Ariel the chefe, and of hys brethren there were an hundred and. xx. Of the chyldren of Merari: Asai the chefe, and of hys brethren two hundred and. xx. Of the sonnes of Gerson: Joel the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and thyrtye. Of the chyldren of Elizapan: Semai the chefe, and of hys brethren two hundred. Of the sonnes of Iehozabab: Eliel the chefe, and of hys brethren. lxxx. Of the sonnes of Uzziel: Aminadab the chefe, and of hys brethren an hundred and twelue.

And Dauid called Zadock and Abiathar the prestes, and the Leuites, Uzziel, Asai, Joel, Semai, Eliel and Aminadab: & sayde vnto them: ye that are the principall fathers of the Leuites, se that ye be holy with poure brethren, that ye maye bringe in the Arcke of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto the place that I haue prepared for it. For because ye were not there at the fyrst, y Lorde oure God made a rent amonge vs, for that we sought hym not as the falsypon ought to be. So the prestes and the Leuites sanctified them selues, to sett the Arcke of the Lorde God of Israel. And the chyldren of the Leuites bare the Arcke of God, vpon theyr shoulders with staves theron, as Moyses commaunded accordyng to the worde of the Lorde.

And Dauid spake to the chefe heedes of y Leuites, that they shulde appoynte certayne of theyr brethren to syng with instrumentes of Musike, psalteries, harpes and symbales that they might make a sounde, and to syng on hys with Joyfulness: And y Leuites appoynted Heman the sonne of Joel: and (of his brethren) Asaph the sonne of Berechiah: And of the sonnes of Merari and of theyr brethren Ethan the sonne of Cusaihu. And with the theyr brethren of the secōde degree: zacharia, Ben, Jaaziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Benaiahu, Maasiah, Matthatiahu, Eliphalehu, Mikniahu, Obed Edom, & Jaiel, porters. So Heman, Asaph & Ethan the syngers made a sounde with symbales of brasse. And zacharia, Aziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Unni, Eliab, Maasalah and Banalahu played with psalteries on an Alamoth. Nathathahu, Eliphalehu, Mikniahu, Obed Edom, Jiel, and Azaziah played vpon harpes an eyght aboue, with courage. And Chenaniahu the chefe of the Leuites, was master of the songe, for he taught other to syng, because he was a man of vnderstandyng.

Berecia and Eleasa kepte the doze of the Arcke. And Secaniahu, Jehosaphat, Athanah, Amasai, zachariahu, Banalahu & Eliezer the prestes byd blowe with trompettes before the Arcke of God. And Obed Edom and Jehia were keepers of y doze of the arcke.

* And Dauid and the elders of Israel and the capitaynes ouer thousandes, went to fet the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde out of the house of Obed Edom with gladnes. And when God helped the leuites, that bare the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde, they offered seven oxen, and seven rammes. And Dauid had on hym a linnen garment, lyke as had also all the Leuites that bare the Arcke, and so had the syngers, and Chenania y ruler of the songe, with the syngers. And Dauid had vpon hym an Ephod of linnen. And all they of Israel brought the Arcke of the Lordes couenaunt with howyng, and blowyng of the shawme and trompettes: makynge a noyse with symbales, psalteries, and harpes.

And as the Arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came into the cytie of Dauid, Michol chol the daughter of Saul, lokyng out at a wyndowe, sawe kyng Dauid dawnsyng and playng, and she deliued hym in her herte.

The xvi. Chapter.

Dauid ordeyned Asaph and hys brethren, to minister before the Lorde. He hym self praiseth the Lorde God of Israel.

They brought in y arcke of God and set it in the myddes of the tent that Dauid pytched for it. And they offered burnt sacrifices and peace offerynges before God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offeryng the burnt offerynges and peace offerynges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde. And he dealt to all Israel (both man & woman) a cracknell of breade, and a good pice of fleshe, and a flackett of wyne.

And he appoynted certen of the Leuites to minstre before the Lorde, & to repete, & to thanke and prayse the Lorde God of Israel. And Asaph was the chefe, & next to hym zacharia, Jiel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Nathathia, Eliab, Benai, * Obed Edom, & Jiel with psalteries & harpes. But Asaph made a sounde with symbales. Banalahu & Jaziel prestes blew w trompettes continuallye before the Arcke of the couenaunt of God.

And that same tyme Dauid did appoynte cheselye to thanke the Lorde, by Asaph & hys brethren. * O geue thākes vnto the Lorde, call vpon hys name, make hys actes knowe amonge the people.

Syng vnto him & playe vnto him: talke of all hys wonderfull dedes. Reioyce in hys holy name: let the hertes of the that seke the Lorde, be glad. Seke the Lorde and hys strength: Seke hys presence allwaye.

Remembre his maruelles which he byd, and hys wonders, & the iudgements of hys mouth. The seed of Israel are hys seruantes: the chyldren of Jacob are hys chosen. He is the Lorde oure God: in all landes are hys iudgements. Thynke on hys appoyntment for euer, (and on the worde which he commaunded to a thousande generacions.) Which he made with Abraham, and of hys othe to Isahac: which he set before Jacob for a decree, and to Israel for an euerylastyng couenaunt, sayng: to the wyl I geue the lande of Canaa, to be the porcyon of your enheritaunce. When you were fewe and smalle in nombre, and sojourners therein. And they walked from nacyon to nacyon, and fro one kyngdome to another people. He suffered no man to do them wronge: but rebuked, euen kynges for theyr sakes. Touche not myne appointed, and do my prophetes no harme. * Syng vnto the Lorde all the erthe: and shewe from daye to daye hys Saluacyon.

Tell of hys glorie amonge the heithen: his wonderfull dedes amonge all nacyns.

For greates is the Lorde, and worthy to be prayled exceedyngly: he is to be feared aboue all Gods.

For all the Gods of the people are of no value: But the Lorde made heauen.

Prayse and honoure are in hys presence: strength and gladnes are in hys place.

Ascrybe vnto the Lorde ye hundredes of people, Ascrybe to the Lorde, glorie and dominion. Ascrybe vnto the Lorde, the glorie due vnto hys name: byyng sacrifices, and come before hym, and worshippe the Lorde with holy honour.

Let all the erthe feare hym, all though the compase of y erthe be so stablyshed that it cannot be moued: let the heauens reioyse, and let the erthe be glad, and lett men tell among the nacyns, that the Lorde is kyng.

Let the see thunder and the fulmince therof lett the feldes reioyse, and all that is therein.

Then shall the trees of the wood reioyse at the presence of the Lorde, because he commaunded to iudge the erth. O geue thākes vnto the Lorde, for he is good, for hys mercy endureth euer: and saye ye: (sane vs O God) of oure saluacion, geather vs to gether, and deliuer vs fro amonge the heithen, that we maye geue thanks to thy holy name, & triumphe in the prayse of the. Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel for euer & euer, and let all people saye Amen, and prayse the Lorde.

And so, he leste there before the arcke of y Lordes couenaunt, Asaph & hys brethren, to minstre before the Arcke continually, in such thynges as were to be done daye by daye, (and that by theyr courses.) And Obed Edom & hys brethren, thre score and eyght, and Obed Edom the sonne of Jeduthun, and Hofa were apoynted to be porters. And zadock y prest and hys brethren the prestes, were before y tabernacle of y Lorde, in the hys place y was at Gibro, to offer burnt offerynges vnto the Lorde, vnto the burnt offering aultare perpetuallye, in the mornyng and euenyng, accordyng to all y which is wrytten in the lawe of the Lorde, which he commaunded Israel. And with them were Heman & Jeduthun, & other that were chose (whose names were exprest) to geue thanks to the Lorde, y his mercy lasteth euer. And with them byd Heman and Jeduthun, syng with the trompettes & symbales, symboles makynge a swete melody with instrumentes of Musyke and godly songes. And the sonnes of Jeduthun were porters. And all the people departed, euerp man to hys house: and Dauid returned to blesse hys house.

The. xvii. Chapter.

Dauid is forbidden to buyde an house vnto the Lorde. Chyrl is promysed vnder the figure of Salomon.

And it fortuned þ whan Dauid dwelt in hys house, he sayde to Nathan the prophete: lo, I dwell in * an house of Cedar tree: but the Arke of the Lordes couenant remaineth vnder curtaynes. And Nathan sayd to Dauid: do all that is in thyne herte, for God is with the.

And the same nyght it fortuned that the worde of God came to Nathan, sayinge: go and tell Dauid my seruauant, thus sayth the Lorde, thou shalt not buyde me an house to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house sence the daye that I brought out the chyldren of Israel vnto thys daye: but haue gone from tent to tent, and from one habitacyon to another. And wherfouer I haue walked wyth all Israel, spake I euer one worde to anye of the iudges of Israel (whom I commaunded to fede my people, sayinge: why haue ye not buyt me an house of Cedar tree? Nowe therefore, thus shalt þ saye vnto my seruauant Dauid: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I toke the out of the pastures whan thou wentest after shepe, that thou shuldest be captayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue bene w the whither fouer thou hast walked, & haue weded out all thyne enemyes out of thy sight & haue made þ a name, lyke þ name * (of one) of the greatest men that are in the erthe. And I haue ordeyned a place for my people Israel and made it faste, so that nowe they maye dwell in theyr place, and moue nomore. Neither shall the chyldren of wyckednesse vex them any moare as at the begynnyng. And sence the tyme that I commaunded iudges to be ouer my people Israel, I haue subdued all thyne enemyes, and I tolde the, that the Lorde wolde buyde the an house.

Thys also shall come to passe: when thy dayes be expired, þ thou must go vnto thy fathers, I wyll raise vp thy seed after þ which shalbe of thy sonnes, and I wyll prepare for hym the kyngdome. He shall buyde me an house, and I wyll stablish his seate for euer. I wyll be hys father, and he shalbe my sonne, and I wyll not take my mercy awaye from hym, as I toke it from hym that was before the. But I wyll sett hym in myne house and in my kyngdome for euer, and hys seate shalbe sure for euer moze.

According to all these wordes, and accordyng to all thys visyō, dyd Nathā tell kinge

Dauid. And Dauid the kynge came & sat before the Lorde, & sayde: what am I (O Lorde God,) and what is myne house hold, that thou hast promoted me thus farre? And yet thys semed lyttel in thyne eyes, O God: But thou hast also spoken of thy seruantes house for a greate whyple to come: and hast looked vpon me as vpon a man of hye degree (O Lorde God.) What shall Dauid desyre moze of the for the honoure of thy seruauit? For thou hast knowen thy seruauit: O Lorde for thy seruantes sake, en accordyng to thyne awne hert hast thou done all thys magnificence, to shewe all great thynges. Lorde, there is none lyke the, neither is there anye God saue thou, accordyng to all that we haue hearde w oure eares. Moreover, what nation on the erthis lyke thy people Israel, to whom God hath vouchsafed to come and redeme the to be hys awne people, and to make the a name of excellencye and terribleness, with castyng out nacyns from before thy people, who thou hast deliuered out of Egypte?

Thy people of Israel dydest thou make thynne awne people for euer, and thou becomest theyr God. Therefore nowe Lorde, let the thyng that thou hast spoken concernyng thy seruauit and hys house, be true for euer, that thou do as thou hast sayde: let it come to passe, that thy name maye be magnified for euer, that it maye be sayde: the Lorde of hostes is the God of Israel (en the God of Israel) & the house of Dauid thy seruauit endureth stable before the. For thou (O my God) hast tolde thy seruauit, þ thou wylt buyde him an house. And therefore thy seruauit hath founde in hys hert to praye before the. And nowe Lorde, thou art God, and hast promysed thys goodnesse vnto thy seruauit. Nowe therefore, let it be thy pleasure to blesse þ house of thy seruauit, that it maye contynue before the for euer. For whom thou blessest (O Lorde) the same is blessed for euer.

The. xviii. Chapter.

The Battelles of Dauid agaynst the Philistines.

And after this it fortuned, þ Dauid smote the Philistines, and subdued them, & toke Geth the townes þ * longed therto, out of the hande of the Philistines. And he smote Moab, and the Moabites became Dauids seruantes, and payde hym tribute. And Dauid smote Hadarezer kynge of zoba vnto Hamath, as he went to stablish hys dominion by the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke from hym a thousande charettes, & seuen thousande horse men, & twelue thousand foremen, & lained all þ charett horses, & refered of them an hundred charettes. And whē the Syrians of Damasco came to helpe Hadarezer kynge of zoba, Dauid slue of the Syrians. xxi. thousande, and Dauid subdued subdued Syria Damasco: And the Syrians became Dauids seruantes, & brought hym tribute. And the Lorde preferred Dauid in all that he went to.

And Dauid toke þ sheldes of golde that were on the seruantes of Hadarezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. And fro Gebath & from Chun (cyties of Hadarezer) brought Dauid exceedynge moche brasle. Wher w Salomon made þ brasen lauatorye, * the pillers, & the vesselles of brasle.

And when Cou kynge of Hemath, heard how Dauid had beaten all the strength of Hadarezer kynge of zoba, he sent Haduran his sonne to kynge Dauid, to make peace w hym & to blesse hym, because he had fought agaynst Hadarezer, & beaten him (for Cou had warred w Hadarezer) & Dauid brought, all manner of Jewelles of golde, syluer and brasle w hym. And kynge Dauid dedicated them vnto the Lorde, with þ syluer & gold þ he brought from all nacyns, from Edom, from Moab, from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Philistines, & from Amalec. And Abisai þ sonne of zerna slue of the Edomites in the salt valeye. xvi. thousande, and put Soudiars in Edom, and all the Edomites became Dauids seruantes. Thus the Lorde kepte Dauid in all þ he toke in hāde.

And Dauid raygned ouer all Israel, & executed iudgemēt and ryghteousnes amonge all his people. And Joab þ sonne of zaruia was ouer the hoste, and Jehosaphat the sonne of Ahitub recorder, and Zadock the sonne of Ahitub and Abimelech þ sonne of Abiathar were þ preastes, and Sausa was scribe, and Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada was ouer the Cherethites, and the Phelthites, & the eldest sonnes of Dauid were nexte vnto the kynge.

The. xix. Chapter.

Hanon kynge of the sonnes of Ammon, doth greate iniurye to the seruantes of Dauid.

After this, it chanced that * Nahas the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, & his sonne raygned in his steade. And Dauid sayde, I wyll shewe kyndnesse vnto Hanon þ sonne of Nahas, because hys father dealt kyndelye with me: And Dauid sent messengers to comforte hym ouer the deeth of hys father. And the seruantes of Dauid came into þ lande of the chyldren of Ammon to Hanon, to comforte hym. But the Lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayde to Hanon: thynkest thou þ Dauid doth honoure thy father in thy syght, þ he hath sent comforters vnto the? Are not hys seruantes come to searche, to loke, and to spye out the lande?

Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids seruantes, & (and poidethem) and shaued them, and cut of their cootes harde by their buttocks, and sent them awaye. And there went certayne and tolde Dauid, howe þ men were serued. And þ kynge sent to mete them (for þ men were exceedynge ashamed) and þ kynge sayde: tarpe at Jericho, vntill poure beardes be growen, and then returne.

And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that they stanke in þ syght of Dauid. Hanon & the chyldren of Ammon sent a thousande talētes of syluer to hyre them charettes & horsemen, out of Mesopotamia, and out of Syria Maacha & out of zoba. And they hyred. xxii. thousande charettes, and the kynge of Maacha & his people, which came, and pytched before Heoba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered them selues together fro their cyties, & came to battel. And whan Dauid heard of it, he sent Joab and all þ hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out, and put them selues in arape to battel before the gate of the cytie. And þ kynges that were come, kepte them by them selues backe in the felde.

When Joab also sawe that þ frōte of the battell was agaynst him before & behynde, he chose out of all the chosen men of Israel, and put them in arape agaynst þ Syrians. And þ rest of the people he deliuered vnto the hande of Abisai his brother, & they put them selues in arape agaynst þ chyldren of Ammon. And he sayde: If the Syrians be to strong for me, þ shalt succoure me: & yf þ chyldren of Ammon preuaile agaynst þ, I will helpe þ. Plucke vp thine hert, & let vs playe the men, for oure peoples sake & for þ cyties of oure God, & the Lorde shall do þ which is good in his awne syght. So Joab & the people þ were w him, dyue nye vnto þ Syrians vnto þ battayle, & they fled before him. And when þ chyldren of Ammon sawe þ the Syrians were fled, they ranne awaye lyke wile before Abisai his brother, and gat them in to þ cytie. And Joab came to Jerusalem.

And when þ Syrians sawe þ they were put to the worse before Israel, they sent messengers & set out þ Syrians þ were beyond þ ryuer, & Saphach þ capitayne of þ host of Hadarezer wēt before them. And it was tolde Dauid, & he gathered all Israel, & wēt togeather ouer Jordan, & came, and set vpon them. And whan Dauid had put him selte in arape agaynst the Syrians they fought with him. But þ Syrians fled before Israel. And Dauid destroyed of the Syrians seuen thousande charettes, & xl. thousande fore men, and kyled Saphach þ capitayne of þ hoste. And when þ seruantes of Hadarezer, sawe, that they were put to þ worse before the of Israel, they made peace w Dauid, & became his seruantes. Neither wolde the Syrians helpe þ chyldren of Ammon any moze.

 subdued. And there was battell agayne with the Philistines, and Elhanan þe sonne of Jair slue Lahemi the brother of Goliath the Gethite, whose speare was lyke a weavnto Raphah at Geth, & were ouerthrowen in the hande of David, & in the hande of his seruantes.

The .xxi. Chapter.

¶ David causeth the people to be nombred: and there dyed .lxx. thousande men of the pestilence.

And Satan stode vp agaynst Israel, & prouoked David to nobze Israel.
 And David sayde to Joab and to the rulers of þe people. Go ye and nobze Israel from Beer Seba to Dan, and bynge it to me that I maye knowe the nombze of them.
 And Joab answered: the Lorde make hys people an hundred tymes so manye mo as they be. But my Lorde whig, are they not all my Lordes seruantes? why then doth my Lorde requyre thys thyng? why wyll my Lorde be a cause of trespass to Israel?
 Neuerthelesse, the kynges worde preua-led agaynst Joab. And Joab departed and walked thowowe out all the of Israel, and came to Jerusalem agayne & gaue the nombre of the counte of the people vnto David.
 And all they of Israel were a thousand thoulande & an hundred thousande men that due swerde: and Juda was. cccc. lxx. thousande men that due swerd. But þe Leuites and Ben Jamin counted he not amonge the.

 For þe kynges worde was abhominable to Joab. And the Lorde was displeased with thys thyng, and smote Israel. And David sayde vnto God: I haue synned excedyngly in doyng this thyng. And now (I beseeche the) do awaye the wyckednesse of thy seruant, for I haue done very folyshe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Gad Dauids fear, sayng: goo and tell David, sayng: Thus sayth þe Lorde: I geue the, the choysse of thre thynges: chosse the one of them, that I maye do vnto the. And Gad came to Da-uid, and sayde vnto hym. Thus sayth the Lorde. Chosse the, ether thre yeaeres famyment, or thre monethes to be destroyed before thine aduersaries, and that þe swerde of thine enemyes maye ouertake the: or else the swerde of the Lorde and pestilence in the lande thre dayes, and þe Angell of the Lorde destroying thowowe out all þe coastes of Israel. And nowe aduise thy selfe, what worde I shall bynge agayne to hym that sent me. And David sayde vnto Gad. I am in an excedynge strait: Let me fall nowe into the hande of the Lorde, for passynge great are hys mercyes, but let me not fall into the hande of men.

So þe Lorde sent pestilence vpon Israel,
 and there were ouerthrowen of Israel. lxx.
 thousande men. And God sent the Angel in to Jerusalem to destroye in it. And as he was about to destroye, þe Lord behelde, and had compassyon on the cupill, and sayde to the Angell þe destroyed: it is ynough, let now the thynne hande cease. And the Angell of the Lorde stode by þe threshynge flowze of Or-nan the Jebusite. And David lyfte vp hys eyes, and sawe þe Angell of the Lord stande betwene þe erth and heauen, haupnge a drawen swerde in hys hande, stretched out to-warde Jerusalem. Then David & þe elders of Israel whych were clothed in sacke, fell vpon theyr faces. And David sayd vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded þe people to be nobzed? It is I that haue synned & done euell in dede, & what haue these shepe done: let thynne hade (O Lorde my God) be on me and on my fathers house, but not on thy people that they shulde be punished.

And the Angell of the Lorde commaunded Gad to saye to David, that David shulde go vp, and set vp an auter vnto the Lorde, in the threshynge flowze of Ornan the Jebusite. And David went vp accordynge to the sayng of Gad, which he spake in the name of þe Lorde. And Ornan turned aboute, and sawe the Angell, & hys foure sonnes were with hym, and byd them selues: But Ornan

Ornan was threshynge wheat. And as Da-uid came to Ornan, Ornan looked & sawe Da-uid, and went out of the threshynge floure, and bowed hym selfe to David wyth his face to the grounde.

And David sayde to Ornan: geue me the place of the threshynge flowze, that I maye buyld an auter therin vnto the Lord. Thou shalt geue it me for as moche money as it is worthe, that the plage maye cease from the people. And Ornan sayde vnto David: take it to the, & let my Lord þe kyng do that which semeth good in his eyes: loo, I geue the oxen also for burnt sacrificys, & þe threshynge sea-des for wodde, & wheate for meat offering:
 I geue it all. And kyng David sayd to Or-nan: not so, but I wyll bye it for as moche money as it is worth. For I wyll not take that whych is thynne for the Lorde, ner offer burnt offerings wythout cost.

And so David gaue to Ornan for that place, speies of gold. vi. hundred by waight. And David buyld there an auter vnto the Lord, and offered burnt offerings & peace offerynges, and called vpon the Lord, and he heard hym from heauen in fyze vpon the auter of burnt offering. And whan the Lord had spoken to þe Angell, he put vp his swerde agayne into þe sheathe of it. At that tyme whē David sawe, that the Lorde had hearde hym in the threshynge flowze of Ornan the Jebusite:
 he vied to offer there. For the tabernacle of the Lord which Moses made in the wildernesse, and the auter of burnt offering were at that ceason in the hyll at Gibeon. And Da-uid coulde not go before it to aske counsell at God, for he was aferde of the swerde of the Angell of the Lorde.

The .xxij. Chapter.

¶ David willet hys sonne Salomon to buyld
 the temple of the Lorde: wherch thynge he hym selfe was forbydden to do.

And David sayde: thys is þe house of the Lorde God, and thys is the autare for the burnt offeryng of Israel.

And David commaunded to geather together the straungers that were in the lande of Israel, and he sett masons to hewe fre stone, for the buylding of the house of God. And David prepared plentie of yro for nayles and dozes of y gates, and to toyne with all, and aboudance of brasle without wayght, and Cedar trees wythout nombze.
 For the zidons and they of Tyre brought moche Cedar wood to David. And David sayde. Salomon my sonne is younge and te-der, and the house that is to be buyld for the Lorde, must excede in greatnesse, þe it maye be spoken of and prayled in all lades. I wyll therfore make ordynance for it. And so Da-uid prepared many thynges before his deeth.
 And he called Salomon his sonne, & charged him to buyld an house for the Lord God of Israel. And David sayde to Salomon.

 * my sonne, I thought (as it was in myne
 * ii. Reg. ii. a. hert) to buyld an house vnto the name of þe Lorde my God. But the worde of the Lorde came to me, sayng: þe hast shed moche bloude, and hast made greute battelles: thou shalt therfore not buyld an house vnto my name, for þe hast shed moche bloude vpon the erth in my syght. Beholde, a sonne is bozne to the, & he shalbe a man of reeste, for I wyll geue him rest from all hys enemyes round about. For his name is Salomon: and I wyll sende rest and peace vpon Israel in hys dayes. He shall buyld an house for my name, and he shalbe my sonne, and I wyll be his father, &
 I wyll prepare the seate of his kyngdome vpon
 Israel for euer. Nowe therfore my sonne, þe Lord be w the, & prospere þe, & þe shalt buyld
 the house to the name of the Lorde thy God, as he hath sayde of the. And the Lorde shall geue the wysdome & vnderstandyng, & shall geue the commaundmentes for Israel, that ye maye kepe the lawe of the Lord thy God.
 For then thou shalt prosper: eue whan thou takest hede & fulfyllst the statutes & lawes whych the Lorde charged Moses with, for Israel. Plucke vp thynne heert therfore, & be stronge, drede not, nor be discouraged. Be-holde, in myne aduersyte haue I also prepared for þe house of the Lord, an hundred thousande talentes of golde, & a thousande thousande talentes of syluer, & as for brasle & yro it canot be nobzed, for it is very moche. And I haue prepared tymbre and stone, and thou mayest pvide more therto. Moreover, thou hast workemen wyth the pnowe, & masons and carpenters to worke in stone & tymbre, and many men þe be active for euery worke.
 And of golde, syluer, brasle and yron, there is no nombze. Ty therefore, and be doyng, & the Lorde shalbe wyth the.

And David commaunded all þe lordes of Israel, to helpe Salomon his sonne, sayng: Is not þe Lord yd God w you? hath he not geuen you rest on euery syde: for he hath geuen you inhabitaures of þe lande into my hande, & the lade is subdued before the Lord & before his people. Nowe therfore set youre hertes & yd soules, to seke the Lord youre God, Ty, and buyld ye the temple of the Lord God, to bring the Arcke of the couenant of þe Lord and the holy vesselles of God, into the house so buyld for the name of the Lorde.

The .xxij. Chapter.

¶ David being olde, ordeyneth Salomon kyng.
 He causeth the Leuites to be nobzed, & assigneth them to theyr offices.

When David was olde and full of dayes, * he made Salomon hys sonne kyng ouer Israel. And then he geathered together all þe Lor-des of Israel wyth the preastes and the Le-uites.

uites. And the Levites were nombred from the age of xxx. yere and aboue, and the nōber and summe of them was. xxxviij. thousande men. Of which. xxiij. thousande were set to further the worke of the house of the Lorde. And fyve thousande were officers & Judges. Four thousande were porters and four thousande prapled y Lorde with soche instrumentes as was made to praple wythall.

And so David put an ordre amōg the be- uoing the in partes. Of y children of Leui: Gerson, Cahath & Merari. Of the Gersonites was Laada & Semei. The sonnes of Laada the chefe were Jehiel, zethan & Joel, thre. The sonnes of Semei: Selomith, haziel, & Haran, thre. These were y auncient fathers of laada. And y sonnes of Semei were Jahath, zina, Jeus & Beria: these foure were the sonnes of Semei. And Jahath was the chefe, zina the seconde. But Jeus and Beria had not many sonnes, therfore they were in one rekenyng, accordyng to theyr fathers householde reckened for one auncient household.

* Cro. vi. r.
* Par. vi. a.

The sonnes of Cahath: Amram, Izahar, Hebzon and Uziel, foure. * The sonnes of Amram: Aaron & Moses. And Aaron was separated, to haue the rule of the holy thynges in the place moost holpe, he and hys sonnes for euer: and to burne incense before the Lorde, and to mynstre vnto him, & to blesse in his name for euer. Moses also the man of God, and hys chyldren, were named wyth y trybe of Leui. The sonnes of Moses: Gerson and Eliezer. Of the sonnes of Gerson: Sebul was the chefe. The sonnes of Eliezer: Rehabia the chefe. And Eliezer had no other sonnes: But the sonnes of Rehabia were very manye. The sonnes of Izahar: Salomith, the chefe. The sonnes of Hebzon: Jeriah the fyrt, Amaria the seconde, Jahaziel the thirde, and Jerameam the fourth. The sonnes of Uziel: Micha the fyrt, and Jesia the seconde. The sonnes of Merari: Mahli and Musi. The sonnes of Mahli: Eleazar and Cis. And Eleazar dyed, and had no sonnes, but daughters, and their brethre the sonnes of Cis toke them. The sonnes of Musi: Mahli, Eder, & Jeremoth, thre. These are the chyldren of Leui after the household of theyr fathers, euen the auncient of the fathers accordyng to theyr offces, and after y nombze and somme of y names of them that dyd the worke in the seruike of the house of the Lorde, from the age of twentye yeres & aboue. And David sayde: the Lorde God of Israel hath geuen rest vnto his people, that they maye dwell in Ierusalem for euer. That the Levites also shuld nowe nomoze beare y tabernacle & all the vesselles for the seruyce therof: for accordyng to the last wordes of David, the Levites were nombred fro twytye yere and aboue, and their offce was vnder the hande of the sonnes of Aaron, for the seruike of the house of the Lorde, in the courttes & celles, and in the purifyinge of all holy thynges, and in the worke of the seruike of the house of God. In the newe breed in y fyne flowre, in y meate offeringe, in the waters of sweete breed, in the frynginge panne, in the grydgyon, and in all maner of meatures and cyle, and to stāde euery daye in the morninge, to thanke and praple the Lorde, and so lyke wyse at euen. And to offer all burnt-sacrifices vnto the Lorde, in y Sabbathes, in the newe moones, & on the festfull dayes by nombze and custome continually (as they were commaunded) before the Lorde. And that they shulde wayte on the tabernacle of wytnesse, and on the holy place, and on the sonnes of Aaron their brethzen, in the seruike of the house of the Lorde.

The xxiiij. Chapter.

David assigneth offces to the sonnes of Aaron.

Hese are the deuysys of the sonnes of Aaron: The sonnes of Aaron: Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar & Ithamar. * Nadab also and Abihu dyed before theyr father, & had no chyldre. But Eleazar and Ithamar executed the prestes offce. And David ordered them on this maner: zadoch of y sonnes of Eleazar, & Abimelech of y sonnes of Ithamar were accordyng to theyr offces in theyr ministracyō. And there were no auncient mē founde amōg y sonnes of Eleazar, then the sonnes of Ithamar. And thus were they ordered together: Amonge y sonnes of Eleazar there were fyrtene rulers, accordyng to the household of their fathers: & eght amōg the sonnes of Ithamar accordyng to y household of theyr fathers. And thus were they put in order by lott, y one sorte from the other, & so were there rulers in y Sanctuary & Lodges before God, as well of y sonnes of Ithamar as of y sonnes of Eleazar. And Sumela the soune of Nathaniel the scribe, of the kynred of the Levites wrote the befoze the kyng and the Lordes, & before zadoch the prest and Abimelech the sonne of Abiathar, and before the auncient fathers, before y prestes & the Levites: one principall household beyng reserved for Eleazar and one for Ithamar.

And the fyrt lot fell to Jehoiarib, & the seconde to Jedaiā. The thirde to Harim, & the fourth to Schorim. The fyfte to Melchias, & the sytte to Miamm. The seuenth to Yakos, & the eght to * Abia. The nynthe to Jesua, & y tenth to Secanahu. The leueth to Eliab, & the twelue to Jakim. The thirteenth to Hupa, & the fourteth to Jesebeab. The fiftenth to Wisga, & y syxtenth to Immer. The seuententh to Hezir, & y eghteth to Haphez. The

* L. vii. a.

The nyntenth to Pathahia, and the twentieth to Jeheskel. The twetieth & one to Jachin and y xxi. to Gamul. The xxiij. to Delafahu, and the xxiiij. to Maasiah.

These are the ordinaunces of the in these offices, whan they came into the house of the Lorde, accordyng to their maner vnder Aaron their father, as the Lorde God of Israel had commaunded hym.

The rest of the sonnes of Leui, are these: of the sonnes of Amram, Subael. Of y sonnes of Subael, Jehediabu. Of the sonnes of Rehabia, y fyrt Jesia. Of the Izaharites, Selomoth. Of y sonnes also of Selomoth, Jahath. hys sonnes Jeriah y first Amariahu y secōde, Jahaziel the thirde, & Jehameā the fourth. Of the sonnes of Uziel, Micha. Of the sonnes of Micha, Samir. The brother of Micha was Jilia. Of the sonnes also of Jilia zechariah. The sonnes of Merari, were: Mahli & Musi. The sonnes of Jaziah, Benio. The sonnes of Merari by Jahaziah, Beno, Sohem, zacur & Jyzi. Of Maheli came Eleazar & he had no sonnes. Of his: the sonnes of Ias: Jerameel. The sonnes of Musi: Mahli, Eder and Jerimoth. These are y children of the Levites after the household of their fathers. And these cast lottes next to their brethzen the sonnes of Aaron, in the presence of David the kyng, and zadoch & Abimelech & the auncient fathers, prestes, & Levites: euen the principall fathers before their ponger brethzen. * (the lott made equal distri bucyon amonge them all.)

The xxv. Chapter.

The songers are appoynted, wyth theyr places, and lottes.

And so David and the captaynes of y hoste appoynted out to do seruyce, y sonnes of Asaph heman and Jeduthun, whan they dyd prophesye wyth harpes, psalteries and timbales. And there was a multitude of the men that were appoynted to the seruyce and mynistracyon. Of the sonnes of Asaph: zacur, Josph, Nathania and Merela that wayted on Asaph, whych prophesied by the kyng.

Of Jeduthun: the sonnes of Jeduthun: Gedeliabu, zeri, Jelaiahu, hafabiabu, and Nathithiahu fyve, vnder the hādes of theyr father Jeduthun, whych prophesied wyth a harpe, for to geue thākes & prayes vnto the lord. Of hemā y sonnes of hemā: Bukiabu, Nathaniahu, Uziel, zebuel, Jerimoth, Hanania, Hanani, Eliatha, Gedalthi, Romathi, Ezer, Josbekasa, malothi, hothur, & Mahazioth. All these were the sonnes of hemā whych was y kynges sear in the wordes of God: & to lyfte vp y hoine of y regall dignitie. And God gaue to hemā xiiij. sonnes and thre daughters. All these also were at y hāde of their father synging in y house of y Lorde w timbales, psalteries & harpes, whā Asaph Jeduthun and heman executed the seruyce in the house of God, at the kinges hāde. And the multitude of the wyth their brethre that were instructe in the songes of the Lorde: eue all y were synging, were two hundred foure score & eght. And they * cast lottes amōg the selues, howe they shulde wayte, as well for the small as for the greate, for the scoler as well as for the skole master.

The xxvi. Chapter.

The porters of the temple are ordered, euery man to the gate whych he shulde kepe.

Hese are the deuysys of the porters, Amōg the Corehtes: Delelemiahu the sonne of Roze of the chyldren of Asaph.

And the sonnes of Delelemiahu were these: zachariahu the eldest, Jedibel the seconde, zebadiabu the thyrde, and Jathmel the fourth, Elam y fyfte, Jehohanā the first, & Eliocnai the seucth. The sonnes of Obed

Edom: Semecia the eldest, Jehosabab the seconde, Joah the thyrde, Sacar the fourth, & Aethi, nacl the fyfte, Amiel the sytte, Ja-char the seuenth, Deulthai the. viij. for God blesst hym.

And vnto Semecia his sonne were sonnes borne, & ruled in the house of their father, for they were men of myght. The sonnes of Semecia: Othni, Rephael, Obed and Elzabad & hys brethren were stronge men. Elbu and Samabiah. All these were of the chyldren of Obed Edom, they and their chyldren, and their brethren, active men and of strength to do seruice, euen. lxii. of Obed Edom. And He-leniah had sonnes and brethren, active men xviii. The sonnes of Hosa of the chyldren of Merari: Sumri the chefe, & though he was not the eldest, yet his father sett him in the chefe place. Helkiah the seconde, Tebaliah the thirde, and zechariahu the fourth: all the sonnes and brethren of Hosa were. xiii.

Amonge these was deuyded the offyce of the porter: whiche that they shulde be auncient men, to waite wth the brethren, when they mynistred in the house of the Lord. And they cast lottes, betwene the great and small after the household of their fathers, for euery gate. And the lot on the east syde fell vpon Semeiathu. And for zachariahu hys sonne (which was a wise counsellor) they cast lottes, & hys lot came out toward the North.
And Obed Edoms lot fell to the South. And for hys sonnes fell the houses of Asupim.
For Duphim and Hosa toward the west, with the gate that stondeth toward the hyer waye: one watch beyng ouer agaynst another.

In the east were fyre Leuites: & toward the North. iiii. a daye: toward the South. iiii.
a daye, & toward Asupim, two & two. In Pharbar toward the west: two at the going vp, & two in Pharbar. These are the deuyd-ings of the porters among the sonnes of Izrahel among the sonnes of Merari. And of the Leuites, Abiah had the ouersyght of the treasure of the house of God, and of the treasure of the dedicat thynge.

As concerning the sonnes of Laada whiche were the chyldren of the Gerzonites. Of Laada came auncient fathers. Euen of Laada there came Serlun & Jehieli. The sonnes of Je-hieli: zethan & Joel hys brother, which were ouer the treasures of the house of the Lord.
Of the Amramites also & Izaharites, hebronites & Ozitites, was Subuel the sonne of Serlun the sonne of Moses, a ruler ouer
the treasures. And of his brethren the sonnes of Elezer, was Rahabiah, whose sonne was Iaiahu, whose sonne was Joza, whose sonne was zichri, whose sonne was Selo-mith, whiche Selomith and hys brethren were ouer all the treasures of the dedycate thynge, which David the kynge, & the auncient fathers, the capitaynes ouer thousand & hundredes, & the capitaynes of the hoste, had dedicated out of the spoyle wone in battels: they dyd dedicate the to maisteyne the house of the Lord: & all that Samuel the sear, and Saul the sonne of Cis, and Abner the sonne of Ner, and Joab the sonne of zaria had dedicated, & whosoeuer had de-dicat anye thynge, it was vnder the hande of Selomith and of hys brethren.

Of the Izaharites was Chenanihu & hys sonnes, appoynted to the busynesse without-forth ouer Israel: for they were officers and Judges. And of the hebronites hasabiah & his brethren, men of actiuite a thousand & seue hundred, were officers amonge them of Israel beyond Jordan westward, in all busynesse belonng to God, and seruice of the kynge. Amonge the hebronites was Jedai the chefe, euen a prince among the hebronites & fathers of hys kynred. And in the fourtye yeare of the kynghome of David, they were sought for. And there were found amonge the men of actiuite at Jazer in Gilead. And hys brethren were men of actiuite, eue two thousand & seuen hundred, auncient fathers, who kynge David made rulers ouer the Rubenites, Gadites, and ouer the halfe trybe of Manasse, for euery matter pertainyng to God, and for the kynge's busynesse.

The xxviij. Chapter.

Of the princes and rulers that mynistred vnto
the kynge.

The chyldren of Israel: after the nombze of the, the auncient he-des & capitaynes of thousandes and hundredes, & their officers & serued the kynge by diuers courses which came in & wet out, moneth by mo-neth, thowow out all the monethes of the yere.
And in euery course were. xlii. thousande.
ouer the fyfth course for the fyfth moneth, was Jasobad the sonne of zabbai. And in his course were. xlii. thousand. And the cheffest of all the captaynes of the host for the fyfth moneth, was of the chyldren of Pharez. ouer the course of the secode moneth was Dodai an Ahohite & in his course was Hithloth a ruler: (his helper)
And in the course were. xlii. thousande. The chefe captayne of the thirde host for the thirde moneth, was Banaiahu the sonne of Jehoiada the hye preaste: And in his course were xlii. thousand. This is Banaiahu, which was most myghtie amonge. xxx. & aboue. xxx.
And in his parte was Amizabad his sonne.

The fourth captayne for the fourth mo-neth, was Asael the brother of Joab, adzabadia his sonne after him. And in his course were. xlii. thousande. The fyfth captayne for the fyfth moneth was Sambut the Jerahite,

rahite: & in hys course were. xlii. thousand.
The syfth captayne for the syfth moneth was Ira the sonne of Jekes a Ghechuite: & in hys course were. xlii. thousande.

The seuenth captayne for the seuenth mo-neth, was Hilez the Belomite, of the chyldren of Ephraim: & in his course were. xlii. thousand. The eyght captayne for the eyght mo-neth, was Sibechar an Husathite of the kynne of zari: & in his course were. xlii. thousand. The nynt captayne for the nynt mo-neth, was Abiezer an Anathothite of the son-nes of Iemin: and in hys course were. xlii. thousand. The tenth captayne for the tenth moneth, was Adahai the Netophathite of the zarahites: and in hys course were. xlii.
thousand. The eleuenth for the eleuenth mo-neth, was Banai the Pirathomite of the chyldren of Ephraim: and in his course were xlii. thousand. The tweluenth captayne for the tweluenth moneth, was heldai the Netophathite of Othniel, and in his course were xlii. thousand. And the rulers ouer the trybes of Israel were these: Amonge the Rubenites was Elezer the sonne of zichri. Amonge the Simeonites also was Saphathu the sonne of Maacha. Amonge the Leuites: he-sabiah the sonne of nemuel. Amonge the haromites: zadock. Amonge the of Juda: Elihu of the brethren of David. Amonge them of Iachar. Omri the sonne of Michael. Amonge the of zabalon: Jesimiah the sonne of Obadiah. Amonge them of Nephtali: Jerimoth the sonne of Azriel. Amonge the chyldren of Ephraim: hosea the sonne of Azariahu. In the halfe trybe also of Manasse: Joel the sonne of Obedabahu. Of the halfe trybe of Manasse in Gilead: Jido the sonne of zachariahu.
Amonge the of Beniamin: Jaaiel the sonne of Abner. Amonge them of Dan: Azarel the sonne of Jeroham. These are the Lordes of the trybes of Israel.

But David toke not the nombze of them vnder. xx. yere: because the Lord sayd he wold encrease Israel lyke vnto the starres of the skye. And Joab the sonne of zaria bega-ne to nūbre: but he fynished it not, because there fell wrath for it agaynst Israel: neither was the nombze put in to the chronycles of kynge David.

ouer the kynge's treasures was Azmaneth the sonne of Adiel. And ouer the treasures of the felde, in the cyties & villages & castelles, was Jehonathā, the sonne of Eliahu. And ouer the worckme in the felde that tylled the ground, was Ezi the sonne of Chelob. And the ouersyght of the vineyardes had Semei the Ramathite. ouer the increace also of the vineyardes, & ouer the winecellers was Sabbai the Masiphunite. And ouer the olme-trees & mulbertrees were in the valeys, was Baal hand the Gederite. And ouer the treasure of oyle, was Joas: ouer the oren that fed in Sharon, was Setari the Saroni-te. And ouer the oren that were in the va-lepes was Saphat the sonne of Adlai. ouer the camelles, Obil the Ismaelyte. And ouer the asses was Johadihu the Meronothi-

te. ouer the shepe, was Jazis the Hagerite.
All these were the rulers of the substance of kynge David. And Jehonathā David's vn-cle, a man of counsell, and of vnderstandyng was a scribe, and Jehiel the sonne of Bach-moni & was wth the kynge's sonnes en-structinge them. And Abitophel was of the kynge's counsell. And Husai the Archite was the kynge's companyon. And next to Abito-phel was Jehoiada the sonne of Banaiahu, & Abiathar. And the captayne of the kyn-ge's warre, was Joab.

The xxviij. Chapter.

Because David was forbidden to burye the temple, he chooseth Salomon and the people to performe it.

And David gathered together all the Lordes of Israel: the Lordes of the trybes, the Lordes of the companyes that mynistred to the kynge by course, the captaynes ouer the thousandes & ouer the hundre-des, & the Lordes that had the ouersyght ouer all the substance and possesyon of David, hys sonnes, wth the chambelaynes: all the myghtye and valeaunt and all active men, vnto Ierusalem. And kynge David stode vp vpon hys fete, and sayde.

Hear me my brethren & my people. * I had in myne hert to buyde an house of rest for the Arke of the coneuant of the Lord, & for the fote stole of oure God, & had made redye, for the buylding. But God sayd vnto me: * thou shalt not buyde an house for my name, because thou hast bene a man of warre, and hast shed blood. Wherefore, the Lord God of Israel * chose me before all the house of my father, to be kyge ouer Israel for euer, for in Juda wold he chose a captayne: & of the householde of Juda is the house of my father, & amonge the sonnes of my father he had a lust to me, to make me kyng ouer all Israel. And of all my sonnes (for the Lord hath geue me manye sonnes) he hath chosen Salomon my sonne, to sitt vpon the seat of the kynghome of the Lord in Israel. And he sayde vnto me: * Salomon thy sonne, he shall buyde me an house & couertes, I haue chosen hym to be my sonne, & I will be his father. I will stablysh his kyngdome for euer, If he will be strōg to do my commandmentes, & my lawes, as it goeth this daye.

Now therfore, in the syght of all Israel
the congregacyō of the Lord, & in the audience of oure God: kepe & seke for all the commandmentes of the Lord your God, & ye maye enioye a good land, & leaue inheritance for your chyldren after you for euer. And Salomon L iii my

* 19. re. 19. c. nelle, & * offered a thousande burnt sacrificys vpon it. And y^e same nyght dyd God appeare vnto Salomon, and sayde vnto hym: a lke, what I shall geue the. And Salomon sayde vnto God: thou hast shewed great mercy vnto Dauid my father, and * hast made me to raygne in his steade. * Nowe therfore O Lorde God, let thy promyse which thou madest vnto Dauid my father, be true. For * I have made me kynge ouer a people: which is lyke the dust of the earth in multitude. Wherefore, geue me nowe wysdome & knowledge, that I maye be able to go out and in before this people: for who els (woz help) can iudge this people that is so great?

* And God sayde to Salomon, because this was in thyne hert, and because thou hast not asked treasure, and rychesse, & honoure, and the lynes of thyne enemies, nether yet lōge lyfe: but hast asked wysdome and knowledge for thy selfe, to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made the kynge: wysdome and knowledge is graunted vnto the, and I will geue the treasure, and rychesse, and gloire: so that amonge the kynges that haue bene before the, or after the, none was or shalbe lyke the. And so Salomon cam from the hylaulter (that was at Gibeon) to Jerusalem, fro the tabernacle of witness, and raygned ouer

* 19. re. 19. d. Israel. And * Salomon gathered chari- ttes and horsemen: and he had a thousande, and foure hundred charettes, and .vij. thou- sande horsemen, whiche bestowed in the cha- ret cyries, and with the kynge at Jerusalem.

* 19. re. 19. d. And * the kynge made syluer and golde at Jerusalem, as plenteous as stones: and Ce- dar trees made he as plentie as the mulberry trees that growe in the valeys. And y^e horses which Salomon had, were brought him out of Egypt by the kynges marchauntes y^e were together, which beyng of one company, toke the out at a pryce. They came also and brought out of Egypt a charret for fyve hundred peces of syluer: euen an hōse for an hundred & fyftie. And so brought they horses for all the kynges of the hethites, & for the kynges of Siria by their awne hande.

The seconde Chapter.

Salomon sendeth to Hiram the kynge of Tyre for wood and workmen.

* 19. re. 19. d. And Salomon determined to buyld an house for the name of y^e Lorde, and an house for his kynge dome. And Salomon tolde out thre skore and ten thousande men to beare burdes, and foure skore thousande men to hewe stones in the mountayne, and thre thousande and fyve hundred to ouer se them.

* 19. re. 19. d. And Salomon sent to Hiram y^e kynge of Tyre sayinge. As thou dydest deale with Dauid my father and * dydest send him Cedar woodde, to buyld him an house to dwelle in, euen so deale with me: For I am aboute to buyld an house for the name of the Lorde my God, to offre vnto him holy thinges, and to burne swete encense, and to sett the wyced before him continuallye, to offre burnt sacrificys of the moynunge and euenynge: on the Saboth dayes, in y^e fyfth daye of euery newe moone, & in the solempne feastes of the Lorde oure God: for it is an ordynance to be continuallye kepte of Israel. And y^e house which I buyld shalbe great: for great is oure God above all Gods. But who is able to buyld him an house: when that heauen, and heauen above all heaues is not able to receaue him: what am I then that I shulde buyld hym an house? nay, but euen to burne sacrifice before him, shall this buyldinge be: sende me nowe therfore a conynge man, y^e can worke in golde and syluer, in brasle and y^ez, in purple, cremosin and yelow sylke, and that can skille to graue, with the conynge men that are with me in Iuda and Jerusalem, whom Dauid my father dyd prepare. Send me also Cedar trees, pyne trees & Algume trees out of Libanon. For I wote that thy seruantes can skille to hewe tymbre in Libano. And beholde, my men shalbe wth thyne, that they maye prepare me tymbre ynough. For the house which I am determyned to bulde, shalbe wonderfull greate. And beholde, for the vse of thy seruantes the cutters and hewers of tymbre: I haue geuen .xx. thousande quarters of beaten wheate, and .xx. thousande quarters of barlepe, and .xx. thousande bates of wyne, and .xx. thousande bates of oyle. And Hiram kynge of Tyre answered in wyrtynge, which he sent to Salomon. Because y^e Lorde hath loued his people, therfore hath he made the kynge ouer them. And Hiram sayde mozeouer: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel which made heauē and erth, and that hath geuen Dauid the kynge a wyse sonne, and one y^e hath discrecion, prudente, and vnderstandynge, to buyld an house for the Lorde, & a palace for him selfe. And nowe I haue sent a wyse man, and a man of vnderstandynge (whom my father Hiram dyd vse) * the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan, and his father was a mā of Tyre, and he can skille to worke in gold and syluer, in brasle and y^ez, in stone and tymbre, in purple and yelow sylke, in fyne whyte and cremosin: and can graue sondrie maner of gravinges, and to fynde out dyuerse maner of sotle worke that shalbe sett before him, with thy conynge men, & with the conynge men of my Lorde Dauid thy father. Nowe therfore, y^e wheate, and barlepe, oyle and wyne which my Lorde hath spokē of, let him sende vnto his seruantes. And we will cut wood in Libano, as moch as thou shalt nede, and will bring it to y^e, in shippes by see to Japho, from from whence thou mayst carpe them to Jerusalem. And Salomon nobzed all the strangers that were in the lāde of Israel, after the nombre of them whom his father Dauid had nombzed. And they were founde an hundred and .liij. thousande and fyve hundred. And he set .lxx. thousande of them to beare burthens, and .lxxx. thousande to hewe stones in y^e mountayne, and thre thousande and fyve hundred officers, to set y^e people a worke.

The iiij. Chapter.

The temple of the Lorde and the porche are buylded, with other thinges thereto belonging.

* 19. re. 19. d. And Salomon beganne to buyld the house of y^e Lorde at Jerusalem in moūt Moza * where (the Lorde) appeared vnto Dauid his father: euen in the place that Dauid prepared in the therspyng floure of Ornan y^e Jebusite. And * he began to buyld in the seconde daye of the seconde moneth * the fourth yere of his raygne. And these are the paterne wherby Salomon was instructed to buyld y^e house of God. The length was thre skore cubytes after the olde measure, and the bredthe .xx. cubytes. The porche, y^e was in bredth as large as the temple, had .xx. cubytes: and the heygth was an hundred & .xx. cubytes. And he ouerlayed it on y^e puer syde with pure golde.

And the greater house he spyled with fyve tree, which he ouerlayde with the best gold, and graued therto palmctrees and cheynes. And he ouerlayed the house with pceposule stone bewtfully. And the golde was golde of Paruaim. The house (I saye) y^e beames, postes, walles and dozes therof, ouerlayed he with gold, and made grauen worke vpon the walles.

And he made y^e house moost holpe, whose length was .xx. cubytes lyke to the bredthe of the house, and the bredthe therof was also .xx. cubytes. And he ouerlayde it wyth good golde, euen with .v. hundred talentes. And the waight of the naples of gold was fiftie syces. And he ouerlayde y^e upper chabres with golde.

* 19. re. 19. d. And in y^e house moost holy, he made two Cherubyns of ymage worke, lyke chylzen, and ouerlayde them with gold. And y^e wynges of the Cherubs were .xx. cubytes longe. The one wyng was fyue cubites, reaching to the wall of the house, and the other wyng was lyke wyse fyue cubytes, reachynge to y^e wyng of the other Cherub. And euen so the one wyng of the other Cherub was fyue cubytes, reachynge to the wall of the house, and the other wyng was fyue cubites also, and reached to the wyng of the other Cherub. So that the wynges of the sayde Cherubs were stretched out .xx. cubytes: And they stode on their fete, and looked in wardes. And he made a foze hangyng of yelow sylke purple, cremosyne, and fyne white, and cauled the pictures of Cherubs to be brodered thereon. And he made before the house, two pylers of .xxxv. cubytes hye. And the heed that was aboue on the topp of euery one of the was fyue cubytes. And he made chaynes of wrethe worke for the queere, and put them on the heedes of the pylers, & made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on the cheynes. And he reared vp the pylers before the temple: one on the ryght hande, and the other on the lefte, and called y^e ryght Jachin, and the lefte Boaz.

The iiij. Chapter.

The auter of brasle, the Lauatoze, the beuelles to walthe with, the candellpykes, &c.

* 19. re. 19. d. And he made an auter of brasle .xx. cubytes longe, and .xx. cubytes broad, and ten cubytes hye. * And he cast a brasen Lauatoze of ten cubytes from byrm to byrm, rounde in compase, and fyue cubytes hye: and a lyne of thretye cubytes dyd compase it rounde aboute. And vnder it was the fashyō of oren which dyd compase it rounde aboute: with ten cubytes dyd they compase the Lauatoze rounde aboute, and there were two rowes of oren which were cast of lyke molten worke. And it stode also vpon twelue oren: thre looked towarde the North, thre towarde the west, thre towarde the South, and thre towarde the East, and the Lauatoze was set vpon them, and all their backs were towarde the Lauatoze. And the thyrkest of it was an handbrede, and the byrm lyke the byrm of a cuppe, with floures of lylpes. And it receaued and helde thre thousande bates.

* 19. re. 19. d. And he made ten lauers: and put fyue on the ryght hande, and fyue on the lefte, to walthe and clēse in them, soch thinges as they offered for a burnt offeryng. But the great Lauatoze was for the pceastes to walthe in. And he made ten candellpykes of golde: accordinge to the paterne y^e was geue of them) and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryght hande and fyue on y^e lefte. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyue on the ryght syde, and fyue on the lefte. And he made an hundred basens of golde. And he made the courte of the pceastes, & the great courte and dozes to it: and ouerlayde the dozes of them with brasle. And he set the great Lauatoze on y^e ryght syde of the East ende, ouer agaynst the South. And Hiram made postes, shouelles and basens, and fynelshed the worke that he was appoynted to make for kynge Salomon in the house of God. The two pylers, the coneynges or two heedes on the toppes of the pylers: & the two wretthes to couer the two scalpes or heedes that were on the toppes of the pylers: and foure hundred hūdyed pomegranates on the two wythes, two rowes of pomegranates on one wy-the, to couer the two toppes or heedes that were on the pyllers. And he made two bottomes, and lauers made he vpon the bottomes: the great Lanatoz, and twelue oren vnder it. Pottes also and Shouelles, fleshe hokes, and all these vesselles dyd hys father make to kyng Salomon for y^e house of the Lorde, of bygght brasse. In the playne of Iordan dyd the kyng cast them, euen in the claye ground that is, betwene Socoth zarebatha. And Salomō made all these vesselles in greate aboundaunce, for the weight of brasse coulde not be rekened.

And Salomon made all the vesselles that were for the house of God: the golden altar also: the tables to sett the shewbread vpon: the dorour, the candlestickes with their lampes: (so burne after the maner before the queere) and that of precious golde: and the flowers and the lampes, and the snoffers made ne of golde, and that perfecte golde: and y^e diestynge knyues, basens, sponges and censers of pure golde. And ~~he made~~ the dore of the temple, and the ynnere dore within the place moost holye, and the ynnere dore of the temple, were gylded. And so was all the worke y^e Salomon made for the house of the Lorde finished.

The. v. Chapter.

¶ The Ark is brought into the temple, which is filled with the glory of the Lord.

22 And so all the worke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was finished, and * Salomon brought in all the thynges that David his father had bequeathed, with the silver and golde and all the Jewelles, and put them amonge treasures of the house of God.

Then Salomon * gathered the elders of Israel together and all the herdes of the trybes, and aunient fathers of the chyldren of Israel, vnto Ierusalem: so brunge y^e Arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde out of the cytie of Dauid which is zion. Wherefore all the men of Israel resorted vnto the kyng in the feaste, euen in the seuenth moneth. And all the elders of Israel came, and the Leuites toke v^p the Arcke. And the prestes and the Leuites brought awaye the Arcke and the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the holy vesselles that were in y^e tabernacle, and they bare them. And kyng Salomon and all the congregaeron of Israel y^e were assembled vnto him before the Arcke, offered sheepe and oxen, so manye, that they coulde not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And the prestres brought the Arcke of ꝑ appoyntement of the Lorde vnto his place, euen into the quere of the temple within the place most holyc, and set it vnder the mynges of the cherubs, that the Cherubs stretched out their wynges ouer the place of the Arcke, & the Cherubs couered both y^e Arcke and her barres about on hye. And the barres of the Arcke, were so longe, that the heades of the barres were sene without the Arcke within y^e quere, but not without. And there y^e Arcke remayned vnto this daye. But there was nothyng in the Arcke, * saue the two tables which Moses put therein at horeb, when the Lorde made a couenaunt with the chyldren of Israel, after they were come out of Egypt. And it fortunied, that when the prestes were come out of the holy place the sanctuarye was filled with smoke, for all y^e prestes that were present, were sanctified and dyd not then wayte by course, that both the Leuites and the syngers, vnder Asaph, Heman and Jeduthun, were appoynted to sondaye offyces with their chyldren and brethren & were araped in fyne whyte, hangyng Symbales, Psalteries, and Harpes, & stode at the West end of the aulter. and by them an hundred and .xx. prestes blowinge with trowettes. And the trompette blowers and the syngers so agreed, y^t it semed but one voyce in praylinge and thankynge the Lorde. And whan they lyfte vp their voyce with y^e trompettes, symbales and other instrumentes of musyke, and whan they prayed the Lorde, (and Carde) howe that he is good, and that his mercye lasteth euer, y^e house of God was filled wth a cloude: so that the prestes coude not endure to mynister by the reason of the cloude. For the maiesty of the Lorde had fylled the house of God.

The. vi. Chapter.

¶ The wordes of Salomon to the people, and the prayer that he made vnto God.

Then Salomon sayde: * the Lorde hath spoken, howe þ he wyll dwell in the cloude. And I haue buyt an habitacyon for the, and a place for thy dwellinge for euer. And the kynge turned his face, and blessed the hole congregacyon of Israel, and all the congregacyon of Israel stode. And he sayde: blessed be þ Lorde God of Israel which hath with his handes, fulfylled it, that he spake with his mouth to my father Dauid, sayinge: * sence the daye that I brought my people out of the lande of Egypt, I chose no cytie amonge all þ trybes of Israel to buylde an house in, þ my name myght be there, nether chose I any man to be a ruler ouer my people Israel: sayynge þ * I haue chosen Ierusalem, that my name myght be there, and haue chosen Dauid to be ouer my people Israel.

* And whan it was in the herte of Da-uid my father to buyde an house for þe name of þe Lord God of Israel. þe Lord sayd to Da-uid my father: for as mochas it was in thyne hert

herte to buylde an house for my name, thou dydest well that thou so thoughtest in thyne hert. Notwithstandynge, I shalt not buylde the house, but thy sonne which is proccaded out of thy loynes, he shall builde an house for my name. The Lorde therfore, hath made good his sayinge that he hath spoken, and I am rylen vp in the rowme of Dauid my father, and am set on the seate of Israel, as the Lord promysed, and hane buylt an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel. And in it haue I put the Arcke, wherein is the con-euant of the Lorde that he made with I children of Israel. And the kynge stode before I aulter of the Lorde in the p[re]sence of all the cōgregacyon of Israel, and stretchyd out his handes. For nowe Salomon had made a brazen pulpyt of fyue cubytes longe & fyue cubytes broad, and thre of heyghte, & had set it in the myddes of the great court, & vpon it, he stode and kneeled downe, vnd[er] his knees before all the cōgregacyon of Israel & stretched out his hādes toward heauen, & sayde:
* O Lorde God of Israel, there is no God lyke the in heauen and in erth, which keepst coueuant and shewest mercye vnto thy seruauntes that walke before the with all their hertes. Thou which hast kept w[ith] thy seruānt Dauid my father the thynges that thou pro-mysedest him: thou saydest it w[ith] thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thyne handes, as it is to se this daye.

And nowe Lord God of Israel, hepe vnto thy seruauunt Dauid my father, the thynges
a. that thou promysedest him, sayunge: * thou
b. shalt in my syght not be without a mā, that shall sytte vpon the seate of Israel: so that thy chyldezen take hede to thier wayes, to walche in my lawe, as thou hast walked before me.
And nowe Lord God of Israel, lett thy sayunge be true which thou spakest vnto thy ser-uaunt Dauid. And wyll God in very dede,
c. dwell with men on erthe? Beholde * heauen and heauen about all heauens do not con-tayne the: howe moche lesse the house which I haue buylded: Let it be thy pleasure therfore to turne to the prayer of thy seruauunt and to his supplicacyon (O Lord my God) to herken vnto the voyce and prayer which D thy seruauunt prayeth before the: and let thyne eyes be open towarde this house daye and nyght, ouer this place, wherin I haue sayde, that thou woldest put thy name: to herken vnto the prayer which thy seruauunt prayeth in this place: herken vnto the prayers of thy seruauunt & of thy people Israel, which they praye in this place: heare thou (I saye) out of thy dwellinge place, euen out of heauē: heare and be mercyfull. * If a man synne agaynst his neybour, and take on oath agaynst him, and make him to sweare, & they both come before thyne altar in this house: then heare thou from heauen, and worcke, & iudge thy seruauntes, that thou rewarde the vngodly, & recompence him his waie vpon his heed, and  iustice y^e r^yghteous, and geue him acco^rdyng to his r^yght wellicke.

And ys thy people Israel be put to the worke before the encampe, because they haue sinned agaynst the. Yet ys they turne & geue thanks vnto thy name, and make intercession, and praise before the in this house: then heare thou fro heauen, and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and brynge them agayne vnto the lāde, which thou gauest to them and to their fathers.

* When heauen is shut vp, and there be no rayne, because they haue sinned agaynst the: yet if they praye in this place, and con-fesse thy name, and repent from their synne for the which thou chastenest the: then heare thou in heaue, & be mercypfull vnto the synne of thy seruantes and of thy people Irael, and guyde thou the into the good waye, to walke in, and sende rayne vpon thy lande, which thou hast geuen vnto thy people, for an inheritaunce.

And yf there be dearth in the lande, or pe-stylence, corrupeyon, or blastynge of come, gra'hoppers, or caterpillers, or that theyr enemys besege them in the cyties of theyr lande, ~~or~~ (that destroye the countrey) or whatsoeuer plage or sykenesse it be. Then what supplicacious and prayers souer shalbe made of any man, & of all thy people Israel, whych shall knowe euery mā his awne soze and his awne greffe, and shall streche out their han-des towarde this house, thou shalt heare frō heauen, euen from thy dwellynge place, and shalt be mercyfull, and geue euery man ac-cordinge vnto all his wayes, euen as thou doest knowe euery mannes herte: for y onely knowest the hertes of the chyldren of men:
y they maye feare the & walke in thy wayes as long as they lyue in the lāde, which thou gauest vnto oure fathers.

* Moreover, the stranger which is not of thy people Israel, yf he come from a farre lande for thy greate names sake, and thy myghtye haide, and thy stretched out arme, yf they come (I saye) & praye in thy house:
thou shalt heare from heauen, euen from thy dwellynge place, and shalt do accordynge to all that the straüger calleth to the for. That all people of y^eerth maye knowe thy name, and feare y^e, as doeth thy people Israel, and that they maye knowe, howe that in thy house which I haue buyt, thy name is called vpon.

¶ If thy people go out to warre agaynst their enemyes, by the waye that thou shalt sende the, and they praye to the, in the waye
*towarde this cytie which thou hast chosen.

¶ The vii. Chapter.

¶ The fire consumed the sacrifice. The Lorde appeareth to Salomon the seconde tyme.

* 16. re. viii. c.
Leui. i. b.
* 19. re. viii. c.

¶ And * when Salomon had made an ende of prayinge, * there came downe fyre from heauen, & consumed the * burnt offeringe and the sacrifices. And the house was fylled with the glorie of the Lorde, & the preste coulde not go into the house of the Lorde, because the glorie of the Lorde had fylled the Lordes house. And whan all the chyldren of Israel sawe howe the fyre, and the glorie of the Lorde came downe vpon the house, they fell downe flat vpon their faces to the erth vpon the pavement, and worshypped and confesse d vnto the Lorde, that he is gracious, and that his mercede lasteth euer.

¶ And the kynge and all the people offered sacrifices before the Lorde. And kynge Salomon offered a sacrifice of. xxij. thousande oren, and an hundred & twenty thousande shepe. And so the kynge and all the people dedicated the house of God. And prestes wayted on their offces, and the Leuites had the instrumentes of musycke of the Lorde, which kynge Dauid had made to confesse vnto the Lorde, that his mercede lasteth euer, playe a psalme of Dauid with their hande. And the prestes blew with trompettes before the: and all they of Israel stode. Moreover, Salomon halowed the myddle of the court, that was before the Lorde: for there he offered burnt offerings and the fette of the peace offerings, because the brasen aulter which Salomon had made, was not able to receaue the burnt offerings and the meate offerings and the fette.

¶ So at the same tyme Salomon kepte a * feast of seuen dayes, and all they of Israel with him, an exceedyng great congregacō, euen from the cuttinge in of Hamath, vnto the ryuer of Egypt. And in the eyght daye they made a gatheringe. For they kepte the dedicacyon of the aulter seuen dayes, and the feast seuen dayes. And the. xxij. daye of the seuenth moneth, he let the people departe into their tentes glad and merie in hert, for the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed to Dauid, and to Salomon, and to Israel his people. * And so Salomon finished the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house: and all that came in his hert to make in the house of the Lorde, and in his awne house, went prosperously forwarde.

¶ And the Lorde apered to Salomon by nyght, and sayde to him. I haue hearde thy peticyō, and * haue chosen this place for my selfe, to be an house of sacrifice. ¶ I shal vnto heauen, that there be no rayne: or yf I commaunde the locustes to deuoure the lande, or yf I sende pestilence amonge my people: and yf they that are of my people, amonge whom my name is called vpon, do humble them selues, and make intercessyon, and seke my presence, and turne from their wycked wayes, then will I heare from heauen, and be mercyfull to their synne, & wyll heale their lande. ¶ And frō hence forth myne eyes shal be open, and myne eares attent vnto the prayer that is made in this place. And therfore now * I haue chosen and sanctified this house, & my name maye be there for euer: and myne eyes and myne heart shal be there perpetuallye.

¶ And yf thou wilt walke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, to do all that I haue commaunded the, and shalt obserue my statutes and my lawes: then wyll I stablish the seat of thy kyngedome, accordyng as I made the couenaunt with Dauid thy father sayinge: * I shal not be without a man, to be ruler in Israel. ¶ But & yf thou turne awaye, and forsake my statutes, and my commaundementes, which I haue set before you, and shalt go & serue other Gods, and worshyppe them: then wyll I plucke them vpon by the rootes out of my lande which I haue geuen the, and this house, which I haue sanctified for my name, wyll I cast out of my syght, and will make it to be a prouerbe & a least amonge all nacions.

And euery one that passeth by shal be astonied at this house, which belongeth to the most hye God, & shal saye, * why hath the Lorde dealt on this fashion wyth this lande and wyth this house? ¶ The cities, that Salomon buylded after that the house of God was tempel.

¶ 1. 1. nat. iii. c.
and. 11. b.
11. 1. nat. iii. c.

¶ And * it fortuned, that after. xx. yere, when Salomon had buylt the house of the Lorde and his awne house: he buylt the cities that hiram gaue him, and put of the chyldren of Israel in them. And Salomon went to Hamath zoba, and strenghted it. And he buylt Thadmoz in the wyldernes, and repayed all the store cities which were in Hamath. And he buylt Bethhoron the vpper and Bethhoron the nether, stronge cities, haupng walls, gates and barres. And Baalah and all the store cities that Salomon had, and all the charret cities, & the cities of the horsmen, and euery pleasaunt place, that Salomon had lust to buyld in Jerusalem and Libanon, and thowre out all the lande of his dominion.

¶ And all the people that were left of the Hethites, Amorites, Phereytes, Heuites & Jebusites, which were not of the chyldren of Israel: but were the chyldren of them, which were left after them in the lande, and were not consumed of the chyldren of Israel, them dyd Salomon make to paye tribute vnto this daye. ¶ But of the chyldren of Israel dyd Salomon make no bondme for his worke: but they were men of warre and rulers and great Lordes with hym, & captaynes ouer his charretes and horsmen. And kynge Salomons offcers that ouersawe and ruled the people, were two hundred and fyftee.

¶ And Salomon brought the daughter of Pharaos out of the cytie of Dauid, into the house that he had buylded for her. For he sayd: my wyfe shal not dwel in the house of Dauid kynge of Israel, for it is holy, because that the Arke of the Lorde is come vnto it.

¶ Then Salomon offered burnt offerings vnto the Lorde, on the aulter of the Lorde which he had buylt before the porche, doyng euery thyng in his due tyme and offeringe accordyng to the commaundement of Moses, in the sabboties, newmoones, and solemne feastes, * thre tymes in the yere, that is to saye, in the feast of swete bread, in the feast of weekes, and in the feast of tabernacles.

¶ And Salomon set the sortes of prestes to their offces, as Dauid his father had ordered the, and the Leuites in theyr watches for to praye & minstre before the prestes daye by daye, and the porters by course at euery gate. * For so had Dauid the man of God commaunded. And they omptted not the commaundement of the kynge vnto the prestes and the Leuites, concernyng any maner of thyng, and concernyng the treasures. For Salomon made prouisiō for the charges, from the first daye that the foundation of the house of the Lorde was layde: tyll it was fynished, that the house of the Lorde was perfecte. Then went kynge Salomon to Ezion Gaber, and to Elath at the se (see syde in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sent him by the hande of his seruantes, whyches ad seruantes that had knowledge of the see: and they came with the seruantes of Salomon to Ophir, and caried thence foure hundred and fyftee talentes of golde, and brought it to kynge Salomon.

¶ The ix. Chapter.

¶ The communicacyon of Salomon with the quene of Saba, and the gyftes that she gaue the kynge. The death of Salomon, after whom succedeth Rehoboam.

¶ 1. 1. nat. iii. c.
and. 11. b.
11. 1. nat. iii. c.

¶ And * whā the quene of Saba hearde of the fame of Salomon, she came to proue hym in harde questions at Jerusalem, with a very great company, with camelles that bare spices & plenty of golde and precouse stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she communed with hym of all that she had in her herte. And Salomon soyled her, all her questions, and there was not one worde hyd from Salomon, whych he tolde her not.

¶ And when the quene of Saba had sene the wysdome of Salomon and the house that he had buylt, and the meate of his table, the fytyng of his seruantes, and the standing of his wayters, theyr apparell, his burtelars, theyr apparell, his goyng vpon, by the whych he went into the house of the Lorde, ther was nomore spete in her.

¶ And she sayde to the kynge: the sapenge which I heard in myne awne lade, of thine actes, & of thy wysdome, is true. I beleued not thy wordes of the, vntyll I came, & myne eyes had sene it. And beholde, the one halfe of thy wysdome was not tolde me: for thou exceedest & fame that I heard. Happye are thy men, and happye are these thy seruantes which stande before the alwaye, & heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Lorde thy God, which had lust to the, to set the kynge on his seat, that thou myghtest be kynge, ordered by the Lorde thy God. Because thy God loveth Israel, and hath delpte to make them contynue euer, therfore made he the kynge ouer them to do ryght and equyte.

¶ And

E And he gaue the kyng an hundred & xx. talentes of golde, and of spyes exceedynge great abundaunce and precious stones, neither was there any more soche spye, as the quene of Saba gaue kyng Salomon. And the seruauntes of Hiram and the seruauntes of Salomon which brought golde from Ophir, brought also Algume wood and precious stones. And the kyng made of the Algume wood, steyres in the house of the Lorde and in the kynges palace, and harpes and psalteries for syngers. And there was no loch wood sene before in the lande of Iuda. And kyng Salomon gaue to the quene of Saba every pleasaunt thing that she asked but not so moche as she brought vnto the kyng. And so she turned and went away to her awne lande with her seruauntes.

D The weyght of golde that came to Salomon in one yere, was syxe hundred. lvi. talentes of golde, besydes that which chapmen and marchauntes brought: and all the kynges of Arabia and rulers of that countrey, brought gold and syluer to Salomon. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten golde, and vi. hundred bycles of beaten gold were spent vpon one bucklar, and thre hundred shylde made he of beaten gold, and one shylde cost thre hundred peces of golde, and the kyng put them in the house that was in the forest of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seat of Iuorie, & ouerlayde it with pure golde. And there were syxe steyres to the seate wyth a fote stole of golde fastened to the seate: and pomelles on eche syde of the syttinge place, and two lyons standynge by the pomelles. And xii. lyons stode on the one syde and on the other: vpon the syxe steyres, so that there was no soche worke made in any kyngdome.

And all the bypnyng vessels of kyng Salomon were of golde, and all the vessels of the house that was in the forest of Libanon, were of precious golde: for syluer was counted nothyng worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the kynges shyppes wente to Tharsis wyth the seruauntes of Hiram: every thre yere once came the shippes to Tharsis, and brought golde, syluer, Iuorie and apes and peccokes.

E And kyng Salomon passed all the kynges of the earth in wysdomme and wysedome. And all the kynges of the earth sought the presence of Salomon, to heare his wysdome that God had put in his herte: And they brought every man his present: vessels of syluer, and vessels of golde, rayment, harnesse, spyes, horses and mules, and what soeuer myght be gotten, yere by yere.

E And Salomon had foure thousande stables for horses and charettes, & twelue thousande horsemen, whom he bestowed in the charret cyties, & some were with the kyng at Ierusalem. And he raygned ouer all the kynges that were fro Euphrates vnto the lade of the Philistines, ad to the border of Egypt. E And the kyng made syluer in Ierusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plenteous, as the mulberry trees that growe in the valleyes. And they brought vnto Salomon horses out of Egypt, & out of all lades.

E The rest of the actes of kyng Salomon, fyrst and last, are they not writte in the saynges of Nathan the prophete, and in the prophete of Ahiah the Silonite, and in the visions of Jedo the sear of visions, agaynst Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat. And Salomon raygned in Ierusalem vpon all Israel fourtye yeres. And Salomon slepte wyth his fathers, and they buried hym in the cytie of Dauid his father, and Rehoboam his sonne raygned in his steade.

The x. Chapter.

The fourthe of Rehoboam, and the description of his realme.

A And Rehoboam went to Sichem: for to Sichem were all Israel come together, to make hym kyng. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat (which was fled into Egypte from the presence of Salomon the kyng) hearde it, he returned out of Egypt. And they sent ad called hym. And so Jeroboam and all they of Israel came and comoned wyth Rehoboam, sayenge: Thy father layed a greuous pocke vpon vs: nowe therefore remytte thou somewhat of the greuous scrupce of thy father and of his heuie pocke that he put vpon vs, and we wyll serue the. And he sayde to the: come agayne vnto me after thre dayes. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam counsayled wyth the elders that had stande before Salomon his father, whyle he yet lyued, and he sayde: what counsell geue ye me, to answer this people agayne? And they tolde him, sayenge: If thou be kynde to this people, and shewe thy selfe lowely to the, and speake lounge wordes to the, they wyll be thy seruauntes for ever. But he left the counsell whiche the elders gaue him, and toke counsell wyth the youngemen, that were growen vp wyth hym and that stode in his presence. And he sayde vnto the: what aduise geue ye, that we may answer this people, which haue comoned wyth me, sayenge: Abate some what of the pocke, which thy father dyd put vpon vs.

And the yonge men that were growen vp wyth hym, spake vnto hym, sayenge: Thus shalt thou answer the people that spake to the, sayenge: Thy father made oure pocke heuie: but make thou it some what lyghter for vs. Thus shalt thou saye vnto the, my litle synger shalt be heuier then my fathers, lopnes lopnes. E For where my father put a heuie pocke vpon you, I wyll put more to your pock: my father chastyled you with whippes, but I wyll chastyce you with scorpions.

And so Jeroboam & all the people came to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kyng hadde, sayenge: come agayne to me the thyrde daye. And the kyng answered them cruelly: and kyng Rehoboam left the counsell of the aged men, and answered them after the aduise of the yonge men, sayenge: My father made your pocke greuous, and I wyll adde thereto: my father chastyled you with whippes, but I wyll chastyce you with scorpions. And so the kyng herkened not vnto the people: but the occasion came of God, & the Lord myght make good his saying, which he spake, by the hande of Ahiah the Silonite, to Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat.

D And when all they of Israel sawe that the kyng wolde not agree vnto them, the people answered the kyng sayenge: what parte haue we w David, or enheritaunce w the sonne of Hui: let every man of Israel go to his tent. E And now Dauid, se to thyn awne house. And so all Israel gat them to their tentes, so the Rehoboam raygned ouer no moore of the chyldren of Israel, then dwelt in the cyties of Iuda. Then kyng Rehoboam also sente Haduram the ruler ouer the tribute, and the chyldren of Israel stoned hym w stones & he dyed. But kyng Rehoboam made speede to get him vp to his charret, to fye to Ierusalem. And they of Israel rebelled agaynst the house of Dauid wito this daye.

The xi. Chapter.

Rehoboam is forbidden to fight agaynst Jeroboam. He hath xviij. wyues, and ix. concubines, and by them xviij. sonnes, and ix. daughters.

A And whan Rehoboam was come to Ierusalem, he gathered of the house of Iuda & Benjamin, nyne score thousande cholen men of warre to fight agaynst Israel, & to bypnyge the kyngdome agayne to Rehoboam. And the word of the Lorde came to Semelaihu the man of God, sayenge: speake vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda, & to all them of Israel that are in Iuda & Benjamin, & saye: thus sayeth the Lorde. Ye shall not go vpon nor fight agaynst your brethren: retorne every man to his house, for this thyng is done of me. And they obeyed the wordes of the Lorde, and returned fro bypnyge agaynst Jeroboam.

E And Rehoboam dwelt in Ierusalem, and buylt stronge cyties in Iuda. He buylded vp Bethleem, and Etcham, and Ethko: Bethzur, Socho and Adullam: Gath, and Marisa: and ziph Aduraim, Lachis and Ascha: forza Aialon and Hebron, which is in Iuda & Benjamin, stronge cyties. And he repayred the stronge holdes & put captaynes in them, and store of vitayle, & wyne, & oyle. And in all cyties he put shylde & speares, and made them exceedynge stronge, haupnyge Iuda and Benjamin on his syde.

And the prestes and leuites that were in all Israel, resorted to hym out of all their coastes. For the leuites left their suburbs and their possession, and came to Iuda and Ierusalem: for Jeroboam and his sonnes had cast them out from ministry vnto the Lorde. E And he ordeyned hym prestes for the hyplaltares, for the deuylles and for the calues which he had made. And after the leuites there went of all the trybes of Israel, soche as submitted their hertes to seke the Lorde God of Israel, and came to Ierusalem, to offer vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And so they strengthened the kyngdome of Iuda, and made Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon myghte thre yere longe, for thre yere they walked in the waye of Dauid and Salomon.

And Rehoboam toke hym Mahalath the daughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Dauid to wyfe, and Abihail the daughter of Eliab the sonne of Hui, which bare hym chyldren Jeus, Samaria, and Zaba. And after her he toke Maaca the daughter of Abialon which bare hym Abia, Attai, Ziza, & Selomith. And Rehoboam loued Maacah the daughter of Abialon aboue all his wyues & concubynes, for he toke eyghtene wyues and thre score concubynes, and begat xviij. sonnes and ix. daughters. And Rehoboam made Abiah the sonne of Maacah the chiefe ruler amonge his brethren, and to haue the ouersyght of the kyngdome. And he played wysely, and scatered all his chyldren thorow out all the countreys of Iuda and Benjamin vnto every stronge cytie. And he gaue them abundaunce of vitayle, and obtrayned many wyues.

The xii. Chapter.

Sekai kyng of Egypte robbeth the temple of the Lorde. Rehoboam dyeth, & Abia his sonne succedeth hym.

A And it came to passe, that when Rehoboam had stablyshed the kyngdome, and became myghte, he forsoke the lawe of the Lorde, and all Israel with him.

E And

iii. reg. m. l.

* And it fortuned, that in the fyfte yere of kynge Rehoboam, Sefac the kynge of Egypte came vp agaynst Jerusalem, because they had transgressed agaynst the Lorde wth xii. charrettes, and lx. m. horsemen. And the people were without nombre, that came with hym out of Egypte Lubim, Sukkim, and the blackmores. And they toke the stronge cyties in Juda, and came to Jerusalem.

Then came Semcia p^rophete to Rehoboam & to the Lordes of Juda, that were gathered together within Jerusalem for Sefac, and sayd vnto them: thus sayd the Lord, ye haue left me, & therfore haue I also left you in p^rhades of Sefac. Whereupon the lordes of Israel and the kynge humbled them selues, and sayde, the Lorde is ryghteous. And when the Lorde sawe that they submitted them selues, the worde of p^r Lorde came to Semcia, sayinge: They submitte them selues, therfore I wyl not destroye them. But I wyl deliuer them somewhat, and my wrath shall not burne vpon Jerusalem by p^rhade of Sefac. Neuerthelesse, they shalbe hys seruantes, to knowe what difference is betwene my seruice, and the seruice of the kyngdomes of the worlde.

C And so Sefac kynge of Egypte came to Jerusalem, and toke awaye the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of p^r kynges house: he toke euen all. And he caried awaye the chyldes of golde, * which Salomon made. In steade of which, kynge Rehoboam made chyldes of brasse, and compted them to the hâdes of the captaynes which had p^rouersight of the fofemen, and that kept the entraunce of p^r kynges house. And it came to passe, that when the kynge entred into the house of the Lorde, the garde came & fet them, and brought them agayne vnto the garde chambze. And when he humbled hym selfe, the wrath of the Lorde turned from hym, that he wolde not destroye all together. And in Juda all was well.

D And so kynge Rehoboam waxed myghty & raygned in Jerusalem. And Rehoboam was xli. yere olde, whē he began to raygne, & he raygned. xlii. yeres in Jerusalem, the cytie which the Lorde had chosen out of all the trybes of Israel to put his name there. And hys mothers name was Naama an Ammonitess. * And he dyd euill, because he prepared not hys hart to seke the Lorde.

The actes also of Rehoboam, fyrst and last, are they not wyrtten in p^r sayinges of Semcia the prophete, and of Iddo the sear which noted the genealogie: and there was warre alwaye betwene Rehoboam & Jeroboam. And Rehoboam slept wth his fathers, and was buryed in the cytie of Dauid, and Abia his sonne raygned in his steade.

The xlii. Chapter.

The victorie of Abia agaynst Jeroboam.

In the xlii. yere of kynge Jeroboam * began Abia to raygne ouer Juda, & he raygned thre yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Michatihu the daughter of Uriel of Gibea. And there was warre betwene Abia & Jeroboam. And Abia made prouisyon for p^r warre, haung valeant & expert men of warre, euen. iiii. C. m. chosen men. And Jeroboam set him selfe in aray to fyght agaynst hym, w. viii. C. m. picked men which were stronge & men of armes.

And Abia stode by vps zemaraim an hill which is in mount Ephraim, & sayd: heare me p^r Jeroboam and all Israel. Do not you knowe, howe p^r the Lorde God of Israel gaue p^r kyngdome, ouer them of Israel, to Dauid for euer, euen to hym and to hys sonnes & with a salted couenaunt: And Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat p^r seruauit of Salomon the sonne of Dauid is rylen vp, & hath rebelled agaynst his lorde. And they gathered to hym leude men p^r chyldre of Belial, & preyed agaynst Rehoboam p^r sonne of Salomon: when Rehoboam was yong & tender hearted, & coulde not stande before them.

And now ye saye, p^r ye be able to preyale agaynst p^r kyngdome of the Lorde, which is in p^r hande of the sonnes of Dauid, & ye be a greate multitude, & haue the golden calues * which Jeroboam made you for gods. And * haue ye not cast out the prestes of the Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the leuites, and haue made you prestes after the maner of the naciōs of other lades: so that whosoeuer cometh, & consecrateth his hâde with a ydole & seuen rammes, the same maye be a preste of them that are no gods.

But we belonge vnto the Lorde our God whom we haue not forsaken, and p^r prestes are p^r sonnes of Aaron, which ministre vnto the Lorde, and p^r leuites wayte vpon the office. They burne vnto p^r Lorde euery morninge & euenyng, burnt sacrifices & swete incense: p^r thewe breed set they in ordze vpon a pure table: & prepare p^r candellstick of gold wth the lāpes of p^r same to burne euer at euen. And truly we kepe the watche of the Lorde oure God: but ye haue forsake him. And behold, God hym selfe is our captayne, & hys prestes blowe wth the * trôpettes, & crye alarum agaynst you. O ye chyldzen of Israel, fyght not agaynst the Lorde God of your fathers: for it wyl not prosper with you.

But for all p^r Jeroboam couayed men preyely about, to come behynde them: & so they were before Juda, & p^r layers in wayte were behynde the. And when they of Juda looked about, behold the battayll was before & behynde, & they cryed vnto p^r Lorde & p^r prestes blew wth p^r trôpettes, & p^r men of Juda gaue a spowte

D showte. And as the men of Juda showted, it came to passe, that God smote Jeroboam and all Israel before Abia and Juda. And p^r chyldzen of Israel fled before Juda, and God deliuered them into theyr hande. And Abia & hys people slue a greate slaughter of the: there fell downe wounded of Israel. v. C. m. chosen men. And so the chyldzen of Israel were brought vnder, at that tyme, and the chyldre of Juda preyed: because they leaned vnto the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Abia folowed after Jeroboam, and toke cities from hym, Bethel wth the townes belongyng thereto, Jesana with the townes that lodged thereto, and Ephron with her townes. And Jeroboam recovered no strength agayne in p^r daies of Abia. And p^r Lorde plagued him, & he dyed.

But Abia waxed myghty, and married xlii. wyues, and begat. xlii. sonnes, and. xvi. daughters. The rest of the actes of Abia, his customes and hys sayinges are wyrtten in the booke of the prophete Iddo.

The xliii. Chapter.

Of Asa kynge of Juda.

Asia slepte wth hys fathers, and they buryed hym in p^r cytie of Dauid, and * Asa hys sonne raygned in hys steade. In whose dayes the lande was in quyetnes ten yere.

And * Asa dyd that was good & right in the eyes of the Lorde hys God: for he toke awaye straunge altars and the hyllaltars, and brake downe the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and commaunded Juda to seke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, and to do accordyng to the lawe and comaundement. And he put awaye out all the cyties of Juda the hyllaltars and the ymages: and p^r kyngdome was quyet before hym. And he buylte stronge cities in Juda: because the land was in rest, and he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lorde had geuen hym rest.

Therfore he sayde to Juda: let vs buyld these cities, and make about them walles, towres, gates and barres, for the lade is yet in rest before vs, because we haue sought the Lorde oure God: we haue sought hym, and he hath geuen vs rest on euery side: & so they buylt and it prospered with them. And Asa had an armye of men that bare chyldes and speares, out of Juda, thre hundred thousand: and out of Benjamin that bare chyldes and dme bowes, two hundred & foure skore thousand, all these were valeant men.

And there came out agaynst them Zarah the black mozan * with an hoost of ten hundred thousande, and thre hundred charrettes, and came as farre as Marela. And Asa wēt out before him, and they ioyned the battayll in the valey of Zephata besyde Marela. And Asa cryed vnto the Lorde hys God, & sayde: Lorde, * it is no harde thige with p^r to helpe ether many, or the that haue no power: helpe vs therfore, O Lorde our God, for we trust to the, and in thy name we go agaynst thys myltitude. Thou arte the Lorde oure God, and no man shall preyale agaynst the.

So the Lorde smote the blacke mores before Asa and Juda, & the blacke mores fled. And Asa and the people that was with him, folowed after them vnto Serar. And the blacke mores hoost was ouerthrowen, that there was none of them left, but were destroyed before the Lorde and before his host. And they caried awaye a myghty greate praye. And they smote all the cyties rounde about Serar. For the feare of p^r Lorde came vpon them. And they spoyled all the cyties and there was excedyng moche spoye in them. They smote also the tentes of catell, & caried awaye plentye of shepe and camels, and returned to Jerusalem.

The xlv. Chapter.

Kynge Asa by the monycon of the prophete Azaria sacrificeth to the Lorde. He dep^r with his mother of her domnyon.

As the sprete of God came on Azaria the sonne of Obed. And he went out to mete Asa, & sayde vnto him: heare me Asa, and all Juda, & Benjamin. The Lorde is with you, while ye be with hym, and when ye seke hym, he wyl be founde of you: and agayne, when ye forsake hym, he also wyl forsake you. And truly, for a longe season in Israel no mā sought the true God, no mā regarded p^r preste that taught them, no mā cared for the lawe. And when any man in hys trouble dyd turne vnto the Lorde God of Israel, and sought hym, he was founde of them. And in that tyme there was no peace to hym, that dyd go out and in: but greate sedicion was there amonge all the inhabytens of the earth. And nacyon was destroyed of nacyon, and cytie of cytie: for God dyd moue all aduersitee against them. Playe ye therfore the men, and let not your handes slacke, for your worke shalbe rewarded.

And when Asa hearde those wordes, and the prophete of Azaria the sonne of Obed p^r prophete, he toke courage, & put awaye the abhominable ydols out of all p^r lande of Juda and Benjamin, & out of the cities which he wāne in mount Ephraim, and renued the altar of the Lorde, that was before p^r porch of the Lorde. And he gathered all Juda and Benjamin, and the straungers with the out of Ephraim, Manasse, & Simron. For there fell many to hym out of Israel, when they sawe that the Lorde hys God was wth hym. So they assembled at Jerusalem the thyrde monethe, the fyfteenth yere of the raygne of Asa. And they offered vnto the Lorde p^r same tyme of the spoye which they had brought vj. C. oxen, and. vij. thousande shepe.

And they made a couenaunt to seke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, with all theyr hert & all theyr soule. And whosoever wolde not seke the Lorde God of Israel, shulde dye for it: whether he were small or great, mā or woman. And they sware vnto the Lorde with a loude voyce, howtyng & blowyng wyth troyettes and shawmes. And all they in Iuda reioyced at y^e o^rth, for they had sworne vnto the Lorde, with all theyr herte, and fought hym with all theyr lust, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue the rest rounde about on euery syde.

And kinge Asa put Maacha his mother out of auctorite, because she had made an abominable ydoll ^(of silver) in a groue: and Asa brake downe her ydoll, and staped it, & burnt it at the brake Cedron. But all y^e hylaulters were nottaken awaye out of Israel: though the hert of Asa was perfecte all hys dayes. And he brought into y^e house of God the thynges that hys father had dedicat, and that he hym selfe had dedicate: euen spyluer, & golde, and Jewelles. And ther was nomore warre vnto the xxxv. yere of the raygne of Asa.

The xvi. Chapter.

Asa, for feare of Baasa kyng of Israel, maketh a couenaunt with Benhadad kyng of Siria.

In the xxxvi. yere of the raygne of Asa, came Baasa kyng of Israel vp agaynst Iuda, and buylt Ramoth, to the entent that he wolde let none passe out or in ^(to Iuda) to Asa kyng of Iuda. And Asa fet out golde and syluer, out of the treasures of y^e house of the Lorde, & of the kynges house, & sent to Benhadad kyng of Siria y^e dwelt at Damascus, and sayd: There is a confederacion betwene me & the, betwene my father & thine. Beholde, I haue sent the syluer and golde, that thou wylt come and breake thine appoyntment wth Baasa kyng of Israel, that he maye departe fro me. And Benhadad graunted vnto kyng Asa, and sent to the captaynes of hys armie to the cityes of Israel. And they smote Tiron, Dā, and Abelmān, and the strong cyties of Nephtali. And when Baasa heard this, he left buyldyng of Ramoth, and let his worke cease. And then Asa the kyng toke all Iuda, and carped awaye the stones and tymbre of Ramoth, wherewith Baasa was a buyldyng, and he buylt therewith Seba and Miza.

At that same tyme, haui the fear came to Asa kyng of Iuda, & sayde vnto hym: because thou hast trusted in the kyng of Siria, and not rather put thy trust in the Lorde thy God, therfore is the host of the kyng of Siria escaped out of thine hāde. * had not the blacke mores and Lubim an exceeding great host with many charettes and horsemen: And yet because thou trustedest in the Lorde, he deliuered them into thine hande. For the eyes of y^e Lorde beholde all the erth, to strength them that are of perfecte hert towarde him. * herin thou hast done folshly, and therfore from henceforth thou shalt haue warre. And Asa was wroth with the sear, & put him into a p^reson house, for he was displeased with hym because of thys thyng. And Asa destroyed certayne of the people the same season.

And beholde, these dedes of Asa, fyrst, & last, are wyrtten in the boke of the kinges of Iuda and Israel. And Asa in the xxxix. yere of hys raygne fell speke in hys fete, and that hys disease continued very longe. And in hys syknes he sought not the Lorde, but physicians. And Asa slept with his fathers, and dyed in the xij. yere of hys raygne. And they buryed hym in his awne sepulchre, which he had made for hym selfe in the ctyte of Dauid, and layed hym in the bed which he had fylled with dyuerse kyndes of spices & sweete odours, made by the craft of the potecaryes. And they burnt very moch spyce about him.

The xvii. Chapter.

Jehosaphat causeth the feare of the Lorde to be renewed amonge the people.

And Jehosaphat his sone raygned in hys strade, & p^reuayled agaynst Israel. And he put souldyers in all the stronge cityes of Iuda, and sett rulers in the lande of Iuda and in the cityes of Ephraim, which Asa his father had wone. And the Lorde was with Jehosaphat, because he walked in the olde wayes of his father Dauid, and sought not Baalim. But sought the Lorde God of hys father, & walked in hys commaundmentes: and not after the doynges of Israel. And the Lorde stablished the kyngdome in his hande, and all they that were in Iuda, brought hym presentes, so that he had aboundance of riches and honoure. And he lyft up his hert vnto y^e wayes of the Lorde, and he putt downe yet more of the hylaulters and groues out of Iuda.

In the thyrde yere of hys raygne he sent to hys lordes, euen to Benbail, Obadiah, Zacharia, Bethanel and to Michaahu, y^e they shulde teach in the cityes of Iuda, and with them he sent leuites: euen Semelahu, Bethaniahu, zabadiahu, Asahel, Semiramoth, & Tubadonia, and with them Elisamah and Jehoram prestes. And they taught in Iuda, and had the boke of the lawe of God wth the, and went about thorowout all the cityes of Iuda, and taught the people.

And the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all y^e kyngdomes of the landes that were rounde about Iuda, & they sought not agaynst Jehosaphat. And some of y^e philistines brought Jehosaphat gyftes, and tribute syluer: And therfo therfo the Arabians brought him catell: eue vij. M. and vij. C. rammes, and vij. M. and vij. C. hegoates. And so Jehosaphat prospered & grue vp on hys. And he buylt in Iuda, castels and stronge ctyes: & he had great substance in the cityes of Iuda, but the men of armes & strongest souldiers were in Ierusalem.

And these are the offces of the in the houses of their fathers, the captaynes ouer thousandes in Iuda. Adna the captayne, & with hym of fightyngemen. iij. C. M. And next to hys hande was Jehohanan a captayne, and with hym. iij. C. and lxxx. M. And nexte him was Amasia the sone of zichi, which of his awne good wil offred him selfe vnto y^e Lorde, and wth hym. iij. C. M. myghty men of warre. And of the chyldren of Benjamin, Eliada a man of myght, and had with hym armed mē with bowe & shylde. iij. C. M. And nexte hym was Jeholabad, and with hym an. C. and lxxx. M. that were prepared for the warre. These wayted on the kyng, besydes those which the kyng put in the stronge ctyes thorowout all Iuda.

The xviii. Chapter.

After Ahab had asked counsell of the four hundred prophetes, he put Micha in p^reson. He dyeth with the host of an arorie.

And Jehosaphat had aboundance of rycheffe and honoure, and toynded affynite wth Ahab. And after certayne yeres he wēt downe to Ahab to Samaria. And Ahab slue many shepe & oren for hym, and for the people that he had with hym, and entreated him to go vp with hym vnto Ramoth in Gilcad. And Ahab kyng of Israel sayde to Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda: wylt thou go with me to Ramoth in Gilcad? And he answered hym: I wyl be as y^e, and my people shalbe as thine, and we wyl go with the to the warre.

And Jehosaphat sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: aske counsell I praye y^e, at the worde of the Lorde, thys same daye. Therfore the kyng of Israel gathered together of prophetes. iij. C. men, and sayde vnto the: shall we go to Ramoth in Gilcad to fyght, or shulde I cease? And they sayde: go vp, & God shall deliuer it into the kynges hāde. But Jehosaphat sayde: is there yet here neuer a prophete more of the Lordes, y^e we might aske of him? And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto Jehosaphat: there is yet one man, by whō we maye aske the Lorde. But I hate him: for he neuer prophecieth me good, but alwaye euell, and the same is Micha the sonne of Jimla. And Jehosaphat sayd: let not the kyng saye so.

And the kyng of Israel called one of his chāberlaynes, and sayde: fetch hether quykly Micha the sonne of Jimla. And y^e kyng of Israel and Jehosaphat kyng of Iuda late ether of the on his seate in their apparell, in a thershyng floure beside y^e gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes prophesied before the. And one zedekia the sonne of Chanana had made hym hornes of yron, & sayd: thus sayth the Lorde: with these shall y^e ouerthrowe Siria, but yll they be brought to naught. And all the prophetes prophesied eue so, sayinge: Go vp to Ramoth in Gilcad, and it shall prosper with the: for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the hande of the kyng.

And the messenger y^e wēt to call Micha, spake to him, saying: beholde, the wordes of the prophetes speake good to the kyng with one assent, lett thy wordes therfore be lyke one of theirs, that thou speake that which is pleasaunt. And Micha sayd: as truly as the Lorde lieth: euen what my God sayth, that wyl I speake. And whā he was come to the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto hym: Micha, shuld we go to Ramoth in Gilcad to fyght, or leaue of? And he sayde: go vp, & all shalbe well: & they shalbe deliuered into your hāde. And the kyng sayde to him: So & so maye y^emes do I charge the, y^e thou saye norayng but y^e trouth to me, in the name of the Lorde.

Then he sayde: I dyd se all the of Israel scattered in the mountaynes, as shepe y^e haue no shepherde. And the Lorde sayde: these haue no master, let then retorne euery mā therfore to hys house in peace. And the kyng of Israel sayd to Jehosaphat: opd I not tell the, y^e he wold not pphery good vnto me: but euell.

But he sayde agayne: therfore heare y^e wordes of the Lorde. * I sawe the Lorde sitt vpon his seate, & all the company of heauen stode on hys ryght hande & on hys left. And y^e Lorde sayde: who shall deceaue Ahab kyng of Israel, y^e he maye go vp & be ouerthrowen at Ramoth in Gilcad? And he sayde: one sayth this, another that. And there came out a spiete, & stode before the Lorde, & sayde: I wyl deceaue him. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: Wherin? And he sayd: I will go out, & be a lyinge spiete in y^e mouth of all his prophetes. And the Lorde sayde: y^e shalt deceaue him, and shalt p^reuayle: go out, and do euen so. And now therfore beholde, * y^e Lorde hath put a lyinge spiete in the mouthes of all these thy prophetes, & the Lorde hath spoken euell agaynst the. And zedekia the sonne of Chanana went to, & smote Micha vpon y^e cheke. & sayde: by what waye went the spiete of the Lorde fro me, to speake wth the? And Micha sayde: thou shalt se the daye when I shal go in from chābze to chābze, for I shal be thy selfe. And the kyng of Israel sayd: take ye Micha, and byngge hym to y^e mon y^e gouerner of the ctyte, & to Iosias the kynges sonne, & ye shal saye: thus sayth the kyng: putt thys felowe in the p^reson house, & fede hym wth bread of affliction & water of tresselle vntill I come agayne in peace. And Michā sayde: y^e come agayne in peace, the hath not the Lord spoken to me. And he sayde: hearken to, ye people every one of you. And so the kinge of Israel and Jehosaphat the kinge of Juda went vp to Ramoth in Silead. And þe kyng of Israel sayde vnto Jehosaphat: I must chaunge me, when I go to the battayll: but se that thou haue thynne awne apparell vpon the. And the kyng of Israel chaunged hym selfe, and they came to battayll. But þe kyng of Siria had commaunded the captaynes of the charrettes that were with him, sayinge: se that ye fight not agaynst small or greute, saue agaynst the kyng of Israel onely.

And when the captaynes of the charrettes sawe Jehosaphat, they sayde: it is the kyng of Israel, and therfore they compassed about hym to fyght. But Jehosaphat cryed out, & the Lord helped him, and God chased them a waye from hym. For it came to passe that when the captaynes of the charrettes perceaued that it was not the kyng of Israel, they turned backe agayne fro hym. And a certayn mā dæwe a bowe with all hys myght, and smote the kyng of Israel betwene þe shoulters of his habergeyn. And he sayd to hys charretman: turne thynne hande, þe thou mayest carpe me out of the host: for I am wounded. And the battayll ceased that daye. Howbeit the king of Israel caused his charret to stand still agaynst the Siria vntyll euen. And about the tyme of the sunne going downe, he dyed.

¶ The xix. Chapter.

¶ After Jehosaphat was rebuked by the prophete Jechu, he called agayne the people to the honoure of the Lord God.

And Jehosaphat the kyng of Juda came home agayne in peace to Jerusalem. And Jechu the sonne of Hanani the sear wēt out to mete hym, and sayde to kyng Jehosaphat: Woldest þe helpe the vngodly, and loue them þe hate the Lord? Therfore is wrath come downe vpon the, fro before the Lord. Neuertheles, there are some good actes founde in the, in þe thou hast bene downe the groues out of the lande, and hast prepared thynne herte to seke God. And so Jehosaphat dwelt at Jerusalem: & turned & went out to the people fro Beerseba to mount Ephraim, & brought the again vnto þe Lord God of their fathers. And he set iudges in the lāde thozowout all the strong cityes of Juda, cite by cite: & sayde to the iudges: take hede what ye do, for ye execute not the iudgements of mā, but of God, which is wpon you in the iudgement. Wherfore now, let the feare of þe Lord be vpon you, and take hede, & be doyng the thynges þe please hym.

¶ For ther is no myghte welsnes w the Lord oure God: * þe shulde haue any respecte of persones, or take rewardes.

¶ Moreover, in Jerusalem dyd Jehosaphat set of the leuites, and of the prestes and of the auncient fathers ouer Israel, in þe iudgement

& cause of þe Lord. And they returned agayne to Jerusalem. And he charged them sayinge: Thus shall ye do in the feare of the Lord, w the tructh & a pure herte: What cause soener come to you of your brethzen þe dwell in their cyties, betwene bloud & bloud, betwene law and comaūdment, betwene statutes & ordynāces, ye shall warne them, & they trespase not agaynst the Lord, & so wrath come vpon you & on youre brethzen. Thus do, & ye shall not offende. And behold, Amaria þe hye prest is amonge you in all matters of the Lord, & zebadia the sonne of Ismael, a ruler of the house of Juda, he is ouer soch busynesses as concern the kyng: there be offycers of the leuites also before you. Take courage to you therfore, and be doyng manfully: and the Lord shall be with soche as be good.

¶ The xx. Chapter.

¶ The merueilous victorie that the Lord gaue Jehosaphat kyng of Juda agaynst the Moabites, and the chyldren of Ammon, and them of Siria.

After this also, it fortunyd þe chyldren of Moab and the chyldre of Ammon, and w them other of the Ammonites came agaynst Jehosaphat to battayll. And there came some that tolde Jehosaphat sayinge: there cometh a greute multitude agaynst the fro the other syde of the see, & out of Siria. And beholde, they be in Hasalon Thamar, which is Engadi. And Jehosaphat feared, and let him selfe to seke þe Lord, and proclaimed fastyng thozowout all Juda. And they þe were in Juda, gathered them selues together, to aske counsell of the Lord. And they came out of all the cityes of Juda, to make intercessyon to the Lord. And Jehosaphat stode betwene the congregacion of Juda and Jerusalem in the house of the Lord before the newe courte, and sayde: O Lord God of our fathers, art not thou God in heuen, and raygneest not thou on all the kyngdomes of the hethen? And in thynne hande is power and myght, and there is no man that is able to withstande the. Art not thou oure God, which dydest cast out the inhabiteurs of this lande before thy people Israel, and gauest it to the seede of Abraham thy loue for euer? And they dwelt therein, and haue buylt the a tēple therein for thy name, sayinge: * Vt euell come vpon vs, as the swerde of iudgement, pestilence or hongre: then, yf we stand before this house in thy presence, for thy name is in this house, and crye vnto the in our tribulacyon, heare thou, and helpe.

And now beholde, the chyldre of Ammon, and Moab, & mount Seir, by whō þe woldest not let the of Israel go, when they came out of the lande of Egypte: but they departed fro them, & destroyed the not. Se, howe they rewardes vs, to come for to cast vs out of thy posseltyon, which þe hast geuen vs to inheret. O our God, wylt thou not iudge the: for we haue haue no myght agaynst this greute cōpanye that commeth agaynst vs. Nether wote we what to do: but oure eyes be vnto the.

And all Juda stode before the Lord w their yongcones, they wyues & they chyldren: & ther was Jehasiel the sonne of zacharia the sonne of Banaiā þe sonne of Jeciel the sonne of Nathanā, a leuite of the sonnes of Asaph, and vpon hym came the sperte of the Lord, euē in the myddes of the cōgregacion. And he sayde: hearken all Juda, and ye inhabiteurs of Jerusalem, & thou king Jehosaphat: Thus sayth þe Lord vnto you: be not afrayd nor saynte herted by reason of this greute multitude: for þe battayll is not poures: but Gods. To morow go ye downe agaynst the: for they come vpon at 3, & ye shall finde them at the ende of the broke before the wilderness of Ieruel. Ye shall not neede to fyght in this battayll: but steppe forth & stāde, & beholde þe helpe of the Lord which is with you: feare not, nor let poure hertes faile you, O ye of Juda and of Jerusalem. To morowe go out agaynst the: for the Lord wylbe with you.

And Jehosaphat bowed hys face to the erth, and all Juda and the inhabiteurs of Jerusalem fell before the Lord worshippinge the Lord. And the leuites of the chyldren of the Cabathites and of the chyldre of the Corabites stode vp, to prayse the Lord God of Israel with a loude voyce on hye. And whā they arose earlye in the mornyng, they gat them out vnto the wyldernesse of Thekoa.

And as they wēt out, Jehosaphat stode and sayde: heare me, O Juda, & ye inhabiteurs of Jerusalem. Put your trust in the Lord your God, that ye maye be foude saythfull. Geue credence to hys prophetes, & so shall ye prosper. And he gaue the people counsell, and set some to syng vnto the Lord, & to prayse him in the bewtye of holynes, & to go out before the army, as they went, and to saye: prayse þe Lord for hys mercy lasteth euer. And what tyme as they began to laude & prayse, then the Lord stered vpon certayne of the chyldren of Ammon and Moab, which layed wayte for the that were of mount Seir: which were come agaynst Juda. And they were overthrowen with strokes amonge them selues. For the chyldren of Ammon and Moab rose agaynst þe inhabiteurs of mount Seir. And they slew and destroyed them. And whā they had made an ende of the inhabiteurs of Seir, euery one helped to destroye another amonge them selues.

And whā Juda came to the edge of þe wilderness, they looked vnto the multitude. And beholde, they were deed carcasses fallē to the erth, & none escaped. And whā Jehosaphat and hys people came to take a waye þe spoyle of the, they founde amonge the a boundaunce of goodes, rayment and pleasant Jewels, which they toke for the selues, more the they could carpe a waye: so þe they were the dayes in gatherynge of the spoyle, it was so moch. And the fourth daie they assembled in þe valley of blessinge: for there they blessed þe Lord: And therfore they called the name of þe same place, the valeye of blessing vnto this daye. And so all the men of Juda & Jerusalem returned with Jehosaphat they heade, for to go agayne to Jerusalem with gladnesse: for the Lord had made them to reioyse ouer they enemies. And they came to Jerusalem with psalteryes and harpes, & shawmcs, euē vnto the house of the Lord. And the feare of God fell in the kyngdomes of all lādes, whā they had hearde that the Lord fought agaynst þe enemies of Israel. And so the realme of Jehosaphat was in tranquillite: and hys God gaue hym rest on euery syde.

And Jehosaphat raygned vpon Juda, & was xxxv. yere olde when he began to raygne, & raygned xxxv. yere in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Aisba the daughter of Silhi. And he walked in the waye of Aia his father, & bowed not therfro, doyng that which was ryght in the syght of the Lord. Howbeit the hylautars were not taken a waye, for the people had not yet prepared they hertes vnto the God of they fathers. The rest of þe actes of Jehosaphat first & last beholde, they are wyrtten amōge the sayynges of Jechu the sonne of Hanani, which noted the in the boke of the kynges of Israel.

After this dyd Jehosaphat kyng of Juda ioyne hym selfe w Ahaziah kyng of Israel, whose mynde was to do wyckedly. He coupled hym selfe with hym, to make shippes to go to tharhis. And they made the shippes in Ezion Gaber. And Eliezer þe sonne of Doda: nab of Marsa prophesied agaynst Jehosaphat, sayinge: because thou hast ioynd thy selfe with Ahaziah, the Lord hath broken thy workes. And the shippes were broken, & they were not able to go to Tharhis.

¶ The xxi. Chapter.

¶ Jehosaphat dyeth, and Jehozam succedeth hym, which putted to death his brethzen, and is opprested of the Philistines, and dyeth of the syre.

Jehosaphat also * slepte w hys fathers, and was buryd with his fathers in the cite of David, & Jehoram his sone raygned in his steade: and he had brethre which were the sonnes of Jehosaphat: Asaria, Jehiel zacharia, Asaria, Michael, & Sephatiahu. All these were þe sonnes of Jehosaphat kyng of Juda. And their father gaue the many greute gyftes of golde, and syluer, and other speciall substaunce, w stronge cityes in Juda: but the kyngdom gaue he to Jehoram, for he was the eldest. And Jehoram rose vp agaynst þe kyngdom of his father, and perauyled, and slue all his brethzen with the swerde, & diuers of the

* In hys dayes the Edomites rebelled, whā they were vnder the dominyon of Iuda, and made the selues a kinge. And Jehozā wēt forth w his lordes, and all hys charrettes were w hym: & he rose vp by nyght, & smote y Edomites, which cōpased him in, & the captaynes of y charrettes. But Edom rebelled styll, so y they wolde not be vnder the hande of Iuda vnto this daye. That same time also dyd Libna departe from beyng vnder his hande, because Jehozā had forsaken y Lorde God of his fathers. Moreover, he made hyl-aunters in the cyties of Iuda, and caused the inhabitants of Ierusalem to cōmpt fornyca-cyon, and prouoked Iuda to Idolatrye.

And there came a writynge to him from Elia y prophete, sayng: Thus sayth y Lorde God of Dauid thy father: because y hast not walked in the wayes of Jehosaphat thy father, & in the wayes of Asa kynge of Iuda, but walkedst in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, & hast made Iuda & the dwellers of Ierusalem to go a whooring, lyke to y whoz-dome of the house of Ahab, & hast slayne thy brethren, euē thy fathers house, which were better then thou: beholde, & a grente plague wyl the Lorde smyte thy folke, thy chyldre, thy wyues, and thy goodes. And thou shalt suffre great payne: euē a dyscase of thy bow-elles, vntyll thy guttes fall out by reason of thy syknes, daye by daye.

24 And so the Lorde stered by agaynst Je-hozā the spete of the Philistines, & the Ara-bians y were besyde the blacke mores. And they came vp into Iuda, and wasted it, and carped a waye all the substance y was found in the kynges house, and hys sonnes, and his wyues: so that there was neuer a sonne lefte him saue Jehohabaz which was the yongest amōge hys sonnes. And after all thes thyn-ges, the Lorde smote him in his bowelles w an incurable dyscase. And it came to passe, y in pcesse of tyme, euē after y ende of two yeres, hys guttes fell out in his syknes: and so he dyed of verp euell diseases. And they made no burnynge for him lyke the bur-nyng of hys fathers. Whē he beganne to ray-gne, he was xxij. yere olde, and raygned in Ierusalē. viij. yere, & lyed wretchedly: how-beit they buried hym in the cite of Dauid: but not among y sepulchres of the kynges.

The xxij. Chapter.

Ahaziah raygneth in the reuolue of Jehozam. Je-hu kynge of Israel killeth Ahaziah. Athalia put-tyth to deeth all y kynges sponges, only Joas escapeth.

And * the inhabitants of Ierusalem made Ahaziah hys yonge sonne a kinge in hys steade. For the men of warre * that came with the host of the Arabians, had slayne all hys eldest sonnes. And so Ahaziah the sonne of Jehozam kynge of Iuda, was made kynge. & Two and fourty yere olde was he, whā he began to raygne, and he raygned one yere in Ieru-salem. hys mothers name was Athaliah y daughter of Amri. And he walked also in the wayes of the house of Ahab, for hys mother (by her counsell) emptyed him to do wycked-ly. wherfore he dyd that which was euell in the syght of the Lorde, as dyd they that we-re of y house of Ahab: for they were hys coun-celers after the deeth of his father, to his de-struction. And he walked after the coun-cell, and went with Jehozam sonne of Ahab king of Israel, to fight agaynst Hazael king of Siria at Ramoth in Gilead: and the Si-riās smote Joā. And he returned to be hea-led in Iezrel, of the woundes which were ge-nen him at Rama, when he fought w Hazael kynge of Siria. And Ahaziah the sōne of Jehozam kynge of Iuda went downe to se Jehozā the sonne of Ahab at Iezrel, because he was diseased. And it cam of God, y Aha-ziah shulde be despyled for hys cōmynge to Jehozā: for whā he was come, he wēt out with Jehozā agaynst Jehu the sonne of Ni-mshi, * whom the Lorde had anoynted to de-roye the house of Ahab.

And so it came to passe y whā Jehu was executynge iustice vpon the house of Ahab, & had fōunde the lordes of Iuda and the sonnes of the brethren of Ahaziah that wayted on Ahaziah, he slue the. * And he sought Aha-ziah, and they caught hym where he was hyd in Samaria, and brought him to Jehu. And when they had slayne hym, they buried hym: because (sayde they) he is the sonne of Jehosaphat, which sought the Lorde with all hys hert. And the house of Ahaziah had no power to kepe styll the kyngdome.

* But when Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah sawe y her sonne was deed, she arose and destroyed all the kynges seed in the kynred of y house of Iuda. And Jehosabeth the daughter of y kinge toke Joas the sonne of Ahaziah, & stole hym fro amonge y kyn-ges sonnes y were slayne, and putt hym and hys nource in a pryue chambze. And so Je-hosabeth the daughter of kinge Jehozā the wyfe of Jehoiada the prest, and the syster of Ahaziah hyd hym from Athaliah that he was not slayne. And so he was w them hyd in the house of God syre yere. And Athalia-hu raygned ouer the lande.

The xciii. Chapter.

Joas the sonne of Ahaziah is made kynge. Athaliah is put to deeth.

And * in the seuenth yere Jeho-iada beyng bolde, toke the cap-taynes of hundredes, Azariah the sonne of Jerobam, and Im-mael the sonne of Jehohanan, Azariah the sonne of Obed, Azariah the sonne of Abasiah, and Elisaphat the sonne of zichri, and made a bonde with them. And they went aboute in Iuda, and gathered the Leuites out of all the cyties of Iuda and the auntyent fathers of Israel: and they came to Ierusalem. And all the congregacyon made a bonde with the kynge in the house of God. And he sayd vnto them: beholde, the kynges sonne must raygne, * as the Lorde hath say-de of the chyldren of Dauid.

This is it therfore that ye shall do: The thyrde parte of you shall (on the Sabbath) come to the prestes, Leuites, and keepers of the porches. And another thyrde parte shalbe by y kynges house, and another thyrde par-te shalbe at the gate of the foundacyon, and all the people shalbe in the * courtes of the house of the Lorde. But ther shall none come into the house of the Lorde, saue the prestes & they that minstre vnto the Leuites. They shall go in, for they are holy: but all the peo-ple shall kepe the watch of the Lorde. And the Leuites shall cōpase the kynges rounde about and euery man shall haue hys wepon in hys hāde: and what other man soeuer doth come into the house of the Lorde, he shall be slayne: and let them be with the kynge, whan he cō-meth in, and whan he goeth out.

And the Leuites and all Iuda dyd accor-dynge to all thynge y Jehoiada the preaste had cōmaunded, & toke euery man hys men, y came in on the Sabbath, w the y went out on the Sabbath daye: nether did Jehoiada y prest let the cōpanies departe. And Jehoiada y prest deliuered to the captaynes of hū-dredes, speares, chyldeys, and bouclers, that had pertayned to kynge Dauid, and were in y house of God. And he set all the people eu-ry mā haupng his wepō in his hande, fro the ryght syde of the tēple, to the left syde of the temple, alonge by the aulter and the temple, rounde aboute the kynge. And they brought out the kynges sonne, and put vpon him the crowne, and y * the testimonie, & (and they gaue hym in hys hande, the same that was to be kepte) and made him kynge. And Jehoiada & his sonnes annoynted him, & sayde: God saue the kynge.

When Athaliah hearde the noyse of the people, runnyng & prayng the kynge, she came to y people into the house of the Lorde. And she looked, and beholde, the kynge stode in his place at the enterynge in, & the Lorde and the trompettes were by the kynge, & all the people of the lande reioysed, blowinge w trompettes, & dyd playe with instrumentes of musycke, & taught to syng & prayse. But Athaliah rent her clothes, and sayed: trea-son, treason. And Jehoiada the preaste went out to the captaynes of hundredes that were gouerners of the hoste, & sayde vnto the: haue her out without the doze of the temple: and whoso foloweth her, let hym be slayne with the swerde. For y preaste sayde y they shulde not slep her in the house of y Lorde. And they layde handes on her, tyll she was come to the enterynge of the horsgate besyde the kynges house and there they slue her.

* And Jehoiada made a bonde betwene hym and all the people and the kynge, that they shulde be the Lorde people. And all the people wēt to the house of Baal, & destroyed it, and brake hys aulters and his ymages, & slue Mathan the preaste of Baal before the aulters. And Jehoiada put the offces for the house of the Lorde vnder the hāde of the prea-stes and Leuites, * as Dauid had distrybu-ed them in the house of the Lorde, to offer burnt offerynge vnto the Lorde, * as it is wyrtten in the lawe of Moyses, with reioy-synge and synnyng, as it was ordeyned by Dauid. And he set porters by y gates of the house of the Lorde, that none which was vn-cleane in any thyng shulde entre in.

And he toke the captaynes of hundredes & all the nobles, and the gouernours of the people, & all the folke of the lande, and caused the kynge to come downe out of the house of the Lorde, and they came thowowe the hye ga-te into the kynges house, and set the kynge vpon the seate of the kyngdome. And all the people of y lande reioysed, and the cytie was in trāquillite, after y they had slayne Atha-liahu with the swerde.

The xciii. Chapter.

Joas durynge the lyfe of Jehoiada, kepte the lawe, but after his deeth he regarded it not. He killeth Atha-ziah the prophete. Jehoas is killed of his awne crea-tures: and after hym raygneth Amaziah.

Joas was seuen yere olde when he beganne to raygne, & he raygned fourty yere in Ierusalem. hys mo-thers name also was zibia of Beer Seba. And Joas dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde all the dayes of Je-hoiada the preaste. And Jehoiada toke hym two wyues, and he begat sonnes and dau-ghters.

And it chaunced after this, that Joas was mynded, to renewe the house of the Lorde and he gathered together the prestes & y Leui-tes, and sayd to them: go out vnto the cyties of Iuda, & gather of all Israel money, to re-payre the house of youre God from yere to yere, and se that ye haue the thynge: howbeit the Leuites were slacke. And the kyng called Jehoiada that was the cheff and sayd vnto hym. Why requirest thou not of the Levites to bypunge, out of Juda & Jerusalem, * the collection of money accordynge to the commaundement of Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde and the congregation of Israel shulde offre it for the tabernacle of wyrtesse. For wycked Athaliah and her chyldre brake vp the house of God, and all the thynges that were dedicat for the house of the Lorde dyd they bestowe for Bealim.

* iii. re. c. 8. And at the kynges commaundement, * they made a chest, & set it without at the gate of y house of the Lorde, and made proclamacyon thowowe Juda and Jerusalem, to bypunge into the Lorde * the taracion of money, y Moses the seruaunt of God set vpon Israel in the wylder nesse. And the Lorde and all the people reioysed, and brought in, and cast into the chest, untill it was full. And it fortuned, that at the same tyme they brought in y chest (vnto them which were in the kynges busynesse) by the hande of the Levites. And when they sawe y there was moche money, the kynges scribes (and one appoynted by the hye preast) came, and emptied the chest, and toke it, and carped it to his place agayne: thus they dyd daye by daye, and gathered moche money.

* iiii. re. c. 8. And the kyng & Jehoiada gaue it to such as dyd the labour and worke in the house of the Lorde, and hyed masons and carpenters to repaire the house of the Lorde, and so dyd they artificers in yron and brasse, to mede the house of the Lorde. And so the workmen wrought, and the worke mended thowowe theyr hādes: and they made the house of God as it ought to be, and strenghtened it. And whē they had finished it, they brought y rest of the money before the kyng and Jehoiada, and thre with were made vessels for y house of the Lorde: euen vessels to minstre with all, and to serue for burnt offerynges: charygers and spones, vessels of golde and syluer. And they offered burnt offerynges in the house of the Lorde continuallye all the dayes of Jehoiada. But Jehoiada waxed olde, and dyed full of dayes. For an hundred & thyrtye yere olde was he when he dyed. And they buried hym in the cytie of David amonge the kynges, because he dealt well with Israel, and with God and with his house. And after the deeth of Jehoiada, came the Lordes of Juda, and made obeylaunce to the kyng. And the kyng hekened vnto them. And so they left the house of the Lorde God of theyr fathers, & serued groues and ydoles. And then came the wraoth of God vpon Juda and Jerusalem, for this theyr trespass sake. And he sent prophetes to them, to bypunge them agayne vnto the Lorde. And they testified vnto them: But they wolde not heare.

And the spyrite of God came vpon zacharia y sonne of Jehoiada the preast, which stode by the people, & sayde vnto them: Thus sayth God: why transgresse ye the commaundementes of the Lorde, y ye cannot prosper? For because ye haue forsaken the Lorde, he also hath forsaken you. * And they conspyred agaynst him, and stoned him with stones at the commaundement of the kyng: euen in the courte of the house of the Lorde. And so Joas the kyng remembred not the kyndnes which Jehoiada hys father had done to him, but slue his sonne. And whē he dyed, he sayd: the Lorde loke vpon it, and requyre it.

And when the yere was out, it fortuned, that the host of Syria came vpagaynst him: and they came agaynst Juda & Jerusalem, and destroyed all y Lordes of the people fro amonge the people, & sent all the spoyle of the vnto the kyng to Damasco w a small cōpanye of men, & the Lord deliuered a very great hoste into their hāde, because they had forsake y Lord God of theyr fathers. And morouer they serued Joas accordyng to his dedes.

And whan they were departed from him, they left him in great diseases. * y hys a wone seruaunt conspyred agaynst him for y bloude of the chyldren of Jehoiada the preast, and slue hym on hys bed, and he dyed, & they buried him in the cytie of David: but not in the sepulchres of the kynges. And these are they that conspyred agaynst him: zebad the sonne of Simcath an Ammonite, and Jhoiabad the sonne of Simrith a Moabite. And hys sonnes, and the summe of the taxe that was rayled in hys tyme, and the repaynginge of the house of God, beholde, they are writen in y storie of the booke of the kynges. And Amaziah hys sonne raygned in hys steade.

The xxv. Chapter.

Amaziah ouercometh the Edomites. And Joas kyng of Israel ouercometh Amaziah.

Amaziah was. xxv. yere olde, when he began to raygne, and he raygned xxx. yere in * Jerusalem. hys mothers name was Jehoadan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde: but not with a perfecte hert. And as sone as he was settled in the kyngdome, he slue hys seruaunt, that had kylled the kyng hys father. But he slue not their chyldren, because it is writen thus in the lawe & booke of Moses, where the Lorde commaunded, sayng: * the fathers shall not dye for the chyldren, nether shall the chyldren dye for the fathers, but euery man shall dye for hys awne synne. And Amaziah gathered Juda together, & made them captaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, accordyng to the houses of theyr fathers, thowowe out all Juda and Benjamin. And he nombred them from twety yere olde and aboue, and founde amonge them, thre hundred thousande chosen men, able to go to battell, and that coulde handle speare speare and shyld. He hyed also an hundred thousande stronge fyghtynge men out of Israel, for an hundred talentes of syluer.

And there came a man of God to him, and sayde: O kyng, let not the armye of Israel come with the: for the Lorde is not with Israel, nether with all the house of Ephraim. But yf thou wilt nedes be fapthlesse, come on, and take the battell in hāde, and God shall make the fall before y enemy. For God hath power to helpe, & to cast downe. And Amaziah sayde to the mā of God: what shall we do then, for the hundred talentes, which I haue geuen for the hoste of Israel? The man of God answered: the Lorde is able to geue the moche more then they be.

And Amaziah sencered them to the armie that was come to him out of Ephraim, to go home agayne. Wherfore they were excedyng wroth with Juda, and returned home in grete angre.

And Amaziah toke hert and carped out hys people, and went to the salt valley, and smote of the chyldre of Seir ten thousande. And other ten thousande dyd the chyldren of Juda take alyue, and carped them vnto y toppes of a rocke, and cast them downe from the toppes of the rocke, that they all to burst: but the souldyers of the armie which Amaziah sent awaye, that they shulde not go w his people to battell, fell vpo the cyties of Juda, from Samaria vnto Bethhorō, & smote thre thousande of them, & toke moche spoyle.

And it chaunced, after y Amaziah was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, he brought the Gods of the chyldren of Seir, & set them vp to be hys Gods, and bowed hym selfe before the: and burned encense vnto the. Wherfore the Lorde was wroth with Amaziah and sent vnto hym a prophete, whych layd vnto hym: why hast y sought the Gods of the people, which were not able to deliuer theyr a wne people out of thynne hande? And it chaunced, that as the prophete talked with hym the kyng sayde vnto hym: haue men made the of the kynges counsell: cease, why wilt thou be beate? And the prophete craed and sayde: I am sure that God is mynded to destroye the, because thou hast done this, and agreest not vnto my counsell.

* Then Amaziah kyng of Juda toke aduise, and sent to Joas the sonne of Jehoahaz the sonne of Jehu kyng of Israel, & sayde come, that we maye se ether other. And Joas kyng of Israel sent to Amaziah kyng of Juda, sayng: a thystell that is in Libanon, sent to a Cedar tree of Libanō, sayng, * geue thy daughter to my sonne to wyfe. And there came a wylder beast of Libanō, & troad ff downe the thystell. Thou sayest y thou hast beaten y Edomites, and thynne hert maketh the proude, to glorify thy selfe. Nowet herfo-re hyde at home: why dost thou prouoke vnto euell, that thou mayest perishe, both thou and Juda with the?

But Amaziah wolde not herke to him: for it came of God, euen to deliuer them into y hāde of theyr enemyes because they sought counsell at the Gods of Edom. And so Joas the kyng of Israel came vp: and they sawe ether other, both he and Amaziah kyng of Juda at Bethsames which is in Juda. And Juda was put to y worse before Israel, and they fled euery mā to his tent. And Joas the kyng of Israel toke Amaziah kyng of Juda the sonne of Joahas the sonne of Jehoahaz at Bethsames: and brought hym to Jerusalem, & tare the walle of Jerusalem: from the gate of Ephraim vnto the gate that was ouer agaynst it, four hundred cubytes. And he toke awaye also all the golde and syluer, and all the Jewelles that were founde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and y treasures of the kynges house, & the yonge wardes, and returned to Samaria.

And Amaziah the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda lyued after the deeth of Joas sonne of Jehoahaz kyng of Israel fiftene yere. The rest of the actes of Amaziah fyrst and last, are they not writen in the booke of the kynges of Juda and Israel: And after the tyme that Amaziah dyd turne awaye from the Lorde * they conspyred treason agaynst him in Jerusalem: and whan he was fled to Lachis, they sent to Lachis after hym, and slue hym there: and brought hym vp with horsse, and buried hym with hys fathers in y cytie of Juda.

The xxvi. Chapter.

After the deeth of Amaziah raygneth Uzziah (other wyse called Azariah) which is strengthen with the sepe, and Joatham raygneth in hys reigne.

Uzziah was. xxvi. yere olde, when he began to raygne, and he raygned lii. yere in Jerusalem. hys mothers name also was Jerholia of Jerusalem. And he did that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde, accordyng to all, as dyd hys father Amaziah. And it came to passe, that he sought God * in the dayes of zacharia (which mayntened the feare of God) & as longe as he sought the Lorde, God made hym to prosper.

And he went to battell agaynst the Philistines, and brake downe the wall of Geth, & the wall of Jabne, and the wall of Asdod, & built cyties about Asdod & among the Philistines. And God holpe him against y Philistines, and agaynst the Arabians y dwelt in Gurbaal Gurbaal and Hammehunim. And the Ammonites gave tribute to Uzia, and his name spread abroad unto the entering in of Egypt: for he played the man exceedingly. Moreover Uzia built towers in Jerusalem by the corner gate, & by the valeye gate, and at the turning of the wall, and made the stronge. And he built towers in the wilderness, and digged many welles: for he had moche cattell, in the valeys and playnes, plowmen and vinedressers in the mountaynes and in Charamel, for he loued busbandrye.

And Uzia had an host of fyghtryng men that went out to warre in the armie accordinge to the nombre of theyr office vnder the hande of Iziel the scribe & Maasiah the ruler, & vnder the hande of Hananiahu which was one of the kynges Lordes. And the hoile nombre of the auncient fathers, & of the men of myght were two thousande and fyre hundred: & vnder the hande of them was the armie of the men of warre, euen thre hundred and seuen thousande, & fyue hundred & made warre with the power of an armie, helppynge the kyng against his enemies. And Uzia provided them thorow out all the host, childers, speares, helmettes, haberginnes, bowes and spynges for to cast stones. And he made softe engynnes in Jerusalem, which he inuented & layed on the towres and corners, to shote arrows and greate stones with all. And his name spread farre abroad, because he was helped so excellently, so he became very myghty.

But in his strength, his heart arose to his destruction: for he transgressed agaynst the Lorde his God, & went into the temple of the Lorde, to burne incense vpon the altar of incense. And Asariahu the preaste went in after him, and with him foure scoze preastes of the Lorde that were valeant men. And they stood by Uzia the kyng, and sayde vnto hym:  It perhapeneth not to the Lorde to burne incense vnto the Lorde, but to the preastes the chyldren of Aaron, that are consecrate for to offere incense. Come therefore out of the sanctuarye for thou hast trespassed, and it is no worthepp to the before the Lorde God.*

And Uzia was wroth, & had incense in his hande to burne it: & so whyle he had indignacion agaynst the preastes,  the leprosie sprang in his forehead before the preastes in the house of the Lorde, eue besyde the incense aulter.* And Asariahu the chiefe preaste with all the other preastes looked vpon him: and beholde, he was become a leper in his forehead, & they vexed him thence. And he was sayne to go out, because the Lorde had smitten hym. And Uzia the kyng continued a leper vnto the daye of his deeth, and dwelt seuerall in an house beyng a leper and shutte out of the house of the Lorde. And Jotham his sonne had the gouernance of the kynges house, and iudged the people of the lande:

The rest of the actes of Uzia fyrst & last, dyd Ihal prophet the sonne of Amos, wyte. And so Uzia slepte with his fathers, and they buried hym with his fathers in the felde of the buryall which was besyde the sepulchres of the kynges. For they sayde: he is a leper. And Jotham his sonne raygned in his steade.

The xxvii. Chapter.

Jotham raygned and ouer cometh the Ammonites. Abaz his sonne raygned after hym.

Jotham was fyue and twenty yere olde, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned fyrtene yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name also was Ierusa the daughter of zadoc. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde in all popytes as dyd his father Uzia saue, that he came not into the temple of the Lorde, and the people dyd yet wyckedly. He built the hyc gate of the temple of the Lorde, and on the walle (where the house of ordinaunce was) he built moche. Moreover he built cyties in the mountaynes of Iuda, and in the wood countrey he built castelles and towres.

He fought with the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon, and preyayled agaynst the. And the chyldren of Ammon gaue hym the same yere an hundred talentes of syluer, and ten thousande quarters of wheate, & ten thousand of barlepe. So moche dyd the chyldren of Ammon geue hym the seconde yere and the thyrde also. So Jotham became myghtie, because he directed his waye before the Lorde his God.

The rest of the actes of Jotham & all his warres, & his counselacion, lo, they are written in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Iuda. He was xxv. yere olde when he beganne to raygne, & raygned fyrtene yere in Jerusalem. And Jotham slepte with his fathers, and they buried hym in the cytie of Dauid: & Abaz his sonne raygned in his steade.

The xxviii. Chapter.

The wickednesse of Abaz kyng of Iuda. After hym raygned Hezekia.

Abaz was twenty yere old when he beganne to raygne, & raygned fyrtene yere in Jerusalem, and he dyd not that which is ryght in the syght of the Lorde, as dyd his father Dauid: for he walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, & made molten ymagges for Baalim. He offered incense in the valeye of the sonne of hinnom, and burnt his chyldren in fyre after the abominacions of the heithen, whiche the Lorde call out before the chyldren of Israel. He offered also, and burnt incense in hilanters and on mountayns and vnder every grene tre.

Wherefore the Lorde his God deliuered hym into the hande of the kyng of the Syries: which which bet him, & caried awaye a great multitude of hys captiue, and brought them to Samastion. And he was deliuered into the hande of the kyng of Israel, which smote him with a greate slaughter. For Pekah the sonne of Remallahu slue in Iuda an hundred & twentye thousande in one daye, which were all fyghtinge men: and that because they had forsake the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And zichi a myghty ma of Ephraim slue Maasiah the kynges sonne, & Asica the gouernour of the house, and Eleana was next to the kyng. And the chyldren of Israel toke prisoners of theyr brethren, two hundred thousande women, sonnes, & daughters, & caried awaye moche spoye of them, & brought the spoye to Samaria.

But there was a prophete of the Lordes (whose name was Obed) and he went out before the host that came to Samaria, & sayde vnto them. Beholde, because the Lorde God of youre fathers is wroth w Iuda, he hath deliuered them into youre hande. And ye haue slayne them with cruelnesse, & reacheth vp to heauen. And now ye purpose to kepe vnder the chyldren of Iuda and Jerusalem, and to make them bondmen and bondwomen. And do ye not lade youre selues with synne in the syght of the Lorde your God. Nowe heare me therefore, and deliuer the captiues agayne which ye haue taken of youre brethren. For els shall the great wrath of God be vpon you.

Wherefore, certayne of the breddes of the chyldren of Ephraim, as Asaria the sonne of Jehohana, Serchiah the sonne of Mesillemoth, and Iehiziah the sonne of Shallum, and Amasa the sonne of Hadlai, stood vp agaynst them that came from the warre, and layde vnto them: bringe not in the captiues hyther. For where as we haue offended towarde God allreadye, ye enste to adde more to our synnes & trespace. For our trespace is great allready, and there is a scarce wrath agaynst Israel. And vpon that, the men of armes lefte the captiues and the spoye before the Lordes and all the congregacion.

And the men that were nowe rehearsed by name, rose vp, and toke the prisoners, & with the spoye clothed all were naked amonge them, and arayed them, & shod them, & gaue them to cate and to drinke, & anoynted them, and caried all that were feble of them vpon asses, & brought them to Jericho (the cytie of Paulme trees) to theyr brethren: & then they returned to Samaria agayne.

At that same tyme dyd kyng Abaz send vnto the kynges of Assur, to haue helpe of the. And the Edomites came agayne, and slue some of Iuda, and caried awaye captiues. And the Philistines inuaded the cities in the lowe countrey, and towarde the south of Iuda: & toke Bethsames, & Alalon, and Gede-roth, and Socho with the towne longynge therto, and Chimna with the towne of the same: Simlo, and the towne thereof, and dwelt there. For the Lorde brought Iuda lowe, because of Abaz kyng of Iuda, which made Iuda naked, & trasgressed sore agaynst the Lorde. And Tilgath pilneser kyng of Assyrians came vpon him, and troubled him rather then strenghted hym. For Abaz toke awaye a porcion out of the house of the Lorde, and out of the kynges house, & out of the Lordes houses, & gaue vnto the kyng of the Assyrians: and yet it helped him not. And in the very tyme of hys tribulacion dyd kyng Abaz trespace yet moare agaynst the Lorde. For he offered vnto the Gods of them of Samastion, which bette hym, & he sayd: because the Gods of the kynges of Syria healte the, therefore wyll I offer to the, that they maye helpe me also. But they were his destruction, and the destruction of all Israel. And Abaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God, and brake them, and shut vp the doores of the house of the Lorde, and made him & aulter in euery corner of Jerusalem. And in all the cities of Iuda he made hillanters, to burne incense vnto other Gods, & angered the Lorde God of his fathers. The rest of hys actes and hys workes fyrst and last: beholde, they are written in the boke of the kynges of Iuda & Israel. And Abaz slepte with his fathers, & they buried hym in the cytie of Jerusalem: but brought hym not vnto the sepulchres of the kynges of Israel. And Hezekia his sonne raygned in his steade.

The xxix. Chapter.

Hezekia (otherwyse called Ezechias, or Ezechias) reioyced vnto the temple of the Lorde all the thynge that had not bene regarded of hys predecessours.

Hezekia beganne to raygne, when he was fyue & twenty yere olde, & raygned nyne & twenty yere in Jerusalem. And his mothers name was Abia daughter of zachariahu. And he dyd that which was ryght in the syght of the Lorde, in all popytes as dyd Dauid his father. He opened the doores of the house of the Lorde (in the fyrst yere and fyrst moneth of hys raygne) and repayzed them. And he brought in the preastes and Levites, and gathered them together in to the rest strete: and sayde vnto them.

Heare me ye Levites, & now be sanctified and halowe the house of the Lorde God of youre fathers, byngye fylthynesse out of the holy place. For oure fathers haue trespassed, and done euell in the eyes of the Lorde oure God: and haue forsake him, & turned awaye theyr faces from the habitacio of the Lorde, and turned theyr backs on it. And besyde they haue shut vp the doores of the porche and quenched the lampes, & haue nether burnt incense, cenſe, nor offered burnt offerings in the holy place vnto the God of Iſrael.

Wherefore the wrath of the Lorde fell on Iuda and Ieruſalem: & he hath brought theſe troubles on, to be wondred on, and to be hiſſed at, euſ as ye ſe with your eyes. For, lo, our fathers were overthrowen with the ſworde, and our ſonnes, our daughters & our wyues were caried awaye captiue for the ſame cauſe. And now it is in my heart, to make a covenant with the Lorde God of Iſrael: & he maye turne awaye his heuie indignacyon from vs. Nowe therefore my ſonnes, be not ſlacke: for the Lorde & hath choſen you to ſtāde before him, and for to miniſtre and ſerue hym, and to burne incenſe.

* 2u. xviii. a

Then the Leuites aroſe: & Maſai & Joel the ſonne of Maſai of the chyldren of the Cahathites. And of the ſonnes of Merari, Kiſi the ſonne of Abdi, and Maſai the ſonne of Iſchalel. And of the ſonnes of the Gerſonites, Joah the ſonne of Summa, and Eden the ſonne of Joah. And of the ſonnes of Eliſaphan, Simri & Iſchiel. And of the ſonnes of Aſaph, Zechariah and Maſai. And of the ſonnes of Iſchiel, Iſchiel & Maſai. And of the ſonnes of Iſchiel, Iſchiel & Maſai. And of the ſonnes of Iſchiel, Iſchiel & Maſai. And they gathered their brethren, & purifyed them ſelues, & came accordyng to the commaundement of the kynge and the wordes of the Lorde, for to cleaſe the houſe of the Lorde. And the preſtes went into the inner partes of the houſe of the Lorde to cleaſe it, and brought out all the vncleaneſſe that they founde in the temple of the Lorde into the court of the houſe of the Lorde. And the Leuites toke it, to carpe it out into the broke Cedron. They beganne the fyrſt daye of the fyrſt moneth to purifye, and the eyngh daye of the moneth came they to the porche of the Lorde: and purged the houſe of the Lorde in eyngh dayes, and in the lxxviii daye of the fyrſt moneth they made an ende.

And they went into Hezekia the kynge, & ſayde: we haue cleaſed all the houſe of the Lorde, the altar of burnt offerings, with all his veſſels, & the table with all his appa- rell: and all the veſſels which kynge Aſa did caſt a ſyde when he raygned & tranſgreſſed, them we haue prepared and ſanctified: and behold, they are before the altar of the Lorde. And Hezekia the kynge roſe earlye, & gathered the Lorde of the cytie and went vp to the houſe of the Lorde. And they brought ſeven oxen, ſeven rāmes, ſeven ſhepe, and ſeven hegoates, to be a ſynne offering for the kynge- dome, for the ſanctuarie, & for Iuda. And he commaunded the preſtes the ſonnes of Aaron, to offer them on the altar of the Lorde.

And they ſlue the oxen, & the preſtes receaued the bloude, & ſprinkled it on the altar: lyke wyſe, whan they had ſlayne the rāmes, they ſprinkled the bloude vpon the altar: they ſlue alſo the ſhepe, & they ſprinkled the bloude vpon the altar. And then they brought forth the hegoates for the ſynne offering before the kynge and the congregacyon, & put theyr handes vpon them. And the preſtes ſlue them, and with the bloude of them they cleaſed the altar, to make ſatiffaction for all Iſrael: for the kynge commaunded, & the burnt offering and the ſynne offering ſhulde be made for all Iſrael. And ſet the Leuites in the houſe of the Lorde with tymbales, pſalteries and harpes: accordyng to the commaundement of Dauid and of Gad the kyngeſ ſear, and Naſi the prophete. For ſo was the commaundment of the Lorde thowoe the hāde of his prophetes. And the Leuites ſode, hauynge theſe instrumentes of Dauid, and the preſtes helde the trompettes. And Hezekia commaunded to offer the burnt offering vpon the altar. And when the burnt offering beganne, the ſonge of the Lorde beganne alſo, & the trompettes with the instrumentes that were ordeyned by the hande of Dauid kynge of Iſrael. And all the congregacion worſhypped, ſynginge a ſong, and blowinge with the trompettes, & all theſe continued, vntill the burnt offering was ſyniſhed.

And when they had made an ende of offering, the kynge and all that were preſent with hym, bowed them ſelues, & worſhypped. And Hezekia the kynge & the Lorde ſpake to the Leuites to praye the Lorde with the wordes of Dauid, & of Aſaph the ſear. And the Leuites ſange prayes with gladneſſe, and they other bowed them ſelues, and worſhypped.

And Hezekia answered, & ſayde: nowe ye haue conſecrate your handes to the Lorde: go to therfore, & bringe in the ſacrifices & thank-offerings into the houſe of the Lorde. And the congregacyon brought in the ſacrifices & thank-offerings & burnt offerings, as many as were of a free liberall hart. And the nombre of the burnt offerings which the congregacion brought, was lxx. oxen, an hundred rāmes, & two hundred ſhepe: which were, all for the burnt offering of the Lorde. And there were dedicated ſyre hundred oxen, and thre thouſande ſhepe.

And the preſtes were to ſewe, to ſleye all the burnt offerings: but their brethren the Leuites dyd helpe them, till they had ended the worke, and vntill the preſtes were ſanctified. For the Leuites were purer herted to be ſanctified, then the preſtes. And therto the burnt offerings were many with the fatte of the peate offerings & the drinke offerings: & he longe to the burnt offering. And ſo the ſeruite pertayninge to the houſe of the Lorde was ſyniſhed. And Hezekia reioyced & all the people, that God had made the folke ſo ready: and that the thyng was ſo ſoone done.

The

The. xx. Chapter.

Hezekia reuileth the feaſt of paſſouer.

And Hezekia ſent to all Iſrael and Iuda, and wrote letters to Eſay & Maſai, that they ſhulde come to the houſe of the Lorde at Ieruſalem, and offer Paſſouer vnto the Lorde God of Iſrael. And the kynge helde a counsell with his Lordeſ and all the congregacion of Ieruſalem: to kepe the feaſt of Paſſouer in the ſeconde moneth. For they coulde not kepe it at that tyme: becauſe the preſtes were not ſanctified ſufficiently, neither was the people gathered together to Ieruſalem. And the thyng pleased the kynge and all the congregacion. And they decreed that it ſhulde be proclaymed thowoe out all Iſrael fro Beſſabe to Dan, & they ſhulde come, & holde the feaſt of Paſſouer vnto the Lorde God of Iſrael at Ieruſalem: for they had not done it of a grea- te ſeaſon as they ſhuld haue done by the lawe.

So the poſtes wente with letters of the hande of the kynge, & of his Lordeſ thowoe out all Iſrael and Iuda: & at the commaundement of the kynge they ſayd: Ye chyldre of Iſrael, turne agayne vnto the Lorde God of Abraham, Iſaac & Iſrael, & let euery one returne to the remnant that are ſcaped you out of the hāde of the kyngeſ of Aſſur. And be not ye lyke your fathers, & your brethren which treſpased agaynſt the Lorde God of theyr fathers, which gaue them vp to be deſtroyed, as ye ſe. And nowe be not ye ſtiffe-necked, lyke as were your fathers, but yelde your ſelues vnto the Lorde, & entre into his holy place, which he hath ſanctified for euer and ſerue the Lorde your God, & the ſearce- neſſe of his wrath ſhal turne awaye fro you. For yf ye turne agayne vnto the Lorde, then ſhall your brethren and your chyldren fynde compaſſion in the preſence of them that toke the captiue, and they ſhall come agayne vnto this lād: for the Lorde your God is gracious & merciful and wil not turne awaye his face from you, yf ye conuerſe vnto hym.

And ſo the poſtes went from cytie to cytie in the lande of Eſay & Maſai, euē vnto Zabulō. But they laughed theſe to ſcorne & mocked theſe. Neuertheleſſe, yet dyuerſe of Aſſer, Maſai and of Zabulō ſubmytted them ſelues, & came to Ieruſalem. And the hande of God was in Iuda, ſo that he gaue them one hert, to do the commaundement of the kynge and of the rulers, accordyng to the wordes of the Lorde. And there aſſembled to Ieruſalem moche people, and there was preſent a myghty great congregacion, to holde the feaſt of ſweete bread in the ſeconde moneth.

And they aroſe, & remoued the alters that were in Ieruſalem. And all the veſſels of incenſe dyd they awaye, and caſt them into the broke Cedron. And they ſlue Paſſouer the fourteenth daye of the ſeconde moneth. And the preſtes and Leuites, which were aſſembled, ſanctified them ſelues, & brought in the burnt offerings into the houſe of the Lorde. And they ſode in theyr offyce after theyr maner, and accordyng to the lawe of Moſes the man of God. And the preſtes ſprinkled the bloude, which they receaued of the hāde of the Leuites. For there were many in the congregacion, & were not ſanctified: & the Leuites dyd ſlepe Paſſouer for al they were not cleane, & that myght not execute the holy worke of the Lorde. For many of the people, and very many: out of Eſay, Maſai, Aſſer and Zabulō were not cleaſed, & yet dyd eate Paſſouer agaynſt the lawe apoynted. Wherefore Hezekia prayed for theſe, and ſayd: the good Lorde be merciful vnto theſe. For he ſet hymſelf whole hert, to ſeke the Lorde God euen the God of his fathers: but all the other dyd not ſo accordyng to vnfayned holyneſſe. And the Lorde hearde Hezekia, and healed the people. And the chyldre of Iſrael that were preſent at Ieruſalem, helde the feaſt of ſweete bread ſeven dayes with great gladneſſe, and the Leuites and the preſtes prayed, and magnified the power of the Lorde daye by daye, vpon instrumentes.

And Hezekia ſpake hertely vnto all the Leuites that had vnderſtādyng and were of a good mynde toward the Lorde. And they dyd eate thowoe out that feaſt, ſeuē dayes longe, & offered peace-offerings, & thanked the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And they aſſembled toke counsell, to do ſo other ſeuē dayes, and they helde thoſe ſeuē dayes with gladneſſe. For Hezekia kynge of Iuda toke out (from amonge his ratel) for the congregacion, a thouſande yōge oxen, and ſeuē thouſande ſhepe. And the Lordeſ gaue out to the congregacion a thouſande yōnge oxen, and ten thouſande ſhepe. And a grea- te nombre of the preſtes were ſanctified.

And all the congregacion of Iuda with the preſtes & Leuites, & al the congregacion that came out of Iſrael, and the ſtraungers that came out of the lande of Iſrael, & that dwelt in Iuda, reioyced: & there was great gladneſſe in Ieruſalō. For ſence the tyme of Salomon the ſonne of Dauid kynge of Iſrael there was no ſuche ioye in Ieruſalem. And the preſtes and the Leuites aroſe, & bleſſed the people, and theyr voyce was heard of the Lorde, and theyr prayer came vp vnto heauen, his holy dwellynge place.

The. xxi. Chapter.

After that Hezekia had called agayne the people vnto the waye of the Lorde, he ordeyned the viſitation vnto whom he commaunded to geue ſpyes.

And when all theſe thynges were ſyniſhed, all they of Iſrael that were preſent in the cyties of Iuda, went out &

*ii. pa. viii. a out and brake the ymagis, and cut downe the Idoles grones, & al to brake the hye places, and aulters, thozow out all Juda and Beniamin, in Ephraim also and Manasse, vntill they had vterly destroyed them al. And all the childre of Israel returned euery mā to his possessions & to their awne cryptes.

And hezekia appoynted sondrye compaynes of the preastes ad Leuites after the dyuersyte of their ministracions, euery mā accordyng to his office: both preastes and Leuites, for the burnt offeringe & peace offeringes, to minstre, & to geue thankes & praye in the gates of the host of the Lord. And the kynges porcion of his substance he gaue, were dayly burnt offeringes in the morning and euenyng, & burnt offeringes for the Saboth dayes, newmones, & solempne feastes, accordyng as it is written in the lawe of the Lord. And he had people that dwelt in Jerusalem, geue the parte to the preastes & Leuites, that they might substantiually applye the selues to the lawe of the Lord. And as lone as the kynges comaundement came abrood, the childre of Israel brought aboundance of first frutes, of cozne, wyne, oyle, honye, & of all maner of frutes of the felde, & the tythes of all maner of thynges brought they in plentiously. And schylde of Israel and Juda that dwelt in the cryptes of Juda, they also brought in the tythes of oxen and shepe, and other holy tythes which were consecrate vnto the Lord, they God, they dyd offere, and brought the all by heapes. In the thyrty moneth they beganne to laye the heapes (in maner of a foundacion) and finished them in the senenth moneth.

And when hezekia and the Lordes came and sawe the heapes, they blessed the Lord & his people Israel. And hezekia questioned with the preastes & the Leuites concernyng the heapes. And Azaria the chiefe preaste of the house of zadock, answered him, & sayde: senle the people beganne to byng the heave offeringes into the house of the Lord, we al to haue had ynough to eate, there remayned so moch: for the Lord hath blessed his people and this heape is left. And hezekia had prepare the chambres in the house of the Lord. And they dyd prepare them, & carped in the first frutes, the tythes, and the dedicat thynges, saythfully.

ouer which Chonaniahu the Leuite had the rule, ad Semei his brother next to him. And Jehiel, Azariahu, Nabath, Asael, Jerimoth, Josabad, Eliel, Ismachiahu, Mahath & Banaiahu were ouer sears ordeyned by Chonaniahu, & Semei his brother was an offcyer of hezekia the kyng, and Azaria was the ruler of the house of God. (vnto whō all these thynges belonged.) And Chozai the sōne of Anna the Leuite and porter of the East doze, had the ouersyght of the thinges that were offered of a frewill vnto God (and were geue in maner seuerally vnto the Lord) ad ouer the thynges most holy. And vnder his hand were Eden, Miniamin, Jesua, Semeiahu, Amariahu, and Sechaniahu in the cities of the preastes appoynted of the schylde to geue to their brethern they porciōs, as wel to the small as to the greates.

Except that to the males that were reckened from thre pere & aboue (amonge al that went into the house of the Lord) they schuld geue daye by daye, for they ministracion, & for they geuyng attēdauce, & for their diuerse waytynges by cours. And to the preastes & Leuites thozowe out the houtholde of they fathers, from twēty pere & aboue to wayte when their courses came. And to the families of all their babes, wyues, sonnes & daughters thozowe all the cōgregaciō. For vpon the schylde of them were the holy thynges bestowed. And to the schylde of Aaron, the preastes, whych were in the feldes & suburbs of their cryptes, crypte by crypte the mē (whose names were expresse afoze) schulde geue porciōs, euen to all the males amonge the preastes, and to all the Leuites accordyng to they nombre.

And of this maner dyd hezekia thozowe out all Juda, & wrought it that is good, and ryght and true, before the Lord his God. And in all the wozynges he beganne for the seruite of the house of God, for the lawe, and for the comaundementes, he sought his God, & that dyd he with all his hert, & prospered.

The xxxii. Chapter.

Sennacherib (or Sancherib) besegynge Jerusalem is speken of the Angell. Hezekia dyeth, after whom succedeth Manasse.

After these dedes were saythfully done, Sennacherib kyng of Assur came, & entred into Juda, & compassed the stronge cryptes, and thought to winne them for him selfe. And so whē hezekia sawe the Sennacherib was come, & that he was purposed to fyght agaynst Jerusalem, he toke counsil with his Lordes, and men of myght to stop the water of the fountaynes without the crypte: & they dyd helpe him. For they gathered many of the people together, & stoppe al the welles welles, and the broke that ranne thozow the myddes of the lande, sayenge: why shall the kynges of Assur come, and fynde moch water? And hezekia went to iustelye, and built vp all the wal where it was broken, & made ordinaunce vpon the towres and to the other wall without, and repayzed Myllo in the crypte of Dauid, and made many bartes and wyldes.

And he sett captaynes of warre ouer the people, and gathered them together to hym in the large strete of the gate of the crypte, and spake sently to them, sayng: Plucke vp your hertes, and be strong: we not afrayed nor discouraged for the kyng of Assur, and for all the multitude that he hath with him: for there be moo with vs then with him. With him is an arme of flesh. But with vs is the Lord our God, for to helpe vs, and to fyght oure batayles. And the people toke a courage thozow the wordes of hezekia kyng of Juda.

After this dyd Sennacherib kyng of Assur send of his seruantes to Jerusalem, (but he hym selfe remayned besyde Lachis: hauyng all his power with him) vnto hezekia kyng of Juda and vnto all Juda that were at Jerusalem, sayenge: Thus sayeth Sennacherib kyng of Assur: wher do ye trust, O ye that dwell in Jerusalem which is beseged? Moth not hezekia entyce you to geue ouer your selues vnto deeth, hongre, and thirst, sayeng: the Lord our God shall ridd vs oute of the hande of the kyng of Assur? hath not the same hezekia put downe his hye places and his aulters, and commaunded Juda and Jerusalem, sayenge: Ye shall worshyppe before one aulter, and burne incense vpon the same?

Know ye not, what I and my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes: were the Gods of the people of other landes able or mighty to saue their lādes out of my hand? which of all the Gods of those naciōs (my fathers destroyed) coulde deliuer his people out of myne hand? And shall the Lord be able to deliuer you out of myne hand? wherfore, now let not hezekia deceaue you, nor persuade you of this facion, nor yet beleue him. For as no God among all naciōs and kingdomes, was able to rydde his people out of my hande and out the hande of my fathers: how moch lesse shall your goddes be able to kepe you out of myne hand? And yet mothynges dyd his seruantes speake agaynst the Lord God, and agaynst his seruaut hezekia. And (Sennacherib) also wrote a letter, to rayle on the Lord God of Israel, & spake agaynst him, sayenge: as the Gods of the naciōs of other landes haue not bene able to deliuer their people out of myne hande. Euen so shal not the God of hezekia deliuer his people out of myne hand. And they cryed with a loude voyce in the Jewes speach vnto the people of Jerusalem: we were on the wall, to fcare them and to make them saynt harted, & that they might take the crypte. And they spake agaynst the God of Jerusalem, as agaynst the Gods of the naciōs of the earth, which were the wozynges of the handes of men.

But hezekia the kyng, and the prophet Isai the sonne of Amoz prayed agaynst that blasphemy, and cryed vp to heauen. And the Lord sent an angell, which destroyed all the men of warre and the Lordes and captaynes of the host of the kyng of Assur, & he turned his face agayne to come toward his awne land. And when he was come into the house of his God, they that came of his awne body, sūe hym there with the sword. And so the Lord saued hezekia and the inhabitants of Jerusalem out of the hand of Sennacherib kyng of Assur, and from the hand of all other, and mayntened them on euery syde. And many brought offeringes vnto the Lord to Jerusalem, and presentes to hezekia kyng of Juda: so that he was magnified in the syght of all naciōs from thence forth.

In those dayes hezekia was sycke vnto the death, & prayed vnto the Lord, which answered him, & shewed hym a wonderfull miracle. But hezekia dyd not agayne vnto God according to it: he had shewed hym, for his hert arose: & there came wrath vpon him and vpon Juda & Jerusalem. Notwithstandyng hezekia submitted hym selfe (after that his hert was rylen vp) he, & the inhabitants of Jerusalem: and the wrath of the Lord came not vpon them in the dayes of hezekia.

And hezekia had excedyng moche ryches and honour. And he gat hym treasures of syluer and golde, precious stones, and spices, wyldes, and of all maner pleasaunt iuelles: and made store houses for the frutes of cozne, for wyne and oyle: and stalles for all maner of bestes, and foldes for shepe. And he made him cryptes, and had of shepe and ote great aboundance. For God had geuen him substance excedyng moch. This same hezekia stoppe the upper water springes of Sicho, and brought them downe to the well syde of the crypte of Dauid. And hezekia prospered in all his wozynges. And when the prynces of Babylon sent vnto him Ambassadors, to enquire of the wondre & chaunced in the lande, God left hym to trye hym, and that all that was in his hert, myght be knowne.

The rest of the dedes of hezekia, and his goodnes, behold, they are wyrtē in the vytyon of Isai the prophete the sonne of Amoz in the boke of the kynges of Juda and Israel. And hezekia slepte with his fathers, & they buryed hym in the most worthy place of the sepulchres of the sonnes of Dauid: and all Juda and the inhabitants of Jerusalem dyd hym worshyppe at his death. And Manasse hys sonne raygned in his steade.

The xxxij. Chapter.

Manasse is taken prisoner, and after that he cometh out, he destroyeth the Idoles. He dyeth, and after hym succedeth Amon, whych is helien of hys awne people, and Josias hys sonne raygneth in hys steade.

Manasse was xij. yere olde * when he beganne to raygne, & he raygned. lvi. yere in Jerusalem: But dyd euell in the syght of the Lord, lyke vnto the abhominacions of y^e heathen, who the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. For he went to, and buylt the hylaulter, * which hezekia hys father had broken downe. And he reared vp alters for Baalim, and made groues, and worshyped all the hoost of heauen, and serued them. And he buylt alters in y^e house of the Lord: where as the Lorde yet had sayd: * in Jerusalem shall my name be for euer. And he buylded alters for all the hoost of heauen, in the two courtis of the house of the Lorde. And he burnt hys chyldren in fyre, in the valey of the sonne of himmō. He was a forcerer, he regarded the cypenge of byrdes, vsed inchauntementes, and mayntened workes w^{ch} syretes, and sears of fortunes: ad wrought moch euell in the syght of the Lorde, to angre him with all.

23 And he put the kerued ymages & an Idole which he had made, in the house of God. Of which house God had sayd to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne: in this house and in Jerusalem whych I haue chosen afore all the trybes of Israel, * wyl I put my name for euer, and will nomore byng the seate of Israel from of the lande whych I haue ordeyned for your fathers. If so be that they wyl be diligent and do all that I haue commaunded them in al the lawe, and statutes, and ordinaunces by the hande of Moyses. And so Manasse made Juda and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to erre, and to do worse then the heathen, whom the Lorde destroyed before the chyldren of Israel. And the Lorde spake to Manasse & to hys people, but they wolde not regarde.

Wherfore, the Lorde brought vpo the the captaynes of the host of the kyng of the Assyrians, whych toke Manasse in holde, and bounde hym with chaynes, and caryed hym to Babylon. And when he was in tribulacion, he besought the Lord hys God, & humbled hym selfe excedyngly before the God of his fathers, and made intercession to hym and God was entreated of hym, and hearde his prayer, and brought hym agayne to Jerusalem into his kyngdome. And then Manasse knewe, that the Lorde was God.

After this he built a wal without the cytie of Dauid on the west syde of Gihō in the valley as they come to the fish gate, & round about Ophel, and brought it vp of a very great heygth, ad put captaynes of warre in all the strong cyties of Juda. And he toke awaye straunge Gods & ymages out of the house of God, and * all the alters that he had buylt in the mount of the house of God, and in Jerusalem, and cast them oute of the cytie. And he prepared the altar of y^e Lord, and sacrificed thereon peace offerynges, and thankofferynges, and charged Juda, to serue the Lord God of Israel. Neuertheles, y^e people dyd offer styll in the hylaulters, howbeit vnto the Lorde their God onely.

The rest of the actes of Manasse, and his prayer vnto his God, and the wordes of the sears and of them that spake to hym in the name of the Lorde God of Israel, beholde, they are writen in the sayenges of the kynges of Israel. And his prayer, and howe that he was hearde, and all his synnes, and his trespasses, and the places where he made hylaulters, and set vp groues, and ymages (before he was mekened) beholde, they are wyrtten among the sayenges of the sears. And Manasse slepte with hys fathers, and they buried hym in hys awne house: and Amon his sonne raygned in his rowme. Amon was two and twenty yere olde, when he beganne to raygne, and raygned two yere in Jerusalem. But he did euell in the syght of the Lord, lyke as dyd Manasse his father, for Amon sacrificed to all y^e kerued ymages which Manasse hys father had made, and serued them, and submitted not him selfe before the Lord as Manasse hys father had mekened hym selfe. But Amon trespassed greatly. And his awne seruantes conspired agaynst him, ad slue hym in hys awne house. But the people of the lande slue all them that had conspyred agaynst kyng Amon. And the same people of the lande made Josia hys sonne kyng in hys rowme.

The xxxiiij. Chapter.

Josia destroyeth the Idoles, and restoreth the temple, in which is founde the boke of the lawe. He sendeth to Hulda the prophetesse for counsell.

Josia was eyght yere olde whan he began to raygne, * and he raygned in Jerusalem thyrtye and one yere. And he dyd that which was eyght in the syght of the Lorde, and walked in the wayes of Dauid his father, ad bowed nether to y^e ryghte had ner to y^e left. In y^e viij. yere of hys raygne (whē he was yet a childe) he beganne to like after the God of Dauid hys father. And in the tweluth yere he beganne to pource Juda and Jerusalem from hylaulters, groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall, and they brake downe the alters alters of Baalim euen in hys presence: and other ymages that were in greater honoure then they, he caused to be destroyed. And the groues, kerued ymages, and ymages of metall he brake and made dust of them, and strawed it vpo the granes of them that had offered to them. And he burnt the bones of the preastes vpo the altres of them, and clenched Juda and Jerusalem. And euen so dyd he in the cyties of Manasse, Ephraim, Simeon vnto Nephthali. And in the wyl-dernesses of them rounde about, he plucked a sondre the alters and the groues, and dyd beate them and stampete them to powdze, & beate downe all the ymages thowout all the lande of Israel: and returned to Jerusalem agayne.

In the eyghtene yere of his raygne when he had purged the lande and the temple * he sent Saphan the sonne of Amaziahu, and Maasiah the gouernoure of the cytie & Joah the sonne of Joahaz the recorder, to repayze the house of the Lorde hys God. And when they came to helkiah the hie preast, they deliuered them the money that was brought into the house of God, whych the Leuites that kepte the entres had gathered of the hande of Manasse and Ephraim, and of all that yet remayned in Israel, and of all Juda and Ben Jamin, and of the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And they put in the handes of the workemen, that had the ouersyght of the house of the Lorde: and they gaue it to the labourers that wrought in the house of the Lorde, to repayze and mende the house. Euen to masons and carpenters gaue they it, to get stone and tymber, for couples and for beames of the houses, which the kynges of Juda had destroyed: And the men dyd the worke saythfully.

And the ouersers of them to courage the forward, were Jahath and Obadiah Leuites of the chyldren of Merari: & Secharia & Mesullam, of the chyldre of the Cahathites, and other of the Leuites whych all coude skille of instrumentes of Musicke. And ouer the bearers of burthes and ouer all y^e wrought, in whatsoeuer workemanshype it were, were there Serpybes, officers and porters of the Leuites.

And whan they brought out the money that was brought into the house of the lord, helkiah the preast * founde the boke of the lawe of the Lord geuē by Moyses. And helkiah answered and sayde to Saphan the scribe: I haue founde the boke of the law, in the house of the Lorde, and helkiah gaue the boke to Saphan. And Saphan caryed the boke to the kyng, and brought the kyng worde agayne, sayenge: all that was comytted to thy seruantes, that do they. And they haue gathered together the money that was found in the house of the Lord, and haue deliuered it in to the handes of the ouersers of the worke, and to the handes of the workemen. And then Sapha the scribe shewed the kyng, sayng: helkiah the preast hath geuen me a boke, & Sapha redd in it before y^e kyng.

And it fortuned, that when the kyng had heard the wordes of the lawe, he tare his clothes: and the kyng commaunded helkiah and Ahikam the sonne of Saphan, and Abidon the sonne of Micah, and Saphan the scribe, and Aiaia a seruant of the kynges, sayng: go & enquire of the Lorde for me and for the yare left in Israel and Juda, concerning the wordes of the boke that is found. For great is the wraoth of the Lorde that is fallen vpo vs, because oure fathers haue not kepte the worde of y^e Lord, to do after all that is wyrtten in this boke.

And helkiah and they that the kyng had appoynted, went to hulda a prophetesse the wyfe of Shallum the sonne of Tobiah the sonne of haia keeper of y^e wardrobe (for he dwelt in Jerusalem with in the secōd wall) and so they comined with her. She answered them: thus sayth y^e Lorde God of Israel: tell ye y^e man that sent you to me. Ene thus sayth the Lorde: Behold, I wyl byng euell vpon this place, & vpon the inhabitants thereof: euen all the curses that are wyrtte in the boke which they haue reade before the kyng of Juda) because they haue forsaken me, and haue offered vnto other Gods, to angre me in all maner workes of theyr handes, therefore is my wraoth set on fyre agaynst this place and shall not be quenched.

And as for the kyng of Juda whych sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so shill ye saue vnto him: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel concerning the wordes whych y^e haue heard. Because thyn hart dyd melt, & thou dydest meke thy selfe before God, whē thou heardest his wordes agaynst this place & agaynst the inhabitants thereof: & humbledst thy selfe before me, and tarest thy clothes, and wepest before me, that haue I hearde also sayth the Lorde. Behold, I wyl take y^e to thy fathers, and thou shalt be put in thy graue in peace, and thyn eyes shall not see all the myschefe that I wyl byng vpon this place, & vpon the inhabytors of y^e same. And they brought the kyng worde agayne. * Then the kyng sent, and gathered to gether all the elders of Juda and Jerusalem. And the kyng went vp into the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, & the preastes & Leuites and all the people great ad smalle: & the kyng dyd reade all the wordes of y^e boke of the couenaunt that was found in the house of the Lorde. And y^e kyng stode at hys standyng, & made a couenaunt before the Lorde, to folowe the Lorde, A ij and to and to kepe his commaundementes, his wytnesses, and his statutes, wythall his here & wythall his soule, & to fulfyll the wordes of the appoyntment wyrtten in the booke. And he set in theyr rowme all them that were founde in Jerusalem and Ben Jamin, and the enhabiters of Jerusalem dyd accordyng to the couenaunt of the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Josia put awaye all manner of abhominacions out of all landes that pertayned to the chyldren of Israel, and brought in all that were found in Israel, to worshipp, and to serue the Lorde theyr God. And they turned not a syde from after the Lorde God of theyr fathers, as longe as he lyued.

The xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Josia holdeth passeouer. He fighteth agaynst the kynge of Egypt, and dyeth. The people bewaile hym.

And Josia helde the *feast of passeouer vnto the Lorde in Jerusalem, & they slue passeouer in the fourtene daye of first moneth. And he set the preastes in theyr offices, and ayded them in the seruice of the house of the Lorde. And he sayde vnto the Leuites (that taught all Israel, and were sanctified vnto the Lorde) put the holy arcke in the house whych Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng of Israel, dyd buyld, there shall no other burthen be layd vpon youre shoulders: But now serue the Lorde youre God and his people Israel. And prepare yourselues by youre auncient householdes and companies, accordyng to the wyrtynge of Dauid kyng of Israel, and the wyrtynge of Salomon his sonne. And stande in the holy place accordyng to the deuision of the auncient householdes of youre brethren the chyldren of the people, & after the deuision of the auncient householdes of the Leuites, kyll passeouer, & sanctifye and prepare youre brethren, that they may do accordyng to the word of the Lorde by the bande of Moses.

¶ And Josia gaue to the people flockes of shepe and kyddes, all for passeouer and for all that were present, thyrty thousand by tale, and thre thousande oxen, and these were euen of the kynges substance. And his Lordes gaue willynglye both vnto the people & to the preastes, & vnto the Leuites. Helkiah also, zacharia and Ichiel, rulers of the house of God, gaue vnto the preastes for passeouer offerpnynges two thousand and syxe hundred shepe, and thre hundred oxen. Conaniah & Semeiah and Netanel his brethren, and Jashabiah and Jaiclad Josabab, rulers of the Leuites, gaue vnto the Leuites passeouer offerpnynges, euen fyue thousand shepe, & fyue hundred oxen.

And so the seruice was prepared, and the preastes stode in theyr places, and the Leuites in theyr distincte copanies at the kynges commaundment. And they slue Passeouer, and the preastes sprinkled the bloude with theyr hande, & the Leuites pulled of the saynes of the beastes. And they fett awaye the burntofferings, to geue them vnto the people that were denyed by auncient houses, & that they shulde offer vnto the Lorde, lyke as it is wyrtten in the booke of Moses. And so dyd they wyth the oxen also. And they dressed the Passeouer wyth fyre as the maner was. And the other dedycat beastes: sodde they in pottes, caulderns & paines, and denyed the amog all the people. And afterwarde, they made readye for them selues & for the preastes: for the chyldren of Aaron were busyed in offeryng of burntofferpnynges and the fatt vntyll nyght: therfore the Leuites prepared for them selues and for the preastes the sonnes of Aaron.

¶ And the syngers, the chyldren of Asaph stode in theyr standyng: & accordyng to the commaundment of Dauid and Asaph, hymen Jeduthun the kynges sear: and the porters wyped at euery gate, and myght not departe from theyr seruice: for theyr brethren the Leuites prepared for them. And so all the seruice of the Lorde was prepared the same daye, to offer passeouer, and to offer burntofferpnynges vpon the auter of the Lorde accordyng to the commaundment of kyng Josia.

¶ And so the chyldren of Israel that were present, offered passeouer the same tyme, & kepte the feast of swete breade seven dayes. And ther was no passeouer lyke to this kepte in Israel fro the dayes of Samuel the pphete: nether dyd all the kynges of Israel hold soch a passeouer feast as dyd Josia and the preastes and Leuites and all Juda, and Israel were present, and the enhabiters of Jerusalem. This passeouer was holde in the eyghthene yere of the raygne of Josia.

¶ After all this, when Josia had prepared the temple, Necho kyng of Egypt came vp to fyght agaynst Caranis besyde Euphrates, and Josia went out agaynst hym: whych sent messengers to hym, & sayd: what haue I to do wyth the thou kyng of Juda? Be not thou agaynst thy self this daye: For my warre is agaynst another house, & God bade me make halt. Leue of therfore & medle not with God whych is wyth me, lest he destroye the. Neuerthelesse, Josia wolde not turne his face from hym, but rather toke aduys to fyght with him, and hekened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God, and came to fyght in the vale of Megiddo, & the shoters shot darteres at kyng Josia. And the kyng sayd to his seruauntes: carpe me awaye, for I am soze wounded. His seruauntes seruauntes therfore had him out of that charret, and put him on (as a hyng) in another charret & they had. And when they had brought him to Jerusalem, he dyed, and was buryed in the sepulchre of his fathers. And all Juda and Jerusalem mourned for Josia. And Jeremia lamented Josia, and all syngynge men and synginge women mourned for Josia in their lamentacions, to this daye, and made the same lamentacions an ordinaunce in Israel, & behold, they be wyrtten in the lamentacions. The rest of the actes of Josia & his goodnes which he dyd in folowynge the wyrtynge in the lawe, and his sayenges, first and last: behold, they are wyrtten in the booke of the kynges of Israel and Juda.

The xxxvi. Chapter.

¶ After Josia raygneth Jehoahaz, after Jehoahaz Jehoahaz, after Jehoahaz Jehoahaz, in whose tyme all the people were carryd awaye to Babylon & were brought a rayne the threty yere after, by kyng Cyrus, otherwise called Choires.

And the people of the land toke Jehoahaz the sonne of Josia, and made him kyng in his fathers steade in Jerusalem. And Jehoahaz was thre and twenty yere olde, when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned thre monethes in Jerusalem. And the kyng of Egypt put him downe at Jerusalem, and merced the lande in an hundred talentes of syluer, and a talent of gold. And the kyng of Egypt made Eliakim his brother kyng vpon Juda and Jerusalem, & turned his name vnto Jehoakim: and Necho toke Jehoahaz his brother, and carryed hym to Egypt. Jehoakim was fyue and twenty yere olde, when he began to raygne, and he raygned eleuen yere in Jerusalem: and he dyd euill in the sight of the Lorde his God. Agaynst him then came vp Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon, and bounde hym with two chaynes, to carpe him to Babylon. The king Nabuchodonosor also carryed of vessels of the house of the Lorde to Babylon, & and put them in his temple at Babylon. The rest of the actes of Jehoakim, and his abhominacions which he did, and carryed ymages that were layde to his charge, beholde, they are wyrtten in the booke of the kynges of Israel: and Jehoacin his sonne raygned in his steade. Jehoacin was eyght yere olde when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned thre monethes and ten dayes in Jerusalem: and dyd euill in the sight of the Lorde. And when the yere was out, kyng Nabuchodonosor sent, and fet him to Babilon with the goodly vessels of the house of the Lorde, and made zedekiah (his fathers brother) kyng ouer Juda and Jerusalem.

¶ Zedekiah was one and twenty yere olde, when he beganne to raygne, & raygned eleue yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd euill in the syght of the Lorde his God, and humbled not him selfe before Jeremia the prophete at the mouth of the Lorde. And he rebelled agaynst Nabuchodonosor, which had receaued an oth of hym by God. But he was stiffnecked, and to harde herted to turne vnto the Lorde God of Israel. Moreover, all the rulers, the prestes, & the people trespassed more synnyng after all maner of abhominacions of the heathen, and polluted the house of the Lorde, which he had halowed in Jerusalem.

¶ And the Lorde God of their fathers sent to them, by his messengers, risynge vp by tymes and sendynge: for he had compassyon on his people, and on his dwellynge place. But they mocked the messengers of God, & despised his wordes, and mylde vsed his prophetes, vntyll the wrath of the Lorde arose agaynst his people, and tyll there was no remedy. And so he brought vpon them the kyng of Caldeye, which slue their yong men with the swerde in their holy temple, and spared nether yong man, mayden, olde man, nether hym that stowped for age. He gaue them all into his hande.

¶ And all the vessels of the house of God, (both great and small) and the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kyng, and of his Lordes: all these carryed he to Babilon. And they burnt the house of God and brake downe the wall of Jerusalem, & burnt all the places therof with fyre, and destroyed all the goodly Jewes therof. And the rest that had escaped the swerde, carryed he to Babylon, where they were bound to him and his chyldren, vntyll the tyme that Persia had the empire. To fulfyll the word of the Lorde by the mouth of Jeremia, vntyll the lande had her pleasure of her Sabbothes: for as longe as she laye desolate, she kept Saboth, vntyll seventy yeres were fulfilled.

¶ And the first yere of Cyrus kyng of Persia (when the worde of the Lorde was spoken by the mouth of Jeremia, was fulfilled) the Lorde stered vp the sperte of Cyrus kyng of Persia, that he made a proclamation thowrow out all his kyngdome, and that by wyrtynge, sayeng: Thus sayeth Cyrus kyng of Persia: all the kyngdomes of the earth hath the Lorde God of heauen geuen me, and hath charged me to buylde him an house in Jerusalem, that is in Juda. Wherefore, whosocuer is amonge you of all his people, the Lorde his God be with hym, and lett hym go vp.

The chyldren of Salomons seruautes, the chyldren of Sotai, the chyldren of Sophereth, the chyldren of Peruda, the chyldren of Jaala, the chyldren of Darcon, the chyldren of Giddel, the chyldren of Sephatiah, the chyldren of Hattil, the chyldren of Dochereth Hazbaim, the chyldren of Ami. All the Nethinims and the chyldren of Salomons seruautes, were all togather, thre hundred and two and nynty.

And these went vp from, Thelmelah, ad from Thelharla, Cherub, Adon and Immer. But they coulde not diserne theyr fathers house and theyr sede, whether they were of Israel. The chyldren of Delaia, the chyldren of Tobia, the chyldren of Recoda, fyre hundred and two and fyfty. And of the chyldren of the prestes. The chyldren of Hebaia, the chyldren of Hakoz, the chyldren of Berzilai, which toke one of the daughters of Berzilai & Silendite to wyfe, and was called after theyr name: these sought theyr euidence amonge them that had the register of byrth, and were not founde therin, therfore were they put fro the presthod. And Silenditha sayd vnto the, that they shuld not eate of y most holy, till ther rose vp a prest to weare Arim and Thunim.

The whole congregacion togather, was xlii. thousand, thre hundred and thre score: besyde their seruautes and maydens, of who there were seuen thousand, thre hundred, and seuen and thryty. And there were amonge them two hundred synginge men and wome. Their horses were seuen hundred and fyre & thirty. Their mules, two hundred, and fyue and fourty: and their camels, four hundred and fyue and thirty. Theyr askes, fyre thousande, seuen hundred and twenty. And certayne of the chiefe fathers, when they came because of the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem, they offered the selues wyllynge for the house of God, to sett in hys place, and gaue gold after their habilitie vnto the treasure of the worke, eue one and thre score thousande peccs, and fyue thousande pounce of syluer, and an hundred prestes garmentes. So the prestes and the leuites, and a certayne of the people and the syngers, and the porters, and the Nethinims dwelt in their cyties, and all Israel in theyr cyties.

The iii. Chapter.

¶ After the foundation of the temple once reued: they sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And when the seuenth moneth came, and the chyldren of Israel were now in theyr cyties, the people came togather (euen as one man) vnto Ierusalem. And there stode vp Iesua & sonne of Josede and his brethre the prestes, and zojobabel the sonne of Salathiel & hys brethzen, and buylde the aultar of the God of Israel, to offre burnt offrynges theron, as it is writen in the lawe of Moses pma of God and the aultar set they vp by socketes (for ther was a fearfulness amonge the because of the nations and landes) therfore they offered burnt offrynges theron vnto the Lorde in the morning & at euen. And they helde the feaste of tabernacles as it is writen, & offered burnt sacrifices dayly, acording to y nobre & custome, daye by daye. Afterwarde they offred dayly burnt offrynges also, & in y new mones and in all the feast dayes that were coscrate vnto the Lorde, and for all them whych dyd (of their awne fre wyl) offre vnto the Lorde.

From the first daye of the seuenth moneth beganne they to offre burnt sacrifices vnto the Lorde: euen whan the foundation of the temple of the Lorde was not yet layed. They gaue money also vnto y masons and carpen ters, and meate and dryncke and oyle vnto them.

¶ The first yere of Cyrus kynge of Persia (y the word of the Lorde spoken by y mouth of Ieremy might be fulfilled) the Lorde stered by y spret of Cyrus kynge of Persia, that he caused to be proclaymed thowow out all hys empire, & to be wypten, saying: Thus sayth Cyrus the kynge of Persia: The Lorde God of heauen hath geue me all the kyngdomes of y earth,

¶ and hath commaunded me to buyde hym an house at Ierusalem which is in Iuda. Who soeuer now among you is of his people, the Lorde his God be with hym, and let him go vp to Ierusalem in Iuda, & builde the house of the Lorde God of Israel. He is the God y is at Ierusalem. And whosoeuer remayneth yet in eny manner of place (where he is a stranger) let the men of that place helpe hym w syluer and golde, with good & catell, besyde that which they wyllyngly offer, for y house of God that is at Ierusalem.

¶ Then gat vp the principal fathers of Iuda and Beniamin, & the prestes & leuites, ad all theyr whole sprete God had rayled to go vp, & to buyde the house of the Lorde, which is at Ierusalem. And al they y were about the strenghted their hand, w vessels of syluer, & golde, with good and catell, & Jewels: in so moch y euerie one shewed hym selfe liberrall. And kynge Cyrus brought forth the vessels of the house of the Lorde, which Nabuchodonosor had take out of Ierusalem, and had put in the house of his God. Those dyd Cyrus the kynge of Persia bring forth by y hande of Mithridates the treasurer, and nombred the vnto Selsazar the prince of Iuda. And this is the nobre of the xxx. chargers of gold.

them of zidon and of T're, to buyge the temple tymber fro Liban⁹ by see vnto Top-pa, accordyng to the graunt that they had of Cyrus the kynge of Persia.

In the seconde yere of their coming vnto the place of y^e house of God at Jerusalem in the second moneth, begaune zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, & Iesua the sonne of Josedece, and the remnant of they^r brethren the prestes and leuites, and all they that were come out of the captiuite vnto Jerusalem, & appoynted the leuites from twentye yere olde and aboue, to se, that the worke of the house of the Lorde went forwarde. And Iesua stode with his sonnes and brethren, and Cadmiell with his sonnes, and the chyldre of Juda, to forther the workemen of the house of God, euen the chyldre of benadab, with their chyldren and their brethren the leuites.

And whan the builders layd the foundacyon of the temple of the Lorde, the prestes stode in they^r array, with troyces. And the leuites the chyldren of Asaph with cymbales, to prayse the Lorde * after the maner of Dauid kynge of Israel. And they sang together, whan they gaue prayse & thanks vnto the Lord, because he is gracious, and because his mercy endureth for euer vpon Israel. And all y^e people shouted loude in praysynge the Lord, because the foundacion of the house of the Lorde was layde. Many also of the prestes and leuites and auncient fathers, which had sene the first house (wher the foundacion of thys house was layde before they^r eyes) wepte with a loude voyce. And many shouted with ioye, so that the noyse gaue a greate sounde, in so moch y^e the people coude not discerne the ioyful sounde and gladnes, from the noyse of the wepyng amonge the people: for the people shouted wyth a loude cry, and the noyse was herde farre of.

The. iij. Chapter.

The buyldyng of the temple is hyndered, and let.

But * the aduersaries of Juda and Benjamin hearde, that the chyldren of the captiuite buylded the temple vnto the Lord God of Israel. And they came to zorobabel and to the principall fathers, and sayde vnto the: We will bulde with you: for we seke the Lorde youre God lyke as ye do. And we haue done sacrifice vnto hym, sence the tyme of Asor hadon the kynge of Assur * which brought vs by hyther. And zorobabel ad Iesua and the other auncient fathers of Israel sayde vnto them: It canot be, that you and we together shuld buylde the house vnto our God: for we our selues wyll buylde alone vnto the Lord our God of Israel, * as Cyrus the king of Persia hath commaunded vs.

And it came to passe, that the folke of the land hyndered the people of Juda, and troubled them as they were buyldyng, and hyred counsellors against them, to hynder their deuyce, as longe as Cyrus the kynge of Persia lyued, vntill the raygne of Darius king of Persia. And in the raygne of Darius, (euen in y^e begynnynge of his raygne) wrote they vnto him a complaynte agaynst the inhabitours of Juda and Jerusalem.

And in the dayes of Artaxerxes, wrote Mithridath Tabeel and the other of hys counsell, vnto Artaxerxes the king of Persia with saye wordes. And the scripture of the letter was writen in the Sirians speech, au interpreted in the language of the Sirians. Rehum the recorder and Samtai the scribe wrote a letter from Jerusalem to Artaxerxes the kynge, as it foloweth.

Then Rehum the recorder, & Samtai the scribe, and other of their compaigne of Dina, of Arphalath, of Carpla, of Persia, of Arach, of Babylon, of Suslan, of Meba, of Elan, & other of the people * who the greates & noble Anapar brought ouer, and sett in the cytes of Samaria, & other, that are now on this syde the water. Thys is the coppe of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artaxerxes.

Thy seruantes, & the men that are now on thys syde the water. Be it knowne vnto the king, that the Jewes which came vnto the to vs, are come vnto Jerusalem (a cytie scdyous and frowarde) and buylde the same, and sett vp the walles therof, and laye the foundacions. Be it knowne now also vnto the kynge, that yf this cytie be buylded, and the walles therof made vp agayne, then shall not they geue, tolle, tribute, and custome, and the kynges profyte shall incurre damage. And now in the meane season we haue destroyed the temple, and wolde no longer se the kynges dishonour: Therefore sent we out also, and certifyed the kynge: that it maye be sought in the booke of y^e Chronycles of thy progenitours, and so shalt thou fynde in the booke of the Chronycles, and perceaue that this cytie is scdyous and noysome vnto kynges and landes, and that they cause other also amonge them to rebell of olde, & for the same cause was thys cytie destroyed. Therefore do we certifie the kynge that yf this cyte be buylded agayne, and the walles therof made vp, thou shalt hereafter haue no porcion on this syde the water.

Then sent the kynge answere vnto Rehum the recorder, & Samtai the scribe, and to the other of they^r compaignes that dwelt in Samaria, & vnto the other y^e were beyonde the water, in Sela and Chebeth. The letter which ye sent vnto vs, hath bene openly redde before me, and I haue commaunded to make search: & it is founde, y^e this cytie of olde hath made insurrection agaynst kynges, and that rebellion rebellion and sedicion hath bene commytted therein. There haue bene myghtie kynges also at Jerusalem, which haue raygned ouer all countrees beyonde the water: and tolle, tribute, & custome was geuen vnto the: Gene ye now therfore commaundement, that the same men be forbydden, and that the cytie be not buylded agayne, tyll I haue geuen another commaundement. Take hede now that ye be not negligent to do this: for why shulde y^e kynge haue harme there thorowe?

Now when the coppe of kynge Artaxerxes letter was red before Rehum and Samtai the scribe and their compaignes, they went vp in all the haste to Jerusalem vnto the Jewes, and forbad them with violence and power. Then ceased the worke of the house of God at Jerusalem, and continued so vnto the seconde yere of Darius kynge of Persia.

The. v. Chapter.

By the reuocacion of Aggeus and zachary is the temple buylded agayne.

The prophetes, Aggeus and zachary the sonne of Iddo, prophesied vnto the Jewes that were in Juda and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel. * Then gat vp zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Iesua the sonne of Josedece, and begaune to buylde the house of God at Jerusalem, and with them were the prophetes of God, which helped them. At the same tyme came to the Tathnai which was captayne on thys syde the water, and Starbaznai, and their compaignes, and sayde thus vnto them. Who hath commaunded you to buylde thys house, and to make vp these walles? Then tolde we them the names of the men, that made thys buyldyng. But the eye of their God was vpon the elders of the Jewes, that they coude not cause them to cease, tyll the matter was brought to Darius, and then they answered by letters ther vnto.

This is y^e coppe of y^e letter, that Tathnai (which was captayne on thys syde the water) and Starbaznai, and the counsellors of Apharlah (which were on this syde the water) sent vnto kynge Darius. And the matter that they sent vnto him, was writen thus within the lettre: Vnto Darius the kynge, all peace. Be it knowne vnto the kynge, that we went into the lande of Jewry to y^e house of y^e great God, which is buylded wth mighty greates stones, and beames are layed in the walles, and the worke goeth fast forth, and prospereth in their handes. Then asked we the Elders, & sayde vnto the as it foloweth: Who commaunded you to buylde this house, & to make vp the walles therof? We asked their names also, that we might certifie the,

and wyte the names of the men that were they^r rulers.

But they answered vs with these wordes, and sayde. We are the seruantes of him that is God of heauen and earth, and buylde the house that was buylded many yeres ago * which a greates kynge of Israel buylded, and set vp. But after y^e our fathers had prouoked the God of heauen vnto wrath, * he gaue them ouer into the hande of Nabuchodonozor the king of Babylon, & of the Caldees, which brake downe this house, and caried y^e people a waye captiue vnto Babilo.

* But in the fyrst yere of Cyrus the kynge of Babylon, the same kynge Cyrus gaue commaundement concernynge thys house of God, that it shulde be builded agayne. And y^e vessels of golde & syluer of the house of God, which Nabuchodonozor toke out of the temple that was at Jerusalem, & brought them into the temple at Babylon, those dyd Cyrus the kynge take out of the temple at Babylon, * and they were deliuered vnto one Sabazar by name, who he made captayne, and sayde vnto him. Take these vessels, and go thy waye, and sett them in the temple that is at Jerusalem, and lett the house of God be buylded in hys place. Then came the same Sabazar, and layde the foundacyon of the house of God which is at Jerusalem. Sence y^e tyme also vntill now hath it bene in buyldyng, and yet is it not fynished. Yf it please the kynge now therfore, lett there be searche made in the kynges librarye which is there at Babilo, whether it haue bene kynge Cyrus commaundement, that thys temple of God at Jerusalem shulde be buylded and lett hym sende vs the kynges mynde concernynge the same matter.

The. vi. Chapter.

At the commaundement of Darius kynge of Persia, after the temple was buylded and dedicate, the chyldren of Israel hepe the feast of vnleuened breade.

When commaunded kynge Darius, and they made search in the librarye, euen in the place where they layde the treasure at Babylon. * And there was founde in a coffre (in the place that is in the lande of the Medes) a volume: and therin was it thus wyrtten, and soche a memoriall: In the fyrst yere of kynge Cyrus, gaue the same kynge Cyrus commaundement concernynge the house of God at Jerusalem, that the same house shulde be buylded in y^e place where they offere the sacrifices, * and to ioyne the walles together of thre skore cubytes heygth, and thre skore cubytes bredth. The rowes of rough stones, and one rowe of tymber, and the expences shalbe geue of the kynges house. And let the golde and syluer vessel of the house of God (which Nabuchodonozor toke out of the temple) be put in the temple.

ple at Jerusalem, and brought vnto Babylon) be restored, and brought agayne vnto the temple at Jerusalem to their place in the house of God.

Set you farre from them therfore, thou Chabnai captayne beyonde the water, and Scharbuzanai, and poure councelers: Aphersechi, which are beyonde the water, get ye a waye from the. Let the worke of y^e house of this God alone, that the captayne of the Jewes and their Elders maye buylde y^e house of God in his place. I haue commaunded what shalbe done to the Elders of Iuda for the buylding of the house of God, that there shalbe diligent hede take of the kynges goodes, euen of the rentes beyonde the water, ad geue vnto the men, that they be not hyndred. And yf they haue neede of calues, rammes & lambes, for the burnt offeringe of the God of heauen, wheate, salt, wyne and oyle, after the custome of the prestes at Ierusalem, let the same be geuen them daylie with out anye delaye, that they maye offer swete sauiours vnto the God of heauen, and praye for the kynges lyfe, and for his chyldre. And soch a commaundement haue I geuen that what man soeuer he be that altereth this worde, there shal a beame be taken fro his house, and set vp, and he shalbe hanged thereon, and his house shalbe made a doughty hill for the same thyng.

And the God that set his name there, destroye all kynges, & people, that put to their hande to altere to breake downe y^e house of God which is at Ierusalem. I Darius haue commaunded, that this be done with speede.

Then Chabnai the captayne of the countrey beyonde the water, and Scharbuzanai with theyr councelers (to whom kynge Darius had sent) did their diligence: And y^e Elders of the Jewes builded, and they prospered thowow the prophecyng of Aggeus the prophet and zachary the sonne of Iddo: and they builded, and layed vp the foundation, according to the comaundement of the God of Israel, and after the commaundement of Cyrus, and Darius & Artaxerxes kynges of Persia. And the house was fynished the thyrde dape of the moneth Adar, euen in the fyrte yere of the raygne of kynge Darius.

* (i. Par. vii. b)

And the children of Israel, y^e prestes, the Leuites, and the other children of the captiuite helde the dedicacion of this house of God with ioye, and offered at the dedicacion of this house of God, and hundred oxen, two hundred rammes, foure hundred goates: ad for the reconcilinge of all Israel twelue he goates, accordyng to the nombre of the tribes of Israel, & set the prestes in their sondy courses, & the Leuites in their diuerse offices to minister vnto God at Ierusalem, as it is written in the boke of Moyses.

And the children of the captiuite helde Passouer vpon the fourteenth dape of y^e fyrst moneth: for the prestes and Leuites were purified, so that they were all cleane together, and kyled Passouer for all the childre of the captiuite, and for their brethre y^e prestes, and for them selues. And the children of Israel which were come agayne out of captiuite, and all soche as had separated them selues vnto them from the fylthynesse of the hyethen of the lande: to seke the Lorde God of Israel, did eate, and helde the feast of vniuened bread seuen dayes with ioye: for the Lorde had made them glad, and turned the hert of y^e kynge of Assur vnto them, to strengthen their handes in the worke of the house of God, euen the God of Israel.

The vii. Chapter.

By the commaundement of Artaxerxes, Edoas taketh his companions the chyldren of Israel, and returneth to Ierusalem.

After these actes, there was in y^e raygne of Artaxerxes kynge of Persia, one Edoas the sonne of Saraiab, the sonne of Iasaria, the sonne of Helkia, the sonne of Sallum, the sonne of Zadoc, the sonne of Ahitob, the sonne of Amaria, the sonne of Asaria, the sonne of Meraioth, the sonne of Zeraia, the sonne of Elzi, the sonne of Buchi, y^e sonne of Abisua, the sonne of Whinehes, the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron y^e chefe prest. Thus Edoas also went vp from Babylon, and was a perfite scribe in the lawe of Moyses, which the Lord God of Israel did geue. And the kynge gaue him all that he requyred, because the hande of the Lorde was vpon him. And there went vncertayne of the children of Israel, of the prestes, Leuites, syngers, porters, ad of the Aethynims vnto Ierusalem, in the seuenth yere of kynge Artaxerxes. And he came to Ierusalem in the fyfth moneth, euen in the seuenth yere of the kynge. For vpon the fyrst dape of the fyrst moneth, beganne he to go vp from Babylon: & on the fyrst dape of the fyfth moneth came he to Ierusalem, because the good hande of God was vpon him. For Edoas prepared his hert to seke the lawe of the Lorde, and to do it, and to teach the precept and iudgement in Israel.

And this is the coppe of the letter, y^e kynge Artaxerxes gaue vnto Edoas the prest & scribe, which was a wyrtter of the wordes and commaundementes of the Lorde and of his statutes ouer Israel. Artaxerxes a king of kynges, vnto Edoas the prest & scribe of the lawe of the God of heauen, peace and saluacion. I haue comaunded, that all they of the people of Israel, and of the prestes and Leuites in my realme (which are mynded of their awne good wyll to go vp to Ierusalem)

Jerusalem) go with the: and therfore art thou sent of the kynge and of his seuen councelers, to vylet Iuda and Jerusalem, accordyng to the lawe of thy God, which is in thy hande: And that thou shuldest take with the syluer and golde, which the kynge and his councelers offere of their awne good wyll vnto the God of Israel (whose habitacyon is at Jerusalem) and all the syluer and golde y^e thou canst fynde in all the countrey of Babylon, w^{it} that the people offere of theyr awne good wyll and the prestes geue for the house of thy God which is at Jerusalem.

Take thou the same, and bye diligently with the same money, oxen rammes, and lambes, with their meate offerings and drinck offerings, and thou shalt offer them vpon the altare of the house of youre God which is at Jerusalem. And loke what it lyketh the and thy brethren to do with the remnant of the money, that do after the wyll of youre God. And the vessels that are geuen the for the ministracion in the house of thy God, those deliuer thou before God at Jerusalem.

And whatsoeuer thyng moze shall be needfull for the house of thy God, which is necessary for the to spende, thou shalt receaue the charges out of y^e kynges treasure house. I kynge Artaxerxes haue commaunded all the treasures beyonde the water, that loke whatsoeuer Edoas the prest and scribe in the lawe of the God of heauen, requireth of you, that ye fulfyll the same speedely, vntyll an hundred talentes of syluer, vntyll an hundred quarters of wheate, and tyll an hundred batthes of wyne, & tyll an hundred batthes of oyle, & salt without measure. Whatsoeuer also belongeth to the lawe of the God of heauē, let the same be done without anye delaye for the house of the God of heauē, that he be not wroth agaynst y^e realme, & agaynst the kynge, and his chyldren.

And we certifie you, that ye haue no auctorite to requyre taxinge and custome, and yearly rentes vpon any of the prestes, Leuites, syngers, porters, Aethynims ad ministers in the house of his God. And thou Edoas (after the wysdome of thy God, that is in thy hande) sett iudges and arbiters (by my auctorite) to iudge all the people that is beyonde the water, euen all soch as knowe y^e lawe of thy God: ad the that knowe it not, those se that ye teach. And whosoever wyll not fulfyll the lawe of thy God, ad the kynges lawe, let him haue his iudgement without delaye, whether it be vnto death, or to be rooted out, or to be condemned in goodes, or to be put in prison.

Blessed be the Lorde God of oure fathers, which so hath inspired y^e kynges hert, to garnysh the house of the Lorde, that is at Jerusalem: and hath enclyned his mercy vnto me in the presence of the kynge, & his councelers, and before all the kynges hye estates. And I was comforted (euen as the hande of the Lorde my God was vpon me) & so gathered I the heades of Israel together, that they myght go vp with me.

The viij. Chapter.

The nombre of them that returned to Ierusalem with Edoas.

These are the principall fathers of Iuda, and this is their register that wente vp with me from Babilon, what tyme as kynge Artaxerxes raygned. Of the chyldren of Whinehes, Serlom: of the chyldren of Ithamar, Daniel: of the chyldren of David, Batus: of the chyldre of zecania amonge the childre of pharos, zachary, and with him were nobred an hundred and fyfte men. Of the chyldren of the captayne of Moab, Eltoenai the sonne of zerahia, and with him two hundred men. Of the chyldren of zecania the sonne of Jahasiel, and with him thre hundred men. Of the chyldren of Adin, Abed the sonne of Jonathan, and with him fyfte men. Of the chyldre of Elam, Isai the sonne of Athalia, and with him seuentie men. Of the chyldre of Saphatia, zebadia the sonne of Michael, and with hym foure score men.

Of the chyldre of Ioab, Obadia the sonne of Jehiel, and with hym two hundred and thre score men. Of the chyldren of Selonuth the sonne of Iosephia, and with him an hundred and thre score men.

Of the chyldren of Brbai, zachary the sonne of Sebai, and with him cyght and twentie men. Of the chyldren of Agab, Iohanan, the sonne of Hakatan, and with him an hundred and ten men. Of the chyldren of Adoniam, that were the last, whose names were these: Eliphelet, Jehiel and Samanah, and with them thre score men. Of the chyldren of Bignai, Athai, and zabud, and with the seuentie men. And I gathered them together by the water that renneth towarde Ahava, and there abode we thre dayes. And I looked amonge the people and the prestes & founde there none of the children of Leui. Then sent I to Eliezer, to Aziel, Semcia, Elnathan, Farib, Elnathan, Nathan, zachary and to Besullam the rulers, and to Joarib ad Elnathan which were men of vnderstandyng, and to those gaue I commaundement vnto Iddo the cheffest at Casphia, that they shulde fetch vs ministers for y^e house of oure God, and I tolde them what they shulde saye vnto Iddo, and to his brethren the Aethynims at Casphia.

And (thowow the good hāde of oure God vpon vs) they broughte vs a wyse man fro amonge the children of Moab the sonne of Leui, the sonne of Israel, and Sarabia with hys sonnes and his brethren, euen cyghrene. And Hasabiah, and with him Isai of the chyldren of Merari, with his brethren and they sonnes, twentie. And of the Reubynims, who Dauid & the Princes gaue to mynister vnto the Leuites, two hundred & twentye of Re-ubynims, which all were named by name.

And euen there at the water, besyde Aha-ua, I proclaimed a fast, that we myghte huble oure selues before oure God, and seke of him a ryghte waye for vs, and for oure children and for all oure substance. For I was a named to requyre of the kynge, soubpys & hysin, to helpe vs agaynst the enemy in the waye: but we sayd vnto the kynge: The hande of oure God is vpon all the that seke hym in goodnes, and (hys compassyon) hys violence and wrath is agaynst all them that forsake him. So we fasted, and be soughte oure God for this, and he hearde vs.

And I toke out twelue of the chiefe prea-stes, Sarabia and Hasabiah, and ten of their brethren with them, and weyed them y syluer and golde, & vessels that were appoynted for the house of oure God, which the kynge and his counsellors and his Lordes, and all Israel that were there at hande, had geuen together. And I weyed vnto their hande sixe hundred & syfte talentes of syluer, & in syluer vessel an hundred talentes, & in golde an hundred talentes: twentie basens of golde of a thousande peces, and two costly ornaments of good brasse, as cleare as golde: and I sayde vnto them: Ye are consecrate vnto the Lorde, lyke as y vessels are holy also, and the golde and syluer are geue of a good wyll vnto the Lorde God of youre fathers. Watch ye, and kepe it: for ye shall weye it downe before the chiefe prestes and Leuites, and auncient fathers of Israel at Ierusalem in the treasures of the house of the Lorde. Then toke y prea-stes and Leuites that weyed syluer & golde and vessel, to bringe it to Ierusalem, vnto y house of oure God. And we brake vp, from the water of Ahaia on the tweluenth daye of the fyrst moneth, to go vnto Ierusalem: and the hande of oure God was vpon vs, & de-liuered vs from the hande of the enemy, & ad-of soch as layde wayte for vs by the waye.
And we came to Ierusalem, and abode there thre dayes. But on the fourth daye was the syluer & golde and vessel weyed in the house of oure God, by the hande of Meremoth the sonne of Uzia the preste, and with hym was Eleazar the sonne of Phineches, & with them was Josabab the sonne of Iesua, and Noahia the sonne of Benoi the Leuites.
According to the nombze and weyght of eu-ery one, was the weyght all wyrtten vp at the same tyme.

And the children of the captiuite, which were come out of prison, offered burnt offerynges vnto the God of Israel: twelue bullockes for all Israel, syxe and nyntye rammes, seuen and seuentie lambes, twelue hegoates for a synofferynge, all to the burntofferynge of the Lorde. And they deliuered the kynges commission vnto the kynges officers, & to the capitaynes that were on thys syde the water. And they promoted the people and the house of God.

of Palseah, and Mesulam the sonne of Beso-dia, they layde the beames therof, and set on the dozes, lockes and barres of it. Nexte unto them, buylded Malattah of Gibeon, and Jadon of Merano, men of Gibeon, and of Hilpa, where he that was captayne of this syde the water had a mansion. Nexte unto him buylded Asiel the sonne of Harhahab & goldsmith. Nexte unto him also buylded hananiah the sonne of Harakabim, and they re-payred Ierusalem vnto the brode wall. Nexte unto them buylded Rappahiah the sonne of hur, the ruler of the halfe parte of Ierusalem. Nexte vnto hym buylded Jedai the sonne of Harumaph ouer agaynst his house: ad nexte vnto him buylded Hatus the sonne of Hasabnia. But Melchiah the sonne of Harim and Hasub & sonne of the captayne of Moab buylded the other pece, and the tower belyde the foznaces. Nexte vnto him buylded Sal-lum a syngers sonne, the ruler of & halfe parte of Jerusalem, he and his daughters.

The valley gate buylded Hamun, & the cytelyns of zanoa. They buylded it, and set on the dozes, lockes and barres therof, and a thousande cubites on the wall, vnto & Don-ge porte. But the Donge porte buylded Mel-chiah the sonne of Rechab, the ruler of the fourth parte of Bethchar: he repayed it, ad set on the dozes, lockes and barres therof.
But the wellgate repayed Shallu the sonne of Chohobah, the ruler of the fourth parte of Hilpa. He buylded it, and layed the bea-mes, and set on the dozes, lockes, and barres therof, and the wall vnto the pole of Siloah by the kynges garden, and vnto the steppes that go downe from the cytelle of Dauid. After him buylded Achemiah the sonne of Af-bok, the ruler of the halfe parte of Bethzur, vntyll the other syde ouer agaynst the sepulchres of Dauid, and to the pole that was re-payred, and vnto the house of the myghtie.

After him buylded the Leuites, Achum the sonne of Bani: and nexte vnto him buyl-ded Hasabia the ruler of the halfe parte of Reilah in hys quarter. After hym buylded they brethren. Banai the sonne of Henadad the ruler of the halfe parte of Reilah: and after hym buylded Ezer the sonne of Iesua the ruler of Hilpa the other pece, harde ouer a-gaynst the goynge vp to the house of ordinauce that was in the corner. Agayne, after hym brake forth Baruch the sonne of zachal of indignacyon, and repayed the other pece from the turnyng corner vnto the doze of the house of Eliasib the hye prest. After hym also buylded Meremoth the sonne of Aria the sonne of Hacos the other pece, from the doze of the house of Eliasib, euen as longe as the house of Eliasib extended. After hym buylded the prestes, the men of the playne. After hym buylded Beniamin and Hasub ouer agaynst theyr house: and after hym wrought Aaria the sonne of Maasia the sonne of Anania nexte vnto hys house.

After hym also buylded Benut the sonne of Hanadad the other pece, from the house of Aaria vnto the turnyng of the wall, and vnto the corner.

After hym buylded Pala & sonne of Asai ouer agaynst the corner and the hye tower, which lyeth out ouer from the kynges house, that was belyde the courte of the prelon.
After hym buylded Phedai the sonne of Pharthos (as for & Bethinims they dwelt in the strōg holde vnto the watergate, towarde the east, and to the tower that lyeth out.) After hym buylded they of Chelua the other pece ouer agaynst the greete tower, that lyeth out warde, vnto the wall of the strōge holde.

But from aboue the hozigate forth, buyl-ded the prestes, euerie one ouer agaynst his house. And after the buylded zadok the sonne of Immer ouer agaynst his house. After hym buylded also Semeia the sonne of Sechania the keper of the Eastgate. After him buylded Hanania the sonne of Selemia, and Hamun the sonne of zalaph the syxte, the other pece. And after him buylded Mesula the sonne of Warachia ouer agaynst his store house. After him buylded Malachia the goldsmithes sonne, vntyll & house of Bethinims, and of the merchauntes ouer agaynst the gate of Bethphad, and to the parlor in the corner. And betwene the parlour of the corner vnto the Shepegate buylded the gold-smithes and the merchauntes.

The iij. Chapter.

The buyldynge of Jerusalem is hyndred and let,
but the Jewes buylded it, bringe readye harnesse,
let theyr enemyes wulde make them.

But when Sanabalat heard that we buylded the wall, he was wroth in hym selfe, and toke greete indignacyon, & mocked & Jewes, and sayde before his brethren & the soul-dyers of Samaria: what do these impotēt Jewes? wyll the bethen suffre them? Shall they offre? Shall they perfonme it in one daye? Shall they make & stones whole agayne that are brought to dust, and brent?
And Tobiah & Ammonite was belyde him, ad sayde: Though they buylde, yet yf a fore go vp, he shall breake downe theyr stonye wall. Heare (O thou oure God) for we are despyled, turne their shame vpon their awne heade, & geue the ouer into despyng in the lande of their captiuite. Couer not their wickednesse, & let not their synne be put out i thy presence: for they haue prouoked & buylders.
And so buylded we the wall, & it was ioyned whole together, vnto & half heygth ther
of. And the people were mynded to labour.

And

And it fortuneth, & when Sanabalat, and Tobiah, & the Arabians, Ammonites, & Mo-odites heard, & the walles of Ierusalem were mad vp, and & the gappes begane to be stopped, they were very wroth, & cōspired all together to come, & fyght agaynst Ierusalem, ad to make the people an hynderaunce therein.
Nethertheless, we made our prayer vnto our God, & set watchmen by the, which buylded daye & nyght ouer agaynst them. And Iuda sayd: the strength of the bearcers is to feble, & there is yet moch moze moxter, & we are not able to buyld on the wall. And our aduersaries sayd: they shall not knowe nether se, tyll we come in the middes amōge the, and slaye the, and hinder the worke. But it fortuneth & when the Jewes (which dwelt belyde the) came, they tolde vs as good as ten tymes, & in all places where ye go vnto, they are appointed to fal vpo vs. Therefore let & & people after their kyrces in their swordes, spea-res & bowes bench in & lowe places behynd the wal, & I looked, & gat me vp, & sayd vnto
the chefe me, to & rulers, & to & other people, be not ye afrayed of the, * but thincke rather vpo the greete Lord, whych ought to be feared, & fight for your brethren, your sones, yd daughters, your wyues, & your houses. Ne-uertheless, it chaūced that when our enemyes hearde, that we had gotten worde of it. God brought their coucel to naught, & we turned all agayne to & wal, euerie one vnto his labd.
And fro that tyme forth it came to passe & the half parte of the yong men did the labour, & the other half parte of the helde the speares, shyldes, bowes, and best plates: & the rulers stode behynde all the house of Iuda, which buylded on the wall, and bare burthens fro those & laded the. With one hande dyd euerie one worke, & w the other helde he hys weape. And euerie one & buylded, had his sword, gyde by hys thygh, ad so buylded they. And the trompet blew belyde me.

And I sayd vnto the principal men, to the rulers, and to the other people: the worke is great and large, & we are separated vpon the wall one farre from another. Loke in what place therfore ye heare the noyse of the trom-pet, reioyce ye thither vnto vs, * & our God shal fight for vs, & we will be labouryng in the worke. And the halfe part of the helde & speares fro & mozynng spyng, tyll the star-res came forth. And at the same tyme said I vnto the people: euerie one abyde with hys seruaunt at Ierusalem, that in the night seaso we maye watch, and labour on the daye tyme. As for me and my brethren, my seruau-tes, and the me of the watch (which were behynde me) we put neuer of oure clothes, no-moze then the other dyd theyr harnesse, saue onely because of the water.

The v. Chapter.

The people are vexed with hongre. The re-quyeth not the buyng of a captayne.

Ad there arose a great cōplaynte of & people, and of theyr wyues agaynst their brethren the Jewes. For there were some that sayd: oure sonnes and daughters and we are to many, therfore wyll we take corne for the, & we maye eate, and lyue.
Some also there were that sayde: let vs lett oure landes, vyneyardes and houses to pledge, and take vp corne in the darth. But som there were that sayd: let vs borowe money for the kynges trybute & that vpon our landes and vyneyardes. Behold, oure bodies as the bodies of oure brethren, and oure chy-dren as theyr chyldren: elles shulde we subdue oure sonnes and daughters vnto bondage, and some of oure daughters are subdued vnto bondage all ready, & no strength is there in houre hādes, and other men haue our landes and vyneyardes.

And when I heard their cōplaynte and soch wordes, it displeased me sore, ad I ad-uised so in my mynde, & I rebuked the coun-cellers, and the rulers, and sayde vnto them: Euerie one of you is to chargeable vnto hys brother. And I brought a greete congrega-cyon agaynst them, and sayd vnto them: we (after oure abilitie) haue bought oure brethren the Jewes, which were solde vnto & heathē.
And wyll ye sell your brethren agayne vnto
the heathen, after that they haue bene selde vnto vs? Then helde they theyr peace, and coude fynde nohyng to answer.

And Achemiah sayde: It is not good that ye do. Dought ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the heathen & are our enemyes? I and my brethren, and my seruauntes do lend them money & corne: but as for vsurpe, let vs leaue it. Therefore, this same daye I pray you se that ye restore them theyr landes agayne, theyr vyneyardes, oyle gardes, and their houses, and remytte the hyndred part of the money, of the corne, wyne and oyle that ye haue wonne of them. Then sayd they: we will restore the agayne, & wyll requeyre nothing of the, and will do as & hast spoken. And I called & prestes, & toke an oth of them, & they shuld do so. And I shoke my lappe, & sayde: God shalke out euerie mā after the same maner from hys house & labour, & maynteyneth not this woꝝd: euen thus be he shaken out, and voyde. And all the congregacyon sayde: Amen, and prayled the Lord.
And the people dyd so.

And fro the tyme forth & (the lyng) committed vnto me to be a captayne of the that were in the land of Iuda, euen fro the .xx. yere vnto the .xxii. yere of kyng Arthaterses (that is .xii. yere) I w my brethren lyued not of loch sustenance as was genē to a captayne. For & olde captaynes & were before me,

me, had bene chargeable vnto the people, ad had taken of them bread and wyne, and xl. cycles of syluer: yee, and their seruantes had oppressed the people. But so dyd not I, and that because of the feare of God. But I laboured also in the worcke vpon the wal, and bought no lande. And all my seruantes came thither together vnto the worcke. Howe ouer, there were at my table an. C. and. l. of the Jewes and rulers, which came vnto me from among the heathen, that are about vs. And ther was prepared for me dailly an oxe and. vi. chosen they, and byrdes, & cuer once in. x. dayes a greate summe of wyne. Yet requyred not I the lypunge of a captayne, for the bondage was greuous vnto the people. *Thinke vpon me my God vnto y best, according to all y I haue done for thys people.

The. vi. Chapter.

The burying is yet agayne bynded and left.

And whē Sanabalat, Tobiah, & Geselem the Arabian, and the other of our enemyes heard that I had buylded y wall: and that ther were no mo gappes ther in: howbeit at the same tyme had I not hangd the dozes vpon the gates. Sanabalat & Geselem sent vnto me, sayenge: that we maye mete and take counsell together in the villages that are in the playne of the cytie. Dno. Neuerthelesse, they thought to do me euell. And I sent messengers vnto them, sayenge: I haue a great busynes to do, and I cannot come downe. The worcke shulde stande stil, yf I were meygēt, and came downe to you. Howbeit, they sent vnto me as good as foure times after the same maner. And I gaue the the same answer. Then sēt Sanabalat hys seruant agayne vnto me the fift tyme, w an open letter in hys hand, wherein was written: it is tolde the heathen, and Geselem hath sayde it, that thou and the Jewes thinke to rebell: for the which cause thou buyldest the wall, that thou mayest be their kyng in these matters, and hast ordeyned the prophetes to preach of the at Ierusalem, and to saye: he is kyng of Iuda.

23 And now shall thys come to the kynges eares: come now therfore, ad let vs take our counsell together. And I sent vnto hym, sayinge: there is no such thynges done as thou sayst: for thou saynest the out of thynne a wone herte. ffor they were all mynded to make vs afrayed, sayenge: they shall withdrawe their handes from the worcke, that it shall not be fynished. Howbeit, I strenghted my hande the more. And I came vnto the house of Seinaia the sonne of Delaia the sonne of Shebabeel, and he had shut hym self wihū, and sayde: let vs come together into the house of God, euen vnto the myddes of the tēple, and shutte the dozes of the temple: for they wyll come to slaye the, yee, euen in the nyght wyll they come to put the to death. And I sayde: C shulde any soch man as I lye? Who is that, beynge as I am, that wil go into the temple, to saue his lyfe? I wyll not go in.

And I perceaued, that God had not sent hym. Yet spake he prophecy vpon me, neuerthelesse, Tobiah and Sanabalat had byred him for money. Therfore toke he the money that throught feare I shulde so do, and synne: that they might haue an euell reporte of me, to blasphemie me. My God, thinke thou vpon Tobiah and Sanabalat accordynge vnto these theyr wordes, and of the prophet Noadiah, and of the other prophetes, that wolde haue put me in feare.

And the wall was fynished on the fyue and twētye daye of the moneth Elul, in two and fiftie dayes. And when all our enemyes hearde ther of, all the heathē that were about vs, were afrayed, and theyr courage fayled them. And they perceaued, that thys worcke came of our God. And at the same tyme were ther many of the chiefe of Iuda, whose letters wente vnto Tobiah, and agayne from Tobiah vnto them (for there were many in Iuda, that were twozne vnto hi: for he was the sonne in lawe of Sechania, the sonne of Arab, & his sonne Jehonathā had the daughter of Mesullam, the sonne of Barachia. ad they spake good of hym before me, and tolde hym my wordes) and Tobiah sent letters, to put me in feare.

The. vii. Chapter.

After the wall once buylded, ys the watch appointed. They that returned from the captiuitie are nombred.

Now when the wall was buylded, I charged on the dozes also, and the porters, syngers & leuites were appoynted. And I commaunded my brother Hanania, and Hanania the ruler of the castel at Ierusalem: for he was a faithfull mā, and feared God more then dyd many other, and I sayde vnto the: let not the gates of Ierusalem be opened, vntill the sonne be whote. And whyle they were stādinge in the watch, they shutt the dozes and barred the. And we appoynted certayne cytelins of Ierusalem, appoynted to be watchmen, euery one to kepe hys watch, and euery one to be ouer against hys house. As for y cite, it was large of rowme, and great, but the people were fewe ther in, and the houses were not buylded.

And my God gaue me in my hert, that I gathered together the principall men, & the officers, and the people, to nombze them, ad I fōude a register of the nōbze of the * which came vp before out of the captiuitie: & fōunde wyrtē therin: these are the sonnes of y land that wente vp from the captiuitie of the carynge awaye (whom Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon had brought awaye) & came agayne to Ierusalem & Iuda, euery one vnto vnto his cytie. They which came w zorobabel are these: Iesua, Nehemia, Asariah, Rahamania, Rahamani, Haradocher, Belsā, Mesprath, Beguai, Rahum and Baanah.

The preastes. The chyldre of Jedaiiah of the house of Iesua, nyne hundred and thre ad seuentye: the chyldre of Immer, a thousande and two & fytie: the chyldren of Phasbur, a thousand, two hundred & seuen & fortie: the chyldren of Harim, a thousande & seuentene.

The Leuytes. The chyldren of Iesua of Cadmiel and of the chyldren of Hodnah, foure & seuentye. The syngers. The chyldren of Asaph, an hundred and eyght and fortie. The porters. The chyldren of Shallum, the chyldren of Ater, the chyldren of Talmon, the chyldren of Acub, the chyldre of Hatita, the chyldren of Sobai, all together an hundred and eyght and thyrtye.

The Nethinims. The chyldren of Ziba, the chyldren of Hasupha, the chyldre of Tebahoth, the chyldren of Eeros, the chyldren of Sia, the chyldren of Phadon, the chyldren of Lebanah, the chyldren of Hagaba, the chyldren of Salmai, the chyldren of Hanan, the chyldren of Gidel, the chyldren of Saher, the chyldren of Reaia, the chyldren of Rezin, y chyldren of Recoda, the chyldren of Safam, the chyldren of Ula, the chyldren of Phaseah, the chyldren of Zesai, the chyldren of Meunim, the chyldren of Nephtsim, the chyldren of Bachuc, the chyldren of Hacupha, the chyldren of Harhur, the chyldren of Bazlith, the chyldren of Hehida, the chyldren of Harfa, the chyldren of Barcos, the chyldren of Sissera, the chyldren of Chamah, the chyldre of Neziab, y chyldren of Hatipha.

The chyldren of Salomons seruantes: the chyldren of Sotai, the chyldren of Sophereth, the chyldren of Pherida, the chyldren of Jaala, the chyldren of Darcon, the chyldren of Siddel, the chyldren of Saphatiah, the chyldren of Hatil, the chyldren of Dochereth of zabaini, the chyldre of Amon. All these Nethinims and the chyldren of Salomons seruantes, were thre hundred & nyntie and two.

And these wente vp also of Thel Mela, y Thel Harfa, Cherub, Adon and Immer: but they coude not shewe theyr fathers house nor theyr sede, and that they were of Israel. The chyldren of Dalaiah, the chyldren of Tobia and the chyldren of Recoda, fyre hundred and two and fortie. And of the preastes, the chyldren of Habaiab: the chyldren of Hacos, the chyldren of Bersilai, whych toke one of the daughters of Bersilai the Silcadite to wyfe, and was named after their name. These soughte theyr wytyng in y register of theyr generation, but they were not fōunde, therfore they were put from the presthode. And Hathirsata sayd vnto them, that they shulde not eate of the moost holy, tyll there came vpon a Dreaste whych shulde were Arim and Thumin.

And so y whole cōgregacyō together was two & fortie thousande, thre hundred, & thre skore: besyde their seruantes and maydens, of whom there were seuen thousande, thre hundred and seue and thyrtye. And they had two hundred and seue and fortie syngynge men and women. Their hozes, seue hundred and fyre & thyrtye, & their Mules: two hundred & fyue & fortie. The camels, foure hundred & fyue & thyrtye: fyre thousande, seuen hundred and twentye Mles.

And certayne of the annycēl fathers gaue vnto y worcke. Hathirsata gaue to the treasure treasure a thousand peces of gold, fyfte hundred & thyrty prestes garnytes. And some of the chefe fathers gaue vnto the treasure of the worke, twentie thousande peces of gold & two thousande & two hundred pounde of syluer. And the other people gaue twentye thousande peces of golde, and two thousande pounde of syluer ad thre skore and seuen preastes garments. And p prestes & Leuites, the Porter, and the syn-gers, & the other of the people, ad the Acthi-mims, & all Israel, dwelt in their cyties. And the seuenth moneth came, and the chylde of Israel were in theyr cyties.

The viij. Chapter.

Eldras geathereth together the people and readeth to them the lawe. They hepe the feast of tabernacles of bothes.

And all the people geathered them selues together as one man in the strete that was before the watergate, and they sayde vnto Eldras the scribe, that he shulde fetch the boke of the lawe of Moses, whych the Lorde comaunded to Israel. And Eldras the preast brought p lawe before p congregacion both of men and women, ad all p coude vnderstande dyd herken vnto it, vpon the fyrst dape of the seuenth moneth, and hered therein in the strete p was before the watergate (from the moynunge vntyll the noone dape) before men and women that dyd herken to it: and the eares of all the people were inclyned vnto the booke of the lawe. And Eldras the scribe stode vpon an hye pulpit of wood, whych they had made for the preachinge, & bespde hym stode Mathathia, Sema, Anania, Uriah, Helkia, and Maaleia, on hys ryghte hande: and on hys lefte hande stode Pedala, Misael, Malchia, Halum, Haschadana, Zachary, and Mesulam.

And Eldras opened the boke before all the people, for he stode aboue all the people. And when he opened it, all the people stode vp. And Eldras praysed p Lorde the greate God. And all the people answered Amen, Amen, with their handes vp, & bowed them selues, and worshipped the Lorde, fallynge downe vpon their faces to the grounde. And Jesua, Baam, Serabiah, Jami, Acub, Sebatbai, Hadaia, Maasia, Celita, Azaria, Zabab, Hanā, Delaia: and the Leuites caused the people to geue hede vnto the lawe, & the people stode in their place. And they red in p boke of the lawe of God distinctly & playnly, so p men vnderstode the thinge that was red. And Nehemiah (whiche is Hathirsatha) & Eldras the preast & scribe, and the Leuites that caused the people to take hede, sayd vnto all the people: thys dape is holy vnto the Lorde poure God: be not ye soyr, and wepe not. For all the people wepte, when they herde the wordes of the lawe.

And he sayd vnto them: go poure waye, and eate the fat, & drinke the swete, & sende parte vnto them also that haue not prepared them selues: for thys dape is holy vnto oure Lorde, be not ye soyr therfore: for the ioye of the Lorde is poure strength. And the Leuites styld all the people, and sayd: holde poure peace, for the dape is holy, were not ye poure selues. And all p people wete theyr waye to eate and drinke, and to sende parte vnto other, and to make greate myth, because they had vnderstand the wordes that were declared vnto them.

And on p nexte dape were geathered together the chefe fathers amonge all the people and the prestes and Leuites, vnto Eldras the scribe, that they myght vnderstand the wordes of p lawe. And they solde wyrtten in the lawe (whiche the Lorde had comaunded by Moses) that the children of Israel shulde dwell in bothes in the feast of the seuenth moneth: & p they shulde cause it to be declared and proclaimed in all theyr cyties, & thow out Jerusalem, saye: go forth vnto the mount, and fetch Olyue braunches, Wyne braunches, Myrtbraunches, Palmebraunches, and braunches of thicke trees, to make bothes, as it is wyrtten.

And so the people wete forth, and fette the, and made the bothes, euery one vpon p rofe of his house, & in theyr courtes, & in the courtes of the house of God, and in the strete by the watergate, and in the strete by porte Ephraim. And all the congregacion of them that were come agayne out of the captiuite, made bothes, & sat vnder p bothes: for lence the tyme of Josua p sonne of Nun vnto this dape, had not the chyldezen of Israel done so, and ther was very greate gladnesse. And euery dape from the fyrst dape vnto the last, red Eldras in the boke of the lawe of God. And seuen dayes helde they the feast, and on the cyght dape, they geathered together, accordyng vnto the maner.

The ix. Chapter.

The people repent, & forsake theyr straunge wyues, Eldras receiveth the benyfytes of God, and the synners of the people.

In the foure & twety dape of this moneth came the chylde of Israel together agayne, wyth fastinge and sack clothes, and erth vpon them, and they that were of the seide of Israel were separated from all the straunge chylde, & stode & knowleged theyr synnes, & the wyckednesses of theyr fathers, & stode vpon in theyr place, & red in the boke of p lawe of the Lord their God foure tymes on p dape, and they knowleged, & worshipped p Lord their God foure tymes on the dape. And p Leuites stode on hye, namely Jesua, Baam, Cadmiel, Miel, Sabanah, Bani, Serebiah, Bani, & Chanani, & cryed loude vnto the Lord theyr God. And the Leuites, Jesua and Cadmiel Bani and Halabnia, Serebia & Iodiah, Sebania, and Bhatthahia, sayde: stande vp, and prayse the Lord p God for euer: & let thankes be geuen vnto the name of thy glorie, which excelleth all thakelguyng & prayse. Thou art Lord alone. Thou hast made heauen, & the heauen of all heaues, with all theyr host, the earth & all thinges p are therein, the see & all p is therein: & thou pseruest the all, and the host of heauen worshippeth p. Thou art the Lord God, that hast chosen Abram, & broughtest hym out of * Ur in Chaldea, & calledst him Abrahā, and foundest hys bert faythfull before the * and made a covenant wyth him, to geue vnto hys seide the lande of the Cananites, Hethites, Amorites, Phereites, Jebusites and Gerisites, and hast made good thy wordes: for p art ryghteous: & hast consydered the mystry of oure fathers in Egypte, and hearde their complaynte by the reed see, and shewed tokens & wonders vpon Pharaon, and on all hys seruantes, and on all the people of hys lande: for thou knewest, that they were presumptuous and cruell agaynst the, and so made thou the a name, as it is thys dape. And the reed see dydest thou deuyde in sunder before them, so that they went thow the myddes of the see dape shode: and theyr persecuters threwest thou into the depe (as a stone) in p myghtie waters, & leddest them on the dape tyme in a cloudy pyller, & on the nyghte season in a pyller of fyre, to shewe the lyghte in the waye that they wente.

Thou camest downe also vpon mount Sinai, & spakest vnto them from heauen, and gauest them right iudgements, true lawes good comaundementes and statutes, and declaredst vnto them thy holy Saboth, and comaundest them preceptes, ordinaunces, and lawes, by the hand of Moses thy seruant: and * gauest them bred from heauen when they were hongry, & broughtest forth water for them out of the rock when they were thyrstye: and promysedst them, that they shuld go in, and take possession of the land, ouer whych thou haddest lyfte vp thynne had for to geue them.

But they & oure fathers were proude and hardnecked, so p they folowed not p comaundementes, and wolde not obepe, neither were mynde full of the wonders that thou dydest for them: but became obstynate and heady, in so moche, that they turned backe to theyr bondage for theyr disobedience. And thou my God forgauest, and wast gracious, mercifull, pacient, and of greate goodnesse, and forsokest them not. And though they made a moultē calfe (& sayde: Thys is thy goddess that brought the out of the land of Egypte) and dyd greate blasphemys, yet forsokest thou them not in the wyldernes, accordyng to thy greate mercy. And the cloudy pyller departed not from them on the dape tyme to leade them the waye, neither p pyller of fyre in the nyght season, to shewe them lyghte in the waye that they wente.

And thou gauest them thy good sprete, to enfourme them, & ad withheldest not thy Anna from theyr month, & and gauest the water whē they were thyrstye. For thy pears lōge made thou prouisyon for them in the wyldernes, so p they lacked nothyng, & their clothes waxed not olde, ad their fete swelled not. And thou gauest them kynge domes and nacpons, & partedst them accordyng to their portions, so p they p-ressed the lande of Schon kyng of helesboi, and the lande of Og the kyng of Basan. And their chyldezen multipliedst thou as the starrs of heauen, and broughtest them into the lande, wherof p haddest spoken vnto theyr fathers, that they shulde go into it, and haue it in possession.

And the chyldezen went in, and possessed the land, & and thou subduedst before them the inhabyter of the lande, euen the Cananites, and gauest them into theyr hāde, with their kynge and the people of the lāde, that they might do with them what they wolde. And they wanne theyr stronge cyties, and a fat lande, and toke possession of houses that were full of all maner of goodes, welles digged out, vineyardes, oylegardes, and many frute full trees: and they dyd eate, & were fylled, and became fat, and lyued in welth thow thy greate goodnes. Neuertheles they were disobedient, & rebelled agaynst the, and cast thy lawe behynde their backes, and * lewe thy prophetes (whiche exhorted them earnestly, that they myght bring them agayne vnto the) & dyd greate blasphemys. Therfore, p gauest them ouer into the hād of their enemyes, that vexed them.

And in p tyme of their trouble whan they cryed vnto the, p hardest them from heauen: & thow thy greate mercy thou gauest the sauitours, whych helped them out of the hande of their enemyes. But whē they came to rest, they turned back agayne, to do euill before the: therfore leftest thou them in the hande of theyr enemyes, so that they had the dominyon ouer them. And whā they cōuerted, and cryed vnto the, thou herd est them from heauen, & many tymes hast thou deliuered them accordyng to thy greate mercy, & testyfiedst vnto them, that thou myghtest bring them agayne vnto thy lawe.

Not withstandyng, they were proude, & herkened not vnto thy comaundementes, but synned in thy lawes (whych yf a man do

he shall lyue in them, and turned the shoulder away, and were styffnecked, and wolde not heare. And many peeres dydest thou forbearc them, & testyfydest vnto the thowow thy sperte, euen by the hande of thy prophetes, and yet wolde they not heare. Therefore gauest thou them into the hāde of the naciōs in the lādes. And for thy great mercyes sake thou hast not vterly consumed them, nether forlaken them: for thou art a gracious and mercypfull God.

lawe, whych was geuen by Moyses the ser-uaunt of God, ad that they wolde obserue & do accordyng vnto all the commaundeme-tes, indgementes & statutes of the Lord oure God: * and that we wolde not geue oure daughters vnto the people in the londe, nether to take their daughters for our sonnes.

* And þ the people of the lande broughte ware on the saboth, & all maner of vitayles to sell, that we wolde not take it of them on the saboth & on the holy dayes. * ad that we wolde let þ seuenthy peare be fre, concernyng all maner of charge.

offerynges of attonement, to reconple Israel wyth all, and to all the busynes in the house of oure God.

¶ And we cast the lot amonge the preastes, Leuites and the people, for offerynge of the wood to be brought vnto þ house of God from peare to peare, after the houses of oure fathers that it myght be bynt at tymes ap-poynted, vpon the altare of þ Lord God, as it is wyttē in the lawe: and to byng the fyrstlynges of oure land, & the fyrstlynges of oure frutes of all trees, peare by peare, vnto the house of the Lord: and the fyrstlynges of oure sonnes, and of oure catell, as it is wyttē in the lawe: and the fyrstlynges of oure oxen & of oure shepe, whych we shulde bring to the house of oure God, vnto the preastes that mynister in the house of oure God: and that we shuld byng the fyrstlynges of oure dowgh, and of oure beueofferynges, and the frutes of all maner of trees, of wyne also and of oyle, vnto the preastes to the chestes of the house of oure God. And the tythes of our lande vnto the Leuites, that the Leuy-tes myght haue the tythes in all the cyties of oure mynistracion.

And

And the preast the sonne of Aaron shall wyth the Leuites haue also of the tythes of þ Leuites, so that the Leuites shall byng vnto the tythes of they tythes vnto the house of oure God, to the store houses and to the treasure houses. For the chyldren of Israel & the chyldren of Leui shall byng vnto the beueofferynge of the corne, wyne and oyle vnto þ store houses, there as are the vessels of þ sanctuary, and the preastes that minister, & the porters and syngers, that we forlake not þ

the sonne of zachary, the sonne of Phasur
the sonne of Phaleha and his brethren chefe amonge the fathers: two hundred and two and fortye. And Amasai the sonne of Israel the sonne of Abasai, þ sonne of Hecelmoth, the sonne of Immer: and hys brethren were valiant men, an hundred and cyght & twen-tye. And they ouerscar was zabbai a sonne of one of the great men.

* Of the Leuytes: Semeia the sonne of Hasub the sonne of Aserikam, the sonne of Hasabia the sonne of Buni: and Sabbathai and Josabab of the chefe of the Leuites, had the ouersight of the outwarde busynes of þ house of God. And Mathama the sonne of Micha, þ sonne of zabdi, þ sonne of Asaph, was the principall to begynne the thankel-geyng and prayre. And bakbukia the seconde amonge hys brethren, and Abda the sonne of Saminua, the sonne of Galai, the sonne of Jeduthun. All þ Leuites in the holy cytie were two hundred foure score and foure. * And the porters Acub and Calmō, & they brethren that kepte the portes, were an hundred and two and seientye. As for the resydue of Israel, the preastes and Leui-tes, they were in all the cyties of Iuda, eue-ry one in hys inheritaunce.

¶ And the Aethinims dwelt in Ophel: and ziba and Gipsa was set ouer þ Aethinims.
The ouerscar of the Leuites at Jerusalem, was Asai the sonne of Baani, the sonne of Hasabia, the sonne of Mathania, the sonne of Micha.

¶ Of the chyldren of Asaph there were syn-gers aboute the busynes in þ house of God:
for it was the kynges commaundement concernyng them, that the syngers shulde deale faythfully euey daye as was accordyng.

¶ And Mathata the sonne of Hecelabel of the chyldren of zerah the sonne of Iuda nexte the kyng in all matters concernyng the people, and they villages, and landes: And some of the chyldren of Iuda that were wythout in the townes of they lande ba, dwelt a Machmas, Aia, Bethel and in they villages. And at Anathoth, Rob, Ananiah, Hazor, Ramah, Gethaim, ha-did, zeboim, Rabalath, Lod, and Ono, the carpenters valley. And the Leuytes had possessyon both in Iuda and in Beniamin.

¶ The .xij. Chapter.

The prestes and Leuites whiche cam with zoro- babel to Ierusalem are added, & the wall is dedycate.

These are the prestes and Leuites that wente up with zoro babel the sonne of Salathiel & with Iesua: Sararia, Jeremi, & Eldras, Amaria, Maluch, Hatus, Serchimia, Rehum, Merimoth, Iddo, Genthoi, Abia, Wiamin, Maaria, Belga, Semia, Joiarib, Jadaia, Salu, Amok, Helcia, and Jadaia. These were the heades among the prestes, and they brethren, in the dayes of Iesua. The Leuites were these: Iesua, Beniamin, Cadmil, Sarabia, Juda and Nathania which was ouer the office of thankesgeuyng, he and hys brethren: Bacbukia and Himmi and they brethren, were aboute them in the watches.

Iesua begat Joakim. Joakim also begat Eliasib, & Eliasib begat Joiada. Joiada begat Jonathan, and Jonathan begat Jadaia. In the dayes of Joakim were these the chefe fathers among the prestes: vnder Sararia, & Sararia: vnder Jeremi, Hanania: vnder Eldras, Melullam: vnder Amaria, Ichoan: vnder Hilico, Jonathan: vnder Sebania, Ioseph: vnder Harim Adna: vnder Marathoth, Helea: vnder Iddo, zachary: vnder Genthoi, Melullam: vnder Abia, zichar: vnder Wiamin and Moadia, Piltai: vnder Belga, Samua: vnder Semia, Iehonathan: vnder Joiarib, Mathenai, vnder Jadaia, Ali: vnder Helai, Ielai: vnder Amok, Eber: vnder Helchia, Halabia: vnder Jadaia, Nathanael.

And in the tyme of Eliasib: Joiada, Jonathan & Jadaia, were these fathers among the Leuites and the prestes, witten vnder the raygne of Darius the Persian. The chylde of Leui, & principall fathers were witten in the Chronicles, vntill the tyme of Jonathan the sonne of Eliasib. And these were the chefe among the Leuites, Halabia, Seberia and Iesua the sonne of Cadmil, and they brethren in their presence, to geue prayse & thankes, accordyng as Dauid the ma of God had ordeyned it, one watch ouer agaynst another. Nathania, Bacbukia, Obadia, Melullam, Calmon and Abub were porters in the watch at the thresholds of the gates. These were in the dayes of Joakim the sonne of Iesua the sonne of Ioseph, and in the dayes of Nehemia the captayne, and of the preste Eldras the scribe.

And in the dedycacyon of the wall at Ierusalem, they sought the Leuites out of all they places, that they myghte be brought to Ierusalem, to kepe the dedycacion & gladnesse, with thankesgeuynges, and singinge with Cymbales, Psalteries, and harpes. And the chylde of the syngers geathered them selues together from every syde out of the playne countree aboute Ierusalem, and from the byllages of Betho phathi, from the house of Gilgal, and out of the countrees of Seba and Ainaucth: for the syngers had bylbed them byllages rounde aboute Ierusalem. And the prestes and Leuites were purifed, and clenched the people, and the gates and the wall.

And I brought the princes of Iuda by vpon the wall, and appoynted two greete queers of men to geue thankes, whych were on the ryghte hande of the wall toward the Donggate, and after them wente Holsai, and halfe of the princes of Iuda, and Abaria, Eldras, and Melullam, Juda, Beniamin, Semia and Jeremi: and certayne of the prestes chylde with trompettes, namely zachary the sonne of Jonathan, the sonne of Semia, the sonne of Nathania, & sonne of Michai, the sonne of zacur, the sonne of Alaph, and hys brethren Semia, Alaracel, Melalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nathanael & Juda and Hanani, with the muscalle instrumentes of Dauid the man of God.

And Eldras the scribe went before the, and besyde the wellgate, they wente vpon our agaynst them vpon the steppes of the ctyte of Dauid at the goynge up of the wall beyonde the house of Dauid, vnto the Watergate Eastwarde.

The other queer of them that gaue thankes, went ouer agaynst them, and I after them, and the halfe parte of the people vpon the wall, beyonde the fornacgate, vntill the bzode wall, and beyonde the porte of Ephraim, & beyonde the Oldgate, beyonde the sythgate, and the tower of Hananeel, and the tower of Hea, vntill the Sheppegate. And they stode still in the presongate, and so stode the two queers (of them that gaue thankes) in the house of God, and I and the halfe of the rulers with me, and the Prestes, namely Eliasib, Maasia, Wiamin, Michai, Elioenai, zachary and Hanania, with trompettes, and Maasia, Semeliah, Eleasar, Arsi, Iehohanan, Melchiah, Elam and Ser. And the syngers sange loude, haupnge Iestabiah for they ouersee.

And the same daye, they offred greete sacryfices and reioysed: for God had geuen the greete gladnesse, so that both the wyues & chylde were ioyfull, and the myrth of Ierusalem was herde farre of.

At the same tyme were there men appoynted ouer the treasure houses (wherin were the heue offerpuges, the fyrtynge & the tythes) that they shulde geather them out of the felde aboute the ctytes, to distribute them vnto the prestes & Leuites accordyng to the lawe: for Iuda was glad of the prestes prestes, & Leuites, that they stode & wayped vpon the office of their God, which is a pure office. And the syngers & porters stode after the commaundment of Dauid & of Salomo his sonne: for in the tyme of Dauid & Alaph, were the chefe syngers stode, & the synges of prayse & thankesgeuyng vnto God. In the tyme of zoro babel & Nehemia, dyd all they of Israel, geue porcions vnto the syngers & porters, euery daye hys porcion, and they gaue tythes vnto the Leuites: and the Leuites gaue tythes agayne, vnto the chylde of Aaron.

The. xij. Chapter.

The lawe is read, & when they haue heard it, they separate from them all strangers.

And the daye dyd they reade in the booke of Moyses, & the people hearkened thereto, & there was found witten therein, & the Ammonites & Moabites shulde neuer come into the congregacion of God, because they mett not the chylde of Israel w bread & water, & but byzed Balaam agaynst them, & he shuld curse them: and oure God turned the curse into a blessing. Now when they herde the lawe, it fortuneth, & they separated from Israel euery one that had myrte hym selfe therein. And before this had the preste Eliasib & ouer syght of the treasury of the house of oure God, & he was kynsman vnto Tobia: & had made him a great chambze, & there had they afore tyme layed the offeringes, frankensse, vessell, & the tythes of corne, and wyne and oyle (accordyng to the comaundement geue to the Leuites, syngers and porters) and the heue offerpuges of the prestes.

But in all this tyme was not Iat Ierusalem: for in the two & thyrtye yere of Artaxerxes kyng of Babilon, came I vnto the kyng, and after certayne dayes optayned I lycence of the kyng to come to Ierusalem. And I gat knowlege of the euell that Eliasib dyd vnto Tobia, in the he had made him a chambze in the court of the house of God, and it greued me sore, & I cast forth all the vessells of the house of Tobia out of the chambze, and commaunded them to clye the chambzes. And thither brought I agayne the vessells of the house of God, with the meate offering, and the incense.

And I perceaued, that the porcions of the Leuites were not geue them, and that euery one fled to his land, enen the Leuites and syngers & porters & worke. The reproved I the rulers, & sayd: why is the house of God forsaken? And I gathered the together, & set the in their place. Then brought all Iuda the tythes of corne, & wyne and oyle vnto the treasure. And I made treasurers ouer the treasure, enen Semeliah the preste, & zadoc the scribe, and of the Leuites, Phadaia, & vnder their hand was Hanan the sonne of zacur the sonne of Nathania: for they were counted faythfull, and their office was to distribute the porcions vnto their brethren. * Thynke vpon me O my God here in, and wipe not out my mercy that I haue shewed on the house of my God, and on the offices therof.

At the same tyme sawe I some tredynge wyne prestes on the Saboth, & byngyng in the felde, & alled laden w wyne, grapes, figges & byngyng all maner of burthens vnto Ierusalem, vpon the Saboth daye. And I rebuked the earnestly the same daye that they sold the vitayles. There dwelt me of Tyre also therein, which brought fysh and all maner of ware, & sold on the Saboth vnto the chylde of Iuda in Ierusalem. Then reproved I the rulers in Iuda, & sayde vnto the: what euell thyng is this ye do, & breake the Saboth daye: dyd not your fathers en thus, & our God brought all this plage vpon vs & vpon this ctyte: And ye make the wrath more yet vpon Israel, in that ye breake the Saboth.

And it fortuneth, & the portes of Ierusalem beganne to be darke in the euenyng before the Saboth, I commaunded to shut the gates, & charged, that they shuld not be opened tyll after the Saboth: & some of my seruantes let I at the gates, & there shulde no burthe be brought in on the Saboth daye. Then remayned the chapmen & marchautes once or twyce ouer nyght without Ierusalem with all maner of wares. Then reproved I them sore, and sayde vnto the: why tary ye all nyght about the wall? If ye do it once agayne, I wyll laye handes vpon you. From the tyme forth came they nomore on the Saboth. And I sayde vnto the Leuites & they shulde clenche the selues, and that they shulde come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Saboth daye. Thynke vpon me (O my God) concernyng this also, & spare me, accordyng to thy great mercy.

And at the same tyme sawe I Jewes, that married wyues of Afood, of Ammon and of Moab, & their chylde spake halfe in the speach of Afood, & coude not speake in the Jewes language, but by the song myght a man perceane euery people. Then I reproved them, & cycled them, & smote certayne men of the, & made the bare, and toke an oath of the by God: Ye shal not geue your daughters vnto their sones, nether shall ye take their daughters vnto your sones, or for your selues. Dyd not Salomo the kyng of Israel synne for soch: and yet among many hepythen was there no kyng lyke him, whych was deare vnto his God, & God made him kyng ouer all Israel, & yet neuer theles, outlandish women caused hi to synne: Shall we then obeye vnto you, to do all this great euell, & to trasgresse agaynst oure God, and make strange wyues?

And one of the chylde of Iehoiada the sonne sonne of Eliash the hye preast, had made a cōtracte with Sanabalat the Mozonite: but I chased him from me. (O my God) thynke thou vpon them that despyle the presthode, & the cōuenant of the presthode & of the Leuites. Thus clensted I the from all such as were outlandish, and appoynted the courses of p̄preastes & Leuites, euery one in his office, & to offre the wod at tymes appoynted, and the fyrst feutes. Thinke thou vpon me (O my God) for the best. (Amen)

The ende of the seconde boke of Esdras, otherwyle called the boke of Nehemia.

The boke of Esther

The fyrst Chapter.

(The kyng Ahasuerus maketh a copall feast, wherunto the quene Vasthi wyl not come, for wherby cause she is deposed.)

In the dayes of Ahasuerus whych raygned from India vnto Ethiopia (ouer an hundreth and seuen and twenty landes) enen in those dayes whan the kyng Ahasuerus sat on his seate royall, which was in Susan p̄ chefe cytie, in p̄ thirde peare of his raygne, he made a feast vnto all his princes & seruautes. And the myghtye men of Persia & Media, the capitaynes also & rulers of his countrees were before him, & he shewed the riches and glozpe of his kyngdome, & the glorious worshippe of his greatnesse, many dayes longe, enen an hundreth and foure core dayes.

And when these dayes were expyred, the kyng made a feast vnto all p̄ people, p̄ were in Susan the chefe cytie, both vnto great & small, seuen dayes long in the court of p̄ garden by the kynges palace: where there haged white, grene & palow clothes, fastened with coarbes of fyne sylke & purple in syluer rynge, vpon pylers of Marble ston.

The benches also were of golde & syluer made vpon a pavement of grene, white, palow and black Marble. And they drank in vessels of golde, & chaūged vessel after vessel. And the kynges wyne was moch, accordyng to the power of the kyng. And p̄ drinke was so apoynted p̄ none shulde compell anye man, for so the kyng had cōmaunded by the officers of his house, p̄ euery one shuld do as it liked him. And p̄ quene Vasthi made a feast also for the women in the palace of Ahasuerus. And on the seuenth daye when the kyng was mery after p̄ wyne, he cōmaunded Memucan, Biztha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagthan, Zethar & Carchas, the seuen chamberlaynes (p̄ dyd serue in the presence of kyng Ahasuerus) to fetch the quene Vasthi with p̄ crowne regal into the kynges presence that he myght shewe the people and princes her fairnesse, for she was bewtifull. But p̄ quene Vasthi wolde not come at p̄ kynges word by his chamberlaynes. Then was p̄ kyng very wroth, & his indignacion kyndled in him.

And the kyng spake to the wyle men, that had vnderstanding in the ordinaunces of the land, for the kynges matters must be hadied before all such as haue knowlege of the lawe and iudgement: and the (cheke and) next vnto hi were, Carsena, Sethar, Admata, Chariss, Mares, Marlena, & Hamucan, the seuen princes of Persia, and Media, whych sawe the kynges face, & sat aboue in the kyngdom. What lawe (saith p̄ kyng) shuld be executed vpon the quene Vasthi, because she dyd not accordyng to the worde of the kyng Ahasuerus, whych he cōmaunded by his chamberlaynes? And Memucan answered before the kyng and the princes: the quene Vasthi hath not onely done euell agaynst the kyng, but also agaynst all the princes and agaynst all the people p̄ are in all p̄ landes of kyng Ahasuerus: for this dede of the quene shall come abrode vnto all wemē, so p̄ they shall despyse their husbands before their eyes, and shal saie: the kyng Ahasuerus cōmaunded Vasthi p̄ quene to be brought in before hym, but she wold not come. And so shall the princelless in Persia & Media saie likewise vnto all the kynges princes, whē they heare of this dede of the quene, thus shall there aple to moch despytefulness & wroth. If it please the kyng therfore, let there go a commaundmēt from him, & let it be writte accordyng to the lawes of the Persians and Medians (and not to be transgressed) p̄ Vasthi come nomore before kyng Ahasuerus, & let p̄ kyng geue her kyngdome vnto another, that is better then she.

And when this commaundment of the kyng (which shalbe made) is published thorow out all his empire (whych is greate) all wemen shall hold their husbands in honoure both among great and small.

Thys

This pleased the kyng & the p̄ynces: and the kyng dyd accordyng to the word of Memucan. For he sent letters forth in to all the kynges lades, in to euery land, accordyng to the wytyng therof, & to euery people after their language, p̄ euery man shulde be lord in his awne house. And this caused he to be spoken after the language of his people.

The ii. Chapter.

(After the quene is put awaye, certen goodly young damoselles are searched out, & with ootherwyle called Esther, pleased the kyng, & is made quene. Harbona openeth vnto the kyng those that wolde be traye hym.)

After these actes, whē the displeasure of kyng Ahasuerus was now layed, he thought vpon Vasthi, & what she had done, & what was concluded agaynst her. Then sayd the kynges seruautes that ministred vnto him: Let there be saye young virgins sought for the kyng, and the kyng appointed certayne men in all the landes of his empyre, whō he charged p̄ they shuld byng together all the saye young virgins vnto Susan the head cite, to the wemēs buylding, vnder the hand of Hagei the kynges chamberlayne, that kepte the wemen, to geue them their apparell (other kynges necessary to be had.) And that the damsell whych pleased the kyng shuld be quene in Vasthis steade. And this pleased the kyng, and he dyd so.

In the cyte of Susan there was a Jewe, whose name was Hardocheus, the sonne of Jair, the sonne of Simeci, the sonne of Cisai mā of Temini, which was caried awaye fro Jerusalem, & whā Ichonia the kyng of Iuda was led awaye, (whom Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon caried thence) & he nozibed hadassa (that is Esther) his vncles daughter: for she had nether father nor mother, and she was a saye & beutyfull dāsell: whō Hardocheus (whē her father & mother was deed) receaued for his awne daughter.

So it fortunēd that when the kynges commaundmēt & cōmission was published, and many damosels were brought together in the cite of Susan vnder the hande of Hagei. Esther was brought also vnto the kynges house vnder the hand of Hagei the keeper of the wemen, & the damsell pleased him, and she founde fauoure in his syght. And he caused ornamente to be geuen her & such thynges as belonged to her, and appoynted her seuen colye damsels out of the kynges house, & fauoured both her and her gentyl wemen singularly in the house of the wemen. But Esther shewed not her people & her kyndred: for Hardocheus had charged her, that she shuld not tellit. And Hardocheus walked euery daye before the court of the wemens house, that he myght knowe howe Esther dyd, and what shulde become of her.

And when the appoynted tyme of euery damsell came, that she shuld go into p̄ kyng Ahasuerus, after that she had bene twelue monethes in the deckyng of the wemen (for their deckyng must haue so moch tyme, namely syxe monethes with Salme & Myrr, & syxe monethes with good spices, so were the wemen beutyfyed) then went there one damosell vnto the kyng, & ad whatsoener she requyred, & so that it were comely, that must be geuen her to go wyth her out of the wemens buylding vnto p̄ kynges palace. In the deckyng she went, and in the morow agayne into the seconde house of the wemen abyding vnder the hand of Saasgas the kynges chamberlayne, whych kepte the concubines. And she came in vnto the kyng nomore, excepte it pleased the kyng to haue her, and that he called her by name.

Now when the tyme came of Esther the daughter of Abihai the vncle of Hardocheus (whych had receaued her as hys awne daughter) that she shuld come into p̄ kyng, she despyed nothyng, but what Hagei the kynges chamberlayne the keeper of the wemen, sayde.

And Esther found fauoure in the syght of all them p̄ looked vpon her. And Esther was taken vnto kyng Ahasuerus into his house royall, in p̄ tenth moneth which is p̄ moneth Tebeth, in p̄ seuenthyeare of his raygne.

And the kyng loued Esther aboue all the wemen, & she found grace and fauoure in his syght before all the virgins: so that he set the crowne of the kyngdome vpon her head, and made her quene in steade of Vasthi. And the kyng made a great feast vnto all his princes and seruautes, which feast was because of Esther) & caused p̄ landes to be in quyernes, & gaue giftes, as became p̄ royaltie of a kig.

And when the virgins were gathered together the seconde tyme, Hardocheus sat in the kynges gate. And as yet had not Esther shewed her kyndred and her people, accordyng as Hardocheus had bydden her: for Esther dyd after the worde of Hardocheus, lyke as yf she had bene yet vnder hys gouernance. At the same tyme, whyle Hardocheus sat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chamberlaynes Bizthan and Theres which kepte the doze, were wroth, & sought to laye their handes on p̄ kyng Ahasuerus: wherof also Hardocheus gat knowledge, & and tolde it vnto quene Esther, & Esther certified the kyng therof in Hardocheus name. And when inquisition was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on tre: and it was written in the Chronycles before the kyng.

The iii. Chapter.

(Haman the sonne of Haman, after he was created obayned of the kyng that all the Jewes shuld be put to death, & cause Hardocheus had not done hym wrong, as other had.)

After these actes dyd y^e kyng Ahasuerus promote Haman the sonne of Amadatha y^e Agagite, & set him hye, & set hys seat about all y^e princes that he had with him. And all the kynges seruautes that were in the kynges gate, bowed their knees, and worshipped Haman: for the kyng had so commaunded concerning him. But Mardocheus bowed not the knee, and worshipped him not. Then the kynges seruautes whych were in the kynges gate, sayde vnto Mardocheus: why transgresses thou the kynges commaundment? And whē they spake thus dayly vnto him, he folowed them not, and they tolde Haman, that they myght se how Mardocheus matters wolde endure: for he had told them, that he was a Jewe. And when Haman sawe, that Mardocheus bowed not the knee vnto him, nor worshipped him, he was full of indignacion, and thought it to lptell to laye handes only on Mardocheus: for they had shewed him y^e naciō of Mardocheus, wherfore he sought to destroye all the Jewes, that were thozow out the whole empyre of Ahasuerus, and that were of the nation of Mardocheus.

In the fyrst moneth (that is the moneth Nisan) in the twelue the yere of kyng Ahasuerus they cast whur (that is a loit) before Haman from daye to daye, and from moneth to moneth, to the twelue the moneth that is the moneth Adar. And Haman sayde vnto kyng Ahasuerus: There is here a people scattered abroad and dispersed among all people in all the landes of thyne empyre, & they haue their lawes contrary from all people, & do not after the kynges lawes, nether is it the kynges profet to suffre them after thyne maner. If it please the kyng, let it be wyrtten, that they maye be destroyed, & so wyll I weye downe ten thousand talentes of syluer, by the handes of y^e workmen, to be brought into the kynges treasure. And the kyng toke his rynge from his hand, & gaue it vnto Haman the sonne of Amadatha th^e Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the kyng sayde vnto Haman: Let the syluer be geuen the, and do with that people as it pleaseth the.

Then were the kynges scribes called on y^e thirtieth daye of y^e fyrst moneth (that is Nisan) and there was wyrtten (according as Haman commaunded) vnto all the kynges officers & to the captaynes that were in all the landes, and to the rulers of euery people in the countreyes on euery syde, accordyng to the wyrtting of euery naciō, and after their language, in the name of kyng Ahasuerus was it wyrtten and sealed with the kynges rynge. And the wyrttynges were sent by postes into all the kynges landes, to rote out, to kyll, and to destroye all Jewes, both yong & olde, chyldren & women in one daye (namely vpon the thirtieth daye of the twelue the moneth, whych is the moneth Adar) & to spoyle their goodes.

This was the summe of the wyrttyng, & there shulde be a commaundment geuen in all landes, and published vnto all people, that they shulde be ready agaynst the same daye. And the postes went in all y^e hast, accordyng to the kynges commaundment. And in Susan the chefe cytie was the commaundment deuised. And y^e kyng & Haman sate & dracke: whan in the meane tyme the cytie of Susan was disquieted.

The. iij. Chapter.

Mardocheus geueth the quene knowledge of the cruell decree of the kyng agaynst the Jewes.

When Mardocheus perceaued all y^e was done, he rente his clothes and put on sack cloth, with ashes, and wet out into the myddes of the cytie, and cryed loud and lamentably, & came before the kynges gate: but he myght not entre within y^e kynges gate, because he had sack cloth on. And in all lades, countrees, & places, as farre as the kynges worde and commaundment extended, there was greete lamentacion among the Jewes, fasting, weping, and mourning, and many laye in sack clothes & in ashes. So Esthers damosels and her chamberlaynes, came & told it her. Then was the quene exceedingly astonied. And she sent raymes, that Mardocheus shulde put on, & laye the sack cloth from him. But Mardocheus wold not take them. Then called Esther hathath one of the kynges chamberlaynes (whych stode before her) and gaue him a commaundment vnto Mardocheus, y^e he might knowe what it were, wherfore he dyd so. So hathath wet forth to Mardocheus vnto the strete of y^e cytie, whych was before the kynges gate.

And Mardocheus tolde him of all y^e had happened vnto him, & of the summe of syluer y^e Haman had promised to weye downe into y^e kynges treasury, because of y^e Jewes y^e he wolde destroye the (& he gaue hym the coppe of the kynges commaundment, that was deuised at Susan, to destroye the, that he might shewe it vnto Esther) & to speake to her, and charge her, that she shuld go in to the kyng, and make her prayer and supplicacion vnto him for her people.

And whē hathath came in, he told Esther the wordes of Mardocheus. And agayne, Esther spake vnto hathath, & commaunded him to saye vnto Mardocheus: all the kynges seruautes, & the people in the landes of the kyng, knowe that whosoever commeth within the court vnto the kyng, whether it be man or woman, whych is not called, y^e commaundment is, y^e the same shall dye, excepte th^e the kyng holde out the golden scepter vnto him (in token of graciouslynes) for then he shall lyue. As for me, I haue not bene called to come into the kyng now this thyrtye dayes.

And they certified Mardocheus of Esthers wordes, & Mardocheus had saye agayne vnto Esther, thynke not to save thyne awne lyfe, while thou art in y^e kynges house, before all Jewes: for yf y^e holdest thy peace at this tyme, the shall the Jewes haue helpe and deliuerance out of another place, & thou & thy fathers house shalbe destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come to the kyngdom, for this causes sake? Esther had the gene Mardocheus this answer: So thou thy waye, & gether together all the Jewes that are found at Susan, and fast ye for me, that ye eat not and drynke not in thre dayes, nether daye nor nyght. I and my damosels will fast lyke wise, and so will I go into the kyng, which thing yet, is contrary to the commaundment: and yf I perithe, I perithe. So Mardocheus went his waye, & dyd all that Esther had commaunded him.

The. v. Chapter.

Esther entreteth vnto the kyng and vnderth hym and Haman to a feast. Haman prepareth a gal- loue for Mardocheus.

Ad on the thyrtye daye it fortuned, that Esther put on her royall appa- rel, & stode in the court of the kynges palace within, ouer agaynst y^e kynges house. And the kyng sate vpon his royall seate in the kynges palace ouer agaynst the gate of the house. And when the kyng sawe Esther the quene standyng in the court, she found grace in hys syght. And the kyng helde out the golden scepter that was in his hande toward Esther. So Esther stepte forth, and touched the toppe of the scepter. Then sayde the kyng vnto her: What wilt thou quene Esther? and what requyrest thou? aske euen the halfe of the empyre, and it shall be geuen the. And Esther answered. If it please the kyng, let the kyng & Haman come this daye vnto the bancket, that I haue prepared for hym. And the kyng sayde: cause Haman to make hast, that he maye do as Esther hath sayde.

So the kyng & Haman came to the ban- ket y^e Esther had prepared, & the kyng sayde vnto Esther at the bancket of wyne: what is thy peticion that it maye be geuen the. And what requyrest thou? If it be euen the halfe of the empyre, it shall be done.

Then answered Esther, and sayd, my pe- ticion and desyre is, yf I haue founde grace in the syght of the kyng, and yf it please the kyng, to geue me my peticiō, & to fulfill my request, then let the kyng & Haman come to the bancket y^e I shall prepare for th^e m, and so will I do tomorrow, as the kyng hath sayde.

Then went Haman forth the same daye ioyfull and mery in his mynde. And whē the same Haman sawe Mardocheus in y^e kynges gate, y^e he stode not by & kneeled before hym, he was full of indignacion at Mardocheus. Neuertheles, Haman refrayned him selfe: & whē he came home, he sent, and called for his frendes, & zares his wyfe, and Haman tolde them of the glozy of his ryches, and the mul- titude of his childezen, & all together howe y^e kyng had promoted him so greatly, & howe that he had set him aboue the princes & ser- uautes of the kyng. Haman sayd moreover: See & Esther y^e quene dyd let no man come in with the kyng vnto the bancket that she had prepared, excepte me, & tomorrow am I bid- den vnto her also with the kyng. But in all this am I not satisfied, as longe as I se Mar- docheus the Jewe lpyttinge at the kynges gate. Then sayd zares hys wyfe and all hys frendes vnto him: Let them make a galowse of fyfte cubites hye, and tomorrow scake thou vnto y^e kyng, that Mardocheus maye be hanged thereon, & go thou in meryly with the kyng vnto the bancket. And Haman was wel content with all, & caused the galow- ses to be made.

The. vi. Chapter.

The kyng turneth ouer the Chronicles & findeth the libere of Mardocheus, an then to the confu- sion of Haman, commaundeth Mardocheus to be had in honoure.

The same nyght could not the king slepe, and he commaunded to bring the Chronicles and storyes: whych when they were red before the kyng they happe- ned on the place where it was wyrtten, howe Mardocheus had told that Bigthana and Theres y^e kynges two chamberlaynes (whych kept the thre holdes) sought, to laye handes on kyng Ahasuerus. And the kyng sayd: what worshyppe & good haue we done to Mardocheus therfor? Then sayde the kynges seruautes that mynistred vnto hym: There is nothyng at all done for hym. And the kyng sayde: Who is in the court? (for Haman was gone into the court wythout before y^e kynges house, that he myght speake vnto the kyng to hange Mardocheus on y^e tre (that he had prepared for hym.)) And the kynges seruautes sayde vnto hym: beholde, Haman standeth without in the court. And y^e kyng sayd: let him come in. And when Haman came in, the kyng sayd vnto hym: what shall be done vnto the man, whom the y^e kynge volder sayne bringe vnto worshyp- per Haman thought in his heart: Whom desyreth the kyng to bring vnto worshyppe more then me? And Haman answered the kyng: Let the man who the kyng pleaseth to bring vnto worshyppe, be brought hyther, that he maye be arayed with the royall garmentes whych the kyng vseth to weare: & the horse y^e the kyng rydeth vpon, and that the crowne royall maye be set vpon his heed. And let this rayment and horse be deliuered vnder the hand of one of the kynges princes, that they maye araye the man withall (whō the kyng is disposed to byng to honoure) & cary hym vpon the horse thowow the strete of the cytie, & do proclayme before him: thus shalt it be done to the man, whom the kyng please to byng to honoure.

And the kyng sayde: make hast, and take as thou hast sayde, the rayment & the horse: and do euē so vnto Mardocheus the Jewe. & syteth before the kynges gate, & let nothing fayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then toke Haman the rayment & the horse, and arayed Mardocheus, & brought him on horsebacke thowow the strete of the cytie, and proclaymed before him: Euen thus shall it be done vnto the man whō the kyng is disposed to honoure. And Mardocheus came agayne to the kynges gate, but Haman gat hym home in all his hast mournynge bare headed, & tolde zares his wyfe and all his frendes, euery thing that had happened him. Then sayd his wyfe men and zares his wyfe vnto him: It ys be Mardocheus, of the seide of the Jewes, before whō thou hast begonne to fall, thou shalt not preuaile agaynst hym, but shalt surely fall before him. And whyle they were yet talkynge with him, came the kynges chamberlaynes, & caused Haman to make hast, to come vnto the banquet that Esther had prepared.

The viij. Chapter.

¶ The queene vnder the kynge Haman agayne, and prayeth for her selfe and her people. She ariseth Haman, & he ys hanged on the gallows, wherby he had prepared for Mardocheus.

And the kyng and Haman came in to the banquet that queene Esther had prepared, and the kyng sayd vnto Esther on the seconde daye at the banquet of wyne: what is thy petition (queene Esther) that it maye be geuen thee? And what requyrest thou? See, aske euē half of the empyre, & it shall be done. And Esther the queene answered, & sayd: If I haue found grace in thy syght (O kyng) and yf it please the kyng, then graunt me my lyfe at my desyre and my people, for my petitions sake: for we are solde, & to my people, to be destroyed, to be slayne & to perishe. And wold God we were solde to be bondmen and bond women, then wold I hold my tounge: for the enemye poudreth not the kynges harme. The kyng Mardocheus answered, and sayde vnto queene Esther: who is he? And where is he, & barre presume in his mynde, to do after his maner? And Esther sayd: the enemye and aduersary is this wicked Haman.

Haman, was exceedingly afrayed before the kyng and the queene. And the kyng arose from the banquet and from the wyne in his displeasure, & went into the palace garden.

And Haman stode by, & besought queene Esther for his lyfe: for he sawe, that there was a mischefe prepared for him of the kyng all ready.

And when the kyng came agayne out of the palace garden into the place where they dranke wyne, Haman had layed hym vpon his bed, & Esther sat vpon. Then sayd the kyng: wyl he force the queene also before me in the house? As sone as that worde went out of the kynges mouth, & they couered Hamans face. And Harbaila one of the chamberlaynes that stode before the kyng, sayde: Beholde, there standeth a galowes in Hamans house fyftie cubytes hie, wherby he had made for Mardocheus, that spake good for the kyng. The kyng sayde: hang him thereon. So they hanged Haman on the galowes, that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wyath pacified.

The viij. Chapter.

¶ After the death of Haman to Mardocheus created, and then are there comfortable letters sent vnto the Jewes.

The same daye vpon kyng Ahasuerus geue the house of Haman the Jewes enemye, vnto queene Esther. And Mardocheus came before the kyng: for Esther tolde, howe that he belonged vnto her. And the kyng put of his spynge rynge, wherby he had taken fro Haman, & gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Esther set Mardocheus ouer his house of Haman. And Esther spake yet more before the kyng: & fell downe at his fete wepyng, & besought him, that he wold put awaye the wickednes of Haman the Agagite, and his deuyce that he had ymagined agaynst the Jewes. And the kyng (accordynge to the maner) helde out his golden scepter toward Esther. (wherby was declared a token of gracifullnes.) Then rose Esther, and stode before the kyng, and sayd: yf it please the kyng, & yf I haue found grace in thy syght, and yf it be acceptable before the kyng, then let it be wyttē, that the letters of the deuyce of Haman the sonne of Hamadatha the Agagite, maye be called agayne: wherby letters he wrote, to destroye the Jewes, which are in all the kynges landes. For how can I suffice and se the euell, that shall happen vnto my people? Or how can I loke vpon the destruction of my kynred?

And the kyng Ahasuerus sayd vnto queene Esther, & to Mardocheus the Jewe: Behold, I haue geuen Esther his house of Haman, whō they haue hanged vpon a tre, because he layed hand vpon the Jewes. Wyte ye also for the Jewes, as it lyketh you in the kynges name, & seale it with the kynges rynge (for the wytynges that were wyttē in the kynges name, and seale with the kynges rynge, durst no man dylatull.) Then were the kynges scribes called at the same tyme, euē in the thirde moneth moneth, that is the moneth * Sivan, on the thye and twentye dape.

And it was wyttē (accordynge to all as Mardocheus commaunded) vnto the Jewes, and to the princes, to the debites and captaynes in the landes which are fro India vntill Ethiopia, namely an hundred and seuen and twentye landes, vnto euery one accordynge to the wyting therof, & vnto euery people after theyr speche, & to the Jewes accordynge to theyr wytyng and language.

And he wrote in the kynges name, and sealed it with the kynges ringe. And by postes that rode vpon horses, and swyfte pong Mules, sent he the wytynges, wher in the kyng graunted the Jewes (in what cyties soeuer they were) to gather them selues together, and to stande for their lyfe, and for to rote out, to slaye, & to destroye all the power of the people and land that wold trouble the. with chyldren and wemen, and to spoyle their good vpon one daye in all the landes of kyng Ahasuerus, namely vpon the thyrtyeth dape of the twelue moneth, which is the moneth * Adar.

The some of the wytyng was, howe there shulde be a commaundment geuen in all landes and published among all people, and that the Jewes shulde be ready agaynst that daye, and to auenge them selues on their enemyes. And so the postes that rode vpon the swift horses and Mules, made hast with all speede, to execute the kynges worde: & the commaundment was deuised in Susan the cytie.

And Mardocheus went out (from the palace and) from the kyng, in royall apparell of yelow and whyte, and with a great crowne of golde, beynge arayed with a garmēt of sylke and purple, and the cytie of Susan reioysed and was glad: and vnto the Jewes there was come (a new) lyght and gladnesse, ioye and worshippe. In all landes & cyties, into what places soeuer the kynges worde & commaundment reached, there was ioye & myght, prosperite & good dayes among the Jewes: in somoch, that many of the people in the lande became of the Jewes belefe, and the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

The ix. Chapter.

¶ At the commaundment of the kyng, the Jewes put their aduersaries to death. The sonnes of Haman are hanged. The Jewes kept a feast dape in remembrance of their deliuerance.

In the twelue moneth, that is the moneth Adar, vpon the thirteenth dape of the same, whan the kynges word and commaundment shulde be done, euen vpon the same daye that the enemyes shulde haue destroyed the Jewes to haue oppressed the, it turned contrary wyse, euen that the Jewes shulde slayne their enemyes. For then gathered the Jewes together in their cyties wythin all the landes of kyng Ahasuerus, to laye hand on such as wolde do them euell, and no man coulde withstand them: for the feare of them was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the landes, and princes & debites, & officers of the kyng, promoted the Jewes, for the feare of Mardocheus came vpon the. For Mardocheus was greute in the kynges house, and the repute of him was noysed in all landes, how he increased and grewe.

Thus the Jewes smote all theyr enemyes with a sore slaughter, and slawe & destroyed, and vpon after their wyll vnto suche as were their aduersaries. And at Susan the cytie slew the Jewes, and destroyed fyue hundred men: & slawe Pharasandatta, Dalphon, Aspatha, Phozatha, Adalia, Aridatha, Pharmastha, Arilai, Aridai, & Clazatha, the ten sonnes of Haman the sonne of Hamadatha the enemye of the Jewes: but on his goodes they layed no handes. At the same tyme was the kyng certified of the nobre of those that were slayne in the cytie of Susan. And the kyng sayde vnto queene Esther. The Jewes haue slayne & destroyed fyue hundred men in the cytie of Susan, & the ten sonnes of Haman. What haue they done thynkest thou in the other landes of the kyng? And what is thy petition, that it maye be geuen thee or what requyrest thou more to be done? Esther answered: If it please the kyng, let him suffice the Jewes tomorrow also to do accordynge vnto this dayes commaundment, that they maye hang Hamans ten sonnes vpon the tre. And the kyng charged to do so, & the commaundment was deuised at Susan, & they hanged Hamans ten sonnes. For the Jewes that were in Susan gathered the felues together, vpon the fourteenth dape of the moneth Adar, & slew thre hundred men at Susan, but on their goodes they layed no handes.

As for the other Jewes that were in the kynges landes, they came together, & stode for their lyues, & they myght haue rest from their enemyes: & slew of their enemyes fyue and seuentye thousand, howbeit, they layed no handes on their goodes. This they dyd on the thirteenth dape of the moneth Adar, and on the fourteenth dape of the same moneth rested they, which dape they helde to feastinge & gladnesse. But the Jewes that were at Susan, came together both on the thirteenth dape and on the fourteenth, and on the fyfteenth dape with feastinge and gladnes. And therefore the Jewes that dwelt in villages and vnwalled townes, helde the fourteenth dape of the moneth Adar, with gladnes and feastinge, and kepte holy dape, and euery one sent gyftes vnto another.

And Mardocheus wrote these actes, and sent the sent the writynges vnto all the Jewes that were in all the landes of kynge Abasuerus, both nye & farre that they shuld make a law among them selues & holde the fourtenth & fifteenth daye of the moneth Adar, as p dayes wherein the Jewes came to rest fro their enemyes, and as a moneth wherein their payne was turned to ioye, & their sorowe into a holy daye, & that in those dayes they shuld make feastes and gladnes, & one to lende gyftes vnto another, & to distribute vnto the poore.

And the Jewes were content with it & they had begonne to do, and p Bardocheus wrote vnto them: how that Haman the sonne of Hamadatha all the Jewes enemy, had deuised against p Jewes, how he might destroye the ad caused to cast Phur (that is a Lot) for to put them in feare, & to bringe the to naught: & how hester went, and spake to the kynge, & thow we letters his wicked denye (which he ymagined agaynst p Jewes) myght be turned vpo his awne heed, & how he & his sonnes were hanged on the tre. For the which cause they called this daye Phurim, because of the name of the lott, ad because of all the wordes of this writyng: & what they the felices had sene, & what had happened vnto the.

And the Jewes set it vp, and toke it vpo them and their seide, ad vpon all soch as toyne them selues vnto them, that they wolde not misse but obserue these two dayes yere-ly, accordyng as they were wyrtten and appoynted, how that these dayes are not to be forgotten, but to be kepte of childers childe among all kynredes in all lades and cyties. They are the dayes of Phurim, which are not to be ouerslypte among the Jewes, & the memoriall of them ought not to perishe fro their seide.

And quene Esther the daughter of Abihail and Bardocheus the Jew wrote w all auctorite (to confirme this seconde writyng of Phurim) and sent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the hundred & seuen and twenty landes of the empyre of Abasuerus, w freddy and faythfull wordes, to confirme these dayes of Phurim, in their tyme appoynted, accordyng as Bardocheus the Jew & Esther the quene had appoynted them. And they bound their soule and their seide to fasting, & prayer. And Esther stablished the wordes of these lottes, as it is written in the boke.

And the kynge Abasuerus layed tribute vpon the lande, and vpon the fles of the see. And all that he dyd by his power and auctorite, & the great worshippe of Bardocheus, which the kynge gaue him, be they not written in the Chronycles of the kynges of Media and Persia: For Bardocheus the Jewe was the seconde next vnto kynge Abasuerus and greate among the Jewes, and accepted among the multitude of his brethren, as one p sekerth the welth of his people, and speaketh the best for all hys seide.

The ende of the boke of Esther.

The boke of Job.

The fyrst Chapter.

Job is plagued of God by the losse of hys goodes and chyldren.

In the lande of * thus there was a man whose name was Job: & the same was a perfect & iust mā, soch a one as feared God & eschued euell. And he had seue sonnes, & thre daughters * his substance also was seuen * shepe, & thre. * camels, v. C. pouck of oxen, & yue. C. the asses, and a very greate household: so that he was one of the most principall me amog all them of the east countre. And his sonnes wēt and made banquettes: one daye in one house, another daye in another, and sent for theyr thre sisters, to eat & drinke with the. And it fortunēd, that when they had passed ouer the tyme of their banquetting rounde aboute, Job sent for them, and sanctified them, and gat vp early, and offered for every one a byt offeringe. For Job sayde: lest peradventure my sonnes haue done some offence, & haue bene vnthankfull to God in their hertes. Thus did Job every daye. And vpon a daye * when the children of God cam & stode before the Lord, it fortunēd that Sathanca also among them. And the Lord sayde vnto Sathan. From whence comest thou? Sathan answered the Lord, and sayde: * I haue gone about the lande, and walcked thorow it.

And the Lord sayde vnto Sathan: hast p not considered my seruaunt Job, how p there is none lyke him in the land: a perfect & a iust man: soch a one as feareth God. Ad exchueh euell? Sathan answered, and sayde vnto the Lord. Woth Job feare God for naught? hast thou not preferred him, & his house, and all p he hath on euery syde? Thou hast blessed the worckes worckes of hys handes, and hys possession is encreased in the lade. But laye thyne had now vpon hym * (a lytle) and touch all that he hath, and he shal curse the to thy face. And the Lord sayde vnto Satan: lo, all that he hath, he in thy power: onely vpon hym selfe se that thou laye not thyne hande. And Satan went forth fro the presence of the Lord.

And vpo a certayn daye it fortunēd, that his sonnes and daughters were eatyng and drincking wyne in their eldest brothers house, and there came a messenger vnto Job, ad sayde: Whye the oxen were a plowynge, and the asses goynge in the pasture besyde them, the Sabees came in vpolently, and toke the awaye: yee, they haue slayne thy seruantes with the edge of the sword, and I onely rā- nemy waye, to tell the.

Whyle he was yet speakyng, there came another, and sayde: The fyre of God is fallē from heauen, and hath bzēt vp all thy shepe and seruantes, and consumed them: & I onely ranne my waye, to tell the. And whyle he was yet speakinge, there came another, and sayde: The Caldees made thre armyes, and fell in vpo the camels, and haue carped them awaye, yee, and slayne thy seruantes with the swerde: and I onely am gotten awaye, to tell the. And whyle he was yet speakyng, there came another, and sayde: Thy sonnes and thy daughters were eatyng and drincking wyne in theyr eldest brothers house, and beholde, there came a myghtye greate wynde out of the south, and smote the four corners of the house: which fell vpo thy chyldren, and they are deed, and I am gotten a waye alone to tell the.
